I am very happy to be here. Davao is known for many things but tonight I want to stress Davao as an important part of actually two of our Super Regions, one is the Agribusiness Mindanao and the other is the Cyber Corridor. So I am here as part of a tour of the Super Regions. As I said, Agribusiness Mindanao is one of the regions. Tourism Central Philippines is another, the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, the Urban Luzon Beltway and the Cyber Corridor. These Super Regions were designed to spread development away from an inequitable concentration in Manila.

The Cyber Corridor was identified by the private sector, the academe and government comprising the strongest potential locations for ICT investments like call centers, back office, software development, medical transcription—what is medical transcription? Well, of course, our agents here know what it is but for purposes of the media and for purposes of the general public who will listen to the media and read the media, an example of this would be an American doctor talking into a microphone and discussing the diagnosis of the patient and that has to be digitized, his voice tape is sent to the Philippines and the Filipino transcriber puts it together. Of course, that means that you cannot have just anybody coming from the street, it's somebody who has to know medical terms and understands something about medicine. So, that's one example.

Engineering design, I think you're all aware of that. Animation, Pixar uses animation services from the Philippines, and game development. The IT Corridor or the Cyber Corridor includes the two original ICT Centers of Excellence, Metro Manila and Metro Cebu, and 10 so-called 'next wave cities' being promoted as the best new destinations for ICT: Metro Laguna, Metro Cavite, Iloilo, Bacolod, Metro Pampanga, Metro and Central Bulacan, Cagayan de Oro, Lipa and Davao. That's why I'm here tonight, to announce that Davao is an important part of our Cyber Corridor. It is one of what we call the next wave cities for ICT investment.

Some of the reasons given for putting Davao in the Top 10 next wave cities is that Davao has nearly 500,000 high quality workers. You know that's the largest talent pool among all the next wave cities. You will not find another city in the Philippines or even a group of Metropolis cities in the next wave cities having that number.

So no wonder there are three PEZA IT parks, including this one plus facilities in Ayala Land, Robinsons Land and SM, and six more applying. And I understand there are 18 call centers in Davao City with almost 7,000 employees, including major players like Call Box, Cyber City, Global Connect, Sutherland, Western Wats, and our host, Concentrix. (applause) Indeed, Davao has come a long way as far as ICT is concerned.

Actually, the Philippines itself has come a long way since January 2001. Many have forgotten much about that tumultuous time almost ten years ago. But at that time, the nation was on the brink of political chaos and financial bankruptcy.

The economy was jammed in reverse. Few investments were being made, few jobs were being created. The debt of the government and its corporations of 3.6 trillion pesos was bigger than our GDP of 3.3 trillion pesos. There were almost no foreign reserves.

It was a time of lower salaries and higher prices. Tax revenues were so low that we could hardly invest in expanding healthcare, improving education, and providing clean water and needed electricity to remote barangays.

Into this dismal picture we stepped. I did not seek the Office of the President in 2001; it was thrust upon me. But rather than shirk from this onerous task, we rolled up our sleeves, determined to turn the Philippines around.

We were focused like a laser beam on delivering better real results to better the lives of ordinary Filipinos. But as an economist, I knew that to reverse years of economic decline we had to instill fiscal discipline, grow the economy, and invest in human and physical infrastructure like the completion of the modern Davao International Airport.

These actions would form the building blocks of a turnaround that would deliver an unprecedented 36 quarters of uninterrupted growth, create 9 million new jobs, add 53 million people to healthcare, with government coffers that helped us withstand the global economic crisis.

In my first State of the Nation Address in 2001, I said that we would create wealth by developing the labor-intensive, skills-intensive services such as ICT. From scratch with only 2,000 workers in year 2000, we created what is today a global powerhouse: the Philippine BPO industry. We achieved this by promoting strategic investments in three areas:

First, digital infrastructure. We encouraged more broadband services in cities and identified growth areas. Thus the cost of international calls went down from 40 cents to 2 cents a minute for those using VOiP. The number of internet users jumped from 2 million in year 2000 to more than 24 million today.

And so that no Taiwan tremor or tsunami can cut off our cyber services from their global clients, we encouraged PLDT and Globe to invest billions in having more than one international telecommunications gateway into the country. Here in Davao all BPO facilities are supported by Bayantel, PLDT and Smart which offer broadband connection with resiliency and redundancy. So if one system fails the others are still there. In fact in 2008, PLDT upgraded its network facilities for several IT-BPO locations in Mindanao.

The second area of investments was an appropriate legal and policy environment. We created the Commission on ICT headed now by Chairman Rey Chua, over here. Are you the youngest Cabinet member or is Durano younger than you? You're the youngest. But that's the reason why because ICT is an industry of the young people. So CICT was guided by the policy that the ICT sector should be guided by the market, not by government interference. Maybe by government support but not interference.

For example, if the market calls for call centers, then we should not force the investors to specialize in programming. So instead of regulating, we gave incentives to developers of IT parks like this one. We assisted investors in identifying promising provincial sites, ergo the Cyber Corridor and as part of what I'm doing now is to let the people know, the investment community know that there is Davao part of the Cyber Corridor. And we built more transport facilities to those sites where Davao International Airport is crucial, was crucial in the choice of Davao as part of the Cyber Corridor.

So this philosophy of encouraging rather than regulating drove the fast growth of call centers. But now the market is also leading to the growth of higher value added segments of the offshoring and outsourcing industries, like accounting, legal services. Legal services like a lawyer, a law firm in America will send to somebody here assignments for legal research, for example, so that is certainly higher value added because you are a researcher but you are not doing this for someone in Davao City, you are doing this for somebody in Dallas, Texas or something like that. The same thing with medical and personnel and administrative services. And of course engineering design, we are such creative people, we don't have to travel abroad and get a job, working in an architecture office in another country because we can do that right here or somebody else in another country.

And IT services software development that is a growing area for the Philippines. Just the other day we inaugurated the IT Center of one of the Top 21 in the world, UST Global. And the Chairman of the Board said in his speech that he had met me in 2007 in one of my trips to the United States. I mean, it was actually... it was in fact part of my trip which as always an investment promotion meeting and he was one of them. And what he really liked about the Philippines among many others that I mentioned earlier, one very important factor was we have a good Intellectual Property Protection regime. So that's a policy environment that promotes investments.

Third, the development of human capital. To increase the country's share in the global market for offshoring and outsourcing services, the government intensified the implementation of various programs that will train its workforce to enable them to find jobs in the BPO sector, and to educate the young on the use of computers and internet for the next generation of IT/BPO workers. So more than 4,000 public schools are now connected to the internet, including 57 schools in Davao City. In technical education and skills training, we have invested three times as much as the combined budgets of three previous administrations. A very large portion of this investment goes to scholarships for the BPO industry, including more than 4,000 in Region IX.

The other day, Secretary Buboy Syjuco of TESDA, forwarded to me a text message from one of those 4,000 saying, "Thanks, Secretary Syjuco because I was one of the scholars and now I'm in Concentrix." There you are, that's Sarah Genial. That's why we decided to have this event here in Concentrix so we could see where Sarah is now training. So thanks to these strategic investments, billions in private investments poured into the country, creating half a million new jobs in BPO alone.

Today, the Philippines with 90 million people has challenged India's one billion population for BPO supremacy. Compared to almost nothing in 2001, 0.02 billion dollars, our BPO industry now earns more than 7 billion dollars, not far behind India's 9 billion dollars for call centers.

And the 500,000 jobs that we're creating in ICT are to me part of the legacy that I will leave. And this is a legacy I'd like to think of hard work, a strong and stable economy, renewed global engagement, major investment in healthcare and education, and dramatic improvements in human and physical infrastructure.

Much work remains to be done, but I'm determined to turn over to a new government a new Philippines ready for the challenge of bringing the nation to the verge of first world in 20 years.

And how do we do that? You know 200 years ago there was the... or more than that the Agriculture Revolution, then there was the Industrial Revolution. Now we have the Knowledge Revolution and that's the way to bring us to the first world. And I'm glad that Davao is part of that corridor that will lead us to the first world.

Congratulations to all of you!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Cyber Corridor Mindanao Tour: Visit to Concentrix. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100407235053/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27449&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Cyber Corridor Visayan Tour: Visit to Qualfon Philippines Quality Contact Services

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Cyber Corridor Visayan Tour: Visit to Qualfon Philippines Quality Contact Services

[Delivered at the Skyrise 3 Bldg., Asiatown IT Park, Lahug, Cebu City, Cebu, February 3, 2010]

Thank you.

Thank you very much, Secretary Rey Chua for your introduction.

I'd also like to thank Mayor Tommy Osmeña for your kind words of welcome to your city. To acknowledge also Governor Gwen Garcia in the province of Cebu who are partners with Ayala in this development project here. Of course, Mr. Monera, Mr. Belen, thank you for your presentation.

I'd like to introduce aside from Rey Chua the other members of the Cabinet who are here. We've our new Press Secretary, Cris Iban; we have Secretary Boboy Syjuco whose TESDA has been invaluable in developing the manpower for the ICT and BPO industry; and Secretary Ric Saludo, our spokesperson aside from being the Executive Director of the Reconstruction Commission on typhoons Ondoy, Pepeng and Frank which fortunately does not have to include Cebu in the reconstruction.

Members of the media whom I especially invited to be here today. You are actually the guest of honor because we are doing this for you making this presentation. IT executives especially our hosts from Qualfon, ladies and gentlemen.

I am very happy to be here in Cebu City. We always talked about Cebu as the most popular destination for foreign tourists in our country, but you are two things, not just the most popular destination for foreign tourists in our country but number one in the Tholons list of emerging cities for IT and BPO. So, congratulations!

And so today for once we are not here as a tourist. We are here on a tour but a tour of the Super Regions again, not the Tourism Super Region of which you are a part but of the Cyber Tourism Region. But just to refresh everyone's mind, our Super Regions are: Agribusiness Mindanao, Tourism Central Philippines of which Cebu is such an important part, the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, the Urban Luzon Beltway and the Cyber Corridor which we want now to stress Cebu is also an integral part. We designed this Super Regions to spread development away from an inequitable concentration in Manila.

The Cyber Corridor was identified by the private sector, the academe and government together as the corridor that comprises the strongest potential and actual locations for ICT investments like call centers, back office, software development, medical transcription, engineering design, animation and game development. It includes 10 urban areas being promoted as new destinations for ICT: Metro Laguna, Metro Cavite, Iloilo, Davao, Bacolod, Metro Pampanga, Metro Bulacan, Cagayan de Oro, Central Bulacan and Lipa, and of course, the two original Philippine ICT Centers of Excellence: Manila and Cebu.

But I should say as far as Tholons is concerned, they have listed among the top 50: Quezon City, Pasig and Mandaluyong but they listed number one Cebu City, so I should say Cebu City and Metro Manila. So to be in that survey of the “Top 50 Emerging Global Outsourcing Destinations,” and as Mr. Belen pointed out, better than many of those world capitals that we all read about in the front pages. And why do they put Cebu as number one? According to Tholons, it’s mainly due to the scale and quality of the workforce, of the modern infrastructure, of the business catalysts, of the risk profile, and the cost and quality of life.

So that is why we should not be surprised that there are now, what? Seventy, I was surprised outsourcing and offshoring companies here. I knew there were more than 50 but 70 is a very big number employing more than 20,000 individuals. It is attractive to investors because of the high quality of the graduates from nine universities and 50 colleges. And because also our administration has invested in or promoted the necessary infrastructure support to create a better business environment for Cebu.

Aside from miles and miles of roads, there is now three-fourths completed a 200-megawatt power plant expected to be finished next year. And as we can see from this IT Asiatown, Class A facilities are available to accommodate BPO-IT locators in Cebu.

I was supposed to sign today ceremonially the Cebu Business Park, that would be still another location but the paper work wasn’t completed. So anyway, that’s another one upcoming and when entering this and entering that I’m sure when it is completed, it’s really like entering the first world, isn’t it? So world class, congratulations to Cebu!

Mr. Belen said, he pointed out about your industry, how it’s gone long way since early 2001, and indeed I can say that about the entire Philippines.

The Philippines has come a long way since January 2001. Most of you probably don’t remember much about that time anymore, the tumultuous time ten years ago. Many of you may have forgotten that at that time the nation was on the brink of political chaos and financial bankruptcy. That the economy was jammed in reverse. That few investments were being made. That few jobs were being created and maybe, many are not aware that at that time, the debt of the government and its corporations of 3.6 trillion pesos was bigger than our GDP of 3.3 trillion pesos. There were almost no foreign reserves.

It was a time of lower salaries and high prices. Tax revenues were so low that we could hardly invest in expanding healthcare, improving education, and providing clean water and needed electricity to remote barangays.

Into this dismal picture we stepped. I didn’t seek the Office of the President in 2001; it was thrust upon me. But rather than shirk from this onerous task, we rolled up our sleeves, determined to turn the Philippines around.

We were focused like a laser beam on delivering real results to better the lives of ordinary Filipinos. As an economist, I knew that to reverse years of economic decline we had to instill fiscal discipline, grow the economy and invest in human and physical infrastructure like roads. Like I remember that road to the south, from Cebu to Santander. You know my grandfather built that road when he was working for the... well, at that time, the American administration. And when I came here in 2001, oh! it was so ugly. So I decided now... 2004. So 2004, we started constructing that road, now it’s not an ugly road anymore, it’s a beautiful road. And then the Cansaga bridge which is going to make the northern part of Cebu, also very accessible especially given that the second biggest employer in the country is there, Mitsumi in Danao City. It used to be the biggest employer, it’s now the second because it got beaten by a BPO teletech. It’s now the biggest employer in our country.

And then, we also built the RORO Nautical Highway System. So these thing, all these actions would form the building blocks of a turnaround that would deliver an unprecedented 36 quarters of uninterrupted growth, create 9 million new jobs, add 53 million people to healthcare, with government coffers that helped us withstand the global economic crisis.

In my first State of the Nation Address in 2001, after your very important ICT Conference here in Cebu City, I said that we would create wealth by developing the labor-intensive, skills-intensive sectors such as ICT. From scratch with only 2,000 workers in year 2000, we created what is today a global powerhouse: the Philippine BPO industry. And we promoted this... we achieved this by promoting strategic investments in three areas:

First, digital infrastructure. We encouraged more broadband services in cities and identified growth areas. Thus the cost of international calls went down from 40 cents a minute to 2 cents a minute for those using the VOiP. The number of internet users jumped from 2 million in 2000 to more than 24 million today. No wonder we had the stage set for BPO. And so that no Taiwan tremor or tsunami can cut off our cyber services from their clients for even one minute, we encouraged PLDT and Globe to invest billions in having more than one international telecommunications gateway.

For instance, Ayala who is partner with the province in this IT Park, has built an international gateway from Ballesteros, Cagayan going all the way up to Manila and then to the rest of the Philippines, so that if there's a tremor somewhere else and the other gateway collapses that is still there. And that is one very important reason why investors come to the Philippines, they know there'll be not a single minute of service interruption even if there is a calamity somewhere in the region.

Second area of investment was an appropriate policy and legal environment. We created the Commission on ICT, appointed Rey Chua with the guidance that the ICT sector should be guided by the market, with minimal government interference. For example, if the market calls for call centers, we should not force them to specialize in doing something else like programming or software development. Let the market determine that. So instead of regulating, we gave incentives to developers of IT parks like this, assisted investors in identifying promising provincial sites hence our cyber corridor, and built more transport facilities to those sites.

This philosophy drove the fast growth of call centers. Now the market is leading to the growth of higher value added segments of the offshoring and outsourcing industries, like accounting, legal, medical, personnel and administrative services. And also, the very high end IT services themselves. I saw in your chart that IT has been here since a long, long time ago. But now, it is expanding again in an explosive magnitude. And the other day, we inaugurated an IT center in Global City in Taguig and the Chairman of the Board who is one of the company, UST Global, which is one of the top 21 IT companies in the world said that the reason why he decided to come to the Philippines after he met me on one of my trips to New York in 2007, was that he was convinced and he's still convinced that we have a good intellectual property protection environment. So an enabling environment rather than an environment that dictates to the investors what sector they should specialize in.

Third area of major strategic investment, the development of human capital. To increase the country's share in the global market for offshoring and outsourcing services, the government intensified the implementation of programs that will train the workforce to enable them to find jobs in the BPO and also to educate the young on the use of computers and internet for the next generation of IT and BPO workers. That's why more than 4,000 public schools now are connected to the internet, including 117 schools in Metro Cebu. And that was the job that my daughter used to have when she came here to Cebu in 2005, she was the Executive Director of an NGO called FITEd, Foundation for IT Education, because we were putting internet and computers in the schools that teachers had to be taught how to use that. And that was part of my daughter's work until she moved over to the environment field. She is now to the Worldwide Fund for Nature.

In technical education and skills training, we have invested three times as much as the combined budgets of three previous administrations. A very large portion of this goes to scholarships for the BPO industry, including more than 8,000 scholarships here in Region VII. So thanks to these strategic investments, billions have been poured into the country by investors creating half a million new jobs in BPO alone.

So today, the Philippines with its 90 million people has challenged India's one billion population for BPO supremacy. Compared to $0.02 billion in 2001 or almost nothing, our BPO industry earned 7.3 billion dollars in 2009. And I must congratulate Cebu because you are a center of excellence, one of only two and a bigger center of excellence than any city in Metro Manila.

The 500,000 jobs created in the ICT are part of the legacy that I am honored to leave, and I'm happy to say and I hope you will agree with me, that this is a legacy of hard work, a strong economy, a stable economy, renewed global engagement, major investments in healthcare and education, and dramatic improvements in physical and human infrastructure.

Much remains to be done, but I am determined to turn over to a new government a New Philippines ready for the challenge of bringing the nation to the verge of first world in 20 years. When we entered this IT park, I said, “Wow! it’s like we’re in the first world.” So, Cebu and this IT park are a forerunner of the first world Philippines in 20 years. Congratulations to all of you!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo’s speech during the Cyber Corridor Visayan Tour: visit to Qualfon Philippines Quality Contact Services. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100407235108/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27448&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the International Autism Conference

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the International Autism Conference

[Delivered at the Plenary Hall, PICC, Pasay City, February 3, 2010]

Thank you very much, Secretary Cabral. Thank you.

Dr. Reyes, Dr. Amaral, Dr. Shih, Lynda, Dr. Marnan, and I think we have our new Secretary of Social Welfare and Development Celia Yangco here. I'd like to acknowledge also the first cousin of Lynda Borromeo, Secretary Ed Paminutan, who is Chairman of the Subic-Clark Alliance for Development and who in that capacity is helping Lynda obtain a property in the Clark Economic Zone for the Autism Center of Asia. I'd like to also acknowledge the presence of one of Espie Cabral's predecessor, Dr. Quasi Romualdez, former Secretary of Health.

I welcome to the Philippines all the participants in this conference. And also for the Filipinos, welcome also to Manila! Welcome to this conference!

It's a great honor for our country to host this first ever International Autism Conference. So, to Autism Hearts Philippines and its program partners, Autism Speaks, UC Davis M.I.N.D. Institute, the Philippine Society of Developmental and Behavioral Pediatrics, and the Autism Society of the Philippines, for gathering in this conference some of the world's best neuroscientists and medical professionals, educators and psychologists to share with us the advances made in research and intervention on Autism Spectrum Disorder. Congratulations to all of you!

We are especially thankful to Dr. David Amaral and his team's support for the public information campaign on this disorder.

This conference also launches the Global Autism Public Health Initiative in the Philippines to increase public and professional awareness of ASD, particularly on early detection and treatment as well as service delivery by those looking after ASD patients.

Indeed, there is a need for everyone in the world to better understand autism, so that those afflicted with it, and their families, may be given more sympathy, reassurance and hope. In this age of speedy technological developments and miracle drugs, we hope science can soon find answers to prevent if not permanently cure ASD.

Autism Speaks, the world's largest autism science and advocacy group, has built up enough influence to convince the UN to endorse the holding of a World Autism Awareness Day on April 2nd. Congratulations for that! And also to convince individuals and nations to contribute substantial amounts for research in ASD.

With the establishment of GAPH Philippines, we are taking another significant step to gain the Filipino people's support for a disorder that afflicts half a million Filipinos. Of the half-million Filipinos with autism, only around 2 percent are undergoing regular treatment, although surely most of them are being given tender loving care by their family members. And here in the Philippines, we are very proud of our medical doctors and scientists. They are eager to learn from these discussions and to share what they have learned.

Filipino doctors and medical personnel are famous and well in demand all over the world. And on top of their competence, Filipino doctors and the rest of our people have an ample supply of heart — empathy for the sick and the distressed. We are a very caring people, which is why our caregivers are among the most in-demand in the world. And we have many specialists in various diseases as well as hospitals whose level of medical expertise and facilities rank among the best in Asia. That is why we are confident that as we have more awareness and interest in autism, whatever special treatment may be required, there will always be or there will emerge excellent Filipino doctors and other medical staff to provide it with quality care.

Competence, dedication, tender loving care — they collectively constitute effective treatment not only of physical illnesses but also of other ailments, even social and economic ills. I can cite as illustration the turnaround our economy has enjoyed in the past decade.

The Philippines has come a long way since January 2001. Time has gratefully erased many memories of that tumultuous time less than ten years ago, when the nation teetered on the brink of political chaos and financial bankruptcy. The public sector debt at that time of 3.6 trillion pesos was larger than the Gross Domestic Product of 3.3 trillion pesos. For our people at that time, it was a time of great difficulty and because tax revenues were very low, insufficient investments could be made to expand healthcare. And into this dismal picture we stepped in.

I did not seek the Office of the Presidency in 2001. It was thrust upon me. But, rather than shirk from this onerous task, I rolled up my sleeves and went to work determined to turn the Philippines around.

We focused like a laser beam on delivering real results to better the lives of ordinary Filipinos. But as an economist, I knew that to be able to do this, we had to instill fiscal discipline, grow the economy, and invest in physical and human infrastructure, which includes healthcare.

From day one, these actions would form the building blocks of a turnaround that would deliver an unprecedented 36 consecutive quarters of growth, the creation of 9 million new jobs, a stable fiscal situation, and the addition of 53 million Filipinos to healthcare especially PhilHealth. And so, therefore, I am happy that as we have taken care, I believe, to a large extent of basic public health we can now work on something that afflicts half a million Filipinos.

I am happy that Autism Hearts Philippines is closely linked with other similar organizations worldwide and that it is playing a major role in linking up with other ASD-related groups in Asia.

As our economy regains its growth momentum, I am more optimistic than ever that more public and private investments will be poured into the different areas of public health, as well as into continuing research on special disorders and diseases.

I'm proud of my husband Mike has put in a lot of effort and done his part in addressing the problem of Autism in the Philippines. And I trust that with the participation of experts as knowledgeable and determined as many of our speakers today, the ASD public awareness campaign will soon take off and we will eventually muster enough support to establish finally that ASD Institute here in Asia right there in our home province of Pampanga in Clark.

To all of you, have a good conference. Mabuhay! And thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the International Autism Conference.

Retrieved

from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232745/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27413&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the Extension Building of Sentro ng Karunungan Vocational Institute

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inauguration of the Extension Building of Sentro ng Karunungan Vocational Institute renamed
Honorio Lopez Technical Institute

[Delivered at the Brgys. 232 & 234, Zones 21 & 22, Tayuman, Tondo, Manila, February 5, 2010]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Congressman Lopez sa iyong imbitasyon, sa iyong pagpaliwanag, sa inyong pag welcome sa akin.

Binabati ko rin si Mayor Lim, si Congressman Asilo, yung ibat-ibang opisyal ng pamahalaan at lahat ng mga opisyal na narito, pati na rin lalo na yung mga kabataan na nag-aaral dito. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Nagalak akong makabisita nitong bagong pinangalan na Honorio Lopez Technical Institute. Maganda yung pangalang technical dahil linalarawan ang pangangailangan ngayon itong ating panahong ito. Ang eskwelahang ito ay gaya nang sabi ni Congressman ilang taon na. At marami nang natulungan, mga kabataan at kahit yung hindi gaanong kabataan natulungan upang magkaroon ng disentang trabaho. Nakita natin kanina yung Fashion Jewelry Making, Cosmetology, Hair Science, Reflexology, Hotel and Restaurant Services, Food Trades, Baking pati Cell Phone Repair at Maintenance, at Computer Technician at Computer Literacy.

Karangalan ko na halos isang libo na mga scholars dito ay scholars ng Pangulong Gloria. Ito ay yung sa mga Food and Beverage, Barista, Manggugupit, Masahista, Motorcycle Repair, Carpentry, Plumbing, Masonry, Welding at darating, magbubukas at Culinary Arts.

This is very important dahil ang pundasyon ng oportunidad ay edukasyon at sa edukasyon napakaimportante ang technical and vocational education. Ito ay susi... ang edukasyon ay susi sa mas magandang buhay. At sa mga panahong ito ang malakas na edukasyon ay dapat kasama ng malakas na backbone ng teknolohiya. Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan na may kurso dito na Computer Technician at Computer Literacy. Congratulations!

Because we have to build the mind and we have to connect to the world. Edukasyon at teknolohiya, yan ang magkambal na gabay kung saan inaasahan ang ating kinabukasan, kinabukasan ng ating bansa. Kaya napakalaki ang puhunan natin sa edukasyon at skills training. Salamat na rin sa mga congressmen gaya ni Congressman Lopez na siya ay congressman mula nung ako ay nagsimula bilang pangulo. Mula sa 90 billion pesos bago sa ating administrasyon, ang budget ng DepEd, TESDA, CHED at mga state universities and colleges ay nagdoble, naging 180 billion pesos.

Hindi lang ito ang layo nang naabot, buong Pilipinas malayo na ang naabot mula Enero 2001. Salamat at nabura na ng panahon ang maraming ala-ala tungkol sa napakagulong panahon na yun wala pang sampung taong nakaraan, nang ang bansa ay nasa dulo ng lubhang kaguluhan sa pulitika at pagkabangkarote sa pananalapi.

Ipit paurong noon ang ekonomiya. Kunti lang ang puhunan pumapasok, kunti lang ang trabaho linilikha. Ang utang ng pamahalaan sektor na 3.6 trillion pesos ay higit pa kaysa sa ating GDP ng 3.3 trillion pesos. Halos walang dolyar.

Panahon noon ng mas mababang mga sweldo at mas matataas na presyo. At sa napakababang kita sa buwis, halos hindi makapuhunan sa pagpapalawak ng kalinga sa kalusugan, pag-ibayo ng edukasyon, at kailangang kuryente sa malalayong barangay.

Sa miserableng eksenang ito pumasok tayo. Hindi ko hinabol ang Panguluhan noong 2001; hinulog ng langit. But we rolled up our sleeves buong loob na mabaliktad ang landas ng Pilipinas.

Nakatukoy tayo parang laser beam, upang maghatid ng mga tunay na resulta para pag-ibayuhin ang mga buhay ng mga karaniwang Pilipino. Bilang ekonomista, alam ko na upang mabawi ang pag-urong ng ekonomiya kailangan-kailangang lagyan ng disiplina sa kaban ng bayan, kaya salamat na rin sa ating mga congressmen gumawa tayo ng tax reforms kahit na hindi popular ito.

At kailangan ito para palakihin ang ekonomiya at mamuhunan sa tao at sa imprastraktura. Halimbawa, yung mga imprastrakturang ginawa natin dito, yung dredging ng mouth ng Pasig River, yan ang isang dahilan kung bakit mabilis bumaba sa Maynila ang baha kahit na noong napakaraming ulan sa bagyong Ondoy dahil yun sa imprastraktura natin sa Maynila.

Ang mga gawaing ito ay humubog ng mga building blocks sa pagbabago na nagdala ng 'di pa nangyari nung araw na 36 quarters na walang patid na pagsulong ng ekonomiya. Naglikha tayo ng siyam na milyong bagong trabaho, sana makaabot ng sampung milyon pagkatapos ng ating administrasyon. At nagdagdag ng 52 million katao sa kalinga sa kalusugan, at matatag pa rin ang kaban ng bansa kahit na namuhunan tayo doon sa mga yun dahil nga sa ating mga reporma sa buwis.

At kasama dito nagtayo tayo ng isandaang libong silid-aralan kasi gusto natin Education for All. Kinekwento nga ni Congressman Lopez na yung konti lang ang nagga-graduate doon sa mga nagsisimula pero ang Education for All ibig sabihin ng UN Millennium Development Goals universal primary education.

Mas malubha pa nga ang problema dahil 58% lang ng mga 6 years old ang pumapasok sa eskwela, kaya kailangan natin papasukin sila. Yung iba dahil malayo ang eskwela, halimbawa, naalala ko doon sa aking probinsyang Pampanga nagpunta ako, nagbukas ng isang eskwela sa isang... ah, no, binisita ko yung isang barangay sa bundok ng mga Aeta. Merong isang nagpunta doon na nag-attend at kwinento na sa akin dalawang oras siyang naglakad mula sa kanyang barangay dahil wala siyang eskwela doon. Kaya nagtayo tayo ng eskwela doon, kaya nagtayo tayo nang ganun mga eskwela sa mga isang libong barangay kung saan nung araw walang eskwela.

At para rin hindi masyado magastos pumasok tinanggal natin yung miscellaneous fees sa public primary school, 'di ba Superintendent? I hope you're carrying that out. At hindi kailangan mag-uniporme, optional ang uniporme. Kung mas mura bumili ng uniporme, okay. Kung mas mura mag t-shirt, okay. At sa isang milyong pinakamahirap na pamilya sa ating bansa sa "Pantawid Pamilya" program may allowance itong mga isang milyong pinakamahirap na pamilya sa kundisyon pumasok sa eskwela ang kanilang mga anak.

Para lumawak din ang edukasyon nagdagdag tayo ng 60,000 na guro at tinaas pa ang kanilang sweldo. At naglaan tayo ng 1.5 billion pesos para sa teacher training, especially for English teachers. We increased the use of English as a medium of instruction from 40% to 55% in grade school, from 45% to 70% in high school because we have to return our competitiveness and advantage in English. At dahil sa kailangang teknolohiya, we increased Science and Mathematics hours by 50%.

Etong mga pinaggastusan natin ay hindi lamang sa public school because in private schools, almost half of the students are there on scholarship by the government. And especially in Science and Engineering, we provided college and post-graduate education for over 600,000 scholars.

Sa technical education and skills training naman, yung kwinento nga ni Congressman Lopez na pinuhunan natin ng malaki ang TESDA at iba pa sa skills training. Actually, gaano kalaki? It is as much as three previous administrations combined, yan ang linagay natin sa technical education.

Kaya meron halos isang libong mga scholars dito sa Honorio Lopez Technical Institute. Bilang resulta ng ating mga pinuhunan, the National Achievement Test scores went up from 44% to 65% in elementary schools and 36% to 47% in high school, better than before but still needing improvement.

That is why we remain dedicated in our last months in office to promoting, advancing, pushing for more and better education and better technological infrastructure. We have come far in both, but we still have far to go and we must not rest. We will continue hands-on governance until the day we leave office. We're both leaving office, di ba, Congressman? We will focus on three areas:

One, bringing more power and growth to each region to decongest Manila. Yan ang isa sa ating mga hangad.

Two, continue to promote the importance of the three E's: education, the economy and the environment to our effort to create sustainable and equitable development.

Third, a continuous focus on the youth of our nation as our best hope for a brighter, better Philippines.

We have made progress in many areas, but more needs to be done. Everything our government has worked hard to achieve has been to make the future brighter for the next generation of Filipinos. The youth of our nation are our hope and inspiration. Everything we do must be to build a better life for each and every young person in this nation.

While I am proud of what our government has achieved, past achievement is only as good as the ability of the nation to grow and prosper. I fervently desire that the progress we have made will not stop; that what remains to be done will be picked up by the next generation of leadership.

As a nation, we must set our sights firmly on the future, to build on what is good and work even harder to meet the challenges of what remains to be done. And the young of our nation, gaya nung mga nag-aaral dito sa technical institute na ito, they are the bridge between the past and the future. It is for them that we right the wrongs, fight for change and seek to make a brighter day.

As I said, our nation has come far, but it still has far to go. And the youth represent the aspirations of our nation. It is to them that we dedicate the efforts of our government to lift up the Philippines.

I have a deep desire to see a brighter future for the hardworking men and women of this nation. Most important, I have an abiding interest in seeing that the young people today come into their own, seize the value of education and modernity, and use these tools to advance themselves and the nation.

Kaya ako ay nasisiyahan na meron tayong mga institusyon gaya nitong Honorio Lopez Technical Institute, malaking tulong ito para sa kinabukasan ng ating bansa.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the inauguration of the Extension Building of Sentro ng Karunungan Vocational Institute renamed Honorio Lopez Technical Institute. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232734/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27470&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: Visit to the University of Batangas

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: Visit to the University of Batangas

[Delivered at the Multi-purpose Gymnasium, University of Batangas, Batangas City, Batangas, February 8, 2010]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Pamintuan, ang ating champion ng Urban Luzon Beltway sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Maraming salamat din at congratulations, University President Nani Perez sa iyong welcome at sa iyong pagkapangulo dito; at maraming salamat Vice President Noli de Castro dahil usually ang Presidente at Vice President hindi nagkakasama sa isang okasyon pero dahil importanteng-importante itong ginagawa natin dito, nandito si Vice President Noli de Castro.

Salamat rin, Congressman Dodo Mandanas na kasama ko mula pang Maynila, congressman dito sa distrito ninyo, sa iyong pagdalo dito sa ating pag-uusap sa Urban Luzon Beltway kung saan hindi ka pa gobernador ay malaki na ang ginawa mo tungkol dito.

Binabati ko rin ang mag-ama, si Congressman Dong Mendoza at saka si Secretary Larry Mendoza. At siyempre, Mayor Dimacuja, maraming salamat sa iyong very kind welcome remarks. Naalala ko nung pinaplano pa lahat ito, hindi pa nga ako presidente, di pa vice president, senador pa ako o undersecretary, pumunta ako sa bahay ni Mayor Dimacuja para kumain ng breakfast doon na hindi imbitado, naalala mo ‘yun, Eddie? Okay.

At gusto ko ipakilala ang bagong Press Secretary, si Jun Icban. At ‘yung pinapawisan dahil sinabi ni Nani kailangan matapos ng Mayo ‘yung inyong “bridge of promise,” si Vic Domingo, Secretary of Public Works. Tinatanong namin ni Noli de Castro kay Congressman Mandanas, ba’t ba tinawag na “bridge of promise” ‘yun? Kasi sabi ni Dodo, matagal na matagal nang pinapangako ‘yun, ang tagal bago natupad. Kaya ngayon kung matutupad ni Vic Domingo ‘yung hinihiling ni Nani na maaga matapos, kailangan tawaging “bridge of fulfillment.”

Sa inyong lahat, mga opisyal ng Batangas University, mga guro at mga estudyante, magandang hapon sa inyong lahat.

Ako’y natutuwa na nakaparito rito sa inyong unibersidad upang talakayin ang tinatawag nating Urban Luzon Beltway. Una sa lahat, kasi napakalaki ang papel ng Batangas Port sa Urban Luzon Beltway at napakalaki ang papel ng dating Secretary of Transportation, si Nani Perez, sa pagkonsepto ng Urban Luzon Beltway. At naalala ko nga noong panahon ‘yun, inaayos din natin ‘yung relocation, kaya si Dodo inimbita pa ako doon dahil nga siyempre gusto natin na humanitarian ang kaunlaran.

Isang dahilan ako’y nasisiyahan kung bakit nakapunta dito kasi hindi ako nakapunta noong na-install si University President Nani bilang pangulo ng Batangas University kaya kahit na nahuli nandito ako para bumati at mag-congratulate. At double ang congratulations kasi hindi pa nga ako nakapunta dito, si Nani nagpunta na sa Malacañang dahil doon tinanggap niya ‘yung Certificate ng Deregulated Status ng Batangas University.

Malaki talaga ang karangalan sa akin, gaya ng sabi ni Nani, na 'yung sinimula niyang proyekto lalo na 'yung Batangas Port ay natupad sa ating administration kaya congratulations sa ating lahat.

Nagpapasalamat din ako sa inyong University President dahil malaki ang tulong niya kasama ni Larry Mendoza noong EDSA Dos, at pagkatapos nung EDSA Dos, si Larry naging chief ng aking PNP at si Nani ay naging cabinet member ko nung January 2001. At malayo na ang naabot ng Pilipinas mula noong Enero 2001. Kayo mga estudyante, maliliit na bata pa kayo noon, 2001. Kaya palagay ko hindi niyo naaalala kung gaano napakagulo 'yung panahon na yun, wala pang sampung taong nakaraan, 'yung bansa ay nasa dulo ng lubhang kaguluhan sa pulitika at pagkakabangkarote ng pananalapi.

Nung panahong 'yun, ipit ang ekonomiya paurong. Kaunti lang ang namumuhunan, kaunti lang ang trabahong linilikha. Ang utang ng pamahalaang sektor ay 3.6 trillion pesos higit pa doon kaysa sa GDP na 3.3 trillion pesos lamang. At halos ubos ang ating dolyar.

Panahon noon mababa ang mga sweldo. Mabilis tumaas ang mga presyo. At sa napakababang kita sa buwis, kulang ang puhunang ginawa para sa pagpalawak ng kalinga sa kalusugan, pag-ibayo ng edukasyon, at kailangang malinis na tubig at kuryente sa malalayong barangay.

Sa miserableng eksenang ito pumasok tayo. Hindi ko hinabol ang Panguluhan noong 2001, kundi hulog ng langit. Ngunit sa halip na umatras sa mahihirap na gawaing ito, we rolled up our sleeves, buo ang loob na mabaliktad ang landas ng Pilipinas.

Nakatutok tayo parang laser beam, upang maghatid ng tunay na resulta para pag-ibayuhin ang mga buhay ng mga karaniwang Pilipino. Bilang ekonomista, alam ko na upang mabawi ang pag-urong ng ekonomiya, kailangan lagyan ng disiplina sa kaban ng bayan, palakihin ang ekonomiya, at mamuhunan sa tao at sa imprastraktura gaya nga ng imprastraktura sa tinatawag nating Urban Luzon Beltway. Yung Batangas Port na nga na sinimulan ni Nani nung siya ay Secretary of Transportation, tinapos natin noong 2007. Ito ay dugtong sa mundo, inaasahan natin bilang international port at bilang RORO port dugtong sa probinsiya ni Vice President Noli de Castro, 'yung Mindoro na merong dalawang RORO port din: 'yung RORO port doon sa Calapan, may magandang kalsada tapos Roxas Port hanggang sa katimugan na ng Pilipinas.

Kasama dito sa ating Urban Luzon Beltway mula sa Batangas Port, gaya ng sabi ni Nani, ay ginawa natin 'yung daan hanggang sa Southern Luzon Arterial Road or STAR na tinapos natin noong 2008. At ngayon naman ay dinudugtong natin 'yung STAR at 'yung Southern Luzon Expressway, kasalukuyang ginagawa at mamaya pagkatapos nito magmo-motorcade tayo mula sa Batangas Port hanggang sa dulo ng STAR kung saan patapos na 'yung connection hanggang sa SLEX.

Ang SLEX naman ay pinapalawak natin, halos tapos na, di ba, Vic? Tapos na nga, tapos na nga, kakatapos lang. Ang koneksyon ng SLEX sa North Luzon Expressway or NLEX ay gagawin or ginagawa sa pamamagitan ng tinatayang highway mula sa C-5 hanggang sa Valenzuela Exit ng NLEX, 'yun pupuntahan bukas.

Ang NLEX naman ay pinalawak noong 2005 hanggang umaabot sa Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway or SCTEX na binuksan natin noong 2008; at ang Subic Port na ginagawa rin nating world-class, nagawa nung 2008. Sa mga dulo ng beltway dito sa southern part, 'yung STAR ay dinugtong din sa San Juan, Batangas, sa distrito ni Larry at saka ni Dong, dahil dinugtong sa RORO Port ng Sa Juan, Batangas na dinugtong naman sa pinag-ibayo nating mga RORO ports sa Marinduque patuloy sa Lucena. At doon naman sa Norte, ang SCTEX ay dinugtong sa Tarlac-Nueva Ecija-Aurora Road hanggang sa Dingalan Port sa Aurora. Yan ang ating tinatawag na Urban Luzon Beltway.

Si Noli, sasama sa akin sa helicopter sana pero nagdecide siya na magkokotse na lamang pero halos pareho ang biyahe namin. Ang bilis-bilis sabi ni Noli, alam naman niyo ito dahil nagbibiyahe kayo. Ang gulat niya, ang bilis ng biyahe mula sa Manila hanggang dito sa Batangas City. The STAR reduced the Batangas City-Lipa travel from one hour to just a few minutes, mas alam niyo ito kaysa sa akin.

And the soon to be completed SLEX-STAR Road, which is the Sto. Tomas- Calamba Road will reduce travel time from Batangas Port to Alabang by an hour. Palagay ko puwede niyong paniwalaan kasi nakita niyong bumaba ng isang oras ‘yung biyahe papuntang Batangas dahil sa STAR maniniwala kayong ganun din ang mangyayari dahil sa STAR-SLEX connection. At dahil pinalawak natin ‘yung SLEX, inaayos na ‘yung traffic sa Manila hanggang sa Calamba. At dahil doon, mas maraming tao ay nagdesisyon na tumira na lamang sa suburban Laguna kahit na sila ay nagtrabaho sa Maynila. ‘Yung C5-NLEX highway naman sa Norte ganun din, undergoing construction. Ito rin ay babawasan ‘yung travel time between North and Southern Luzon by half an hour. ‘Yung NLEX expansion, ‘yung travel time mula sa Balintawak hanggang Clark ay hinati kaya ‘yung mga nagtrabaho sa NCR, marami roon ay nakatira na rin sa mga suburbs sa Norte gabi-gabi kaya nadedecongest ang Maynila.

Lahat nito ay ginawa na... all these made housing projects outside of Metro Manila where land is cheaper and the lifestyle more conducive to the family viable. At dahil dito, we have also ensured that more and more families are able to own a home. Sa ating administrasyon doon sa department ni Vice President Noli de Castro, halos kalahating milyong murang pabahay ang naitayo at nagbigay ng ganoong karaming pamilya sa buong bansa ng pagkakataong makamit ang kanilang hangarin mag may-ari ng tahanan. At higit sa 300,000 dito ay nasa bandang Urban Luzon Beltway. Doon nga sa waresite, sabi ko kay Noli, magbibisita tayo ng isang housing project sa bandang NLEX, para ipakita kung gaano ang dami ng mga housing development ay lumabas na sa Maynila.

Doon naman sa kabila, sa Norte, for a long time Subic and Clark had been left idle. They were mere ghosts of their past glory, they were undeveloped assets, they were a painful reminder of the loss of the strategic importance of the Philippines, they were as empty as our foreign relations.

Pero ngayon, Subic and Clark — magnet of economic activity. International airlines bring half a million tourists to Clark. At Subic, the biggest world-class ship ever built in the Philippines and among the biggest ever built in the world was launched, followed by others. The SCTEX connects the two economic zones; more than 150,000 jobs have been created.

Sa loob naman ng Kamaynilaan, trabaho ni Larry Mendozang Batangueño, dinugtungan ang riles at magkakabit na ang LRT at MRT mula Monumento hanggang North EDSA. Ang kailangan na lang gawin Larry, di ba, iti-testing na lamang ‘yung pagpatakbo ng mga tren para sigurado na ligtas ‘yung biyahe. At itong tren na ito, ‘yung LRT ay pinaabot rin hanggang Pasig at Marikina, at kinonekta natin and Northrail at Southrail patungong Lucena.

So we have delivered a nationwide transportation system not only in the Urban Luzon Beltway but nationwide, that binds the nation together as never before, so that people and goods can be delivered faster, cheaper and safer from one end of the nation to another.

We have turned around the Government’s dire fiscal situation that was inherited from past administrations. While challenges remain, our government’s finances are in a much healthier position today than nine years ago. Kanina, sinabi ko nung nagsimula tayo, ‘yung utang ng bansa mas malaki pa kaysa sa ating GDP. Ngayon, it is only now 63% of GDP, marami, malaki na tayong naibaba. This has resulted in an improvement in our credit ratings, and today, wala na tayong utang sa IMF.

Bakit? We never shied away from taking on tough issues. Most notably, ‘yung aking popularidad bumagsak nung ako ay... when I went against the grain and championed the passage of the expanded Value Added Tax. Salamat na lang sa mga congressmen kagaya ni Dodong Mandanas na sinuporta tayo doon. We knew it would be unpopular, but someone had to get the nation’s fiscal house in order and bring in revenues, fresh revenues para mamuhunan sa taong bayan. It was the right thing to do. Maayos ang inilingkod sa ating bansa, hindi tayo nagsisisi na ginawa natin yun.

Ang mga gawaing ito ay humubog ng mga building blocks ng pagbabago na nagdala ng di pa nangyaring 36 quarters na walang patid na pagsulong ng ekonomiya, naglikha ng siyam na milyong trabaho, nagdagdag ng 52 milyong katao sa kalinga sa kalusugan, at matatag pa rin ang ating bansa, ang kaban ng bansa.

And for those who refuse to see progress, just look at the skyline of Manila or Clark or Santa Rosa today. It is a skyline with new, modern buildings; construction cranes, better roads, hotels, shopping malls and small businesses. This is the part of the Philippines we have helped nurture and create.

We have made progress in many areas, but more needs to be done. Halimbawa, higit pang dalawang taon bago matapos ang Northrail. Pero ang masasabi ko, lahat ng ginawa ng ating gobyerno na makamit ay para gawing mas matinag ang kinabukasan ng susunod na henerasyon ng mga Pilipino. Kaya narito ako sa inyong eskuwela, upang makipag-ugnayan sa mga kabataan. Ang kabataan ng ating bansa ay ang pag-asa at inspirasyon natin. Lahat ng ating kailangang gawin ay dapat para magtayo ng mas magandang buhay para bawat isa sa mga kabataan ng ating bansa.

At habang ipinagmamalaki natin kung ano ang nagawa ng ating gobyerno, ang mga nakamit sa nakaraan is only as good as the ability of the nation to continue to grow and prosper. Talagang inaasahan natin, ninanais natin na 'yung progreso na ginawa natin ay hindi titigil, na kung ano 'yung nalalabi pang gawin ay will be picked up by the next generation of leadership.

At ang kabataan, kayong mga kabataan ng ating bansa ang tulay sa pamamagitan ng nakaraan at kinabukasan. At para sa inyo, ating mga kabataan ang tinatama natin ang mali, pinaglalaman natin ang pagbabago, at humahanap ng mas matinag na araw. Malayo na ang naabot ng ating bansa, pero malayo pa rin ang dapat abutin at kayo, ating mga kabataan, kinakatawan ninyo ang mga aspirasyon ng ating bansa.

Para sa inyo ating kabataan, dini-dedicate natin ang pagsisikap ng ating bansa na iahon ang Pilipinas. Kaya ako ay nasisiyahan na narito.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: Visit to the University of Batangas. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232725/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27526&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 10th e-Services Global Sourcing Conference and Exhibition

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 10th e-Services Global Sourcing Conference and Exhibition

[Delivered at Function Room 1 & 2, SMX Convention Center, Mall of Asia, Pasay City, February 8, 2010]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Favila for your introduction.

Secretary Romulo, Alabastro and Chua. Ms. Laskowski, Mr. Dayrit, participants from the local and international industry, ladies and gentlemen.

Welcome to the Philippines for those of you who are from abroad. I understand two thirds of the foreign delegates are from New York, welcome especially to you!

This event has been going on for ten years, since the start of my administration. I have attended every year because from the beginning, as Secretary Favila said, we declared technology as the foundation of our future economic development, and we declared that we would create wealth by developing the labor-intensive, skills-intensive service sectors such as ICT as the key growth sectors.

And I am glad that today nine years later, we did it.

From scratch, with only 2,000 workers and $24 million in revenues in year 2000, we have created what is today a global powerhouse: the BPO industry. Almost half a million workers last year, expected to be 600,000 this year; more than $7 billion in revenues last year, expected to exceed $9 billion this year. We created this powerhouse for smart business solutions such as what you can offer with vision, determination and smart government policies in three areas:

First, digital infrastructure. We encouraged more broadband services in cities and identified growth areas. Thanks to these investments in connectivity, the cost of international calls went down from 40 cents a minute to 2 cents through VOiP. The number of internet users jumped from two million in year 2000 to more than 24 million today.

And so that no Taiwan tremor or tsunami can cut off our cyber services from their global clients, we encouraged the major telecommunications companies to invest billions in redundancy connections.

The second set of smart policies was an appropriate legal and business environment framework. We created the Cabinet-level Commission on ICT, headed now by Rey Chua, with the philosophy that the ICT sector should be guided by the market, with minimal government interference but rather government encouragement instead of interference. For example, if the market calls for call centers, we shouldn't force the investors to specialize in data management. Instead, we gave incentives to the developers of IT parks, assisted investors in identifying promising provincial sites now known as the Cyber Corridor, which we have been touring the past week and which ends today with this e-Services Conference. And we built more transport facilities to those new sites in the provinces.

This philosophy drove the fast growth of call centers. But now the market is also moving our services towards the higher value added segments of the offshoring and outsourcing industries, namely: the non-voice critical business processes such as software development, engineering design, game development, animation and knowledge process outsourcing. For instance, in animation, don't fail to see the upcoming animated film "Up," proudly Filipino-made.

And it is said that the highest IT value in the world can be found right here in the Philippines, the Deutsche Knowledge Services. It is the leader, the world leader, in terms of its financial services and its technology workflow development.

Third smart policy, the development of human capital. To increase the country's share in the global market for offshoring and outsourcing services, the government intensified the implementation of various programs that will train its workforce to enable them to find jobs in the BPO sector and to educate the young on the use of computers and the internet for the next generation of IT and BPO workers. More than 5,000 of our 6,000 public high schools now have computer laboratories. Almost 4,000 of them are connected to the internet. In technical education and skills training, we have invested 36 billion pesos, or about... well about, almost about 700 million dollars, three times as much as the combined budgets of the three previous administrations.

More than one billion pesos of this investment goes to BPO scholarships. Of this amount, the larger share goes to the skills training program for near hires supervised by the Business Process Association of the Philippines. The training programs dovetail with the trends and changing needs of the industry, so for now we offer programs to close the voice divide.

With all of these developments over the last nine years, I'm so proud that today the Philippines with 90 million people shares with India's one billion population the center stage in BPO supremacy.

As early as 2007... Thank you. As early as 2007, the Philippines was already recognized as the center of excellence in customer service. Last year, for the second time, the United Kingdom awarded the Philippines as the Offshoring Destination of the Year.

And among our cities outside Manila, Cebu is the number one Emerging Outsourcing City in the world, according to Tholons Global Services

Iloilo and Davao were included in KPMG's list of 31 Emerging Outsourcing Destinations in the world. Global brands continue to choose the Philippines as the BPO destination of choice: Accenture, Teletech, Convergys, Genpact, HP, Deutsche Bank — as I mentioned — HSBC, IBM, JP Morgan, Sitel, Sykes, Transcom, to name just a few.

So to my colleagues in government and the private sector who brought the Philippine ICT to where it is now, and to our locators, I thank you.

And to our participants who are still looking, may their success encourage you to come and join the surge of the Philippines as an e-Services powerhouse.

Mabuhay to all of you! And thank you

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 10th e-Services Global Sourcing Conference and Exhibition. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232716/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27502&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Education Event: Introduction of expanded pre-school coverage to include children enrolled in Daycare Centers (E.O. 685) [Filipino]

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Education Event: Introduction of expanded pre-school coverage to include children enrolled in Daycare Centers (E. O. 685)

[Delivered at the Real Elementary School, Brgy. Real, Calamba City, Laguna, February 9, 2010]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Lapus sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin at sa iyong pagpaliwanag kung ano ang ginagawa natin at bakit tungkol sa curriculum ng pre-school.

Maraming salamat din, Governor Lazaro sa iyong welcome remarks at huwag kang mag-alala, hindi ka nahuli, kami ang maagang dumating. Kasi 10 o'clock yung affair natin, wala pang 10 o'clock, maaga tayo lahat. Kaya lang 9:20 kami dumating, kasi ang luwang-luwang na ng SLEX ngayon dahil inayos natin, di ba?

Maraming salamat din, Mayor Chipeco sa iyong welcome remarks at congratulations sa Calamba na siya ang hindi lamang birthplace ni Dr. Jose Rizal, siya rin ang tahanan ng mga maraming industrial estate at siya ngayon ang sentro ng buong CALABARZON. Congratulations!

Maraming salamat din sa 'yung pagdalo dito, Congressman Dan Fernandez, nung umakyat, nag-aapologize din at nahuli. Hindi ka nahuli, maaga kami masyado.

At gusto kong batiin mga kasama kong mga cabinet members. Hindi naman babatiin kasi magkasama kami, basta babanggitin para mas makilala niyo sila. Nakilala na niyo, nagsalita na si Secretary Jing Lapus, ang ating Secretary of Education. Nandito rin si Secretary Jun Iban, ang ating bagong Press Secretary. Nandito rin si Secretary Tessie Aquino-Oreta na siya ang Chair ng Early Childhood Development Council dahil siya rin ang author ng Early Childhood Development Law. At ang tumutulong sa akin dahil napakaraming ahensiya na namamahala sa edukasyon: may DepEd, may CHED, may TESDA, may Regulatory Commission, may DSWD pa dahil doon sa mga five-year olds ay si Presidential Assistant Mona Valisno ng Education.

Nandito tayo dahil tinutuloy natin 'yung ating hands-on governance hanggang sa huling sandali ng ating pagkapangulo. At para doon, pinapairal natin ang mga masusing inisyatibo na sinimula or ginawa ng ating pamahalaan mula noong tayo ay umupo. Ang ating tukoy ay sa tatlong lansangan:

Una, dalhin ang higit na kapangyarihan at pagpalago sa bawat rehiyon para hindi na naka-concentrate lahat sa Metro Manila. Kaya meron tayong tour ngayon sa Urban Luzon Beltway na sabi ko ang Calamba ang isa sa mga masususing lugar. Ay batiin ko pala si former Mayor Lulu Lajara.

Ikalawa, ipairal ang importansiya ng ating 3 Es: Edukasyon, Ekonomiya, Environment, upang maglikha ng sustainable and equitable development.

At pangatlo, patuloy na pagtukoy sa kabataan ng ating bansa bilang ang ating pinaka pag-asa para mas matinag at mas magandang Pilipinas.

Ang pundasyon ng oportunidad ay edukasyon. Ito ang susi sa mas mabuting buhay, ito ay nagbubukas ng mga utak at nagbubukas ng mga pintuan. Kaya malaki ang... kaya naman ganun na lang kalaki, napakalaki ang ating pinuhunan sa edukasyon.

Bago nung ating administrasyon, ang budget ng state colleges and universities, DepEd, CHED at TESDA — 19 billion pesos. Ngayon, higit na sa 180 billion pesos, dinoble natin.

Nagtayo tayo ng sandaang libong silid-aralan. Congratulations kay Governor Lazaro, doon sa tinayo natin nag-contribute siya ng 1,600 na classrooms.

Nagdagdag tayo ng 60,000 na guro at tinaas ang sweldo, di ba? Yung dating 9,000 pesos na Teacher I, naging P14,000 plus na ngayon. At nag-allocate tayo ng mahigit 2 billion pesos kasama na ang budget ng year 2010, na kakapirma ko lamang, para sa teacher training lalo na sa English.

Yung pinakamahirap na Millennium Development Goals ay yung tinatawag nilang universal primary education. Sabi nila, walang bansang makakamit nito maliban siguro sa Cuba, isang diktadorya na maliit na bansa pero sinisikap pa rin natin. Ang mga hakbang na ginagawa natin, isang milyong pinakamahirap na pamilya, binibigyan ng allowance sa kondisyon na pumasok sa eskuwela ang mga anak. Yun ang ating tawag na Pantawid Pamilya.

Nabati ko na ba si Celia Yangco? Binanggit ba kita? Okay. Ang ating DSWD Secretary. Naalala ko kasi ang DSWD ang nagpapakabo ng Pantawid Pamilya.

At para mas maraming pumasok, sabi ko kay Secretary Lapus, tanggalin na natin yung miscellaneous fees sa public primary school, at hindi na obligasyon na mag-uniporme. Kung mas mura ang uniporme, okay, mag-uniporme kayo; kung mas mura mag T-shirt, mag T-shirt kayo. Kaya nagugulat ako, ba't lahat sa mga Day Care naka-uniporme pa, hindi kailangan. Kasi baka gamitin niyong dahilan na hindi papasok ang mga bata.

Nagtayo tayo ng eskuwelahan, sabi ko kanina, di ba? 100,000. Kasama dito ang mga silid-aralan sa higit isang libong barangay na dati walang eskuwela.

Meron akong kuwento sa inyo. Minsan, ako ay nasa Barangay Villa Maria doon sa mga bundok ng Zambales mountains. Nag-inaugurate ako ng classroom na tinayo ng mga sundalo. Nakilala ko doon ang isang Aetang 16 years old, si Joann. Sixteen years old pero grade 5 pa lamang. Kasi nung siya ay maliit na bata, walang eskuwelahan sa kanilang barangay kaya hindi pinapapasok ng magulang. Nagsimula siya na medyo malaki na siya kasi nalaman ko sa kanya na Linggo hanggang Biyernes siya at mga tulad niya, nakikitira lang doon sa mga kamag-anak, doon sa Barangay Villa Maria kung nasaan ako. Kasi kung hindi sila makikitira, lalakad sila ng dalawa o tatlong oras araw-araw para pumasok, dadaan sa mga palayan at dadaan sa mga bulubundukan.

Nagdadala sila ng sampung kilong bigas, gulay at kung ano pang mabibigay sa kamag-anak na tinitirahan nila — Sunday to Friday. Noong nalaman ko ang istorya ni Joann, sabi ko sa kanya, magkakaroon din kayo ng eskuwela. Six months later, kasi sinabi ko, we have built 100,000 classrooms — kasama kita yata Jing nung nagpunta tayo doon sa Barangay Diaz — yung 100,000 classroom. May lumapit sa akin na bata na may luha sa mga mata. Siya si Joann, yung nakilala ko noon sa Barangay Villa Maria, tuwang-tuwa siya dahil nagkaroon na siya ng classroom halos tabi ng bahay niya, taga-Barangay Diaz pala siya. Ako naman ay medyo naluha kasi sunod-sunod, pagkikita namin yun ni Joann, nung paalis na ako, humabol sa akin, bitbit niya ang isang sakong saging bilang pasasalamat niya, pinili raw niya ito, pinakamagandang bunga para ibigay sa akin dahil ngayon yung mga mas bata doon sa Barangay Diaz, hindi na maghihintay na maging 10, 11 years old bago magpunta sa eskuwela. Puwede nang mag-aral kasi sabi ng Millennium Development Goals, ang binibilang na primary school kung 6 years old ka, dapat grade 1 ka. Kung 11 years old ka at grade 1 ka, hindi ka bilang sa universal primary education.

So yan ang ating ginagawa at gaya ng sabi ni Secretary Lapus, isang dahilan kung bakit pinapa-aral natin ang ating mga bata, pre-school, ay kasi, pag nasa pre-school ang bata, mas malaki ang chance na matutuloy siya magtapos ng kanyang eskuwela. Pero hindi lamang public schools ang tinuturuan natin, sa private high school, halos kalahati na ng mga estudyante ay may government scholarship. At maging sa college, kasama na pati yung masters and doctorate sa engineering and science, meron tayong scholarship para sa higit 600,000 na scholars.

Doon naman sa technical education and skills training, tayo ay namuhunan na ng 36 billion pesos, ito ay kasinlaki ng nakaraang tatlong administrasyon — sama-sama na sila lahat.

Bilang resulta ng ating pamumuhunan, yung mga national achievement test scores umakyat. Noong araw sa grade school, 44% ang average Jing; ngayon umakyat sa 65%. Noong araw, sa high school, 36% umakyat sa 47%. Mas mabuti kaysa dati pero kailangan pa ipag-ibayo.

Marami na tayong progreso sa ilang lansangan pero kailangan marami pang gawin. Kayat meron tayong Presidential Task Force on Education. Ang namumuno dito ay si Father Bienvenido Nebres, pangulo ng Ateneo. Sama-sama silang nagtayo ng framework na tinatawag na Main Education Highway na kanyang hangarin ay iabot sa ating mga bata yung seamless pa in quality education mula sa pre-school hanggang sa college o tech-voc at igabay sila sa mga kurso kung saan magkakaroon sila ng trabaho.

Kaya importante na ma-mainstream natin yung Early Childhood Development in Basic Education. Dahil ang ating mga anak, they are our most cherished possessions. Sa maaagang taon ng kanilang buhay, kailangan tiyakin natin na meron silang malusog na simula sa buhay. Dapat tama ang pagkain nila para sa malusog na katawan, dapat tamang edukasyon nila para sa right and inquiring mind, at pantay ang oportunidad para sa makabuluhang trabaho.

Kaya pinirmahan ko yung EO 685 nung 2008 para sumunod sa RA 8980 na yun naman ang batas ni Tessie Aquino-Oreta providing for early childhood care. Itong EO ko, sabi ko, habang pinapalawak natin yung pre-school sa buong bansa, yung mga day care — kasi may iba't-ibang mga taon — yung mga 5 year-old sa day care, bigyan na ng curriculum ng pre-school para pagpasok nila sa grade 1, eh, alam na nila yung... binantayan natin dito kanina, 5 plus 3 equals 8. Dapat alam na ng ating mga 5 year-old yun para pagpasok nila hindi na sila magda-drop out ng eskuwela.

Sabi naman ng Task Force para sa college, kasi naman hindi lahat raw bagay sa college. Baka magda-drop out lang sila pagkatapos. Kaya dapat raw merong mandatory scholastic achievement test, at sabi rin ng task force na yun, yung mga private at saka yung mga state colleges, dapat magkapareho ang kanilang curriculum at standards, at dapat ang CHED ay dapat sinu-supervise kahit na yung mga local universities and colleges.

At doon naman sa mga propesyon na kailangan ng international recognition gaya ng engineering, architecture, accountancy, pharmacy, physical therapy — dapat raw dapat sampung taon ng basic education at dalawang taon bago pre-university bago magkaroon ng university.

Lahat ng ginagawa ng ating pamahalaan ay para maging mas matinag ang kinabukasan sa susunod na henerasyon ng ating mga Pilipino.

Ang ating kabataan ng ating bansa ang ating pag-asa at inspirasyon. Lahat ng ating ginagawa ay dapat para itayo ang mas magandang buhay para sa bawat isang bata dito sa ating bansa.

Gusto natin na makita ang mas matinag na kinabukasan para sa mga masisipag na tao nitong bansa. At importante makita natin meron tayong interes na yung mga bata ngayon, sila, that they will come into their own, seize the value of education and use this tool to advance themselves and the nation.

Kaya sa lahat na mga tumutulong para maganda ang simula ng edukasyon, lahat ng mga tumutulong sa pre-school, lahat ng tumutulong ng mga day care, yung mga 5 year-old magkaroon ng curriculum ng pre-school. Maraming salamat at ituloy natin itong ating magandang trabaho.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Education Event: Introduction of expanded pre-school coverage to include children enrolled in Daycare Centers (E.O. 685). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232706/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27506&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: Visit to the New Era University Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: Visit to the New Era University

[Delivered at New Era University, Central Ave., Quezon City, February 10, 2010]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat Secretary Pamintuan sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin at sa inyong pagpakilala sa ating subject matter itong araw na ito.

Kagalang-galang na Vice President Noli de Castro, na usually hindi magkasama ang pangulo at vice president sa isang okasyon, pero ngayon dahil importanteng-importante ang audience natin kagaya nito. Chairman ng New Era University, Justice Cuevas at ibang mga leader natin ng members of the board; Pangulo ng University, Dr. Osorio, salamat sa iyong welcome remarks at congratulations sa napakaraming nakamit na dangal ng New Era University. Bukod sa kay Secretary Pamintuan at kay Vice President de Castro kasama rin natin ang ating bagong Press Secretary na si Secretary Jun Ichan; mga leaders ng Iglesia; mga leaders ng New Era University; mga guro; mga staff at siyempre mga estudyante, magandang umaga sa inyong lahat.

Ako ay natutuwa na nakaparito dito sa unibersidad upang ngang talakayin itong tinatawag nating Urban Luzon Beltway. Nasisiyahan ako na narito kasi pagkakataon din para magbigay-galang at magpasalamat sa kabataan ng Iglesia ni Cristo sa pamamagitan ninyo. Naalala ko nung 1995 doon sa, siyempre lahat ng kandidato humihingi ng tulong, naalala ko nagkakampanya ako last days na doon sa Laguna, tapos sabi ko, “Oy! lumabas yung kanilang sample ballot, tinignan ko, number one sa listahan si Gloria Macapagal Arroyo.” Maraming salamat sa inyo.

At tapos noon ay salamat sa tulong ninyo, lagi ninyo akong dinadala at dala rin niyo si Noli nung unang takbo niya noong 2001 bilang senador. At nung 2004 yung aming katandem ang inyong sinuporta rin, kaya maraming, maraming salamat sa inyo.

Dahil tinulungan niyo akong maging Vice President, ako’y naging Pangulo noong 2001. Panahon noon na nasa dulo ng lubhang kaguluhan sa pulitika at pagbangkarote ng pananalapi ang ating bansa. Kaya bilang ekonomista, alam ko na upang mabawi ang pag-urong ng ekonomiya, kailangan lagyan ng disiplina sa kaban ng bayan, palakihin ang ekonomiya, at mamuhunan sa tao at imprastraktura gaya ng tinatawag nating imprastraktura ng ating Urban Luzon Beltway.

Yun na nga kwinento ni Ed Pamintuan itong Urban Luzon Beltway. Yung Batangas Port na tinayo natin umaabot ito sa Southern Luzon Arterial Road or STAR, na tinayo rin natin, dinudugtong ngayon itong STAR sa pinalawak nating Southern Luzon Expressway or SLEX hanggang sa C5 malapit na dito na pinalawak natin at nilalagyan ng Commonwealth overpass hanggang Luzon Avenue at Mindanao Avenue para hind na kayo masyadong matrapik papasok sa eskwelahan.

Dinudugtong naman natin ito sa ginagawang bagong Valenzuela exit patungong North Expressway o NLEX hanggang sa Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway na abot sa tinayo nating Subic Port. Yan ang pinaka main artery ng Urban Luzon Beltway.

At ano ang mga ginhawa nito para sa inyong mga naninirahan dito o sa kapaligiran? The STAR reduced the Batangas City-Lipa travel from one hour to just a few minutes. Yung matatapos nang...tapos nuon yung... ngayon kasalukuyang kinakabit yung STAR at saka yung SLEX — sabi ni Vice President de Castro, tatawagin natin ngayong STARLEX Road — eto yung Sto. Tomas, Batangas hanggang Calamba na napakatrapi ngayon pero tinatayo natin itong expressway, it will reduce travel time from Batangas Port to Alabang by one hour.

At sapagkat pinalawak natin 'yung SLEX, inaayos na 'yung traffic sa Manila hanggang sa Calamba. At dahil diyan, mas marami ang nagdesisyon na tumira na lamang sa suburban Laguna kaysa sa napakakitid na Maynila.

'Yung C5-Commonwealth-By-pass Luzon Avenue-Mindanao Avenue-Valenzuela-NLEX highway naman ay magbabawas ng travel time between North Luzon and Southern Luzon ng kalahating oras. At dahil sa NLEX expansion, kalahati na rin lamang ang travel time mula sa Balintawak hanggang Clark, kaya marami na ring naninirahan sa mga suburbs ng Bulacan at Mexico, Pampanga at nadedecongest ang Metro Manila.

Kaya ewan ko kung ilan sa inyong mga estudyante sa New Era ay nakatira doon sa bandang Bulacan at Pampanga o bandang Laguna, inaasahan ko mas maginhawa na pag pumapasok kayo sa eskwela dito sa New Era.

At ganun na nga kaugnay dito, we're also able to ensure that more and more families are able to own a home dahil doon sa labas, mas mura ang lupa maging gobyerno ang bibili o private sector ang bibili at maaliwalas, magandang hangin, mas conducive sa pamumuhay ng pamilya.

Naalala ko isa sa unang importanteng relocation sites yung ginawa ng Iglesia na mga kapatid doon sa Nueva Ecija matagal ng nakaraan. Kaya kayo ay pioneer sa housing for relocation. Malaki rin ang tulong ninyo doon sa ating housing doon sa Montalban. Kaya sa ating administrasyon ito ay nakaka-inspire, kaya sa ating administrasyon tuloy halos kalahating milyong murang pabahay na ang naitayo natin sa buong bansa. At higit sa 300,000 sa half a million na tinayo sa buong bansa ay dito nga sa bandang Urban Luzon Beltway. At yan ang inaasikaso ni Vice President de Castro sa ating administrasyon bilang namumuno ng Housing and Urban Development Coordinating Council.

Doon naman sa bandang Norte, sa bandang Central Luzon, nung pinaalis ang mga Amerikano sa Subic at Clark, matagal na naging anino na lamang siya sa kanyang nakaraang kaluwalhatian. Pero ngayon, Subic and Clark are magnets of economic activity. International airlines bring half a million tourists to Clark. At Subic, one of the biggest world-class ships in the world ever built was launched, kasi ang Subic Hanjin ang fourth largest shipyard in the world ngayon.

Yung SCTEX naman kinokonek tayong dalawang economic zone and more than 150,000 jobs have been created in what we call the Subic-Clark Corridor.

Sa loob naman ng Kamaynilaan, kung saan kayo nakatira, tayo nakatira, dinugtong ang riles at magkakabit na ang LRT at MRT mula Monumento hanggang North EDSA. Kaya tignan niyo yung drawing, buo na, whole circle na yung ating train system. Tine-testing na lamang 'yung pagtatakbo ng tren para tiyakin na ligtas ang pagpapatakbo.

Nagdagdag rin ng train ang LRT at siguro kung maalala ninyo, ating administrasyon pinaabot ang LRT hanggang Pasig at Marikina mula Recto sa Maynila.

Ginagawa rin ang tren mula Kalookan hanggang Malolos hanggang Clark. Pero yun mga mahigit dalawang taon pa bago matatapos, under construction ngayon.

Doon naman sa South kinokonekta rin ang Northrail at Southrail patungong Lucena kaya nakikita niyo doon di ba dapat andami-daming mga informal settlers o squatter doon sa South? Doon sa bandang Osmeña Highway ba yun? Pero sa maganda at makataong paraan na-relocate ni Vice President Noli de Castro sila doon sa mga ibat-ibang lugar ng Laguna, halimbawa sa SLEX, yun din ang ginagawa dito sa ruta ng ating tren patungo sa Norte.

Kaya maraming nakatira ngayon sa NLEX area at SLEX area na dating squatter na masikip na masikip sa Maynila, ngayon maaliwalas ang buhay at mas maganda ang kanilang buhay. Binibisita namin ni Noli de Castro sila doon, mas masaya sila doon at meron na rin silang trabaho, meron na silang pamayanan, kaya iyon ang isang magandang resulta ng ating Urban Luzon Beltway.

Bukod sa pagdugtong ng NLEX at SLEX, pinalaki at pinaayos din natin ang makasaysayang kalsada ng EDSA. Ito ay tumulong sa biyaheng Kalookan hanggang Baclaran. At upang mabawasan naman ang baha, partly operational ang KAMANAVA Flood Control Project. Mas mabilis na bumababa ang baha sa mga lugar ng Kalookan, Malabon, Navotas. Ganun din ang dredging ng bibig ng Pasig River.

Kung naalala ninyo yung Ondoy, pinakamalaking ulan na pumasok sa kasaysayan ng Pilipinas. Mabilis umakyat ang tubig pero doon sa bandang Maynila, bandang sa bibig ng Pasig River, konti lang ang binaha at mabilis na mabilis bumaba dahil hindi niyo nakikita dahil nasa ilalim ng ilog yun, na-dredge na ng 6 meters yung bibig ng Pasig River. Kaya yun ang isang mga ginagawa natin para maiwasan ang lubhang paglulubog ng Maynila, ng Metro Manila kasi dahil sa climate change, talagang darating ng darating ang mas madalas at mas mabagsik na mga bagyo dito sa bahagi ng mundo ng ating bansa.

Yung NAIA, pinag-usapan ko yung Clark Airport pero yung NAIA rin, sa ating administrasyon, sa wakas natapos yung International Passenger Terminal 3. At ngayon, 170 na na eroplano ang nagdadala ng 16,500 na pasahero araw-araw. Pero meron tayong choice, yung malalaking airline kung pupunta kayo sa Amerika, diyan siyempre doon sa NAIA, pero kung gusto niyong pumunta sa Hong Kong, Singapore, Malaysia, saan pa? Korea, budget airlines, pati Middle East, doon sa Clark, yun ang sentro ng ating budget airlines, kaya meron kayong choice kung saan kayo sasakay ng eroplano.

At para naman yung kuryente ay matiyak natin, lumalawak ang populasyon, nagtayo tayo ng Biñan-Sucat Transmission Line para madagdagan ang kuryente sa kinagiginhawa ng pamumuhay dito sa NCR.

For those who refuse to see progress, just show them the skyline of Manila or Eastwood or Global City today. Itong Eastwood, itong Global, ilang taon lang nangyari yang mga yan. It is a skyline with new modern buildings; construction cranes; better roads; hotels; shopping malls; small businesses. This is the part of the Philippines we have helped to nurture and create.

Lahat ng ginagawa ng ating gobyerno ay para gawing mas matatag ang kinabukasan ninyo, ang susunod na henerasyon. Kaya nagsisikap ako pumunta dito para maipaliwanag sa inyo ano ang ginagawa natin para sa inyong kinabukasan.

Kaya, kayong mga kabataan ang pag-asa at inspirasyon natin. Lahat ng ating kailangang gawin ay dapat para magtayo ng mas magandang buhay para bawat isa sa ating kabataan.

Kaya ako'y nagpapasalamat sa sinabi ni President Osorio na kayo ay kabalikat ng ating pamahalaan para sa kaunlaran ng ating bansa.

Salamat sa inyong matagal ng pagsuporta sa akin nung ginawa niyong number one ako na senador, siguro marami sa inyo hindi pa napanganak. Kaya nabuksan ang inyong mata, magkabalikat na tayo at inaasahan kong hanggang sa dulo ng kailangan nating gawin para sa ating bansa, magkabalikat pa rin tayo.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: Visit to the New Era University. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232657/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27529&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: inauguration of the Main Building of the Bulacan Polytechnic College San Jose del Monte campus [Filipino]

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: Inauguration of the Main Building of the Bulacan Polytechnic College
San Jose del Monte Campus

[Delivered at the Bulacan Polytechnic College Campus, Brgy. Graceville, San Jose del Monte City, Bulacan,
February 11, 2010]

Maraming salamat din Congressman Robes sa iyong welcome remarks pati na rin yung iyong suggestion na gawin natin dito ang pag-uusap sa mga estudyante.

Kasi ako ay nasisiyahan na narito. Noon nandito ako nung groundbreaking, ngayon nandito naman sa inauguration, kaya congratulations sa ating lahat!

Binabati ko rin si Mayor Lito Sarmiento, ang mayor ng San Jose del Monte City pati na rin ang pangulo ng Bulacan Polytechnic College, si Pangulong Jerry Cruz; at dito sa ating front row may mga opisyal ng ating bansa at probinsya, nandito ang ating bagong Press Secretary, si Secretary Jun Icban; nandito ang ating Commissioner on Higher Education, si Nenalyn Defensor; nandito ang congresswoman at ang congressman sa mga karatig na distrito, si Congresswoman Marivic Alvarado at saka si Congressman Pedro Pancho; at ang Vice Governor ng Lalawigan ng Bulacan, si Willy Alvarado; mga opisyal ng San Jose del Monte, ng barangay, ng eskwelahan, mga guro, mga estudyante, magandang tanghali sa inyong lahat.

Gaya nang sinabi ko ako'y natutuwa na makaparito dito sa inyong eskwelahan. Nakita ko before, nakita natin after at itong ating pagbisita dito ay kasama sa pag inspection natin ng tinatawag nating mga Super Region. Kung titignan niyo yung screen sa aking kaliwa, hinubog natin ang mga Super Region upang ipamudmod ang kaunlaran away from an inequitable concentration in Manila. Ang mga Super Region ay yung Agribusiness Mindanao, yung Tourism Central Philippines, yung North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, yung Cyber Corridor at saka yung Urban Luzon Beltway, kung saan dumadaan sa Bulacan.

Malayo na ang naabot nitong mga Super Regions natin mula nung sinimulan natin itong proyektong ito. Malayo na ang naabot ng Pilipinas mismo mula nung January 2001. Kayong mga estudyante maliliit na bata pa kayo noon nung January 2001, kaya marahil hindi niyo naalala kung ano yung pangyayari nung panahong yun kahit na inyong mga magulang. Salamat at nabura na ng panahon ang alaala ng napakagulong panahon na yun wala pang sampung taong nakaraan. Eh yung mga 17 years old na mga freshmen sophomore, seven years old kayo nuon. Maliit pa kayo nuon nang ang bansa ay nasa dulo ng lubhang kaguluhan sa pulitika at pagkakabangkarote ng panalapi.

Bilang ekonomista, alam ko na upang mabawi ang pag-urong ng ekonomiya, kailangan lagyan ng disiplina ang kaban ng bayan, palakihin ang ekonomiya, at mamuhunan sa tao at sa imprastraktura gaya nga ng imprastraktura sa tinatawag nating Luzon Urban Beltway. Kasama dito sa mga imprastraktura yung Batangas Port na tinayo natin pagkatapos nung 2007, tapos ito ay nakonekta natin sa Southern Luzon Arterial Road or STAR, na ginawa rin ng ating administrasyon, natapos nung 2008. At kasalukuyang dinudugtong itong STAR sa pinalawak nating Southern Luzon Expressway or SLEX hanggang C5 na pinalawak natin at dinudugtong naman sa pinalawak na North Luzon Expressway or NLEX hanggang sa ginawa nating Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway na abot naman sa tinayo nating Subic Port.

Para doon sa ayaw magbayad ng toll sa NLEX, pinalawak at pinaganda rin natin ang MacArthur Highway at kanikanina dinaanan natin yung Mozon... basta Mozon hanggang Mangga na ginawa nating national road at nagkokonekta ng Quirino Highway hanggang sa Marilao exit para sa kaghinhawaan ng mga nagbabayahe dito sa San Jose del Monte.

Yung STAR doon sa Katimugan ng Luzon binawasan ang pagbiyahe mula sa Batangas City hanggang Lipa, mula sa isang oras ngayon ilang minuto na lamang. At yung matatapos natin... Oy, sino naman nagsabi, ten minutes? Oo, alam mo yun. Noong araw isang oras, totoo yun. Yeah, okay. Nung araw... ah binabasa mo kasi, okay. Akala ko nagbabiyahe ka doon, okay. Nagtataka ako, naku nakatitra sa Lipa, nag-aaral sa Bulacan. Hind pala, okay.

Ngayon yung matatapos nating STARLEX Road, tawag STARLEX kasi kinokonekta yung STAR at saka yung SLEX. Ito ay magbabawas ng travel time from Batangas Port to Alabang ng isang oras ang bawas. Yun namang C5-Commonwealth Bypass-Luzon Avenue-Mindanao Avenue-Valenzuela-NLEX Highway naman ay magbabawas ng travel time from North and Southern Luzon ng kalahating oras kasi hindi na dadaan sa Edsa. At sapagkat pinalawak natin yung SLEX pati na rin yung NLEX pati na rin yung North Road, inaayos na 'yung traffic sa Maynila hanggang sa Calamba sa Katimugan at kinalahati ang travel time mula Balintawak hanggang Bulacan at Clark. At dahil diyan, mas maraming tao ang nagdesisyon na tumira na lamang sa suburban Laguna at suburban Bulacan o Pampanga kaysa sa Maynila. Nakikita natin ito, di ba? Sa San Jose del Monte andami kong nakitang mga housing project kanina.

Tiniyak natin na lalong humigit ang pamilyang nakakapagmay-ari ng sariling tahanan. Sa ating administrasyon halos kalahating milyong murang pabahay ang naitayo sa buong bansa. Higit sa 300,000 ay nasa bandang Urban Luzon Beltway.

Dito sa 300,000 ang mga siguro yung mga dating squatters halos kalahati nuon yung mga dating squatters sa NLEX sa riles, sa riles ng Northrail, sa riles ng Southrail pati na rin may ilang mga linipat nung pinalawak yung... ginagawa yung NLEX, ngayon kinokonekta sa C5, at saka yung mga nasalanta ng Ondoy at Pepeng. Yun ay halos a 150,000 at sila ay nalipat na sa ibat-ibang lugar ng Bulacan, Pampanga, Valenzuela at saka Laguna.

Yung nalalabi naman yung kalahati or higit kalahati 150,000 yan ang mga Pag-Ibig members na bumibili ng mga tahananang mura at dahil dumami yun dahil binaba natin ang interest rate ng pabahay ng 6 % kaya mababa ang interest rate, mababa rin ang presyo ng lupa dito sa malalapit na probinsya ihahambing natin sa Maynila. Kaya andami nang mga nakatira sa mga suburbs sa Bulacan, sa Laguna at Pampanga.

Doon naman sa Norte, nang pinaalis ang mga Amerikano sa Subic at Clark, matagal naging anino na lamang sila sa kanilang nakaraang kaluwahatian. Pero ngayon Subic and Clark are magnets of economic activity. Mga international airline nagdadala ng kalahating milyong turista sa Clark. In fact, bukas magbubukas ang bagong airline na galing sa Taiwan para magdala rin ng turista sa Clark. Sa Subic naman ilan sa pinakamalaking mga world class na barko ay nagawa doon sa Hanjin sa Subic. Yung SCTEX kinokonekta yung dalawang economic zones at higit 150,000 ang trabahong nalikha.

Sa loob naman ng Kamaynilaan, tinapos natin ang NAIA Terminal III. At dinugtong ang riles at magkakabit na ang LRT at MRT mula Monumento hanggang North EDSA. Tine-testing na lamang 'yung pagtatakbo ng tren para siguradong ligtas 'yung biyahe.

Tapos kinokonekta naman natin gumagawa tayo ng Northrail train mula sa Kalookan hanggang Malolos at saka Clark. At kinokonekta rin ang Northrail at Southrail patungong Lucena.

Merong BOT project private sector ang gagawa ang tawag dito ay MRT7 at ito ay papunta dito sa San Jose del Monte. Nung kami ay nasa coaster tinatanong nung officials ninyo, kumusta na yung ating MRT7. Kaya tinawagan ko yung mga opisyal na kaugnay nuon, ano na ang status ng MRT 7. Na-award na raw sa proponent kaya lang bumalik muli sa gobyerno yung proponent kasi meron silang pinapalitang plano, meron silang pinapalitang design pero tataas ang presyo ng 20%. Kaya yun ang kailangan e-eksamenin muna ng NEDA kung yung mga sasakay sa tren ay makakaya nila itong pagtaas ng fair.

So yan ang... pagkatapos kong umalis dito tatawagin ko yung NEDA para desisyunan na kaagad para malaman naman ninyo kung tuloy o hindi, at para naman makahanap tayo ng paraan para talagang matuloy na siguro kung tataas man ang presyo ay yung makakaya ng ating mga estudyante na pagbiyahe. Yan ang paraan kung papano maging mas malapit pa ang MRT dito sa San Jose del Monte.

Itutuloy natin ang hands-on governance hanggang sa huling sandali ng ating tungkulin. Nakaprogreso na tayo sa maraming larangan, ngunit hindi pa rin ang lahat... marami pa rin ang kailangang gawin. Halimbawa, hindi pa tapos yung Northrail hanggang Bulacan at hanggang Clark. At yung MRT7 ay pinag-aaralan pa rin yung hinihingi nang gagawa na itataas ang gastos. Pero lahat ng pinagtiyagaan natin ay para gawing mas maliwanag ang kinabukasan ninyong mga kabataan — kayo susunod na henerasyon.

Kasi kayong mga kabataan ang ating pag-asa at inspirasyon. Lahat ng ginagawa natin ay dapat magtayo ng mas mabuting buhay para sa bawat kabataan ng ating bansa.

Habang ipinagmamalaki natin ang nakamit ng ating pamahalaan, ang nakaraang nakamit ay kasimbuti lamang ng kakayahan ng bansang tumuloy na lumaki at mag-prosper. Matindi kong nais na ang progresong nagawa natin ay hindi titigil; na ang nalalabing dapat gawin ay aakuhin ng susunod na henerasyon ng liderato.

Bilang bansa, dapat matatag tayo nakatukoy sa kinabukasan, to build on what is good. Kaya itong ating mga ginagawa gusto kong malaman ng ating mga kabataan kasi kayo ang magbebenepisyo at kayo rin ang magtutuloy nitong mga gawaing ito upang sa ganun tuloy-tuloy ang kaunlaran ng ating bansa.

Kaya sa inyong lahat mga estudyante, nasa inyo ang kinabukasan ng ating bansa.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Urban Luzon Beltway Tour: inauguration of the main building of the Bulacan Polytechnic College San Jose del Monte campus. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232646/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27537&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of the proposed aeronautical highway of Northern Luzon

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching ceremony of the proposed aeronautical highway of Northern Luzon

[Delivered at the Binalonan Airfield, Brgy. Linmansangan, Binalonan, Pangasinan, February 19, 2010]

Thank you very much.

Dios ti agngina unay, Secretary Jun Esperon, ti Cabinet Officer for Regional Development tayo para ti Eastern Pangasinan. Agyamanak ti introduksyon yo kanyak.

Agtugaw kayo amin, Apo.

Mayor Monching Guico, President of the Mayors' League of the entire Philippines, mayor of Binalonan, and with all of our work and support, hopefully, future senator of the Republic of the Philippines. Governor Bong Revilla, present senator of the Republic of the Philippines and a very outstanding one, we're very happy to have you here with us. Si Bong at saka si Monching, magka-partner sa pagkanya. So, thank you Bong, ikaw ay siguradong-sigurado, inaasahan natin na ang inyong kampanya rin para sa ating anak ng Binalonan, kay Monching Guico. Vice Mayor Monmon Guico, thank you for your explanation of this very important project and congratulations to you, to Monching and to our mayors here on this very, very important initiative for the Luzon Northern Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle.

Addatoy met Monching, acknowledge Mayor Kimmy Cojuangco as the next congresswoman but it's very important also to recognize her as the spouse of the present congressman of the district of Pangasinan, Congressman Mark Cojuangco. And we have here so many Cabinet members: we have here Governor Mads Espino, thank you so much and congratulations for all of the infrastructure projects that we put up together. You've talked about dam, the seaport, and here we have an airport, so Pangasinan is really a transport hub now in the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle.

Our cabinet meetings here aside from Jun Esperon who introduced me, we have to his left Secretary of Public Works Vic Domingo; to his left, Secretary of Environment and Natural Resources Horace Ramos whom I will give an assignment later on; and to the right of Governor Espino, Secretary Sonny Alvarez, our Climate Change Secretary; and to his right is Secretary Peter Favila whom I will give an assignment too later on as Secretary of Trade and Industry.

We welcome all the other officials here, and we welcome the mayors of the partner locations of this airline, and we welcome the President of San Beda, thank you for helping to bring up University of Eastern Pangasinan. Ken kadakayo amin, kakailayak ti parte ni mamang ko, dagiti kasinsin ko, naimbag nga malem ken maragsak nga fiesta kada tayo amin.

Kablaawan kayo met amin iti recognition ti ili tayo kas first class municipality iti napalabas nga tawen. Kung ang nagawa ni Mayor Monching Guico para maging first class municipality ang Binalonan, matutulungan rin niya yung ibang mga bayan para sa kung papano umangat ang inyong mga bayan kung siya ay mapalad na sa tulong nating lahat ay maging senador ng ating bansa.

Pero isang malaking kasama sa pagka-first class ng Binalonan ay itong no-frills airport built by the private sector, nilunsad natin noong 2008 at ito ay naalala ni Monmon yung sinabi ko, kailangan ng bahagi ng imprastruktura ng North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle ang mga no-frills airport para magdala ng produkto ng agrikultura ng North Luzon sa iba't-ibang lugar. Kaya mula Binalonan, may eroplano na, tiniyak ko kay Monching, patungong Cauayan meron na; ngayon patungong Maconacon at Palanan sa Isabela, Divilican din ba? Divilican. Sa Tuguegarao, meron na; sa Calayan darating; sa Bagabag, Nueva Vizcaya, darating; sa Laoag City darating; sa Baguio City darating; sa Batanes magkakaroon na ngayon. Kaya ito ang kagandahan dito, isang halimbawa ng gamit nitong airport na ito, yung mga produktong sugpo at lobsters ng Maconacon, Palanan at Divilican ay makakarating na rito sa pamamagitan ng airport. At mula dito sa magagandang kalsada naman ng Pangasinan at SCTEX ay mabilis na ihahatid sa ibang mga bahagi ng Luzon.

Adon nga napanan iti pagilyan tayo gapo 2001. Haan laeng ti ili tayo, haan ko kinayat nga ag-Presidene idi 2001, ngem naggapo idtoy ti destiny. Haan tayo nag-atras iti challenge ken ti responsibilidad nga agbaru iti ekonomiya ti Pilipinas.

Kasla laser beam ti atensyon tayo para mangala dagiti serbisyo nga makabaru iti biag iti ordinaryo nga Pilipino. Kas ekonomista, ammok nga tanno makasubli tayo iti dalan iti progreso, masapul ti disiplina ti pondo, padakkelan ken ag-invest dagiti tattao ken imprastraktura.

Nangaramid tayo dagiti nagrigrigat ken saan popular nga desisyon tapno makontrol ti deficit tayo ken agbayad ti future ti pagilyan tayo. Ako'y nagpapasalamat sa mga senador gaya ni Senator Bong Revilla na tumulong sa aking gumawa ng mga mahihirap na mga batas gaya ng pagdagdag ng buwis, hindi popular pero yun ang dahilan kung bakit nakakagawa tayo ng mga proyekto na binanggit ni Governor Amado Espino kanina. Agwantak dagiti kritisismo uray adlaw-adlaw ken manen-manen tano makita nga agprogreso ti pagilyan tayo.

Ket ti edukasyon, ti environment, ti ekonomiya — isoda ti kadakkelan nga parte ti kwarta. Masapol nga dagiti ububing iti pagilyan nasaysayaat iti biag da kumpara dagidiay amman ken inna da. Makita tayo kenya iti napintas nga adlaw. Awan nga presyo nga sobra tano bayadan iti edukasyon da and the future of their success. But we are so happy about University of Eastern Philippines and the tie up with San Beda because that improves the life and the education of our young people here in Eastern Pangasinan.

Part of a good education is a strong culture. So today in this fiesta, we have not only Secretary Sonny Alvarez of Climate Change, we also have Presidential Assistant Cecille Alvarez — I can't see where she is — for Culture because during this fiesta, aside from launching this symbol of the future of Binalonan, as a hub of the pasada, we also want to honor the buzz of Binalonan through a book launching in honor of Carlos Bulosan who is also a great writer and native of Binalonan.

At mabuti nandito si Secretary Favila at saka si Secretary Ramos dahil gusto ko ring ilunsad itong araw na ito ang isang proyekto na makakatulong sa edukasyon at saka sa kalikasan, ang Engineered Bamboo Project na pinagsasamahan ng Department of Trade and Industry at Department of Environment and Natural Resources dahil inaasahan natin na 25% ng mga kinakailangang desk ng Department of Education ay manggagaling sa kawayan at hindi sa punong gubat. Ang DENR ang mamamahala sa bamboo nursery at dispersal growing, samantala ang DTI ay inatasan para ipairal ang pagpagawa ng produktong kawayan. Ang DTI sa pamamagitan ng Cottage Industry Technology Center ay merong mga makina para makagawa ng mga desks mula sa kawayan, kaya kanina, inatasan ko si Secretary Peter Favila na bigyan ng bamboo desk-making machine ang bayan ng Binalonan para gumawa ng bamboo desks para sa buong Pangasinan. So ito ay darating, itong makina ay darating sa isang buwan because it takes one month to fabricate this kind of machine.

Umayak manen iti piyesta tayo, manen-manen, tawen-tawen ta iti maysa nga importante, iti dakkel nga panawen nga iti ited tayo iti pananglibot iti naduma-duma nga probinsiya ti pagilyan. Saan tayo laeng agbiyahe kadagiti sabali pay nga probinsiya tayo, no di ket agpuonan tayo kanya da, ta narigat ti proseso tayo ti pulitika ken ekonomiya, ken sobra ti poder nga napan iti Manila. Iso nga in-focus tayo nga inted iti gundaway iti intero nga pagilyan embes dagiti power brokers ken elite iti Manila.

Iso nga agyamanak ken dagiti mayors tayo, ken ti private sector who put up and invested in this very important airport because by making the products of those distant towns nearer to the markets, we will be able to spread development away from too much concentration in Metro Manila and we will be able to develop North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle into the food basket of Luzon.

Kadakayo amin nga kakailyak, maysa nga panagyaman ko ti amin nga suporta nga it-ited yo kanyak. Let us always continue to work together for the good of Binalonan.

Dios ti agngina kada kayo amin ken Happy Fiesta

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the launching ceremony of the proposed aeronautical highway of Northern Luzon. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080608/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27591&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Joint National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) Cabinet Group and National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting and launching of the Tourism Central Philippines Tour
Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Joint National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) Cabinet Group and National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting and launching of the Tourism Central Philippines Tour

[Delivered at Sabang Port, Brgy. Sabang Puerto Princesa City, Palawan, February 23, 2010]

Good morning to all of you.

We are very happy to hold our Cabinet Meeting here in Puerto Princesa which together with the province of Palawan during our administration the number one destination for tourism investments. So it is important for us to do this event today as part of our tour of the Super Regions.

Since the day we took office, it has been a goal of our government to lift up every part of the Philippines — not just Manila. The provinces are the heart and soul of our nation. Our job has been to nourish that heart and soul with investments in our people and our infrastructure, so that every Filipino can thrive.

Our tours of the nation have been a staple of our time in office. More importantly, we have not only traveled to the provinces, we have invested in the provinces. Our political process is warped. It funnels too much economic and political power in Manila. We have aimed to spread the opportunity across the nation, and take back the tilt to the power brokers in Manila.

To spread development away from an inequitable concentration in Manila, we designed the Super Regions. If you will look at the screen, you will see the Super Regions: Agribusiness Mindanao, the Cyber Corridor, the Luzon Urban Beltway, the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, and Tourism Central Philippines, where we are today.

Central Philippines consist of the Visayas, Bicol, MIMAROPA, and the Islands of Northern Mindanao. It attracts the majority of foreign tourists to the Philippines, anchored by Boracay, Cebu, Palawan and Bohol, because of its natural wonders and the natural warmth of its people. The job of the national government is to provide the means to take the tourists to those wonders through transport facilities, meaning, ports, airports and roads.

For instance, let's begin with Boracay, the leading overall tourism destination. There, we upgraded the Kalibo Airport to take in international flights, and these international flights have been helped along by the ASEAN Open Skies Policy. We've also improved what used to be called the "abortion road" to Caticlan. And now a private investment in the Caticlan Airport itself has started construction.

We have also built good roads from Boracay to its spillover destinations in Panay, and I want to invite our Cabinet members here to interrupt me anytime that something is wrong or to — not accurate — or to elaborate because this is a working report. So we're just opening it to the media.

So, as I said earlier, we have also improved other roads leading from Boracay, for instance, the Aklan-Libertad-Pandan Road. And also since we built the new international airport in Santa Barbara, Iloilo we have also built the road from Santa Barbara, Iloilo to Iloilo City. And Iloilo City connects to Guimaras and its beaches — where is Larry Mendoza? I want him to validate this — via the RORO-capable Jordan wharf. And on the other side of Guimaras, we built the Sibunag RORO Port to connect to Bacolod.

In Negros, we built the Bacolod-Silay Airport and we are building a second access road between the new airport and Bacolod City and further on to Sipalay, with its Mediterranean ambience.

As I said earlier, the number one tourism investment destination is Palawan. While Boracay is the number one tourism destination, the number one tourism investment destination is Palawan anchored by the Banyan Tree investment. Banyan Tree was the one who developed Phuket and so, therefore, we hope that Northern Palawan will become another Phuket with the leadership of Banyan Tree.

Palawan has nearly 2,000 islands. Imagine we have 7,100 islands in the Philippines and about 1,700 are in Palawan. So how do we take the tourists to Palawan? We take the tourists to its wonders by upgrading the airports of Puerto Princesa and Busuanga, and building the San Vicente Airport. Also by completing the road backbone from El Nido to Rio Tuba whose gaps we filled. For instance, when I used to come here when I was running for senator and even when I was a senator, you couldn't go by land from Puerto Princesa to El Nido. Now, you can. Now, you can. Okay.

And also, where we came from now, the Underground River of Puerto Princesa, the guide was telling us that when she was young it took them the whole day to travel from Sabang to Puerto Princesa. Now with the new road that we have built, it's much more convenient and together with the publicity of the world's 7 New Wonders the tourism to the underground river has tripled according to our host Mayor Hagedorn.

So if Boracay is the number one overall tourist destination and Palawan is the number one tourism investment destination, Cebu is the number one destination for foreign tourists. And they say it is because it has a world class airport, very near world class resorts, especially in Mactan Island and convention centers.

But there were some ugly roads in Cebu that we have inherited from the past; we have made them beautiful. Just as we have done in Palawan where we are building the... or have built the backbone from north to south, the same thing with Cebu province. For instance, from Cebu City going south to the resorts of San Fernando, Moalboal and Badian, and then going up north to the treasure sharks of Malapascua — which we'll visit tonight and tomorrow morning — and even onwards to Masbate's white sand beaches through the Cebu-Masbate RORO nautical highway.

There is an energy gap in the Visayas but it is being plugged by a 200-megawatt plant in Naga, Cebu and a billion dollars worth of investments by Metro Bank and its partners for more than 600 megawatts in Cebu and Iloilo. In fact, their new 250-megawatt plant in Toledo, Cebu soft-opened last Sunday and will be inaugurated on March 1 with myself as the guest of honor.

We have likewise extended the Dumaguete runway. And the Roll-on/Roll-off ferry system connects Negros Oriental to the beaches of Siquijor. Now I mentioned the anchor tourism destinations in Central Philippines: Boracay, Cebu, Palawan and Bohol.

Bohol became a destination distinct from Cebu since the time it defeated the communist terrorists in 2005 and since we completed the Bohol Circumferential Road. That is why now it deserves its own international airport which we are building in Panglao Island.

We also built the Jagna, Bohol and the Balbagon, Benoni and Guinsiliban RORO Ports in Camiguin which makes Camiguin's beaches accessible to the Visayas. And in Camiguin, we have built a beautiful circumferential road and on the other side of Northern Mindanao Islands a better road to Dakak beach in Dapitan City.

Going back to the Visayas in the eastern part, our upgraded airports in Tacloban, Guiuan and Siargao provide the means to the perfect surfs of the Pacific. The Tacloban Airport whose upgrading we have begun is also the gateway to the dive spots of Southern Leyte, especially Limasawa.

For Bicol, which is part of Central Philippines, the access road to the proposed new international airport in Daraga, Albay has just been completed. You see they have no real international airport... to me there's an international airport in Legazpi, but the governors feel that for international flights to come to Bicol they must have one really good international airport comparable let's say to at least Puerto Princesa or Cebu. And they all agree that it should be in Daraga in Albay. The road has been finished; the right-of-way for the runway has been acquired 30%, enough to start the construction of the runway itself. So the local government is in-charge of purchasing the right-of-way and then the national government with the DOTC builds the runway itself and the terminal.

And of course roads. We're improving roads like the one leading to the beaches of Caramoan in Camarines Sur and there the Development Bank of the Philippines provided the province of Camarines Sur with a P700-million loan to develop the Caramoan beach and the water sports complex in Pili.

Donsol in Sorsogon is the number one eco-tourism destination according to Time Magazine in Asia. We modernized the old rickety one-way bridge to Donsol, Sorsogon whose whale shark interaction is as I said, the best eco-tourism experience in Asia. And the traffic increase has turned Donsol from a fifth class municipality to a first class with a P70-million contribution to the economy last year. Its small banca operators exemplify the benefits of our GREET program. GREET means, Grassroots Entrepreneurship for Eco-Tourism. In fact in one of my State of the Nation addresses, I cited Alan Amanse, a college undergraduate and young father, who used to earn 100 pesos a day from fishing and driving a tricycle in Donsol. He became a whale shark-watching guide, and his income jumped tenfold to a 1,000 pesos a day and he started building his dream house.

We were in Donsol yesterday and I looked for him and I asked him, how's your dream house? He said under construction pero meron pa, bubuksan ko na ang sariling resort ko this coming May, because he found an investor to invest in him. That's an example. And this where we are here, this resort, are examples that the private sector has responded to our investment in roads and airports and RORO by their own investments in hotels, lodging houses and infrastructure worth almost 600 billion pesos nationwide between 2004 and 2009 alone during the term of Secretary Durano as Secretary of Tourism. Congratulations, Ace!

And as I said earlier, Central Philippines receive half of this investment, and of the almost half of this investment most of it is here in Palawan. So congratulations to our host, the Palawefños!

Our nation has been blessed with some of the most scenic beauty in the world. Even more important, our nation has been blessed with the most welcoming, energetic and friendly people on earth.

If we are to succeed in building up our tourism, and it is a huge economic boost to our nation — how much Ace of our GDP is now attributable to tourism, you were telling me? In 2008 9.0% and it's been growing at 15% every year. So, that's more than 10% by now for sure — we must invest in our people, our infrastructure and our environment. So, as part of this investment, we declared nature parks in Tubbataha Reefs. Right, Joel during our administration?

In Northwest Panay, near Boracay; in North Negros, near the Bacolod-Silay Airport; in Central Cebu; in Mt. Isarog in Bicol. We are funding the Bicol River Basin Watershed Irrigation, Flood Control and Water Conservation Project. And in the Underground River of Puerto Princesa, which was declared a nature park ages ago, in 2003, we declared it as a National Geological Monument.

We have also set up almost a 100 marine and fish sanctuaries in Central Philippines since 2001, including Tubbataha and the whale shark sanctuary of Donsol.

We have provided also billions for rehabilitation efforts for climate change adaptation especially in the aftermath of typhoon "Frank" in Panay, the series of calamities that hit Bicol like "Reming," the landslides of Southern Leyte, and the oil spill in Guimaras. So the people are back on their feet and the tourists are back on the beaches.

We embrace the concept of a sustainable economic model: where there is no conflict between a clean, healthy environment and a robust economy. We can create jobs and keep our environment safe and sacred. For instance, here in the underground river, tourism has tripled in the last three years. But Mayor Hagedorn said that there is an informal estimate that the carrying capacity of tourism there is only 300 tourists a day. But at its peak, there are 1,000 who want to see it. So, I'm glad that there are resorts like this so that the tourists can wait for their turn and not insist on being there even beyond 300 because they have other things to do here in the resort.

But on the other hand, the 300 is a guesstimate, and I am asking Secretary Nina Alabastro who was with me in the underground tour earlier if DOST can make a real scientific estimate, what is the real carrying capacity of the underground river. Because if it's more than 300 then they can rest easy that there will be more tourists and yet the environment is taken care of.

To invest in all this infrastructure and environmental care, we have made many tough and unpopular choices to control the deficits and increase taxes to pay for the future of this nation. So we thank our congressmen who are here today with us and the other congressmen for helping us to enact those taxes even if they were unpopular for me.

The nation must expand its political and economic footprint to lift up all nations — not just Greater Manila. That is why we have insisted on investing billions of pesos across the nation to link the nation together through a better, more modern transportation system and also to keep our nation clean, safe and beautiful to tap the best of our natural beauty.

From day one of my presidency, we have been committed to investing in our people and our provinces away from Manila. To lift up our God-given attributes: our people, our land, our culture. The world has responded by coming to the Philippines. We take great pride in bringing more political power, economic opportunity and social justice to the regions.

And I think nowhere is that more evident than here in Palawan with all those tourism investments coming in. So, congratulations to the people of Palawan! And thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Joint National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) Cabinet Group and National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting and launching of the Tourism Central Philippines Tour. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080559/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27592&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Tourism Central Philippines Tour: RORO from Cebu to Bohol

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Tourism Central Philippines Tour: RORO from Cebu to Bohol on board Supercat 34 Fast Craft

[Delivered while sailing over the waters of Cebu going to Bohol, February 24, 2010]

I'd like to thank Ann Lontoc, Undersecretary of Transportation, for presenting the white paper on the RORO industry. This was prepared by CRC or University of Asia and the Pacific but published by the Asian Development Bank. So now, what I'd like to do is to present an overview of our Tourism Policy and Program.

Since I became President, we've made it a policy of the government to spread development to all the parts of the Philippines not just Manila, the provinces at the heart and soul of our country. And our work is to nourish that heart and soul by investing in our people and in our infrastructure in order to be able to bring development to every Filipino.

Our visits to the nation are an important part of my presidency, and the more important, not only do we visit the different provinces, we invest in the provinces. The political process and the economic process in the Philippines is very... is warped and it brings too much power to Manila. So our goal has been to spread the opportunity across the nation in order to take back the tilt to the power brokers and elite in Manila.

To spread the development away from an inequitable concentration in Manila we created the Super Regions. If you will look at the screen, the Super Regions are the following: Agribusiness Mindanao, the Cyber Corridor where Cebu is part, the Urban Luzon Beltway, the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle and Tourism Central Philippines where we are right now. Central Philippines consist of the Visayas, MIMAROPA, Bicol and the northern islands of Mindanao. This area attracts the majority of our foreign tourists and tourism is anchored on Boracay, Cebu, Palawan and now including Bohol.

The biggest advantage of these places of Central Philippines is the natural wonders and the natural warmth of the people. And as far as our policy is concerned the job of the national government is to provide the access to those wonders. Roads, airports, ports because it should be the private sector who will build the resorts, it should be the travel agencies who should do the bulk of the promotion. But our job is what would be difficult for the private sector to do and that is infrastructure access.

So let me begin with Boracay which is the number one overall tourists' destination, domestic and foreign. What we have done is we have upgraded the Kalibo Airport in order to make it receive international airlines. We have also more international airlines not only in Kalibo but in other parts of the country because of our liberalized air policy, and especially now Larry has just entered into an open skies policy with other ASEAN countries. And there in Boracay we have fixed the road from Kalibo Airport to Caticlan. It used to be called the "abortion road" but it's now a very pleasant drive.

But even if we have made Caticlan closer to Kalibo Airport and closer to the international world by internationalizing Kalibo, we're very happy that private sector initiative has also started a BOT airport project right in Caticlan itself. So, we are happy that there is infrastructure development even by private sector. Because Boracay is such a hub and it's spilling over with so many tourists, we want to spread that development also outside Boracay. So, we've also improved the roads that are spillover destinations from Boracay. For example, the Aklan-Libertad-Pandan Road... Actually that should be... it is really Boracay, Ronnie, it is Boracay to Libertad to Pandan so that Pandan is only about an hour drive away now, so you can stay in a less costly resort in Pandan and then you can go swimming and enjoying the night life in Boracay. And we've asked the Tourism Association of Aklan to have dawn trips so that you think you can go back to the mainland or wherever you want to go and not have the litter on the beach and spend the night in a tent.

Now, we've also done other international airports. We built the Santa Barbara Airport and we fixed the road from Santa Barbara Airport going to Iloilo and on to the beaches of Guimaras which we have connected by RORO. Guimaras is also being connected to the other side, to Bacolod, also by RORO. In Bacolod, we have also built the Bacolod-Silay Airport.

Now, let's go to Palawan. Palawan's distinction is that it is the number one tourism investment destination. And what have we done to promote tourism and therefore tourism investments in Palawan. Palawan is the longest province in our country and that road from north to south of Palawan is as long as the road from Manila to Laoag — it's 500 kilometers. All previous administrations from the Commonwealth to my immediate predecessor cemented 100 kilometers; I cemented 300 kilometers. I remember when I was still running for senator — no, even before that when I was just a housewife — and I learned from my friends that they couldn't go to El Nido from Puerto Princesa because there was no road, but now you can do that. So the whole road network has been done, and we also built some other important roads. For instance, the road to the number one of the "7 Wonders of the World," Puerto Princesa Underground River. That used to take the whole day's travel but now it only takes... we took the trip last time, it only takes about over an hour.

Now, the reason why we have to do all of these is because as I said Palawan is very long. Aside from being very long, Palawan also has the biggest archipelago within our archipelago. We have 7,100 islands; Palawan has 1,700 and almost each one of them is surrounded by a beautiful white sand beach. So how do we bring the tourists there? Well, first we fix the road but how do we bring tourists there? We have fixed the Puerto Princesa Airport. We have fixed the Busuanga Airport. When I was a senator that was a dust airport, now it is a concrete airport. And Larry designed such a pretty terminal, energy-efficient and very tourist-friendly. The moment you get there it's already the holiday ambience. And also we have also built a new airport in San Vicente which is on the other side of Puerto Princesa in the Pacific side.

So that is what we've done, as I said, 500 kilometers, we built 300. And I am so glad that now we're able to travel, so you get to Puerto Princesa in a nice airport and you go to whatever destination you want to go to on the mainland on a nice road and many of the resorts offer also a nice yacht ride from the airport nearest to them so that the experience begins there as you very well know.

Now, what about Cebu? Well, Cebu is the number one favorite destination of foreign tourists, and when we started our administration we contracted McKinsey and Associates to do a study of tourism. And the reason why Cebu is the favorite of foreign tourists is because it's got a good international airport and then the beaches are just a few minutes away, and then there are some beautiful resorts. And also, Cebu has plenty of convention space. I was able to do the South East Asian Summit in Cebu and I've tried to do some other summits in other parts but they just don't have the convention space and they don't have the number of rooms to house so many VIPs. So that's one very big advantage of Cebu.

And just as we fix the roads from the north to the south of Palawan, we've done the same thing for Cebu from the north to the south of Cebu. In 2004, we started with the south because from my recollection before I was president most of the resorts were in the southern part of Cebu: Moalboal, Argao — what is that, Polka? — Polka in San Fernando and so on. And the road was horrible and I felt bad about that because it was my grandfather who built that road when he was district engineer of the Visayas, the entire Visayas during the American administration. And then when I went there in 2004, it was horrible, so we fixed that first so we have now a very nice road going to the south.

And then in the north, the father of Ace Durano kept telling me that you know because at that time the biggest employer in the Philippines was in Danao City in Mitsumi, and the father of Ace was telling me that for Mitsumi's competitiveness it's very difficult for them to transport their products to the wharf, to Cebu Port. So he said, we need — he was explaining to me about a bridge — he said, we need a bridge, but he mentioned the name of the bridge but I couldn't picture what he was talking about at first. I thought he meant one of the bridges along the main highway that it should be widened. I didn't know he meant we had to build a whole new billion-peso bridge which is the Cansaga Bay Bridge which we have just finished. So now that we have finished building the Cansaga Bay Bridge at a cost of more than a billion pesos. Now, the northern part of Cebu is also very accessible and that's great because we have great tourism spots in the northern part of Cebu.

I just came back from diving in Malapascua, proud to have seen my thresher shark after just 18 minutes under the water, whereas, other tourists sometimes stay 5 days, 7 days to wait for their first shark. And the owner of the resort told me that... well, she married a Dutch man and when she came back — she is from Sibonga and then — but her husband decided that they would have their own first a private resort in Malapascua. And she didn't want to go there at first because its four hours drive. Well, now it's not four hours drive anymore, we drove through it it's about two hours drive now. So it's half the travel time.

And all along going there Ace and I took the helicopter and we saw so many resorts really cropping up through that whole area. I remember when I was a senator I wanted to book in the only world class resort then which was Alegre, but it was fully booked, but that's a good problem for you. I'm glad that it was fully booked. One of these days we'll get there. Okay.

And then in the City of Cebu and Talisay we have the SRP so that's really now gonna be a whole road network from the north to the south. I know that if you wanna have continued to have your world class amenities I know that you need to have good power and good water. And I know that there... a few months ago you started to experience rotating brownouts. Well, I've been meeting with Secretary Reyes on that, he's been here to Cebu, he's been here for several days now, he just went back to Manila yesterday. And what he wanted me to reiterate to you is that on March 5, since I'm going to inaugurate Cebu Energy, the first 200 megawatts of its total of 600 megawatts investment in the Visayas totaling a billion dollars that makes them one of our Billion Dollar Club. The power situation in the Visayas, Angie Reyes said, will now be stable. So, you can rest assured that you have enough power.

For water, when I was not yet president I was already aware of the water problem of Cebu, and at that time, what everybody was talking about was to solve that problem was to bring water from Bohol to Cebu. When I became president I came across a big howl from the people of Bohol because they said, Cebu already took our sand, now Cebu will take our water. So, therefore, there was a very big objection and somewhere along the way in the steps required where you need local government approval, it stopped somewhere there. So, the next solution was to look for water from Carmen but somewhere along the way also that BOT project did not push through because of differences between the Metro Cebu Water District and the proposed supplier which was Ayala, and so it didn't push through. But today, when we were driving through that now very nice road from the north to Mandaue City and down to Cebu, Mayor Nito Durano of Danao told me that he is developing a water project for Danao City and it's going to produce more water than Danao needs and has already entered into a contract with the City of Cebu. So your water needs will also be soon complied with.

So, it's important because I was telling Nitoy... because I understand now the water is now being rationed in the sense that you have rotating no water also. And I said, but you know, Cebu is a world class city so when you open the faucet it's expected that there'll be water in the faucet. So that they will soon come because these things are already in the pipeline.

Now we're going to Bohol. We were gonna go there on the RORO ferry because we have the presentation of the RORO but it's 4 hours or 5 hours and I don't think we can give you enough seminars or lectures or dialogues to fill up 4 hours, so we just took this fast craft but we've included Bohol because in our presentation of anchor destinations because Bohol has become a favorite destination for tourists separate from Cebu. It used to be Cebu-Bohol but now Bohol is its own destination. And one of the reasons is, first of all, Bohol was able to defeat the communist insurgency, so now the peace and order is very good. And, of course, its natural wonders, the sand of Cebu came from Bohol in the first place according to the Boholanos, so therefore you can go now to the original owners of the sand. But to be able to do that we also had to finish the circumferential road of Bohol. So, again, it's infrastructure that brings people there. And because Bohol is now a destination of its own, it also deserves its own international airport which we are building in Panglao Island. And one of the reasons why I'm going to Bohol is I'd like to find out from Governor Aumentado what is the status now of the Panglao Airport because the first step in bidding an international airport is we've got to buy the land from the owners for the runway and the terminal, and that's usually the job of the local government.

There was a presentation of the RORO here. We don't have to elaborate much but you see originally I envisioned the RORO system to be the out of the back solution to the problem of freight rates. There was such a long impasse between the freight users and the shipping industry, so we decided to go to this route, so the original idea was to be able to bring the plentiful agricultural products of Mindanao to the big markets of Luzon especially the Urban Beltway passing through this RORO routes. But as Ann has pointed out, one of the good side effects of that is it has developed tourism. For instance, you have to pay 5,000 pesos for a plane ticket... you had to pay 5,000 pesos for a plane ticket to Boracay; you just pay 500 pesos for a bus ticket to Boracay. And so therefore even the airlines have to bring down the rates as well.

Then Masbate and its own beaches can now be accessible even from Cebu through the RORO ports and then Negros Oriental where we are having a nice... we're fixing the airport can also be connected to Siquijor — and where else are you connecting Siquijor, Paul? — also to Cebu, Southern Cebu, so also to the RORO. And then Camiguin can now be accessible not only from Mindanao but also from Bohol, so you have the RORO from Cebu to Tubigon to Jagna and then on to Bohol. And then you have other ports, Ubay Port to Maasin, Leyte so that you can also access the dive spots of Maasin — no, not Maasin — of Southern Leyte especially places like Limasawa.

So, I'm very glad and I'm very grateful to the private sector that they have responded to our investments in road, airports and ports by their own investments, but you the private sector have invested in capacity in hotels lodging houses and even infrastructure. And during the time especially when Ace Durano became Secretary of Tourism, since that time, we have had investments in these facilities of almost 600 billion pesos during our administration. Half of the P600 billion goes to Central Philippines where we are. But of that half that goes to Central Philippines almost all of it goes to Palawan, that's why I said it is the number one destination for investments. And the biggest investment is the investment of Banyan Tree in Diwaran Island of Coron.

The story of the Banyan Tree investment is that Lito Camacho, who used to be my Secretary of Finance, has become the vice chairman since then of Deutsche Bank, so it's his job to lend money to investors and then to help them find good investment facilities. So, Banyan Tree is his client; Banyan Tree is the founder of Phuket. And so he enticed Banyan to put up its own Phuket in the Philippines. Showed him first another property but when the CEO of Banyan Tree was flying over the islands in the northern part of Palawan he saw this Diwaran Island and he said, that's where I want to put our resort. So he is already... he's just now gotten his ECC, his Environmental Compliance Certificate, so he's ready to start construction but he was ready even before but he was waiting for the ECC. And what we had agreed with him is that as soon as he starts construction we also start our construction, di ba Larry? Of the... Because there's the Busuanga Airport which we have fixed then we have a road from... it's already an existing road but we have to make it tourist class, tourist-friendly from Busuanga Airport up to the shore just opposite Diwaran and then Larry will fix a port there. So I realized that the ECC is sometimes such a big bottleneck even Badjan Resort still has a problem. So I'm gonna call the Secretary of Environment today to find out whatever happened to that problem. I know their problem is because they look askance at these stilt types of cottages because they don't know how the sewerage will be handled. But I'm sure that that's their problem. So I'll call up the Secretary of Environment now so we can discuss it with him. Anyway he's a career official so I think he is very familiar with the technical aspects of DENR.

So to make a long story short, our nation is blessed with some of the most beautiful scenic beauties in the whole world. And more important our nation is blessed with the most welcoming, energetic and friendly people on earth. So, if we want to succeed in building up our tourism industry, and we should because the tourism industry has such a big contribution to our economy. Ace said in 2008 it contributed 9% of our GDP, a total of 11 billion dollars, so that's a huge contribution comparable to the OFWs' contribution of about, at that time, 15 billion dollars and perhaps bigger than the contribution of the BPO industry of 6 billion dollars.

So, we really should develop tourism and what we have to do is we have to invest in our people. We have to invest in our infrastructure. We have to invest in our environment. So the reason why I'm visiting a school that teaches tourism in Bohol today is that I want to demonstrate that we have to invest in our people as well if we want to promote tourism. And as far as investing in our environment is concerned, that is the reason why we have declared several nature parks. For instance, here in Central Cebu which Ace tells me stretches the... which are the mountains in the Central of Cebu stretching from Carmen in his district to Talisay in the south, thus, declared as a nature park.

And on March 5, when Cebu Energy inaugurates its coal fired plant — of course, it's clean coal now, meaning, that the emission, the carbon emission is much less than in the past technology. Still, I've asked them, could they make their project as carbon neutral as possible by having the Metrobank Foundation invest in reforestation in the Central Cebu forests. So since their plants will be in Toledo I'll ask them to start their plantation in Toledo. So we have to do those things, and that the same thing, for instance, in Malapascua when my nephew started diving there in year 2000 he could see 8 sharks at one time. Today, we're cheering because we saw three sharks, and some stay for one week and they don't get to see any shark because there's a tendency for the sharks to shy away when there are too many people, when it's already over visited. But we're still lucky here in Cebu because in many other parts of the country, which were originally beautiful when I was young, they're not so beautiful anymore under the water because of all of the dynamite fishing. But here it's still quite under control and it is important that we continue to maintain the pristine beauty of our nature both on top of the ground and under the water.

So, we have declared also many nature... well, we're gonna go to Bohol so, you know, you're in the tourism industry so you know Bohol's natural wonders, and I want to remind the young people of Bohol that they should take care of the Chocolate Hills, they should take care of the marine life which attracts so much dive tourism in Panglao and — is it Pamilican or Pamilacan? —Pamilacan? I get them confused all the time. How will I remember? Pami, Bohol came later than Pamilican in Palawan. Maybe I'll remember that. Pamilican letter A went ahead. Okay. And there, what we have to stop there is dynamite fishing. So, some of my friends who dive still hear that but I don't think they hear that in Cebu, so that's a good thing about that.

We have developed about a hundred marine sanctuaries in Central Philippines since 2001, that's a lot but still the law says that every single municipality, every coastal municipality should have... should set aside 15% of its municipal waters for marine sanctuary. So, a lot are doing that. I asked the mayor of Medellin, "Yes, he has his marine sanctuary." I asked the mayor of Danao, "Yes, he has a marine sanctuary." But we'd like to have that done everywhere. And, in fact, one of the environment NGOs, Conservation International, which did the marine sanctuary of Sipalay in Negros Occidental, also one of our upcoming resort areas, I'm asking him to help me put up more marine sanctuaries. And we're getting funding from the global environment facility of the UN — what is F? — UN Framework Convention on Climate Change which is part of the goodies I was able to get from the Copenhagen Summit. Although they will be starting from the northern part of Central Philippines which is the Verde Island Passage, supposed to be the center of the center of marine diversity. Because the Philippines is the center of marine diversity, the Philippines is one of the six countries in the Coral Triangle which is the Amazon of the underwater. But it's the entire Philippines that's in the Coral Triangle whereas in the other five countries it's only a part of the countries in the Coral Triangle.

So, they say that the center of that is the Verde Passage but some say it is really in Tubbataha, so we don't know. I mean, there's a debate about that but the long and short of it is that I have to mention the environment whenever I talk about tourism because we have embraced the concept of a sustainable economic model where there should be no contradiction between a clean and healthy environment and a strong economy.

We can create jobs while we continue to keep our environment safe and sacred. So, to be able to do all of these, we have had to do some very difficult and unpopular decisions in order to be able to control our deficit and to increase our taxes especially the Value Added Tax in order to be able to pay for our economy's future. Our Value Added Tax, though it made me very unpopular from which I have never recovered, at least gave us a hundred billion pesos of new revenues every year. So that's what's funding these roads, these airports, these RORO ports, and so what I can say is in its first day of my being president, we have committed to invest in the regions to bring development not just in Metro Manila but as much as possible away from Metro Manila through the Super Regions. We have to spread the footprint, the economic and political footprint of our nation in order to be able to make all regions develop not only Metro Manila.

That is why I insisted on investing billions in the whole country. Look at that, that Cansaga Bay Bridge is over a billion pesos by itself alone. So you can imagine how much all these others cost. So we've invested billions to connect the whole country and we thank the RORO industry for helping us connect our country. Also to be able to improve education so that we can improve the chance of our young to have a better life in the future. And also the third is to work on our environment so that our nation can continue to be beautiful and so that we can also tap the best of our natural beauty in our country in order to bring up the lives of our people.

And all of that is really being done by the tourism sector, by the transport sector, and I want to thank you all for your contribution to our economy.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Tourism Central Philippines Tour: RORO from Cebu to Bohol on board Supercat 34 Fast Craft. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080543/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27627&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Tourism Central Philippines Tour: Visit to the Holy Name University

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Tourism Central Philippines Tour: Visit to the Holy Name University [Delivered at the Corner Lesage and Gallares Sts., Tagbilaran City, Bohol, February 24, 2010]

Daghan salamat.

Daghan salamat sa atong poster boy na si Secretary of Tourism Ace Durano.

Daghan salamat, Father Estepa sa inyong welcome remarks ug salamat sa pagdawat ninyo sa akong pagbisita diri sa inyong eskuwela.

Daghan salamat sab kan Governor Aumentado sa inyo nga welcome ug sa imong vision sukad pa sa una nga ako senador ug ikaw congressman kay kaniadto pa giplano na nato kauban kita sa pag-develop sa tourism diri sa Bohol. Ug daghan salamat sab kan Congressman Chatto kay siya ang author atong Tourism Act of the Philippines. Salamat sab kay Mayor Lim, ang mayor sa Tagbilaran sa imong welcome ug congratulations sa mga guwapo nga sites ug mga katawhan diri sa Tagbilaran City.

Aside from Ace Durano, I would like to introduce also to you our Press Secretary, Secretary Jun Iban. Kaninyong tanan mga kaiguon, nalipay ko nga agi ko karon makabisita kaninyo, makabisita sa Bohol gihapon ug karon makabisita sa aton kabataan nga importante gyud para kaninyo ang kaugmaon ug ang turismo, importante sab kamo ug ang inyong edukasyon sa turismo diri sa Bohol ug sa tibuok Pilipinas.

Suwerte kamo kay importante ang edukasyon ug kamo nagadawat sa maayo nga edukasyon gikan sa atong SVD fathers and that is...

Gabisita ako karon tungod kay sukad sa paglingkod nato sa Panguluhan, gihimong tuyo sa gobyerno ang pagpalambo sa tanan lugar sa Pilipinas, dili lang sa Manila. Ang mga probinsiya maoy kasing-kasing ug ispirito sa atong nasud. Ang aton trabaho mao to nourish the heart and soul pinaagi sa pagpamuhunan sa aton katawhan ug sa aton imprastraktura, aron mo-uswag ang matag Pilipino.

Ang aton pagduaw sa nasud importanteng parte sa atong panahon sa pwesto. Labaw pang importante, dili lang mibiyahen kita paingon sa mga probinsiya, nagpuhunan kita sa mga probinsiya. Dili angay ang aton proseso sa pulitika ug sa ekonomiya. Gadala sa daghan kaayong poder sa Manila. Gituyo nato to spread the opportunity across the nation ug bawi-on ang bentaha sa mga power brokers ug elite sa Manila.

To spread development away from an inequitable concentration in Manila, gihimo nato ang mga Super Regions. Kung tan-awon ninyo ang screen, makita ninyo ang mga Super Regions: Agribusiness Mindanao, Cyber Corridor, Urban Luzon Beltway, North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, ug ang Tourism Central Philippines, kun asa na anya kita tanan.

Ang Central Philippines gi-apilan sa Visayas, Bicol, MIMAROPA, ug ang mga isla sa Northern Mindanao. It attracts the majority of our foreign tourists. They come here to Central Philippines. Ang sentro niini mao ang Boracay, Cebu, Palawan ug karon ang Bohol. Ang labing dakong bentaha ining mga lugares sa Central Philippines mao ang matahom kaayo nga mga natural wonders ug ang natural warmth sa katawhan. Ang trabaho sa national government mao ang mga pasilidad aron dali ra maka-adto ni-ining mga wonders ang mga turista.

For example, alang sa Boracay nga maoy nag-unang tourist destination, gi pa-upgrade nato ang Kalibo Airport aron makatugpa sab ang mga international nga mga airlines. And we have had more international airlines coming to the Philippines because we have liberalized our air policy. Dili na kita istrikto kaayo nga muanhi ang mga airlines kanato.

Ang ilang mga pasahero sa maabot sa Kalibo Airport, mosakay sa sakyanan aron maadto sa Caticlan ug maagi sa kalsada nga kaniadto gitawag nila nga “abortion road.” Apan karon dili na abortion road, gipa-ayo na nato kining dalan busa dili na malisod ang pagbiyahe paingon sa Caticlan ug Boracay. Ug karon gipasugdan pa sa usa ka private investor ang pagpatukod sa Caticlan Airport to make it an international airport right there across the narrow channel from Boracay.

Nagpahimo sab kita ug maayong dalan gikan sa Boracay paingon sa mga tapad niyang lugar sa Panay nga mahimo mga spillover destinations, sama sa Caticlan-Libertad-Pandan Road, paabot sa Antique ug ang dalan gikan sa Sta. Barbara Airport nga gihimo nato, gi-construct nato paingon naman ang kalsada sa siyudad sa Iloilo.

Gipatukod sab nato ang Bacolod-Silay Airport sa Negros Occidental.

Karon sa Palawan. Ang Palawan ang labing popular nga destination sa tourism investors. Tingali 40% sa mga investments karon sa tourism gaadto sa Palawan. And, ngano? Well, una sa tanan, sa aton 7,100 islands sa Pilipinas, 1,700 tuwa sa Palawan. So, daghan kaayo ang mga isla, daghan kaayo ang mga white sand beaches. Ang problema kaniadto lisod ang kalsada kun naay kalsada kay Palawan is the longest province in the country. Ang iyang length gikan sa El Nido hangtod sa Rio Tuba is 500 kilometers. That is as far as Manila to Laoag City. That’s how long Palawan is — 500 kilometers. Ang mga Presidente sukad sa Commonwealth hangtod sa akong predecessor, ang gihuman nila nga concreting sa 500 kilometers, 100 kilometers; sa aton usa lang nga administrasyon gihuman nato ang 300 kilometers, busa kumpleto na ang tibuok kalsada gikan sa Norte hangtod sa South sa Palawan.

Ug tingali nga nahibal-an na ninyo nga sa mga bag-o nga 7 Wonders of the World, karon ang gacontest sa number one ang Amazon River ug ang Underground River sa Puerto Princesa, busa gihimo sab nato ang kalsada gikan sa Puerto Princesa hangtod sa underground river. Murag ingon ko kangina ang nanguna sa tourism investment mao ang Palawan.

Dili lang ang kalsada ang importansya sa Palawan, kay isla man ang Palawan o daghang mga isla, kinahanglan sab nato ang mga airport tungod kay daghan kaayo ang mga isla so kinahanglan dalhon naton ang mga turista didto agi sa mga airport sa Puerto Princesa ug Busuanga nga gi-upgrade nato o kun sa gipatukod natong bag-o nga airport sa San Vicente, ug dayon mo-agi sila sa dalan along the whole length of Palawan islands, 500 kilometers, just as I said earlier, parehas sa Manila hangtod sa Laoag. So now, 500 kilometers makabiyaha na kamo sa tibuok Palawan sa atong administrasyon.

Karon sa pikas diri, ang Cebu naman, ang number one nga paboritong duawon sa mga foreign tourists. Tungod kay world class ang iyang airport ug duol lang ang mga baybayon sa airport. Ang ila mga resorts world class sab. Ug labi na kadtong sa naa sa Mactan Island ug naay dagko nga convention center.

Kaniadto, dunay mga dili maayo nga dalan sab sa Cebu. Gipa-ayo sab nato kini, labi na giuna nato ang dalan paingon sa South Cebu hangtod Santander kay daghan kaayo ang mga tourist attraction didto ug sa North hangtod Daanbantayan kun diin daghan sab ang mga tourist attractions kauban na diri ang mgaresher sharks sa Malapascua. Katong mgaresher sharks rare kaayo maybe as rare as your tarsiers kay angresher sharks their tail is as long as the body and the only place where you can find them is in the Philippines. Kay sa mga laing mga nasud they’re two far deep below but here in the Philippines every morning they go up to have themselves cleaned and that’s where you can catch them.

Sa una, upat nga oras gikan sa Cebu City aron makadto sa Malapascua. Karon, gitunga na ang biyahe tungod sa mga kalsada na gihimo nato.

Ug tingali nahibaw... Ako hibaw kun gibati ninyo ang problema diri sa Bohol kay sa Visayas ingon nila naay problema sa kuryente, nga kun barko hangtod sa Bohol naa busa gabisita ako karon apan whether naa kamo ug problema sa mga rotating brownouts karon o wala ang atong mensahe sa tibuok Visayas sa March 5 mo-inaugurate kita sa usa ka dako nga power projects sa Cebu which is part of an investment in Cebu and Iloilo of one billion dollars. And this first investment of 250 megawatts will now solve the power problem in the Visayas starting on March 5.

So, naistorya na kamo na ako alang sa Boracay, Palawan, Cebu. Sa una, ang gitawag nila sa tourism diri Cebu-Bohol tourism. Apan karon ang Bohol nahimo na paboritong duawon sa mga turista nga lahi para sa Cebu sukad, una, napildi nato didto ang mga komunistang terorista niadtong 2005. Congratulations! sa aton mga opisyal. Ug ikaduha nga rason, gihimo nato, gihuman na nato ang Bohol Circumferential Road. Busa karon gipatindog kita sang international airport sa Panglao Island.

Ganina, na nakalingkod kami sa entablado, samtang nitindog si Father Estepa sa iya nga welcome, nangutana ko kan Governor Aumentado, kumusta na karon ang atong airport? Ingon niya nga nahuman na ang bidding, naa nay nidaog, dili niya hibaw kun kinsa but tuwa na kita sa post qualification procedures. So kun kinsa man nidaog sa bidding, kun wala siya mga disqualification, mahatag na ang kontrata tingali bag-o sa March 26. So mahuman na, magsugod na tingali — na dili tingali — naa kita dako nga paglaum masugdan na ang construcion sa Panglao Airport aron kamo sab naa na kamo ang inyong kaugalingong international airport ug daghan pa ang moadto mga turista diri sa Bohol.

Gitukod sab nato ang mga pantalan, ingon ni Congressman Chatto, ang cruise ship port mahuman na sa Mayo, so katong mga dagko nga cruise ships muanhi sa Bohol ug bisita kaninyo.

Karon naa kita port alang sa mga international cruise ships, naa kita sab mga pantalan alang sa mga gagmay nga mga barko, RORO nga muod sa mga laing-laing lugar aron makakonekta ang mga turista samtang sa Cebu konektado sa Bohol paagi sa Tubigon Port, ug ang Bohol konektado sa Camiguin paagi sa Jagna Port, ug ang Bohol konektado sa Leyte, sa Southern Leyte paagi sa Ubay Port. So ang mga turista sa Cebu makaanhi sa Bohol, ang mga turista sa Bohol makaadto sa Cebu, mga turista sa Bohol makaadto sa Camiguin, sa ilang mga baybay, mga turista sa Bohol makaadto sab sa Southern Leyte sa mga diving spots nila. So konektado ang kining parte sa Central Philippines paagi sa atong RORO.

Mao nga ang Bohol labi na sa mahuman ang international airport mahimo usa ka anchor or hub asa diin makadto ang mga turista sa laing-laing lugar, laing-laing isla nga silingan sa Bohol. So importante kining mga progreso labi na naa ang inyong eskuwela nga kurso sa turismo aron siguro masigurado nato na ang aton mga estudyante nag-ara sa turismo naay trabaho sa pag ilang pag-graduate.

Nalipay ko nga gitubag sa pribadong sektor ang aton pagpamuhunan sa dalan, airport ug RORO. Ang ilang tubag mao ang pagpadaghan sa kapasidad sa hotel, lodging houses ug uban pang imprastraktura, ug kining tanan nilang investments ga-abot sa term ni Secretary Durano isip Secretary of Tourism hapit 600 billion pesos sa atong administration. Ug karon murag naa sa atong audience usa ka prospective investor nga unya istoryahon nato siya kag ang iyang tuyo kun tingin ko na malipay siya sa atong conversation naa siya ug one billion investment diri sa Bohol.

Apan dili naman siya ang nanguna kay daghan na kaayo ang mga resorts. Ako nakaabot na sa tanan mga lungsod sa Bohol ug kada usa sa inyong mga lungosd, ingon gyud ni Congressman Chatto, naay potential alang sa tourism. Ug nakita ni ang private sector kay sa akong pagbisita sa dugay na panahon, kada pagbisita ko mupuyo ako sa bag-o nga resort nga kanunay mas guwapo kaysa sa naunahing resort. So karon naa gihapon nga bag-o nga under construction o lapit na ang iyang groundbreaking, ang Bellevue Investment, so daghan kaayo. Ang Eskaya usa sa most expensive resort sa atong nasud and yet it is full of customers. So guwapo kaayo ang investments dinhi.

Ang aton nasud, ang Bohol gibendisyon sa pila sa labing matahom nga scenic beauty sa tibuok kalibutan. Katong diving oh, daghan ang diving sa Bohol. Mas importante pa gyud gibendisyon ang atong nasud sa labing welcoming, energetic ug ma-amiguon nga mga tawo sa kalibutan.

Ang kuwento sa akon mga higala gabakasyon diri, bisan mapuyo sila sa usa ka high-class, five-star expensive resort nalipay sila sa paggawas nila sa resort ug magpasyal sa mga kalsada kay tanan nga Boholano nga makita nila welcoming kaayo, so nice, so friendly, so kusog ang culture, ang tourism culture dinhi sa Bohol. So you are part of the attraction of Bohol.

Kun gusto nato mo-succeed sa pagtindog sa atong turismo, ug dako kaayo ang ikatabang niini sa ekonomiya sa nasud ug sa Bohol kay ang turismo sa tuig 2008 ang gihatag sa atong nasud 6%... 9% sa atong GDP ug 11 billion dollars ang earning sa tibuok nasud. Diri sa Bohol, sa una, sa wala pa ang atong administration, kauban kamo sa 20 poorest provinces. Salamat nga dako nga papel sa turismo kamo usa na ka middle-class nga probinsiya o dili na sa mga kabos nga probinsiya. So, congratulations sa Bohol!

So kun gusto nato nga padayon kining atong progreso sa turismo, kinahanglan kitang mamuhunan sa aton katawhan, sa aton imprastraktura ug sa aton environment. Gikuwento ko na kaninyo ang aton investment sa imprastruktura. Sa katawhan, kinahanglan gyud ang aton mga kabataan naay mas maayo kun naay mga kurso sa turismo, busa sa akong pagbisita sa akong tourism Super Region tour, giapil ko ang bisita sa kada eskuwela nga ga-offer sa tourism course. And I'm happy that I am here in Holy Name University.

Karon bahin sa environment. Ganina sa atong klase, gi-observe nato sa tourism class ang ilang lesson for the day was about environment. Angay gyud ni, angay gyud ni kay kundili gwapo ang environment, dili gwapo ang tourism. Busa diri sa Bohol nga daghan kaayo ang inyong natural beauty, importante nga gugmaon nato ang atong environment. Gugmaon nato ang mga gubat, ang mga tarsier, gugmaon nato ang Chocolate Hills, gugmaon nato ang marine life nga ga-attract ug dako nga dive tourism sama sa Balicasag; Pamilacan, daghan kaayo; Panglao, daghan kaayo, ug labanan nato ang dynamite fishing. Mao ang kinahanglan aron padayon ang atong eco-tourism nga mao ang specialty diri sa Bohol.

Nakapatukod kita ug hapit 100 marine sanctuaries sa sulod sa Central Philippines sukad sa tuig 2001. Apan ingon sa balaud, kada coastal town kinahanglan hatagan ug 15% sa iyang municipal waters alang sa marine sanctuary. Busa, unta siguraduhon nato kada usa kamo kun nakapuyo kamo sa coastal municipality, siguraduhon ninyo sa inyo mga opisyal nga naay marine sanctuary sa inyong lungsod.

Ang aton gi-obra mao ang konsepto sa sustainable economic development kun diin walay kontra ang limpiyo ug healthy nga environment sa kusog nga ekonomiya. Mahimo kita o mo-create ug mga trabaho samtang gapadayon nga safe and sacred ang atong environment.

Sa aton paghatag sa puhunan, daghan kita ug gihimo sa mga malisod kaayo ug dili popular nga mga desisyon aron ma-kontrol ang atong budget deficits ug padak-an ang atong buhis aron bayaran ang kaugmaon ni-ining nasud. Agi sa aton mga kalsada, mga airport, mga port sila tanan kinahanglan ang buwis aron maka-finance sa ila.

Sukad sa unang adlaw sa akon pagka-Presidente, committed kita nga mo-invest sa aton katawhan ug aton mga probinsiya — halayo sa Manila.

Kinahanglan padak-an sa nasud ang iyang political and economic footprint aron maka-uswag ang tanang rehiyon, dili lang ang Greater Metro Manila. Busa gipilit nato nga mo-invest ug bilyun-bilyong peso sa tibuok nasud aron makonekta ang nasud pinaagi sa mas epektibo ug mas modernong sistema sa transportasyon paagi gyud sa airport, road ug RORO, ug mas maayo nga kaugmaon sa atong kabataan paagi sa mas maayong edukasyon, sama sa edukasyon na gahatag, ginahatag diri sa inyong Holy Name University ug kinahanglan mo-invest kita aron magpadayon nga limpiyo, clean ug matahom kining atong nasud aron mogamit nato ang labing matahom sa atong natural beauty.

Busa, giana ko karon makaistorya sa atong kabataan, kay kamo ang kaugmaon, kamo sab ang paagi kun pa unsa kita makaabot sa aton kaugmaon sa maayo nga paagi kay kun gusto nato ang turismo nga mahatag sa progreso sa Bohol, kinahanglan kauban sab ang aton kabataan.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's speech during the Tourism Central Philippines Tour: Visit to the Holy Name University. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080549/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27626&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the flag raising ceremony in celebration of the 24th anniversary of the peaceful EDSA People Power Revolution

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the flag raising ceremony in celebration of the 24th anniversary of the peaceful EDSA People Power Revolution

[Delivered at the People Power Monument, EDSA, Quezon City, February 25, 2010]

Thank you, Secretary Ermita.

Other members of the EDSA Commission; former President Ramos, one of the key players of EDSA; Mayor Belmonte; Mayor Lim; other officials of the Philippine government both civilian and military; ladies and gentlemen; mga kababayang Pilipino.

In February 1986, Filipinos taught the world how to be free again. Today, almost a quarter century after that glorious revolution, we join in celebrating — please sit down to those who have seats — we join you in celebrating the bloodless revolution that has inspired many peoples all over the world to stand up for their own freedom. Peaceful revolution is a hallmark of the Filipino struggle. It is also our guide now as we wage war on various fronts: against poverty, against hunger, against ignorance.

People Power is the force that we will use to win this war.

People Power is not partisan; it is not about whose politics one supports. It is about the heroism of the many who held strongly to their faith in the Filipino and who have sought a new Philippines that would stand proudly beside any free nation in the world. It is a spirit that brought to the fore the greatness of the Filipino. The greatness that is continuously manifest today in the millions of our countrymen and women who make their own daily sacrifices so that our country can turn around.

The world embraced EDSA 1 in 1986.

The world tolerated EDSA 2 in 2001.

The world will not forgive an EDSA 3 but would instead condemn the Philippines as a country whose political system is hopelessly unstable. Under these circumstances who would invest, foreigner or Filipino in the Philippines; how would we weather the difficulties arising from the global economic crisis.

The Philippines has come a long way since 1986. We regain our freedom and our national pride but somewhere along the way we became complacent.

People Power gained a partisan meaning which started to divide the nation once more.

A few years ago I declared, that one of our goals is to heal the wounds of EDSA to some extent but not necessarily to the extent that we want it, we have achieved this to some extent. Most of those who used violence to express their opposition have a change of heart and are now working with mainstream society to fast track our growth.

The few who have vowed to fight the constitutional authority many of them are now seeking their own place in our political system placing themselves under the Rules of the Constitution.

Today at EDSA, we celebrate not only EDSA's historical role in people power but its role as the main artery of the metropolis.

After this ceremony here in EDSA Shrine, we will walk along EDSA once again, not in order to wage a peaceful revolution but instead to do something that is very important to our future — the future of our economy.

We will inaugurate, we will walk to the nearest MRT-LRT station and inaugurate the closing of the loop that connects the LRT and the MRT, and therefore that will bind the metropolis as never before so that people can travel faster, cheaper and safer from any part of the metropolis to another.

EDSA 1 is a testament to the courage of the ordinary people who troop this stretch of highway in 1986. Today's EDSA we troop again this stretch of highway as a testament to the quiet heroism of the ordinary Filipino — the commuter who travels the MRT or the LRT everyday to and from work, to and from school.

This commuting Filipino is a symbol of the Filipino that will bring us to the verge of first world in 20 years.

Mabuhay ang People Power! kaya Mabuhay ang karaniwang Pilipino!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the flag raising ceremony in celebration of the 24th anniversary of the peaceful EDSA People Power Revolution. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080535/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27660&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 105th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) “Masidlak” Class 2010 Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 105th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) “Masidlak” Class
2010

[Delivered at the Borromeo Field, Philippine Military Academy, Fort del Pilar, Baguio City, Benguet, March 1, 2010]

Thank you.

Thank you Secretary Gonzales for your introduction.

Vice President de Castro, other elected officials and appointive officials of the country, General Ibrado, Vice Admiral Calderon, other officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, Admiral Calderon and the rest of the faculty and staff of the PMA, congratulations for producing such a fine harvest of graduates!

Class “MASIDLAK,” parents and loved ones of our graduates, your batch has the most number of “starmen” or honor students distinguished in academics in many years and the lowest attrition rate among recent classes. Congratulations for such academic excellence!

I therefore address Class “MASIDLAK” not just as young officers but as leaders of the next generation. And I address PMA today not just as a training ground for officers of the Armed Forces but as a higher education institution.

Everything our government has worked hard to achieve has been to make the future brighter for the next generation of Filipinos. You, our graduating class, the youth of our nation, are our hope and inspiration. Everything we must do must be to build a better life for each and every young person in this nation.

Therefore, we will continue hands-on governance until the day I leave office. To that end, we will promote the key initiatives our government has advanced since the day I took office. We will focus on three areas:

One, bringing more power and growth to each region, away from the dominance of Manila.

Two, continuing to promote the importance through our efforts to create sustainable and equitable development of the three E’s: the environment, the economy, and education, including a good PMA education.

Third, a continuous focus on you, the youth of our nation, as our best hope for a brighter, better Philippines.

The foundation of opportunity is education, for instance, a good PMA education. It is the key to a better life. It opens minds and opens doors.

And I think there is no better example of what a good PMA education can do to open up new opportunities than our very own valedictorian, Lieutenant Belen, whose father is a tricycle driver and I congratulate his parents!

Because you want PMA to be not just a good school for officers but a good educational institution. In 2002 our new administration reviewed the PMA policies and curriculum. This resulted in what Vice Admiral Calderon mentioned the PMA Strategic Plan or Roadmap.

Because of this strategic plan, entrance standards are now stiffer but administered to a broader selection of qualified students. For instance, this explains why we have a lower attrition rate today and also why we have such a big batch of honor students. I understand that Batch 2010, for many of you, this is your second degree. You already had a degree when you entered the PMA, that's why your record of academic excellence is terrific, and also it is because of our new recruitment policies. Congratulations to all our honor students!

And just as we have increased the pay of our soldiers, our typical soldier now earns twice as much as he did in year 2000. We have also increased PMA basic stipends from P10,000 plus in year 2000 to almost P19,000 for 2010. I hope that helps more of our students stay on campus, in the school, in PMA, and helps them also to take care of their parents in the meantime.

Like other higher educational institutions, we now require professors to have a graduate degree. And during our administration, a 142 of our core of professors took up masteral and doctoral studies, 50 new officers were recruited to the core of professors, and more than 30 professors were sent to foreign schooling. So, I dare say that our professors in PMA are as good as any other professors in any excellent center of higher education.

On physical facilities, which we also need for a good education, Vice Admiral Calderon talked about what we have done to improve physical facilities in this school, in this academy. And I believe yesterday Secretary Bert Gonzales already enumerated what those different things are that we have done, how we have invested millions, about 60 million pesos, to address long-running clamor for specific investments, improvements in physical facilities. And aside from that, we've improved the campus roads. General Ibrado made sure that they would be finished just in time for this graduation. Congratulations to that!

One of the reforms of the PMA Roadmap is the continuous improvement of the communicative skills of the cadets, starting from your first year in the academy until your last day as cadets of PMA. I remember when I was a senator, our impression was that: the PMA curriculum was very heavy on engineering subjects — that was up to 1996 — and then the amount of engineering units pared down. Because I remember also alumni saying that they would have preferred less engineering and more communication skills. And now we are giving that to our cadets.

But at the same time, we must recognize that in today's world, a strong education must be accompanied by a strong backbone in technology. To build the mind and connect to the world. Education and technology are the twin pillars upon which the future of the nation rests. That is why we remain dedicated in our last months in office to promoting, advancing, pushing for more and better education, including in the PMA, and more and better technological infrastructure.

We have come far in both, but we still have far to go and we must not rest. We have made progress, but more needs to be done. That is why before my term ends, a curriculum review will take place for PMA headed by a committee with chair, Dr. Consuelo Estepa of the UST Graduate School. This should result in a new curriculum for the next batch of entrants. And I instruct Admiral Calderon to make sure that this new curriculum should emphasize technology, the way engineering was emphasized in the 1990s and earlier. This new curriculum should conform not only to the needs of the Armed Forces but also to the requirements of a center of academic excellence here in the north.

We have a deep desire to see a brighter future for our hardworking men and women of this nation, including you, our young PMA graduates today. More importantly, we have an abiding interest in seeing that you, the young people today come into your own, seize the value of education as you have done with a PMA education, and seize the value of modernity and use these tools to advance yourself and the nation.

In advancing the nation, you will build up on what your seniors have achieved in the defense and security of our nation. Therefore, though I have spoken mainly of PMA as an academic institution, let me now conclude by acknowledging the achievements of the AFP for which you were specially trained.

In the lawless provinces of the South, we have brought peace and stability through a combination of strict military hard power and the effective use of soft development tools, namely: the building of roads, bridges and schools and ports, to lift up the economy, the local economy.

I trust that you, the new officers of our Armed Forces will apply the same hard and soft power to achieve lasting peace in Mindanao and other insurgency-affected areas.

While lasting peace has yet to be achieved, we have taken heavy political risks to broker a peace. We have reached within the affected communities to change the peace paradigm. We have brought together an amazing international consensus to aid the process from the outside. Japan, Australia, the U.S., England, the OIC nations, Malaysia, and so many others now have a vested interest in peace in Mindanao.

We have been active in the fight against global terrorism, boosting our intelligence gathering and sharing with key allies, while lifting up the professionalism and training of our own armed services, including PMA training.

As a result, we have narrowed the lair of hardcore terrorists in the South and continue to limit and confine the communist insurgency which is sputtering on empty fumes. As a result of all these, the people are safer than ever. We thanked your seniors in the Armed Forces of the Philippines. Congratulations to you!

While we are proud of what our government has achieved, past achievement is only as good as the ability of the nation to continue to grow and prosper. We fervently desire that the progress we have made will not stop; that what remains to be done will be picked up by you, the next generation of leadership, our graduates of Class 2010.

As a nation, we must keep our sights firmly set on the future, to build on what is good and work even harder to meet the challenges of what remains to be done.

You, our graduates, the young of the nation, are the bridge between the past and the future. It is for you that we right the wrongs, fight for change, and seek to make a brighter day. Our nation has come far, but it still has far to go.

You, our graduates; you, the youth, represent the aspirations of our nation. It is to you that we dedicate the efforts of our government to lift up the Philippines. Now, you will join us in those efforts.

Good luck to all of you! Mabuhay! Congratulations!

And in your honor, I will now sign the Pardon of Punishment in observance to the time honored tradition of the Philippine Military Academy. So, I hereby pardon all outstanding punishments of the cadet corps as recommended by the superintendent, PMA effective today.

Mabuhay to our brilliant Class of PMA 2010!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 105th Commencement Exercises of the Philippine Military Academy (PMA) "Masidlak" Class 2010. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080527/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27661&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle Tour

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle Tour: Visit to F. L. Vargas College, Centro Tuguegarao

[Delivered at the Gymnasium, F.L. Vargas College, Centro Tuguegarao, F. Blumentritt St., Tuguegarao City,
Cagayan, March 2, 2010]

Thank you.

Maraming salamat, Secretary Arthur Yap, sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin. At dahil nagsubmit ka na ng iyong resignation dahil ikaw ay unopposed candidate for Congress sa Bohol, maraming salamat sa iyong paglilingkod.

Governor Antonio, agyamanak ti welcome remarks yo, and thank you for recognizing and acknowledging the assistance we have given to this very important agribusiness province of Cagayan.

Apo Mayor Delfin Ting; the Vargas family, thank you for your hospitality in letting us use this facilities of your excellent school to be able to make our presentation of Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle. And I would like to also recognize former Mayor Randy Ting and former Assemblyman Tony Carag. And aside from Secretary Arthur Yap, I'd like to introduce two other cabinet members: Secretary Peter Favila of Trade and Industry, and Jun Ichan, Press Secretary. So, Mayor Baby and the other mayors, senior member and administrator, as I said the Vargas family, dagiti estudyante, dagiti teachers, dagiti faculty ti Vargas Colleges, naimbag a bigat yo amin, Apo.

Manipud idi aldaw nga nagtugaw tayo kas Presidente, panggep ti gobyerno tayo nga mapasayaat iti tunggal lugar iti Pilipinas — saan laeng iti Manila. Dagiti probinsya ket puso ken kararua iti pagilyan tayo. Iti trabaho tayo ket to nourish the heart and soul of our nation babaen dagiti pagpuonan kadagiti tattao tayo ken imprastraktura tayo, tano agrang-ay ti tunggal Pilipino.

I'm very glad to be here again in Cagayan province. I've come so often, I have visited every single town of Cagayan province.

Dagiti panagbiyahe tayo iti pagilyan ket kangrunaan iti panawen ti kinapangulo tayo. Mas importante, saan tayo laeng nagbiyahe kadagiti probinsya, nangipunoan tayo kadagiti probinsya. Ik-ikan na iti sobra nga pannakabalin ti ekonomiya ken pulitika diay Manila. So we have aimed to spread iti gundaway iti intero nga pagilyan, and take back the prejudice that is towards Manila.

To spread development away from an inequitable concentration in Manila, we designed the Super Regions. If you will look at the screen, you will see the Super Regions: Agribusiness Mindanao, Tourism Central Philippines, the Luzon Urban Beltway, the Cyber Corridor and North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle or NLAQ, where we are.

The North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle consists of Regions I, II and CAR and the northern part of Region III. This is rugged country, you're between the Sierra Madre Mountains and the Cordillera Mountains, but the rugged north of our country has some of the most hardy and hardworking people in the Philippines. The long history of grit and determination especially of our farmers and small businessmen has kept this nation moving forward.

Hardworking people want good jobs and good wages.

Iti nasayaat nga trabaho iti North Luzon ket makita iti agribusiness. Ditoy administrasyon tayo, ti inpautang ti Land Bank kadagidiay mannalon, mangalap ken negosyante ket ngan-ngani doble iti nagkakadwa nga sabsabali nga napalabas nga administrasyon. Isoda amin kadua-kadua ket P97 milyon ti inpautang da. Ti maysa laing nga administrasyon tayo, 161 billion pesos. Ken P14 billion ditoy ket napan diay babassit nga mannalon ken fishermen, doble ti intero nga inpautang from 1982 to year 2000.

Hardworking people want a good education for their children. We built more than a 100,000 classrooms during our administration. And of this, more than 12,000 were for NLAQ schools. Ken nagrugi tayo dagidiay ladderized system of education in more than a hundred schools, kas iti Vargas Colleges. Kadagitoy eskwela nga adda ladderized education, mabalin nga agrugi dagidiay vocational courses, inton malpas, mabalin ag-graduate ken agtrabahan wenno agtuloy para ti college degree. And I am glad that here in Vargas College, you are one of those offering the ladderized system of education.

Ta ado nga oportunidad wenno gundaway para ti agribusiness. I was asking, nagsaludsodak kenni Board Member Vargas no adda kayo nga Agribusiness courses, awan pay kano. So, we will ask TESDA to be able to help you. Also Secretary Arthur Yap, before you leave, after all, my last day for appointing your successor is still March 10. Before you leave, maybe you can help them put together a short Agribusiness course here in Vargas College for ladderized education.

Ta we have been pushing for more enrollments in Agribusiness courses in the 20 state colleges and universities that offer them. And I'm glad, itatta nga aldaw, we see some of the scholars, the provincial scholars, studying agriculture in the various state universities and colleges of Cagayan province. Thank you for joining us today.

We have also provided college and post-graduate education for over 600,000 scholars, on top of the billions that we have provided... billions of pesos we have provided for vocational and technical education, and I'm glad to hear from Board Member Vargas that Vargas College is a very strong recipient of CHED scholars.

Hardworking people want improved roads and bridges in order to get to work and conduct business. Kaspangarigan, in my father's time in the 1960s, he built the Halsema Highway from Baguio to Bontoc. But by neglect by succeeding administrations, that road deteriorated. Idi kalman, we inaugurated the rehabilitated road. Kuna ni Loreta Bayaan idi kalman, maysa nga farmer leader, kunana from a mountain trail, President Diosdado Macapagal gave them a highway, and then it went back to a mountain trail after his administration. But now, President Macapagal Arroyo restored it back to a highway. Saan laeng data, we also extended it to Ifugao. Saan laeng data, it's not gonna be on the chart, Baguio to Bontoc, we're also building a connection from Bontoc to Tinglayan, and as you know, Tinglayan is already connected to Tabuk and to Tuguegarao. So it will be very easy to travel between Tuguegarao and Baguio once that Bontoc to Tinglayan segment is finished, we have a problem with right of way but the other portions are already done or will be done in a few weeks time.

Apay importante dagiti kalsada? Well, just to give an example of the Halsema Highway. Before the rehabilitation, the "ahente" bought the Benguet vegetables for a low price because they were no longer fresh when they reached Baguio, worse when transported to Manila. Today with the Halsema Highway, their vegetables are transported quickly from their gardens to Baguio. And the roads going to Manila are also improved with the SCTEX and the NLEX, so the "ahente" now buys their vegetables at a good price. The road will even be better and the trip will even be faster with the private sector Tarlac-Pangasinan-La Union Toll Road which started construction yesterday.

Aggapo SCTEX addan napipintas nga kalsada inggana Baler ken Dingalan diay Aurora. Adda met baru nga kalsada aggapo Baler inggana Casiguran diay Aurora. And as I said, ti Tabuk-Tuguegarao Road which will hopefully connect all the way to Bontoc but maybe the right of way — I don't know if it can be done during my administration — but at least there's only one part of the chain that's not completed by the end of our administration.

Ngem haan laeng dagiti dadakkel nga kalsada, iti administrasyon tayo met ket nagaramid met iti nasurok nga 2,000 kilometers of farm-to-market roads in the entire NLAQ.

Nagaramid met tayo wenno nangpasayaat dagiti airports para dagidiay produkto iti agribusiness. Kaspangarigan, ti Poro Point International Airport nga nalpas idi napalabas nga tawen; the Bagabag Airport diay Nueva Vizcaya which my father built for the Rice Terraces and which we have lengthened; duwa nga airport diay Batanes; ti umay nga airport nga kuna ni Governor Antonio itattay, diay Lal-lo, which is where the international airport of Cagayan Valley will be, asideg ti Cagayan Zone, adda met dagidiay airport diay Baler ken Casiguran; adda private sector airport diay Binalonan, Pangasinan which started operating since 2008; and ti airport diay Alaminos, Pangasinan nga inaramid idi bidding idi Disyembre. So North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, with a plenty of airports for your agricultural cargo.

Dagidiay pantalan, we rehabilitated the port in Santa Ana, Cagayan. Agaramid met tayo iti feasibility study para iti Salomague Port diay bangir diay Ilocos Sur. So this is important, 'cause you did infrastructure in order to be able to transport your products.

Hardworking people also want more support in science and technology to improve our crops and productivity. Ta no awan nga technology, no awan nga science, no adda El Niño, awan nga harvest. Ngem itatta ta adda technology, uray adda El Niño, we should be able to overcome, and that's why we have almost 500 irrigation pumps for your towns in the southern part of Cagayan province. But I am glad to hear that the northern part of Cagayan province is not feeling the effects of El Niño and we can still expect a good harvest from the northern part.

Nangipuonan tayo para ti 400...

Oops! there's an earthquake. Wow! Okay. Well, let's pray it will not be anything like Chile or Haiti.

Nangipuonan tayo para ti 400 nga post-harvest facilities ditoy NLAQ manipud idi 2004 kas iti cold chain para ti Trinidad, Benguet, a refrigerated storage facility and refrigerated trucks to deliver vegetables to Manila. Idtoy Cagayan, our most important post-harvest facilities are the flatbed dryers tano haan masapol nga ag-dry dagiti corn and rice yo dagidiay kalsada because that produces 30% of post-harvest losses. So flatbed dryers are more scientific and better technology.

Kadua met ti teknolohiya ket ti irigasyon, tano uray awan nga uran, adda danom. Iti administrasyon tayo ket, not only this irrigation pumps, pinadanuman iti 700,000 hectares iti NLAQ babaen iti baro, restored wenno rehabilitated irrigation systems. Kaspangarigan, babassit nga irigasyon ket pinadanuman iti 500,000 hectares ti farmland ti intero nga NLAQ. Madamdama agbisita tayo iti maysa dagiti rehabilitated irrigation systems diay Delfin Albano, Isabela. Adda met diay bangir ti San Roque Dam nga balbaliwen tayo iti Agno River Project nga mangted iti irigasyon iti 35,000 nga ektarya diay Eastern Pangasinan, Western Nueva Ecija ken Northern Tarlac nga malpas no 2012. Ti Casecnan Dam Irrigation Project met, nalpas idi Disyembre agtultulong dagidiay 55,000 hectares iti Nueva Ecija, our largest rice producing provinces, and iti Banaoang Irrigation System, namnamaen nga pamadanuman iti 6,000 hectares nga ektarya iti Ilocos Sur.

Tano makaurnong iti dolyar and to save our air from climate change, windmills in Batanes and Bangui, Ilocos Norte turn megawinds into megawatts. Ti Bangui Bay project ket mangmangted tatta iti 30% iti masapul nga enerhiya iti Ilocos Norte. Ti San Roque mangted iti hydropower into no 2013. But me, I don't like hydropower, especially big ones, because when you have El Niño, they don't work, like what is happening now in Mindanao. Mas nasayaat ti wind power, which we get plenty of wind here in Northern Luzon. Ken I remember, Governor Antonio telling me nga umay dagidiay wind projects, wind power projects iti Pamplona ken Aparri.

(Off-mike Response from Cagayan Gov. Alvaro Antonio)

Okey, so the equipments are now being off loaded, so asidegen ti wind power idtoy Cagayan province.

Kas land reform, nagdistribute tayo ti 150,000 nga ektarya nga private land ken 600,000 nga ektarya ti public land, kadua dagiti ancestral domain. Kaspangarigan, 100,000 nga ektarya para kadagiti Bugkalots ken Ilongots iti Quirino, Aurora ken Nueva Vizcaya. Iso nga 150,000 nga Bugkalot didiay ket nangaramid iti irigasyon ken planted their own vegetables and corn.

I also remember attending a land distribution combined land reform and ancestral domain in Rizal in the neighboring province of Kalinga.

Dagiti mannalon ket nang-benepisyo met babaen iti agro-forestry kas iti jatropa, kaspangarigan, 200 hectares idia Fort Magsaysay in Northern Nueva Ecija. Adda met dagiti proyekto nga panagmula iti niyog kas dagiti inrugi tayo idia Lal-lo, Cagayan in my one of my recent visits here, idi malpas nga tawen ken idia Nueva Vizcaya ken Isabela into no March 16, coconuts in the northern provinces.

Tano pondoan dagito puonan, we have made very tough and unpopular choices to control the deficits and increase taxes to pay for the future of this nation. Education, the economy and the environment have received the largest share of the money. I would suffer the criticism any day and over and over again to see our nation prosper. You, the youth of our nation in particular, deserve a better deal than your parents. In you, we will see a brighter day. No price is too high to pay for your education and your future success.

The nation must expand its political and economic footprint to lift up all regions, not just Metro Manila. That is why we have insisted on investing billions of pesos across the nation to tie the nation together through a better, more modern transportation system; to lift up you, our next generation with more schools to ensure a better education; and keep our nation clean, safe and beautiful to tap the best of our natural beauty.

Maysa laeng tayo nga pagpagilyan. We are one nation. So let us all stand shoulder-to-shoulder to lift up our nation, to lift our nation up and to give you, our next generations even more opportunity.

Dios ti agngina kadakayo amin, Apo.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle Tour: Visit to F. L. Vargas College, Centro Tuguegarao. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080518/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27667&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during an Anchor Education Event: Visit to the Philippine Women's University (PWU) offering Ladderized Education Program

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During an Anchor Education Event: Visit to the Philippine Women's University (PWU) offering Ladderized Education Program

[Delivered at the Philippine Women's University, Taft Avenue, Manila, March 3, 2010]

Thank you very much Secretary Syjuco, our outgoing Chairman and Head of TESDA. Outgoing because he is running for Congress in his district. But I'm glad that you're here for one of your last acts as head of TESDA because Secretary Syjuco when he was still a congressman was the father of the concept of Ladderized Education.

Chairperson Tita Helen Benitez, I'm always so happy to see such elegant and venerable lady at the helm of PWU. CEO Freddie Reyes, new generation; past president Amelou, thank you very much for your ideas about the 12 years. I hope that we can... I will ask my PA Mona Valisno of Education to take up your solution with the Presidential Task Force on Education. I think we're going to have a luncheon meeting one of these days. Maybe we can have Amelou join us in that meeting.

Our different CHED Commissioner Defensor, our different officials, our faculty and staff of PWU, our students of PWU and guest students from other schools, I'm so glad to be here with all of you.

And I am so glad to be here again in PWU. Again, because I've come here very often. And every time I come here I feel very, very happy. I feel happy because I remember my mother. PWU is my mother's high school alma mater. And the friends she met in high school — it was PWC at that time — her seatmates to the left and to the right for four years became her lifelong best friends.

And then when I was a teenager, she sent me to study folk dancing here, under the great Mommy Urtula of the great Bayanihan. So I am happy to be here with you, with the young CEO of PWU, with the young students of PWU, and the young scholars from the other schools. Because you, the young of our nation, are the bridge between the past and the future. It is for you that we right the wrongs, fight for change and seek to make a better day.

Our nation has come far, but it still has far to go. So we will continue hands-on governance until the day I leave office. Just like Buboy Syjuco working until the judicial notice from the Supreme Court comes here. To that end, we will promote the key initiatives our government has advanced since we took office. We will focus on three areas:

One, bringing more power and growth to each region and decongesting Manila.

Two, continuing to promote the importance of the three E's: education, economy and environment, to our efforts to create sustainable and equitable development.

Three, a focus on you, the youth of our nation as the best hope for a brighter, better Philippines.

We have made progress in many areas. When we took office in 2001, our plan to promote growth and equity centered around four components that I pointed out in my first State of the Nation Address:

First, an economic philosophy of private enterprise appropriate to the 21st century. For example, private enterprise in education. We don't want state universities and colleges to kill private universities. We don't want public high schools to kill private high schools. That is why we invested very heavily in scholarships because we know that state universities and colleges are very highly subsidized. Private universities and colleges have a lower cost per student, meaning, more efficient than state universities and colleges. But since you had no subsidies, you have to have charged a higher price because the state universities and colleges charged a much lower price because the tuition is not the one paying for their operations, it's the government allocation. So to equalize that we have spent a lot on scholarships and I hope that many of the students in PWU are either CHED or TESDA scholars, part of our promoting private enterprise.

Because under this philosophy, the way to fight poverty is to create jobs. And to create jobs, we attract investments. And to attract investments, we have to attend to macro measures and concerns. For instance, to be able to fund all these scholarships government revenues have to be raised and government expenditures have to move from profligate to prudent without compromising such priorities as education, also health, agricultural modernization and our technological progress.

Our investments in the sectors that have the potential to make significant contributions to our nation's drive for job creation and investment attraction have strengthened our ICT sector. So I'm glad that you're offering IT courses and Call Center Ladderized courses here. And these efforts have modernized our tourism and agricultural sectors. So, I'm glad that your ladderized education began with HRM.

Our BPO sector was employing 4,000 people when we took office in 2001. Today that number has increased to more than 400,000, and counting. So, I'm sure that our graduating students from their call centers or IT from PWU will have jobs waiting for you in the BPO sector.

The second component of our development plan announced in 2001 was a modernized agricultural sector founded on social equity. And I am glad that we have created almost two million new jobs in agriculture during our administration. To achieve this, we invested no less than P20 billion pesos a year in agriculture and fisheries modernization including promoting organic fertilizer, irrigating over a million hectares, agricultural education, Land Bank loans to farmers and fishermen of over a P160 billion pesos, dryers and other post-harvest facilities including more than 10,000 kilometers of farm-to-market roads, and seed support that have increased average yield per hectare.

We distributed millions of hectares to almost a million indigenous people and more than a million Agrarian Reform beneficiaries.

A third component of our plan is a social bias toward the disadvantaged to balance our economic development plan. We expanded healthcare, adding 50 million beneficiaries to Philhealth care, upgrading primary health centers and clinics into secondary and tertiary hospitals, and selling medicines commonly used by the poor at half price even before the Cheaper Medicines Act was passed.

We built 100,000 classrooms, mostly grade school. Because I don't want to build many new high schools 'cause we don't wanna compete with the private high schools. And we built many of these classrooms in barangays that had no schools at all before.

You know one time I was in a remote barangay, mountain barangay in the Zambales mountains, to look at their electricity projects, barangay electrification. But there I met a group of young teenage Aetas and they were telling me their story. One of them was... named Joan was telling me their story. They don't come from that barangay. They come from another barangay where they have to walk 2 or 3 hours over rugged mountain trails and crossing rivers and creeks to be able to go to school to the barangay where we went. And she was already 16 years old but still in grade school, because when she was 5 or 6 her parents wouldn't make her do that travel to go to another barangay to go to school. And even at her age, she didn't travel everyday three hours, she had to board with some other Aeta family in that barangay where we were and they had to pay them with vegetables and other produce.

So, she was telling me I wish we could have our own school. I said, "yeah, it will come," because we have a program to build schools classrooms in all barangays especially grade 1 and 2 so that the 6 year-olds will go to school when they're already 8 years old they can go with their classmates to another barangay. But 6 to 7, their parents will not make them go to another barangay.

Then time passed, a few months later, I went to another remote barangay, far... even more remote than the first one to celebrate our 100,000th classroom, and there she was, the girl I had been talking to three walking hours away that 100,000th classroom was her barangay and now her younger cousins don't have to walk 3 hours anymore to go to another school.

Education must be at the center of any government's economic development platform.

And to be able to do all of the things we're doing — scholarships, building classrooms and so on — we have invested an education budget that is more than 200 billion pesos this year compared to less than 100 billion pesos before my administration. As a result, national achievement test scores went up from 44% to 65 in grade school and 36% to 47 in high school. A long way to go but a long way has also happened.

We have also provided, as I said, college and post-graduate education for 600,000 scholars, some of them are here in PWU.

And Buboy Syjuco has talked about what we have invested in technical education and skills development. Is it correct Buboy, P36 billion pesos in the last nine years? To provide technical education and skills training to 11.5 million graduates, some of them are here with us today — you.

And as Dr. Amelou Benitez Reyes said, there are students who by choice or circumstance do not immediately go to college but instead finish a shorter term technical or vocational course and get their job before deciding to return to university. Ladderized education allows you the students who take that choice to obtain a college degree later and have most of your previous vocational courses given the equivalent credits.

And I congratulate PWU, you're a pioneer in many educational and, I must say, cultural endeavors, after all Bayanihan was born here in PWU. And among your being pioneer in education is that you're among the first of the higher education institutions accredited to offer ladderized education. Congratulations!

A fourth component of our plan is effective governance. The fight against corruption has been going on for years. It must continue. But we have achieved significant success. This success has resulted in higher levels of tax revenue for the Bureau of Internal Revenue as well as enhancement in governance in many government departments. But more needs to be done in this and in many other aspects of governance.

Everything our government has done, has worked hard to achieve has been to make the future brighter for you, our next generation of Filipinos. You, the youth of our nation, are our hope and inspiration. Everything we must do must be to build a better life for each and every young person in this nation.

While I am proud of what our government has achieved, past achievement is only as good as the ability of the nation to continue to grow and prosper. I fervently desire that the progress we have made will not stop; that what remains to be done will be picked up by you, the next generation of leadership.

As a nation, we must keep our sights set firmly on the future, to build on what is good and work even harder to meet the challenges of what remain to be done. And you, the youth represent the aspirations of our nation. It is to you that we dedicate the efforts of our government to lift up the Philippines.

And the foundation of opportunity is education. That's why you're here, that's why you're studying. Your parents know and I think you know it is the key to a better life. It opens minds, it opens doors. And in today's world, a strong education must be accompanied by a strong backbone of technology.

To build the mind and connect to the world. Education and technology are the twin pillars upon which the future of the nation rests. That is why we remain dedicated in our last months in office to promoting, advancing, pushing for more and better education like the education you receive in PWU and better technological infrastructure.

We have come far in both. But we still have far to go. We must not rest.

I have a deep desire to see a brighter future for the hardworking men and women of this nation. And most importantly, I have an abiding interest in seeing that you, the young people of today, come into your own, seize the value of education — as we have done with PWU education — and seize the value of modernity and use these tools to advance yourselves and the nation.

So for all the students of PWU, and all the students who are not from PWU but who are in technical education and skills development and ladderized education, good luck to you! And may you have a great future.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during an Anchor Education Event: Visit to the Philippine Women's University (PWU) offering Ladderized Education Program. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080504/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27673&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Year-End Philippine Economic Briefing with the theme – “The Philippines: Opportunity in the Global Recovery”

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Year-End Philippine Economic Briefing with the theme – “The Philippines: Opportunity in the Global Recovery”

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, Dusit Thani Hotel, March 3, 2010]

Thank you Secretary Teves for your introduction.

Excellencies of the Diplomatic Corps, leaders of our domestic and international business communities, government officials, ladies and gentlemen.

The last two years have been remarkable for the economy of the world. History is not always a straight upward projectory of progress as we have seen. This was certainly true of the economic and social setbacks the world felt during this tumultuous time.

Yet the world will recover and become stronger and more resilient. So, too, the Philippines. We have been able to withstand the global devastation better than most for a simple reason: we were prepared. We made the tough choices on raising revenue, instilling budget discipline and most importantly, using our savings and new revenue to invest in the people.

At the end of the day, it is still all about investment and growth. No nation can move forward without expanding growth and opportunity. The global recession put the poor all over the world in deep jeopardy.

In the Philippines, the global setback force as to delay our long desired objective of balancing our budget but it was a worthy delay. We invested in our poor and middle-class to keep their heads above water during this very difficult time.

Our stimulus package and targeted subsidies for the poor answered the pressing need to protect our people from harm.

Today, we stand before you feeling more confident about the future and proud of what we have done not just these last two years but over the entire nine years of our administration.

Our record of accomplishments is a solid one: 36 quarters of uninterrupted growth; low inflation; higher job creation; expansion of human and physical infrastructure.

The story of our administration started with some daunting statistics. In the first quarter of 2001, inflation was 7.5%; our overall balance of payments position was a deficit of $202 million; external debt was 72.9% of GDP; but worst, our total public sector debt was larger than our whole GDP; unemployment was double digit at 11%.

We inherited an economy that was not even on the radar screen of international investors or the international financial community. Net foreign direct investment inflows were less than $200 million in 2001.

During the previous government investor confidence was so low that one credit rating agency Moody's, said in 2000, and I quote: "Recent weak economic management overshadows the decade-long improvement in the country's economic foundations that resulted from reform and liberalization." Moody's also said that, "prolonged political uncertainty or economic mismanagement would depress domestic and foreign investment, potentially reversing the recent gains in external flexibility and hurting the country's creditworthiness."

Today we are seeing the Philippines in a different light. Even in a depth of the global financial crisis in February 2009, the same Moody's said, and I quote again: "The Philippines has so far demonstrated a remarkable degree of resiliency to the global financial and economic crises, and has largely preserved gains achieved in recent years in improving the country's economic, external payments and fiscal fundamentals."

Yes, we have come a long way. Nine years ago, we were our own poison. But today, the Philippines' internal strength and resilience, which we built up through investment in our country and sound economic policy, are helping to keep our economy afloat even as some of the world's strongest economies have fallen.

The future for the Philippine economy is, indeed, much brighter now that it was in 2001. However, capitalizing on our potential will only be possible if we continue to have leadership willing to make the tough and often unpopular decisions that are required to break the hold of entrenched special interests and keep our economy moving.

We call on all those who aspire to this, the highest office of our land to always put the right thing for the country ahead of political expediency. It doesn't matter how popular you are if our economy is not providing the broad-based opportunity that our people deserve.

When we took office in 2001, we had very clear development objectives and an equally clear action plan to meet those objectives. Our plan to promote growth and equity centered around a focus on the following components I pointed out in my first State of the Nation Address in 2001:

First, an economic philosophy of private enterprise appropriate to the 21st century. Under this philosophy, the way to fight poverty is to create jobs. To create jobs, we attract investments. To attract investments, we attend to macro measures and concerns like instituting fiscal discipline and strengthening the banking sector. Government revenues had to be raised and government expenditures had to move from profligate to prudent without compromising such core priorities as education, health, agricultural modernization and our nation's technological progress. The government has also continued to work with the Bangko Sentral to pursue legislative reforms aimed at ensuring that international standards were maintained to eliminate such illegal practices as money laundering.

Our efforts to invest in the sectors that have the potential to make significant contributions to our nation's drive for job creation and investment attraction have resulted in a stronger ICT sector and the modernization of our tourism and agriculture sectors.

Our BPO sector was employing 4,000 people when we took office in 2001. Today that number has increased to more than 400,000 and still counting. This did not happen by accident. It has required a joint public-private sector investment in the future of that important sector of our economy.

International cooperation was also central to our efforts to promote economic development. Opening new markets, increasing trade and providing leadership in regional and international organizations has benefited our national economy. Bilateral economic, political and security cooperation with such countries as Japan, China and the United States and others have been vital to the growth of the Philippine economy. They have also been vital to our efforts to promote and protect our expatriate workers, our OFWs, in countries throughout the world.

Second component of the focus that I pointed out in my first State of the Nation Address was a modernized agricultural sector founded on social equity. I said then that we should try to create a million jobs in agriculture. Almost two million jobs were created in that sector.

To achieve this, we invested no less than P20 billion pesos a year in agricultural and fisheries modernization including promoting organic fertilizer; irrigating over a million hectares; agricultural education; Land Bank loans to farmers and fishermen of a P161 billion in our one administration compared to P97 billion for all previous administrations combined since the bank was established; dryers and other post-harvest facilities including more than 10,000 kilometers of farm-to-market roads, double that of two previous administrations combined; and seed support that increased average yield per hectare.

To fight poverty, agricultural modernization must be socially equitable. That is why we redeemed in earnest the promise of land reform by distributing millions of hectares to almost a million indigenous people and more than a million Agrarian Reform beneficiaries.

Third component of the plan we announced in 2001 was a social bias toward the disadvantaged to balance our economic development plan. We recognized that our development must provide essential safety nets for the poorest members of our community, those who would otherwise be marginalized by expanded national development. It is for that reason that we expanded healthcare, adding 50 million beneficiaries to Philhealth, upgrading primary health centers and clinics into secondary and tertiary care hospitals, and selling medicines commonly used by the poor at half price even before the Cheaper Medicines Act was passed.

We built more schools, brought water to remote towns, electricity to remote barangays, and provided conditional cash allowances to the poorest one million families in the country.

We also recognized that education must be at the center of any government's economic development platform. In that regard, we have invested an education budget that is more than P200 billion pesos this year compared to less than P100 billion in year 2000.

As a result, national achievements test scores went up from 44% to 65% in grade school and 36% to 47% in high school still a long way to go but much better than before.

We have also provided college and post-graduate education for over 600,000 scholars, including masters and doctors in science and engineering.

We have also ensured that more and more families are able to own a home. During our tenure, 300,000 low cost housing units have been built, thus, giving 300,000 families in locations across the nation a chance to meet their goal of home ownership. Part of this 300,000 families are 90,000 families that we relocated from the riles; 90,000 families, and did you hear of any big controversy? It was done with the best of social preparation.

We also recognized that if development was going to be equitable and sustainable, it must not be restricted to the Metro-Manila region. We must ensure that all regions, in every corner of our nation, realize the benefits of economic development. The record shows that our investments in farm-to-market roads and other infrastructure, rural electrification, education and health services have made a difference in lifting up the competitiveness and quality of life of millions of our people throughout the Philippines.

Fourth agenda item, effective governance. The fight against corruption has been ongoing for years. It must continue. But we have achieved significant success. It has resulted in higher levels of tax revenue for the Bureau of Internal Revenue as well as enhancements in governance in many government departments. And I would like to congratulate Secretary Teves and the BIR because for the month of February, for the third straight month, the BIR has come back to meeting or even surpassing its targets. Congratulations!

I would also like to acknowledge our outgoing Secretary of the Budget, Secretary Nonoy Andaya for the reforms that he made in procurement. Maraming salamat. And while we're at it, a big thanks to outgoing Secretary Arthur Yap for the 1.8 million jobs that we created in agriculture through your leadership.

A critical component of our economic growth has been our efforts to establish security and stability throughout all corners of our nation. This has included increased allocation of resources to the military and police, expanded cooperation with the international law enforcement agencies, and economic development targets for areas such as Mindanao. Our streets are safer to walk today than they were when we took office. The people of Mindanao are already reaping the benefits of a peace dividend that will expand once agreement is reached on lasting peace for that important part of our country. As we have said on many occasions, we will fight for that peace until our last day in office.

The growth that has resulted from our economic development programs is very evident when we travel throughout our nation, as we have done regularly for the past nine years. During those visits, we see firsthand the tangible benefits of our policies and programs. This was certainly the case again during the visits we recently made to each of the five Super Regions that have been a key focus of our development efforts to spread development: Agribusiness Mindanao, the Cyber Corridor, Tourism Central Philippines, the Urban Luzon Beltway and the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle.

We started my remarks with a review of economic indicators we inherited when we took office in 2001. We now close with indicators based on recent numbers:

Inflation today is stable, 2.9% for the fourth quarter of 2009. And we have the lowest average inflation rates among administrations after my late father.

Our balance of payments position is now at over $5 billion dollars.

External debt as a percentage of GDP has been cut by half to 34%, but to me what is more gratifying, the total public sector debt which used to be larger than our GDP has been cut to about 72%.

Unemployment is now single digit compared to 2001, at 7.5 percent.

Our GDP, our economy has doubled over the last nine years.

And we are back on the radar screen of international investors. Claro Cristobal already told us that net foreign direct investments have grown more than six times during our administration.

Those are real numbers. They are making a positive impact on the lives of real people.

We have created almost eight million jobs in nine years.

We built 100,000 classrooms, many of them in over a thousand barangays where there were no schools at all before.

I remember one time I went to what was already a very remote barangay in the Zambales mountains in order to look at some development there electricity for the barangay etcetera. And one young Aeta girl came to see me, teenager, she was in grade 1 or 2 in that barangay which was not her own barangay. Because if she were... she had no school in her own barangay and if she were to study and she would have to travel like 2 or 3 hours walking through mountain trails, crossing rivers to go to school every day. So she had to go to that barangay where we were Monday to Friday, live with some people there, and pay them vegetables or something for her rent. So she said, I wish... then she told me her story. She said, I wish that we could have a school in our own barangay.

I said, it will come. Because our project is to have a school in every barangay where there was none. At least for grade 1 and 2, so that like in her case she was a teenager in grade something because when she was 5 or 6 years old her parents certainly would not send her to another barangay to study.

So later on, months later, I went to celebrate the 100,000th classroom, and when I was there, here comes the same teenager, this was her barangay. Now she had the school. She was crying, she was thanking me, and she was giving me the best bunch of bananas that she could harvest from what her family had planted.

More than 11.5 million people received technical education and skills training scholarship.

Barangay electrification has reached 99%.

Philhealth beneficiaries, I said we added 50 million, because that is an increase from less than 30 million before our administration to more than 80 million today.

We have constructed and rehabilitated almost 50,000 kilometers of roads, more than three previous Administrations combined, plus 10,000 kilometers of farm-to-market roads, as I mentioned earlier. We also built and upgraded airports, and built the RORO Ferry Nautical Highway System. These are all contributing to better connectivity, lower cost and higher efficiency of transport and travel.

Yesterday, or was it the day before yesterday, we re-inaugurated the Halsema Highway which my father had built from a mountain trail from Baguio to Bontoc. And a farmer leader told me that that used to be a mountain trail, my father made it a highway but subsequent neglect turned it back into a mountain trail. And now I have turned it back into a highway.

When it was still a mountain trail again, he said, the “ahente” would buy their vegetables for a very low price. Because by the time it reached Baguio with that horrible travel the vegetables were no longer fresh. And worst when it went to Manila.

He said, now, that we have this highway — in fact, it is from Baguio to Bontoc and then expanded to Ifugao Rice Terraces — now that we have this highway which they have benefited from for sometime now, at least the Baguio to Mt. Data portion, he said, the travel to Baguio is very fast. And he heard that travel to Manila is also just as good because he heard of the SCTEX and the NLEX, so now the “ahente” buys their produce at a much better price. A difference in the lives of ordinary people.

So all these investment in transportation gives a boost to visit activity across the nation and across different scales of business.

Also, my friends tell me, we should point out ours is the only administration with a stronger peso at the end of our administration than at the beginning. And of course, the incidence of poverty went down.

These are just some of the many important achievements we have made over the last nine years to improve the quality of life for our people and to put our economy on a sustainable path of growth. But what is important is not so much what we have done, rather where the nation is going.

I have been committed to turning over to a new leader a nation that is in better shape than we found it. But long after we have left office, I want this nation to succeed, to win.

I want the people to prosper, the poor to be lifted out of despair, a middle-class to expand and lead this nation to the verge of first world in twenty years.

And you, the movers and shakers of business, hopefully, will be there to lead us.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Year-End Philippine Economic Briefing with the theme – "The Philippines: Opportunity in the Global Recovery". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080456/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27668&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during a courtesy call by the Philippine Women Judges Association (PWJA) Members

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a courtesy call by the Philippine Women Judges Association (PWJA) Members

[Delivered at Rizal Hall, Malacañang, March 4, 2010]

Justice de Castro, outgoing Secretary Devanadera, incoming Secretary Dizon but not for the same position, women judges, lady members of the bench, welcome back to Malacañang!

This event is timely as we join with the rest of the world in celebrating March as Women's Month. So, Happy Women's Month to all of you!

We are proud of the great strides the Philippines have made in women empowerment. And you, the women judges with your 500 members have contributed much to that to uplifting the lives of our women.

The Philippine Women Judges Association has been truly a potent force in fostering an independent, efficient, and highly competent judiciary since your inception almost a quarter century ago. In the practice of continuous trial system, for instance, as well as in other areas of effective court management, such as the mandatory wearing of judicial robes, the PWJA has shown us how much our lady judges can do to influence the direction and quality of our judicial system.

Guided by such luminaries as Justice de Castro and past leaders of PWJA, this association I'm sure will go even farther to improve the welfare of our womenfolk. I hear that one of the topics of this year's convention is Republic Act 9710 or the Magna Carta for Women. This is one of the most important pieces of legislation to come out during my administration. I hope that this law will help you and even your male colleagues in the adjudication of cases involving abuse and discrimination against women. So as womenfolk, as fellow women, let us continuously work hand in hand.

We in the Executive are certainly very willing to work hand in hand with the courts to ensure the full protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms of women, especially those who are marginalized. And we're also very much willing to work with the courts on the promotion of the social, political and economic equality of men and women in our society.

A recent report shows that the gap between male and female socioeconomic standings in the Philippines has significantly narrowed. And this on top of already a very good record. In fact in the U.N. and in the World Economic Forum, we are actually number six among all countries in gender parity in the whole world. The only ones ahead of us are New Zealand and, of course, Scandinavian countries and then we're next.

And even at that, the latest report shows that our gender parity has improved even more. The 2010 Mastercard Worldwide Index of Women's Advancement looks at four male-to-female ratios: labor force participation, enrollment in tertiary education, employment in managerial positions, and the number of those earning above the median income. We were already doing very well, better than all other countries in the world except for five. And now the results for 2010 indicate that we scored better this year than last year, so we're getting better and better all the time.

And if you compare us to our neighbors in the Asia Pacific, our absolute score and our improvement were much higher than the score and the improvement across Asia Pacific countries.

And I am sure the women judges helped make this happen because you have put your trademark discipline and long hours to work on behalf of a nation.

You've had a very long day, so I will not prolong it anymore with a long speech or a lecture. I just want to say: for strengthening the institutions of justice in this country, congratulations!

And thank you once again for your continuing support. And Happy Women's Month!

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during a courtesy call by the Philippine Women Judges Association (PWJA) Members. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080444/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27675&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo before the Global Filipino Teachers (Globe Telecoms IT Training for Teachers)
Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the Global Filipino Teachers (Globe Telecoms IT Training for Teachers)

[Delivered in Cebu City, March 5, 2010]

Thank you. Thank you Secretary Lapus for your introduction. And thank you for letting our teachers know how much we have put investments in IT enabled education aside from IT education.

Mr. Cu, President of Globe, other officials, Dr. Labe and the other members of the partners who have put this together, the Cabinet members, our officials, Gwen Garcia, Neri Soon-Ruiz, Mayor Cortes, beloved teachers, congratulations to all of you!

Congratulations especially to those who have finished this Global Filipino Teachers Program! And who are ready to receive a certificate. And good luck for those who still have that last remaining component which is to demonstrate what you have learned from here in the classroom setting.

And of course, a big “thank You” to Globe for sponsoring this training.

The foundation of opportunity is education, and I thank our teachers for choosing education as a career. Pardon my partiality for the teaching profession. I was a teacher before I joined government.

Which is why as Jing Lapus said, that we realize and we acknowledge the role of the teachers in the whole comprehensive framework of education. And I am glad that during our administration we’ve been able to increase the pay of teachers about 50 % and you get another increase starting June this year.

Education is the key to a better life. It opens minds and opens doors. And in today’s world, a strong education must be accompanied by a strong backbone of technology. So, I thank Globe for helping us provide that backbone together with our other telecommunications companies.

To build the mind and to connect to the world. Education and technology are the twin pillars upon which the future of the nation rests. So, I congratulate GlobeBridgeCom for your contribution to these twin pillars. You have been a great help in reducing our people’s fear of new technologies by demonstrating how new instruments using these technologies can provide us with more accurate information at a quicker time, therefore giving people more time for other activities.

Actually computers are so much friendlier now than when I was a teacher. I remember when I was doing my PhD and I had to do I’ve to learn computer programming so that I could do my dissertation we had to learn with ... that was our program and we had to use this index cards. But now, it’s so easy and it’s just that psychological barrier that we have to overcome.

But this is not the only program that Globe has done to be in partnership with our stress on ICT as one of the growth sectors of the future. We’re very grateful for GlobeBridgeCom’s technology-based youth-oriented special program in more than 3,000 barangays, particularly Text2Teach which uses the SMS I mentioned this because many years ago in the early years of my presidency I was also the guest of honor in the launching of Text2Teach Program.

And I am very grateful to Globe for the internet connection the internet in school program providing interconnectivity to schools because one of our programs one of our most important programs our reforms in education is to provide connectivity to public high schools. Because having your computer in a school or even 10 or 20 computers I think is not enough I'd rather have one computer in every high school that's connected than 20 computers that are not connected.

So interconnectivity connectivity is so important. And as Mr. Cu said, in supporting our program Globe has helped us connect 1,500 high schools the biggest number the biggest contribution among all private telecoms company. In fact, you are helping us with 1,500 with the 4,000 public high schools that we have provide connectivity for... that's a very big percentage.

And now, this training program which has turned out the first batch of 97 most of which are ready with a certificate today some of whom still have to prove to Dr. Labe that they're ready for their certificate.

So, congratulations to our teachers of Cebu, Bohol and Negros Oriental.

With this training, you, our global Filipino teachers will now be able to help our youth seize the value of education and modernity to lift up their lives and lift up our nation.

Congratulations kaninyong tanan! Salamat gyud.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech Global Filipino Teachers (Globe Telecoms IT Training for Teachers). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080428/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27676&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Switch-On Ceremony of the First 82-Megawatt Power Generation Unit of the 3×82 MW Clean Coal-Fired Power Plant and launching of the environment-related project

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Switch-On Ceremony of the First 82-Megawatt Power Generation Unit of the 3×82 MW Clean Coal-Fired Power Plant and launching of the environment-related project

[Delivered at the Cebu Energy Development Corp. (CEDC) Multi-purpose Hall, March 5, 2010]

Thank you.

Thank you, Secretary Reyes. Thank you for your introduction.

Chairman Ty; President Sebastian and your other partners in this very important investment; Governor Garcia; Congressman Pablo John Garcia; Mayor Zambo and the other officials of this jurisdiction. I would also like to recognize Congressman Benhur Salimbanon from the northern part of Cebu.

Members of the Cabinet: we have already had Secretary Favila acknowledged and Secretary Reyes. Also, we've had Secretary Horacio Ramos who signed the Memorandum of Agreement today on Reforestation. Secretary Durano who is our Cabinet Officer for Regional Development here in Region VII and Secretary Jun Ichan, Office of the Press Secretary. Other government officials who helped make this possible. To all of us, to all of you, Mrs. Ty and the other ladies who provide inspiration here.

Congratulations to Cebu Energy! Congratulations to Metrobank and its partners for being part first of all of our Billion Dollar Club! The Billion Dollar Club is that exclusive club of investors putting in one billion dollars in our economy during my administration. I have welcomed several other members of the Billion Dollar Club to our country but I'm very happy that this is the first that I am welcoming which is majority-owned Filipino. Congratulations! Your one billion dollars in power plants in Cebu and Iloilo are the solution to the power shortage in the Visayas.

By the way, let me also acknowledged our Ambassador from the People's Republic of China, Ambassador Liu. Thank you for joining us here.

Early in my administration, one of the very first bills that we passed into law was the Electric Power Industry Reform Act. That law privatized the electric power sector. It prohibited the government from being the one to put up new power plants. Henceforth, it had to be the private sector to produce the energy infrastructure to match the demands of our growing economy. And so, we have had to campaign hard for the private sector to invest in power generation, and we are happy to have positive responses from development-oriented companies like Metrobank and its partners. Maraming salamat sa inyo.

I am happy that Metrobank or Global Business Power through its Cebu Energy Development Corporation and on the other side of the Visayas, the Panay Energy Development Corporation has responded to the challenge.

Today, the Visayas grid has a generation deficiency of 45 megawatts that is why we have been experiencing some brownouts. But with the inauguration today of the first 82-MW generating units of this 246-MW plant, the whole of the Visayas can now meet its present needs and a little more for its reserves.

This additional power signals the end of rotating brownouts in the Visayas and it also marks the end of importing power from Luzon which is also burdened by huge power requirements.

We now look forward to other significant power start-up dates calendared by the Metrobank related power companies: the synchronization of the 2nd and 3rd 82-MW units of this Toledo plant in May and then in December of this year; and the synchronization of the generating units of Panay Energy Development Corporation, an additional 82 megawatts in October and another 82 in December, all of this year. And we hope that the power plant of KEPCO, which we passed by on the way here in Naga, under construction will also provide additional supply by October of this year.

So, from being an importer of power, now that Cebu will be producing more power than it needs, it can even become an exporter of power to Luzon and to Mindanao.

We also congratulate this Toledo plant and the Panay power plant for using clean technology so that even if they are coal-fired, our air would have less carbon emissions than the old style coal-fired plants. Our Administration has forged a new energy and environmental policy that has created more jobs, decreased reliance on foreign sources of energy, and provided a blueprint for a green, sustainable economy. Choosing between a good job and a clean economy is a false choice. We can have a growing economy and a green, healthy economy. And we thanked the Metrobank group for complying with my request — that was the signing ceremony was all about — to augment their clean coal investment with a reforestation project in Central Cebu to make this plant even more carbon neutral.

To Dr. George Ty, Chairman of the Metrobank Group of Companies and all the others mentioned by Francis Sebastian earlier, who have made possible the operation of this Toledo plant, I would say what the Cebuanos have been already saying when Arlene said it already, but I say it once again: To you, daghang salamat and congratulations to all of us.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Switch-On Ceremony of the First 82-Megawatt Power Generation Unit of the 3×82 MW Clean Coal-Fired Power Plant and launching of the environment-related project. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080436/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27674&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 2nd Go Negosyo Women Entrepreneurship Summit and launching of the book “Tagumpay mula sa Kahirapan”

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 2nd Go Negosyo Women Entrepreneurship Summit and launching of the book “Tagumpay mula sa Kahirapan”

[Delivered at the World Trade Center, March 8, 2010]

Maraming salamat, outgoing Secretary of Trade and Industry Favila, incoming member of the Monetary Board.

Outgoing Secretary of Education and incoming Secretary of Trade and Industry, Jesli Lapus; former Secretary of Agriculture Arthur Yap; ang ating mga napakagaling na nag-organize nitong ating pagdiriwang ngayon at nag-organize ng mga entrepreneur ng ating bansa, Joey Concepcion; Chairperson Myrna Yao; Congressman Lito Roxas; Mr. Sanjiv Vohra, our Citi Bank Head of the Philippines; (ang ating mga 100 model entrepreneurs, our inspiration, our women icons inspiration for the women of the Philippines; mga kababaihan, Maligayang Araw ng Kababaihan sa ating lahat!

Nung araw ko pang sinasabi na dahil sa ating administrasyon dalawa ang ating pinakaprograma sa kababaihan: isa, karapatang pantao at yung isa ay karapatang pangkabuhayan lalo na sa entrepreneurial development. Sabi ko dapat nagdidiriwang tayo ng Women’s Day parati na ipinagdidiriwang natin ang women entrepreneurs. Kaya ako’y nagpapasalamat sa Philippine Center for Entrepreneurship, sa pamunuhan ni consultant natin for entrepreneurship na si Joey Concepcion at ang Commission on Women ni Myrna Yao sa pag-organisa nitong “Go Negosyo Women Entrepreneur Summit” pinakabagay na pagdiriwang ng ating Women’s Day.

Pangalawang taon na itong Go Negosyo Women at 15,000 na ang nakilahok. Kaya naman ito ay nagpapakita pwedeng ipagmalaki ng buong bansa ang temang “Babae, Tagumpay Ka ng Bayan” dahil sa pagtagumpay ng negosyo ng libu-libong kababaihan sa buong bansa. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

At muli espesyal nating binabati ang mga binigyan ng parangal na Go Negosyo-Philippine Council of Women Inspiring Women of the Year. At yung ating isang daang entrepreneurs na hindi naman lahat ay women pero nakararami sa ating entrepreneurs ay women at sila ay naging inspirasyon sa libro ni Joey Concepcion “Tagumpay sa Kahirapan.” Congratulations!

Nung nanumpa ako bilang Pangulo nung 2004, ipinahayag ko na hangaring makasuporta sa tatlong milyong entrepreneur sa panahon ng ating administrasyon, sa pamamagitan ng pautang at tulong na maging mabuting manager, sa ganun makakapagtatag ng malalim na pundasyon para sa malawak na middle-class.

At ngayon na patapos na si Secretary Peter Favila bilang Secretary of Trade and Industry at Chairman ng Micro, Small and Medium Enterprise Development nagbigay siya ng ulat na sa ating administrasyon from 2001 to 2009, nakapaghiram tayo ng P340 billion pesos sa halos anim na milyong micro, small at medium enterprises at nakapaglikha rin ng anim na milyong trabaho kaya nalampasan natin ang ating target na supporting three million entrepreneurs. Congratulations Peter at lahat nang tumulong sa inyo!

Kaya naman para may parating may tatanggol ng microenterprise, a small enterprise loans sa Monetary Board ng Central Bank, nagdesisyon ako na i-appoint si former Secretary Peter Favila bilang member ng Monetary Board para ipagtanggol kayong mga entrepreneurs.

Doon naman sa pag-ensayo kung papano maging mabuting manager, eh hindi naman tamang gobyerno ang nagtuturo dahil gobyerno mga bureaucrats. Dapat manager ang nagtuturo kaya nagpapasalamat tayo sa Go Negosyo dahil sila ang nagtuturo at nagbibigay ng inspirasyon kung papano maging magaling na entrepreneur ang ating kababaihan pati na rin ang ating kalalakhian.

Isa pang magandang balita. Sa microenterprises, nobeinta porsiyento sa pinahiram ay mga babae. Talagang tagumpay sa negosyo ang kababaihang Pilipino.

Actually, kinikilala sa buong bansa ang Pilipinas bilang number one sa Asya sa gender parity at number six sa buong mundo. Sa buong mundo ang nakakatalo lamang sa atin sa gender parity ay yung New Zealand at apat na Scandinavian countries tapos tayo na. Kaya talagang maganda ang ating gender parity. At this year, sa world index mas gumaganda pa, so maganda na nga nuon, lalong gumaganda pa taun-taon.

Halimbawa, yung pagbibigay-karapatan sa pag-aaral, lamang ang mga babae kaysa sa lalaki, kasi mas mataas ang enrollment rate at saka mas mataas din ang retention rate ng mga babae at mas marami rin ang mga honor students na mga babae. So lamang ang babae sa edukasyon. Mas maraming babae ang nagsisimula at nagpapatuloy ng pag-aaral kumpara sa mga lalake.

Sa kalusugan naman, mas mahaba ang buhay ng mga Pilipina kaysa sa mga lalaking Pilipino. At eto na nga, sa mga maliliit na entrepreneur, lamang na lamang ang kababaihan. Kaya marami tayong pwedeng ipagdiriwang.

Malaking katuwaan ito para sa akin, dahil noong senador pa lamang ako, sinulat ko yung Republic Act 7882, na nagbigay ng tulong sa mga kababaihang may sariling micro at cottage business enterprises.

Naisabatas naman natin sa ating administrasyon ang Barangay Micro Business Enterprises o BAMBE Law at yung binanggit ni Myrna Yao yung Magna Carta kung saan... kaya pati na rin yung Magna Carta for SMEs yung Magna Carta for Women at ang Magna Carta for SMEs kung saan isinama ang microenterprises kaya nagtatag yung Micro, Small and Medium Enterprise Development kung saan naging Chairman si Secretary Favila bilang Secretary of Trade and Industry pero ginawa nating Vice Chairman sa Enterprise Council walang iba kung hindi ang Vice Chairman ang ating entrepreneur consultant, si Joey Concepcion, ang Vice Chairman ng ating MSMED Council.

So, talagang inaasahan natin na ang pribadong sektor, ang NGO na Go Negosyo, ay patuloy na magpapairal ng kapakanan ng ating entrepreneurs and women's entrepreneurs.

Ang tagumpay na ito ay dahil sa pagtutulungan nating lahat, mababae o malalaki, upang kilalanin na ang mga babae may pantay na karapatang pangkabuhayan ganun na rin sa karapatang pantao.

At sa tulong ni Joey at iba pang grupong nagpapalago ng entrepreneurship, lalong lumalaganap ang kakayahan ng kababaihan sa pagnenegosyo.

Kaya yun ang ating ipinagdiriwang itong araw na ito: Women's Day; Women's Month, Hurray! for women entrepreneurs.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 2nd Go Negosyo Women Entrepreneurship Summit and launching of the book "Tagumpay mula sa Kahirapan". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080421/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27687&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Citizenship Advancement Training (CAT) Military Exercises and PGMA Scholarship Report Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Citizenship Advancement Training (CAT) Military Exercises and PGMA Scholarship Report

[Delivered at the Quadrangle, San Sebastian College-Recoletos Campus, March 8, 2010]

Thank you. Troop commander give “tikas pahinga.”

Thank you, outgoing Education Secretary Jesli Lapus. Outgoing Education Secretary because he’s the incoming Secretary of Trade and Industry.

And down there in the stage, because she has not yet taken over, our incoming Secretary of Education Mona Valisno; Congresswoman Naida Angping; CHED Commissioner Nenalyn Defensor; our host, Father Murillo, thank you for inviting me to this event; Commandant Aseron and of course Principal Aliwalas; other school officials, teachers, parents, graduating students of the CAT and your colleagues in San Sebastian, magandang umaga sa inyong lahat.

Congratulations! to all those graduating from the Citizenship Advancement Training.

You know, Naida was telling me how nice that you could come today. Actually, Father, when the invitation arrived — you see, all my invitations go through a Committee on Appointments — and when the invitation arrived, my Committee on Appointments turned it down. But when I saw it, I said, “No.” I overruled their turning it down and I said, “No, I will come. I want to come.”

For one thing San Sebastian is a neighbor. I’ve been here many times but only to the church to be ninang in weddings and to admire the most beautiful example of gothic architecture in our country. So, it’s time for me to visit the school itself.

And I think the CAT graduation is just proper because I want to highlight how important is the CAT course to our vision to have a Strong Republic ready to join the first-world in 20 years. To strengthen our Republic, it is important that we engage the support of the people by enhancing civil-military relations. We want to review the reservist and reserve force development program of the AFP, the ROTC and other similar programs like the CAT consistent with the doctrine of a citizen’s army enshrined in the Constitution.

I hope that our CAT graduating students will join the ROTC or its equivalent and will join the reservist force afterwards when you graduate from college. Also enshrined in the Constitution is that the President must hold office until the 30th of June. And for that purpose, I will continue hands-on governance until my last minute in office.

To that end, we will promote the key initiatives our government has advanced since I took office. We will focus on three areas:

One, bringing more power and growth to each region, and decongesting Manila. Starting March 15, the loop, the MRT-LRT loop, will be completed and open for public transport so I hope some of our students will be able to benefit from that.

Second focus, continuing to promote the importance of the three E’s: education, the economy and the environment, to our efforts to create sustainable and equitable development.

Third, a continuous focus on the youth of the nation as our hope for a brighter, better Philippines.

We have made progress in many areas. For instance, CHED Commissioner Nenilyn Defensor told me about our unprecedented scholarship program for college. But we have also an unprecedented scholarship program for high school. In fact, today almost 50% of all high school students are on government scholarship. And I ask Father Murillo whether San Sebastian College and High School are benefiting from our unprecedented large scholarship program. He said, "Yes, San Sebastian is a beneficiary of government scholarship program." Congratulations to you!

You know the reason why I insisted on having especially a high school scholarship program, because many years ago, we had no public high schools. My father, for instance, when he was living in Lubao he studied in grade school in the Lubao Elementary School but for high school he had to go to San Fernando High School. There was only one high school in the whole province of Pampanga that was public school.

Today, in every barangay in Lubao, there is a high school, a public high school. And so therefore what happens to the private high schools if parents have a choice especially if they have financial difficulty of sending their children to a free high school versus sending their children to a paying high school? Of course, they will send their children to a free high school. What will happen to the private high school system? It will die just like the private grade school system which is very, very small.

So, I've been telling Jing Lapus and all the officials of the DepEd, let us not kill the private high schools. Instead of building more classrooms for public high schools, let us use the money for scholarships so that our young people can have a good private high school education paid for partly by the government.

So we have made progress in many areas but more needs to be done. Everything our government has worked hard to achieve has been to make the future brighter for the next generation of Filipinos. You, the youth of our nation, our hope and inspiration. Everything we must do must be to build a better life for each and every young person in this nation.

While I am proud of what our government has achieved, past achievement is only as good as the ability of the nation to continue to grow and prosper. I fervently desire that the progress that we have made will not stop. So, I hope the next administration will continue this extensive private high school scholarship program instead of building more public high school buildings.

I also hope that what remains to be done will be picked up by you, the next generation of leadership. As a nation, we must keep our sights firmly set on the future, to build on what is good and work even harder to meet the challenges of what remains to be done.

You, the young of our nation, are the bridge between the past and the future. It is for you that we right the wrongs, fight for change and seek to make a better day. Our nation has come far, but it still has far to go. You, the youth, represent the aspirations of our nation. It is to you that we dedicate the efforts of our government to lift up the Philippines.

The foundation for opportunity is education. It is the key to a better life. It opens minds and opens doors. That is why we remain dedicated in our last months in office to promoting, advancing, pushing for more and better education. We have come far, but we still have far to go and must not rest.

I have an abiding interest in seeing that you, the young people of today, seize the value of education, of a good education like San Sebastian education. As Father Murillo said, number one sa BAR, number one sa NCEE at number one sa dami ng BAR reviewers. Congratulations to San Sebastian!

And may you, our young people seize the value of education and use this tool to advance yourselves and the nation. Your CAT training, my dear young graduates will help you advance our nation.

Congratulations! Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Citizenship Advancement Training (CAT) Military Exercises and Pigma Scholarship Report. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080413/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27688&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Change of Command Ceremony

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Change of Command Ceremony

[Delivered at the Camp General Emilio Aguinaldo, March 10, 2010]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Bert Gonzales.

Group commander give 'tikas pahinga.'

Vice President Noli de Castro, our new Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines and just appointed general, General Del Bangit.

General Victor Ibrado, Happy Birthday and Congratulations! I also greet the Ibrado clan whose members trooped from different parts of Antique and Iloilo to be part of this memorable event. Together with Vice President Noli de Castro, I greet our other officials, appointive and elective; Bishop Tumalak and other guests from the civilian sector; members of the Diplomatic corps; men and women, officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

The change of command honors not only the outgoing and incoming commander but also every soldier, airman, sailor and marine serving the nation. We sleep peacefully at night because these courageous men and women stand on guard. We enjoy the freedom of our democracy because they surrender theirs to the restraint of soldiery and the Spartan discipline of the uniform. We continue to benefit from the tangible progress of our economic modernization because the great Filipino soldier is there to safeguard us, to protect us, to secure our lives and livelihood.

Under Bong Ibrado's leadership, we have narrowed the lair of hardcore terrorists in the South and continued to confine and limit the communist insurgency, which is now sputtering on empty fumes. Congratulations! Bong to your achievements.

A strong national defense and a strong economy are the twin pillars of any nation's strength. This is certainly true in the Philippines as well. As President, it is my constitutional obligation to maintain the peace, order and stability of our nation while investing in our people and growing our economy.

With the appointment of General Bangit, we are pleased to provide the continuity required to keep our nation stable and strong. As we have heard from the endorsement of General Ibrado, as we have heard from the remarks of General Bangit, General Bangit will always put the nation first in performing his duty to uphold the Constitution and protect our citizens. Congratulations! Del.

The history-rooted ceremony of the change of command that we are having now reminds ourselves that leaders are transient but the authority and responsibility endure as they are transferred to another leader. As it is with the Armed Forces of the Philippines, so it is with the entire Republic of the Philippines. So, too, is our entire Administration devoted to ensure a smooth transition to a new government. The people come first.

Our accomplishments and progress to date must be passed on to new leaders to continue the forward march of progress. In the meantime, we will remain totally focused on governance and advancing the key programs we have advocated since coming to office, namely: infrastructure, education, healthcare, job creation and economic stability. And, of course, advancing our national security and the smooth operations of our men and women in the Armed Forces who serve our nation with professionalism and distinction. They put their lives on the line for us everyday to protect our freedom and our way of life. And therefore today, not only do we congratulate and thank General Ibrado. Not only do we congratulate and wish well General Bangit. We congratulate and thank the great Filipino soldier.

Together with our soldiers, we have made considerable progress since we came to office. While nothing is ever completely achieved, we will turn over our nation having achieved a number of rock-solid accomplishments. From the beginning, we put forward very specific plans and detailed programs including for the continuing modernization and professionalization of the Armed Forces.

We have worked hard everyday to make sure we delivered on our plans and programs. In the national life of our economy most notably, we have made major progress improving our national infrastructure with more roads, an expanded commuter rail system, bridges and ports. We have made major gains in education, building more classrooms, installing internet access, improving teacher salaries, but together with teacher salaries also soldier salaries, so that in the last nine years the soldier's pay has been doubled from the time when we started. And, of course, part of our educational reforms is more scholarships for deserving young people including families of our soldiers.

While more certainly needs to be done, we have made major gains in multiplying access to Philhealth, 82 million of our 90 million population have access to Philhealth. In other countries that will be considered universal coverage. We have made progress in electrifying barangays, increasing tax collections, creating new markets with foreign countries and improving relations with other nations including security relations.

Our 36 quarters of consecutive growth have been unprecedented. We maintained our positive growth even during the global recession that started almost two years ago. Sadly, though, the progress we made was dealt a setback with the global recession in the sense that the global recession particularly hurt the poor and the middle- class even if we did not have recession in our country.

The global recession prevented the economic growth from really reaching the poor. It has prevented our economy from lifting all boats as we had hoped and planned. Yet the progress we made can be passed on for the next administration to build on.

We will be leaving the nation in better shape than we found it. We will be leaving the nation safer than we found it because of the great performance of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. From day one, we have always offered very specific programs to achieve our vision for a more modern, vibrant nation including a more modern vibrant Armed Forces.

We cannot put food on the table with just hope; we need a detailed plan of action and the ability to execute that plan and turn it into tangible results. That is what we have tried to do every single day. That is what our Armed Forces have done every single day with their area of responsibility. And I congratulate them for that.

Much remains to be done, but we have made good progress on many fronts. We are optimistic and hopeful about the future of this nation. We remain deeply committed to a smooth transition to a new government. And as we have heard from our outgoing and our incoming chiefs of staff, we count on the Armed Forces to help us prove that our democracy works for the future of our nation's children.

To Bong Ibrado, a big thank you from the Filipino people whom you have faithfully served. And to General Del Bangit, the very best of luck.

At sa ating mga sundalo, maraming salamat at Mabuhay!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) Change of Command Ceremony. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080409/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27702&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the the Mindanao Agribusiness Tour: Visit to Jose Rizal Memorial State University

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the the Mindanao Agribusiness Tour: Visit to Jose Rizal Memorial State University

[Delivered at the Jose Rizal Memorial University, Zamboanga del Norte, March 11, 2010]

Daghan salamat Secretary Dureza, ang aton bag-o nga Chairman sa Mindanao Development Authority. Congratulations!

Governor Yebes, Congressman Jalosjos, Congresswoman Carreon, Mayor Jalosjos ug laing-laing opisyaales diri, mga laing-laing mayor, Dr. Valbuena ug tanan atong mga opisyaales, manunudlo ug estudyante sa bag-o nga Dr. Jose Rizal Memorial State University, maayong hapon kaninyong tanan.

Nalipay ko nga makabisita kaninyo. Niabot na ako diri niadtong bag-o pa ako nga senador niagi ko gikan sa Dipolog sa airport paadto sa Ipil, so niagi ko diri apan karon adlaw naa ko'y chance ug makabisita sa inyong university labi na kauban... ug congratulations kan Congresswoman Celia nga siya ang principal author kay ang Dapitan ang main campus sa inyong university.

Gabisita ako kaninyo kay padayon kita sa pag-abtik nga gobyerno hangtod magawas ako sa pwesto. Alang kana, ma-promote kita sa mga labing importante nga inisyatibo nga gipasulong ug atong gobyerno sukad sa akong panglingkod sa pwesto. Mo-focus kita sa tulo ka bahin:

Usa, pagdala sa labaw nga poder ug kauswagan sa kada rehiyon, gawas sa pagkadaminate sa Manila. Busa, migasto kita alang sa dagkong kalsada sama sa gahimo nato karon nga Zamboanga West Coastal Road or Triple SSS B Road kag gibisita nano ganina. Kapin sa 170 kilometers kini ug kapin sa P4 billion pesos ang atong gigastos diri. Ang labing mo-benepisyo ang mga lungsod sa Triple S B towns o Sibuco-Siraway-Siocon ug Baliguian tanan sa distrito ni Congressman Cesar Jalosjos nga apil sa labing kabus nga mga lungsod sa Zambo Norte.

Kining Triple S B dili ko makalimot sa ako bag-o pa nga senador — no, dili pa bag-o — sa ako ni kampanya para senador dili ako nakaabot sa distrito ni Cesar Jalosjos kay isip bag-o nga kandidato walay daghan nga gacontribute kanako, wala akong helicopter, so dili ako nakaabot. Ug ang akong mga ig-agaw kay naa ko diri sa Zamboanga del Norte tungod kay ang akon lolo si Juan Macaraeg nahimo manager sa Sta. Clara Lumber nga apil ang tibuok Zamboanga Peninsula ug ang iyang ig-agaw nga iyang kauban nag paasawa sa usa ka taga Manukan sa Zamboanga del Norte busa daghan ang akong ig-agaw diri ug sila nagpaila kanako kan Congresswoman Celia Jalosjos ug kan Romy Jalosjos kaniadto nga sila dako ang ilang suporta kanako busa bisan dili ako nakaabot sa third district — third district ni, di ba? — nadaog ako dinhi sa Zamboanga del Norte. Daghan salamat kaninyo.

So dili ko makalimot dili ako nakaabot tungod kay walay kalsada. Ug sa ako nahimo senador kanunay ako nianhi kauban ang akon mga ig-agaw, kauban si Celia nga ig-suon pa... dili pa sa una congresswoman, ig-suon pa ni Congressman Jalosjos ang iya nga designation kaniadto. So, gafiya mi sa tanan-tanan mga lugar, niabot mi hangtod sa Gutalac na fiesta didto, hangtod sa Labason nifiya mi didto apan hangtod karon ra kay wala nang kalsada hangtod sa Baliguian.

So, sa ako nahimo presidente kaila ko na ang problema diri, ang problema sa Western Zamboanga del Norte, nga mao ang usa ka rason sa pagka kabus sa probinsya. Busa bisan dako kaayo ang gastos, ang budget gi-ingon ko sa DPWH ug sa DBM dili feasibility ang atong consideration diri, ang aton consideration ang atong laban kontra sa pagka kabus sa Zamboanga del Norte kinahanglan ang dalan sa SSS B ang Siocon-Siraway-Sibuco ug Baliguian. So karon naa na, gi-inspect nato and according to the Public Works and Highways they will try to finish this road by June of 2010.

So karon nga naa na kalsada gikan Sibuco-Siraway-Siocon-Baliguian ug diri sa bahin diri sa Tampilisan paadto sa Zamboanga Sibugay mao maadto sab sa Dipolog sa Dapitan. Ug didto naman sa Dapitan gi-upgrade nato ang Dapitan Port niadtong 2003, nihimo nato isip Roll-on/Roll-Off Port so karon ang mga produkto gikan sa distrito ni Cesar Jalosjos makaabot dili lang sa Dipolog o sa Dapitan hangtod pa sa Cebu ug sa laing-laing mga palengke. Maayo alang sa mang-uuma diri sa Western Zamboanga del Norte.

Sa aton nga Western Nautical Highway, Dapitan Port niagi sa Negros Oriental, Panay Island, Mindoro Island hangtod Batangas ma-o ang aton una nga Nautical RORO Highway ug karon tulo na ang aton nautical highway.

Dinhi sa inyong probinsya sab, bag-o ko nahimo ug Presidente, 416 nga barangay sa inyong 691 wala'y kuryente. So minority lang sa barangay naay kuryente niadtong 2001, around 200 out of 600. Karon kumpleto na nato tanang barangay naa na kuryente nakumpleto niadtong Pebrero.

Ikaduha nga focus nato, padayunon nato ang pag-promote sa importansya sa tulo ka 'E': education, economy ug environment sa aton paningkamot nga mahimo'g sustainable ug equitable angay-angay ang kauswagan.

Ikatulo, ipadayon nato ang focus sa atong kabataan. Asa ang aton mga estudyante diri? Okay, maayo. Focus kaninyo kabataan sa atong nasud isip ang atong labing maayong paglaum paingon sa mas mahayag, mas maayong Pilipinas.

Nahimo na nato ang daghang progreso sa daghang bahin, apan labaw pang daghan ang kinahanglan himuon. Tanan nga paningkamot sa aton administrasyon mao'y alang sa paghimo sa kaugmaong mas mahayag alang sa mosunod nga henerasyon nga mga Pilipino. Ang kabataan sa atong nasud mao ang atong paglaum ug inspirasyon. Tanan nga kinahanglan himuon nato mao'y magpatindog sa mas maayong kinabuhi alang sa kada bata nining atong nasod.

Samtang garbo ko sa tanang nahimo na sa atong gobyerno, ang kaayuhan sa mga nahuman na depende lang sa abilidad sa nasud sa pagpadayon sa pagdako ug pag-uswag. Giandom ko nga ang progreso nga gihimo nato dili na mowala; nga kon unsa'y nabilin nga kinahanglan pang himuon, himuon ninyo, ang mosunod nga henerasyon sa atong mga leader. Isip nasud, angay natong tutukan ang atong kaugmaon ug pun-an pa ang tanang kaayuhan nga nahimo na, ug labaw pang maningkamot sa pag-atubangan sa hagit sa mga pag-angay pagahimuon.

Kamo ang aton mga bata sa atong nasud, ang taytay sa kagahapon ug sa kaugmaon. Para kaninyo mga bata gituid nato ang mga sayop, makiglabaon kita alang sa pagpabag-o ug ganingkamot kita nga mahimo'g mas mahayag nga adlaw. Layo nga ang giabot ug atong nasud, apan layo pa ang kinahanglan abuton. Ug ang kabataan ga-represent sa mga damgo sa atong nasud. Sa mga kabataan gihalad nato ang paningkamot sa gobyerno aron mo-uswag ang Pilipinas.

Ug sa kalibutan nining ang kusog nga edukasyon kinahanglan mao gyud ang backbone sa teknolohiya. Labi na diri sa Mindanao ang importante ang teknolohiya sa agrikultura tungod kay ang Mindanao mao ang bread basket sa tibuok nasud labi na karon sa una walay inspirasyon sa produktibidad diri sa Western Zamboanga tungod kay walay kalsada so bisan daghan kaayo ang mga lobsters, daghan kaayo ang mga squids, giant squids dili man makaabot sa palengke. Apan karon makaabot na importante ang produktibidad dili lang ang bunga sa dagat, ang bunga sab sa yuta.

Busa ang teknolohiya sa agrikultura. Alang sa pagpakaon sa tibuok nasud, alang sab sa pagpagawas sa atong mang-uuma ug ilang mga pamilya sa pagka kabus. Ug ang pundasyon sa oportunidad mao ang edukasyon. Kini ang yawe sa mas maayong kinabuhi. Ga abre-abre siya sa huna-huna ug ga-abre sab ug mga pwertahan. Busa maayo ang gihimo ni Celia ug ni Cesar na ma-combine ang tulo ka eskwela ug limang campus alang sa usa ka unibersidad. Aron naay economies of scale ug ang budget imbes nga daghan kaayo ang mga administrative expenses sa kada usa ka eskwela o kada usa ka campus ma-combine sila tanan ug ang mga MOOE ug bisan ang capital mainvest sa mas maayo nga edukasyon, nga standard of edukasyon labi na sa teknolohiya diri sa Jose Rizal State University. So, congratulations!

Tungod kay sa kalibutan nining adlaw, ang kusog nga edukasyon kinahanglan ubanan sa kusog nga backbone sa teknolohiya. Ug katong backbone gyud kauban na gyud diri ang aton mga proper methods of agronomy, ang agricultural technology.

Pagpalahum sa panghuna-huna ug pag-koneksyon sa kalibutan paagi sa mga kalsada, sa mga RORO ug bisan sa telecommunications technology. Ang edukasyon ug ang teknolohiya mao ang twin pillars asa gatukod ang kaugmaon sa nasud. Busa sa akon mga ulahing bulan sa pwesto, padayon kitang dedikado sa pag-promote sa mas daghan o mas maayo nga edukasyon ug sa daghan ug mas maayo imprastraktura ug teknolohiya.

Layo na ang naabot nato nining duha apan layo pa ang kinahanglan adtoan nato. Dili kita angay magpahulay.

Busa padayon ang akong interes nga kamo, ang kabataan karon, makatindog kamo sa inyong kaugalingon, paagi sa maayo nga edukasyon gamiton ang balor sa upgraded education sa university education ug sa modernong paagi sa pagpauswag sa inyong kaugalingon ug sa pagpauswag sa atong nasud.

Kaninyong tanan, labi na sa tanang mga estudyante sa Jose Rizal State University, congratulations! Sa kauban, ang atong opisyaes ug ang atong mga university officials.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the the Mindanao Agribusiness Tour: Visit to Jose Rizal Memorial State University. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080354/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27711&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremony of the Philippine Councilors League (PCL) End-Term National Assembly 2010 Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremony of the Philippine Councilors League (PCL) End-Term National Assembly 2010

[Delivered at the Summit Hall, Cebu International Convention Center (CICC), March 11, 2010]

Thank you very much Secretary Ace Durano, our Secretary of Tourism and our Cabinet Officer for Regional Development for Central Visayas.

King kanakung cabalen, Councilor Victor Ferrer; our host, Congresswoman Neri Soon-Ruiz, our host city mayor, Mayor Cortes; all the other officials of the PCL; all the other guests including the candidates who are all here to meet all of you.

Congratulations to the PCL for this End-Term General Assembly. But I am glad that even if it's an end-term assembly you still have a theme and the theme is: "Be a Pro-Active Partner on Climate Change... Be a Leader." Congratulations to you for continuing to be relevant until your last day in office.

And indeed this is very relevant. The Philippines is ranked 9th most vulnerable country to natural disasters. Our country is a victim of climate change although it is not a culprit. We have what they call a good carbon footprint. Our carbon emissions are only 1.6 tons per capita. The world average is 6 tons per capita and the world is trying to bring it down to 3 tons per capita. But we already surpassed the target, we're only 1.6. So, we are good neighbors, good citizens of the world. And we should congratulate ourselves for that.

Yet, we are disproportionately vulnerable to the devastation of Mother Nature. This devastation is accelerated not by us. This mistreatment of the fragile environment is not by us but by human beings in other parts of the world. And yet we are a victim because of the fact that we're an archipelago of 7,000 islands, and we're located at the first stop of Pacific typhoons, and the majority of our people live in low-lying areas that are prone to climate hazards. So that is why there is much reason for us to do adaptation to climate change brought about by others, even as we take our own measures to help mitigate climate change.

Part of adaptation is our disaster preparedness measures which are all very well within the scope of your councils — ranging from early warning signals to forced evacuation. And I congratulate our Local Government Units, whom you represent, for having become very good at this — warning, evacuation and other adaptation measures. Congratulations to you!

Even national government we have a Green Philippines Agenda that consists of measures to help mitigate climate change:

First, reforestation. Why? Because when you have forests the trees absorb the carbon dioxide that we exhale, so it reduces global warming.

Second, managing solid waste and promoting clean water and clean air. Why? Solid waste produces methane which is very, very bad for climate change.

Third, clean energy. For instance, just last week we were here in Cebu and we inaugurated a Clean Coal Power Plant that emits less carbon emissions than the previous technology. But even at that the investor, the Metrobank Group, is also investing in reforestation of the area around so that whatever carbon will be emitted by the coal plant will be absorbed by the trees that they will plant to make it carbon neutral.

Our fourth area of Green Philippines is protected areas like parks and sanctuaries. For instance here in Cebu, the central mountains of Cebu have been declared as a protected area, areas like Malapascua where we went diving last week, and also areas like Olango Island where the bird watching is are protected areas, and there are many of them in your different jurisdictions.

Many of your councils have your local version of our Green Philippines Agenda. Many of you have incorporated in your local legislative agenda many measures to clean up our air, to clean up our waters, to clean up our land. Many of you have passed local ordinances on waste segregation, recycling and reducing the use of pollutants and non-biodegradable products, and other environment-friendly practices. So for those of you whose councils have passed all these measures, congratulations for your contribution against climate change!

To support the Local Government Units in the performance of your tasks, not only against climate change but all your other tasks, our administration has seen to it that your IRA shares get to you as prescribed. Maybe you might have learned to take this for granted but before my administration you didn't always get your IRA as prescribed. Even in the early years of my Presidency, when we had to scrape the bottom of the barrel for funds, not only did we make sure that you the LGUs would have your IRAs, but we also paid you what previous administrations owed you.

And when government coffers received a bonanza from our tax reforms, we passed on to you the LGUs your fair share. That is why last year the LGUs received a first-ever for all, for you, a windfall of P40 billion pesos which is 40% of the additional P100 billion pesos we were able to collect from the Value Added Tax. So, I hope you felt all that money in the treasury of your Local Government Units.

Indeed, much has been done, yet much more remains to be done.

Our Administration is devoted to smooth transition to a new government. The people come first. Our accomplishments to date must be passed on to new leaders to continue the forward march of progress. To that end, let us do everything, we will do everything to make sure the new President and his team hit the ground running when they assume office.

There is no more important legacy than to leave the nation with a free and fair election and a smooth transition to a new government. Our people deserve to have confidence that their vote counts and that our democracy works.

To protect the integrity of the vote and the election results, we encourage and welcome independent, outside election observers to verify that the elections are in fact free, fair and open and the results valid, free from any political interference. Here in Cebu there is a very credible election watchdog, the CCFREL, and that is something that we encourage all over the country both from the Philippines and from outside.

It is important to have independent verification to give the people the confidence that the election works and the transition to a new government comes in smoothly. For my self, I will be staying out of the election process. I will trust the Comelec to ensure the new voting machines work, the votes are protected and counted, and the results are delivered in a rapid manner to the satisfaction of voters.

In the meantime, we will remain totally focused on governance and advancing the key programs we have advocated since coming into office, namely: infrastructure, education, healthcare, job creation and economic stability, including adapting our country to climate change. First the typhoons and now El Niño that's part of the work that you and I have to do until our last moment in office.

This election is about hope and building a brighter future for the next generation. The next government must continue to build on the investments we have been making to move our nation forward in the areas of investment that create jobs, new vibrant sectors like climate change adaptation technology, and to invest in our people through better education and healthcare. And for the LGUs especially healthcare because health is a devolved function to the local governments.

Well, it is your end-term assembly; it's also my end-term. I think that you and I can say that we will be leaving the nation in better shape than we found it.

Much remains to be done, but we have made good progress on many fronts. Therefore I am glad to be able to join you today to open your assembly and to use this opening of your assembly to say, for all your support through the years, I sincerely thank you.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the opening ceremony of the Philippine Councilors League (PCL) End-Term National Assembly 2010. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080402/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27725&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of Compliance to Medicine is Wellness Campaign featuring the DOH generic drugs promotion mascot “Saver Generics”

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching ceremony of Compliance to Medicine is Wellness Campaign featuring the DOH generic drugs promotion mascot “Saver Generics”

[Delivered at the PSC-ABAP Boxing Gym, Rizal Memorial Stadium Complex, March 12, 2010]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat Secretary Cabral.

Maraming salamat, Chairperson Angping, Congresswoman Angping; Undersecretary Padilla; ang ating mga lider ng industriya; ang ating ‘Saver Generics,’ hindi lang yung ating mascot, kundi na rin yung mga industriya na nagpro-produce ng generics. Congratulations! sa inyong lahat.

Isang malusog at maligayang araw!

Narito tayo upang bigyan ng suporta ang programa ng DOH sa pagpalaganap ng paggamit ng generics, bilang bahagi ng ating programang mababang presyo ng gamot na madalas binibili ng madla. Itong Saver Generics, tinatawag nitong pansin ng mamamayan sa mga benepisyo ng mga gamot na generics na kasing-bisa ngunit di hamak na mas mura kaysa sa mga branded na gamot.

Mula nung taong 2001 hanggang ngayon, marami na ang tagumpay na nakamit natin sa sektor ng kalusugan lalo na kung presyo ng gamot at serbisyong pangkalusugan ang pag-uusapan. Ang Generics Drug Law ay higit dalawampung taon na ang batas na ito, ngunit sa ating administration, doon siya talagang naging popular ang generics sa ating bansa. Marami na ngayon ang mga kumpanya ng gamot na gumagawa ng generics, narito yata sila ngayon. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Kaya malayo na ang naabot ng generics industry sa ating administrasyon, kagaya ng maraming bagay na naabot ng Pilipinas mula noong January 2001. Salamat at nabura na ng panahon ang maraming alaala tungkol sa napakamagulong panahong, yung wala pang sampung taong nakaraan, nang ang bansa ay nasa dulo ng lubhang kaguluhan sa pulitika at pagkalugi sa pananalapi.

Naka-ipit ang ekonomiya sa pag-uurong. Walang namumuhunan, kunti lang ang trabahong nililikha. Ang utang ng public sector ay mas malaki pa kaysa sa ating GDP. Halos walang dolyar sa kaban.

Para sa taong-bayan, panahon ng mas kulang sa trabaho, mas mababang kita at mataas na pag-angat ng presyo. Dahil kulang ang kita ng pamahalaan, kulang ang pinuhunan upang palawakin ang kalinga sa kalusugan.

Sa nakakadismayang eksenang ito pumasok tayo. Hindi ko hinabol ang Panguluhan noong 2001; hinulog ng langit. Kaysa talikuran ang mabigat na trabaho, we rolled up our sleeves, buong loob na paikutin muli ang Pilipinas.

Nakatukoy tayo parang laser beam sa paghatid ng mga tunay na resulta para pag-ibayuhin ang buhay ng karaniwang Pilipino. Bilang ekonomista, alam ko na upang mabawi ang ilang taong pag-urong ng ekonomiya, kailangan ipairal natin ang disiplina ng kaban ng bayan, palaguin ang ekonomiya at mamuhunan sa imprastrakturang pisikal at pantao.

Mula sa simula, ang mga kilos na ito ay huhubog ng pagbalik ng pagdadala ng 36 quarters of consecutive growth, walong milyong trabaho, matatag na sitwasyon ng kaban ng bansa at dagdag ng mahigit limampung milyong katao sa kalinga sa kalusugan.

Mula sa wala pang tatlumpong milyong Pilipino, naging higit sa 80 milyon ang nabigyan ng Philhealth coverage. Sa ating populasyon na 90 milyon, ito ay matuturing nang universal coverage. Kaya congratulations sa lahat ng nagtrabaho ditto.

Pinag-ibayo natin ang higit dalawandaang Barangay Health Stations, sandaang Rural Health Units at halos dalawandaang maliliit na ospital. Pinalawak ang kakayahan nila kaya't maaari na silang magbigay ng mas maraming serbisyong pangkalusugan. Maraming Rural Health Units ngayon ay kaya nang mag-opera at magpa-anak. Noong taong 2000, 25 pa lang na Rural Health Units ang pwedeng gumawa nito. Ngayon, 1,300 na ang puwedeng gumawa nito.

Pinag-ibayo rin natin ang 34 na malalaking pampublikong ospital sa buong bansa, kaya ang mga nakatira sa malalayong probinsiya ay hindi na kailangan tumungo sa Maynila upang magpagamot sa espesyalista.

At bago pa man pumasa ang Cheaper Medicine Law nung 2008, napababa natin ang presyo ng mga gamot na madalas gamitin ng mahihirap na maysakit. Nagsimula tayo sa pagbebenta ng mga murang gamot na kalahating presyo haming sa taong 2001. Gaya ng sabi ni Undersecretary Padilla, binebenta ang mga ito sa mga Botika ng Barangay at Botika ng Bayan sa ibat-ibang lugar sa Pilipinas. At ngayon ay may mahigit 17,000 na ang bilang ng naitatag na mga Botika ng Barangay at Botika ng Bayan. Ngunit hindi na kailangan doon lang bumibili, salamat sa ating generics industry, at iba pang miyembro ng industriya, makakahanap tayo ng kalahating presyong gamot sa karaniwang mga botika. Maraming salamat sa inyo.

Nakapagsulong na tayo sa maraming larangan. Bagamat ipinagmamalaki natin ang nakamit ng ating administrasyon, ang nagawa sa nakaraan ay kasing-buti lamang ng kakayahan ng bansang tumuloy na lumago at umunlad.

Mataimtim kong inaasahan na ang progresong nagawa natin ay hindi titigil, na ang nalalabing dapat gawin ay aakuin ng susunod na henerasyon ng liderato. Bilang bansa, dapat matatag na nakatukoy tayo ang ating tanawin sa kinabukasan, to build on what is good and lalo pang magsikap upang harapin ang mga hamon ng nalalabi pang kailangan gawin.

Malalim ang ating nais na makita ang mas matinag na kinabukasan para sa masisipag na taong-bayan nitong bansa at malaki ang magagawa ng ating generic medicine at ang ating mga wellness program sa kinabubuti ng karaniwang mamamayang Pilipino.

Congratulations muli sa lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the launching ceremony of Compliance to Medicine is Wellness Campaign featuring the DOH generic drugs promotion mascot "Saver Generics". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080345/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27734&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during an Education Event: visit to Froilan D. Lopez Technical-Vocational High School

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During an Education Event: visit to Froilan D. Lopez Technical-Vocational High School

[Delivered at the Froilan D. Lopez Technical Vocational High School, Camarines Norte, March 15, 2010]

Thank you very much. Dios mabalos Undersecretary Vilma Labrador. Salamat sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Governor Typoco, Congresswoman Chatto, Mayor Alegre, Principal Estravez, ating mga kaibigan na narito, ating mga estudyante, mga guro, Dios marahay nga aga sa indo gabus.

Ako ay nagbibisita sa inyo dahil gaya nang sabi ni Mayor tinutuloy natin ang aktibong pamamahala hanggang sa huling sandali na ako ay nasa pwesto. At para sa layuning yon, ipinaiiral natin ang mga masusing inisyatibong ginagawa natin mula nang manungkulan ako, lalo na ang tatlo nating mahahalagang programa:

Una, gaya rin nang sabi ni Mayor dalhin ang karagdagang kapangyarihan at pagkakataong umunlad ang bawat rehiyon, upang hindi lamang ang Manila ang tumatamasa sa kaunlaran.

Pangalawa, ipagpatuloy ang pagpapalago ng three E's – Edukasyon, Ekonomiya at Environment – upang tuloy-tuloy at pantay-pantay ang kaunlarang makakamit.

At pangatlo, nakatutok tayo sa kabataan ng bansa bilang ating pag-asa para sa mas magandang kinabukasan ng Pilipinas.

Marami na ang nagawa nating makipagbibigay ng kaunlaran sa iba't-ibang aspeto ng pamumuhay. At subalit mas marami pa ang dapat gawin. Lahat ng pinaghihirapang gawin ng pamahalaan ay para sa ikagaganda ng kinabukasan ng susunod na henerasyon ng mga Pilipino.

Kayong mga kabataan kaya binibisita ko kayo kahit na high school pa kayo ay... ng ating bansa ang nagsisilbing pag-asa at inspirasyon natin. Lahat ng ginagawa natin ay kailangan nakatuon upang mabigyan kayo mga kabataan ng mas maginhawang buhay.

Habang ipinagmamalaki natin ang mga nagawa ng ating pamahalaan, ang karangalang ito may maituturing lang na ganap na mahusay kung may kakayahan ang bansang ipagpatuloy ang pag-unlad at paglalago. Umaasa tayo na ang pag-unlad na nagawa natin ay hindi hihinto; na aakuin ninyo, ang ating susunod na henerasyon ng mga namumuno, ang anumang pang dapat ipagpatuloy.

Bilang isang bansa kinakailangan nating tutukan ang ating kinabukasan, magpundar sa kung ano ang makabubuti, at masipag na harapin ang mga hamon pang darating.

Kayong mga kabataan ang tulay ng ating nakaraan at kinabukasan. Alang-alang sa inyo ang itinatama natin ang mali, ipinaglalaban natin ang pagbabago, at umaasa tayo sa mas maginhawang buhay.

Malayo na ang narating ng ating bansa, subalit malayo pa rin ang kailangan nitong tahakin. Kaya ako ay nagpupunta sa mga bayan gaya ng San Vicente na hindi nabibisita ng ibang mga namumuno. At kaya naman pinili ko na pagbisita dito eskwela ang pupuntahan kasi kayong mga kabataan ang kumakatawan sa mga pangarap ng ating bansa. Sa inyo natin iniaalay ang lahat nang ginagawa ng ating pamahalaan upang maiangat ang Pilipinas.

At dahilan kung bakit ako ay nagpunta sa eskwela ang edukasyon ang pundasyon ng oportunidad. Ito ang susi sa mas maginhawang buhay. Binubuksan nito ang isipan at pintuan ng pag-unlad. At sa mundo ngayon ang malakas na edukasyon ay dapat sinasamahan ng malakas na backbone ng teknolohiya.

Hubugin ang kaisipan, makipagsabayan sa daigdig. Ang edukasyon at teknolohiya ang dalawang pundasyon kung saan nakasalalay ang kinabukasan ng ating bansa. Dahil dito'y inaalay natin ang mga huling buwan ng panunungkulan sa pagtaguyod ng mas matatag at dekalidad na edukasyon at mas mabuting imprastraktura sa teknolohiya.

Kaya pagdating ko kanina hindi muna ako pumunta ng entablado hinanap ko muna yung inyong internet laboratory dahil... at nagalak ako na may internet connection kayo dahil ang internet ay ang pinakamahalagang imprastraktura sa teknolohiya sa modernong pamumuhay. Kaya congratulations! at meron kayong internet connection.

So, nag-usap kami ni Principal, apatnapu raw ang inyong computer. Mabuti yun kasi para sa akin ang importante kahit na isang computer lamang basta may internet kaya yung 40 na may internet at... kaya lang narinig ko nung ginagawa ko yung homework para sa pagbisita dito merong ilang mga nasirang computer kaya yun ang una kong tinanong kay Principal: "Principal, anong ginawa natin sa mga nasirang computer?" Sinabi naman niya may 15 na nasirang computer every so often nasisira siyempre sa... lalo na yung mga luma pero parati namang inaayos at yun ang importante rin, 'wag nating sayangin. At itong 15 na computer ang problema lang naman pala ay power supply, so yung spare parts na kailangan ay power supply. Mabibili naman daw sa mga hardware dyaan sa Daet. So within a week's time maayos itong mga labinlimang nalalabi.

So importante na binibigyan natin ng preyoridad ang pag-aalaga ng inyong computer at ang pagbabayad sa inyong bill para sa internet connection. Iyan ang pinaka teknolohiya na dapat asikasuhin ng ating mga public high school. At yun nga dapat bigyan ng preyoridad sa MOOE na parating nagagawa yuon. At para naman yung ating mga teacher ay ma-engganyo rin na sumabay sa mga bagong teknolohiya ang importante ay yung inyong pagsasanay pero importante rin ay yung inyong hanapbuhay.

So, sa ating administrasyon, tinaasan natin ang sweldo ng mga guro. Yung dating P9,000 ang tinatanggap ng Teacher I, naging mahigit P14,000 na ngayon, ganun kalaki ang naangat ninyo. At meron pang parating na pantaas sa Salary Standardization Law at yan ang sinabi ko sa DBM tiyakin niyo na may pondo tayo para sa susunod na pagtaas ng sweldo ng ating mga teachers at iba pang mga kawani ng ... na nagtatrabaho sa pamahalaan. Maging sa teachers, sa ordinary employees, sa military at sa lahat.

At para rin sa pagsasanay sa mga teachers, kasi teknolohiya ang importante, tayo ay nagpalabas ng mahigit two billion pesos para sa pagsasanay ng mga guro lalo na sa Ingles. At narinig ko na dito sa Camarines Sur meron ng 750 na guro ng Camarines Sur na nabigyan ng special training sa English, Math o kaya Science. At hindi ba Undersecretary Labrador itong summer na ito meron tayong Special English Training? Starting today, di ba?

O, kailan ba ang graduation ninyo rito? 29, okay. Okay, so April ang ating mga teacher ha yung inyong training, yung English training ninyo yun ang napaka importante. Kasi kung tayo ay makikipagsabayan sa buong mundo kailangan ibalik natin ang English bilang medium of instruction kasi yun ang lengwahe ng teknolohiya.

Malayo na ang naabot atin sa edukasyon at teknolohiya, ngunit malayo pa rin ang dapat abutin natin. Hindi dapat magpahinga. Binuo ko, binuo natin ang Presidential Task Force for Education upang suriin ang ating sistema ng edukasyon. Sa ganun meron tayong maihahandog na rekomendasyon sa susunod na henerasyon. Kung ano ang nakita ng task force na yun na ang namumuno ay si Jesuit educator Father Bienvenido Nebres para kung ano pa at ano ba ang nagawa natin para sundin ang rekomendasyon nila at ano pa ang nalalabi na rekomendasyon nila na pwede nating ma-endorse sa susunod na administrasyon.

Meantime, samantala, nawa'y kayong mga kasalukuyang kabataan, I fervently desire that you will come into your own, bigyan niyo ng halaga ang edukasyon at modernidad. Gamitin ninyo itong mga sandata para sa ikabubuti ng inyong sarili, sa ikabubuti ng bansa, at sa ikabubuti ng lalawigan ng Camarines Norte at bayan ng San Vicente.

Maraming salamat sa inyo. Dios mabalos sa indo gabus!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during an Education Event: visit to Froilan D. Lopez Technical-Vocational High School. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232210/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27735&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 28th year anniversary of the Philippine Council for Industry and Energy Research Development (PCIERD) Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 28th year anniversary of the Philippine Council for Industry and Energy Research Development (PCIERD)

[Delivered at Hyatt Hotel, March 17, 2010]

Thank you Secretary Alabastro for your kind introduction.

Thank you also Usec. Yumul for telling us about what PCIERD is doing especially with regard to climate change, and to all of you PCIERD members, staff, clients — Happy Anniversary!

I'm very glad to join your celebration for two reasons: one is sentimental the other is strategic. The sentimental reason is that I was a member of PCIERD's Council in my early years in government and I still remember how hard the PCIERD people work. So, congratulations to all of you for your hard work.

The strategic reason is to highlight your contributions to the nation's growth. Your theme: "Taking the Extra Mile in Facing Global Climatic Challenges" says it all. The extra mile is what PCIERD enables, R and D in industry and energy. And now because the world and especially the Philippines face this very difficult challenges of climate change. That is the extra mile provided by PCIERD R and D especially in adaptation. Why are we stressing adaptation? Well, as we all know there are two responses to climate change, mitigation and adaptation.

But in our case, I don't think we have to feel very guilty about what we're doing about mitigation. When I was in Copenhagen I said with the world that we have a good carbon footprint. We are a good citizen as far as mitigation is concerned. The world's average carbon emission is 6 tons per capita and the world wants to bring it down to 3. But we are already 1.6, so we're even better than what the world is trying to aim for. So our challenge is adaptation because even if we are such a good world citizen as far as climate change is concerned we are one of the most affected, we're one of the biggest victims of climate change, we're the most vulnerable. For one thing, due to the fact that we are on the western rim of the Pacific. We are in the front door of all those typhoons that come and so we owe it to ourselves to do research and development for climate change adaptation.

And when you need research you need researchers and you need research grants. In 2004, UNESCO founded the number of researchers, scientists and engineers in developing countries should be 340 per million of the population. We have much less than that. So we want to move fast forward to try to achieve that in the shortest possible time and also to face global challenges like global climatic challenges.

So, three years ago, after we got our Expanded Value Added Tax reforms we decided that over and above what is usually provided in the science and technology budget we'd invest a fresh three billion pesos from our budget and all budget sources for R and D technology. And a lot of that has gone to scholarships for R and D related disciplines. The DOST as per our records has provided scholarship slots to about 27,000 beneficiaries during our administration.

Then given about a 100,000 scholarships... I've been calling Nina Alabastro last night, "Nina, how can you have 100,000 scholarships and 27,000 beneficiaries?" It turns out when I asked my staff, we've opened more than a 100,000 scholarship slots for natural sciences and mathematics. But how come we are talking about 27,000 beneficiaries. It turns out that some of the scholarships are not given for four years or two years for the whole course, they give out every year, so one person will be getting it four times, one person like getting it two times, so it's 100,000 scholarships for 27,000 beneficiaries.

But anyway, the important thing is of this number 1,900 are masteral and doctoral students in various fields of science and math, and 155 of them are from PCIERD. So, congratulations to all of you 155!

We have also invested — Nina, this is on top of the three billion, right? — One billion pesos for the University of the Philippines in Diliman so it can build its own P1.6 Science and Technology complex. So that would already be almost 5 billion pesos over and above the usual budget for research and development. I don't know if any other administration will do the same thing after me. They haven't done it before, I don't know if they'll do it after. I hope they do.

All of this is to promote Engineering R and D activities in the country at a significant scale in order to modernize every aspect of the economic underpinnings of the Philippines to propel growth, including in your case industry and energy. Also in your case climate change adaptation because climate change cut across different areas of the research and development so you do have your own industry and energy component for climate change adaptation and even mitigation.

I saw in the exhibit earlier some of the projects you have been doing for climate change mitigation and especially adaptation, so I congratulate you for that! Because we have to modernize as well as protect ourselves from climate change, both protecting ourselves and modernizing, both need a critical mass of research and development capable manpower. And because we're talking industry here we need to work on a manpower that will attract technology-base investors to the country.

Yesterday, I met the international chairman of NIDEC, an electronics company that has been in the Philippines for the last 13 years but decided yesterday that he would put in a fresh 300 million-dollar investment in our country. And he said he's willing to go all the way up to one billion dollars, but he said his problem is that he doesn't have enough engineers. He has three plants in Laguna. Okay, good supply of engineers. He has one plant in Subic, he's complaining about that, he can't find enough engineers there. And he has put up a fifth plant, that's 300 million dollars, again, in Laguna.

So he said, I want to expand some more but I can't find enough engineers. So, Lilia de Lima, the head of the PEZA said, "No, we'll help you find." And we told him about this program. See, the last time he was here was two years ago and he said, "Wow! what a big change in infrastructure you have. It takes half the time now to travel to my plant compared to when I was here two years ago." Well, we told him what has happened in the physical infrastructure is also happening in the human infrastructure. These lacks of engineers you're talking about we're curing that. We're spending all this billions on scholarships for science and engineering, and not only that a lot of scholarships are of masters and doctorate. So, that is the type he said of engineers that I would like to have and scientists because right now, I do the electronics here but I do the R and D in Japan. So if you have that then I will do the R and D in the Philippines as well. And that is one of the fruits of the works of PCIERD. So I'd like to congratulate you for that!

Because PCIERD is key to the creation of a favorable environment for science and technology to flourish — we can do it. With PCIERD we can have the knowledge to build the basic industries that engage in high-value added activities not only climate change adaptation but design R and D, product conceptualization, product development, innovation.

Investors know our caliber. Our manpower is world class. At the forefront are our engineers and they think we don't have enough of them but we are providing for more. All of these knowledge workers are the engines for national growth. They help spawn high-tech companies. With engineering R and D facilitated by PCIERD, we can further hone their skills and create our own technology roadmaps that will bring S and T right at the doorstep of the Filipino nation. And who is the one in-charge of creating that roadmap that R and D for industry and energy — no other than PCIERD. That is how important you are to our nation.

So, I take this opportunity to thank PCIERD and to Secretary Alabastro for all those things that you have done as exhibited outside especially one of the things I mentioned in my State of the Nation Address two times already I think for having patiently pushed for the installation of the additional Doppler radars that have boosted the weather-forecasting capabilities of PAGASA. No one can tell how many lives will be saved by the early warning derived from these instruments. This is really a very important climate change adaptation tool. And I was asking Nina, what is the role of PCIERD in our Doppler radars? She said it was the PCIERD who packaged the proposal to make that a reality.

We have now — thanks to you and your proposal — a total of ten weather radars now, five of which will be fully operational within the next two years.

Industry and Energy. Energy. During the Energy Summit two years ago, I also directed PCIERD to focus on energy. And I'm glad to see again outside that your researches have been a lot on energy. You have research in wind turbine generation, compressed natural gas. You have research that has proven to be commercially viable. For instance, the wind farm in Ilocos Norte is providing electricity to the whole town of Bangui and the CNG-operated buses have been given franchises to ply the Southern Luzon route.

Indeed, PCIERD is expected to meet a number of global challenges in the coming years especially global climatic challenges. I have an unshakeable faith in science and technology as the main driver of modern-day growth. And now as the main protector against the onslaughts of climatic changes.

As early as my first days in the Presidency, in fact in my first State of the Nation Address, I declared technology as the foundation of future economic development. How frustrated I was all these years, I couldn't put money, more money than we had for R and D. Finally after VAT, we were able to do it in 2007.

Indeed, there is a need to promote R and D activities so as to modernize our lives, so as to modernize industries and energy, and so as to modernize our capability to protect ourselves from destructive climatic changes.

We followed the pronouncement about technology being the foundation of development in our Medium-Term Plan. We put a four-pronged approach in our Medium-Term Plan:

First, enhancing the competitiveness of our human capital; which we finally we're able to put in billions for R and D related science courses.

Second, developing a critical mass of scientists and R and D personnel, and that's what we're spending this billions on.

Third, speeding up knowledge creation and dissemination to push productivity; that's PCIERD doing that work.

Fourth, improving mechanisms that promote technology-based entrepreneurship which is why I put TRC under the supervision and control of the DOST so that they will fund or they will give technology transfer not to sardine-making but to something more technology-based.

We are laying the foundation also for a sound education with a strong technology backbone to serve future generations. 'Cause if we want more scientists and researchers, well, we need to make the children, the young people more at home with science and math. So that's why the basic education level, we strengthened Science, Math and English teaching by increasing contact hours for these subjects and we need 50% more than we had for. Also by retraining and upgrading at least 100,000 teachers in these subjects, and especially in English which is the language of science and technology. And in today's world so much research is done on line and besides you have to be internet savvy if you want to be a techie technology savvy.

So, we have installed more than 5,000 of the country's 6,000 public high schools with internet connectivity. I hope that with this preparation we're doing on human capital and physical technological capital, PCIERD will have many, many more opportunities to provide. The important research for industry and environment and energy — environment because of the climate change — I hope that there'll be a lot of work that PCIERD can do and a lot of resources that you can continue to access so that you can do the work you have been doing so well in a much, much grander scale than we were able to do in the past.

So once again, to my fellow lovers of science and technology from PCIERD, thank you for all your support for our technology programs. And Happy 28th Anniversary!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 28th year anniversary of the Philippine Council for Industry and Energy Research Development (PCIERD). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100505232157/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27740&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the opening ceremonies of the Special Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) Ministerial Meeting on Interfaith Dialogue and Cooperation for Peace and Development

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the opening ceremonies of the Special Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) Ministerial Meeting on Interfaith Dialogue and Cooperation for Peace and Development

[Delivered at the PICC, March 17, 2010]

Thank you Secretary Romulo, Chairman of this Special Non-Aligned Movement Meeting on Interfaith Dialogue and Cooperation.

President Treki, welcome to the Philippines! When my godfather and uncle of Secretary Romulo, General Carlos Romulo, became the first president from Asia of the General Assembly he said, I am the President of the World. So, we welcome the President of the World to the Philippines today!

Minister Zakzouk, Minister of Religious Affairs of Egypt, Republic of Egypt and who is the chair of the Non-Aligned Movement, thank you for agreeing to have this conference, very important conference and very important conference for us, thank you for agreeing to have it here in the Philippines. We're grateful for that.

Dr. Vendley, thank you also for the cooperation of all of those who have been working hard for interfaith dialogue. Thank you for being here with us as well today.

Excellencies, Distinguished delegates, ladies and gentlemen: To all of you as well, welcome to the Philippines!

For more than 50 years, the Non-Aligned Movement has been one of the most respected platforms for dialogue amongst the developing countries in the world. The Non-Aligned Movement is made up of 118 member countries, the largest outside the United Nations Organization itself. This organization, the NAM, prides itself as the intergovernmental grouping committed to promote and protect the principles of respect for cultural and religious diversity, tolerance, understanding and dialogue. So it is but fitting that the NAM should sponsor an Interfaith Dialogue at the Ministerial Level for peace and development.

We recognize that ours is a diverse world, that is part of the principles of the NAM, and we recognize though that we are bound together by our common desire for peace and development.

We in the Philippines are honored that our Special Non-Aligned Movement Ministerial Meeting on Interfaith Dialogue and Cooperation for Peace and Development, is being held in the Philippines and being chaired by our Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Secretary Romulo. We are proud to have this here because this is a country that bears living witness to the importance of intercultural and interfaith tolerance, understanding, respect and dialogue for peace and development.

We in the Philippines consider our intercultural and interfaith dialogue policy framework as an enduring basis for a coming together of the country's different cultures and faiths within a shared environment of peace, security and development based on mutual understanding, trust and respect. Interfaith dialogue is not a theory for us. For a long time now, it has been a reality among our diverse people and beliefs.

Philippine society is a multi-ethnic one. Our policy framework calls for Philippine society to be founded on social justice for all and the institutionalized accommodation of ethnic traditions. Muslim and Christian, Chinese and Spanish mestizo, Tagalog and Cebuano, these are but a few of names to which the Filipino responds in a wondrous testimony to our rich and varied heritage as a nation.

In the Philippines I say that interfaith dialogue has been a reality for a long time, not just theory. Because for a long time now, for instance, the Bishops-Ulama Conference brings Catholic and Christian Bishops and the members of the Mindanao Ulama League in constant dialogue and a common search for comprehensive development through the unifying aspiration for peace.

The promotion of intercultural and interfaith dialogue and cooperation, rooted in tolerance, mutual understanding, trust and respect, is also a primary strategy to achieve peace as well as a key element in the country's peace process and this is embodied in our country's Medium-Term Development Plan.

Thus, interfaith dialogue is officially and in reality a major contributor to peace and stability in Mindanao.

While lasting peace has yet to be achieved, we have taken heavy political risks to broker a peace in Mindanao. We have reached within the affected communities to change the peace paradigm, to change it into a combination of soft and hard power, not just a military solution but a solution of dialogue, a solution of community development, a solution of talking peace.

Through our steady promotion of interfaith dialogue and respect for the diverse cultures, traditions and practices of the peoples of Mindanao, we have been able to build in Mindanao roads that opened up remote areas into the mainstream of economic activities. We have been able to construct irrigation systems in farmlands that used to be impenetrable to construction companies because of conflict.

And in all these community development, dialogue, peace talks, we have brought together an international consensus to aid the process from the outside. Japan, Australia, the U.S., England, the OIC nations, Malaysia, so many others, Libya have a vested interest now in peace in Mindanao.

In the United Nations, the Philippines and Pakistan, with the full support of the NAM member countries, have been actively pursuing the promotion of interfaith and intercultural dialogue, understanding and cooperation for peace since 2004.

The United Nations General Assembly, we are happy, has adopted by consensus our annual resolution on the promotion of inter-religious and intercultural dialogue, understanding and cooperation for peace. This is further proof that we are all united by our common humanity and our common quest for peace and prosperity.

The Philippines is also honored that during the 60th Anniversary of the United Nations when the leaders of almost all the nations gathered together for a few days to conduct a series of summit meetings, one of the summit meetings was on interfaith dialogue, attended by the heads of government and heads of states of countries from all over the UN member nations. And that was chaired by the Philippines, so we see this chairing of the Philippines as a natural consequence and a natural follow-up of that interfaith dialogue conference, that summit conference that we held in the United Nations itself during its 60th Anniversary.

Interfaith dialogue is a foundation that creates an improved awareness and understanding of our common values. With that improved awareness, the next step is real cooperation.

And that is our expectation of that Draft Manila Declaration that you will adopt, that it will contain an action plan of practical, action-oriented policies culled from numerous local, regional and multilateral interfaith and intercultural dialogues.

Interfaith practical actions can focus on education, youth empowerment and development and media to combat stereotypes and misperceptions.

For after all as we have heard our different speakers say, all great religions advocate love; all great religions hold life to be sacred; all great religions profess peace and promote understanding.

Our challenge in promoting interfaith dialogue and cooperation is to redeem that true meaning of our respective faiths, so that we can bring lasting peace and prosperity to the world.

To all of you, Mabuhay! And once again, welcome to the Philippines!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the opening ceremonies of the Special Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) Ministerial Meeting on Interfaith Dialogue and Cooperation for Peace and Development. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080304/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27741&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the signing of the Memorandum of Agreement on “Forging Alliances with the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) for Nutrition and Hunger-Mitigation” and new town visit

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the signing of the Memorandum of Agreement on “Forging Alliances with the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) for Nutrition and Hunger-Mitigation” and new town visit

[Delivered at the Multi-purpose Gymnasium, Lanao Agricultural College (LAC), March 18, 2010]

Magandang tanghali sa inyong lahat.

Congratulations dito sa pagpirma natin ng kasunduan sa pamamagitan ng National Nutrition Council at ang DOH ng ARMM. Baka gusto niyong malaman kung anong laman nitong agreement na ito para malaman natin kung ano ang aasahan natin.

So, yung first part, di ba ang NNC; yung second party, ang DOH ng ARMM. At ano ang nilalaman nito? Ang DOH ng ARMM ay magtatayo ng National Nutrition Council ng ARMM. At ang DOH ng ARMM ang magpapatupad ng mga proyekto, gawain, paglilingkod tungkol sa promote good nutrition. In other words, kung ano yung ginagawa ng National Nutrition Council sa ating bansa, yun din ang gagawin ng Regional Nutrition Council. At tutulungan ng National Nutrition Council ang ARMM Nutrition Council. Yung pondo na itutulong ay ilalagay ng National Nutrition Council sa Development Bank of the Philippines Cotabato Branch, bukod yun, separate account yun, para parang isang department. At itong pondong ito ay gagamitin para nga doon sa mga gawain tungkol sa nutrition education. At ito ang pinakalaman na tungkulin ng ating DOH-ARMM.

Yung National Nutrition Council naman, ano ang kanyang tungkulin? Ang National Nutrition Council ay tutulong sa ARMM Nutrition Council. Tama ba itong amount, Bernie? Sa pamamagitan ng P28 million pesos. Ito ay initial funding at ito ay para nga sa iba’t-ibang mga gawain kagaya ng pag-training ng mga trainers sa infant and child feeding at pagbasa ng nutrisyon para sa iba’t-ibang provincial center. So, tuturuan yung mga magtuturo rin kung ano ang dapat kinakain ng ating mga mamamayan para bumaba ang ating gutom. At magkakaroon ng mga siyempre, itong nutrition program na ito, ang mangyayari diyan, ang magpapakabo ay yung iba’t-ibang mga siyudad at saka mga munisipyo. Yun ang unang gagawin, yun ang unang activity at itong halagang ito sa unang activity ay halos P2 million pesos — yung training program ng mga trainers, doon tayo magsisimula.

Pagkatapos nuon, iti-train naman yung mga mag-i-implement ng nutrition program doon sa mga siyudad, doon sa mga munisipyo at doon sa mga barangay nutrition scholars. Pagkatapos nuon, magkakaroon ng training sa good nutrition para sa barangay. At pagkatapos nuon naman, yun na nga, tuloy-tuloy na ang training sa barangay level.

So ito ang gagawin kaya tayo ay nagpapasalamat na sa wakas ang DOH ng ARMM ay magtatayo ng Regional Nutrition Council at ang National Nutrition Council naman ay tutulong sa Regional Nutrition Council. So, magtulungan tayo lahat. Pero gusto kong ipahayag though ito’y isang bahagi lang ng ating Anti-Hunger Mitigation program.

Maraming dahilan kung bakit nagugutom ang tao. Maraming dahilan kung bakit nagugutom ang tao, halimbawa, sa Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao. Ang isa nga, dahil baka nasasayang yung ginagastos sa mga bagay na hindi naman nakakatama sa nutrisyon. Halimbawa, gagastos kayo ng canned milk or bottled milk, cow’s milk para sa inyong mga sanggol. Eh dapat naman mag-breastfeeding for at least six months. So, malaki ang maibabawas yun sa gastos at malaki ang maidadagdag sa nutrisyon, bahagi yun sa mga training.

Isa pang napakaimportanteng dahilan kung bakit may siguro nagugutom ang taong-bayan dito sa Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao ay baka dahil sa mga presyo ng bilihin. Kaya nandito ang ating bagong Secretary of Trade and Industry, si Secretary Jing Lapus, dahil yung presyo ng bilingin ay kailangan tignan niya. Alam ba niyo si Secretary Lapus nagbuena mano, nung first day ng kanyang pagtrabaho bilang Secretary of Trade of Industry, nakapasok siya agad ng $300 million dollars na investment. Sana buena mano rin yung kanyang unang pagbisita dito sa Mindanao upang harapin ang mga problema ng mataas na presyo ng bilingin dahil yun ang isang pinanggagalingan ng gutom. Although, tinatanong ko kanina kay Governor, “kumusta ang mga presyo dito?” Okey naman daw. Pero yun ang isang iva-validate ni Secretary Lapus lalo na bigas, napaka-importante ang bigas, presyo ng bigas. Pag mataas ang presyo ng bigas, nagugutom ang tao, pag mababa ang presyo ng bigas, bumabawas ang gutom.

So yun ang dalawang pakay natin sa pagbisita dito ngayon sa Mindanao. Yung isa, itatayo ang Regional Nutrition Council ng ARMM at yung pangalawa, itse-check natin ang mga presyo ng bilingin hindi lamang dito sa Autonomous Region of Mindanao pati na rin doon sa Western Mindanao kaya bagamat wala siya sa ARMM, nandito rin si Governor Aurora Cerilles ng Zamboanga del Sur dahil pagkatapos nito, titignan natin yung mga presyo ng bilingin doon sa bandang Zamboanga.

Kaya sa inyong lahat, magtulungan tayo, labanan natin ang kahirapan, labanan natin ang kagutuman.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo’s speech during the signing of the Memorandum of Agreement on “Forging Alliances with the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) for Nutrition and Hunger-Mitigation” and new town visit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080233/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27755&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during an Education Event: Visit to Ramon Magsaysay National High School / JH Cerilles State College (New Town Visit)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Duringan Education Event: Visit to Ramon Magsaysay National High School / JH Cerilles State College (New Town Visit)

[Delivered at the Ramon Magsaysay National High School Campus, Zamboanga del Sur, March 18, 2010]

Daghan salamat Secretary Dureza sa imong pagpaila.

Daghan salamat Governor Cerilles sa imong maayong pag welcome kanamo, Congressman Vic Yu, Congressman Cerilles, Mayor Bulahan ug tanang mga opisyal sa Ramon Magsaysay, ang aton principal diri Mr. Logdonio, ang aton nga academic head sa Cerilles State College, Dr. Valeria — asan si Dr. Valeria? Wala diri kay ang kining eskwela diay sa buntag high school, sa gabii college — kaninyong tanan mga kaigsoonan, maayong hapon, maayong ugto, hapon, hapon, maayong hapon kaninyong tanan.

Nalipay ko makabisita kaninyo ang eskwela nga high school sa buntag ug college sa gabii. Sa buntag Ramon Magsaysay National High School, sa gabii JH Cerilles State College nga ginpangalan sa inahan ni Congressman Tony Cerilles. Nalipay ko sab na mahibaw-an nga 22 na sa inyo mga lungsod naa na ug extension sa JH Cerilles State College kay murag ingon ni Congressman Cerilles ang mga kabus nga sa una kinahanglan pa magawas sa lungsod karon dili na kinahanglan, makatrabaho na sa pang-uuma sa buntag, makasulod sa eskwela sa gabii.

So, hibaw ko sab nga sukad sa pag-abre ining inyong campus niadtong 2006, dunay 100 plus nga batan-on ang nakahuman ug mga kurso diri ug maayo ang ilang performance sa mga board exams, congratulations!

Ang pagbisita sa mga probinsiya sama sa Zamboanga del Sur usa sa labing importanteng trabaho sa akon panguluhan. Pagpadayon kita sa aktibo nga pagtrabaho hangtod sa ulahing adlaw sa atong termino. Alang nana, gi-promote nato ang mga dagkong inisyatiba nga gipasulong sa aton administrasyon sukad nilingkod kita sa pagpamuno. Tulo ka bahin ang aton ginpalabi:

Usa, paghatag sa matag rehiyon ug mas dakong gahom ug pag-uswag dili lang sa Manila.

Duha, pagpadayon sa pag-promote sa importansya sa atong three E's: Edukasyon, Ekonomiya ug Environment — sa aton mga paningkamot sa pagkab-ot sa malungtaron ug angay-angay nga kauswagan.

Tulo, padayon nga focus sa kabataan sa nasud isip atong labing pagla-um alang sa mas mahayag ug mas maayong Pilipinas.

We have made progress in many areas. Governor Cerilles, Congressman Yu and Mayor Bulahan has told us some of those. Ug sa tibuok nasud in the past twelve months, I'm happy that we were able to create a record 1.7 million jobs even in the middle of a global economic crisis. And that brings now to about nine million jobs created during my administration.

Ug gikwento nga ni Governor Cerilles ang mga laing-laing proyekto naton nga priority diri sa Zamboanga, ang Pagadian Airport, ug tinuod ba Au nga naa mga commercial flights, naa na? Next month, congratulations! So next month moanhi na ang mga commercial flights.

Ug nahuman na sab karon ang pagpa-ayo sa gitawag nilang 'longest road,' ang Pagadian-Zamboanga City Road. Longest road kay longest to construct murag sukad pa sa panahon ni Marcos gi-construct na gina-construct na, ang aton administrasyon ang nakahuman nining kalsada.

Ang suma tatal gyud sa mga dalan nga gipatukod nato sa Region IX maabot sa 1,295 ka kilometro. Dako ug gitabang kining mga kalsada alang sa mga mang-uuma, aron madal-on ang mga produkto sa bukid nga adto sa mga sentro sama sa Pagadian ug bisan pa tingali sa gawas sa Region IX. Dako sab ang tabang sa mga negosyante, aron dili kaayo motaas ang mga presyo. Kasi isa doon sa gusto nating mangyari dapat ang presyo ng pagkain ay kayang-kaya ng pamilya. At importante na ang transportasyon, ang logistics alang nining atong tuyo.

Kaya today I have with me our new Trade and Industry Secretary, Secretary Jing Lapus; used to be Secretary of Education, so this used to be his jurisdiction. Now, his jurisdiction will be our next stop, the public market, because we'll look at how the prices are here in Zamboanga del Sur.

Indeed, more needs to be done. Everything our administration has worked hard to achieve has been to make the future brighter for you, the next generation of Filipinos. Ang kabataan sa atong nasud ma-o ang atong paglaum ug inspirasyon. Ang tanang kinahanglan himuon nato kinahanglan alang sa pagtukod ug mas maayong kinabuhi para sa matag batan-on sa atong nasud.

Samtang gikagarbo nato ang mga nahimo na sa atong gobyerno, ang nahimo sa kagahapon epektibo lamang sama sa abilidad sa nasud nga padayon molambo ug mo-uswag. Unta ang progreso nga gihimo nato dili mohunong; nga ang mabilin pa nga angay buhaton himuon sa mosunod nga henerasyon sa liderato, kamo gyud kanang masunod nga henerasyon. Isip nasud, angay natong tutukan ang atong kaugmaon, pun-an ang kaayuhan ug labaw pang maningkamot aron matubangan ang hagit sa kon unsa pay nabilin himuon.

Ang kabataan sa nasud maoy tulay sa kagahapon ug sa umaabot nga panahon. Alang kaninyo ang gitul-id nato ang mga sayop, gitindugan nato ang pagbag-o, ug naningkamot kitag himuon ang mas maayo nga adlaw.

Layo na ang na-abot sa atong nasud, sama sa mga kalsada layo na ang inyong maabot tungod sa aton mga gwapo karon nga kalsada. Apan layo pa ang angay niyang adtu-an. Kamo ang kabataan garepresentar sa mga aspirasyon sa atong nasud. Kaninyo gihalad nato ang mga paningkamot to lift up the Philippines.

Ang edukasyon ma-oy pundasyon sa oportunidad. Ma-o ang yawe sa mas maayong kinabuhi. Abrehan niya ang panghuna-huna ug abrehan niya ang mga pwerta. So maswerte gyud kamo nga daghan kaayo nga mga lungsod ninyo na anay extension sa state college campus. Maswerte sab ang katawhan sa Zamboanga del Sur kay nahibaw-an ko kumpara sa ubang probinsiya, mas daghan kamo ug mga eskwela dinhi sa Zamboanga del Sur. Congratulations!

Ug sa karong adlaw, sa karong kalibutan ang kusog nga edukasyon kinahanglan kauban ang usa ka kusgan nga pundasyon sa teknolohiya. To build the mind and connect to the world. Education and technology are the twin pillars upon which... (there must be a micro... siguro naay radyo nagakonekta sa usa ka microphone. Sirado na? Okay.) Busa sa mga ulahing bulan sa aton pagpamuno, padayon gihapon kita sa paghandos sa mga buluhaton alang sa mas maayo ug mas lig-on nga edukasyon ug imprastraktura sa teknolohiya. Usa unya gusto ko mahibaw kung kamo na-a na kamo internet connection diri sa inyo nga eskwela? Na-a na, congratulations! Congratulations, Principal! Kay ma-o gyud ang labing importante nga imprastraktura sa teknolohiya. So, I'd like to congratulate also si former Education Secretary Jing Lapus because he left the DepEd with 5,500 high schools now with internet connection.

Layo na gyud ang atong na-abot. Sukad sa 2001, nakapaghatag ug scholarships sa Region IX kapin sa 6,500 ka estudyante sa college ug sa graduate school. Dinhi sa Zamboanga del Sur, 5,000 ang nakabenepisyo sa lain-laing technical ug vocational scholarships, ug apil niini ang 551 sa Ladderized Education.

Unsa kining ladderized education? Tingali masulod kamo sa agri tech six months, one year, two years ug balik sa pang-uuma. O like what you do here sa gabi-i mo-aral, sa ugma matrabaho, sa buntag matrabaho ug kung gusto ninyo sa mahuman ang inyong certificate modayon sa college, Bureau of Agricultural Science, ang inyong learning sa agri-tech magamit isip credits o units alang sa inyong college degree. Ma-o ang ladderized education.

Ug nalipay ako nga kining Ramon Magsaysay branch sa JHC State College gatanyag dili lang na na-a kamo ug internet connection ang card gakanyang diploma courses sa edukasyon, ug duna pa'y kamong technical certificate courses sama gyud sa agri tech, automotive tech ug computer tech. Kay importante gyud kanang mga kurso because they represent technology. Congratulations to our academichead!

Apan murag ingon ko kanina layo pa ang angay naton adtu-an. Dili pa angay magpahuway. Unta kamo, ang kabataan sa karong adlaw, gamiton ninyo, value, value your education, value modernity, gamiton kining mga instrumento aron palambo ang inyong kinabuhi ug ang atong nasud ug ang inyong gwapo kaayo nga probinsya nga Zamboanga.

Ang akong lolo, si Juan Macaraeg, sa gamay pa ang akong inahan, she was only in primary school, ni trabaho siya diri sa Zamboanga isip manager sa Sta. Clara Lumber ug kanunay ni-anhi siya sa nahimo'g later on Zamboanga del Sur sa Margosatubig — lain-laing pantalan diay sa Margosatubig — busa ang Zamboanga Peninsula duol sa kasing-kasing sa akong pamilya.

Ug gusto ko ipaabot sab kay mahuman na ang akong national politics, ang akong pagpasalamat kan Au ug kan Tony kay sukad sa akong una nga pagkandidato niadtong 1992, '95, '98, 2004 ug ang akong mga senador sa 2001 ug 2007 nga sa una, labi na bag-o nahimo'g presidente dili naman kami... we ____ sa mismong partido apan kanunay ang ilang suporta tuwa kanako.

So, salamat Au, salamat Tony. Salamat kaninyong tanan, aton mga igsuonan, unta gyud kining atong nga nihimo makauban kita mahimo gyud usa ka pa-agi sa labi pang kauswagan sa Zamboanga del Sur.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during an Education Event: Visit to Ramon Magsaysay National High School / JH Cerilles State College (New Town Visit). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080240/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27754&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 113th Founding Anniversary of the Philippine Army

Speech of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the 113th Founding Anniversary of the Philippine Army

[Delivered at the Philippine Army Grandstand, March 22, 2010]

Thank you Secretary Gonzales for your introduction.

Give ‘Tikas pahinga.’”

General Bangit, Lt. Gen. Mapagu, Vice Admiral Marayag, other officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, members of the Diplomatic Corps, men and women of the Philippine Army, ladies and gentlemen:

Maligayang Anibersaryo sa Philippine Army!

The Presidency and the Philippine Army were born on the same day one hundred thirteen years ago, when Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo was elected President of our First Republic at the Tejeros Convention and Gen. Artemio Ricarte was elected Captain General of the Filipino Revolutionary Army. Since then the fortunes of the Presidency and the Army became inseparably interlocked. And so today, I congratulate our awardees of this year for your outstanding service to the Army and to the Filipino people. I also congratulate the Army for the last nine years of hard but very fruitful work.

Nine years ago, we inherited a culture of lawlessness and kidnapping. Through sheer energy and focus, we worked to end kidnapping as a major problem. Similarly, in the lawless provinces of the South, we have brought peace and stability through a combination of strict military hard power and the effective use of soft development tools, namely: the building of roads, bridges, schools and ports.

While lasting peace has yet to be achieved, the ceasefire with the MILF declared in 2003 is holding. I have taken heavy political risks to broker a peace. We have reached within the affected communities to change the peace paradigm. And we have brought together an amazing international consensus to aid the process from the outside. Japan, Australia, the U.S., England, the OIC nations, Malaysia and so many others now have a vested interest in peace in Mindanao.

You our soldiers, our great Filipino soldier, you have led the way in the fight against terrorism, boosting our intelligence gathering and sharing with key allies, while lifting up the professionalism and training of our own men and women. When I became President in 2001, one of the first things I did, indeed, to boost your professionalism and effectiveness is to lobby with Congress to increase the basic pay of our soldiers so that the ordinary soldier’s basic pay would be equal to that of a teacher. Since then, our uniformed personnel have had five salary increases, and this year’s basic pay is now almost double what it was in 2001.

For instance, a private used to receive P5,500 in year 2001; today, he receives P10,808 and in the middle of this year he will receive P12,149. A private first class used to receive a basic pay of P5,830 in 2001; today it is P11,513 and it will soon be P12,993 pesos. Due to the Salary Standardization Law which we worked for, our soldiers can look forward to yearly increases starting this year until 2012. You know, for the salary standardization law, the increases cost the government P4 billion pesos a month. I have heard from our ordinary soldiers if there is a way to increase or to frontload the increases before July 2010. I have asked the DBM to help us find the means so that you can receive it somewhat earlier. Let us cross our fingers that the DBM will find a solution.

We have also ensured that other benefits would be given: we have doubled the benefits for soldiers killed or wounded in action; more scholarships for soldiers' children; wide tracts of housing projects for the AFP; more amenities for the men and women in the field; more force protection as we have seen in some of the examples given in the table down here; and more modern equipment, the latest of which is the night fighting equipment to make you even more effective. But I am glad that this morning, as part of our celebration, we had the review of some of the things we did to modernize our Philippine Army and I hope that they have helped you. I'm sure they have helped you because you become more effective, more professional and have achieved more victories during our last nine years together. Congratulations!

As a result of your increased professionalism, your increased effectiveness, we have narrowed the lair of hardcore terrorists in the South and continued to confine and limit the communist insurgency which is sputtering on empty fumes. The people are safer than ever. I thank all of you, men and women of the Philippine Army, for everything you have accomplished for this nation. Indeed, the Army has achieved much and is expected to do even more.

For the coming elections, you have been duly deputized to assist the COMELEC. We all know it is the COMELEC's job to ensure the new voting machines work, the votes are protected and counted, and the results are delivered in a manner to the satisfaction of voters. You are deputized to help the COMELEC, but for myself, I will be staying out of that process. I will remain focused on governance and advancing the key programs we have advocated since coming to office, namely: infrastructure for which the Army has helped me much to do, education, healthcare, job creation and economic stability. And of course, advancing our national security and the smooth operations of our men and women in the armed services who serve our nation with professionalism and distinction.

You our soldiers put your lives on the line for us everyday to protect our freedom and way of life. And with your protection, we have made considerable progress since we came to office. While nothing is ever completely achieved, we will turn over our nation having achieved a number of rock-solid accomplishments. Most notably, we have made major progress improving our national infrastructure with more roads, an expanded commuter rail system, bridges and ports. We have made major gains in education, building more classrooms, installing Internet access, improving teacher salaries to which the soldier's salaries is pegged, and more scholarships.

We have made major gains multiplying access to Philhealth, electrifying barangays, increasing tax collections, creating new markets with foreign countries, and improving relations with other nations including and especially security relations.

Our 36 quarters of consecutive growth have been unprecedented. And we have created in the midst of a global economic crisis 1.7 million jobs in this past year. We maintained our positive growth even during the global recession that started almost two years ago.

Now, our administration is devoted to ensure a smooth transition to a new government. Our accomplishments and progress to date must be passed on to new leaders to continue the forward march of progress. As I reflect over the past nine years, I can truly say that in the best of times and in the worst of times, the Army has given my administration tremendous support while it continued to protect the nation. And so, I end this celebration by thanking you for your sincere and excellent service to our Filipino people and by giving you a fond and snappy salute.

Maraming salamat. Congratulations sa Philippine Army!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 113th Founding Anniversary of the Philippine Army. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080218/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27760&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the Pangulong Gloria Scholarship Graduation Exercises from the Institute of Creative Computer Technology (ICCT) Colleges

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Pangulong Gloria Scholarship Graduation Exercises from the Institute of Creative Computer Technology (ICCT) Colleges

[Delivered at the Ynares Center, Antipolo City, Rizal March 22, 2010]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat Director General Guiao sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Congratulations! din kay Dr. William Co at yung ibang mga officials ng ICCT Colleges at nakikiramay ho ang lahat sa nawala na sa atin piling, si Dr. Consuelo Co, ang pangulo ng ICCT Colleges.

Governor Jun Ynares, maraming salamat sa iyong pagkuwento tungkol sa aking ama, President Diosdado Macapagal, na siya ang isang malaking katunayan na ang edukasyon ang susi ng oportunidad at ang kailangan lang ng maraming mahihirap ay may tutulong na scholarship para makuha nila itong susi ng oportunidad. Congratulations! sa iyo rin at sa lahat ng mga taga-Rizal na kinakatawan ninyo.

Ating mga batch 2010 na scholars ng ICCT, congratulations!

Binabati ko ang lahat ng mga kasamahan ni Dr. Co, mga opsiyal, mga kawani, mga guro sa sigasig at dedikasyon upang maturuan ang mga graduate natin.

At salamat din sa mga magulang at iba pang mahal sa buhay ng ating mga graduates na tumulong para maka-abot kayo dito kung saan pwede kayo makatanggap ng scholarship at makapagtapos ng importanteng kursong makapagbibigay ng trabaho.

Nag-uusap kami ni Chairman Co kanina tungkol sa inyong eskwelahan. Fifteen thousand ang kanilang estudyante sa regular na kurso, ngunit sa pamamagitan ng ating scholarship program sa technical and vocational education nadagdagan ng limang-libo, kaya limang-libo ang naka-graduate natin ngayon.

At sa laki ng eskwelahan ni Dr. Co, hiniwalay yung mga regular na mag-graduate doon sa may scholarship ng VocTech — kayo na nga yun — kaya congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Itong pagbibigay ng scholarship sa vocational at technical education ay bahagi ng hands-on governance na tinutuloy natin hanggang sa huling sandali ng aking pamumuno. Para diyan, pinapairal natin ang mga masusing inisyatiba na pinasulong ng ating administrasyon mula ng inyong lingkod ay nanungkulan.

Tinutukoy natin ang tatlong aspeto: Una, pagbibigay sa mga rehiyon ng karagdagang kapangyarihan at kaunlaran palayo sa dominasyon ng Maynila; pangalawa, ipagpatuloy na ipairal ang halaga ng tatlong E: edukasyon, ekonomiya at environment sa ating mga pagsisikap na lumikha ng tuloy-tuloy at pantay-pantay na kaunlaran; at pangatlo, patuloy na tutok sa inyo mga kabataan ng bansa bilang ating pinaka-pag-asa para mas matinag, mas magandang Pilipinas.

Naka-progreso na tayo sa maraming larangan. Nadoble ang pangkalahatang budget ng DepEd, TESDA, CHED at mga state universities and colleges magmula nuong umupo tayo sa Panguluhan. Noong tayo ay nagsimula noong 2001 wala pang P100 billion ang budget ng edukasyon, ngayon lampas na sa P200 billion. Kaya naman nakapagbibigay ng scholarship dahil lumaki ang budget ng doble.

May mga 600,000 na tayong college scholarship na nabigay sa ating administrasyon, at doon naman sa VocTech itong taon lang ito, isang taon lang halos 600,000 na rin. Ngunit higit pa ang kailangang gawin. Lahat ng pinagsisikapang makamit ng ating administrasyon ay para gawin mas matinag ang kinabukasan para sa susunod na henerasyon, kayo yun, susunod na henerasyon ng mga Pilipino. Kayo, ang ating kabataan ng ating bansa gaya ng sabi ko kanina, ang ating pag-asa at inspirasyon. Lahat ng ginagawa natin ay dapat para magtayo ng mas mabuting buhay para sa bawat kabataan ng bansa.

Habang ipinagmamalaki natin ang nakamit ng ating administrasyon, ang nakamit sa nakaraan ay kasimbuti lamang ng kakayahan ng bansa na lumago at umunlad. Nais ko na ang progresong nagawa na natin ay hindi titigil; na kung ano ang nalalabing gagawin ay aakuin ng susunod na henerasyon ng liderato. Halimbawa, sabi ko nga kay Dr. Co, “Naku! Dr. Co meron kang limang-libo na graduate na scholar ng TESDA, naku sana naman yung susunod na administrasyon pantayan yun o lampasan pa sana.”

Bilang bansa, dapat matatag na itukoy natin ang isang tanawin sa kinabukasan, to build on what is good at lalo pang magsikap upang harapin ang mga hamon ng nalalabi pang gawin. At kayo, ang ating kabataan ng ating bansa ang tulay ng nakaraan at kinabukasan. Para sa inyo ang pagtutuwid natin sa mali, ang pakibaka natin para sa pagbabago, at ang paghanap nating gumawa ng mas matinag na araw.

Malayo na ang narating ng ating bansa. Most notably, we have made major progress improving our national infrastructure with more roads. Noong araw naalala ko... ewan ko kung bagong senador ba ako o vice president pa ba ako? No, hindi senador. Vice president o bagong pangulo. Kailan Junjun nag-governor yung nanay mo? 2001. Okay, bagong pangulo pa lang ako. So sabi ko, Governor Nini kamusta na ang mga investor dito? Sabi niya, papaano naman darating ang mga investor dito ang hirap-hirap maka-abot dito, traffic, sama ng kalsada. Eh ngayon pinalawak natin ang mga kalsadang patungo ng Rizal kaya marami ng investor ang pumupunta rito.

Isa pa ring nagawa natin, yung expanded commuter rail system, para sa ganun mula sa Maynila hanggang sa malalapit na probinsya gaya ng Rizal ay pwede kayong magbiyahe sa ating LRT-MRT. Kasama sa mga kalsadang ginawa natin yung mga importanteng tulay.

And we have made major gains in education, building more classrooms lalo na sa public grade school, installing Internet access lalo na sa mga public high school, improving teacher salaries, and more scholarships for the young people gaya ninyo ating mga kabataan.

Kasi nga, gaya ng pinatunayan ng aking tatay, ang edukasyon ang bukal ng oportunidad. Gaya ng kuwento ni Governor Junjun Ynares, ang tatay ko mahirap lamang ngunit pina-aral ni Don Honorio Ventura, naging abogado, naging number 1 sa bar at yun ang naging susi niya sa kanyang tagumpay. Kayo rin pinapa-aral natin, pinapa-aral ng pamahalaan, kayo ay binibigayan ng susi sa mas maginhawang buhay.

Ang edukasyon, binubuksan nito ang isip, binubuksan ang mga pintuan. At sa kasalukuyang mundo, ang malakas na edukasyon ay dapat kasama ang malakas na backbone ng teknolohiya. Kaya natutuwa ako na ang ICCT ay kilalang-kilala sa larangan ng ICT. Tinanong ko kay Dr. Co, ano ang ibig sabihin ng ICCT? Sabi niya, Institute of Creative Computer Technology. Doon nagsimula ang ICCT, sa computer, 1981 pa, wala pa tayong internet age computer na ang itinaturo ng ICCT. Congratulations! sa inyong vision.

Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan na dito sa ating 5,000 na nag-graduate ay 2,000 ay nag ga-graduate sa computer programming. Inaasahan ko naman na itong iba ninyong mga kurso na pinili ninyo ay yung mga kurso na pinag-aralan ng TESDA na malaki ang pag-asa na makakuha kayo ng trabaho pag-graduate ninyo.

Kaya kayong mga kabataan, malaki ang ating pag-asa sa inyo, nabigyan kayo ng susi ng oportunidad, gamitin ninyo ito sa inyong kinabubuti at kinabubuti ng ating bansa.

Congratulations! sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the Pangulong Gloria Scholarship Graduation Exercises from the Institute of Creative Computer Technology (ICCT) Colleges. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080225/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27762&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the U.S. Congressional Reception and Awarding of the 2010 ICCF Teddy Roosevelt International Conservation Award Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the U.S. Congressional Reception and Awarding of the 2010 ICCF Teddy Roosevelt International Conservation Award

[Delivered in Washington DC, USA, April 13, 2010]

Thank you very much.

Congressman Tanner, Congressman Royce, other members of the U.S. Senate and U.S. Congress, Ms. Barbut, other NGO leaders, distinguished officers and advisers of the International Conservation Caucus Foundation, friends, ladies and gentlemen, good evening.

In behalf of the 85 million Filipino people who love our 7,100-island nation with tens of thousands of marine species and some of the most beautiful coral reefs and fishing grounds in the world, thank you for awarding me the Teddy Roosevelt International Conservation Award for 2010.

Named for the larger-than-life conservationist President Theodore Roosevelt, this award gives further inspiration to all my compatriots and those around the world who join me in doing all we can to conserve our precious natural resources.

Our country is truly blessed with an outstanding diversity of both terrestrial as well as marine species.

Societies and governments and the ICCF show these. Societies and governments around the world are increasingly recognizing the link between maintaining healthy ecosystems and providing food, clean water, clean air, a stable climate, and cultural and recreational services.

As a food source, wild stocks of fish are still the largest single source of animal protein for the world's human population. In 2005, the value of fish production from the Philippine waters exceeded one billion dollars.

From an economic standpoint, the global tourism industry benefits significantly with nature-based tourism being the largest growing tourism segment.

As a natural defense system, healthy coral reefs and mangroves serve as safety barriers against storm surges and tsunamis, not to mention their importance as habitats and nurseries for thousands of species of fishes and invertebrates.

For basic survival, watersheds also provide clean water for domestic consumption, power generation and irrigation.

The ecosystems that surround us also hold undiscovered secrets that have the potential to offer unimaginable benefits.

Recently, I presented a Presidential Citation to Filipino scientist Dr. Baldomero Olivera who was awarded the Harvard Foundation Most Outstanding Scientist Award in 2007 in recognition of his contribution in the field of Marine Drug Discovery and Neuropharmacology.

Dr. Olivera and his team had discovered a compound now used as a painkiller which was extracted from a predatory cone shell called Conus magus. The compound is 1,000 times more potent than morphine minus the addictive properties; it is now being administered to bring relief to patients with chronic pain. It is awe-inspiring to imagine the other latent benefits stored in the tens of thousands of other marine species found in our marine ecosystems.

The bottom-line is this: we have a moral obligation to the next generation to protect the beauty and bounty of the land, air and sea for the rest of time. I am honored to represent the Philippines in this noble effort.

My first responsibility as president is to provide for our people, to lift up the poor, generate economic growth and leave the world in better shape for the next generation of Filipinos. Central to that mission is to harmonize economic growth with the full protection of our environment.

The trade-off between a clean, healthy and sustainable environment and strong economic growth is a false choice. We need both. That is precisely what I have undertaken during my tenure as president.

I take particular pride in our efforts in the Philippines and the region to build up and not tear down our ecosystem. We cannot eliminate poverty if the price of achieving that goal is polluted land, depleted seas and unbreathable air. Nowhere is our interconnectedness with the world more profound than the resources we all truly share. It is truly a global environment. We must all do our part to conserve it, grow it, sustain it.

Well, as you are now aware, because of this award, I am a strong advocate for the preservation and restoration of the Coral Triangle, considered the richest area of marine biodiversity in the world. Ms. Barbut liked it when I described the Coral Triangle as the Amazon of the underwater.

This remarkable area is the source of food for hundreds of millions of people across the globe. Therefore, strengthening the Coral Triangle is more than a task for the six nations that currently coordinate governance and management of the Coral Triangle Initiative. In addition to the Philippines, the governments also include Indonesia, Malaysia, Papua New Guinea, Solomon Islands, and Timor Leste.

In our last meeting in ASEAN, I proposed that Brunei also be a member of this Coral Triangle. We are united in our goal to protect this resource called the Coral Triangle. It is not only critical to the future of our nations, but also to the world.

If you have a tuna dinner or a tuna lunch or a tuna sandwich, chances are your food is coming from the Coral Triangle. It is precisely because of this that the world must step up and help. This is particularly so during times of economic hardship, when pressures are greatest to abandon our obligation to the environment or loosen the rules as we continue to address the issue of global warming.

As the world struggles to meet these challenges, we must take leadership — the ICCF here in the United States, we the leaders of the different nations — we must take leadership in showing the way toward a united front to find a common approach to keeping our biodiversity intact, our food resources strong, and our environment pristine.

In a developing nation such as ours, even if choosing between environment and the economy is a false choice. Still, many times in practice, making decisions that will ensure a healthy balance between development and conservation can be difficult.

I am proud to have laid down enabling policies and foundations under the Green Philippines Initiative that are helping to ensure healthy and productive ecosystems. These, which include landmark Biofuels and Renewable Energy Laws, the Climate Change Act, the Integrated Coastal Management and maybe 20 or 30 other measures which promote sustainable development of our coastal and marine environment and resources will become a legacy of my administration. They will benefit coming generations of Filipinos.

While we now have an enabling natural resource conservation policy environment, however, we continue to face the serious challenge of effectively implementing and enforcing these laws. To that end, we thank all our international partners: the UN, the World Bank, the GEF. The Asian Development Bank, and our US-based donors, many of whom are here tonight, among others, for providing the much needed development assistance for the Philippines and enabling us to implement many of our environment policies.

As we launch the International Year of Biodiversity, let us all recognize and embrace the fact that biodiversity is essential for maintaining healthy ecosystems which are in turn vital to our very own survival and the basic underpinning for poverty alleviation and human wellbeing.

Cooperation among nations need not be fraught with bureaucracy and take years to show results. Our work in the Coral Triangle is an example. It only started three years ago, but we have already put the region on the global conservation map. We've already enlisted the support of public-private-NGO partnerships that is a model for cooperation.

When three tragic earthquakes hit Chile just a few weeks ago, our new tsunami warning system prevented even more loss of life all across the Pacific precisely because we came together to solve a common problem. We can come together to the benefit of the world to sustain our fisheries, forests and landscapes.

There is no greater threat to our sustainability as a people and a world than nuclear weapons in the hands of terrorists or rogue nations. Anchoring my visit to Washington this week is my attendance at the Nuclear Security Summit along with leaders from 47 nations.

Let us ensure that these precious sources of power are always used for the peaceful generation of energy and maintaining peace between nations and are never used in violence.

Also, let us therefore work together to preserve this beautiful planet we share and leave it as a lasting and shining legacy for our children and our children's children.

Once again, for this award, thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the U.S. Congressional Reception and Awarding of the 2010 ICCF Teddy Roosevelt International Conservation Award. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080156/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27822&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during a meeting with the Filipino Community

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a meeting with the Filipino Community

[Delivered at the Ambassador's Residence, #4 Calle de Eresma, Madrid, Spain, April 14, 2010]

Maraming salamat Secretary Romulo sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Maraming salamat sa ating tisay na Embajadora dahil nagtatagalog din pala siya sa iyong pagpa imbita sa ating mga Filipino community, at salamat naman sa inyong lahat na kahit na hindi niyo day off ay nakapunta kayo rito. Magandang hapon sa inyong lahat ating mga kababayan.

Kunada, ado nga Ilocano idtoy, naimbag a rabii yo amin kadagiti kakailiyak ti bangir ni mamang ko. Marhay nga hapon sa indo Bikolano. Kun dunay Bisaya diri, maayong hapon kaninyong tanan. Ampo siyempre agyang ditak mu deng cabalen a Capampangan queti, mayap a gatpanapun quecongan. Tan san saray kabaleyan, masantos ya labi ed sikayon amin.

O, ako ay nasisiyahan na narito tayo and together with me not only Secretary Romulo, we have our Secretary of Trade and Industry Secretary Jesli Lapus, taga Concepcion. I think I met somebody here from Concepcion, Tarlac if you remember Secretary Lapus used to be your congressman in Concepcion, Tarlac. And then we have... when I see them I will introduce them but right now they're mingling around.

But gusto ko lang sabihin sa inyong lahat, salamat na nagkaroon tayo nitong pagkakataon na madalaw kayo muli. Naalala ko 2007 magkasama tayo, so ngayon pagkakataon muli upang magpasalamat sa inyong lahat.

First of all, thank you for your hard work and dedication to our country. Everywhere I go, lalo na dito sa España nagkita nga tayo nang 2007. Bilang pangulo ito ay pangatlong pagkakataon ko na magbisita. Nagpunta ako 2006, official visit; 2007, state visit; at ngayon muli upang tumanggap ng Premyong Don Quijote. Salamat na kayo ay narito. At dito sa lahat ng aking pagbisita tuwing nakakausap ko yung mga Kastila, private citizens and government leaders, compliment our Filipino workers for being diligent, trustworthy, efficient, unparalleled skills. Congratulations sa inyong lahat!

We applaud you for the good track record that you have created for our country. Dahil ang ganda-ganda ng inyong track record we're in a strong position to continue capturing job opportunities. Lalo na kung saan nagmumulikta ang Europa galing sa kanilang problema sa global economic crisis.

But, as I said even in the past, while we honor our OFWs for your sacrifice for our nation and your families, my vision has been to help launch an economic revolution towards being first world in 20 years to break this offshore cycle by creating more jobs in the Philippines so that working abroad will become only a career choice not the only option for our hardworking men and women. Yan ang aking hinahangad na araw.

Kanina sa aking pagpunta rito, meron akong isang nakilala dito, sabi niya, kamusta na ang Pilipinas ngayon? Ay, sabi ko, yun ang ikekvento ko mamaya. So kamusta na nga ang Pilipinas ngayon? Well, ang masasabi ko the Philippines has come a long way since January 2001 nung ako ay unang umupo bilang pangulo. Siguro marami nang nakalimot kung ano yung nangyayari nung panahong yun. Nung panahong yun, 2001, napakagulo ng panahon. That was less than ten years ago. Time has gracefully erased many memories of that time. Nung panahong yun yung ating bansa, the nation was teetering, kaguluhan sa pulitika, lubhang kaguluhan sa pulitika at pagka bangkarote ng kaban ng bansa.

Yung ating ekonomiya naka estangka sa pag-uurong, walang mga pamumuhunang nangyayari, konti lang ang trabahong nililikha. Yung utang ng ating bansa ay mas malaki pa kaysa sa ating GDP nung panahong yun. At yung ating foreign reserve ang nipis-nipis. Para sa taong-bayan noon, panahon ng kuntang-kuntang trabaho, mababang sahod, matataas na presyo. At dahil kulang ang koleksyon ng buwis kulang din ang pamumuhunan para palawakin ang kalinga sa kalusugan, pag-ibayuhin ang edukasyon, magbigay ng malinis na tubig at kinakailangang kuryente sa malalayong barangay.

And internationally, yung Pilipinas ay naiwan na noon, malayo na sa radar screen. Wala na yung kanyang importansya sa mundo. At humina yung kayang mga alyansa sa mundo at hindi na pinagpipilian ng mga investors bilang isang lugar kung saan mamuhunan at lumikha ng trabaho. Yun ang larawan noong 2001.

At doon sa napakalungkot na eksenang yun pumasok tayo. Nung panahong yun hindi ko sinikap na maging pangulo, nangyari sa akin hulog ng langit. Pero sa halip nang tanggihan ko yung responsibilidad na mabigat, I rolled up my sleeves, I rolled up my sleeves, determined to turn the Philippines around.

Nakatukoy tayo parang laser beam para makahatid ng tunay na resulta para pag-ibayuhin ang buhay ng karaniwang Pilipino. Bilang ekonomista, alam ko na upang mabaligtad natin yung ilang taon na humihina ang ekonomiya kinailangan na ipasok natin ang disiplina, palawakin natin ang ekonomiya, mamuhunan tayo sa human at physical infrastructure.

Mula sa unang araw, itong mga kilos na ito ay humubog ng building blocks ng pag-iikot muli ng ekonomiya that would deliver now 37 quarters of economic growth. In fact, alam natin na yung Europa ay nasa global economic crisis. Pero doon sa Pilipinas ni minsan hindi tayo nagkaroon ng negative growth rate kahit na nagkaroon ng global economic crisis. Nakalikha tayo sa aking administrasyon ng siyam na milyong bagong trabaho, nakadagdag tayo ng mga limampung milyong Pilipino sa healthcare, at naging matatag ang sitwasyon ng ating kaban ng bansa.

At siguro... ewan ko kung ilan sa inyo ay nakabakasyon na sa Pilipinas lately? Ewan ko kung nahahalata ninyo kung nakabiyahen na kayo mula Manila hanggang bandang Pampanga nangalahati na lamang ang tagal ng biyahe mula Maynila hanggang Clark, naalala niyo or Subic? Dahil sa pagpapalawak at pagpaayos sa mga lumang kalsada gaya ng NLEX at nagtayo ng mga bagong kalsada gaya ng SCTEX. Bumilis din ang biyahe mula Maynila patungo sa katimugan dahil sa mga bagong kalsadang din papuntang, halimbawa, papuntang Batangas Port ngayon mga dalawang oras na lamang, kalahati na rin ang biyahe. At pwede pa kayo mag bus mula Maynila hanggang Boracay dahil makakasakay kayo sa RORO — yes, sa RORO port. Iyan ang mga ginagawa natin para pag-ibayuhin ang ating imprastraktura.

And into the arena of international relations, the Philippines is back. ‘Di na tayo naiiwan. The Philippines has been a steady climber in Asia and the world. In fact doon sa Asia, mabibilang mo ang kung ilan ang mga bansa na tuloy pa rin na umaangat kahit na nagkaron ng mga global economic crisis. Halimbawa, Tsina, India, Indonesia, Vietnam, Pilipinas. Tayo yung mga tuloy na umaangat kahit na nagkaroon ng global economic crisis. And we have new relations with the world, halimbawa, yung España. Once again, Spain is a very strong ally of the once-isolated Philippines.

Halimbawa, gaya nang sabi ko nagkita tayo nang 2007 sa state visit. Alam ba niyo mula nung state visit ko sa España, Spain is now our biggest European donor. Eh, siyempre pinapaganda natin ang ating relasyon sa ating Inang Bayan. We are reintroducing the Spanish language in selected high schools and in TESDA. Si Secretary Jing Lapus ng Trade and Industry ngayon siya na ang Secretary of Education nung iyon ay sinimulan... Ay! eto na yung dalawang congressmen na hinanap ko para ipakilala sa inyo. Kasi nung sinabi ko mga maraming Bikolano dito, yung aking anak si Dato ang ninuno ng kanyang ama ay mga tiga-Bikol kaya siya ang congressman ng Bikol, si Dato Arroyo. At saka sa mga Waray, pero konti lang yata yung mga Waray dito, si Congressman Martin Romualdez. Ah eto rin yung cabalen, tiga-Lubao kagaya ko, ang ating Press Secretary, si Jun Ichan.

So, anyway, napag-usapan natin si Jing Lapus na Secretary of Trade and Industry natin ngayon, nung siya ay Secretary of Education doon natin sinimula yung programa na ibabalik ang Kastila sa ating mga high school. At saka hindi lang sinimulan niya sa ilang mga selected high school pati na rin sa TESDA pwede kayong mag-aral ng Español. Ah, nandiyan yung ating... yung... why? Well, not only it is because we want to reestablish and strengthen our ties with Spain but also because there are many Spanish-speaking jobs. Kahit na sa Pilipinas mismo maraming Spanish-speaking jobs dahil lumalakas ang ating call center industry.

And our efforts to promote the Spanish language have been as appreciated here. Binanggit ko nga kanina na ako'y napunta rito ngayon para tanggapin yung Premio International Don Quixote de la Mancha mula sa kanyang Majestad King Juan Carlos bukas at yung Fundacion Santillana.

Muchas gracias es un gran honor recibir este premio y brindare mis mejores esfuerzos para promover la cultura y lengua Hispanas en Filipinas y para ustedes tambien. Because improved relations with Spain have opened the doors of economic opportunity for those Filipinos who have chosen to go to Spain for work.

Naalala ko nung ako ay pumunta dito nung 2006, yung unang pagpunta ko rito, isa sa mga binati ko noon ay yung ating mga health workers na kakabukas lamang ang pintuan sa health workers. Now, there are more than 200 health workers in Spain. At yung isang si Charmaine, yung pumasok bilang caregiver ay nurse na ngayon. Congratulations! to Charmaine.

That's the result of the Memorandum of Understanding on Migration Flow that we signed in 2006. Nung pumarito ako noon nung 2007, binati naman natin ang grupo ng mga enhinyerong gumagawa ng engineering design.

Kaya itong ating pagkakaibigan sa España muli ay magbibigay ng pagkakataon para sa ating mga kababayan. Itong ating diplomasya rin ay tumutulong na ipagtanggol ang interes ng ating mga masisipag na Pilipino dito sa España as in every other part of the globe.

Halimbawa, eto ay importante para sa inyo pero hindi pa pala natatapos ang mga problema. Kung naalala niyo nung 2007 binanggit ko na na ang ating administrasyon ay nakikipag-ayos sa España para magkaroon ng Agreement for Exchange of Driver's License. Lalo na ngayon na nahihirapan ang Europa ay marami nagla-lay off mas malaking tsansa yung mga may driver's license kaysa doon sa wala. So ibig sabihin nito Filipinos pwedeng gamitin yung Philippine driver's license para magmaneho sa España mas malaking tsansa magkaroon ng trabaho. Pero kaninang tsinetsek ko kung ano ang status, nandiyan na nga ang agreement pero may hitches daw yung implementation. Sabi ko, ano yung hitch ng implementation? Kasi pag kukuha kayo ng lisensya siyempre ipapakita niyo yung lisensya, siyempre proseso nuon ive-verify sa Manila kung genuine yung lisensya niyo. Doon ang problema kasi yung computer program dito iba pala sa computer program doon. So inaayos kung pwedeng by text, so yun ang status natin ngayon. Kaya nung nalaman ko yun tinawagan ko yung Secretary of Transportation, si Anne Lontoc at saka yung head ng LTO, si Bert Suansing. Sabi ko, ay naku kung alam ko lang na yun ang problema sinama ko na sana isa sa inyo pero ngayon nalaman ko yun isa sa inyo pumunta na dito. You take the next flight here para nandito pa lang ako ay makipag-usap na tayo sa Tehete para sa ganun ay mabilis na itong ano ang gagawin niyong sistema para naman ang ating mga Pilipino ay maging mas competitive dahil merong lisensya.

In the meantime, samantala, mabuti naman kinikilala ng España ang ating Dual Citizenship Act na ginawa sa ating administrasyon nung 2003, and this Dual Citizenship Act has benefited more than 1,500 former Filipino citizens.

At hindi lamang yun, ayaw naman nating na magkaroon ng panahon na may magkakaroon ng problema sa batas ang mga Pilipino dito pero kung halimbawa yung hindi natin inaasahan ay mangyari meron rin tayong pagkasunduan sa España, yung Transfer of Sentenced Persons. Kung halimbawa magkaroon kayo ng problema sa batas kailangan, sa awa ng Diyos huwag sana mangyari, ma-convict kayo kailangan maipreso pwede kayong malipat sa Pilipinas at doon na lang niyo iseserve yung sentence ninyo at hindi dito. Pero sana hindi mangyari pero pinag-uusapan natin ang mga nasa presong Pilipino, yun hindi nangyayari dito pero may mga Pilipino halimbawa sa Middle East dahil iba ang kultura — hindi nangyayari dito dahil pareho ang kultura natin — doon sa Middle East nagkakaiba ang kultura maraming naipreso.

Pero salamat sa ating pagkakaibigan sa Hari ng España dahil siya ay Royalty marami sa Middle East Royalty din parang mga kapatid niya, parang mga pinsan niya merong ilan doon ay ide-death sentence na sana, alam ba niyo na yung Hari ng España ang nakikipag-usap sa mga Hari ng iba't-ibang mga lugar sa Middle East para patawarin yung ating mga Pilipino doon. Kaya yun ang isang malaking pinagpapasalamat din natin.

Binabanggit ko itong global economic downturn, at dito nga sa Europe hindi pa tapos itong global economic downturn, aangat na sana nagkaron naman ng problema sa Greece. Eh isang ekonomiya lang ito so parang nagkaroon na naman ng epidemic. So, I just want to let you know that we have put in place a stimulus package that is geared to helping our workers keep and get new jobs.

Eto nga itong lisensya importante ito, but that's not all. We have a program that we call Reciprocity Program. Bakit reciprocity? Kasi andami niyong binibigay sa ating bansa. Ngayon namang pagkakataon pag mahirap ang trabaho sa isang bansa dapat mag reciprocate naman ang ating bansa. And this Program of Reciprocity is supposed to help our expatriate workers who might return home from their host countries that have been affected by the global crisis.

Itong unang bahagi nitong programa ay yung Filipino Overseas Livelihood Support Fund. Nung nangyari itong global economic crisis nagsimula ito nung September of 2008, naglaan na tayo ng one billion pesos mula sa OWWA at government lending institutions para sa naghihirap na mga OFW. At sa one billion pesos nagamit na ang 200 million pesos para suportahan yung mga OFWs na nawalaan ng trabaho.

At isa pa nagkaron din tayo ng retraining program para tulungan ma-upgrade ang kakayahan ng mga Filipino workers para manatiling competitive at magkaroon ng mas mabuting tsansa sa promotion at mataas na salary at overall job security. So eto nagdarasal tayo na hindi tatagal ang recession dito sa Europa para tumigil ang ating hindi katiyakan sa trabaho. But in the meantime, there is that facility available to whoever Filipino worker would want to use that kasi nga eto ay reciprocity para sa inyo.

Dapat naman suklian kayo nitong mga programa dahil ang laki ng inyong tulong sa ating bansa. At kaya ako ay sinikap kong magkaron ng pagkakataon kahit nga na overnight lang ako dito ito lang ang aking pagkakataon makipagkita sa inyo salamat naman na kahit last minute ay nakapunta kayo rito. Ito ay sana gagawin ko sa Barcelona, pero kinansel ko yung Barcelona side dahil may sakit yung aking asawa, he just came out of the hospital at in fact I'm still getting reports about him, hindi pa siya fully recovered. Pero itong binuksan nga natin yung ating Consulado sa Barcelona dahil mas maraming Filipino sa Barcelona kaysa sa Madrid at hindi ako naka... — yes, city to city, yes — at hindi ako nakapunta dito pero salamat naman ang ating Consul General at ang ating leaders ng Filipino community sa Barcelona ay pumunta rito dahil hindi ako nakapunta doon, muchas gracias por demir.

Y atodos ustedes Filipinos aqui. Una vez mas, os agradezco a todos los Filipinos en España por vuestro apoyo y el honor que brindais a nuestra patria.

Mabuhay ang mga Pilipino sa España!

Maraming salamat sa inyo.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during a meeting with the Filipino Community. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080149/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27829&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during an inspection visit of various project components of the Bayanijuan sa Southville 7 Community Center Project of the ABS-CBN Foundation, Inc. Speech of

Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines

During an inspection visit of various project components of the Bayanijuan sa Southville 7 Community Center Project of the ABS-CBN Foundation, Inc.

[Delivered in Brgy. Dayap, Calauan, Laguna, April 19, 2010]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat Secretary Jun Iban, ang ating bagong Press Secretary, sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin at pwede na kayong umupo lahat.

Dala natin si Secretary Jun Iban dahil dala natin yung media para makita itong napakagandang halimbawa ng pagtutulungan ng pamahalaan at pribadong sektor para sa pabahay ng ating mga kapwa at minamahal na Pilipino.

Maraming salamat rin Governor Ningning Lazaro sa inyong pag welcome sa amin dito at sa pag welcome din ng inyong probinsya dito sa mga bagong taga Laguna. Thank you very much Gina Lopez, for all the things that you're doing here and all the other places where you have made a difference in the lives of the people of the community. Maraming salamat kay Mayor Berris at saka kay Mrs. Berris dahil sa pag welcome niyo tuloy itong resettlement site ay mas malaki keysa doon sa dating bayan ng Calauan kaya marami kayong bagong alaga pero kayang-kaya naman niyong inalagaan yung lumang bayan. Kayang-kaya niyo rin alagaan ang mga bagong mamamayan ng Bayan ng Calauan.

At narito rin si General Manager ng NHA si Rico Laxa gawa nang siya sa mga ahensya ng pamahalaan ang pinaka nagpapartner sa ibang ahensya at sa pribadong sektor. At kasama rin natin ngayon si Secretary Arthur Yap, private sector na rin siya ngayon pero temporarily nagresign siya as Secretary of Agriculture dahil tatakbo ng congressman, pero sabi ko temporary pagka private sector niya kasi kahit na siya lang ang boboto sa sarili niya magiging congressman na kasi unopposed si Arthur Yap.

Binabati ko ang lahat ng mga narito, una nga si Gina, siya ang nag-isip ng konseptong BayaniJuan o Bayanihan kung saan nagtutulong-tulong ang mga ahensya ng gobyerno, pribadong sektor, benepisyaryo sa mga gawaing magbibigay ng ginhawa sa buhay. At ang pangunahing partner, ang NHA, dahil NHA ang nagpapatayo ng pinakamaraming bahay dito pero andami nang binanggit ni Gina kanina sa media tour ng mga private sector at private foundations at private individuals na nagko-contribute din ng maraming pabahay dito sa Calauan.

Kanina pinag-uusapan namin ni Gina, sabi niya zero ang resistance sa paglipat dito, at yun ay kaiba-iba doon sa mga nangyayari nung mga nakaraang administrasyon. At kinekvento ko sa kanya doon sa riles ng tren dito rin sila napunta, marami sa riles ng tren, 90,000 na pamilya ang linipat sa iba't-ibang lugar halos wala ring resistance. Ano ang kaibahan ng mga paglilipat natin at paglilipat nung mga nakaraan? Dahil ang paglilipat may kasamang hanapbuhay — yan ang pinakaimportante. At isa sa mga paraan ay yung mga tinatayong livelihood center dito, mga pabrika ng mga ahensya ng pribadong sekto, at ang TESDA ay tumutuloy sa kasanayan ng pang hanapbuhay.

Kanina nga nagpunta kami doon sa gumagawa, yung master carpenter, si Mang Roger yung gumagawa. Siya ang nagsupervise ng pagpagawa ng mga furniture na gagamitin din dito. 'Di siya ay galing sa ilalim ng tulay sa Paco Market kaya tinanong ko sa kanya, ano Mang Roger, palagay ko nung araw natatakot kang umalis doon kasi tinanong ko Mang Roger nung ikaw ay nasa ilalim ng tulay ano ang trabaho mo, ano ang hanapbuhay mo? Sabi niya karpintero ako, meron akong mga construction projects na pinagpapasukan. Sa palagay ko sabi ko, Mang Roger natatakot ka muna lumipat dito kasi baka mawala yung hanapbuhay mo, yung construction sa Maynila, ganun na nga sabi niya. Pero pagdating niya dito meron din palang hanapbuhay dito. Kaya yun ang maganda dito sa ginagawa natin.

At isa pa, doon sa mga nagkabit ng kuryente, congratulations din! Sabi ni Gina nung araw nung madilim itong bahaging ito at maraming krimen, drugs may isa pang rape, pero nagkaroon tayo ng kuryente dito at ang ginagawang kuryente dito ay solar energy, solar power. Kaya mahal lang ang pagtayo ng poste at ilaw tapos nuon wala lang binabayaran na electric bill, di ba Gina? Wala na binabayaranang electric bill kaya meron ng kuryente dito. So, congratulations! sa lahat at sa iba't-ibang kumpanya na tumutulong: yung Telus; yung Consunji; yung, well, ABS-CBN; yung Aboitiz; yung San Miguel; yung Sun Life, napakaraming tumutulong. Maraming salamat sa inyo sa tulong ninyo sa BayaniJuan Foundation, kasi yun si Gina yun ang moving spirit, siya ang nagbuo sa inyong lahat. At si Arty Yap pinaupo ko dito kahit na siya ay ex na, private sector, nagsisipsip din tayo kasi magiging congressman. Pero hindi lang yun dahil sa ilalim niya ang Department of Agriculture ay nagbigay din ng tulong dito: tilapia, vermi composting, vegetable seeds, shredder, land preparation, household gardens. Ewan ko kung dito ginagawa lahat nuon pero sila ay tumutulong sa BayaniJuan Foundation sa iba't-ibang mga ginagawa nila.

At pinaupo ko rin si General Segovia at saka si General Anonuevo dito dahil ang importante rin kung lilipat at gagawa ng isang pamayanan yung kapayapaan. So siguro ginamit ng mga sundalo ni General Segovia ang CAFGU training module siguro dahil andami nating mga... yung mga naka white t-shirt, mga martial dito na trinaining ng military para tutulong sa pulis na manatili ang kapayapaan dito sa inyong resettlement sa Calauan. Kaya congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Dito sa nakikita natin, nakikita natin magandang halimbawa ng tatlong programa ng pamahalaan na sinusulong ng BayaniJuan ni Gina. Una, bigyan ng proteksiyon ang mga taong napalapit sa sakuna dahil sa kanilang dating tinitirahan na dapat hindi naman sila dapat tumira doon pero walang lugar. Pinag-uusapan nga namin ni Gina kanina yung mga nakatira doon sa ilalim ng tulay sa Paco, hindi naman sila lubhang mahihirap, may mga CPA — ayun si Mang Roger may trabaho sa construction — ang problema sa Kamaynilaan kung minsan hindi yung pagkakulang ng hanapbuhay kung hindi yung kulang ng lupa. At kaya dahil doon kahit na sa mga prohibited area yung mga katabi ng ilog, katabi ng lawa, katabi ng Manila Bay tinitirahan. Kaya dapat yun ay bigyan ng pagkakataon at i-engganyong lumipat sa ibang lugar kagaya ng Laguna na pinalapit na natin sa Metro Manila, nagiging Greater Metro Manila dahil sa ating SLEX na pinalaki at yun ang isang paraan kung papano. Ang importante ngayon hindi na lamang yung Metro Manila kungdi yung Urban Luzon Beltway dapat isang unit na lamang yun.

Pangalawa, pangangalaga sa kalikasan, lalo na yung Ilog Pasig. Si Gina talagang yun ang passion niya, yung Pasig River. At nung nakaupo kami sabi ko, Gina let's do more for the Pasig River. Tignan mo yung Pasig River rehabilitation kung papano natin magagawa through the Pasig River Rehabilitation yung mga ginagawa mo as private sector siguro mas maraming magagawa sa paraang ganun. Dahil ang Pasig River ang pinakamalaking ilog sa Metro Manila kaya napakaimportante yun.

At ang pangatlo, pabahay para sa mahihirap. Yung pagmamahal ni Gina sa kalikasan, yun ang dahilan kung bakit inaasikaso niya ang polusyon sa Ilog Pasig. Ano ba ang pinanggagalingan ng polusyon sa Ilog Pasig? Una, yung mga basura na nagmumula sa mga bahay na nakapaligid sa ilog. Kasi kulang ang ating sewerage system kaya kahit na nga yung mga nasa bahay na akala nila tinatapon nila yung kanilang waste water sa tamang lugar hindi pa natitreat nang masyado lahat. In fact, sinasabi ko sa lahat ng opisina ng gobyerno na nanduon maglagay na lang kayo ng inyong 5 million pesos sa sariling sewage treatment plant para pagpunta ng tubig ninyo sa Pasig malinis na yung inyong tubig. Tulungan natin yung mga utilities dahil ilang taon pa yung kanilang programa para mabuo nila yung sewerage system ng Pasig.

In the meantime, yun ang ginagawa ni Gina, tinutulungan na itigil ang pagtapon ng basura sa pinakamalaking ilog ng Manila. At ang pinakaimportante ay yung mga nagtatapon ng basura na nakatira sa tabi ng ilog na dapat hindi naman nakatira doon ay ilipat sa ibang lugar at sila rin ang humaharap sa peligro sa tuwing biglang lumalakas ang agos at natatangay ang kabahayan. Kaya ang importante inutos natin ang paglilinis at pag-aayos ng Ilog Pasig. Kasabay ng pagpapatupad ang mga paglilipat ng mga informal settlers na dati nakatira sa tabi ng ilog, pati na rin ang paglinis at rehabilitation na ginawa ni Gina ng Paco Market na dati ay isang malaking pinanggagalingan ng duming tinatapon sa ilog. Ngayon ang ganda-ganda na, ang bango-bango na, hindi na mabaho.

This is so important, which is why from my President's Social Fund, I contributed to the fulfillment of Gina's dream to have an ideal relocation that addresses the needs against pollution and poverty and lack of housing. Because during our Administration, we have ensured that more and more families are able to own a home. Layunin ng pamahalaan natin na magkaroon ng bahay o sariling lupang pagtatayuan ng bahay ang mga pamilyang wala pang sariling tahanan. Sa ating administrasyon, natulungan natin ang mahigit 800,000 na pamilyang mahihirap sa ilalim ng Socialized Housing and Land Tenure Security programs.

In addition to that almost 300,000 low-cost housing units have been built, so we have given more than a million families in locations across the nation a chance to meet their goal of home ownership kasama na nga yung mga tagarito. Para magkaroon ng yung walang resistance sa paglipat, hindi lamang hanapbuhay ang hinahanap, eskwela. Kaya binabati natin si Undersecretary Bacani at lahat ng mga teacher at official dito, malaki ang inyong papel para maligaya ang ating mga nakatira na dito sa Calauan Resettlement Site. Congratulations sa inyo!

Napakalaki ang tulong nitong BayaniJuan Southville Project sa programang pabahay ng pamahalaan. Halos limang libong pamilya na ang nabigyan ng lote dito at higit kalahati sa mga lote ay may naitayo nang mga bahay. Marami sa benepisyaryo ang dating nakatira sa gilid ng Pasig at mga informal settlers mula sa Estero de Paco. Lilipat din dito ang mga pamilyang nawalan ng bahay dahil sa bagyong Ondoy — mga 2,500 na pamilya mula sa Pasig at halos apat na daan mula sa Marikina.

Kaya Governor Lazaro, Mayor Berris magkakaroon kayo talaga ng napakaraming bagong constituents. Siguro medyo mabibigla kayo pero hindi naman kasi andami nang dumarating dito, di ba, ilang taon na sa ating administrasyon? Pero ang bunga naman noon ang Laguna ay magiging isa sa pinakamalaki at pinakamakapangyarihang lalawigan sa ating bansa. At salamat sa inyong pag-aalaga sa mga bagong dating. Salamat din kay Gina at lahat ng mga foundation na kinupkop niya at lahat ng mga government agency na inawitan niya. Kaya dahil doon meron tayong napakaganda at pwedeng ipagmalaking pamayanan dito sa bagong resettlement site ng Calauan.

Maraming salamat at congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during an inspection visit of various project components of the BayanJuan sa Southville 7 Community Center Project of the ABS-CBN Foundation, Inc.. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080140/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27848&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the closing ceremony of the 31st National Conference of Employers

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the closing ceremony of the 31st National Conference of Employers

[Delivered at the Centennial Hall, Manila Hotel, April 21, 2010]

Thank you. Thank you very much.

Thank you.

Thank you again Mike for your very kind introduction once more.

President Edgar Lacson, Conference Chairman and Lakan awardee Alfonso Uy and Chairman of the Conference Alfonso Siy; Secretary Roque; Francis Chua, President of PCCI; our host, Jaime Laya of Philtrust; Donald Dee; members of the Diplomatic Corps; leaders of business; leaders of the labor sector, our partners who are here today; ladies and gentlemen, good morning to all of you and thank you for your kind welcome.

It's a pleasure to be with friends and allies, among whom I've always counted the members of your Confederation. I thank ECOP for nine years of fruitful cooperation and productive partnership.

I recall that when I first joined you at this conference as your new President, nine years ago, I enumerated the measures that needed to be adopted immediately to breathe new life into our economy and to make our country globally competitive again.

Reviewing where we've gone since then, I think what you have said in your speeches is that: the Philippines has come a long way since January 2001. Time has gratefully erased many memories of that tumultuous time less than ten years ago, when the nation teetered on political chaos and financial bankruptcy.

The economy was jammed. You were not making investments. Few jobs were being created. The public sector debt was bigger than our entire GDP. Our short-term debts were coming due. Foreign reserves were razor thin.

Into this dismal picture we stepped. I did not seek the Office of the President in 2001. It was thrust upon me. But rather than shirk from this onerous task, with your encouragement, I rolled up my sleeves, determined to turn the Philippines around.

As an economist, I knew that to reverse economic decline, we had to instill fiscal discipline, grow the economy, and invest in human and physical infrastructure.

I suppose that's what you mean when you say the reforms that we should be unleashing now.

From day one, we worked on these reforms, together with your support, our actions would form the building blocks of a turnaround that would deliver not only 36 quarters anymore, but 37 consecutive quarters of growth. And you, the employers created nine million new jobs, and you helped me bring about a stable fiscal situation. We even reached a record 7.1% growth in GDP in 2007 — the highest in over 30 years.

And now or last year, you were saying, indeed, that last year when you met, when we met you were working on how to survive the global crisis. At a time when more than half of the countries of the world were reeling from negative growth and job losses were estimated to reach 50 million worldwide, in contrast, as you have said, we maintained positive GDP growth and actually more jobs were created than the jobs that were lost.

Yes, one of the things that ECOP and our partners, government and labor can boast of is that: together we managed to keep millions of jobs intact and created even more along the way even during the global crisis of last year. At the time we met at the beginning of the global crisis, although that was not at the beginning, it was already somewhat well into the way because if you remember they gave the date of the global crisis was the day that Lehman Brothers had its collapse. The way that in the 1930s depression, they counted the date that the stock market collapsed.

Well, when we all met together tripartite there are earlier projections of over 200,000 job losses in the Philippines resulting from the global recession. But with the measures instituted by DOLE under the leadership of Nitoy Roque and ECOP, like flexible work arrangements, actual job losses turned out to be only around one-fourth of the forecast. And most of those job losses were temporary, and many of the dislocated have regained their jobs within the year.

On the other hand, many of the unemployed as well as new labor entrants were found so that during this global crisis while the world lose 50 million jobs, the Philippines — correct me if I'm wrong, Nitoy — had the net gain of over one million new jobs.

We should not be surprised therefore over the recent report that self-rated poverty has gone down this year, down this year to 43% — the lowest self-rated poverty in 23 years.

A major source of our economic strength is our harmonious industrial relations system. The number of strikes in the country is at an all-time low, low even if our labor law is one of Asia's most democratic. This is because you, our employers and you our labor leaders are able to communicate with one another in a professional and open manner without resorting to bluster and threats. You have agreed that the fastest way to resolve differences is over the negotiating table, not through messy strikes and lockouts. So, congratulations to ECOP and its labor partners!

On the national level, together with government, our tripartite partnership is also able to hold positive dialogues on how to deal with global crises in a collective and non-partisan way. I cite the leadership and constructive role of ECOP in all of these dialogues.

We have made other reforms that hopefully have made your businesses more convenient. We have delivered a nationwide transportation system that binds the nation together as never before, so that people and goods can be delivered faster, cheaper and safer from one end of the nation to the other. And almost from scratch, you have helped me create what is today a global powerhouse: the Philippine BPO industry. We did this with vision, determination, and smart government policies.

You have adverted in your speeches earlier to some of those government policies, some of those reforms that we are unleashing now. With your support, I have never shied away from taking on tough issues and tough reforms. And as Francis Chua pointed out, my popularity dipped when I went against the grain and championed the passage of the EVAT never to regain my popularity anymore.

I knew it would be unpopular, but someone had to get the nation's fiscal house in order and bring in fresh revenue to invest in the people. It was the right thing to do, it has served the people well. We were able to turn around the dire fiscal situation that we inherited from the past.

While challenges remain, today, our revenues are up, both BIR and BOC have exceeded their targets for this year so far. Our deficit to GDP ratio is acceptable, especially during a time when the world has agreed it is not yet time for an exit strategy from the global crisis policies. Our country's debt stock is more manageable than before. This has resulted in an improvement in our credit ratings. Today we are debt-free from the IMF.

For those who refuse to see progress, just look at the skyline of Manila or Cebu or Global City or Eastwood or even key areas... centers of Mindanao and the Visayas. Today, it is a skyline with new, modern buildings, construction cranes, better roads, hotels, shopping malls, small businesses. They were not there before in 2001.

This is part of the Philippines that you and I helped nurture and create. You have certainly helped in building up that skyline. And I said not only Manila, Cebu but other parts as well. Mike Varela was telling me about Sumitomo Fruits, also changing the skyline in the southern part of our county. Thank you Paul for your expansion. And we hope, we wish you well in the new economic zone that you have been putting up. Congratulations!

And to all of you friends in ECOP, for all the support you have given our programs, our reforms, I sincerely thank you. And most importantly, I thank you for being the one to unleash the reforms because it is up to you to put up the businesses; it is up to you to do the hiring, the creating jobs.

Certainly, we would not have generated jobs for millions of our workers without you and, therefore, for unleashing our reforms, Mabuhay ang ECOP! At muli, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the closing ceremony of the 31st National Conference of Employers. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080117/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27858&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of the Commemorative Stamp for brother Eraño G. Manalo

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching ceremony of the Commemorative Stamp for brother Eraño G. Manalo

[Delivered at the Bulwagan, Iglesia ni Cristo Central Office, New Era, Quezon City, April 23, 2010]

Thank you.

Maraming salamat Secretary Chua sa iyong pagpakilala.

Sa ating ginagalang na Executive Minister ng Iglesia ni Cristo Ka Eduardo Manalo, ang lahat ng mga tumutulong sa kanya dito sa Iglesia ni Cristo, Senate President Enrile, Speaker Nograles, Senator Santiago, Secretary and Mrs. Romulo, Justice Velasco, Congresswoman Pizaro, Mayor Belmonte, Vice Mayor Bautista, our officials here, Postmaster General Villanueva, mga kapatid, magandang umaga sa inyong lahat.

Masaya ako dahil sama-sama nating ginugunita muli ang naging bukod-tanging buhay ng yumaong Executive Minister ng Iglesia ni Cristo, si Kagalang-galang at pinakamamahal na Eraño Manalo. Sa pamamagitan ng bagong selyong ito, at sa pagdiriwang ng anibersaryo ng kaniyang panimulang paglingkod bilang pangkalahatang tagapamahala ng Iglesia ni Cristo, mananatiling sariwa at buhay ang alaala ni Ka Erdie, hindi lamang sa kapatiran ng Iglesia ni Cristo, kundi pati na sa lahat ng Pilipino.

Sa kabuuan ng siyamnapu't anim na taong kasaysayan ng Iglesia ni Cristo, si Ka Erdie ang namahala rito bilang Executive Minister sa loob ng apatnapu't anim na taon, mula Abril ng 1963, panahon ng aking ama, si Diosdado Macapagal, bilang Pangulo ng Pilipinas. Isang malaking ala-ala na laging kinikwento sa akin ng aking ama ay ang napakagandang proyektong pabahay na itinayo ng Iglesia ni Cristo sa Laur, Nueva Ecija noong panahon niya. Itong proyekto ay larawan ng pagkalinga ng Iglesia ni Cristo sa mga magsasakang nawalaan ng lupa. Ito rin ay pioneering project na sinundan ng marami pang proyektong pabahay sa iba't-ibang dako ng bansa.

Gaya ng ama ko, ako rin ay nagkaroon ng karangalan na masaksihan ang mahalagang pabahay na tinayo ng Iglesia ni Cristo, doon naman sa Rodriguez sa Rizal.

Noong kapanahunan din ng aking ama, noong 1965, pinasinayaan ni Ka Erdie ang Felix Y. Manalo Memorial Puericulture Center and Maternity Clinic noong 1965. Ang klinikang yun ay lumaki nang lumaki, kaya't ang Iglesia ni Cristo ngayon ay mayroon nang world class New Era General Hospital. Sa ospital na yun nagkaroon din ako ng karangalan na bisitahin si Ka Erdie nung siya ay confined. Naalala ko doon sa isang pagbisita ko sa kaniya, nakapagbigay pa siya sa akin ng mahahalagang payo tungkol sa MNLF na sinunod ko naman. Kaya ngayon ay meron pa rin tayong kapayapaan sa Mindanao kahit na hindi pa natatapos ang ating peace talks.

Nang bawiin si Ka Erdie ng ating Panginoon, ito ay naganap sa mismong Araw ng mga Bayani ng Pilipinas, Agosto trenta'y uno. Marahil ay pahiwatig ito na si Ka Erdie Manalo ay dapat natin igalang, hindi lamang bilang huwarang tagapamahala ng Iglesia ni Cristo, kundi na rin bilang isang natatanging Pilipinong makakahanay ng mga bayani ng ating lahi.

At ako rin naman ngayon, gaya ng aking ama, malaking karangalan naman para sa inyong lingkod na sa aking panahon naman bilang pangulo ay naupo ang bagong pangkalahatang tagapamahala ng Iglesia ni Cristo si Ka Eduardo Manalo.

Pinahahalagahan ko ang mga payo at suporta ni Ka Eduardo gaya ng pagkahalaga ko sa mga magagandang payo at suporta ni Ka Erdie sa akin. Di ko makalimutan ang lubha kong kaligayahan, naalala ko noong 1995, nagkakampanya ako bilang senador nanduon ako sa Laguna malapit na ang halalan tapos pinakita sa akin nung mayor nung bayang pinuntahan ko yung sample ballot ng Iglesia ni Cristo. Ang laki ng tuwa ko, lumundag pa yata ako at sumigaw, dahil number one ako sa listahan ng mga senador, kaya maraming salamat sa 'yo.

Lagi kong damdamin ang pagpapasalamat sa matatag na suporta ng Iglesia sa akin bilang senador, bilang bise presidente, bilang pangulo. At lagi kong dala-dala ang mga aral na ipinamahagi ni Ka Erdie sa akin, hanggang sa maging pangulo ako. At ngayon, ganun di ang tiwala ko sa payo at suporta ni Ka Eduardo.

Kaya malaking karangalan para sa akin na maging panauhin dito sa ginagawa natin ngayon. Ipagdiwang natin ang pagpalabas nitong bagong selyo na nagpapa-alala sa atin ng kadakilaan ni Ka Erdie Manalo, isang dakilang Pilipino.

At batiin natin muli si Ka Eduardo na tiyak na maaasahan din ng bansa bilang huwarang tagapamahala at huwarang mamamayang Pilipino.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the launching ceremony of the Commemorative Stamp for brother Eraño G. Manalo. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080109/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27876&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of the Department of Health Program “Vaccine Against H1N1 for Health Workers” with awarding of certificates for the Botika ng Barangay Program

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching ceremony of the Department of Health Program “Vaccine Against H1N1 for Health Workers” with awarding of certificates for the Botika ng Barangay Program

[Delivered at the Municipal Gymnasium, Kalawit, Zamboanga del Norte, April 26, 2010]

Maraming salamat Secretary Cabral sa iyong pagpakilala at congratulations sa magaan mong kamay sa pagbigay ng vaccine.

Aton nga halangdong governor, Governor Yebe, daghan salamat sa imong welcome remarks ug Congressman Jalosjos, daghan salamat sab sa imong pag welcome; Congressman Cely Carreon, salamat nga ngi-uban ka karon kanunay naman kauban mi bisan sa mga laing barangay, mga laing distrito ug kan Vice Governor Olvis ug kan Mayor Baliling, salamat sa imo pag welcome kanamo; aton mga laing-laing mayors diri; aton mga kandidato; aton mga health workers; aton mga barangay officials; mga katawhan dinhi sa Kalawit, maayong udto kaninyong tanan.

Nalipay ko nga nakabisita na ko gayod kaninyo dinhi. Murag ingon ni Governor sa karon sa akong pagbisita, nabisita ko na tanan mga lungsod sa tibuok Zamboanga del Norte.

Ang aton pagduaw sa mga probinsya maoy importante nga trabaho sa panahon sa akon pagka presidente. Apan labaw pa nga importante, dili lang pagduaw ang aton gihimo kundili napuhunan sa mga probinsya labi na sa inyong probinsya. Tuyo nato nga ipahatag ang oportunidad sa kauswagan sa tibuok nasud, aron dili lang ang Manila ang makabenepisyo sa paglambo. Kinahanglan bawi-on ug mga probinsiya ang mga bentaha nga maoy kanunay matilawan sa elite sa Manila.

And, we are constantly gratified by the unprecedented numbers that really matter to the welfare and future of our people. Kauban ko karon dili lang si Secretary Cabral, nandito rin sa atin kasama si Secretary Vic Domingo of Public Works and si Secretary Jun Iban, Press Secretary. And Jun Iban can tell you about our nine and a half years of continuous economic growth despite kining niaging nine years dunay global oil shock, dunay giyera sa Middle East, dunay world financial crisis. But through all that, padayon ang kauswagan, ang growth rate sa atong nasud Pilipinas.

Ug karon milyun-milyon sa ordinaryong Pilipino gabiyahe na sa RORO Nautical Highway. Mas daghan kaayo kon i-compare nato sa mga niaging tuig. Ug diri, dinhi sa Zamboanga del Norte gipreyoridad nato ang pantalan sa Dapitan ug Dipolog. Dili ko pa makalimot sa unang giabre nato ang pantalan, RORO, sa Dapitan walay shipping company na gusto magbutang ug RORO boat didto kay lugi kuno. So, we forced them to do i. Karon, round the clock, di ba? Oras-oras naa na biyahe. So, nahimo na duol ang Zamboanga del Norte sa tibuok nasud.

Ug aron makabenepisyo naman ang tibuok probinsya nining atong RORO na nakaabot sa mga laing-laing lugar sa Pilipinas, ang Zamboanga del Norte labaw sab nga nakabenepisyo sa mga laing-laing proyekto sama sa ingon ni Governor ug ni Congressman ang ating Sibuco-Siraway-Siocon Baliguian sab ang SS-B Road na gapakusog sa produksyon ug kita sa mga mang-uuma diri sa distrito ni Cesar. Ang mga katawhan sa mga lungsod nga agi-an ug duol sa dalan sama diri sa Kalawit nga mahimo nang modala hangtod sa Dipolog, mahimo na modala sa Dipolog ang mga produkto... o sa Dapitan ug paagi sa Dipolog ug sa Dapitan sa RORO hangtod pa sa Cebu ug sa laing-laing lugar sa Pilipinas. So nahimo’g dako ang inyong palengke sa inyong mga produkto. Murag ingon sab ni Governor ug ni Congressman, nakahuman sab kita ug farm-to-market roads sa inyong probinsya, ug ang suma total sa atong farm-to-market roads sa inyong probinsya hapit na... ah, labaw pa sa 250 ka kilometro.

Busa sa una ang Zambo Norte ang labing kubos sa mga probinsya apan dili na karon, ug sa aton mga daghan pa mga nahimo'g proyekto sa mga umaabot na panahon makasigurado kita na mas daghan pa ang aton mga katawhan sa Zamboanga del Norte sa mograduate hangtod sa pagkakabus. Busa sukad sa mga nagsugod ang mga survey sa self-rated poverty katong mga nangutana, do you consider yourself poor? Sa atong administrasyon nahimo ang lowest self-rated poverty sa average tungod sa atong mga proyekto nining mga probinsya sama sa Zamboanga del Norte.

Gi-ingon sab ni Governor ug ni Congressman ang atong Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino program nga gisugdan ni Secretary Cabral nung siya ay nanduon pa sa Department of Social Welfare. Gahatag ang atong Pantawid Pamilya nga salapi sa labing kabus nga pamilya apan dunay sundon nga kundisyon sama sa pagsigurado nga gasulod sa eskwela ang mga bata. Ug usa pa nga kundisyon nga makapag-examine ang pamilya sa aton mga Rural Health Workers, aton mga Rural Health Units. Dinhi sa Zamboanga del Norte labaw sa 75,000 na ang gadawat ug benepisyo gikan sa atong Pantawid Pamilya.

Ug murag sab ingon ni Governor ug ni Congressman, ang mga barangay sa inyong probinsiya dunay koneksiyon na sa mga kuryente, daghan sa ila sa atong administrasyon. Kanina nangutana ako kon naa pay barangay, naa pa kuno gamay nga barangay na dili pa naton na electrify. So, sa pag human kining atong programa karon tawagon ko ang aton bag-o nga Secretary of Energy, si Nonoy Ibazeta, aron seguraduhon na katong mga barangay na wala pang kuryente ibutang nato ug kuryente.

Ang pagsiguro nga naa na sa maayong panglawas ang katawhan usa sab ka importanteng bahin sa atong agenda. Busa karong adlaw, gilunsad nato dinhi sa Kalawit ang usa ka programa alang sa tibuok nasud, kini ang programa sa DOH aron hatagan ang aton mga health workers ug libreng tambal kontra sa AH1N1 o Avian Flu. Espie, itong Avian Flu, it's also good for ordinary flu? Specifically for Avian Flu.

Ngano, kamo, ang aton mga health workers maabtik kaayo. Kamo gyud ang hinungdan kon ngano mulampos kita aron dili makasulod ug makahatag sa nasud ang mga international nga mga epidemic sama sa SARS o sa Avian Flu. Dako ang inyong sakripisyo matag adlaw kontra sa sakit sa inyong barangay samtang duol sab kamo kanunay sa peligro sa mga virus. Busa kinahanglan hatagan ug proteksiyon ang mga tawo nga gahatag kanato ug proteksiyon kontra sa mga sakit, busa gilunsad nato karon kining programa ug ang atong una nga beneficiary mao gyud ang aton mga health workers diri sa Kalawit.

Gusto sab nato hatagan kamo ug mga oportunidad aron nga makapalit kamo dayon ug mga baratong tambal. Busa karong adlaw, kining mga sertipikado kaganina nahatag kita ug sertipikado alang sa pag-abre ug Botika ng Barangay, ug kining mga kahon ang first seed capital sa mga Botika sa Barangay sa lima ka barangay diri Kalawit. Ang mga Botika sa Barangay sa inyong probinsiya mi-abot na sa hapit 200. Daghan sab ang taga-dinhi nga gi-apil sa programa sa PhilHealth sa inyo probinsya, 200,000, hapit 200,000 ang member sa Philhealth unta padayon kining ating mga programa sa mga sunod nga administrasyon.

Sa akong pagbisita sa naulahing lungsod sa Zamboanga del Norte na dili ko pa nabisita kaniadto, gusto ko gamiton kining okasyon apan pasalamaton kamong tanan, pasalamaton si Lando, si Cely, si Cesar sa ilang dako nga suporta kanako kanunay ug unta kanunay, kanunay kitang magkauban sa pagserbisyo sa nasud ug sa probinsya hangtod sa kahangturan.

Daghan salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the launching ceremony of the Department of Health Program "Vaccine Against H1N1 for Health Workers" with awarding of certificates for the Botika ng Barangay Program. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080058/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27884&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the 35th foundation day of the Philippine College of Hospital Administrators (PCHA)

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 35th foundation day of the Philippine College of Hospital Administrators (PCHA)

[Delivered at the Bayanihan Center, United Laboratories (UNILAB), April 27, 2010]

Thank you Secretary Cabral for your very kind introduction.

Thank you Mr. Lirio, president of the College; Dr. Morales; Dr. Hernandez; the officers and members of this very important College of Hospital Administrators, Happy 30th Foundation Day to all of you!

You know, I was telling Dr. Morales that when my... you know, presidents receive many invitations, and so we have a committee that takes care of it. Well, we got your invitation less than a month ago, so it was a little late and I had lots of previous engagement on this day. So the committee that handles my appointments turned it down but when I saw the list, I overruled them; I transferred one of my appointments to another day so that I could make it with you today.

And I guess one of the reasons is that: in our administration we put a lot of emphasis on health and so I wanted to be able to be with you so that we can work together or speak together or think together on how to promote health. And I'm very glad that our former Secretary of Social Welfare and Development, who used to be administrator of the Heart Center of the Philippines, is now our Secretary of Health, Secretary Espie Cabral.

The medical profession and the allied professions, including hospital administration, have been an effective partner of our administration. And I know how important it is to have a good hospital administration because my husband is in and out of the hospital. So, I thank you sincerely for your hard work in having good hospital services for our people.

I have been familiar with the concerns of the health services since I was young. We literally had a doctor in our house, my mother, the tukaya of Dr. Morales, Dr. Evangelina Macaraeg Macapagal. And she became a doctor because her mother had been very sickly. My grandfather's work as engineer during the American period both in the private sector and in the public sector necessitate that he would be assigned to different places in the country. He was assigned first to the Department of Public Works in Tayabas and then he joined the private sector. He went to Zamboanga where he founded a branch in Gingoog then he went back to the public sector and he went to Cebu. And everytime my father was assigned to a new place, the first thing they would do because my grandmother was so sickly, was to look for a good hospital. That's how important hospitals are in the lives of people especially the many people who are sickly. And I am sure your hospitals have also played an important role in the lives of people the way it played an important role in the life of my own grandmother.

And my mother would always say, and you know this for a fact and you tell everybody this I'm sure, that the people's health means wealth for a nation aspiring to be economically strong. Every effort that they expend to promote our people's health contributes to our advancement as a nation and conversely, we are faced by the reality that only a strong economy can best improve the plight of the poor and provide for their needs, including health care.

Sabi ni Dr. Morales parang nag-i-identify ito sa akin because the job of a president is about as hard as the job of a hospital administrator. It's very difficult, in other words, a very difficult job. And in a sense, I was also in the hospital business in the early years of my presidency tending however to one really sick patient — our economy.

And as you have gone a long way over the last 35 years, I think we can also say that the Philippines have come a long way since January of 2001. Time has gratefully erased many memories of that tumultuous time less than ten years ago, when the nation teetered on political chaos and financial bankruptcy.

It was a time of few jobs, lower salaries, high inflation. Due to insufficient revenues, investments had... insufficient investments had been made to expand healthcare or provide clean water which is needed for good health for our people.

Into this dismal picture we stepped. I did not seek the Office of the President in 2001; it was thrust upon me. But rather than shirk from this onerous task, I rolled up my sleeves, determined to turn the Philippines around.

We were focused like a laser beam on delivering real results to better the lives of ordinary Filipinos. As an economist, I knew that to reverse economic decline we had to instill fiscal discipline, grow the economy, and invest in human and physical infrastructure.

From day one, these actions would form the building blocks of a turnaround that would deliver 37 consecutive quarters of growth, the creation of nine million new jobs, and I guess important for you, the addition of 50 million members to healthcare, so that they can help... the government can help pay for the bills of these people even in private hospitals such as yours. And we were able to do that and still have a stable fiscal situation.

Because I have never shied away from taking on tough issues. Most notably, my popularity dipped when I went against the grain and championed the passing of the EVAT which is what funds our Philhealth. I knew it would be unpopular, but someone had to get the nation's fiscal house in order and bring in revenues to invest in the people. It was the right thing to do. It has served the people well.

So we are constantly gratified by the unprecedented numbers that really matter for the welfare and future of our people: Nine and a half years of continuous economic growth, despite the fact that over these nine years, we've had global oil shocks, wars in the Middle East, world financial crisis, and now millions of ordinary Filipinos also travel the RORO Nautical Highways.

And tonight, if you're going to watch the ANC Forum on the Economy, you will see ADB testifying there that poverty incidence in our country decreased from 33% in 2001 to 28% today, despite the increase in the population and the global crisis.

In the health sector, where did we spend our EVAT money? Our stable government coffers resulted in the biggest investments in the country's history. The Department of Health budget rose from P10 billion before my administration to P29 billion this year. And that doesn't include the billions we have put in for water which we have put under the Oversight of the Department of Health because there's a very close relationship between clean water and the health of the people.

Now, talking about Philhealth which I think is our biggest connection to you — the private hospitals. When this administration started in 2001, there were less than 8 million people enrolled in Philhealth. And that's because they were salaried employees, so it's part of their medicare. Barely 400,000 were indigents where their premium was paid for by the government in accordance with the Philhealth law.

So when I became President, we set ourselves a target to cover 500,000 new beneficiaries every year, where we have achieved not 500,000 new beneficiaries every year, which should have been five million for the past ten years, but 50 million new beneficiaries instead. And from 400,000 indigent families, five million families or 25 million individuals are now members of Philhealth, because our Philhealth membership coverage has been expanded to include retirees, non-pensioners, overseas workers and also the indigents that the government must pay for.

We have also improved some 70 government hospital facilities. But I always tell our DOH, we don't want to put the money for improvement of facilities in big hospitals where there are already private hospitals because Philhealth should cover that. We should put our upgrading money there in the far-flung barangays for rural health units to become clinics, for clinics to become primary hospitals, for primary care hospitals to become secondary. That's where we should put the money so that we can have a good symbiotic and mutually reinforcing relationship with each other.

For example, I don't think that you would be interested in putting up a hospital in some remote town like Lope de Vega of Norther Samar — that's where we should improve on the facilities there. Now, I suppose private sector would be interested in developing hospitals in Catarman where there is a big town. Then that's not where we should put up our facilities there. In other words, we want the private hospitals to thrive because that's part of a good economy and we want to help you through our Philhealth.

We also want to help you make the medicines affordable to your clients, your patients. When they are confined, I think medicines are included in the coverage of Philhealth. But when they're outpatients they're not covered. So, therefore you should have, you should be able to give them prescriptions for medicines they can afford.

And even before the passage of the Cheaper Medicines Act of 2008, we already established the Botika ng Barangay and Botika ng Bayan system in order to offer our countrymen and women medicines commonly used by the poor at prices half of what they were in 2001.

And I am glad that we are here in a UNILAB facility because I want to acknowledge UNILAB, because when we had our program that we announced way back in 2001 of bringing down medicines commonly used by the poor to one-half of what they used to be, UNILAB was one of the first to respond and they put up the Ritemed medicine (applause) which is in fact one-half or even less the price of what the medicines where in 2001.

Part of our public health expenditure also has been to deploy more than 200 physicians to doctorless municipalities, also nurses more than 10,000 have been mobilized in 1,200 poor cities and municipalities. This is our NARS (Nurses Assigned in Rural Service). In that way, we not only improve health services of a particular poor municipality, we also create new jobs, and most of these nurses we send there are those that are recent graduates or they just got their license and you're not ready to hire them yet because they don't have experience yet. So they get an experience in the province so that after they finish their six months — Espie, 'no? — then hopefully, they will be able to have a better chance of landing a job in your hospitals.

Because of all of these things that we have done, where almost half of the world's economies, even strong nations were in the sick bay, we were able to make progress.

Yes, we have made progress, but more needs to be done.

And while I am proud of what our government has achieved, past achievement is only as good as the ability of the nation to continue to grow and prosper. That's why I congratulate you on your theme: "Looking Forward to a Healthier Tomorrow."

I fervently desire that the progress we have made will not stop. Because as a nation, and you as a profession, we must keep our sights firmly set on the future, to build on what is good and work even harder to meet the challenges of what remains to be done.

So, it is really fitting that the Hospital Administrator should look forward to a healthier tomorrow. And may this Congress help you move forward to that healthier tomorrow.

Mabuhay kayo! at maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 35th foundation day of the Philippine College of Hospital Administrators (PCHA). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080051/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27885&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the Groundbreaking Ceremony of the Manila North Tollways Corporation (MNTC) Project Segment 9

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Groundbreaking Ceremony of the Manila North Tollways Corporation (MNTC) Project Segment
9

[Delivered in Valenzuela City, April 30, 2010]

Thank you very much Secretary Domingo for your very kind introduction.

Congratulations to Manny Pangilinan and Mr. Fernandez and all their colleagues, partners, financiers of this very important project. Congratulations also to Congressman Magi Gunigundo at lahat ng mga Valenzuela na makikinaabang dito sa proyektong ito. Sabi nga ni Congressman Gunigundo this will lead to exponential progress in the City of Valenzuela and the surrounding areas, congratulations! Kaya sa ating lahat magandang tanghali at congratulations!

Gaya nga nang sinabi ni Ginoong Fernandez kanina, isang taon na ang nakaraan tayo ay narito, Abril 2009, magkasama tayo sa groundbreaking ng bagong proyekto imprastraktura na ito at ito ang tinatawag nilang Segment 8.1 ng NLEX. Eh para sa ating mga laymen, ano yung Segment 8.1? Yan ang Valenzuela exit, hindi ba, na layuning tumulong sa pagkonekta ng NLEX at SLEX sa pamamagitan ng C5. Yan ang importansya nitong 8.1 para sa atin. At tulad nang binalak natin noong nakaraang taon, nagawa itong bahagi ng NLEX-SLEX connection sa labingdalawang buwan, kaya congratulations!

Bagamat it will be opened to the general public in one month's time, itong araw na ito, dadaan tayo dito sa Segment 8.1 at susundan natin yung ruta na sinabi ni Ginoong Fernandez that should make it only 15 minutes from NLEX to SLEX at least yung bahaging tapos na pupunta tayo ng Mindanao Avenue Underpass, pupunta tayo ng Luzon Avenue, ganun ba yun Vic? Pero doon titigil muna yung ating joyride dahil under construction ngayon yung overpass naman from Luzon Avenue na crossing over Commonwealth hanggang Katipunan, at yan ay matatapos sabi ni Vic Domingo ng June 15. Kaya pag natapos yun June 15 yun na nga yung 15 minutes travel from NLEX to SCTEX.

Today's event attest to the strong partnership between our government and the private sector in building one of the most important of our infrastructure programs, eto ang tinatawag nating Luzon Urban Beltway from Tarlac to Batangas Port, or from Subic Port to Batangas Port. This is central to the network of transport infrastructure that our government has embarked on in 2001 to link the entire country.

Eto ang ginagawa ng NLEX etong exit pati na rin yung pinalawak na NLEX nung mga nakaraang buwan at taon at yung pagtayo ng SCTEX dito sa North. Doon naman sa South, yung improvement ng SLEX at yung pagtayo ng STAR (Southern Tagalog Arterial Road), those are important elements of the Luzon Urban Beltway ngunit ang kailangan ay ipagdugtong sila.

The NLEX which belongs to the Metro Pacific Group and the SLEX were built and improved by the private sector, whereas, the SCTEX and the STAR were built by the government. And now this SLEX-NLEX connection will also be a combination because this Valenzuela exit for the Segment 8.1 is private sector, whereas, the Mindanao-Luzon Avenue and overpass will be the private sector going to C5 and going to SLEX which is private sector again.

This is one way by which we will make the Luzon Urban Beltway seamless but what we are groundbreaking now is a second way to make the Luzon Urban Beltway seamless kasi itong grinoundbreak natin ngayon in a year and a half's time makokonekta itong Valenzuela exit hanggang sa North Harbor. Tapos nuon yung North Harbor ay ikokonekta naman ni Manny sa Skyway na halos tapos na rin and the Skyway goes all the way to SLEX. So there will be two connections between NLEX and SLEX. That will make two ways to have the seamless Luzon Urban Beltway kaya lalong ginhawa ang biyahe sa buong Pilipinas at sa loob naman ng Metro Manila lalong ginhawa ang congestion at lalong lalago ang Bayan Lungsod ng Valenzuela.

And all of these will help our vision of a Philippines on the verge of first world in twenty years. Kaya maraming, maraming salamat to Manny and the Metro Pacific Group. And congratulations to DPWH, Magi and the people of Valenzuela. To all of us congratulations!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the Groundbreaking Ceremony of the Manila North Tollways Corporation (MNTC) Project Segment 9. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080039/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27900&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo on Labor Day

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
On Labor Day

[Delivered on May 1, 2010]

Kay Secretary Nitoy Roque sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin at gusto ko rin magpasalamat kay Brother Victorino Balais, ang kinatawan ng mga manggagawa sa SSS sa inyong panukala para ngayon at sa darating na panahon. Gusto ko rin batiin si Allan Montaña ang Federation of Free Workers, si Renator Robles ng Alliance of Filipino workers mga OFW ang kinakatawan ninyo? Si Rico Hermoso ng ... congratulations sa nanalo ninyong kasapi; si Sister Bernadette de Guzman na tumutulong sa mga migrante; si Brother ... ng Alliance of Workers sa Informal Economy at nakatanggap ng certificate para sa training vouchers sa mga kasapi, si Espie Ocampo ng PGEA, si Leonardo Desierto ng Alliance of Independent Union in Hotels and Restaurants, ibat-ibang mga lider at member ng National Labor Groups, ang ating host dito si Tessie Sy-Coson of SM Group na andami daming trabaho ang naibigay at sa mga dakilang manggagawang Pilipino na kinakatawan ninyo isang mainit na pagbati sa Labor Day!

Ito'y araw ng pasasalamat sa dakilang manggagawang Pilipino. Nagbubunyi at nagdidiriwang tayo para sa lahat ng nagawa ng ating mga dakilang manggagawa tungo sa pag-unlad ng bansa. Ito'y araw ng pasasalamat sa inyong lahat, kasi nga ang tema "Kaagapay sa Pagbabago" Salamat sa inyong pag aagapay sa pagbabago, mga katuwang tungo sa kaunlaran. Itong araw din ng pasasalamat sa lahat ng mga tumulong upang magtagumpay ang mga manggagawa sa inyong mga adhikain sa loob ng siyam na taon. Nariyan ang mga kinatawan ng inyong mga employer, nariyan rin ang mga katawan ng pamahalaan dahil tripartite ang ating patakaran sa ating administrasyon.

Marami ang sinabi ni Dan na kailangang gawin at nagbigay ng kanyang at inyong panukala or five-year plan para maibayo pa ang kalagayan ng manggagawa dito. Ngunit nagpapasalamat ako din ako sa kanya na kinilala naman niya na marami na rin tayong nagawa nitong ating administrasyon.

Kasi talaga naman napakalaki ang agwat ng kalagayan noong Enero 2001 at ngayon. Harinawang nabura na ng panahon sa isipan ang mga masasakit na ala-ala ng panahong iyon, kung saan magulung magulo ang ating pulitika at nasa bingit tayo ng pagka-bangkrote.

Noong panahon nuon 2001, walang gustong mamuhunan at kayat halos walang bagong trabahong nalilikha. Panahon iyong ng kawalan ng trabaho, maliit na maliit na sweldo at mataas na mataas na inflation. Ang utang ng bansa ay mas malaki pa kaysa sa ating GDP nung panahong iyon at manipis at halos sagad na ang ating foreign reserves nung panahong iyon.

Nung ako ay napasok bilang pangulo alam ko, bilang ekonomista, na dapat pigilan ang palabas na daloy ng salapi at kumilos agad upang mapalaki ang pondo ng bansa. Sa madaling salita, kinailangan ng mga mahigpit na repormang masakit man ngunit magbigigay naman ng pangmatagalang kaunlaran sa huli.

Isinulong ko ang mga reporma sa gitna ng batigos. Isinakripisyo ko maging ang aking popularidad upang maisagawa ang reporma sa ekonomiya at kaban ng bansa. Ngunit nagagalak naman ako na marami sa mga sector ng manggagawang kinakatawan ngayon ay kabilang sa mga unang nagbigay ng suporta sa akin. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Mula sa simula, itong mga gawaing sinuporta ninyo at ang inyong napakalaking tulong ay humubog ng building blocks ng pagbabago na naghahatid ng 37 quarters ng sunod-sunod na paglago ng ekonomiya, at paglikha ng siyam na milyong bagong trabaho, nung panahong iyon nung pumasok ako 27 million ang may trabaho ngayong 36 million na siyam na trabaho ang naibigay. Ibig sabihin nun sa siyam na taon ng aking pagka pangulo ay mga isang milyon average nabilang ng Pilipino ang nagkaron ng trabaho kung ikukumpara natin ito nung panahon mula 1987 hanggang 2000 ang average na trabahong nalilikha nuon ay lumalampas lang ng konti sa half a million workers. So ang ating job creation sa ating panahon ay almost double sa job creation nung mga nakaraang mga tatlong administrasyon.

Ginagalang natin yung mga sinabi ni Brother Vic at sisikapin natin na ipagtrabaho yun at sa mga darating na mga panahon pero gusto ko ring hayaan ninyo ulitin din ang sinabi ng Vice President TUCP na si dating Congressman Alex Villaviza nung isang araw. Tinukoy niya halimbawa nakatulong ang workers income augmentation program natin ... kasapi ng unyon sa mga nawalan ng trabaho, sa on formal sector at kanilang mga pamilya, yung mga binigay natin na mga tseke kanina o yung mga binigyan natin ng awards yun ang mga outstanding workers enterprises eto ay isang malaking nagawa natin nung ating panahon.

Yung mga nawalan ng trabaho yung expats livelihood fund nung nagkaron ng global economic crisis nawawalan ng trabaho sa Dubai, nawalan ng trabaho sa Taiwan naglaan tayo ng 1 billion pesos na pondo para sa mga mawawalaan ng trabaho. At salamat sa Panginoon 200 million lamang ang kinailangan so far kaya meron pa tayong pondo doon kaya kanina nagbigay tayo ng pondo dito sa ating napakagandang dilag sa harap at tinanong ko ano ang ... saan ka nga naggaling... sa Riyadh. At ngayon ay nakapagpatayo ng beauty salon sa Payatas sa pamamagitan ng ating Workers Enterprise at Expat Livelihood Support Fund.

Kaya ngayon gusto ko ngang bisitahin sa Pagadian yung hotel na tinayo ng mga... pinatatakbo ng mga workers mismo siguro pupuntahan ko yun sa Pagadian itong Tuesday. Sisikapin kong ayusin ang aking schedule... Kasi nakikita natin ang mga microenterprises o maging medium enterprises na pinapatakbo ng mga manggagawa hindi lamang yung hotel hindi lamang yung beauty parlor mga botikang nagbebenta ng generic at murang gamut; produksyon ng organic fertilizer na tumutulong ning lumikha ng trabaho, at itong maganda sa organic fertilizer hindi lamang trabaho tinitiyak ang sustenableng kapaligiran at naglilikha ng luntiang trabaho, at pag-iawas sa climate change; nakapagbigay din tayo sa mga manggagawa ng bigas na may diskwento, at mga tindahan, at marami pang iba.

Si Vic ay kasapi ng SSS siguro naaalala niya nung nagkaron ng malubhang kalagayan nung tumaas ng presyo ng mga nung nagkaron tayo ng oil crisis yata... sinagot ng mga employer ng SSS yung pagtaas ng SSS premium. Bunga yun ng ating Tripartism. At ngayon naman dahil nagkaron naman ng global economic crisis nagpanukala yung mga manggagawa ng amnestiya sa SSS at Pag-Ibig at ito ay tinupad natin.

Sana marami sa inyo ang nakinabang doon sa amnestiya ng SSS at Pag-Ibig at kanina nagulat nga yung mga labor lider dito yung mga lider na tumitindig tumatanggap ng certificate eto ay yung para sa TESDA ang pondo ng TESDA para sa skills training ay nakapag-pwesto ng maraming kabataan sa mga trabahong hinahandog, kasama na dito ang BPO maging ang TUCP di ba meron kayong training para sa BPO pati market vendors natutunan ma training para sa BPO. Dito sa sistema ng TESDA pati sa scholarships, sa mga private training institutions sa ating administrasyon, lumampas sa 11 million ang mga graduates ng iba't ibang skills and livelihood training.

Dumami ang mga trabahong matataas ng sweldo gaya nga ng BPO IT at iba pa at kahit na sa karaniwang manggagawa, bagamat marami pa ang hamon halos taon-taon nakapagtaas ng sweldo.

At dito sa inyong hiling na dapat magtaas muli ng sweldo ay merong ongoing talks para sa tripartite kaya sinasabi ko kay Secretary Nitoy Roque na ang isang career labor official Nitoy siguro gawin mo ang paraan kung papano mas mapapabilis itong ating tripartite na pag-uusap tungkol sa minimum wage.

Gusto ko lang rin maabot sa kaaalaman ninyo pabor sa ating manggagawa ng minimum wage ngayon kumpara sa ibang bansa sa rehiyon. Ang buwanan pasahod dito ay depende sa rehiyon $148 hanggang $256, eto ay mas mataas kaysa sa mga minimum wage ng Vietnam, China, Indonesia at Thailand kung tutuusin niyo Thailand, Indonesia at China mas mayaman kaysa sa atin pero mas mataas ang ating sweldo. Aat nagpapareho na rin ang ating sweldo sa Malaysia na di hamak rin mas mayaman kaysa sa atin.

Ganunpaman, gusto natin na gaya nang sabi ni Brother Vic maramdaman ng manggagawa na nakikinabang siya sa kaunlaran kaya bilisan natin ang pag-uusap ng wage increase.

Pero isa rin na sana maunawaan kung maaalala natin na nanatiling mababa ang ating inflation sa loob ng ating administrasyon, kaya masangat ang kalagayan ng ating manggagawa kaysa doon sa mga karatig nating bansa na nagdudusa ng mataas na inflation.

At para naman sa mga manggagawa ng gobyerno, Espie di ba pinatupad natin ang Salary Standardization Law. At napakataas na ilang beses ng tumaas at tataas pa rin dahil for the next three years nagawa na natin ang batas para 2010, 2011, 2012 tataas ang sweldo ng manggagawa sa ating pamahalaan.

Nung nagkaroon ng global economic crisis ay nagkaron tayo ng emergency employment program gaya ng CLEEP, OYSTER, NARS tumulong din sa paglikha ng trabaho.

At yung mga pondo nga ng TESDA para sa pagsasanay ay naglagay ang libo-libong mga kabataan sa mga trabahong hinahandog ng trabaho mercado linagay nito ang mahihirap at maraming kabataan sa higit na bentahang kalagayang punuin ang mga trabahong naghahanap ng manggagawa.

At nung nakikita natin na may darating na krisis nung panahon na tumataas ang presyo ng pagkain nung 2008, naisabatas natin Tax Relief Package Law of 2008 na huwag nang pabayaran ng income tax ang minimum wage earners at at iba pang parehong kita; kaya ngayon pag minimum wage ang inyong binabayaran hindi na kayo babayad ng income tax. So yun din ay inyo ng income pandagdag sa inyong kita.

Meron ding batas na nagpapalakas sa karapatan ng mga manggagawang mag-organisa ng sarili; at yung Magna Carta ng Kababaihan na hinahangad tiyakin ang pagkapatay ng mga babae at lalaki; at ang batas na humahangad na mawala ang mga pinakamalupit na trabaho ng mga bata; at meron din tayong nagawang batas na kontra sa trafficking ng kababaihan at bata; at yung Migrant Workers Act dinadagdagan ng proteksyon at serbisyo sa mga OFW.

Dun naman sa ating kasunduan sa ibang bansa pinagtibay natin ang tatlong importanteng kasunduan ng ILO: tungkol sa pilit na trabaho at dalawang kasunduan tungkol sa mga migrante. Kaya sa lansangan nang pagpapatupad ng ILO conventions ang Pilipinas ay kabilang sa ito ang Pilipinas ay kabilang sa mga lider ng Asya at Pacific.

Ang ating mga patakaran ay binigyan ng kapangyarihan ang pagkakatawan ng uring manggagawa sa iba't ibang mga ahensiya ng pamahalaan halimbawa nga yung SSS at iba pang antas ng mekanismo at proseso ng paggagawa ng desisyon.

Yung NLRC Tripartite idn yun yung binabanggit merong malalim na ginamit na salita si Brother Vic hindi ko na maalala ... pero tinanong ko anong ibig sabihin nun? Ang sabi niya yung magandang ginawa niyoni Secretary Roque nasasapawan nung labor injustice ta pinag-usapan natin anong ibig sabihin nun... sabi ni Allan yung NLRC kasi andami daming layers kaya matagal na matagal ang proseso. Pero sabi ni Nitoy Roque sa ngayon at naka appoint tayo ng 46 na labor arbiters mas bumibilis na ngayon ang proseso. Kaya inaasahan natin na yung sumasapaw sa ating ginagawa na labor injustice ay yun din ay matutugunan na ngayon sa NLRC system.

Tutoo na marami pa ring hamon para sa katarungan para sa manggagawa at kailan lang nagtayo tayo ng Tripartite High-Level Monitoring Body upang tingnan ang mga mahihirap na kaso ng unyon at manggagawa. Ito ang halimbawan ng katotohanang mas pinalakas na ngayon ang tripartism.

Kaya ang 37 quarters nating walang-patid ng paglago ng ekonomiya ay bunga ng ating mga reporma hindi lamang sa ekonomiya kundi na rin para sa manggagawa, at bunga na rin ng inyong malasakit. Nagmula sa pawis ng manggagawa ang natamasa nating pag-angat.

Pinasalamatan kayo sa inyong mahalagang kontribusyon upang mapanatili rin sa mahabang panahon ang industrial peace. Salamat at mas marami ang sumasang-ayon ngayon ng mas mabilis, mas maganda, at katanggap-tanggap ang paglutas sa mga di-pagkakaunawaan kung nanggagaling ito sa maayos na usapan at hindi dinadaan sa gulo.

Noong 1998, halos tatlong daan ang strikes. Dumami ba ang trabaho? Ngayon... nakaraang taon, apat na lamang ang strikes dumami ang trabaho, tumataas ang sahod at patuloy ang dapat usapan sa Tripartite Wage Board.

Ikinararantal ko ang maging Pangulo ng ibang bansang binubuo ng mahuhusay na hiuwaran ng kadakilaan ng manggagawa katulad ninyo.

Kaya sa dakilang manggagawang Pilipino, maraming maraming salamat sa pagkakataong maglingkod sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080031/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27897&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 112th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Navy

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 112th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Navy

[Delivered at the Philippine Navy Headquarters, Roxas Blvd., Manila, May 11, 2010]

Thank you.

Thank you Secretary Gonzales for your introduction.

General Bangit; Vice Admiral Golez; the men and women of the Navy, the Fleet and the Marines; our awardees, ladies and gentlemen.

Mabuhay ang lahat ng kasapi ng Hukbong Dagat ng Pilipinas at Maligayang Anibersaryo!

Congratulations to our awardees and congratulations to our Navy Flag-Officer-in-Command, who will celebrate his 56th birthday soon, Vice Admiral Ferdinand Golez. Congratulations also to all his predecessors as Philippine Navy FOIC especially those who served since 2001.

You have presided over a sea-change in the Navy which started with the revisiting of your principles as I ordered early in my first term, and which came alongside our pursuit of modernization of the Navy over the years. The reforms in the Navy and indeed in the entire AFP resulted in re-energized personnel using better weapons and facilities. I was happy to see your state of the art communication services today. I was happy to see the equipment that you have put together, some of them that you have fashioned yourselves in order to save our people from the disasters of the past and disasters yet to come because of climate change.

I am happy to see what you have done with what other countries have helped us in naval assets. And I recall with gratification how we were able to provide all kinds of needed naval assets from the cyclone, which the U.S. government gave us during my first official visit in 2001, up to the rubber boat and now your new material boats which you need not only for rescue but for your battles in that many rivers and seaways of our archipelago. I cannot forget how we were so frustrated by the fact that the enemy would have faster boats than we and it was because we were concentrating our purchases on the bigger boats and realizing the need for the smaller boats in the waterways. But we were hampered because the procedure for buying a small rubber boat of a million pesos or less was the same procedure after buying one of the big BRPs.

So, when I was acting Secretary of National Defense, I decentralized the procurement of assets of one million pesos or less to our field commanders precisely so that you can buy those smaller but faster seacraft that can defeat our enemies.

Now, we have a trimmer yet meaner Philippine Navy, Philippine Fleet and Philippine Marines capable of doing battle against enemies of the state as well as against poverty and against natural disasters which as I said will be coming in greater frequency and intensity with climate change.

Our Navy's achievements make me proud to have been your Commander-in-Chief. You have shown that the Navy can well defend our people's rights and liberty against all manner of modern-day threats, whether homegrown like Abu Sabaya or offshore like the poachers that try to raid our seas off the shores of Palawan.

That battle which resulted in the fall of Abu Sabaya was spectacular. In fact, it has found its way into the annals of U.S. Doctrine, so congratulations for that! But we have had many other great victories, some of them participated in by some of our awardees today in Basilan, in Mantangguli, in Palawan which some day will become one of our premiere tourist attractions, but first we need you there to rid that island of the enemies of the state. And there is your Coast Watch together with the U.S. and also your joint patrols together with our neighbors in Southeast Asia.

And because I am so proud of all these that you have done, we listened attentively to the plans and visions of Admiral Golez even as he talked about his accomplishment. And I would like to say on this your anniversary, that I am very supportive of the intention of the Navy to procure your multi-role vessels.

I am happy to say that today on your anniversary, this is a great day for the Navy, and yesterday was a great day for our nation: the votes are coming in and the election was free, fair and open. Our democracy is strengthened by the power of the ordinary Filipinos who exercised their constitutional right to vote to shape the direction of our nation.

The new electronic voting was a great leap forward for ensuring a smooth and protected vote. I would like to think that it was a fulfillment of the automation that we pushed for from the start of our presidency. Since my first State of the Nation Address in 2001, I have asked Congress to finance the full computerization of elections. In the acronym BEAT-THE-ODDs which summarizes our 10-point medium-term agenda, the 'A' in the BEAT-THE-ODDs stands for automating our electoral process. We made it one of the top ten goals of our agenda because it is vital to national harmony. So to all who made automation a reality and a success, congratulations!

A true hallmark of a strong, functioning democracy is a smooth transition to a new government. As Admiral Golez will transition to a new leader of the Navy, so does the entire government soon.

The people deserve to have their new leaders and old leaders put aside politics and focus on the future and the business of governing. So, I call on the Navy and everyone else in our government: let us do everything in our power to make sure the new government has the benefit, from day one, of a strong, stable government ready to continue working on behalf of the people it was elected to serve.

You of the Armed Forces have once again done your part to ensure that our elections are safe from interference and to protect the sanctity of the ballot box. For your vigilance during the election, and of course, for every day you serve to protect the freedom. Thank you and congratulations!

As we wait for COMELEC and or Congress to officially determine the election winners, let us all respect the work that the dedicated men and women of COMELEC are carrying out. No matter which candidates emerge victorious, we must all respect the outcome and work with these newly elected officials to take our country forward.

We must now turn our sights to preparing for a new president, a new congress, and a new set of local government officials. To ensure a smooth transition to a new government, I am putting our government at the disposal of the incoming leadership. To that end, I have instructed Executive Secretary Leandro Mendoza to lead our Administration's Transition Cooperation Team and to work closely with representatives of the next president to ensure a peaceful, orderly and effective transition on the 30th of June.

Our goal is to support a process that will help the next president hit the ground running as soon as they take office. The next president and his Cabinet, they will be assuming tremendous responsibility. We all need to do what we can to support them. Part of that responsibility includes serving as Commander-in-Chief and working with all sectors of our Armed Forces to ensure peace and order and protecting our shores from external aggression.

I count on you, the men and women of the Philippine Navy, and all other sectors of our Armed Forces to give the new Commander-in-Chief the same support and cooperation you have given me during my tenure as President of the Republic of the Philippines. And I take this opportunity to thank you for that support to me.

You have honored our country with your commitment to our Constitution. And so let us proceed with the transition.

Upon my instructions to Secretary Mendoza has already begun the transition process. He has prepared an Administrative Order which I have signed creating the Presidential Transition Cooperation Team. He is preparing the first draft of the transition blueprint for our discussion at today's Cabinet meeting right after these ceremonies.

We hand over to the next Administration a nation that has a strong momentum on a number of fronts. We have been able to provide 37 quarters of consecutive growth in the Philippine economy since we took office. There is no other economic record in our nation's modern history to match our overall economic performance. Nine million new jobs were created; 85% of the nation is now enrolled in the Philhealth system; we have built a hundred thousand new classrooms; the Internet and computers in high schools are now part of everyday life for many of our youth.

Ours is the only administration with a stronger peso at the end of our term than in the beginning. Our reforms fended off the global economic recession of the last two years and gave us the resources to spend on stronger safety nets for the very poor. This probably explains why the latest survey indicated a tremendous drop in self-rated poverty — the lowest in 30 years — even though the global economic slump was not yet over.

We have increased the pay of the great Filipino worker, whether in the private sector or in the government, including the military, the Navy, the Fleet, the Marines. In 2001, a private in the Navy received P5,000 basic pay; today, he receives almost P11,000 and can look forward to the next round of salary increase under the Salary Standardization Law we passed in our administration to take effect in the middle of this year, and which provides for a yearly increase until 2012.

Likewise, an ensign in the Navy, who had a monthly basic pay of P12,000 in 2001, will get almost P24,000 starting the middle of this year. And that goes all across the board among different ranks. There have also been non-wage benefits, some mentioned by Admiral Golez, others more general to the Armed Forces like housing such as those in Camp Claudio in Parañaque and Sangley Point in Tanza in Cavite.

And as we leave you, our men and women of the Navy, the Fleet, the Marines, we reiterate that we are committed to doing what is required during this transition to give the next team the support they need to keep our country moving forward.

I remember the first time I joined you as president to celebrate your anniversary, I was full of praise for the Philippine Navy, and I can say nine years later, you have not disappointed me. Maraming salamat.

Today, I give you my sincere thanks for the deeds of heroism and loyalty that showed your fidelity to our Constitution and the chain of command, and your readiness to defend our freedom, our democracy and our Republic.

So brave men and women of the Navy, sail on. Continue to be victorious as you defend our seas, our 7,107 islands, and our people.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Mabuhay ang Navy!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 112th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Navy. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080023/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27947&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during a new town visit: Siruma, Camarines Sur

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a new town visit: Siruma, Camarines Sur

[Delivered in Siruma, Camarines Sur, May 13, 2010]

Maraming salamat.

Thank you very much Secretary Ray Chua, ang ating Chairman ng Commission on ICT sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin.

Maraming salamat rin kay Mayor Nonito Vier sa inyong magandang pagsasalita upang ipahayag ang mainit niyong pagtanggap sa inyong lingkod. Thank you. Kasama ko rin ngayon si Undersecretary Ramon Bacani ng Department of Education. Sa inyong lahat, mga mamamayan ng Siruma, Dios marahay nga aga sa indo gabus!

Sabi ni Mayor Vier ako raw ang unang pangulo na nakapagbisita sa inyo, mabuti na rin pala na nabigo ako nung balak kong pumunta dito bilang senador kasi pupunta na ako sana dito nakaschedule na pero sumama ang panahon. Eh alam naman niyo malayo ang Siruma, mahaba ang biyahe, bundok ang dinadaan kaya hindi ako nakatuloy dito. Kaya sabi ko bago naman ako umalis sa national politics dapat makabisita ako sa Siruma, kaya nung hindi ako nakapunta dito bilang senador, nakapunta naman ako dito bilang presidente. Kaya ako ay nakaranas na yung kahirapan nang makapunta dito at yun na nga dahil malayo kayo sa Naga, six hours ang biyahe raw, bundok kasi ang dinadaan at tapos madalas pa kayong daanan ng bagyo, yun na nga ang dahilan kung bakit hindi natuloy ang aking biyahe kahit na nanduon ako sa Naga noon.

Kaya sinama ko ngayon si Director ng DPWH, si Danny Manalang. Saan siya? Yun, kasi pinag-usapan ko sa kanya papano natin mapapadali naman yung biyahe patungong Siruma. Eh bundok kasi yun ang problema. Eh hindi ba kahit na Baguio malayo talaga ang biyahe dahil bundok kaso talagang mula sa Manila so... sabi ko pero sana naman huwag masyadong maputik yung daanan. So kulang siguro ang pag mantini kaya inatasan ko si Director Danny Manalang kumuha ng pondo mula sa Road Board para maayos ang inyong maintenance ng inyong bundok. Malayo ito at maliit ang populasyon so ang maaring magagawa ayon sa cost benefit analysis yung road re-gravelling man lang, yun ang dapat nating gawin para tiyakin na hindi kayo parating pinuputikan at mahirap magbiyahe.

Gaya nang sabi ni Mayor kayo ay nasisiyahan na ako'y narito kahit na nasa huling mga buwan ng aking administrasyon kasi tuloy nating pinapairal ang aktibong pamamahala hanggang sa araw na iwanan ko ang panungkulan. At para diyan tatlo ang ating tinutukoy: Una, dagdagan ang kapangyarihan at kaunlaran na dinadala sa mga rehiyon palayo sa dominansya ng Maynila. Pangalawa, patuloy na itataguyod ang halaga ng tatlong 'E' — edukasyon, ekonomiya at environment, sa ating mga pagsisikap para lumikha ng tuloy-tuloy at pantay-pantay na kaunlaran. At pangatlo, tuloy-tuloy na tutok sa kabataan ng bansa bilang ating pinaka pag-asa para sa mas matinag, mas magandang Pilipinas.

Nakaunlad tayo sa maraming larangan, halimbawa dito sa Bicol, nagbuhos tayo sa Bicol ng maraming programa upang maging madali ang pagpunta rito pati na ang mga turista. Eh gaya nga nang sabi ni Mayor, eto ay yung Hidden Paradise kasi meron kayong mga white sand beaches pero hidden talaga dahil may mga bundok na naghihiwalay sa inyo sa ilang mga makakabisita.

Ganundin ang kasaysayan ng buong Camarines Sur nuon maging buong Bicol kaya inayos natin yung mga kalsada, yung Maharlika Highway at Andaya Highway, inayos natin yun para sa ganun ay mas madali ang biyahe dito o kaya kayo yung Maharlika Highway na dumadaan sa Camarines Norte pero inayos rin natin yung Caramoan Road. Inaayos natin yung Caramoan Peninsula Road kaya mabuti rin nagbibisita sa inyo tinatanong ko kung papano makakatulong itong Caramoan Peninsula Road sa Siruma, hindi naman pala kayo dumadaan doon, dumadaan pala kayo sa Calabanga-Tinambac, at bundok ang dinadaan ninyo. Kaya dapat bukod na re-gravelling ang kailangan nating gawin.

At para din maging mas malapit, kasi yung Hidden Paradise hindi na dapat magbiyahe naman mula ng Maynila ng kalsada, dapat eroplano kaya pinalaki natin o nagpatayo tayo ng dalawang airport dito sa Bicol, in fact, gumagawa tayo ng international airport doon sa Daraga sa Albay. Gawa na yung access road, ginagawa na yung runway para sa ganun hindi na kailangan dadaan sa Maynila ang mga turista, pwede na manggaling sa Hong Kong, sa Korea, sa Japan, sa China, diretso na sa Daraga na magiging mas malapit ang mga baybay ng Bicol kasama na doon ang Siruma.

Inaayos din natin ang mga pantalan na durugtong sa Bicol sa Kabisayaan. At kaya ko naman ginawa yung Caramoan Peninsula Road para mas malapit din ang Catanduanes sa inyo. Ewan ko kung papano makakatulong kasi ngayon, halimbawa, yung mga beaches ng Caramoan ang ginagawa ng mga tao naglalanding dito sa Virac tapos konting biyahe na lang papunta dito. Ewan ko kung yun ay maging mas mabuting biyahe rin para sa inyo.

Pero sa madaling salita ginagawa natin ito kaya naman ngayon patuloy ang pagdagsa ng mga turista sa inyong rehiyon at sana darating ang araw na hanggang dito sa Hidden Paradise ninyo ay mahahanap na rin ng mga turista. Itong ganitong pag-unlad ay inaasahan nating makakarating din sa Siruma. Ngunit gaya nang sabi ko dahil Hidden Paradise pa rin kayo, ibig sabihin nuon higit pa ang kailangan gawin para hindi na kayo Hidden Paradise.

Ang lahat nang pagsisikap ng ating administrasyon ay upang magkaroon ng mas maginhawang kinabukasan ang susunod na henerasyon ng mga Pilipino, ang kabataan ng ating bansa ang ating pag-asa at inspirasyon. Lahat na dapat nating gawin ay para magtayo ng mas mabuting buhay para sa bawat kabataan nitong bansa. Habang ipinagmamalaki ko ang nakamit ng ating administrasyon ang nakaraang nakamit ay kasing-buti lamang ng kakayahan ng bansang magpatuloy lumago at umunlad. Halimbawa, mamaya pupuntahan natin yung inyong Botika ng Barangay kasi nakapagtayo ng Botika ng Barangay dito para makabili kayo ng mas murang gamot, mga bagay na yun ay dapat maituloy.

Mataimtim kong ninanasa na ang progresong ginawa natin ay hindi titigil ng nalalabing gagawin ay kukunin ng susunod na henerasyon ng liderato, bilang bansa kailangan matatag na ituon natin ang tanawin sa kinabukasan. Magtayo mula sa kung ano ang mabuti at lalo pang sumikap para tugunan ang hamon ng kailangan pang gawin. Ang kabataan ng ating bansa ay tulay sa pamamagitan ng nakaraan at kinabukasan.

Para sa mga kabataan natin — saan ba yung mga kabataan natin? Alam ko summer vacation ngayon kaya wala sila pero meron akong ilang nakikitang mga bata dyaan — para sa kanila natin tinutuwid ang mga mali. Pinaglalaman ang pagbabago at hinahanap ang mas mabuting araw. Ayun! mga bata nanduon. Malayo na ang inabot ng ating bansa ngunit malayo pa ang dapat puntahan, dapat puntahan ang mga bayan gaya ng Siruma ng kaunlaran. At kinakatawan ng mga kabataan ang mga adhikain ng ating bansa, sa kanila natin hinahandog ang pagsisikap ng ating pamahalaan na iangat ang Pilipinas.

At ang edukasyon ang pundasyon ng oportunidad. Ito ang susi tungo sa mas maaliwalas na buhay, nagbubukas ng mga utak at nagbubukas ng mga pinto. Mula sa mga reporma na pinatupad natin sa simula ng aking panungkulan nagkaroon tayo ng karagdagang pondong ibalik naman sa sambayanan. Inayos natin ang curriculum ng eskwelahan upang mas mabilis matutunan ng kabataan ang agham, matematika at Ingles. Pinalaki ang pondo para mas marami ang mabibigyang training ang mga guro. Nandito ba ang mga guro natin? Yun, meron na bang ilan sa inyo nakadaan na doon sa training for English? Very good, sana mas marami pa. At para maging mas maayos ang pagtuturo. Bakit isa lang? Undersecretary Bacabi dapat mas marami sa kanila. Kasi dalawang bilyon na ang nilagay natin para sa teacher training, two billion pesos na ang nilagay natin, even more for teacher training.

At sa kasalukuyang mundo... ay, hindi lang yun. Yung mga classrooms, nagtayo tayo sa buong bansa ng isang daang libong classrooms, at dito sa Siruma nakapagtayo tayo ng walong classroom. At inaasahan ko na — maliit naman kasi ang populasyon ng Siruma — ang ating kuwan dito... sa grade school ito, ang ating patakaran dito ay dapat two shifts, morning ang afternoon sa grade school at 50 students maximum sa isang shift sa isang classroom. Doon natin ibinabase kung ilan ang dapat classroom na itayo natin.

At sa kamundong ito ang malakas na edukasyon ay dapat kasama ng malakas na backbone ng teknolohiya kaya ang sinama kong Cabinet member ay si Secretary ng CICT, si Secretary Ray Chua. Kasi ang teknolohiya at edukasyon hinuhubog ang utak at kinokonekta sa mundo. Ang edukasyon at teknolohiya ang mga kambal na sandalan ng kinabukasan ng bansa. Dito sa Camarines Sur nagtayo tayo ng computer laboratory sa halos dalawang daang paaralan at ilan dito ay nagkaroon na ng internet connection. Yan ang aking tinitignan ang internet connection ng mga high school. Eh dito sa Siruma High School wala pala kayong broadband connection dito sa Siruma sa layo ninyo. Pero dinig ko meron kayong labing isang computer dito, sayang naman yung labing isang computer ninyo kung computer games lang ang matututo. Kaya dapat para sa teknolohiya kailangan ang internet connection.

Kaya inatasan ko si Undersecretary Bacani na, at sabi niya magagawa raw niya ito bago magsimula itong bagong schoolyear natin itatayo, itatayo ang satellite broadband para magkaroon kayo ng internet. Yan ang aking recuerdo para sa inyo.

Itong mga huling buwan ng aking panunungkulan nananatili ako nakatutok sa pagtaguyod ng mas mabuting edukasyon at higit at mas mabuting imprastraktura ng teknolohiya. Malayo na ang naabot sa dalawang yun ngunit hindi dapat mamahinga habang may mga lugar gaya ng Siruma na kailangan itutok ang ating atensyon para magkaroon ng teknolohiya. Meron akong patuloy na interes na makita na ang mga kasalukuyang kabataan ay ipagsasamantala ang halaga ng edukasyon at modernidad. At gamitin ito itong mga sandata upang ipasulong ang sarili at ang bansa. Sa pagbigay natin ng mas maraming pagkakataon upang maging moderno ang pag-aaral ng kabataan ng Siruma, umaasa tayo na matututo sila ng mga kakayahang magagamit para sa hanapbuhay. At sana hindi ninyo, mga mamamayan ng Siruma, sayangin itong pagkakataon na makapag-angat ang antas ng pamumuhay rito at nang tuluyan nang umunlad ang lahat ng mga taga Hidden Paradise ng Siruma.

Dios mabalos sa indo gabus!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during a new town visit: Siruma, Camarines Sur. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080015/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27956&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the launching program of “The Life and Times of Diosdado P. Macapagal: A Photo Exhibit” in commemoration of the late President’s 100th birth anniversary

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching program of “The Life and Times of Diosdado P. Macapagal: A Photo Exhibit” in commemoration of the late President’s 100th birth anniversary

[Delivered at The Struggle Square, Angeles University Foundation (AUF), May 25, 2010]

Thank you very much.

Thank you Chairman Angeles for your very kind introduction, for your tribute and for organizing this very important event.

Vice President de Castro and the other members of the Cabinet; Atty. Angeles and the Angeles family; the faculty, staff and students of Angeles University; my brother Arthur and the other members of the family; City Mayor-elect Ed Pamintuan and Vice Mayor-elect Vicky Vega who used to be my speechwriter, and the other officials of Angeles City, especially Congressman Tarzan Lazatin.

Dear friends, first of all, to Angeles University, Happy 48th Anniversary of your school and Happy 39th Anniversary of the Foundation! Congratulations!

And to Manny Angeles, thank you, for welcoming us back to Angeles University on the occasion of your school’s anniversary, and for including in this anniversary celebration the kick-off of the commemoration of our father’s 100th Birth Anniversary.

Our family is grateful that you remember Diosdado Macapagal not only as president of the country but very fondly as Chairman of the Board of Director until his death in 1997. Thank you for honoring his legacy not only as Chairman of the Board but also as president, his legacy is now going to be remembered because you’re helping enable Filipinos for generations to come to know his life and times and his contributions to the Filipino nation, and to be able to remember those memories from an objective and historical point of view, and also through those who knew him during his lifetime.

Our family hopes that historians and the academe will be able to study the personal papers that he and my mother left, particularly here at Angeles University at Clark and with the alma mater, the University of Santo Tomas, and also the books he authored after his term as president.

There are also still enough scholars around, including in our province, who were already living during my father’s political career, from the time he first ran as congressman, to his senatorial run, to his trying years as vice president, to his trail-blazing presidency, to his pivotal role as president of the 1971 Constitutional Convention, to his later years as member of the opposition to authoritarian rule and mentor to the next generation of politicians, and to his international involvement in promoting peace and democracy around the world.

Manny Angeles is one of these scholars, one who enjoyed a lifetime of friendship with my parents. Thank you Manny for your moving tribute to my father, and for continuing to keep faith in his legacy. I hope that the Diosdado Macapagal Foundation which has recently been reconstituted and where Manny is a member will be able to marshal the proper scholars to document his lasting contributions to the nation.

In my father's inaugural speech in 1961, he expressed how he viewed the role of each president. He said: "Nation-building is an exacting and endless endeavor. No president can build the whole edifice of a nation. All that he is called upon to do is to add a fine stone to that edifice, so those who shall come after him may add other fine stones that will go for a strong and enduring structure."

My father declared that "the task of the nation is to fight poverty." He said: "We must be concerned with the plight of the common man as an imperative of justice. We must help bridge the wide gap between the poor man and the man of wealth, not by pulling down the rich to his level, but by raising the poor towards the more abundant life." This philosophy is contained in one of the statements in the photo exhibit and I thank Angeles University for such a good research.

In his twilight years, our father's own assessment of his term's contribution to the edifice of our nation was highlighted to his mind by the abolition of tenancy and the land reform program in the Land Reform Code of 1963. In fact, he said, from the signing of the Land Reform Code was the happiest day of his life. My father was born of peasant staff the only president whose class origin's came from the peasantry. And when he became a public servant he studied Taiwan's successful land reform program and that became his model as president.

Thus, the ultimate purpose of his land reform was to make feasible agro-industrial growth and to make prosperity available for the greatest number. That battle for land reform was an uphill battle, at that time, in the early 60s, the Philippines was controlled by the elite, the political and economic elite, and many of them were hacienderos who contributed heavily to politicians. So, therefore he had great difficulty getting the bill passed in the two houses of Congress. He had to call eight special sessions until they passed it into law. And that is why August 8, 1963 was the happiest day of his life — the day the Land Reform Code was enacted.

Land reform was the flagship of still another trailblazing contribution of our father, the first Medium-term Philippine Development Plan to be approved by Congress. He called this Medium-term Philippine Development Plan his five-year Socio-economic Integrated Development Program. The economic portion of it was anchored on the philosophy of free enterprise by the private sector. But, instead of calling it merely an economic program, his medium-term plan was called "socio-economic" to emphasize the basic social objective that the prosperity sought must extend to the masses of the people.

Thus, he had land reform. He had housing for the poor. He had... he increased the Minimum Wage Law from the first time that it was increased since he as congressman authored the Minimum Wage Law.

Our father also considered as his contribution to the edifice of our nation an independent foreign policy of promoting and achieving true independence from foreign domination. This was symbolized by the change of Independence Day from July 4 to June 12, thus, by recognizing that we were born as a nation on June 12, 1898 rather than July 4, 1946.

He recognized the heroism of the Rizal, Bonifacio, Aguinaldo and their compatriots who fought for the nationhood of our country. His foreign policy began when he was still in Congress and he authored the Foreign Service Act that professionalized our foreign service officer corps. Before his political career, he was tapped by President Quirino to be one of the pioneers of our foreign service. That is why he knew foreign policy so well.

In his capacity as a member of the foreign service, he was able to negotiate with the British government to return Turtle Islands to the Philippines. He expanded ties with Japan and Spain when it was not yet the fashion in our country. It was not the fashion then to be friends with Japan because that was fresh after the war. But when he invited the Crown Prince and the Crown Princess Akihito and Michiko to make a State Visit to the Philippines that was the beginning of the thawing of our prostrate relations with each other. And now Japan is our number one source of Official Development Assistance.

He also developed close ties with Indonesia that was frowned upon by the western powers, that was the height of the cold war, Sukarno was not exactly pro-American. But my father explained to the Americans, how would you feel if the international community objected to your friendship with Mexico, your next door neighbour? Mexico is to you what Indonesia is to us. And we have to be good neighbours within the region.

Together with Malaysia and Indonesia, he forged the beginnings of ASEAN through what they called MAPHILINDO which stood for Malaysia, Philippines and Indonesia.

My father also considered as his contribution to the edifice of the nation his deliberate and integrated acts in treating the nation like a mature and advanced democracy. He dissuaded bloc voting. He eschewed electoral violence and terror tactics. In this he was guided by the wisdom of Don Honorio Ventura, who paid for his schooling and gave him the opportunity to top the Bar and to climb out of poverty by education. Don Honorio told him to give back to the community and be among the minority of politicians who ruled with integrity.

I remember my father telling us, after he topped the Bar; he went to Don Honorio Ventura and said, how can I repay you for everything you have done? By that time, he already had a job waiting for him in the biggest law firm of the country: Ross, Lawrence, Selph and Carrascoso. And then what Don Honorio Ventura said, the only way that you can repay me back is this: with your qualities, someday you will enter politics. He said many politicians; in fact, most politicians enter politics because they have self-interest or a vested interest to protect. Well, that was Don Honorio's judgment, it's not necessarily my judgment, but that was Don Honorio Ventura's judgment.

And he says, a minority of the politicians enter because they want to serve the country with no vested interest. I want you to be that minority.

And so, therefore, Don Honorio Ventura's prognosis later became true and my father did become a politician. But I can truly say that the Capampangans who supported him from the time that he ran for Congress in 1949 up to the time he ran for president in 1961, certainly, helped him to be that politician without vested interest. They supported him financially throughout his electoral campaigns. They did not ask him for any political favors.

There was one time when he was a congressman and one of his financial supporters went to him and said: "Dadong, I'm not asking you anything for myself, but now all these friends are coming here and they're all asking me to ask you help for this and for that." That was the time of the import controls and you know import controls have a lot of discretion on the part of decision-makers. And then he said — you know, he said — I guess, it really depends on what you envision me to become. If you just want me to stay where I am now, then, that's where it is. But if you think that someday I will go farther and be able to help the country, help me by telling all those people that you cannot influence me in making decisions or in peddling influence for among those decision-makers who have the discretion to make certain decisions to pay for people.

And that particular friend of his, a prominent businessman, said: okay, now I understand, I know what to answer. And then never again did he approach my father with any of the request from other businessmen.

My father believed in business. He believed that democracy went hand in hand with an open market economy. What he said was: "the wealth must be created by the private sector. And with the taxes they pay that is where the government redistributes the wealth."

During his time, the Philippines was the second most prosperous economy in Asia. He believed in raising the dignity of the Filipino and he opened Malacañang to what he called "the common man" — every Friday was "common man's day," so that anyone could have direct access to the highest office of the land. He believed in the integrity of the family, raised us to be hardworking, productive and good citizens of society.

So, I am very happy that today, not only the family is commemorating the year of his 100th anniversary but the extended family of the Angeles University where he served for almost a decade.

So today, as we commemorate a humble man's life, I hope that we will all move forward and contribute to our own fine stones to the edifice of the nation. That would be the highest form of praise we could give to our father's legacy.

So once again, to Angeles University; to the Angeles family; to the faculty, staff, students of Angeles University; to the members of the students who believe in the ideals of this university, in the ideals of you former chairman, Diosdado Macapagal, dactal a, dactal a salamat kekongan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the launching program of "The Life and Times of Diosdado P. Macapagal: A Photo Exhibit" in commemoration of the late President's 100th birth anniversary. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080001/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27985&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Speech of President Arroyo during the International Negotiator's Conference on Mindanao Peace Process

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the International Negotiator's Conference on Mindanao Peace Process

[Delivered at the Grand Ballroom, New World Hotel, Makati City, May 28, 2010]

Thank you very much Secretary Abaya for your very kind introduction.

Excellencies and the members of the Diplomatic Corps, guests negotiators, Vice President Kalla, Governor Yusuf, Deputy Foreign Minister Satti, Mr. Kelly, Mr. Dajani, Mr. Othman, Mr. Gorman, Undersecretary Seguis, representatives of International Organizations, participants of the International Negotiators Conference, our delegates and guests, a warm welcome to the Philippines. Thank you for coming to our country.

This international conference is timely.

Mindanao is poised for peace. Whether we achieve it in the near future remains to be seen. For sure there is more work to be done, but the efforts we have made over the last nine years have brought us closer to achieving long-term peace in the region.

The sad irony of Mindanao is that it is a food basket but it has some of the highest hunger in our nation. It has large fields of high productivity, yet also it has six of our ten poorest provinces.

The prime reason is the endless Mindanao conflict. A comprehensive peace has eluded us for half a century.

Unless we as a people come to terms with Mindanao, we will never attain our full promise as a nation, much as America had to overcome its baggage of racial inequity and prejudice in order to become the great democracy that it is today. Thus, at the start of my term as President I sought to arrive at a national consensus on the principles to guide our search for peace. I offered the following for our people to consider.

One principle is that: our ultimate objective should be both peace and development. A second principle is that: our framework should be based on constitutionality, national sovereignty, and territorial integrity. A third principle is that: our society is a multi-ethnic one which should be founded on social justice for all, and the institutionalized accommodation of ethnic traditions. Christian and Muslim, Chinese and Tisoy, Tagalog and Cebuano, these are but a few of the names to which the Filipino responds, in a wondrous testimony to our rich and varied heritage as a nation.

To these three broad principles, we added a fourth. In our search for peace, there is no role for terrorism or inhuman brutality. Such acts must be universally condemned.

Looking back over the last nine years, we have broken down barriers and we have deterred terrorist activities by encouraging people to focus on building better lives for themselves and future generations, rather than destroying them. We have done this through the use of 'soft power.' Soft power has provided economic opportunity, better access to healthcare and education, and basic necessities for better lives including clean water, food, housing for the people of Mindanao.

We are making small but important steps toward long-term peace.

We always knew that from day one this is a process that will take time and patience but what is important is that we are continuing to make progress in the right direction.

In our 10-point Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan with the acronym BEAT THE ODD, one of the “T” two Ts means terminate the hostilities with the MILF towards a just conclusion of our peace process. And indeed, since 2003, there has been a ceasefire between the government and the MILF. And I think our three levels of monitors for that: the Community-based Monitor, the Monitor made up of members of the government and the MILF and the International Monitoring Team.

We have signed many agreements over the last nine years the various agreements are vital towards ensuring the implementation of the ceasefire. And hopefully, all of these agreements will come together and bring us closer to the completion of the peace process.

We recognized from the start that peace requires two-way dialogue and mutual respect and cannot be achieved just through the barrel of a gun. It is through our commitment to this belief that we have made significant progress in the peace process. What is needed now is recognition by all parties that a political settlement will translate the peace on the ground to a permanent and just and comprehensive peace, and lead to better economic prospects and a brighter future for the people of Mindanao. That is the best result for everyone.

Yes, there are political dynamics. Let us sort them out with the utmost sobriety, patience and restraint.

But we cannot do it alone. That is why we have worked so hard to bring an international consensus to provide moral, financial and diplomatic support for peace in Mindanao. The many countries represented here today and so many others now have had a vested interest in peace in Mindanao. And with the help of our Muslim brethren around the world, we are establishing a new paradigm for peace between religions in Mindanao.

And I think the Bishops Ulama Conference for helping us to move that dialogue forward.

When I became President I declared a policy of all-out peace in Mindanao. As President, I have fought every day in office to bring that peace to that great island. And I will continue to do so until the last moment of my term as President. And maybe even beyond because as Congresswoman, I will file the bills that I feel are needed in order to bring just and lasting peace to Mindanao.

To all of you, for your support for peace, maraming maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo’s speech during the International Negotiator’s Conference on Mindanao Peace Process. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609075953/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=28000&Itemid=38

Speech of President Arroyo during the 112th Philippine Independence Day and 35th Anniversary of the Diplomatic Relations between the Republic of the Philippines and the People's Republic of China and the 9th Filipino-Chinese Friendship Day

Speech
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 112th Philippine Independence Day and 35th Anniversary of the Diplomatic Relations between the Republic of the Philippines and the People's Republic of China and the 9th Filipino-Chinese Friendship Day

[Delivered at the Fiesta Pavilion, Manila Hotel, June 4, 2010]

Thank you very much Secretary Roque for your very kind introduction.

Thank you very much Dr. Alfonso Uy for your very kind support kind words of welcome and appreciation for the work we have done for the friendship between the Philippines and China. And thank you for the gesture of appreciation from the federation. Ambassador Liu thank you also for remembering what we have done including my days as co-chairman of the Association of the Philippines-China Understanding working for diplomatic relations many many years ago.

Mayor Lim, Congresswoman Angping, Mr. John Ng, Mr. John Tan, Mr. Domingo Yap and I should also greet Congressman-elect Arthur Yap, leaders of the Filipino-Chinese community, other government officials whom I see all over the place tonight, other elected officials if they should be here, ladies and gentlemen good evening. Ni Hao!

I am very pleased once again to join our Chinese friends and the Filipino-Chinese community in this advance celebration of Filipino-Chinese Friendship Day. As our earlier speakers acknowledged when I became President I made June 9 of every year Filipino-Chinese Friendship Day. In the past, I set aside June 9 to attend activities to mark Filipino-Chinese Friendship Day in Manila. But this year, many of you will be with me in Shanghai to celebrate this occasion that is why we are holding our Manila celebration in advance.

It's a good way to acknowledge the significance of our growing partnership we will have two celebrations one in Manila and one in Shanghai.

Over the past 35 years, the development of our bilateral ties with China with our Trade and Economic Cooperation serving as the engine driving our relations to great heights has been a very important part of our history. And it is not only the last 35 years where China has become a very important part of our history.

Our geographical ties, our trade relationship, our family relationships date back centuries before. Our diplomatic relations and even before our two republics were established. These centuries for thousand years of relationship in fact, has resulted in practically every Filipino having Chinese ancestry though, not everybody can truly be able to claim to trace his family tree to China. But one of those again who really traced his family tree to China is my husband whose great grandfather was Chinese. His great grandfather was a successful businessman from China who fought under the Spanish flag to defend Manila against the British. Therefore, he was awarded with a nobility title by the Spanish government and he changed his name from the Chinese family name of Sontua to the Spanish sounding family name of Tuason. That is only one example.

Because of the intricate and abiding connections of blood and geography, the Philippines and China grew to become more than good neighbors more than good partners and more than good friends. We are family—China and the Philippines are family.

We are family more than neighbors. But as neighbors, as neighbors, we look out for each other's welfare and security. We are family more than partners, but as partners, we have strong ties across all levels and sectors—political, economic, social, cultural, people-to-people exchanges, and even twinning arrangements between cities and provinces.

Our speakers have talked about my ten visits to China over my last nine years as president. During my visits to China over the last nine years, many of which were in your company, I had the privilege of visiting many cities all over China and of meeting with the highest ranking officials including President Hu Jintao, Premiere Wen Jabao, and former President Jiang Zemin. And of course, we also had a very memorable State Visit to the Philippines by President Hu Jintao. Together, President Hu Jintao established as Ambassador Liu said, "A strategic and cooperative relation for peace and development." President Hu and I, agreed that our relationship is going through a "golden age of partnership," meaning, a period of prosperous endeavors and great promised.. how true that was indeed.

As Ambassador Liu has pointed out Bilateral trade has grown a hundred-fold since we established our relationship in 1975. From 20 million dollars to 3 billion dollars. And China therefore, is now our third largest trading partner.

China is also today one of the fastest growing sources of tourists for the Philippines, the tourism from China grows by an annual average of 43 percent since 2001. Our tourism officials are nodding in pleasure.

We also significantly contribute to each other's development. You the Filipino businessmen have invested almost $3 billion in China.

Likewise, Chinese investments in the Philippines have also grown in the past decade. Highlighted two years, ago by China's State Grid Corporation successfully forming with its local partners, the National Grid Corporation of the Philippines which manages the transmission line in our country. This investment from China State Grid will be 3.95 billion U.S. dollars. Thank you very much Ambassador Liu and China.

More than business partners, China has also become a development partner of the Philippines, by participating in our priority agriculture and infrastructure projects, for instance, the Philippines-Sino Center for Agricultural Technology in our number one agricultural province of Nueva Ecija and the Northrail Project, which are enhancing our country's competitiveness as a place for doing business, and in turn attracting more investment and creating more jobs for our people.

During my time, an essential component of my foreign and economic policy has been to aggressively expand our trade and diplomatic relationships around the world. The expanded diplomatic and trade agenda we have forged in China is an outstanding case in point. I am proud that enhanced Philippines-China relations are a hallmark of my Presidency.

And I would like to think that even beyond my time, the Philippine will be committed to working with China to let our golden age of partnership flourish as a testament to the deep friendship between our countries and people.

I am proud that long before I entered politics or government with the Association of China Understanding, all the way to my career as politician, Senator, Vice President and now President, I have worked hard to establish a new and more dynamic relationship with China especially now to match China's growing influence.

I may not be President anymore next month, next year, in the years to come. But as Congresswoman, in wherever else divine providence will bring me, let me assure you that I remain as committed as ever to promoting and further strengthening the solid partnership between our two countries.

So to all of you, Happy Philippines-China Friendship Day! Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 112th Philippine Independence Day and 35th Anniversary of the Diplomatic Relations between the Republic of the Philippines and the People's Republic of China and the 9th Filipino-Chinese Friendship Day. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609075934/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=28026&Itemid=38

MESSAGES TO THE CONGRESS

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, First State of the Nation Address, July 23, 2001

First State of the Nation Address
By Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
14th President of the Philippines
Opening of the 1st Regular Session of the 12th Congress

[Delivered at the Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City, on July 23, 2001]

His Excellency President Ramos; Senate President Drilon and the other Senators; Speaker de Venecia and the other congressmen and congresswomen; the Justices of the Supreme Court; the members of the diplomatic corps; mga maralitang tagalungsod na nanonood ngayon sa video wall at sa TV; mga maraming nakikinig sa radyo; mahal kong kababayan:

Kamakailan, may sumulat sa aking tatlong batang taga-Payatas, sina Jayson, Jomar, at Erwin. Ginawa nilang paper boats ang liham at pinalutang sa Pasig river patungo sa Malacañang.

Ito ang sinulat ng sampung taong gulang na si Jomar Pabalan: “Sana po ay mabigyan ng permanenteng trabaho ang tatay ko para hindi siya mahirapan.”

Sabi naman ni Jason Vann Banogan, 10 taong gulang: “Sana po matulungan ninyo ako na makatapos sa pag-aaral ko hanggang kolehiyo, kasi po ang nagpapaaral sa akin ay ang lola ko lamang.”

At ang tanging nais ni Erwin Dolera, walong taong gulang: ipasara ang Payatas dumpsite, at bigyan ng lupa ang kanyang pamilya.

Napakalinaw, napakasimple ang hiling ng mga anak ng Payatas: Trabaho. Edukasyon. Sariling tahanan. Idagdag na rin: pagkain sa bawat mesa. Ito ang mithiin ng masa.

And this, in common sense and plain talk, is the core of my vision.

A vision for the future must be rooted in the past.

A revolution gave birth to the first republic in Asia.

A sense of nationhood was born but also the dream of a better life for all Filipinos. Andres Bonifacio, the poor man, the great plebeian who started this revolution, nurtured this dream.

In 1963, another poor man rose. He rose to the most powerful position in the land and risked everything to fulfill the poor man’s dream.

Inspired by the great plebeian, my father, President Diosdado Macapagal, promulgated the Land Reform Law to emancipate the peasant from a feudal bondage to the soil.

In 1986 Filipinos peacefully reclaimed their civil liberties in the people power revolution. Under the leadership of Corazon Aquino, we reaffirmed our commitment to freedom and democracy on a mere stretch of highway—with hardly a drop of blood shed or a shot fired in anger.

Six months ago, on that same highway, people rose up to restore morality as the first institution of society and as the animating principle of justice and the rule of law.

Thus, we see, the historic pillars of a national vision: prosperity, freedom, justice.

Ito ang mga layuning ipinaglaban ng bayan mula nang ito'y isilang: kasaganaan, kalayaan, katarungan.

We also see in our great history a progressive advancement towards the ultimate goal to transfer power over the state from the traditional economic and political bosses to the people.

Last May 1, the poor raised their voices in anger and their fists in fury. Imprisoned in poverty, shackled to shame, denied justice in society, they personally delivered the message that, 100 years after they revolted to establish this nation, they had yet to partake of the national dream.

Dinig na dinig ko ang pahayag nila, at napakumbaba ako. Hindi ba't nasa balikat ko ang tungkuling mamuno sa pakikibaka laban sa salot ng kahirapan? Ako na siyang anak ng tinawag na "poor boy from Lubao"?

I take this duty upon my shoulders.

I do so without fear or foreboding of failure.

For I know that the greatest obstacle we as a nation must overcome is inside us. The enemy to beat is ourselves: when we spread division rather than unity; when we put ourselves above country and profit above fairness; when we think the worst of those with whom we should be working for the common good, and when we wallow in despair rather than rise to achievement—indeed, when we make politics replace patriotism in our country's hour of need.

Let us, here in the home of democracy, therefore resolve, to grab hold of this enemy within, and beat him.

The internal enemy engaged, the battle will not be easy. We inherited very difficult problems.

From 2.5 million jobless four years ago, unemployment now stands at 4 million. From a budget surplus in 1997 under President Ramos of more than a billion pesos, my government inherited a deficit exceeding 140 billion pesos. In the same period, poverty incidence rose from 36.8 percent of the population in 1997 to 40 percent in the year 2004.

And, unlike the situation in 1997 when a battered Asia could still lean on the strength of the advanced economies, today our main trading partners like Japan and America are slowing down as well.

But we will prevail. We will prevail because the mainstream of our nation is united.

In the May elections, this administration received a solid mandate to carry on with the business of governance and reform.

I do not view this mandate as a choice between personalities of this administration and those of the opposition.

I see it rather as a vote for all of us—administration and opposition—to roll up our sleeves, stop looking back, and move forward, most especially in the fight against mass poverty.

Hinalal tayo upang labanan ang kahirapan, hindi ang isa't isa.

Our challenge is clear: Sugpuin ang kahirapan.

In this spirit, I appeal to everyone here today to undertake something unconventional but much to be desired in these especially hard times.

From today, let us set aside bickering and politicking for at least one year. We may congratulate ourselves on our forbearance at the next State of the Nation Address.

Sa halip ng alitan, isang taon tayong magtulungan sa ikabubuti ng taong bayan.

This is our duty. This is our mandate. This is our mission.

Unity for the country's recovery will set the stage for national mobilization needed to undertake the great and difficult tasks ahead.

What are these tasks?

When I became president last January, I told the people about my vision of winning the war against poverty within the decade.

To succeed, the template of our national agenda must revolve around four components—apat na elemento ng pakikibaka sa kahirapan.

The first is an economic philosophy of free enterprise appropriate to the 21st century. Pagnenegosyo upang dumami ang trabaho. Not a pitiless free-for-all but free enterprise with a social conscience.

The second component is a modernized agricultural sector founded on social equity. Palalaguin ang kita at ani ng maralitang tagabukid.

The third component is a social bias toward the disadvantaged to balance our economic development plan. Pagkalinga sa mga bahagi ng lipunan na naiiwanan ng kaunlaran.

And the fourth component is to raise the moral standards of government and society. Moralidad sa gobyerno at lipunan bilang saligan ng tunay na kaunlaran.

Pagnenegosyo, pagpapaunlad ng agrikultura, kalinga sa nagigipit na sektor, at moralidad sa gobyerno at lipunan—ito ang mga sandata natin sa digmaang-bayan laban sa kahirapan.

I have therefore organized my interpretation of the state of the nation along these four components of our national antipoverty ideology.

The first is an economic philosophy for the 21st century. Under this philosophy, the way to fight poverty is to create jobs, not destroy them.

To create jobs, we will attract investments. To attract investments, we will attend to macro measures and concerns.

In addressing macro concerns, we will focus on long-term structural issues. We started with the reform of the power sector, and I congratulate those of you who are here and who were in the previous congress for this accomplishment. Now, we will turn to other basics like infrastructure, productivity, and the savings rate.

In focusing on infrastructure, we will harness the private sector via the Build-Operate-Transfer Law. Our priorities include telecommunications facilities for high-speed productivity at low cost, roads to target tourist destinations, infrastructure for the modernization of agriculture, mass transport infrastructure for Metro Manila, and commuter and transport systems to disperse communities towards Subic-Clark and CALABARZON.

We will minimize bottlenecks to productivity, such as the high cost of power, deterrents to investments in agriculture, overly confrontational labor-management relations, and corruption and red tape at the national and local government levels.

To reduce the cost of power, we will begin implementing the Power Sector Reform Law which the previous Congress just passed.

To reduce deterrents to investments in agriculture, I ask Congress to enact a law making farmland acceptable as loan collateral.

To reduce excessive friction in labor and management relations, we will go the extra mile to work for industrial peace, and to work with labor and business to retrain workers for the fast-changing technologies of the new economy.

To reduce corruption in the Executive Branch, Cabinet Secretaries will have to deliver tangible results within 12 months in fighting graft. Our new e-Procurement Program will save billions and minimize anomalies. And I gave the reinforced Presidential Anti-Graft Commission added teeth to investigate and prosecute moto proprio corruption in high places. And we will make the BIR and Customs showcases in this fight against graft and corruption.

To reduce corruption among elective officials, we will help honest people get elected by financing the full computerization of elections. We have released 2 billion pesos of the 3.4 needed for computerization. I ask congress to add another 500 million in the 2002 budget. Let us make the polls of May 14, 2001 the last national elections that use primitive methods of voter identification and ballot tabulation.

To reduce red tape in the national government, within 12 months, all government agencies will implement measures to cut in half the number of signatures required for their service. Housing permits shall only need 45 approvals, instead of 188. If legislation is required to effect this efficiency, the agencies concerned will draft appropriate bills for my endorsement to Congress.

I congratulate the LTO for issuing licenses in half an hour. I congratulate the NBI for issuing clearances in one day.

I ask our local governments likewise to streamline their operations and slash red tape. There must be continuity between national and local governments in their efforts to be investor-friendly.

We will address issues related to the savings rate, so that the cost of domestic capital can be reduced. These issues are tied up with the strength of the financial and fiscal sectors.

With regard to the financial sector, I ask Congress to amend the BSP charter and the Banking Act to improve supervision and promote financial prudence. These amendments should take us out of the money laundering list.

We adhere to a freely convertible peso and market exchange rates. However, we support the Central Bank's measures to curb speculation.

To those speculating against the peso, I only have this to say: Have you no pity for the common people, have you no love for your country? Makunsiysya naman kayo.

Instead of speculating, let us further strengthen the financial sector. We will design innovative policies to develop our capital market. We will set up a secondary housing mortgage market, an asset management company, and a provident fund for overseas Filipinos. We will simplify and clarify the system of incentives. We will interpret investment laws in favor of the investor.

And I ask Congress to enact laws on capital market reform such as the Personal Equity Retirement Act, the Investment Company Act, the Securitization Act, and amendments to the Securities Regulation Code.

With regard to the fiscal sector, we will control the budget deficit by collecting taxes vigorously and spending money prudently. For the longer term, I ask Congress to enact a law providing for a gross income tax.

Alisin na natin ang mga tax deduction na nagiging sanhi lamang ng katakut-takot na corruption.

The strength of the financial and fiscal sectors partly lies in how we use the realities in the global and regional environment to our benefit. Thus, we will enhance our relations with the United States, whose economic and military power continues to make it important as a factor in the affairs of the region and in the nation. We will also strengthen bilateral economic and political relations with Japan, our biggest source of development assistance and a major trading partner. And more and more, we will design foreign policy and foreign trade policy in the context of ASEAN. And I ask Congress to enact a law giving overseas Filipinos, who continue to play a critical role in the country's economic and social stability, the right to vote.

Preparing our growth sectors of the future enables us to tap the opportunities of the 21st century.

We will promote fast-growing industries where high-value jobs are most plentiful. One of them is information and communications technology, or ICT. Our English literacy, our aptitude, and skills give us a competitive edge in ICT. Filipino workers are ranked number one in the field, number one among knowledge workers. And analysts point to two developing countries as the likely world centers for software development and data management in this decade: India and the Philippines. We will live up to that forecast.

As a first step, let us declare that technology is the foundation of future economic development, as China did in 1998. ICT will jumpstart our old stalling economy and make it leapfrog into the new economy.

High-speed connectivity at low cost will increase the use of ICT. It is also the way for Smart and Globe to properly interconnect. Then we will finally hear the last of those annoying words, "network busy."

Our rules will promote rather than regulate ICT, but in turn, I ask cellular phone companies to stop charging on dropped calls; this is both irritating and unfair to the public.

I ask Congress to enact laws to address Internet privacy and security, allow for multimedia convergence, and create a department of telecommunications and information technology.

To prepare our youth to be the next generation of knowledge workers, we will upgrade math and science teaching in basic education.

We will take a hard look at education and ask: Is it preparing the youth for the jobs of the new economy? Or is it just-keeping-them-off-the-streets-until-they-are-thrown-there jobless after graduation? If they finish school at all.

To increase the chances of Filipino children finishing school, we will minimize the cost of going to school. When we stopped the collection of miscellaneous fees last enrollment day, 900,000 more students enrolled than anticipated. And to reduce the time and money spent to actually travel to school, I want a school building in every barangay by 2004. Ibig nating tumalas ang ulo ng mga estudyante, at hindi malaspag ang paa.

To improve the quality of education as required by the new economy, we will increase the number of textbooks per student as well as the quality of instruction. This year all public school students will have textbooks for priority subjects in grades 1 to 4 and in the 1st and 2nd years of high school. And they will have better paid and therefore better motivated teachers, not to mention more teachers because sound fiscal management enabled us to provide a supplemental budget of 1.5 billion pesos to hire more teachers and increase their pay without increasing our deficit.

Aside from ICT, we also have the competitive edge in tourism in the natural wonders of our country and the natural warmth of our people. We will provide the roads to those wonders and the means to take the tourists there. Thus, we will continue to liberalize the airline industry.

The second component of our national agenda to fight poverty is the modernization of agriculture founded on social equity.

Nasa bukid ang nakararaming maralita, kaya payayamanin natin ang pagsasaka at pangingisda.

There can be a million new jobs in agriculture and fisheries. Within the year, the Department of Agriculture shall begin to implement the program to generate them. We will approach this with a sense of urgency. I do not want the one million new jobs to come in the long term. I want a timetable. I want to identify accountabilities. I want milestones.

Hindi ito pangakong mapapako dahil nakasalalay rito ang kabuhayan ng milyong-milyong maralitang pilipino.

Mga kababayan kong magsasaka, ang inyong pangulo mismo ang magbabantay sa kagalingan ninyo.

Starting tomorrow I will hold office at the Department of Agriculture, until i can get a clear and demonstrable picture of our agricultural accomplishments for our first 100 days and I can see the program for the million new jobs get off the ground, and I can see that short-term goals are in sync with the goals of farmer groups and agribusiness.

Upang lumikha ng isang milyong trabaho sa kanayunan, tutuparin natin sa wakas ang Agricultural and Fisheries Modernization Act o AFMA. Hindi bababa sa 20 bilyong piso ang gagastusin upang mapalakas ang kita, ani, at huli ng magsasaka at mangingisda. Kasama na rito ang mga sumusunod: 6 na bilyon sa patubig; 2 bilyon sa postharvest facilities; 2 bilyon sa imprastraktura; 2 bilyon sa pautang; at 2 bilyon sa research and development.

There is money—and there will be money—and the Department of Agriculture shall demonstrate its capacity to use these funds.

Sa 6 na bilyong piso sa patubig at 2 bilyon sa postharvest mula Aparri hanggang Jolo, makakalikha tayo ng 800,000 trabaho. Sa pagbukas ng 200,000 ektarya ng bagong lupang masasaka, makakalikha ito ng 200,000 trabaho. Sa ganitong paraan malilikha ang 1 milyong trabaho sa kanayunan.

Ngunit dapat tiyakin ang merkado ng produksyon ng mga bagong magtatrabaho sa agrikultura at pangingisda pati na rin ng kasalukuyang magsasaka at mangingisda.

Para sa kaginhawaan ng taong bayan, dapat hindi nagkukulang ang bigas. Sabi nga ng AFMA, sikapin nating magkaroon ng rice self-sufficiency. In the meantime, we will remove the monopoly of the NFA in importation. If a shortage seems likely, we will allow the farmers themselves to import rice, basta magbayad sila ng customs duties. Gagamitin naman ang binayarang buwis para sa modernisasyon ng rice production.

Murang bigas at masaganang magsasaka—ito ang hangad natin para sa masa.

Mas malaki pa ang matutulong ng gobyerno sa mga magsasaka ng niyog oras na maresolba pabor sa magsasaka ang kaso ng coconut levy. Kapag mangyari ito, gagamitin ang pondo para sa modernisasyon ng mga niyugan. Pinawalang-bisa ko ang kautusan sa coconut levy mula sa dating administrasyon upang hindi madehado ang magsasaka. Hindi tayo hihinto habang hindi nakikinabang ang mangniyu-niyog sa coco levy fund.

To fight poverty, agricultural modernization will be socially equitable. We shall redeem in earnest the promise of land reform, a commitment that spans several presidents. Isa pa itong pangakong hindi dapat mapako.

Bawat taon, mamamahagi ang gobyerno ng 200,000 ektarya para sa reporma sa lupa: 100,000 of private land and 100,000 hectares of public land, including 100 ancestral domain titles for indigenous peoples.

We will bring our war against poverty to rural Mindanao, especially the areas most affected by the past conflicts. We have helped more than half of the 27,000 evacuee families return to their farms and rehabilitate their homes. The rest will go back home this year. In the next 12 months, we will spend 500 million pesos from the OPEC fund for community projects in these areas.

If the long-delayed Malmar irrigation dam is not completed by September, I will transfer its construction to the army engineering brigade. This dam is so important because it will irrigate 3,000 hectares immediately, with another 10,000 to follow next year.

We will make Mindanao the gateway to ASEAN by putting back on track the East ASEAN growth area.

Inshala, mahimo tinu-od ang saad sa Mindanao ubos sa akong administrasyon.

The third component of our national agenda is a social bias to balance economic development.

This social bias consists in immediate measures for the poor as well as improving and ensuring the quality of life of the masses.

Bukod sa magbubukid, maralitang taga-lungsod ang malaking sektor na kailangan ang dagliang tulong.

Upang agad silang matulungan, nabigyan na ng ating administrasyon ang karapatang bumili ng lupang tinitirahan sa mahigit 80,000 pamilyang maralita. And we will work double time to give security of land tenure to 150,000 urban poor families every year; 150,000 pamilya taun-taon ang magkakaroon ng karapatan na bumili ng sariling tirahan. Ginagawa ko ito dahil nalulungkot ako 'pag may nakikita akong squatter sa sariling bayan.

Dapat din tugunan ang karaingan ng madla sa mahal na bilihin at kulang na sahod. Umaasa akong magpapasya ang kongreso o wage board sa nararapat na sweldo. Pansamantala, nananawagan ako sa mga negosyanteng may kakayahan: Magbigay na kayo agad ng emergency cost of living allowance. Maaari naman itong i-credit kapag may bagong sahod o allowance mula sa batas o sa wage board.

Sa kabilang dako, kumikilos ang gobyerno upang mapigilan ang pagtaas ng presyo ng mga pangunahing pangangailangan ng manggagawa. Binabantayan ang presyo ng langis, at salamat naman na bumaba ito noong Biyernes. Pinagsisikapan din ng gobyernong huwag itaas ang pasahe, lalo na ang LRT.

Dahil ang presyo ng bigas ay napakaimportante sa mga manggagawa, magpapasada tayo ng 1,000 rolling stores. Ang mga manggagawa at maralita ay makakabili dito ng bigas sa halagang 14 na piso sa halip na 18 bawat kilo.

Bababa din ang presyo ng gamot. Sa loob ng isang taon hahatiin natin ang presyo ng gamot na madalas bilhin ng madla.

At upang iwasan ang malaking gastos sa pagpapagamot, itong taon, ilalahok sa national health insurance ang kalahating milyong maralitang taga-lungsod. Sa ganoong paraan, ang insurance ang magbabayad ng pagpapagamot.

At upang maiwasan ang pag-upa na nagbabantang tumaas, tinutulungan natin na magkaroon ng sariling tahanan ang mga manggagawa at maralita. Handa na ang 10,000 tahanan sa iba't ibang lugar para lumipat na rito ang manggagawa at maralita. Pinondohan na rin natin ang pagtayo ng 18,000 pang tahanan. Taun-taon, magtatayo ng 100,000 tirahan para sa manggagawa at 50,000 pabahay para sa higit na maralita. Nakahanda sa government financial institutions ang 20 bilyong piso para sa pabahay ng manggagawa.

Itaga ninyo: 20 bilyong piso para sa mga tahanan ng masa. Ito ang handog ng gobyerno para sa seguridad ng pamilyang Pilipino.

Upang mapatakbo ng mabuti ang mga programang ito, hinihiling ko sa Kongreso na lumikha ng kagawaran ng pabahay. A department of housing will not only build homes for the poor, it will also spark the housing industry and create jobs.

Hinihiling ko rin sa Kongreso na sa tax reform na gagawin ninyo, damihan ang kategoriya ng manggagawang hindi na kailangang magbayad ng buwis.

Mayroon tayong espesyal na proyekto para sa mga kabataang maralita ng Metro Manila na hindi na makapag-aral, ngunit walang trabaho. This is the Emergency Employment Program. Bawat taon, 20,000 out-of-work, out-of-school youth ang bibigyan ng dagliang trabaho. Maaari magtagpi ng bubong, mag-ayos ng railing, mag-gwardya sa eskwela ng kanilang barangay, maglinis ng kalsada o estero, o iba pang dagliang trabaho.

The social bias in our economic development plan involves ensuring the quality of life of the masses.

Sa sulat ni Erwin na taga-Payatas—‘yung binanggit ko kaninang pag-umpisa ng diskurso—hiniling niya na ipasara ang dumpsite. Talaga namang dapat nang magkaroon tayo ng bagong sistema sa pag-aasikaso ng basura. Basura ang sanhi ng maraming problema sa siyudad: masamang hangin, paglaganap ng sakit, trapik, at iba pa. Tapusin na natin ito. Inatasan ko ang Metro Manila Development Authority na bago makalipas ang isang taon, maglunsad ng programa upang ayusin ang problema ng basura.

Suyang-suya na rin tayong lahat, lalo na ang madla, sa trapiko ng Metro Manila. Babawasan ang trapik sa tulong ng mass transit. Nagtatayo tayo ng limang bagong linya ng mass transit para makapagbigay-ginhawa sa halos 4 na milyong pasahero. Tatlong linya matatapos sa 2004, isa sa 2005, at isa pa sa 2006. These five mass transit systems are being prioritized because they will add 119 kilometers of railway projects. During construction, I expect the MMDA to minimize the resulting congestion, and I expect it to minimize the current congestion within six months.

Masyadong masikip ang Metro Manila, kaya miserable ang buhay sa slum areas. Magkakaroon ng mabilis na transportasyong magdurugtong ng mga karatig-rehiyon sa Kamaynilaan. Ang nasisikipan na sa Maynila, makakalapat balang araw sa maaliwalas na lalawigan.

We will decongest Metro Manila by attracting communities north towards Subic-Clark, and south towards CALABARZON and Batangas port. We will achieve this not by demolishing shanties but by building commuter and transport systems to better homes.

Whether in Metro Manila or in the countryside, we will make microfinance a cornerstone in our fight against poverty. Ang ibig sabihin nito ay maliliit na paluwagan para sa maliliit na negosyo. Kakalisensiya lang ng opportunity microfinance bank, ang unang microlending program sa bansa na naging bangko. Bawat taon, dadagdagan natin ng 300,000 maralitang kababaihan ang makikinabang sa paluwagang programa ng microfinance.

Panahon na upang makinabang ang maliliit sa iniimpok ng bayan. At umasa kayo, nagbabayad ang masa. In microfinance, the repayment rate is 98 percent.

Wala pang kuryente ang marami nating barangay. Kaya araw-araw, gabi-gabi, magkakabit ng kuryente sa apat na barangay. Sa ganoon, 85 porsyento ng barangay ay magkakailaw na sa loob ng isang taon.

With exports slowing down due to the world downturn, we will strengthen the domestic market. We will intensify efforts to promote small and medium enterprises or SMEs especially in the countryside. Last Friday I inaugurated the SME board in the Philippine Stock Exchange. To help small and medium enterprises, I will restore the policy of providing government guarantee for their bank loans.

The fourth component of our national agenda is improving moral standards and the rule of law.

We need every ounce of resource to wage this war on poverty. We cannot afford to lose anything to waste or graft and corruption.

First we must strengthen justice and the enforcement of law and order.

This pertains to two levels. At the level of principle, this administration affirms its commitment to the principle that no one is above the law.

Thus, our policy is to support the fair and speedy trial of all the accused involved in the cases against Former President Joseph Estrada.

If there were times that I showed concern for the personal circumstances of the former president, it is not a sign of diminished determination to see justice done.

Rather, it is out of sensitivity to the feelings of the segments of our masa who have continued to identify with his personal circumstances.

But as I sometimes extend a hand covered by a velvet glove, inside it is an iron hand where justice and the rule of law are concerned.

As a sign of this, I will support legislation to amend the charter of the ombudsman so he can accept the services of private prosecutors.

The second level pertains to our sense that justice prevails and the rule of law works in our daily lives.

A reenergized police will stamp out the crimes that have plagued our businesses, terrorized the common folk, and embarrassed our country. In the economics of fighting crime, the more resources devoted to crime prevention, the less the amount of crime. Our administration will spend to modernize and professionalize the police. We will start with 1 billion pesos.

Although the numbers say that index crimes in the first semester were down 14 percent since a year ago, we are determined to stamp out violent crimes altogether. The ongoing reorganization of the police is part of the effort to add vigor to its anti-crime drive. The new national anti-crime commission will tighten coordination among law enforcement agencies as well as with the Chinese-Filipino community. We are giving special attention to the kidnap-for-ransom syndicates. I want the bulk of them to be behind bars before the year is over, so that every Filipino will at last feel safe in his home, in his workplace, and in his streets.

On the drug front, I ask Congress to enact a law reducing the amount of drugs in a suspect's possession for him to be charged with drug trafficking.

We will uphold law and order through a holistic response consisting of political, economic, psychosocial, and security components. We will meet the defense and security challenges of this era. To achieve this end, we have earmarked additional funding in several billions of pesos for the AFP modernization program.

We have given the Armed Forces and the police the leeway to fight a treacherous and elusive enemy in Basilan. But it must end, and it will end soon, for good. The leadership of the Abu Sayyaf has started to fall. The crackdown has neutralized 130 of them. Many of them have come down from their mountains because they have been abandoned by their leaders. Itaga ninyo sa bato: tatapusin natin ito.

On the peace process, while the AFP stands ready to protect our people at a moment's notice, we will continue to talk with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front and the National Democratic Front as long as all sides maintain good faith. Our ceasefire agreement with the MILF last month encouraged us in this.

To attain our full potential as a nation, let us come to terms with the fundamental issues in Mindanao. Let us forge consensus on a just, lasting, and honorable peace in one country. Peace and development are inseparable twins. But our framework must not compromise constitutionality, national sovereignty, and territorial integrity. Instead, let us recognize that we have a multiethnic society which should be founded on social justice for all and institutionalized accommodation of ethnic traditions. This would finally introduce a new culture in our nation's attitude towards Mindanao.

We will also introduce a new culture in governance: a culture of plain talk and common sense.

Cabinet secretaries will do less cluster and interagency committee work so they can concentrate on running their departments. Less meetings, more action, more tangible results whether in generating jobs, improving peace and order, or fighting graft.

I throw full support behind BIR commissioner Rene Bañez. He has undertaken a mission many believe impossible: overhauling the BIR which accounts for 80 percent of our tax revenues.

Rene has been threatened. He has been blocked by restraining orders at every turn. After the Supreme Court ruled in his favor, he was accused of the very corruption he is stamping out.

This man needs friends, who share his goals, and I know he will find them in this young Congress.

The Bureau of Customs is exceeding collection targets. But the anti-smuggling drive must be relentless. So must the drive against the harassment of legitimate businessmen doing legitimate imports. I call on all concerned to help end the open drawer syndrome.

But the government cannot do it alone. It cannot do it alone in customs, it cannot do it alone in fighting graft, it cannot do it alone in fighting poverty. I'm not a miracle worker. All of us must do our share. We have to think Filipino, buy Filipino, invest Filipino. I invite the taipans and other business people all over the country to start pump-priming the economy by investing once again in the Philippines. I invite you to create jobs, accelerate progress, and thereby address the root causes of the crime and unrest that so much alarm us.

Sa madaling salita, mga kababayan, magkaisa tayo at magtulung-tulong upang labanan ang salot ng kahirapan at isulong ang kasaganaan, kapayapaan, at katarungan sa bayan. Magkaisa tayo. Labanan ang kahirapan.

Marami na akong sinabi tungkol sa gagawin ko. Subalit mabibigkas sa ilang salita lamang ang pakay ng lahat ng mga plano, programa, at panukalang tinukoy ko: trabaho, edukasyon, sariling tahanan, pagkain sa bawat mesa.

Sa lahat ng mabibigay ko sa bayan, kabuhayan, karunungan, tahanan, at pagkain para sa masa ang ipagmamalaki ko nang higit sa lahat.

Lahat ng ito ay para sa mga kabataang tulad nila Jayson, Jomar, at Erwin, at sa magiging anak nila dahil tungkulin natin ito sa mga darating na henerasyon.

Mga kababayan, nais ko pong ipakilala sa inyo ang mga anak ng Payatas. Eto sina Jason, Jomar, at Erwin.

Salamat sa inyo, Jayson, Jomar, at Erwin. Salamat at sumulat kayo sa akin ng mga liham na ginawa ninyong bangkang papel at pinalutang sa Pasig.

Jayson, Jomar, at Erwin, pakinggan niyo ako.

Paparamihin natin ang mga kababayang may trabaho. Paparamihin natin ang mga batang makapag-aaral sa kolehiyo. Paparamihin natin ang mga kababayang may sariling tahanan. Paparamihin natin ang pamilyang may pagkain sa mesa. Ang pangarap ninyo ay pangarap ko rin. Gagawin ko ang lahat upang matupad ang pangarap natin.

Mga kababayan: tulungan ninyo akong tuparin ang pangarap nila Jayson, Jomar, at Erwin. Magkaisa tayo upang lahat ng kabataan—kasama ang kanilang magulang—ay magkaroon ng bagong buhay at bagong pag-asa sa hinaharap.

Trabaho. Tahanan. Edukasyon. Pagkain sa bawat mesa.

Salamat, Jayson, Jomar, at Erwin, pinaalala ninyo sa akin ang napakahalagang tungkulin ko.

Pinaalala ninyo sa aming lahat kung bakit kami ay narito ngayon sa bulwagang ito.

Mga Senador at Kongresista: Ipangako natin sa kanila, sa harap at sa tulong ng Poong Maykapal, na sa mga susunod na araw, buwan, at taon, tayong mga hinalal, tayong may pananagutan sa kanilang kinabukasan ay handang magsakripisyo at magkaisa para sa kabutihan, kaunlaran, katatagan ng bayan, at sa kinabukasan ng kabataan.

Jayson, Jomar, at Erwin, hindi namin kayo bibiguin.

I am not a miracle worker. But I will do what is right and I will do my best. Let us all do what is right, let us all do what is best, and God will take care of the rest.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Second State of the Nation Address, July 22, 2002

Second State of the Nation Address
By Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
14th President of the Philippines
Opening of the 2nd Regular Session of the 12th Congress

[Delivered at Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City, on July 22, 2002]

Thank you, Speaker Jose de Venecia.

Senate President Franklin Drilon; the Justices of the Supreme Court; distinguished members of the Senate and the House of Representatives; His Excellency Archbishop Antonio Franco, Dean of the Diplomatic Corps; your excellencies of the diplomatic corps; members of the Cabinet; members of the Armed Forces of the Philippines; members of the police; fellow workers in government; honored guests.

Mga minamahal kong kababayan.

In the corridors of power, in the Palace where I work, past presidents of the Republic sit in their portraits in judgment of me. In this gallery of the highest public servants, none sits in sterner judgment than the man who first led me by the hand into the Palace as a teenager.

In a country where a man's worth was measured by his property, he was born in a nipa hut, into a family that tilled less than a hectare of land.

After years of hard struggle and brilliant achievement, my father took his oath as President of the Philippines on ground made hallow by the martyrdom of our national hero. A hero whose name he would honor, and whose ideals he would pursue.

Indeed, in a democracy, a man may rise to the nation's highest service by dint of energy and intelligence alone, without regard to wealth and connections of which my father had none.

It was Jose Rizal who wrote: "A life not dedicated to a great ideal is useless; a mere pebble in the field that forms no part of an edifice."

The words of Diosdado Macapagal echoed this theme as he assumed the mantle of national leadership 40 years ago: "No President can build the whole edifice of a nation. All that he is called upon to do is add a fine stone to that edifice, so that those who shall come after him may add other fine stones that will go for a strong and enduring structure."

Modest words from a modest man who would yet change for all time how a feudal society would come to view a vital institution—land reform.

My countrymen, the fine stone I should like to add to the edifice of our nation, right above the stone of social justice that my father left behind, is a strong republic.

Two essential features mark out a strong republic. The first is independence from class and sectoral interests so that it stands for the interests of the people rather than of a powerful minority. The second is the capacity, represented through strong institutions and a strong bureaucracy, to execute good policy and deliver essential services—the things that only governments can do.

The results of these two features—good policies and empowered institutions—is faster economic development and social reform. A strong republic takes care of the people and takes care of their future. Thus, a strong republic is the bedrock of the victory we seek over poverty within the decade.

During these past 18 months, our efforts to build the strong republic have been difficult, with both domestic and global conditions extremely harsh. At home, the poor were pitted against the rich to further inflame our nation's social divisions. Abroad, the contracting economies of our main trading partners were further aggravated by the tensions generated by the global war against terrorism.

Meanwhile, one shocking corporate scandal after another severely eroded public faith in the most promising system for conducting economic activity—the free market.

These were the large long-term crises of social justice and the capitalist system itself, whose resolution awaits events well beyond one small nation's ability to influence in the short term.

But as I report on the state of the nation today, I can say this: The immediate crises have been resolved.

This resolution was achieved by focusing on three things.

First, by showing tangible results in the delivery of government services. Thus, in my State of the Nation Address last year, I did something never done before: I detailed a long list of measurable targets that would show a government on the move, marking progress by swift sure steps, despite the turbulent state of domestic and global affairs.

Halimbawa, target natin noong isang taon: 200,000 ektarya para sa land reform. Nakamit natin: 250,000 ektarya. [Applause] Congratulations sa mga probinsiyang topnotchers: Negros Occidental, at Sultan Kudarat, [applause] itong dalawang probinsiya bawat isa ay humigit ng 7,000 ektarya ng reporma sa lupa.

Target natin: 20 bilyong piso para sa modernisasyon ng agrikultura. Nakamit natin: 24 na bilyon. [Applause]

Target natin: 150,000 pamilyang maralitang tagalunsod na makatitiyak sa lupang tinitirikan. Nakamit natin: 180,000. [Applause]

Target natin: 150,000 pamilyang mahihirap na magkaroon ng pabahay. Nakamit natin: 150,000 na nga. [Applause]

Target natin: 1,000 rolling stores na magbebenta ng bigas sa P14 per kilo. Nakamit natin: 1,500 rolling stores. [Applause]

Target natin: ibaba sa kalahati ang presyo ng gamot na madalas bilhin ng mahihirap. Nakamit natin: Mahahanap ang mababang presyong gamot sa mga parmasya ng 80 ospital ng pamahalaan at sa mga outlet ng Unilab. [Applause] But sad to say, except for Unilab, the wider distribution of network of commercial drugstores—under pressure from the multinational drug companies—will not sell our cheaper medicines. We are studying punitive measures to correct this unfair, unjust, and heartless situation. [Applause]

Target natin: 500,000 maralita para sa health insurance. Nakamit natin: 4 na milyon. [Applause]

Target natin: pagdating ng 2004, may eskwela sa bawat barangay. May 1,612 na barangay na wala pang eskwela. Nakamit natin: 1,005 na malapit nang matapos, bukod pa sa 285 school buildings na humahalagang P100 million galing sa alokasyon ni Senate President Franklin Drilon. [Applause]

Target natin: kompletong libro sa pangunahing subjects sa grades 1 to 4 at sa 1st at 2nd year high school. Nakamit natin: Magkakaroon ngayong taon ng 54 million books para sa 16 na milyong estudyante. [Applause]

Target natin: pag-ibayuhin ang pagtuturo ng mathematics. Nakamit natin: dagdag na oras para sa Math sa bagong curriculum.

Target natin: mas maraming guro. Nakamit natin: 15,000 bagong guro. [Applause]

Target natin: dagliang trabaho para sa 20,000 out-of-school youth. Nakamit natin: 30,000. [Applause]

At noong isang taon, dinala ko ang tatlong batang kumatawan sa adhkain ng Payatas. Sabi nila, ang kailangan nila ay edukasyon, kabuhayan, pabahay. Higit na 400 na batang taga-Payatas ay iskolar na ngayon, kasama na si Jayson, Erwin, at Jomar. [Applause] Halos 800 pamilya ang nabigyan ng kabuhayan kasama ang pamilya nila. May 700 pamilyang binigyan ng karapatang bilhin ang lupang kanilang tinitirahan nila doon sa Payatas. Inaatasan ko ang Department of Environment and Natural Resources na apurahin ang pag-ayos ng natitirang problema sa lupa ng mga residente sa Payatas. [Applause]

This is just the tip of our accomplishments, all in just the first year of the 10-year fight I projected against poverty. I am submitting the entire iceberg to Congress in a comprehensive performance report. For good measure, it has been published and nationally circulated. These were our commitments. We delivered on them. A strong republic does what it says.

It takes care of the people and takes care of their future.

Our second focus to achieve the resolution of the immediate crises was the preservation and defense of the republic against forces that seek to destroy its unity and tear the fabric of its society, not least in the name of ideas that history has already passed by.

The turning points are clear.

This year, May 1 passed peacefully.

This year, our soldiers rescued Gracia Burnham and finished off her terrorist captor. [Applause]

This year, what used to be Camp Abubakar became an authentic community of new hopes and dreams, where our flag flies and our soldiers protect those who have returned to their homes.

Beyond the symbolic significance of these accomplishments, we have brought back interfaith solidarity, energized by the invaluable initiative of Speaker Jose de Venecia, [applause] and we have sealed peace agreements with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front.

We achieved all of these backed by the valor, professionalism, and restraint of our soldiers and police. I salute our men and women in uniform, at the forefront of our Republic's efforts to fight terror and enforce peace.

The third focus to resolve the crises and build a strong republic was to restore macroeconomic stability and win back investor confidence.

The linchpin was to control our fiscal deficit. If EDSA 2 had not happened, the government would simply have gone bankrupt with a deficit of P245 billion. [Applause] But we controlled the deficit, brought it down to P147 billion, and against all odds, turned our international credit rating from risky to stable. [Applause] It was hard work, here and abroad, to rekindle global interest in our country, but we did it. [Applause]

The adoption of strong administrative measures, including fighting smuggling and graft and corruption, will enable us to close the gap in our revenue targets for this year.

The basic macro signs indicate that things are under control. Inflation is at a low, driven down by stable food prices and now by declining power costs. [Applause]

Nang ako ay naging Pangulo, ang presyo ng galunggong ay 80 pesos ang kilo. Noong isang linggo, nakabili ako sa palengke ng 60 pesos lamang. [Applause] Ang presyo rin ng bigas na binibili ng mahihirap ay nananatiling P16 ang kilo sa palengke at P14 sa rolling store, gaya pa rin nang isang taon. [Applause]

Interest rates are also at a low, and our peso is stable. From P56 to the dollar, it is now a little over P50. [Applause]

Internationally, the Philippines is back on the map.

We are the third best performing economy in Asia and the best in southeast Asia. [Applause]

As a result of our decisive action after September 11, the Philippines is now a recognized player in world affairs. The President of the Philippines was the first head of government to emphasize the interconnection between the war against terrorism and the war against poverty. Now, nations large and small now embrace this interconnection. [Applause]

We have gained powerful allies in our domestic war against terrorism. I am certain that our increased international visibility will continue generating capital inflows for the Philippines.

Where we have fallen short of achieving what we intended, it has not been from misdirection or a lack of trying. After all, it has really been only one year and a half.

In any event, I promise to work even harder if that is possible, and do even better because I believe that there is always room for improvement. I cannot grow taller but I can always get better. [Applause]

My working agenda for the coming year will focus on creating and improving job opportunities. Citizens with rewarding jobs paying decent wages constitute not just a stone in the edifice but the very foundation of a strong republic.

We need investments to generate jobs, and to draw in investments, we will address certain problems in the short term: katiwalian, peace and order, and the cost of power. [Applause]

Bilang Pangulo, tinatanggap ko ang pahayag ng mga negosyante na dapat sugpuin ang katiwalian sa bansa.

Noong isang taon nga sa aking State of the Nation Address, sinabi ko na, na aalisin natin ang mga hadlang sa ating productivity, kagaya ng mahal na kuryente at katiwalian.

At dahil ako ay naluklok sa pagkapangulo dala ng malawakang galit sa anomaliya, alam kong kailangan wakasan ang katiwalian. [Applause] Naniniwala rin ako na pinahihina ng katiwalian ang daloy ng puhunan sa ating bansa.

Kaya noong isang taon, sinabi ko na ang kabinete ko ay kailangan gumawa ng konkreong resulta sa paglaban sa katiwalian. Pinapaalala ko sa kanila ngayon na sa mga sumusunod na araw, magbigay ng kanilang ulat sa naturang mga resulta.

But even now I can tell you that our new e-Procurement Program is saving billions and minimizing anomalies.

Even now, I can tell you that the Presidential Anti-Graft Commission [PAGC] is doing its best to ensure that good governance is carried out. Inaatasan ko ang PAGC na gumawa rin ng ulat sa kanilang trabaho.

Tungkol naman sa katiwalian sa mga korte, inaatasan ko ang Department of Justice [DOJ] na kasuhan yung prosecutor na tinuloy pa iyong kaso kontra sa Kimberly-Clark kahit nagkaroon na ng affidavit of desistance ang complainant. Kaya tuloy ang Kimberly-Clark ay dinala iyong kanyang Asia operations sa Thailand imbes na sa Pilipinas. Inaasahan ko ring kasuhan ng DOJ iyong prosecutor na ginawang accessory lamang embes na principal iyong ilang mga nagkidnap kay Rowena Tiu. At inaatasan ko rin ang DOJ na kasuhan pati na rin ang mga huwes na gumagawa ng katiwalian. [Applause]

Noong isang taon, sinabi ko na gagawin nating sample ang BIR at Customs sa paglaban sa katiwalian. This is still a continuing effort. Tax evasion is a white-collar crime and the response is a white collar response—systems improvement, audit, prosecution. Smuggling is something else. It is done by hoodlums and criminal gangs. But the punishment for both must be the same: blue-collar time. Kalaboso. [Applause]

Indeed, criminal gangs and homegrown terrorists have exploited the poisoned political atmosphere to spread poisons of their own: rampant smuggling, kidnapping, gambling, drug dealing, rampant smuggling.

You have seen political will in the harsh interpretation of command responsibility with regard to illegal gambling. That draconian application was a dress rehearsal for enforcing command responsibility in the even more difficult challenges of kidnapping, drug dealing, and smuggling. [Applause]

I am determined to build a strong republic by breaking the back of terrorism and criminality. [Applause]

In the year 2000, despite all the rampant efforts of rampant smuggling, only P16 million worth was confiscated. But last year, in a show of political will, my administration seized P1.2 billion worth of smuggled goods, [applause] including more than a million bags of smuggled rice, as compared to much less than a hundred thousand the year before. [Applause]

I congratulated the Commissioner of Customs but told him also: Go beyond getting smuggled goods and get me the big-time smugglers. [Applause] I have instructed the DOJ to charge these big-time smugglers not just with smuggling but also with economic sabotage—nonbailable capital offense. [Applause]

Criminal syndicates will be treated as what they are—direct threats to national security. Criminals are criminals, whether of the common kind or the kind that kill in the name of political advocacies. They will feel the full brunt of the arsenal of democracy. Freedom, too, is entitled to self-defense. [Applause]

I have given very clear orders to spare nothing in hunting down kidnapers.

We will go by scorecards and track progress by counting beans, if we have to.

Remember Mary Grace Rosagas of Uratex who was kidnapped from UP. Remember her aunt Connie Wong who was killed by the kidnapers. Remember Rowena Tiu who was kidnapped in La Union. Remember the owner of Liana Supermarket. Remember the whispers about the kidnapping of the granddaughter a big banker and the son of a steel magnate. We have taken down the syndicates responsible for kidnapping them and 52 other victims. [Applause] In the process, 170 kidnapers were either killed or captured.

The ideal response to kidnapping was in the case of Rowena Tiu. She was rescued in 8 days, the ransom money recovered, and her kidnapers were arrested and are now facing trial. That is why hers was the first but the last kidnapping to take place in Region I in my administration. [Applause]

I want to smash the other 21 syndicates in the same way. [Applause] We are getting a clearer picture of the leadership, membership, and area of operations of these syndicates. I now want their linkages and modus operandi. I am overseeing how they are being watched, tracked, and infiltrated. We will start with the two biggest syndicates, the Bucala and Fajardo gangs. I have challenged the Philippine National Police [PNP] to eliminate them within a year. [Applause]

I have told the PNP that they must start with the cleansing of their own ranks. You remember the front page photograph of that shootout last Saturday? In the front seat next to the driver was a PNP Academy Graduate but AWOL from the police force. He was the planner and the negotiator of that gang. The rascals among the police disgrace the uniform and unfortunately paint in the same broad brush the majority who do their duty well.

I salute the men and women of the police who scorned to be bribed and confiscated 500 kilograms of shabu in Quezon Province last year, and caught the biggest fish so far in the drug trade. [Applause]

I salute the men and women who raided the shabu factories in Batangas, Zambales, San Juan, Varsity Hills, and other places, seizing a total of P5 billion worth of illegal drugs and laboratory equipment in the largest drug busts ever in our history of crime fighting. [Applause]

Within a month, we shall organize the new Dangerous Drugs Board and the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency which Congress has just created, and I thank Senator Barbers for sponsoring the bill in the Senate. With the drug menace now elevated to the level of a national security problem and no longer just a police problem, I am instructing the Armed Forces of the Philippines to field military resources for intelligence and to field soldiers in drug raids in support of civilian law enforcement. Drug lords will be treated as enemies of the State!

In this war with the drug trade there will be no compromise and no quarter, not for fear or favor.

Indeed, we are at war: at war with the terrorists, at war with the kidnappers, at war with the drug lords—and we are determined to win decisive victories on all fronts.

The global antiterrorist coalition is a historical watershed. This new global consensus helps us immensely in finally breaking the cycle of terrorism and criminality. To that end, we shall enhance our strategic relationship with the United States through continuing training exercises to sharpen our soldiers' capabilities to move and communicate, to fix and finish off their targets.

I am happy to let you know that yesterday we captured the mastermind of the General Santos bombings that killed and maimed 80 persons a few months ago. This man that they captured yesterday is considered the number one terrorist bomber.

We cannot afford to lose. Even a stalemate will be a defeat. For what is at stake is our country as a viable proposition in the world economy. And we must be viable if we are to win the most fundamental war, the war against poverty.

I ask the newly elected barangay captains to take an active role in this war. To be the frontliners in this fight in your communities.

And as with war in the past, so will it be with this war. As Commander in Chief, I am taking a direct hand in the war against the enemies of the Republic. This was how I did it with the Abu Sayyaf, leading to the death of Abu Sabaya. This is how I will do it with the criminal gangs.

Nakasalalay dito ang pamamayani ng ating Republika. Our strong republic.

At stake in this war is the very life of society, the very possibility of basic rights and liberties, which have been under attack for too long.

The right to work in peace is as basic as the right to life and liberty, and when both are in danger their preservation by all lawful means becomes not just a higher right but an overriding duty. And that duty I will discharge.

This is a war we will wage on behalf, and with the rage, of all the victims: those whose businesses were ruined by extortion, those held down by poverty in fear, those whose lives were snuffed out by addiction, and those taken hostage and killed. To them, I say: We shall redeem your pain; we shall redeem your loss.

I endorse to the collective wisdom of Congress, with a great sense of urgency, a new bill that will strengthen our legal armory in this war: the Anti-Terrorism Bill. When passed into law, this bill will plug the loopholes by which crimes spread and democracy is undermined. Congress will also note a reallocation of resources in this year's budget to enhance the Republic's crime-fighting capabilities.

There are a number of other critical bills linked closely to the overall run of social, economic, and political reform. I will hold more meetings with the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council, or LEDAC, to push this momentum of reform.

We must team up, as I said last year, to enact a law making farmland acceptable as loan collateral in order to remove a big deterrent to investments in agriculture.

We must pass the Special Purpose Vehicle Act in order to encourage asset management companies to put back into productive circulation assets now tied up in problematic loans.

We must pass a law to give overseas Filipinos the right to vote, consistent with the Constitution. We must pass the bill that will give equal respect and recognition to an overseas Filipino's dual citizenship, consistent with our national honor. This is the least return for the enormous contribution of our overseas Filipinos to the national welfare.

We must pass the Transco Franchise Bill to make our electric service more efficient and more reliable.

Everywhere I go, I ask people about their electric bill. This is not just a pet concern for the moment. I think about it all the time.

You have seen your recent electric bills. You know they have gone down. Because I brought down the PPA.

I did not invent the PPA. I merely inherited it. But my administration chose to confront and stare it in the face and find the solutions.

Before I became President, we had the second most expensive power rates in Asia. Now we have gone down to sixth. This is first fruit of a comprehensive 10-point plan we have put in place to reduce power costs.

We have brought electricity for the first time to the barangays of Balud, Masbate, of Lake Lanao, and 1,500 other barangays.

We have improved the electric service in Boracay by taking over the electric cooperative. To other electric cooperatives, I ask you: be efficient in your operations and improve your customer service.

To the electric utilities, I ask you: be transparent in your procurement and your contracts with your affiliates.

To NAPOCOR and Meralco I ask you: Stop bickering and instead work together to give price incentives to large users so that excess power can be utilized, economic activity can be encouraged, and jobs can be created.

The results of the review of the contracts of independent power producers are in. We have three months to carry out the concrete courses of action stemming from this review that will further ease the burden on our people.

Soon we shall have the first-ever wholesale electricity spot market in Asia, without the pitfalls of California. In due time, we will give electric consumers the power to choose their electricity suppliers. We are giving you the power of choice.

The power of choice will lead to lower prices and better service.

With cheaper power will come a more competitive economy, and more investors.

We know where we are going and how to get there; we are planting the milestones along the way to a strong republic and a prosperous country.

A republic does not exist by the mere fact of declaring itself to be so.

A republic must be so in fact, in reality, and especially in the difference it makes for the better in the lives of its citizens.

It is not a given but a task, a product undertaken by an entire society for its progress and preservation.

A republic is like a shield that needs a strong arm to hold it up.

A republic is a roof, and walls, that need to be constructed.

A republic is an edifice towards the building of which each must give the finest stone within their ability to shape. In the end, this stone is the only thing by which one will be remembered.

Like my father, I am working on my stone. The stone of the strong republic. I intend to be well remembered.

Legions of ordinary Filipinos, many of them students, came, stood, and clamored at EDSA, for a better government.

It is to them I look for validation.

I know that it is to me that those many Filipinos are looking for the vindication of their decision to go to EDSA. I shall not disappoint them.

It is for them that I am working hard on that stone that will fit just above my father's, adding security to social justice, and prosperity to the promise of social equality in which he believed so much.

Ang malakas na republika ay para sa mahihina, para sa mahihirap, para sa walang trabaho, para sa nagugutom, para sa nanganganib, para sa agrabyado, para sa mga api. 'Yan ang malakas na republika para sa kanila.

Toward the achievement of this strong republic, I shall bring to bear the full weight of the Executive, and call upon local government officials to add their own. This is our common struggle; it shall be our shared victory.

I hope to get from Congress at least the same cooperation it extended to me last year.

The judicial branch needs no reminder of its key role in the unspoken component of justice, fairness, integrity, and truth in the equation of law and order.

It has been 18 months of putting out small fires and soothing hurt feelings, while taking what I hope have been giant steps forward in the economy.

But now the time has come. Now we must devote ourselves entirely to taking more of those giant steps towards the achievement of the strong republic.

As I look back, down the road on which I came, I see, with some regret, the shards of broken friendships. But I console myself by looking forward to a time when these broken friendships will heal and grievances will be forgotten in the collective satisfaction of our common success.

For in the end, we are one nation under God, one people, with one aspiration: A country as good as it can get!

For a country to be as good as it can get, many of the right decisions are tough decisions. I have made some of the toughest. And I will make even more tough decisions in the year to come. Because the easy way out may postpone the pain but only prolong the problem. The tough decisions are the right decisions, because they serve the people, and are the source of our hope for the future.

In the last year and a half:

I led our nation in making the world recognize and respect our economic discipline.

I led our soldiers in defeating the Abu Sayyaf.

I led our government in meeting the targets we so bravely set for the welfare of our people.

Now I will lead our country towards the strong republic.

Stay with me. Samahan niyo ako! Itayo natin ang matatag at malakas na republika!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Third State of the Nation Address, July 28, 2003

Third State of the Nation Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the 3rd Regular Session of the 12th Congress

[Delivered at the Batasang Pambasa, Quezon City, on July 28, 2003]

Thank you Speaker de Venecia.

Vice President Guingona; President Ramos; Senate President Drilon; Chief Justice Davide and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court; distinguished members of the Senate and House of Representatives; His Excellency Archbishop Franco and excellencies of the diplomatic corps; members of the Cabinet; General Abaya and the officers of the Armed Forces; General Ebdane and the members of the police; fellow workers in government; ladies and gentlemen.

Yesterday, without bloodshed, without damage to property, and within a single day, we overcame an ill-conceived mutiny carried out by misguided military officers. Such actions are deplorable and will be met with the full force of the law, including their political component. Yet they signal an underlying problem that we must address.

I am constituting an independent commission to investigate the roots of the mutiny and the provocations that inspired it. At the request of Defense Secretary Angelo Reyes, I am also constituting an independent commission to investigate the Davao bombing.

These will be matched by a PNP Reform Commission. I thank the National Police for their solid support in yesterday's crisis, and I am sure they themselves welcome a comprehensive reform that will cure the organization not only of the failures of the scale of the Al-Ghozi escape, but also the daily devils that are the kotong cops.

By now, we should be at peace: at peace in the south, at peace in the countryside, safe in our homes and secure in our communities. But we remain at war—at war against terrorism; at war against corruption; at war against disease; at war against drugs—the greatest menace facing our country today.

Last five weeks, we've struck a major blow against the drug menace. Eight billion pesos in five weeks. It is a pity that a few days later after the penultimate success against the drug menace, we should find ourselves at war against destabilizers.

We cannot stay divided with so much we need to do together. I address myself not only to the joint houses here assembled, but to the nation-at-large.

I need you; we need each other.

Iyon ang aking sinabi nang naluklok ako bilang pangulo noong 2001. Sinabi ko noon na panahon na ng paghilom sa ating lipunan.

At sa aking unang State of the Nation Address, pinagdiin ko ang mga batayang hangarin ng karaniwang Pilipino: trabaho, pagkain sa bawat mesa, tahanan, edukasyon.

I gave my targets.

I am submitting to the Congress and to the nation a technical report of my government's performance. In sum I can say, we delivered in great part on our commitments. Hindi lumampas ang dalawang buwan pagkatapos noong State of the Nation Address, noong 9/11, nagbago ang mundo. sa mga batayang hangaring trabaho, pagkain sa bawat mesa, tahanan, at edukasyon, ating idinagdag ang kapayapaan.

Ngunit dahil hindi pa matatag ang ating republika, hindi pa natin maaasahan na kung ang isang pangulo ay mag-uutos parang isang presidente ng isang korporasyon, ay maiintindihan at susunod kaagad ang mga institusyon at burokrasya. In a nation whose institutions are still fragile, a leader cannot run a developing country like a corporation.

For the practical purposes of most people, government exists to provide jobs, homes, education, peace, food on every table. And to do that adequately and dependably, government must possess the capacity to execute good policy and deliver basic services through strong and responsive institutions staffed by a competent and dedicated bureaucracy. In short, government must be the arm of a strong republic.

But a strong republic does not happen overnight; not even in two or three years. Nor does it happen once and for all.

In this setting, the first virtue of a modern leader is a constant sense of correct perspective, the capacity to retain her original focus, and plod on regardless. She must stick to priorities that were carefully chosen, rather than dump them at every first issue that is recklessly raised. I have stuck to my priorities: jobs, food on every table, homes, education, peace.

Many of our reforms have yet to bear fruit, but in the fullness of time our country will reap what was carefully picked, planted, and nurtured. And it will be a harvest of plenty.

The harvest has in fact started.

Sa kapayaan:

We have hit hard at terrorism and, with the help of Speaker Joe de Venecia, made advances towards a negotiated peace on two fronts: the MILF and the NDF.

Sa susunod na linggo, magsisimula na ang pag-uusap ng peace panels ng gobyerno at MILF tungo sa isang panghuling kasunduang pang-kapayapaan. We will avail of the good offices of Malaysia in the search of a political solution to the conflict with the MILF, while looking to the help of the United States in the rehabilitation of conflict areas and the eradication of the roots of war. We—all of us Filipinos—have to decide now, once and for all, whether we want peace or we want war. There is no way to peace. Peace is the way. Subalit kung ipagpipilitan ng ilang mga kaaway ng ating republika ang digmaan, wala akong magagawa kung hindi tapatan sila upang ipagtanggol ang ating mga kababayan.

I thank the senate for ratifying seven UN conventions against terrorism. I asked them to ratify the remaining five. Hinihingi ko rin sa kongreso na ipasa na ang Anti-Terrorism Law, at isama rito ang pagpataw ng mabigat na parusa sa kapabayaang pangangalaga ng mga pinaghihinahinalang terorista.

Kasama ng terorismo, ang problema ng droga, ang pinag-uugatan ng matinding pagkabahala ng mga mamamayan tungkol sa kanilang personal na kaligtasan. Ang katiwaliang nilikha ng kalakal sa droga ay malalim ang lagos at bumabagtas sa lahat ng sector. Dapat nating kapootan ang walang pakundangang pagsira sa buhay ng ating mga mamamayan na maaaring humantong sa pagkawasak ng ating mga institusyong demokratiko.

Kapag nakakausap ko ang mga magulang ng mga drug addict, nawawasak ang aking puso, ngunit lalong tumitibay ang loob ko na tama ang aking desisyong itaas ang antas ng ating paglaban sa bawal na gamot. Dadalhin ko ang labang ito sa bawat lalawigan at lungsod hanggang umabot sa mga barangay upang kumatok tayo sa mga pinto ng bawat pamilyang Pilipino. This is one fight I am taking everywhere, if we have to knock on every door. Maglulunsad tayo ng kampanya sa mga paaralan at mga komunidad para sagipin ang kabataan at bigyan ng bagong buhay ang mga drug users at tiyaking hindi sila malulong muli! Pipigain natin ang supply sa kalye sa paraang kahit na ang masalapi ay mahihirapang sustentuhan ang kanilang bisyo. Pipilayan natin ang operasyon ng mga drug lords at ng kanilang mga padrino sa mga pasilyo ng kapangyarihan.

I thank Congress for passing the Anti-Money Laundering Law because it will help us interdict the money of the drug lords. I am now instructing the Secretary of Budget and Management to allocate a hundred million pesos for its implementation.

Ito ang ating laban at tayo ay magtatagumpay. Para sa mga big fish sa ilegal na droga, mahirap na ang mag-moratorium sa death penalty. Ngunit sa ibang bagay, pro-life pa rin ako. I will veto any bill that will try to smuggle in abortion.

Tungkol sa edukasyon:

In 2001, I said that our English literacy gives us a competitive edge in ICT. I also said that to prepare the youth to be the next generation of knowledge workers, we will upgrade math and science teaching in basic education. Kaya dinagdagan natin ang oras para sa math at English at pinag-ibayo ang laman ng science sa bagong curriculum. Nagtayo tayo ng eskwelahan sa 600 barangay na dati'y walang paaralan. Sinisimulan natin ang distance learning program o education TV para sa apat na raang pamayanang malayo at kulang ang guro.

At kagaya ni Senate President Franklin Drilon, samahan n'yo akong magtayo ng silid-aralan sa lahat ng paaralang lumalampas sa 100 mag-aaral bawat silid. In that way, we can once and for all close the perennial school building gap.

Tungkol sa tirahan:

Tayo ay nakapagtayo ng higit 100,000 bahay para sa mga maralita at halos 200,000 para sa mga manggagawa. Binigyan din natin ng katiyakan sa lupang tinitirikan ang halos 300,000 na mahihirap na pamilya. Pinagtibay natin ang ancestral domain ng mga katutubo sa mahigit 360,000 hektarya ng lupain.

Tungkol sa pagkain sa bawat mesa:

Self-rated hunger according to the surveys has gone down to 6.6 percent compared to 12.7 percent just before I became president. Mayroon tayong pirmihang supply ng bigas sa halagang P16.00 bawat kilo para sa mahihirap.

At ayon sa masugid na pag-monitor ni Mar Roxas, ang ating Secretary of Trade, mula noong ako'y naging pangulo, nanatiling P8.50 ang halaga ng pangmasang sardinas, P11.00 ang mantikang lapad, P23.00 ang mantikang long neck, P28.00 ang puting asukal, P23.00 ang brown sugar, P28.00 ang kondensada, P115.00 ang baboy, P90.00 ang manok, at P160.00 ang baka. Matatag itong mga presyo mula nang ako'y naging pangulo. Dahil dito, ngayon pinakamababa ang ating inflation rate sa loob ng 20 taon. Malamang, ito ay dahil ang aking administrasyon sa tulong ng kongreso ay taun-taon gumugugol ng 20 bilyong piso para sa makataong modernisasyon ng agrikultura.

Namahagi tayo ng halos kalahating milyong hektarya sa ilalim ng reporma sa lupa. Mas marami pa tayong magagawa sa 38 bilyong pisong inilaan para dito ng desisyon ng Korte Suprema tungkol sa nakaw na yaman.

I congratulate the Supreme Court for finally granting what has taken much too long to materialize: authorizing the allocation and use of private loot for laudable public purposes.

Hinihiling ko sa Kongreso na maglaan ng bahagi nitong pondo bilang kabayaran sa mga naging biktima ng paglabag sa karapatang pantao noong Martial Law.

Mas malaki rin ang maitutulong ng gobyerno sa mga magsasaka ng niyog ngayon na naresolba na pabor sa magsasaka ang kaso ng coco levy. Uulitin ko ang sinabi ko noon pang 2001, sisiguruhin ko na makikinabang sa coco levy ay ang mga maliliit na magniyu-niyog. Hindi ko sila pababayaang madehado.

I said that there could be a million new jobs in agriculture and fisheries. We have provided more than half of that number two-thirds into my term.

Ngunit upang mabuo ang 1 milyon, kailangan isabatas natin ang panukalang gamitin ang bukirin bilang kolateral sa utang para lumawak ang daan sa rural credit at kapital. To the countless incentives that Congress has granted to business, I've matched similar programs to give a similar break to the worker in the factory and in the farm.

I do not subscribe to trickle down economics and social policy. Those who have less in life should not have to scramble for crumbs at the feet of those with too much on the table. Bilang pakikipag-ugnayan sa mga pinakamahirap ng ating bansa hinggil sa pinakamalubhang mga problema natin, dinalaw ko ang mga di kilalang barangay.

Nawasak ang aking puso nang narinig kong namatay ang Calisaan quadruplets. Lalong nakumbinsi akong pag-ibayuhin ang mga serbisyong pangkalusugan, gaya nang mabuti nating paglaban sa SARS. Ngayon, ang mga gamot na madalas gamitin ng mahihirap ay nabibili sa kalahating presyo sa mga ospital ng gobyerno.

Sa PhilHealth insurance naman, bago ako naging pangulo, isa't kalahating milyong maralita ang sakop. Ngayon, halos 7 milyon na. Gusto kong palawakin ang mga ito, ang murang gamot, at dapat hangarin natin na lahat ng dukha ay masakop sa PhilHealth. And to finance the universal coverage of PhilHealth, I ask Congress to pass the bill on the indexation of sin taxes.

Tungkol sa trabaho:

Sinabi ko noong 2001 na upang dumami ang trabaho, kailangang isaayos ang klima para sa pamumuhunan. Our economy grew by 4.4 percent GNP last year and 5.6 percent in the first quarter of this year. Only China and Vietnam did better.

Ang kahirapan ay unti-unting nagagapi. Self-rated poverty again according to the survey, is at its lowest percentage of the population in the last 16 years. Foreign investments rose 26 percent in the first quarter compared to the same period last year. But we need to reduce the risk of living, not to mention doing business here, which is why yesterday's rogues must go to jail.

We can reduce business costs by providing basic infrastructure: roads, transport, and a more efficient and rationalized power sector. Our road program is symbolized by the long-awaited expansion of the North Expressway.

On mass transport, towards the end of this year, we will complete the loop of the light railway system of Metro Manila—from Santolan in Pasig towards Aurora Boulevard in Cubao, and on to Quiapo to Blumentritt on to EDSA in Pasay and back to Cubao. Hindi tumaas ang pasahe mula noong una kong State of the Nation Address. Kaya mga jeepney drivers, nagpapasalamat ako; hindi ko kayo pababayaan.

To reduce transport costs from Mindanao to Luzon, we set up the nautical highway, a system where the cargo truck itself travels straight to its destination, making inter-island crossings on ferries, rather than loading and unloading at every port. This has reduced by 30 percent the transport costs of products from Mindanao like copra, rice, corn, and vegetables.

Nagbigay tayo ng kuryente sa mahigit 3,600 barangay. While in Metro Manila, a consumer using 100 kilowatt hour paid P526.48 last May. Today, he pays P423.20, a drop of over 100 pesos or 20 percent. His case is one of almost 2 million households benefiting from the lifeline rate program of the Energy Regulatory Commission. Another 119 electric cooperative franchise areas will also soon reduce their rates under the loan condonation program of the Electric Power Reform Act that you, Congress, passed in 2001. That is why, believe me when I say that from having the second most expensive power in Asia Pacific, we now rank seventh.

But we will need 6,000 megawatts more of power over the next 10 years. That is why we need to pass the Transco Bill to maintain a favorable ranking as we take on this added capacity. When we reduce business costs, the last should be wages, and the first should be red tape.

Kaya nagsasagawa ako ng sorpresang pagbisita sa mga tanggapan ng gobyerno, upang pasiglahin ang talagang nagsisikap at gisingin kung sino ang natutulog sa trabaho. Pinalakas natin ang pambansang ekonomiya—agrikultura, maliliit na negosyo, pabahay—upang anumang mangyari sa dayuhang ekonomiya, matatag pa rin ang Pilipinas.

Naglaan tayo ng 10 bilyong piso para sa murang pautang sa maliliit na negosyo. Nagamit na ito, kaya dadagdagan muli natin ng higit pa sa 10 bilyon.

Ang interest rates ay patuloy na bumababa. Good monetary policy and fiscal discipline and balance are the key. Our revenues surpassed the target by 21 billion pesos in the first five months of this year, driven by information technology, and helped by lifestyle checks, and 50 indictments and dismissals for graft and corruption. Thus, we held the budget deficit in check at 22 percent below ceiling.

I thank Congress for passing our e-Procurement Law because it helps us hold down expenditures. Now, I ask Congress to complete the passage of the bills on excise tax rationalization and the national revenue authority. But we must reduce corruption not only among appointive but also among elective officials.

With full financial support to my government, the registration, counting, and transmission of votes in the May 2004 elections will be completely computerized. Now, I ask congress to institute reforms in campaign finance to level the playing field and widen the choice of the electorate for worthy candidates. The strength of our investment climate also rests in great part on the realities of the global and regional environment and on how we turn those realities to our advantage.

Our country has come much closer to reattaining its strategic importance in geopolitics as an active and respected voice in international affairs. The Filipino is now recognized as a truly global worker, both at home and abroad. We have had the smallest number of strikes in the last 21 years. Increasingly, the Philippines is being recognized as an ideal site for critical operations requiring a high-quality, English-educated workforce. Eight million Filipinos live and work abroad, in jobs where they enjoy the unbeatable comparative advantages of an English-speaking education, advanced skills, and a uniquely caring nature.

The Filipino will work anywhere because he is not afraid. Like Manny Pacquiao, given the chance to compete, he will take it and he will win. It was only fitting that because of your work in Congress, overseas Filipino workers were given the overseas voting right. It was also fitting that I put in a new perspective on our relations with the United States, where three million Filipinos live and where I made a visit as their only state visitor for the year. The benefits of our engagement with the U.S. vastly outweigh any concerns about sovereign subordination. We should have the confidence to deal with other countries as equals—however rich, however strong, be they China, Japan, the members of the European Union or the United States.

We have reached out to good friends and neighbors—such as Prime Minister Mahathir of Malaysia and President Megawati of Indonesia—with the message that we must work together especially where democracy and security are concerned.

Ang panguluhan ay laging nahaharap sa mabibigat na suliranin. Terrorism, drugs, SARS, OFWs, Mindanao, poverty, corruption, investments, destabilization—these come to mind as we review the crises and opportunities of the past year. They sum up the problems we faced and the extraordinary responses that we made, surprising even ourselves and reviving faith in our future.

Barangay Vacante, Alcala, Pangasinan, got the SARS, took the hit, fought on, and valiantly overcame the crisis. Barangay Inug-ug, Pagalungan, Maguindanao, politely asked the MILF and the military to leave and take their fight elsewhere, thereby making their community a sanctuary of peace.

Si Sonny Ayao, umayaw sa giyera at naging community organizer kahit na s'ya ay naging MNLF sa edad na 12, at pagkatapos maging Mujahideen sa loob ng 27 taon.

The Filipinos of Kuwait, isolated by war but refusing to abandon their jobs, took care of themselves and the people around them during the Iraq conflict. Teacher Josette Biyo of Iloilo, world champion in science and math teaching, has a planet in the solar system named after her. Luz Lozada, 72 years old, ng San Isidro, Davao del Sur—hinirang na natatanging magsasaka. She is the image model of hybrid rice technology, the symbol of our agricultural modernization. Police officers Cayetano Gannaban and Raul Graza fought off 20 rebels in a firefight in Quinapondan, Eastern Samar. Police Colonel Boysie Rosales, kilabot ng mga drug lords, tumanggi sa suhol na P35 million. Hinahangaan ko ang gilás ng maraming Pilipino, ang malalim nating kaban ng kabayanihan at talino, ang ating matibay na kalooban upang mabuhay, maglingkod, at mangibabaw.

Ang ating pangarap ay walang kabawas-bawas—isang matatag na republikang hindi matitinag ng makasariling interes, yumayabong sa mga gumaganang institusyon ng pamamahala, naglilingkod sa isang masipag na lipi saan man ito kailangan upang maibigay sa kanila ang karapat-dapat nilang tanggapin.

A life of leadership is a difficult one, with few pauses for comfort and relief. These days, I find that rare moment of joy in the company of my family—especially my granddaughter, Mikaela. Just as I will do everything to make sure that the future will be kind to Mikaela and her generation, so must we all strive to turn our fears into a resolve to do right not just by ourselves, but by our children and grandchildren.

Nasa giyera tayo. giyera laban sa terorismo. giyera laban sa katiwalian. giyera laban sa kasakitan. giyera laban sa droga. giyera laban sa destabilisasyon. Sa ating sama-samang pakikipaglaban at pagtutulungan, tayo ay mangingibabaw at magwawagi.

No agtutunos tayo nga agtrabaho, agba leygi tayo.

Abe-abeng makilaban ampon mag-obra, mangibabo tamu.

Sa atong panaghiusa sa pagtrabaho ug pagbuntog sa mga kaaway, molampos gayod kita.

Sa aton pag-inupod sa mga ulubrahon kag sa pakipag-away, kita gid ang magpangibabaw.

Kasihan nawa ng Diyos ang Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: http://en.wikisource.org/wiki/gloria_macapagal_arroyo%27s_third_state_of_the_nation_address

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's 2003 SONA Technical Report

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Fourth State of the Nation Address, July 26, 2004

Fourth State of the Nation Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the 1st Regular Session of the 13th Congress

[Delivered at the Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City, on July 26, 2004]

Thank you Speaker De Venecia; Vice President Noli de Castro; President Fidel Ramos; Senate President Drilon; Chief Justice Davide and the Justices of the Supreme Court; honorable members of the Senate and the House of Representatives; His Excellency Archbishop Franco and the excellencies of the diplomatic corps; members of the Cabinet; commanders of the Armed Forces; officers and members of the Philippine National Police; fellow workers in government; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen.

Angelo de la Cruz is home.

We did it! Congratulations to the Filipino people. [Applause]

Samakatuwid, ipabatid sa lahat, mula sa pook at panahong ito, sa bawat Pilipino, saan man naroroon...

You have a government—indeed, you have a country—that cares. Your life is held more dearly than international acclaim. [Applause] And you have a President who is your friend. [Applause]

Why was Angelo de la Cruz saved? Because I stuck to my oath. Since I first became President in 2001, my declared foreign policy focus has been to protect the vital interests of the nation, including our 8 million overseas Filipinos.

And I cannot apologize for being a protector of my people. [Applause]

The difference of a few weeks, for a pullout already decided on, could not justify sacrifice of a human life.

Sacrificing Angelo de la Cruz would have been a pointless provocation; it would have put the lives of a million and a half Filipinos in the Middle East at risk, by making them part of the war.

Wars are for combatants. As I speak soldiers are being held hostage by communist insurgents, but they don't expect to be released except by the compassion of their captors or a military operation.

We have been fighting the longest-running communist insurgency in history. We have been coming to grips with fundamentalist terrorism long before 9/11.

As the leader of the nation, I say in behalf of the Filipino people to the world: We are strong and principled believers in democracy. Four generations of fighting Filipinos have ceaselessly struggled against totalitarians and terrorists for our freedom, for the freedom of our people and the people of the world.

We have fought the enemy, and taken as good as we gave—not from a safe distance but in close quarters. Bataan and Corregidor, Korea and Vietnam, East Timor, Kosovo, Liberia, to name a few.

When I opted to save Angelo de la Cruz, I was reflecting whether one life should be sacrificed for no pressing reason or saved by accelerating an ongoing pullout.

I did not sacrifice policy to save a human life. I applied policy for that purpose. [Applause] The Philippines has no policy that demands sacrifice of human lives.

Ask yourselves this: If Angelo de la Cruz had been sacrificed, what would change for the better in Iraq today?

Having saved one Filipino from a painful and pointless death, we must seize the unity we attained to improve our government and save our economy. [Applause]

Pinapangako ko ang isang bagong direksyon: mamamayan muna. Ang taong bayan ang pinakamalaki nating yaman. Ngunit madalas, kaunti lang ang atensyon na binibigay sa kanilang pag-unlad. Di tuloy matawid ang agwat ng mayaman at mahirap. Di tuloy mapa-abot sa lahat ang biyaya ng demokrasya.

I want to create economic opportunity at home and abroad. I don't want just one or the other. I want both.

But it can only be done with focus, with energy, and with a common purpose to do that which still lies within our power: put our economic house back in working order [applause] before it finds itself beyond hope of repair and doomed to share the fate of failed nations.

We made a head start in the last three years; we must take bolder steps forward in the next six.

Inflation is under control. The ordinary housewife has been buying her rice and fish at stable prices.

New investments, foreign and, better yet, domestic, were made. Three million more of our people found jobs in the last three years compared to half a million in the three years before that.

Malaki ang pag-unlad sa pangunahing pangangailangan—malinis na tubig, health insurance, tirahan, paaralan, aklat.

We beat down crime, we are breaking up the drug and kidnapping syndicates, we are mopping up the stragglers. The people are safer in the streets, in their homes, and in their places of work.

Every government in the world is at war with its own corruption; we have made lifestyle checks a lethal weapon, and adopted procurement reforms to take the fight forward.

Thanks to many of you, I emerged from the last election with more votes than any previous president. [Applause]

As a further sign of the people's overwhelming support, they gave me a huge majority in Congress, and a huge majority among the local governments.

This is a new day, with a new direction, and a renewed confidence in what we can achieve together.

I am determined to prove that this tremendous show of faith and confidence is well deserved.

The season of bitter partisanship is over; the season of service is upon us all—majority, minority, opposition, administration.

In my inaugural address, I laid down a 10-point agenda for the next six years—not utopia but something practical we can achieve and accomplish on time.

What I did promise was that my term would be the irreversible turning point.

Ipinangangako ko—iiwanan na natin ang ligalig at alinlangan.

At the end of my term, the question will not longer be whether we can compete but where else in the world shall we take an indisputable competitive advantage.

The next six years, we hope, is when we finally get things right.

Is there something about that goal we cannot all agree on? Is there a reason we cannot all work together?

All that's needed is to clear away a couple of obstacles, as I intend to do with five key reform packages: (1) job creation through economic growth; (2) anticorruption through good government; (3) social justice and basic needs; (4) education and youth opportunity; and (5) energy independence and savings.

Tough decisions will have to be made. It's going to be tough love from hereon. It must be tougher on those who've had it easy than on those who've had it tough already.

Humarap din sa problema ang mga karatig bansa.

Ang kanilang sikreto'y pagkakaisa ng mamamayan, suporta sa liderato, at sakripisyo ng bawat isa.

We must bear the pain and share the pain to enjoy the gain together.

Those with more must sacrifice more; those with less are already living lives of self-sacrifice.

Maraming magsasabi: matagal na silang nagsasakripisyo. Ngunit hinihingi ko sa inyo: konti pang sakripisyo.

We must wait with patience for the reforms to work. In the meantime, we must work more productively because world competition is keen and we want the jobs not only to come, but to stay.

Our most urgent problem is the budget deficit. Sometimes it's unavoidable; but chronic deficits are always bad.

Sometimes stamping out deficits too vigorously can slow down growth. But ignoring them can kill the economy. It sends the wrong signal that we don't understand our fiscal predicament and will not help ourselves. This will drive away investments, exacerbate the deficit, and hurt job growth.

Chronic deficits drastically reduce government's ability to make those infrastructure investments that business needs to grow and create jobs.

Chronic deficits mean undertaking less social services that private charity will never provide but without which social war is inevitable. This is a surefire formula for national failure.

So, we must raise revenues, expand government services, yet cut costs—all at the same time. It boils down to right priorities.

The beauty of the fiscal problem is that all the solutions are known, though applying the right ones is tricky.

All the solutions require: toughness on the part of government, cooperation on the part of business, patience on the part of our people, and active support on the part of Congress.

All the solutions require profound, even personal, changes. Politicians will need to focus on the job at hand rather than on their prospect of re-election.

The worst offender yet the hardest to pin down is corporate corruption. Businessmen must adopt an attitude of tax acceptance not tax avoidance. They must stop trying to outrun the tax collector. They must recognize that only a fiscally stronger government can create a more congenial business environment: [applause] greater security, better infrastructure, cheaper credit, more business.

My administration will undertake reforms to raise or save P100 billion. [Applause] I ask Congress to pass eight revenue measures that will collect P80 billion more.

Alam kong maaasahan ko ang mga mambabatas upang burahin ang deficit, upang ituloy ang magandang trabaho, at upang itaguyod ang saligan ng matapat na gobyerno at malakas na ekonomiya.

Investments in infrastructure and energy provide the greatest multiplier effect for growth and job creation. ‘Pag maganda ang imprastraktura gaya ng kalsada, tulay, pantalan, telepono, kuryente, maraming mamumuhunan. Maraming magkakaroon ng trabaho.

We must achieve sufficient, efficient, cheap energy in the near term. We must be sure to have the capacity to meet the demands of a growing economy, so as not to choke off growth when it comes, and thereby lose the opportunities that may not come again.

To this end, NAPOCOR power-generating plants and transmission lines must be privatized but not in a fire sale. [Applause] Delivering electricity to virtually an entire country as big as ours cannot possibly be worth nothing but the trouble of running it.

NAPOCOR’s transmission systems will be sold on terms that recognize the lucrative monopoly of its transmission grid. I ask Congress to pass the Transco bill that already passed the House in the 12th Congress. [Applause]

Our investments in social justice and basic needs are as vital to our future as fiscal and macroeconomic reforms. A nation deeply divided will not stand. And it certainly will not move forward.

Our nation is divided by social and economic faultlines. The tectonic plates may shift with unthinkable consequences.

Some say that is it cheaper to die than to get well from an illness, that it is impossible to find clean water in this rainfall country, that in this modern day and age, part of the country still sits in darkness. This is a terrible waste and a terrible shame.

Kaya ang aking agenda para sa maralita ay hanapbuhay; reporma sa lupa; tubig, gamot, at kuryente; pagtatanggol at kapangyarihan para sa mahina.

In fact, we will now be able to bring clean water to the entire country because during my previous term, you, Congress finally passed the Clean Water Act; because in my first days as president in 2001 I signed the Solid Waste Act—thank you also for giving me that opportunity—and because we are reforesting our watersheds.

The place to start now is livelihood, for 10 million Filipinos.

The growing industrial, service, and microenterprise sectors will take care of some, a thriving agribusiness sector will keep more in the countryside rather than burdening a Metro Manila that is already cracking under the weight of overpopulation.

Land reform covers agrarian reform, urban land reform, and ancestral domain land reform. I ask Congress to qualify farmland as bank collateral and reform the system of urban land titles.

Ang kapangyarihan ng taong bayan ay puso ng demokrasya. Dapat kasama sila sa paghugis ng kanilang kapalaran.

Dadalhin ko ang aking mga reporma sa taong bayan. Ako'y magpapaliwanag, ako'y makikinig.

I have shown that government does care even for a single Filipino life. Now we must show that we care for the rest of the Filipino people, especially the weakest among us. [Applause]

To adapt the words of Adam Smith to the information age, "The greatest improvement in the productive powers of labor seems to have been the effects of a modern education."

Economies have exhausted the possibilities of the division of labor; the way further forward now is a better-educated, more adaptable workforce.

We need to start early. And we need to maintain the highest educational standards. I ask Congress to legislate an extra year of studies not by adding a fifth year of high school but by standardizing what is taught in the barangay day care centers. [Applause]

To expand youth opportunity, we need to focus on technical and vocational education; on strengthening English, Science and Technology, and love of country. [Applause] As I said in my inaugural: It is not free markets but patriotism that makes countries strong. [Applause]

There is a sense in which as a society we have failed the youth in their formative years, in growing up normally and productively, in getting a good education, in learning the habits of honesty and citizenship and civic discipline.

I ask the educational system, the parents, the church, and pillars of the community to help shape a new culture of honesty, patriotism, respect, discipline, and service for young Filipinos. [Applause]

The roof cannot collapse when the value pillars of government and society are sound and strong.

I fervently support the judicial reforms being carried out by our Supreme Court. [Applause]

I ask Congress for a law making the ombudsman's function as effective as Hong Kong's independent commission against corruption. [Applause]

Bureaucratic corruption with its numerous leakages is bad. So is government incompetence. Unlike in the private sector, where the free market punishes mistakes, government incompetence punishes only the public.

We have to tear away layers of inefficiency piled on by decades of political accommodation: redundancy in the national service, waste in local governments, and pointless procedures for getting done what isn't needed anyway to secure the public welfare. Just how does paying off the health inspector banish bacteria from a dirty kitchen? [Applause]

By definition, public services are what the private sector will not do except for a price the public cannot pay.

Where the private sector can do it better and cheaper, government may have to step aside. [Applause] But the watchwords are better and cheaper. Where privatization only spells public pillage, government will continue to do the work. [Applause]

But that's no reason to spare public services from the test of competitive performance.

We will simplify procedures to eliminate fixers.

We will downsize the government, motivate excess employees to become entrepreneurs, and increase the pay of a lean and mean bureaucracy. [Applause]

I have abolished 80 offices under the Office of the President. I will abolish 30 more.

I ask Congress to pass a law on government reengineering, with silver parachutes for redundant offices.

Once we have proved to our people that we have done what we can within the present structure of government, we can move on to changing the system to one that enhances our freedom and flexibility to do more.

I expect that next year, Congress will start considering the resolutions for charter change. [Applause]

No one has a monopoly on right ideas. I am reaching out to all segments of society and all parties, be they with me or against me, to join me in those things that should be everyone's concern because they rise above politics to the level of patriotism. [Applause]

I do not want a honeymoon period after which we can forget the country and go after each other again. I want a marriage not of convenience but of conviction, across the spectrum of parties and groups, encompassing the range of intelligent political, religious, and economic views. [Applause] I want a marriage for at least the life of this Congress. [Applause]

I do not ask for unprincipled support because it will not hold.

I do ask for an end to unprincipled obstructionism because that always succeeds in defeating our best efforts. [Applause]

Tunay nga na kahirapan at kawalan ng katarungan ang sagabal sa ating pag-unlad. Ngunit ang mga nagsusulsol sa mahihirap para manggulo ang sumisira sa ating kinabukasan. [Applause]

So this must stop.

We must put a stop to that.

Every year, every President tells Congress that it is the last chance for meaningful change.

This time I will say it again, adding only that past presidents were right. And that each time change doesn't happen, makes change harder and less likely to happen the next time around.

The time for change is well past due.

This time, let me say, let's just do it!

Mabuhay ang Pilipino!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. [Applause] [Standing ovation]

Mabuhay ang Pilipino! Mabuhay!

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Fifth State of the Nation Address, July 25, 2005

Fifth State of the Nation Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the 2nd Regular Session of the 13th Congress

[Delivered at the Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City, on July 25, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you, Speaker de Venecia.

Vice President de Castro; President Ramos; Senate President Drilon and the members of the Senate; members of the House of Representatives; Chief Justice Davide and the members of the judiciary; Archbishop Franco and the excellencies of the diplomatic corps; fellow government workers whether elected, appointed, or civil servants; distinguished guests; ladies and gentlemen:

Every year, we meet on this day in this great hall to celebrate democracy and take stock of the nation: the country and its condition; the government and its performance; the people and their well-being.

Ours is a country divided; the story of our nation is a tale of two Philippines; almost, as it were, two countries under the same name.

One is the Philippines whose economy, after long years of cumulative national endeavor, is now poised for take off. The other is the Philippines whose political system, after equally long years of degeneration, has become a hindrance to progress.

As a country on the verge of take off, our storyline would surprise many at home and abroad. The story includes an economy that grew more than 6% last year and that has continued to work in the teeth of the biggest oil price hikes in history, while generating 4 million jobs in the last four years. [Applause]

The story includes marked improvements in tax collections, infrastructure, housing construction, shelter security for the urban poor and indigenous peoples, and rice productivity. [Applause]

The story includes 69 million beneficiaries of health care insurance, including 30 million indigents, whose re-enrollment started early this year and is still ongoing. [Applause]

That same story, over four years, saw the drug menace cut in half, the rash of kidnappings become a thing of the past, and insurgency in the south abated.

This story should work itself out as one about an economy as resilient and full of potential as its people are patient and hardworking, guided by a government—with the executive and the legislative hand-in-hand—that is able to pass a no-nonsense budget and make the tough decisions to put our fiscal house in order. [Applause]

I especially refer to our recent titanic struggle to enact the three laws that comprised the biggest fiscal package in our history, the biggest revenue increase in a generation that will break the vicious cycle of financing development by borrowing and having to borrow again just to service those loans. This is the one reform that will snap the chain that has bound our future to a profligate past and the debt-burdened present. [Applause] The Filipino's strong sense of family has given Congress a stronger resolve not to pass on today's debt, and bankrupt our children and grandchildren tomorrow. That struggle has done the House and the Senate great honor. Congratulations to you. [Applause]

Abroad, the story continues. We've worked long and hard to restore our country to the prominent place it once held as cofounder of the United Nations and the free world's first line of defense in the east. We won a seat in the UN security council, where we presided over the landmark resolution calling for democracy in Iraq. The Philippines chaired the historic conference on interfaith cooperation for peace at the UN, the fruit of a bold and creative initiative by your Speaker of the House. [Applause]

We head the APEC antiterrorism task force. Our victories in the war on terror have been acknowledged by no less than President Bush before the U.S. National Defense University. The Jemaah Islamiya and the Abu Sayyaf can only pick up the pieces of its broken backbone in Mindanao.

We've worked with the Organization of the Islamic Conference to forge peace with our Muslim brothers. Eighty percent of our peace talks with them have been completed. [Applause] Permanent peace in Mindanao is within reach. [Applause]

Indeed, our story as a country on the verge of take off is real. Analysts need only to look at our stock market, and even the peso-dollar exchange rate, to sense the strong anticipation of significant improvements, if only we would overcome the tendency to be our own worst enemy. [Applause]

Thus, with investors both here and abroad in mind, I invite you all to join me in sending them a strong message from this great hall: We will not waver in our commitment to economic reform and fiscal discipline, whatever the political cost. [Applause]

The other message to send is that we will address the burden that the other Philippine story imposes on our anticipated take off. I refer to the story of how our political system has now become a hindrance to our national progress.

Over the years, our political system has degenerated to the extent that it is difficult for anyone to make any headway yet keep his hands clean. To be sure, the system is still capable of achieving great reforms. But, by and large, our political system has betrayed its promise to each new generation of Filipinos, not a few of whom are voting with their feet, going abroad, and leaving that system behind.

Perhaps we politicians have done our best; but maybe our best is not enough, given the present system. Perhaps we have strained the present political system to its final limit.

It is time to turn to the people, bring them into government, and change the way that government is done. [Applause]

The people want government that works for them at every level. They want good government that begins at their doorstep in the barangay, and does not end before the closed door of a bureaucrat in Metro Manila. [Applause]

The system clearly needs fundamental change, and the sooner the better. [Applause] It's time to start the great debate on charter change. [Applause]

We must address such questions as how much more government is needed for the greater safety and economic security of our people, and how much less government is more conducive to free enterprise and economic progress.

The mode of charter change is the exclusive prerogative of Congress. But a constituent assembly may well give our people the quickest reforms. [Applause]

I shall work with Congress, civil society groups, and local government executives [applause] who are convinced that charter changes are needed to enable the country to surmount the unprecedented challenges of the 21st century. [Applause]

I take this opportunity to acknowledge the local government executives [applause] who have brought about an LGU power revolution through transformative leadership. [Applause]

The economic progress and social stability of the provinces, along with the increasing self-reliance and efficiency of political developments and public services there, make a compelling case for federalism. [Applause]

Perhaps it's time to take the power from the center to the countryside that feeds it. [Applause]

I recognize that our form of government will be the decision of the body constituted to undertake charter change. But we should consider that legislation could be quickened and laws made more responsive to the people under a parliamentary system, similar to that [applause] of our progressive neighbors in the region.

But even as we make a serious start in charter change, I hope we can still work together on other initiatives to the lasting benefit of our people. [Applause]

In the area of education, we've spent our increased resources on better-trained teachers in more classrooms, teaching students in more effective ways. We've laid a strong foundation by building almost 30,000 classrooms in the past four years, providing computer access to more than 3,000 high schools, and beginning a "healthy start" breakfast program for our young schoolchildren. [Applause]

I ask congress to pass the Pre-Need Code to rehabilitate, reform and regulate the pre-need educational programs that worked so well in the past as a major vehicle for youth education entitlement. [Applause]

College education is the great Filipino dream. But in a world of rapid technological change, getting a job or keeping it depends as much on how well one reasons as how well one uses his hands. I have issued E.O. 358 so that hours spent in vocational training can be credited towards a college degree. [Applause] That will combine job readiness with the dream of a college education while increasing the competitiveness of our nation.

But our competitiveness is greatly endangered today by the global oil crisis. I call on Congress to pass legislation encouraging renewable and indigenous energy. [Applause]

In the area of national security, I urge the swift passage of an antiterrorism law that will protect rather than subvert, enhance rather than weaken, the rights and liberties that terrorism precisely threatens with extinction. [Applause]

These examples serve to highlight that there is much work to be done.

Now is not the time for divisiveness, and while there's no avoiding partisan politics, there can be a determined effort by all sides to limit the collateral damage on a country poised for take-off. [Applause]

Let's call on the Lord to lead us. Let us ask him for the grace to make us worthy of his healing our land.

Alam kong tayong lahat ay naghahangad ng isang makabuluhang pagbabago para sa ating bayan. Tayong lahat ay nagsisikap para matamo ang kapayapaan at kaunlaran. Kung kaya't ako'y nakikiusap na tulungan ninyo ako, para sa kapakanan ng ating bayan. [Applause]

We may disagree among ourselves but let us never lose sight of that greater battle for one people, one country, one Philippines. [Applause]

Not the country of this or that president but the Philippines of our shared and passionate affections. [Applause]

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. [Applause] [Standing ovation]

Thank you.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Sixth State of the Nation Address, July 24, 2006

Sixth State of the Nation Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the 3rd Regular Session of the 13th Congress

[Delivered at the Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City, on July 24, 2006]

Thank you.

Thank you, Speaker de Venecia. Congratulations, Senate President Manny Villar; Vice President Noli de Castro; President Ramos; Chief Justice Panganiban; Members of the diplomatic corps; senators; congressmen and congresswomen; other officials, ladies and gentlemen.

Sa araw na ito, nakatuon ang isip natin sa ating mga kababayan sa Lebanon. Nasa kuko sila ngayon ng malagim na paglala ng digmaan. Kahapon lamang, sinalubong natin ang unang 200 na Pilipinong lumikas doon; 500 pa ang mauuwi natin sa susunod na apat na araw.

Sa ating mga OFW, tunay kayong mga bagong bayani. Sa inyong paglilingkod sa pamilya, sa ating bayan, at sa Diyos, maraming salamat.

Sa ating mga kababayan, a journey of a thousand miles does not begin with a single step. It starts with the first step, with gathering the means to complete it successfully. Those means are now at hand.

To my friends in Congress who, in the face of grave political consequences, championed and passed some of the most severe and critical fiscal reforms to save our economy, maraming salamat. You are the true friends of the Filipino people. For the real challenge has never been to blame but to fix what is wrong in our country and our economy.

Dahil sa inyo, sa wakas may pondo na tayo, hindi lamang para ibayad sa interes, kundi para sa edukasyon, mas mabuting tulay at kalsada, pagbigay kalinga sa kalusugan at higit na trabaho sa ating bansa. Now, we have the money to pay down our debt and to build up our country.

To the civil servants who rose to the challenge of turning a weakening economy to a strong republic, through more vigorous tax collection and more vigilant action against corruption, maraming salamat. We have achieved record revenue collections. We are lining up corrupt officials to face the consequences of their misdeeds. And finally earned the respect of the international community as a serious and viable state for our fiscal discipline and billions of pesos in annual interest savings that are now going into necessary public investments.

To our men and women in the armed services, the huge and deep core of your loyalty has earned the nation's accolade. The few mutineers have been condemned by the people. They and their partisan cohorts and funders are being brought to justice. Sa nakararaming kawal at pulis na nagtaguyod ng watawat at Saligang Batas, maraming salamat.

And at a time when we must each, as individuals and as communities, take greater responsibility, our local government officials man the frontline of change: change for greater accountability, for better service, and more responsiveness to their constituents. Sa inyong lahat, mga local government officials, maraming salamat.

Higit sa lahat, salamat sa sambayanang Pilipino, para sa inyong mga sakripisyo, sa inyong tiyaga, for believing, in the face of the greatest hardships, in our ability to surmount the obstacles to the future you deserve; you who have resisted persistent if not pathetic calls for despair instead of faith, for anarchy instead of harmony, salamat, salamat, taos-pusong pasasalamat.

So I stand before you today to deliver a state of the nation that is focused on what the people want; the people want to know the plan to put us on the path to prosperity.

I am not here to talk about politics; I am here to talk about what the people want; details on the state of the nation and what their government is doing to make progress every single day.

Sama-sama nating isusulong ang bansa patungo sa kinabukasang nagniningning.

Gaya ng nakikita sa graph na ito, dahil sa ating reporma sa ekonomiya, we now have the funds to address social inequity and economic disparity. Too many, masyadong marami, ang mamamayang nagugutom. Hindi ako hihinto hanggang magtagumpay ang ating laban sa kahirapan.

We now have the funds to stamp out terrorism and lawless violence.

May pondo na tayo para labanan ang katiwalian.

Our reforms have earned us P1 billion from the U.S. Millennium Challenge Account for more investigators, prosecutors, and new technology to fight corruption. We are matching this with another billion from our fiscal savings.

We now have the funds for constitutional and electoral changes. Sa kasalukuyang sistema, napakabagal ng proseso, at bukas sa labis na pagtutunggali, at sikil ang lalawigan at mamamayan sa paghahari ng Imperial Manila. Panahon nang ibalik ang kapangyarihan sa taumbayan at lalawigan. For surely, there must be a better way to do politics, so that those who lose elections do not make the country pay for their frustrated ambitions. There must be a better way so that those who win the nation's mandate to govern can work without delay and whimsical obstruction. There must be a better way.

Meanwhile, now we can fund the Medium Term Public Investment Program. Sumusulong na ang ating plano na may tatlong yugto. Una, ang makaahon sa mga dekada ng utang at kapos ng pondo. Nagawa na natin ito. Ikalawang yugto, ang pagbabalik sa taumbayan ng mas malaking kita ng pamahalaan: upang makapagpundar ng kalinga sa kalusugan, edukasyon, at trabaho na kailangang-kailangan ng mamamayan. Ginagawa na rin natin ito. And finally, phase three: to invest in the natural advantages and natural resources of each section of our nation so that when harnessed together, the major economic regions of the nation are larger than the sum of its parts.

We will enhance the competitive advantage of the natural "super regions" of the Philippines: the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, the Metro Luzon Urban Beltway, Central Philippines, Mindanao, and the Cyber Corridor.

In North Luzon, we will prioritize agribusiness investments. The agricultural and fisheries potential of the Cordilleras, Ilocandia, and Cagayan Valley can feed Luzon affordably. And nearness to North Asia holds the rich promise of agricultural exports and tourism.

My father built the Halsema Highway from Baguio to Bontoc, and the Bagabag airport in Nueva Vizcaya to access the Ifugao rice terraces, which by the way, the UNESCO has recently praised for the way we have carried out our heritage preservation policy. We have rehabilitated the Baguio to Mount Data leg of the highway and the rest of Halsema will now follow. We will upgrade the Bagabag airport and build a new one in Lallo, Cagayan, which will connect to Cordillera by upgrading the Tabuk-Tuguegarao Road.

Sa Tabuk, Kalinga, noong Abril, tumanggap ng titulo sa lupa ang ilang matatanda, pagkatapos nilang naghintay ng 20 taon mula noong napirmahan ang Mount Data Accord ng gobyerno at ng Cordillera People's Liberation Army. May isang matanda, suot ang lumang uniporme ng CPLA. Pumila, hila-hila ang isang binatilyo. Sabi niya, "This is not for me but for him." Agad inabot ang titulo sa apo. Narito ngayon si Ginoong Ama Balunggay at ang kaniyang apo si Jacob.

And our postharvest support shall continue, like the cold chain that we set up in 2004 for La Trinidad, Benguet, under Mayor Nestor Fongwan. It consisted of a refrigerated storage facility and refrigerated trucks to deliver vegetables to Metro Manila. Nais kong tumaas ang kita ng mga magsasaka, at ang ina ng bawat tahanan ay makabili ng mura at sariwang gulay para sa kaniyang mga anak.

So that the people will know how well their money is spent, Benguet and its towns of Bakun, Bokod, and Itogon have rolled out the new electronic government accounting system in their jurisdictions.

Ifugao was able to cut its poverty in half in the first three years of our administration, from 56% to 28%. Congratulations. We hope that through these programs, the other provinces can replicate the success of Ifugao. Hangad nating dumami ang mga taga-Cordillera sa mga propesyon na tinitingalaan ng bayan, gaya ng mga abogadong sina Maurice Domogan at Romeo Brawner. Ibig din nating makapaghanda ang Cordillera sa awtonomiya pagdating ng pederalismo, ayon nawa sa pagbabago ng Saligang Batas.

Sa Dagupan, inilunsad na ng mga kolehiyo gaya ng Northwestern Lyceum University ang ladderized system of education. Sa ganitong sistema, magagamit sa unibersidad and mga kursong kinuha sa vocational school at ang karanasan sa trabaho.

We will expand President Ramos' flagship San Roque Multipurpose Dam with the massive Agno River Project. Another major project is the Banaoang Irrigation. We allocate P200 million a month for small irrigation projects like those in the flood control plan of the Region II Development Council headed by Bishop Ramon Villena. Plus another P200 million a month for farm-to-market roads.

Also in the works is an international airport in Poro, La Union, and the improvement of the two airports in Batanes as recommended by Governor Vic Gato. Ilocos Sur will have a seaport in Salomague, while the Cagayan Zone Authority will better the one in Port Irene.

To save dollars, windmills in Batanes and Ilocos Norte turn megawinds into megawatts. When Army Commander Romy Tolentino was North Luzon commander, he became a soldier-farmer, planting jatropha as yet another alternative fuel.

The Metro Luzon Urban Beltway spans most of Central Luzon, Metro Manila, Calabarzon, Mindoro, and Marinduque. It must be a globally competitive urban, industrial, and services center because it produces more than half of the country's GDP.

To be world-class we invest in five comprehensive strategies for global competitiveness: (1) Make food plentiful and affordable to keep our labor cost globally competitive; (2) Reduce the cost of electricity to make our factories regionally competitive; (3) Modernize infrastructure at least cost to efficiently transport goods and people; (4) Mobilize, upgrade, and disseminate knowledge and technologies for productivity; and (5) Reduce red tape in all agencies to cut business costs.

The most prohibitive red tape is in our outmoded Constitution. We need Constitutional change to bring our rules of investment into the new millennium.

The new public bidding process has been shortened to 45 days for infrastructure, and 26 days for supplies, as of today. Even before this, Metro Manila firms paying bribes for public contracts declined from 57% in 2003 to 46% today. Congratulations, Metro Manila.

Machine-readable electronic passports will enhance the credibility of Philippine travel documents, improve the mobility, and increase the prospects of Philippine business and labor.

Legitimate mobility is hampered by human trafficking. Through the support of the USAID, we have convicted human traffickers with the Tongco spouses who were sentenced in a Quezon City court last December. These accomplishments removed us from the from the priority antitrafficking watchlist.

To lower power costs we introduced the Wholesale Electricity Spot Market last month. Let's give it a chance to work. And we would like big power consumers like electronics, our number one export, to avail of lower power rates from the National Power Corporation. On coco-biodiesel, we now have enough capacity for the proposed 1% blend just waiting to be passed into law.

The Subic-Clark corridor is on its way to a competitive international logistics center. This will be my legacy to my cabalens, jointly with Lito and Mark Lapid, Rey Aquino, Ana Bondoc, Blue Boy Nepomuceno, my son Mikey and Tarzan Lazatin. We jumpstarted it with giant investments in the Subic Seaport, the Clark Airport, and the Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway.

And to bring the beltway to the west we will connect the Subic-Clark-Tarlac Road to Dingalan Port through Nueva Ecija, and the Marikina- Infanta Road to the port of Real.

Upang ibsan ang pagod ng mga empleyadong namamasahe sa trapiko sa Kalakhang Maynila, mangangapital tayo sa mga expressway at tren.

We will have a continuous highway from Clark to Metro Manila to Batangas Port. Tapos na iyong expressway mula Clark hanggang Maynila. Sa ngayon wala nang isang oras ang biyahe mula Clark hanggang Monumento. Ngayon iiwasan natin ang trapiko mula Monumento, dahil idudugtong natin ang North Expressway sa C-5. Tutulong si Sonny Belmonte sa right-of-way. Ang C-5 naman ay konektado na sa South Luzon Expressway. Ang South Luzon Expressway ay pinapalapat naman hanggang Calamba. Sa Agosto, pahahabain ito hanggang Batangas. We will also build the Coastal Road to Bacoar, which has become urban under Jesse Castillo.

Pagdurugtongin natin ang MRT at LRT mula Monumento hanggang North EDSA upang mabuo ang biyahe paikot sa Kamaynilaan, at maibsan ang trapik. We will construct the Northrail to Clark and the Southrail to Lucena and on to Bicol, and upgrade the link between them. We will also extend the LRT to Bacoar. Sa pagbilis ng biyahe patungo at palabas ng Metro Manila, makakatira ang manggagawa sa mas mura at maaliwalas na lalawigan.

Maayos na ang kapaligiran sa riles ng tren sa South Superhighway. Masaya ang mga pamilyang hinatid namin ni Vice President Noli de Castro sa kanilang bago at permanenteng relokasyon. Teddy Boy Locsin said it hadn't been done before, and couldn't be done at all. Well, Teddy?

Ngayon gagawin ito sa Maynila, si Lito Atienza ang bahala.

We thank China for agreeing to fund these housing needs. Huwaran ng ating programang pabahay para sa mahihirap ang mga proyekto ng Iglesia ni Kristo at Gawad Kalinga.

Ngunit kapos sa tubig ang mga taga-West Zone ng Kamaynilaan. Kaya bibigyan natin ng prayoridad hindi lamang ang edukasyon, kuryente, enerhiya, at kalusugan, kundi tubig din. We are setting up a 300 million liter per day pumping station for Muntinlupa, Las Piñas and Parañaque.

We will build a roll-on-roll-off port system to link Lucena, Quezon, to Boac, Marinduque, like the Batangas-Mindoro RORO.

Sa ganitong mga proyekto, palalakasin natin ang ekonomiya ng mga barangay at lalawigan. And we will end the long oppression of barangays by rebel terrorists who kill without qualms, even their own. Sa mga lalawigang sakop ng 7th Division, nakikibaka sa paglaban si Jovito Palparan. Hindi siya aatras hanggang makawala sa gabi ng kilabot ang mga pamayanan at maka-ahon sa buwang-liwayway ng hustisya at kalayaan.

In the harshest possible terms I condemn political killings. We together stopped judicial executions with the abolition of the death penalty. We urge witnesses to come forward. Together we will stop extrajudicial executions.

Central Philippines has the competitive edge in tourism in its natural wonders and the extraordinary hospitality of its people. The area sweeps across Palawan and Romblon, the Visayas and Bicol, plus the northern Mindanao islands of Camiguin, Siargao, and Dapitan. Topbilled by Boracay, Cebu, Bohol, and Palawan, it attracts more than half of the foreign tourists to the Philippines. It is also the center of geothermal power in the country, which we continue to develop.

The priority here is tourism investments. Coming soon for superstar Boracay are an instrument landing system for the Kalibo airport and a P3 billion private investment in a San Jose, Romblon, airport, plus good roads to spillover destinations all over Panay.

In Cebu, Gwen Garcia is constructing a world-class convention center for the ASEAN and East Asian Summits in December.

Helping our infrastructure upgrading is the fall in bribery for public sector contracts in Metro Cebu, from 62% of companies in 2004 to 47% today. Congratulations to Cardinal Vidal for shepherding his flock and to Metro Cebu Mayors Osmeña, Ouano, and Fernandez, and Metro Cebu representatives del Mar, Cuenco, Gullas, and Soon-Ruiz.

Bohol became a destination distinct from Cebu since it defeated the terrorist insurgency with community initiatives led by the power tandem of Rico Aumentado and General Johnny Gomez, now the NCR Commander. It now merits its own international airport, just as our country deserves a world-class Constitution strongly supported by Governor Aumentado and the league of local authorities.

Tourism in Palawan requires the upgrading of the airports of Puerto Princesa, Busuanga, San Vicente (hometown of Congressman Alvarez that's why he's clapping) and the building of a new one in Balabac; as well as a continuous road backbone from El Nido to Bataraza.

We will lengthen the Dumaguete runway for tourism as well as electronics. Valencia, Negros Oriental, could attract semiconductor firms with power rates subsidized by the geothermal field of Palimpinon. Negros will also advance energy independence with ethanol projects in San Carlos City and Tamlang Valley once the biofuel law is passed. (You have done your part, Migs.)

We will serve Guimaras by the airport being built in Santa Barbara, Iloilo, and by a new RORO port in Sibunag. We will link Sipalay via Silay airport funded by the national government and Kabankalan airport being built by its local government. Thank you.

For Bicol's whale sharks, beaches and, of course, Mount Mayon, we have started acquiring the right of way for an international airport in Daraga, Albay. We will provide the means to the perfect surfs of the Pacific by upgrading the airports of Siargao, Guiuan, and Tacloban.

We will widen the road to Dakak in Dapitan, and RORO will connect Siquijor to Santander, Cebu; Camiguin to Jagna, Bohol; Ubay, Bohol, to Maasin, Southern Leyte, for diving in Limasawa.

We will bring Masbate and Biliran into the RORO Eastern Nautical Highway from Surigao through Leyte through Naval and Maripipi in Biliran through Esperanza, Aroroy, and Burias Island in Masbate and on to Bicol. The much-awaited 10-megawatt generator set arrived in Masbate last Saturday. It is ready to power up the province before the end of the month.

Camiguin, Romblon, and Camarines Norte got out of the list of poorest provinces in 2003. With tourism these provinces can become rich.

Also winning the war against poverty and calamity, undaunted by unimaginable catastrophe, the valiant people of Southern Leyte, under the leadership of Rosette Lerias and Oging Mercado (our Rudy Guliani) are rebuilding the lives of Saint Bernard and San Francisco from their tragic mudslides. Yesterday, I asked the Japanese government to help Southern Leyte implement an integrated management approach to deal with their critical ecosystem, like the one the World Bank has approved for the Bicol River Basin.

Mindanao is our priority for agribusiness investments in the south. Mindanao is mostly fertile and largely typhoon-free, exporting coconut products and high-value crops, and from its waters come 40% of the country's fish catch. Our investment priorities mirror those for North Luzon and more because Mindanao has the poorest regions and poorest provinces and because we have to spend on a logistics system linking it to the north.

In 2003 we introduced the RORO from Zamboanga del Norte through Negros, Panay, and Mindoro to Batangas. This system has slashed travel time from Mindanao to Luzon from 36 hours to 24 hours, and freight cost by 30%, so crucial to food shipments. Now we will develop more routes like the one from Cagayan de Oro through Camiguin, Bohol, Cebu, and Masbate to Bicol, the Central Nautical Highway.

Also in 2003, Sulu, Lanao del Sur, and Tawi-Tawi registered double-digit declines in poverty incidence from the year 2000. Congratulations.

Kitang-kita ang pag-ibayo ng mga isla ng Sulu, Basilan, at Tawi-Tawi. Nagbukas ang Jollibee sa Basilan. The Balikatan exercises with the United States, combined with the U.S. GEM program and other donor-assisted projects, have no doubt contributed to this.

Sa Sulu, isang araw ng Mayo, umuulan, nagwakas ang isang mahabang pagtutunggali nang pumasok ang mga kawal at sibilyan sa Kampong Bitan-ag sa Panamao na hawak ng mga rebelde. Nagyakapan at nagkamayan ang dalawang panig. Dahil sa matinding pagnanais para sa kapayapaan ni Marine General Ben Dolorfino, naganap ang pagkakasundo. Gayon natapos ang isang madugong kabanata. Congratulations, General Ben Dolorfino.

Susi sa anumang pag-ibayo ang malakas na suporta at ma-abilidad na liderato ng pamahalaang local. Halimbawa, iyong "from arms to farms" ni Governor Ben Loong ng Sulu, with his caravan of tractors literally invading former rebel camps in his province. Congratulations.

Mahigit isang linggong nakaraan, dumating sa "Eleven Islands" ang daan-daang rebeldeng at kanilang pamilya, sa pamumuno ng dating MNLF Commander na si Aribari Samson. Dito sa mga pulo na kilalang "no man's island" dati nagtatago ang mga rebelde at criminal. Ngayon sa tulong ng isang programa ng United Nations, nagtayo tayo ng 200 tahanan at panibagong buhay para sa pangkat ni Samson. Thank you for giving peace a chance. Congratulations, Commander Samson.

I take this occasion to express our gratitude to the donor community from the U.S., the Organization of the Islamic Conference [OIC], and the European Union, Australia, Japan, our ASEAN neighbors, the multilaterals, and the rest of the world. Thank you for helping us in our peace process.

If we can harness the forces of good in our nation, the positive force at work here at home and those from abroad such as the U.S., Malaysia, the OIC, and others, we shall prevail in Mindanao with a peace agreement that brings freedom and hope to all Filipinos. With this peace, we would reap dividends in resources invested in agribusiness, not aggression, to build up, not tear down, the Philippine south.

Among the possible peace dividends would be pro-poor road projects like the Siocon-Sirawai-Sibuco-Baligyan Road in Zamboanga del Norte; the Lebak to Maguindanao which Sim Datumanong started when he was Secretary of Public Works; the Dinagat Island road network in Surigao Del Norte; the Hawilian-Salug-Sinakungan barangay road in Agusan del Sur; the Pangil Bay Bridge; and the Surigao-Davao Road, which we want to be as beautiful as the Bukidnon Highway completed during the administration of Joe Zubiri and the term of Migs Zubiri.

Mindanao's number one export, coconuts, has been growing continuously for the last three years, at the rate of 10% a year. The coconut farmers deserve a portion of the peace dividend. I invite Congress and the Bishops-Ulama-Priests-Pastors-Farmer-Lumad Conference led by Archbishop Fernando Capalla to help me ensure their rightful share.

On top of peace and investment, progress also demands good governance. I congratulate Donkoy Emano for the drop in reports of corruption for public contracts in Cagayan de Oro from 65% of firms last year to 38 this year. Also Rudy Duterte and the other leaders of Metro Davao led by Majority Leader Boy Nograles for a similar drop, 57% last year to 49 now. Things are coming together for Mindanao, a prelude to their readiness for eventual federalism.

The Cyber Corridor will boost telecommunications, technology and education. The corridor runs the length of all the super regions, from Baguio to Cebu to Davao. The cities of Davao, Tagum and Samal Island Garden all operate electronic government accounting systems. There are many wings now to the corridor because enterprising local executives like L-Ray Villafuerte and Jerry Trenas have aggressively attracted call centers to their jurisdictions. (Congratulations, Jerry.) In this corridor, the English and information and communication technology [ICT] skills of the youth give them a competitive edge in call centers and other business process outsourcing [BPO].

In 2001, in this hall, we hailed ICT as a key growth sector. So we built up telecommunications infrastructure and opened the market for Internet phone calls. Today international calls cost 6 cents a minute, down from 40 cents. From 2,000 BPO workers in 2001, we now have 200,000.

I had coffee with some call center agents last Labor Day. Lyn, a new college graduate, told me, "Now I don't have to leave the country in order for me to help my family. Salamat po." I was so touched, Lyn, by your comments. With these structural reforms, we not only found jobs, but kept families intact. Thank God, I thought, or someone might also try to impeach me for violating Article 15 of the Constitution on the solidarity of the family as the foundation of the nation.

As Louie Villafuerte argues, to step into the future, a country that wants to be a player in the global economy needs bold and well-funded research and development initiatives of its own. To this end, we will continuously increase the budget for science and technology and education. For in today's global economy, knowledge is the greatest creator of wealth.

In summary, I named only a few priorities to illustrate that on many fronts, your government is working, and working well. Our economy is now growing over the longest period in the last quarter-century: 22 consecutive quarters of growth. Umakyat ng mahigit 30% ang kita ng pinakamahirap na pamilya sa unang tatlong taon ng ating panunungkulan, at bumaba ang dami ng maralita sa 25% ng mga pamilya, mula 28%, katumbas ng 2 milyong katao na lumaya sa kahirapan. According to Thornton and Punongbayan, 70% of medium-sized business owners are optimistic, the fifth most optimistic among 30 countries, just behind India, Ireland, South Africa, and China.

Bickering in politics may delay, but not derail, the initiatives that need to be taken on our pro-poor, pro-growth, and pro-peace agenda. Regardless of the fate of the national budget, we must automate our election process. Local governments must get their rightful share of revenues. I ask Congress to pass a supplemental budget to effect this.

We are a great people. We have honest students and honest cops. We have scaled the heights of Mount Everest, dominated the Southeast Asian games, we have won international beauty titles, and of course punched our way to triumph in the boxing world. Our people compete and win every day in every imaginable job throughout the world. Individually, we've taken the world on and won; together, we must take on the challenge of creating a new, peaceful, humane, and competitive nation and prevail.

For those who want to pick up old fights, we're game but what a waste of time. Why not join hands instead? Join hands in the biggest challenge of all, where we all win or we all lose: the battle for the survival and progress of our one and only country.

After 3 years, 11 months, and 6 days, I shall relinquish the Presidency, with much if not all that I have outlined completed. I do not want it said then that, in the end, I defeated my enemies. I would rather have it said that all of us, you and I, friends and foes today, achieved together a country progressive, prosperous, and united.

Thank you. Mabuhay!

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's 2006 SONA Technical Report

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's 2007 SONA Technical Report

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Seventh State of the Nation Address, July 23, 2007
Seventh State of the Nation
Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the 1st Regular Session of the 14th Congress

[Delivered at the Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City, on July 23, 2007]

Thank you. Thank you very much Speaker De Venecia; Senate President Villar; other newly elected leaders of both Houses, congratulations to you; Senators and Congressmen and Congresswomen. Vice President De Castro; former President Ramos; Chief Justice Puno; our host Mayor, Mayor Sonny Belmonte; other government officials; members of the diplomatic corps; ladies and gentlemen.

We meet here today to inaugurate a new Congress after a fresh election. I congratulate every elected official, from municipal to provincial to Congress on hard fought and successful campaigns. [Applause]

Tapos na ang halalan at pamumulitika; panahon na para maglingkod nang walang damot, [applause] mamuno nang walang pangamba maliban sa kagalingan ng bayan, and to govern with wisdom, compassion, vision, and patriotism.

Hangarin kong mapabilang ang Pilipinas sa mayayamang bansa sa loob ng dalawampung taon. By then, poverty shall have been marginalized; and the marginalized raised to a robust middle class.

We will have achieved the hallmarks of a modern society, where institutions are strong.

By 2010, the Philippines should be well on its way to achieving that vision.

With the tax reforms of the last Congress, and I thank the last Congress, we have turned around our macroeconomic condition through fiscal discipline, toward a balanced budget. Binabayaran ang utang, pababa ang interes, at paakyat ang pondo para sa progreso ng sambayanang Pilipino!!! Maraming salamat ulit sa nakaraang Congress. [Applause]

We have been investing hundreds of billions in human and physical infrastructure. The next three years will see record levels of well thought out and generous funding for the following priorities:

First, investments in physical, intellectual, legal, and security infrastructure to increase business confidence. Imprastraktura para sa negosyo at trabaho. Isang milyong trabaho taun-taon.

Second, investments in a stronger and wider social safety net—murang gamot, abot-kayang pabahay, eskwelang primera klase, mga gurong magaling at mas malaki ang kita, mga librong de-kalidad, more scholarships for gifted students, and language instruction to maintain our lead in English proficiency. Dunong at kalusugan ang susi sa kasaganaan.

Third, investments in bringing peace to Mindanao; in crushing terrorism wherever it threatens regardless of ideology; and in putting a stop to human rights abuses whatever the excuse.

We pay tribute to the fearless 14 who were savagely massacred at Tipo-Tipo trying to pursue a peaceful and progressive Philippines. We will not disappoint their hopes. We will not waste their sacrifice. We will not be swayed from the course we have set in this conflict for peace with justice throughout our land. [Applause]

We have created a Philippine model for reconciliation built on interfaith dialogue, expanded public works, and more responsive social services. These investments show both sides in the Mindanao conflict that they have more at stake in common; and a greater reason to be together than hang apart, including being together isolating the terrorists.

Imprastruktura ang haliging nagtitindig hindi lamang ng kapayapaan kundi ng ating buong makabagong ekonomiya: mga kalsada, tulay, paliparan, public parks, and power plants.

Last year I unveiled the Super Regions—Mindanao, Central Philippines, North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, Luzon Urban Beltway, and the Cyber Corridor—to spread development away from an inequitable concentration in Metro Manila. Hindi lamang Maynila ang Pilipinas. [Applause]

The Super Regions was not a gimmick for the occasion but a blueprint for building a future.

In Mindanao, our food basket, I said we would prioritize agribusiness investments. We have, and I am happy to see that the latest survey in June that the hunger rate has sharply gone down nationwide. [Applause]

The Departments of Agriculture, Agrarian Reform, and Environment and Natural Resources will devote 30 percent of their program budgets to Mindanao. [Applause] This was the recommendation articulated by Congressman Rufus Rodriguez during our peace and security summit in Cagayan de Oro. [Applause] The Department of Agrarian Reform will move to Davao.

Dapat maging daan sa tagumpay sa agribusiness ang reporma sa lupa. Done right, reform will democratize success, as Ramon Magsaysay and Diosdado Macapagal envisioned. We must reform agrarian reform so it can transform beneficiaries into agribusinessmen and other agribusinesswomen. [Applause]

Sa gayon, dadami pa ang mga tampok na magsasaka gaya ng mga nagwagi ng Gawad Saka, sina Ananias Cuado ng Comval at Demetrio Tabelon ng Butuan; at Nelson Taladhay ng Sultan Kudarat, pangunahing agrarian reform beneficiary ng 2007. We also have outstanding farmers from the other super regions, like Joseph Fernando and Heherson Pagulayan, Nestor Bautista, Joseph Lomibao, Arturo Marcaida, Peter Uy, Arturo Pasacas, and Glenn Saludar. [Applause] Congratulations to all of you!

Sa anim na taon nagtayo tayo at nag-ayos ng patubig para sa 1 milyong ektarya sa buong bansa—pinakamalaki sa matagal na panahon.

Magtatayo tayo ng mariculture o palaisdaan sa dagat. Isa rito ay ilalagay natin sa Sibutu, sa Tawi-Tawi. Hiling ito ni Nur Jaafar. [Applause]

Para sa buong bansa naglaan tayo ng P3 billion para sa 3,000 kilometro ng farm-to-market roads; 1,000 kilometro sa Mindanao. Gawa na ang 300.

The road and RORO network has cut the cost of bringing agribusiness products from Mindanao to Luzon. A 10-wheeler used to pay P32,000 from Dapitan to Batangas. Now it pays P11,000. Fresh fish that cost P20,000 a ton to move, now travels at P14,000. [Applause]

Construction is crisscrossing Mindanao: Dapitan-Dakak to bring Cely Carreon's paradise closer to civilization; Sibuco-Siraway-Siocon-Baliguian; Dinagat Island Network, a baptismal gift for Glenda Ecleo's new province; [applause] the 66-kilometer Manay-Mati section of Davao-Surigao; and Maguindanao-Lebak, Sim Datumanong's brainchild when he headed DPWH. [Applause]

We want better airports, new bridges, and ample energy for Mindanao's rising economy.

The Dipolog and Pagadian airports will be improved by year's end. Also the Cotabato airport. No doubt eagerly awaited by Au Cerilles, Rolando Yebes, Digs Dilangalen, Ros Labadlabad, and Victor Yu, and Mayors Evelyn Uy and Sammy Co. [Applause]

Last July 10 we inaugurated the P1.7 billion, 900-meter bridge in Butuan, built on the initiative of Mayor Boy Daku Plaza, [applause] near the P4 billion second-generation flood control project that we also built. The first was built by my father after the great flood of Butuan in the 1960s. Kailangan ipagtanggol ang kapaligiran at mamamayan sa sakuna. [Applause]

In Agusan del Norte, I hope Edel Amante will be happy with our plans to pilot micro agribusiness in Jabonga. [Applause]

On July 8, Ozamis Airport opened, bankrolled partly by Leo Ocampos, Aldo Parojinog, and Hermie Ramiro's congressional fund. [Applause] Now, that's the kind of pork that has good cholesterol. [Applause]

At that occasion the MOU was signed for the Pangil Bay Bridge that will connect Ozamis to Lanao del Norte and Iligan. [Applause] As urged by Bobby Dimaporo, I declared Mt. Inayawan Range a protected nature park. On Mayor Lawrence Cruz's recommendation, I instruct DPWH to build the Iligan Circumferential Road. [Applause]

In 2001, we opened a solar plant in Cagayan de Oro. Still, Mindanao faced a 100-megawatt gap by 2009 but now a 210-megawatt clean coal plant in Phividec will fill that gap. We count on Oca Moreno and ex-congressman-now-city-mayor Tinex Jaraula to continue providing a good investment climate. [Applause]

We thank Miriam Defensor-Santiago and Migz Zubiri for sponsoring the Biofuels Law in the last Congress. [Applause] We now have 160,000 hectares of jatropha nurseries in Bukidnon and 30,000 in General Santos. Jatropha is a 100 percent substitute for diesel, with only 5 percent of its emission.

But Mindanao's energy challenge lies not in generating power but in power lines. Terrorists target transmission towers. We must resolutely apply the Human Security Act. This act was first filed by Johnny Enrile in 1996, three years after the first World Trade Center bombing, four years before the Rizal Day bombing, and five years before 9/11. He ably crafted the final Senate version with Senate President Manny Villar and Nene Pimentel. [Applause]

Let's now go to Central Philippines, our tourism super region:

- We protect its natural wonders and provide the means to travel to those wonders.
- For Boracay, the leading overall destination, the Kalibo Airport is now international with an instrument landing system as we said last year. Next is an P80 million terminal on request of Joben Miraflores. [Applause]
- The Aklan-Libertad-Pandan Road, waiting for Japan to approve the contractors, will connect Boracay to the nature park we declared in Northwest Panay Peninsula. We are improving other Panay roads and building the road from the Iloilo Airport which we inaugurated in Santa Barbara to Iloilo and the Metro Radial Road that Mayor Jerry Trenas asked for. [Applause] When we inaugurated the airport, I said that Art Defensor conceived the airport when he was governor, and Governor Neil Tupaz midwived it into delivery. [Applause]
- Iloilo connects to Guimaras via Jordan Wharf. For the P900 million oil spill calamity fund to save the environment of Guimaras, I thank once again the previous Congress. Thank you very much on behalf of the people of Guimaras, who are now back on their feet. [Applause] The other side of the island will connect to Bacolod soon because we started building the Sibunag RORO Airport last May on recommendation of governor-now-congressman, Rahman Nava.
- Bacolod-Silay Airport, near the nature park we declared in Northern Negros, is completed and just awaiting the access road requested by Monico Puentavella. [Applause]
- We awarded the contract for upgrading the Dumaguete airport as I reported to George Arnaiz last week.
- Boracay investors are expanding in Palawan, whose Tubbataha Reefs we declared a nature park. After the Puerto Princesa-Roxas Road last year, we opened Taytay-El Nido last March. The P1 billion Taytay-Roxas section is ongoing. San Vicente airstrip and Busuanga Airport are under construction, and Mayor Hagedorn is reminding us to work on the Puerto Princesa terminal.
- Under construction also are airport aprons of the surfing edens: Governor Ben Evardone's pet project in Guiuan and Lalo Matugas' home town in Siargao.

- A 100-megawatt energy gap looms in the Visayas in 2009. The Korea Electric plant in Cebu will plug in 200 megawatts only in 2010 so there's a one year gap. In the meantime three power barges will supply 100 megawatts, and the Panay diesel power plant will increase its run from 70 megawatts to 100 megawatts.
- In Central Cebu, we proclaimed a nature park. From Cebu, the top destination for foreign tourists, the tourists can easily radiate to other destinations. Optimism is infectious, and opportunity irresistible. Progress follows progress. Someone, even government, just has to get it started.
- Going south, Cebu connects to Tubigon and on to Ubay, Jagna, and Panglao through the Bohol Circumferential Road that we inaugurated last May 9. The local government has acquired 85 percent of the land for the international airport on Panglao Island, now a tourism destination of its own.
- Ubay links to Maasin RORO Port which was completed last October. Now I hope there will be more divers visiting the province of Mian Mercado.
- Jagna RORO port opened last May 9. It will connect to Loloy Romualdo's Mambajao in and Lansones, and on to Guinsiliban, the gateway to Mindanao.
- Going north from Cebu City, we take the North Coastal Road to Daanbantayan, which was recommended to us by Gwen Garcia. Heavy traffic will cease when the P1.2 billion Mandaue-Consolacion Bridge opens. This will be good not only for Malapascua tourism but also for Nitoy Durano's industrial city of Danao.
- Daanbantayan, Benhur Salimbangon's home port, connects to Naval, Maripipi, or Esperanza, which started construction last May. We aim to finish all three RORO ports next year. [Applause]
- Esperanza will link by road to Aroroy in 2009. I'll be there with Lina Seachon and Tony Kho for the inauguration. Please invite me. [Applause]
- Last May, I switched on the lights of Masbate in a Palace ceremony. But the long-term solution will come next year when a new power plant will serve half a million customers in the beautiful but isolated island of Masbate.
- From Aroroy we can go to Claveria, whose RORO ramp is under construction. On to Pasacao where RORO operations started in 2002. [Applause] That's Bong Bravo from Claveria. [Applause] This brings us to Bicol, including Mt. Isarog Park.
- Mt. Isarog feeds the Bicol River. For the next three years we are funding the Bicol River Basin and Watershed with the World Bank at $15 million for irrigation, flood control, and water conservation. [Applause] For Bicol, we have given P7 billion out of the P10 billion Bicol Calamity and Rehabilitation Effort; that is the biggest one-time calamity fund release in our history. [Applause] At last, Bicol is getting its rightful share.

And, so is the North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle:

- We are building 1,000 kilometers of farm-to-market roads; 200 are done. Ngayong tapos na ang election ban, pinapasasan ang trabaho para sa nalalabing target.
- Halsema Highway from Mount Data to Bontoc and the Tabuk-Tinglayan Road are being built. If you look at the chart, there is something incomplete in between.
- So that the Cordillera LGUs can also contribute to building more of their much-needed roads, I ask Congress to require companies to pay directly to the LGUs their share of the natural wealth. [Applause] I hope Governor Dalog hears that.
- Nagtatayo tayo ng mga paliparan para sa mga produkto ng agribusiness.
- Noong 2005 nagka-airport sa Baler. Sunod ang reconstruction, ang airport sa Casiguran. At kalsada sa pagitan.
- There were no takers in the bidding to upgrade the Batanes runway so ATO will get it done before the end of the year with the support of DPWH and Governor Telesforo Castillejos.
- Joe de Venecia and Mayor Nani Braganza are asking for an airport in Alaminos. Will do. [Applause]
- The Cagayan Economic Zone Authority and the private sector expanded the San Vicente naval airstrip, so we don't have need to build a Lallo airport.
- Pero sa Lallo naman mayroon tayong inaprobahan na agribusiness ecozone. Ang mga agribusiness ecozone ay payo ni Pangulong Ramos. [Applause] Chief Justice Puno, I am happy to see you here. It is the first time that a Chief Justice attended. [Applause]
- The Tarlac-La Union Toll Road will be advertised for private sector BOT bidding this August.

- Poro Point's international terminal started construction early this year. The Bagabag airport is being lengthened. We are spreading the cheer across the political spectrum from Vic Ortega to Caloy Padilla. Inuuna ang bansa, itinatabi ang politika. [Applause]
- Some towns in Nueva Vizcaya, Quirino, and Isabela are included in the geohazard mapping we have done for 700 cities and towns all over the country to protect the environment.
- The Bangui Bay Wind Power Project which was put up when Bongbong Marcos was still governor, is now expanding. Sa paggamit ng hangin, nababawasan ang kailangang langis sa enerhiya. [Applause]

And now the Luzon Urban Beltway, our top magnet for industry and investment:

- This quarter we start the P5 billion Mt. Pinatubo Hazard Urgent Mitigation Project that will protect San Fernando City, Sasmuan, Guagua, and my hometown Lubao from flooding. [Applause]
- The Subic-Clark-Tarlac Express Road is in its final stages. This first-world road will cut travel time between Clark and Subic from 2 hours to 30 minutes. [Applause] Gagawa tayo ng interchange sa Porac, bayan ni Lito Lapid. [Applause]
- Last Thursday with Dick Gordon we inaugurated the container port that will make Subic together with Clark one of the best international service and logistics centers in the region. [Applause]
- Clark airport got its approach control radar in April. It now has 50 international flights and 50 cargo flights a week, the second busiest after NAIA. We want more airline service centers there. Now, speaking of NAIA, I'm sure everyone wants to know about Terminal 3. The ceiling that fell wasn't the only thing in danger of falling. There are more serious dangers from construction and structural defects. We cannot risk the grim consequences of a major earthquake. But NAIA is accelerating the remediation, completion, and opening of the terminal. Public safety comes first. [Applause]
- Because public safety comes first, and we have many more modern airports now, I ask Congress to create the Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines. [Applause]
- Last year, I said we would connect North and South Expressways through C-5. Ginagawa na ang C-5 bandang Katipunan. Kausap na ang UP para sa bagong daan patungong Commonwealth, na kasulukuyang pinapalapad, at North Avenue. Sa kabilang dulo ng Mindanao Avenue, binibili na ang lupa para sa bagong daan mula Barangay Talipapa hanggang Malinta at tuloy na ito sa NLEX. Sana bumawas ang trapik pa-North Metro Manila. [Applause]
- We just broke ground to continue the Skyway up to Alabang. [Applause] And in a year aside from that, the fast train from Caloocan to Alabang will be serving thousands daily. [Applause] From Alabang to Santo Tomas, the South Luzon Expressway is currently being widened. And by March, Vicky Reyes, SLEX will reach all the way up to Batangas Port. [Applause]
- The Coastal Road to Bong Revilla's province is finally under construction after so many groundbreaking ceremonies.
- Our investment in vital infrastructure is already bearing fruit, such as the $1-billion Hanjin shipbuilding facility, said to be the largest in the world, and the $1-billion Texas Instruments microchip plant in Clark. Maging ex-OFW o ex-tambay kapwang nakahanap ng trabaho sa mga malalaking puhunan na ito. [Applause]
- As we build industry, we must ensure people have clean air to breathe. We have closed 88 firms for polluting the environment. [Applause] Gaya ng sabi ko, una ang kaligtasan ng publiko.
- We proclaimed a critical habitat within the coastal lagoon of Las Piñas and Parañaque.
- Maynilad's new owners have invested P7 billion to bring clean and, at last, running water to Paranaque, Parola, and elsewhere. Manila Water did a similar P2 billion project for Antipolo. [Applause]
- Gumagawa tayo ng septage tank sa Antipolo sa halagang P600 million na maglilinis ng sewage bago ito dumaloy sa mga estero, gaya ng tinayo ng Manila Water sa Taguig at sa San Mateo.
- Matapos ang maraming taong usapan, ang ating administrasyon ang nakapagsimula ng Flood Control Project sa Kalookan, Malabon, Navotas, at Valenzuela (CAMANAVA). [Applause]
- On energy, Luzon needs 150 megawatts more by 2010. This is covered by the 350-megawatt, $350 million expansion of the Pagbilao plant by Marubeni and Tokyo Electric, part of their $4 billion that constitutes the biggest Japanese investment in Philippine history. [Applause] We count on Governor Raffy Nantes and the people of Quezon to take care of the investment climate. [Applause]

- Last year, I said we must reduce the cost of electricity. Some houses have reported paying less in their bills but it's still high. I ask Congress to amend the Electric Power Industry Reform Act for open access and more competition. [Applause]

The Cyber Corridor encompasses centers of technology and learning running the length of all the super regions, from Baguio to Clark to Metro Manila to Cebu to Davao and neighboring areas. [Applause]

The Philippines ranks among top off-shoring hubs in the world because of cost competitiveness and more importantly our highly trainable, English proficient, IT-enabled management and manpower.

IT ability won for Warren Ambat of Baguio City High the most innovative teacher and leadership award in Cambodia last February, topping contestants from 70 countries. Congratulations Baguio and Warren! [Applause]

Information technology will help the BIR bring in more taxes in the coming months. Its Revenue Watch Dashboard will monitor revenue collections in real time from the national level down to the examiners. Its LGU Revenue Assurance will share information between the BIR and the LGUs to uncover fraud and nonpayment, before heads would roll per Danny Suarez's Attrition Law. [Applause]

While our strength in contact centers is well established, we are now focused on growing the higher value-added services, including accounting, legal, human resources, and administrative services.

And, so that no Taiwan tremor can cut off our cyber services from their global clients, thanks to PLDT and Globe for investing P47 billion in new international broadband links through other regional hubs for redundancy in our cyberspace. [Applause]

The business services sector has become the fastest growing in the economy providing 400,000 jobs compared to 8,000 in 2000. By 2010 the forecast is 1 million jobs earning $12 billion, the same amount remitted by our overseas Filipinos today. [Applause]

On Safety Net and Education

Last year I said that in today's global economy, knowledge is the greatest creator of wealth. Mahusay na edukasyon ang pinakamabuting pamana natin sa ating mga anak. Yun din ang tanging pamana na ayon sa batas kailangang ibigay sa bawat mamamayan.

This year, we are investing more for education: P150 billion, P29 billion more than last year.

And, last year government and private sector built 15,000 classrooms instead of the usual 6,000.

Noon, isang libro bawat limang mag-aaral. Ngayon, tig-isang aklat na bawat grade schooler. [Applause]

One third of our public high schools now have Internet access, with private sector support.

We have a scarcity of public high schools but a surplus of private high schools. So instead of building more high schools, we give more high school scholarships—600,000 scholars this year. [Applause]

For college, we launched a P4 billion fund for college loans, to increase beneficiaries from 40,000 to 200,000.

And for teachers, we have created more than 50,000 teaching positions. But we have to improve their training.

Benefits, too. Salamat, dating Senador Tessie Oreta at dating Congressman Dodong Gullas, na di na kailangan ng mga guro maghabol sa Maynila ng sweldo at pension. [Applause] Pinoproseso na sa rehiyon sa regionalization ng payroll.

Teachers and all other national government employees for that matter get a raise effective end of this month. [Applause]

Sa TESDA, bukod sa mga sariling kurso, nagbibigay ito ng mga scholarship sa vocational schools: P600 million noong isang taon, P1 billion ngayon. May P1 billion pa ang DOLE.

We are investing P3 billion in science and engineering research and development technology, including scholarships for masters and doctoral degrees in engineering in seven universities. Upgrade know-how and learning, and Filipino talent is unbeatable.

Proof is biochemist Baldomero Olivera of the University of Utah who was named Scientist of the Year by the Harvard Foundation. [Applause]

In the International Math and Science Olympiad 2006 in Jakarta, Robert Buendia of Cavite Central School and Wilson Alba of San Beda Alabang won the gold. Congratulations, guys! [Applause] Six Filipinos bagged the awards at the Intel Young Scientists Competition in New Mexico last May: Ivy Ventura, Mara Villaverde, Hester Mana Umayam, and Janine Santiago of Philippine Science High; [applause] Melvin Barroa of Capiz National High, congratulations, Melvin; [applause] and Luigi John Suarez of Benedicto National High. Congratulations naman. [Applause] Last week Filipino students topbilled by Amiel Sy of the Philippine Science High dominated the Mathematics World Contest in Hong Kong. Congratulations, Amiel. Congratulations Philippine Science High. [Applause] Earlier this month Diona Aquino of the Presidential Management Staff won with her team from UP the Youth Innovation Competition on Global Governance in Shanghai. [Applause]

Ito ay malaking kunsuwelo sa atin. We have spent more on human capital formation than ever in the past. Why? Because if government of the people and by the people is not for them as well, it is a mockery of democracy. [Applause]

May malaking pag-angat ang kalagayan ng maralita, gaya ng trabaho, pag-aaral, at paggamot. Look at the chart about how fare the poor.

Sa unang pagkakataon, gumastos ang Philhealth ng higit P3 bilyon sa paospital ng maralita.

Noong 2001 sinabi kong hahatiin natin ang presyo ng gamot na madalas bilhin ng madla. Ngayon 10,000 Botika ng Barangay ang nagtitinda ng murang gamot. Ang paracetamol na tatlong piso sa labas ay piso lamang sa Botika ng Barangay. Ang antibiotic na binibenta ng mga pangunahing parmasya sa P20 ay P2 lamang.

Kaya sa isang survey, halos kalahati ang nagsabing abot-kaya ang gamot, kumpara sa 11 percent noong 1999.

So we can spread this even more, I ask Congress to pass the Cheaper Medicines Bill [applause] that was almost enacted in June. Almost is not good enough. Let's help Mar Roxas and Ferge Biron and Teddy Boy Locsin give our people meaningful, affordable choices, from abroad and here in the Philippines. [Applause]

I also ask Congress to pass legislation that brings improved long-term care for our senior citizens. Asahan natin si Ed Angara. [Applause]

Si Noli de Castro na isa pang kampeon ng senior citizens ay namumuno ng ating programa sa pabahay. Congratulations, Noli. The low interest rates for housing are unprecedented. [Applause] Naglaan ang Pag-IBIG ng P25 billion na pautang, six times the amount when we started it in 2001. At P50 billion pa ang ilalaan hanggang 2010. [Applause]

On Terrorism and Human Rights

We fight terrorism. It threatens our sovereign, democratic, compassionate, and decent way of life.

Therefore, in the fight against lawless violence, we must uphold these values. It is never right and always wrong to fight terror with terror.

And so I ask Congress ... I urge you to enact laws to transform state response to political violence: First, laws to protect witnesses from lawbreakers and law enforcers. [Applause] Second, laws to guarantee swift justice from more empowered special courts. [Applause] Third, laws to impose harsher penalties for political killings. [Applause] Fourth, laws reserving the harshest penalties for the rogue elements in the uniformed services who betray public trust and bring shame to the greater number of their colleagues who are patriotic. [Applause]

We must wipe this stain from our democratic record.

Ngunit pangunahing pakikibaka pa rin para sa karapatan ang pagpapalaya ng masa sa gutom at kahirapan.

Together with economic prosperity is the need to strengthen our institutions of government. Let's start with election reform. We have long provided funds for computerization. We look forward to the modernization of voting, counting, and canvassing. [Applause]

We can disagree on political goals but never on the conduct of democratic elections. I ask Congress to fund poll watchdogs, and to enact a stronger law against election-related violence. [Applause]

We must weed out corruption and build a strong system of justice that the people can trust. We have provided unprecedented billions for antigraft efforts. Thus the Ombudsman's conviction rate hit 77 percent this year, from 6 percent in 2002. [Applause] We implemented lifestyle checks, dormant for half a century. Taun-taon dose-dosenang opisyal ang nasususpinda, napapatsik, o kinakasuhan dahil labis-labis sa suweldo ang gastos at ari-arian nila.

Firms who were asked for bribes in taxes, permits, and licenses dropped to one-third from one-half. Contract bribes are also down. Graft won't be eliminated overnight but we are making progress. [Applause]

In Conclusion

What I have outlined today is just a sampler of our P1.7 trillion Medium Term Public Investment Program. How will we fund all these? P1 trillion from state revenues, with tax reforms and firm orders to BIR and Customs to hit their targets. P300 billion from state corporations. The balance from government financial institutions, private sector investments, local government equity, and our bilateral and multilateral partners.

Our new confidence and momentum for progress have imbued our foreign relations, with the ASEAN Summit last year and the coming ASEAN Regional Forum, with increased assistance from our allies and with continued support for our peace and security efforts in Mindanao.

We were able to strengthen our economy because of the fiscal reforms that we adopted at such great cost to me in public disapproval. But I would rather be right than popular. [Applause]

Our fundamentals are paying off in huge leaps in investment. Anim na milyong trabaho ang nalikha sa anim na taon, most in sustainable enterprises. Sa lakas ng piso, bumagal ang pagtaas ng bilihan. [Applause]

It is my ardent wish that most of the vision I have outlined will be fully achieved when I step down. It is my unshakable resolve that the fundamentals of this vision will by then be permanently rooted, its progress well advanced, and its direction firmly fixed with our reforms already bearing fruit. All that will remain for my successor is to gather the harvest. He or she will have an easier time of it than I did. [Applause]

They say the campaign for the next election started on May 15, the day after the last. Fine.

I stand in the way of no one's ambition. I only ask that no one stand in the way of the people's well-being and the nation's progress. [Applause]

The time for facing off is over. The time is here for facing forward to a better future our people so desperately want and richly deserve. [Applause]

Uulitin ko: Hindi ako sagabal sa ambisyon ninuman.

But make no mistake. I will not stand idly when anyone gets in the way of the national interest and tries to block the national vision. [Applause] From where I sit, I can tell you, a President is always as strong as she wants to be. [Applause] [Standing ovation]

Pagpalain tayo ng Diyos at ang dakilang gawaing hinaharap natin. The state of the nation is strong. [Applause]

Inyong lingkod, Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, pangulo ng Republika ng Pilipinas. [Applause] [Standing ovation]

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's 2008 SONA Technical Report

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Eighth State of the Nation Address, July 28, 2008

Eighth State of the Nation Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the 2nd Regular Session of the 14th Congress

[Delivered at the Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City, on July 28, 2008]

Thank you, Speaker Nograles. Senate President Villar. Senators and Representatives. Vice President de Castro, President Ramos, Chief Justice Puno, members of the diplomatic corps, ladies and gentlemen:

I address you today at a crucial moment in world history.

Just a few months ago, we ended 2007 with the strongest economic growth in a generation. Inflation was low, the peso strong, and a million new jobs were created. We were all looking to a better, brighter future. [Applause]

Because tough choices were made, kumikilos na ang bayan sa wakas. Malapit na sana tayo sa pagbalanse ng budget. We were retiring debts in great amounts, reducing the drag on our country's development, habang namumuhunan sa taong bayan. [Applause]

Biglang-bigla, nabaligtad ang ekonomiya ng mundo. Ang pagtalon ng presyo ng langis at pagkain ay nagbunsod ng pandaigdigang krisis, the worst since the Great Depression and the end of World War II. Some blame speculators moving billions of dollars from subprime mortgages to commodities like fuel and food. Others point of the very real surge in demand as millions of Chinese and Indians move up to the middle class.

Whatever the reasons, we are on a roller coaster ride of oil price hikes, high food prices, and looming economic recession in the US and other markets. Uncertainty has moved like a terrible tsunami around the globe, wiping away gains, erasing progress.

This is a complex time that defies simple and easy solutions. For starters, it is hard to identify villains, unlike in the 1997 financial crisis. Everyone seems to be a victim, rich countries and poor, though certainly some can take more punishment than others.

To address these global challenges, we must go on building and buttressing bridges to allies around the world: to bring in the rice to feed our people; investments to create jobs; and to keep the peace and maintain stability in our country and the rest of the world. Yet even as we reach out to those who need, and who may need us, we strive for greater self-reliance. [Applause]

Because tough choices were made, the global crisis did not catch us helpless and unprepared. Through foresight, grit, and political will, we built a shield around our country that has slowed down and somewhat softened the worst effects of the global crisis. [Applause] We have the money to care for our people and pay for food when there are shortages; for fuel despite price spikes. [Applause]

Neither we nor anyone else in the world expected this day to come so soon but we prepared for it. For the guts not to flinch in the face of tough choices, I thank God. For the wisdom to recognize how needed you are, I thank you Congress. [Applause] For footing the bill, I thank the taxpayers. [Applause]

The result has been, on the one hand, ito ang nakasalba sa bayan; on the other, more unpopularity for myself in the opinion polls. Yet even unfriendly polls show self-rated poverty down to its 20-year low in 2007. [Applause]

My responsibility as President is to take care, to solve the problems we are facing now, and to provide a vision and direction for how our nation should advance in the future.

Many in this great hall live privileged lives and exert great influence in public affairs. I am accessible to you, but I spend time every day with the underprivileged and under represented who cannot get a grip on their lives in the daily, all-consuming struggle to make ends meet.

Nag-aalala ako para sa nakakaawang maybahay na pasan ang pananagutan para sa buong pamilya. Nag-aalala ako para sa magsasakang nasa unang hanay ng pambansang produksyon ng pagkain ngunit nagsisikap pakanin ang pamilya. I care for hardworking students soon to graduate and wanting to see hope of good job and a career prospect here at home.

Nag-aalala ako para sa 41-year old na padre de pamilya na di araw-araw ang trabaho, at nag-aabala sa asawa at tatlong anak, at dapat bigyan ng higit pang pagkakakitaan at dangal. I care for our teachers who gave the greatest gift we ever received—a good education—still trying to pass on the same gift to succeeding generations. I care for our OFWs, famed for their skill, integrity, and untiring labor, who send home their pay as the only way to touch loved ones so far away. [Applause] Nagpupugay ako ngayon sa kanilang mga karaniwang Pilipino. [Applause]

My critics say this is fiction, along with other facts and figures I cite today. I call it heroism though they don't need our praise. Each is already a hero to those who matter most—their families.

I said this is a global crisis where everyone is a victim. But only few can afford to avoid, or pay to delay, the worst effects.

Many more have nothing to protect them from the immediate blunt force trauma of the global crisis. Tulad ninyo, nag-aalala ako para sa kanila. Ito ang mga taong bayan na dapat samahan natin. Not only because of their sacrifices for our country but because they are our countrymen. [Applause]

How do we solve these many complex challenges?

Sa kanilang kalagayan, the answer must be special care and attention in this great hour of need.

First, we must have a targeted strategy with a set of precise prescriptions to ease the price challenges we are facing.

Second, food self-sufficiency; less energy dependence; greater self-reliance in our attitude as a people and in our posture as a nation. [Applause]

Third, short-term relief cannot be at the expense of long-term reforms. [Applause] These reforms will benefit not just the next generation of Filipinos, but the next President as well. [Applause]

Napakahalaga ang value-added tax [VAT] sa pagharap sa mga hamong ito.

Itong programa ang sagot sa mga problemang namana natin. [Applause]

Una, mabawasan ang ating mga utang and shore up our fiscal independence. [Applause]

Pangalawa, higit na pamumuhunan para mamamayan at imprastraktura. [Applause]

Pangatlo, sapat na pondo para sa mga programang pangmasa. [Applause]

Thus, the infrastructure links programmed for the our poorest provinces like Northern Samar: Lao-ang-Lapinig-Arteche, right now ay maputik; San Isidro-Lope de Vega; the rehabilitation of Maharlika in Samar. [Applause]

Take VAT away and you and I abdicate our responsibility as leaders and pull the rug from under our present and future progress, which may be compromised by the global crisis.

Lalong lumakas ang tiwala ng mga investor dahil sa VAT. Mula P56.50 kada dolyar, lumakas ang piso hanggang P40.20 bago bumalik sa P44 dahil sa mga pabigat ng pangdaigdigang ekonomiya. Kung alisin ang VAT, hihina ang kumpiyansa ng negosyo, lalong tataas ang interes, lalong bababa ang piso, lalong mamahal ang bilihan.

Kapag ibinasura ang VAT sa langis at kuryente, ang mas makikinabang ay ang mga maykaya na kumukonsumo ng 84% ng langis at 90% ng kuryente habang mas masasaktan ang mahihirap na mawawalan ng P80 billion para sa mga programang pinopondohan ngayon ng VAT. [Applause] Take away VAT and we strip our people of the means to ride out the world food and energy crisis. [Applause]

We have come too far and made too many sacrifices to turn back now on fiscal reforms. Leadership is not about doing the first easy thing that comes to mind; it is about doing what is necessary, however hard. [Applause]

The government has persevered, without flip-flops, in its much-criticized but irreplaceable policies, including oil and power VAT and oil deregulation.

Patuloy na gagamitin ng pamahalaan ang lumalago nating yaman upang tulungan ang mga pamilyang naghihirap sa taas ng bilihan at hampas ng bagyo, habang nagpupundar upang sanggahan ang bayan sa mga krisis sa hinaharap.

Para sa mga namamasada at namamasahang sa dyip, sinusugpo natin ang kotong at colorum upang mapataas ang kita ng mga tsuper. [Applause] Si Federico Alvarez kumikita ng P200 a day sa kaniyang rutang Cubao-Rosario. Tinaas ito ng anti-kotong, anti-colorum ngayon P500 na ang kita niya. [Applause] Iyan ang paraan kung paano napananatili ang dagdag-pasahe sa P1 lamang. Halaga lang ng isang text. [Applause]

Texting is a way of life. I asked the telecoms to cut the cost of messages between networks. They responded. It is now down to 50 centavos. [Applause]

Noong Hunyo, nagpalabas tayo ng 4 bilyong piso mula sa VAT sa langis—2 bilyong pambayad ng kuryente ng 4 milyong mahihirap, 1 bilyon para college scholarship o pautang sa 70,000 na estudyanteng maralita; [applause] kalahating bilyong pautang upang palitan ng mas matipid na LPG, CNG, o biofuel ang motor ng libu-libong jeepney; [applause] at kalahating bilyong pampalit sa fluorescent sa mga pampublikong lugar. [Applause]

Kung mapapalitan ng fluorescent ang lahat ng bumbilya, makatitipid tayo ng lampas P2 billion. [Applause]

Sa sunod na katas ng VAT, may P1 billion na pambayad ng kuryente ng mahihirap; kalahating bilyon para sa matatandang di sakop ng SSS o GSIS; kalahating bilyong kapital para sa pamilya ng mga namamasada; kalahating bilyon upang mapataas ang kakayahan at equipment ng mga munting ospital sa mga lalawigan. [Applause] At para sa mga kalamidad, angkop na halaga.

We released P1 billion for the victims of typhoon Frank. We support a supplemental Western Visayas calamity budget from VAT proceeds, [applause] as a tribute to the likes of Rodney Berdin, age 13, of Barangay Rombang, Belison, Antique, who saved his mother, brother, and sister from the raging waters of Sibalom River. [Applause]

Mula sa buwang ito, wala nang income tax ang sumusweldo ng P200,000 o mas mababa sa isang taon—P12 billion na bawas-buwis para sa maralita at middle class. Maraming salamat, Congress. [Applause]

Ngayong may P32 na commercial rice, natugunan na natin ang problema sa pagkain sa kasalukuyan. Nagtagumpay tayo dahil sa pagtutulongan ng buong bayan sa pagsasaka, bantay-presyo, at paghihigpit sa price manipulation, sa masipag na pamumuno ni Artie Yap. [Applause]

Sa mga LGU at religious groups na tumutulong dalhin ang NFA rice sa mahihirap, maraming salamat sa inyo. [Applause]

Dahil sa subsidy, NFA rice is among the region's cheapest. While we can take some comfort that our situation is better than many other nations, there is no substitute for solving the problem of rice and fuel here at home. In doing so, let us be honest and clear eyed—there has been a fundamental shift in global economics. The price of food and fuel will likely remain high. Nothing will be easy; the government cannot solve these problems over night. But we can work to ease the near-term pain while investing in long-term solutions. [Applause]

Since 2001, new irrigation systems for 146,000 hectares, including Malmar in Maguindanao and North Cotabato, Lower Agusan, Casecnan and Aulo in Nueva Ecija, Abulog-Apayao in Cagayan and Apayao, Addalam in Quirino and Isabela among others, and the restoration of old systems on another 980,000 hectares have increased our nation's irrigated land to a historic 1.5 million hectares. [Applause]

Edwin Bandila, 48 years old, of Ugalingan, Carmen, North Cotabato, cultivated 1 hectare and harvested 35 cavans. Thirteen years na ginawa iyong Malmar. In my first State of the Nation Address, sabi ko kung hindi matapos iyon sa Setyembre ay kakanselahin ko ang kontrata, papapasukin ko ang engineering brigade, natapos nila. With Malmar, now he cultivates 5 hectares [applause] and produces 97 cavans per hectare. Mabuhay, Edwin! VAT will complete the San Roque-Agno River project. [Applause]

The Land Bank has quadrupled loans for farmers and fisherfolk. That is fact not fiction. Check it. For more effective credit utilization, I instructed DA to revitalize farmers cooperatives. [Applause]

We are providing seeds at subsidized prices to help our farmers.

Incremental Malampaya national revenues of P4 billion will go to our rice self-sufficiency program. [Applause]

Rice production since 2000 increased an average of 4.07% a year, twice the population growth rate. By promoting natural planning and female education, we have curbed population growth to 2.04% during our administration, down from the 2.36% in the 1990s, when artificial birth control was pushed. [Applause] Our campaign spreads awareness of responsible parenthood regarding birth spacing. Long years of pushing contraceptives made it synonymous to family planning. Therefore, informed choice should mean letting more couples, who are mostly Catholics, know about natural family planning. [Applause]

From 1978 to 1981, nag-export tayo ng bigas. Hindi tumagal. But let's not be too hard on ourselves. Panahon pa ng Kastila bumibili na tayo ng bigas sa labas. While we may know how to grow rice well, topography doesn't always cooperate.

Nature did not gift us with a mighty Mekong like Thailand and Vietnam, with their vast and naturally fertile plains. Nature instead put our islands ahead of our neighbors in the path of typhoons from the Pacific. So, we import 10% of the rice we consume.

To meet the challenge of today, we will feed our people now, not later, and help them get through these hard times. To meet the challenges of tomorrow, we must become more self-reliant, self-sufficient, and independent, relying on ourselves more than on the world. [Applause]

Now we come to the future of agrarian reform.

There are those who say it is a failure, that our rice importations prove it. There are those who say it is a success—if only because anything is better than nothing. Indeed, people are happier owning the land they work, no matter what the difficulties.

Sa SONA noong 2001, sinabi ko, bawat taon, mamamahagi tayo ng 200,000 ektarya sa reporma sa lupa: 100,000 hectares of private farmland; and 100,000 of public farmland, including ancestral domains. Di hamak mahigit sa target ang naipamahagi natin sa nakaraang pitong taon: 854,000 hectares of private farmland, 797,000 of public farmland, and Certificates of Ancestral Domain for 525,000 hectares. [Applause] Including, over a 100,000 hectares for the Bugkalots in Quirino, Aurora, and Nueva Vizcaya. After the release of their CADT, Rosario Camma, Bugkalot chieftain, and now mayor of Nagtipunan, helped his 15,000-member tribe develop irrigation, plant vegetables and corn, and achieve food sufficiency. Mabuhay, Chief! [Applause]

Agrarian reform should not merely subdivide misery, it must raise living standards. Ownership raises the farmer from his knees but productivity will keep him on his feet.

Sinimula ng aking ama ang land reform noong 1963. Upang mabuo ito, the extension of CARP with reforms is top priority. [Applause] I will continue to do all I can for the rural as well as urban poor. Ayaw natin na paglaya ng tenant sa landlord, mapapasa-ilalim naman sa usurero. Former tenants must be empowered to become agribusinessmen by allowing their land to be used as collateral. [Applause]

Dapat mapalaya ng reporma sa lupa ang magsasaka sa pagiging alipin sa iba. Dapat bigyan ang magsasaka ng dangal bilang taong malaya at di hawak ninuman. We must curb the recklessness that gives land without the means to make it productive and bites off more than beneficiaries can chew. [Applause]

At the same time, I want the rackets out of agrarian reform: [applause] the threats to take and therefore undervalue land, the conspiracies to overvalue it.

Be with me on this. There must be a path where justice and progress converge. Let us find it before Christmas. [Applause] Dapat nating linisin ang landas para sa mga ibig magpursige sa pagsasaka, taglay ang pananalig na ang lupa ay sasagip sa atin sa huli kung gamitin natin ito nang maayos.

Along with massive rice production, we are cutting costs through more efficient transport. For our farm-to-market roads, we released P6 billion in 2007.

On our nautical highways. RORO boats carried 33 million metric tons of cargo and 31 million passengers in 2007. We have built 39 RORO ports during our administration, 12 more are slated to start within the next two years. In 2003, we inaugurated the Western Nautical Highway from Batangas through Mindoro, Panay and Negros to Mindanao. This year we launched the Central Nautical Highway from Bicol mainland through Masbate, Cebu, Bohol and Camiguin to Mindanao mainland. [Applause] These developments strengthen our competitiveness.

Leading multinational company Nestle cut transport costs and offset higher milk prices abroad. Salamat, RORO. [Applause] Transport costs have become so reasonable for bakeries like Gardenia, a loaf of its bread in Iloilo is priced the same as in Laguna and Manila. Salamat muli sa RORO. [Applause]

To the many LGUs who have stopped collecting fees from cargo vehicles, maraming, maraming salamat. [Applause]

We are repaving airports that are useful for agriculture, like Zamboanga City Airport. [Applause]

Producing rice and moving it cheaper addresses the supply side of our rice needs. On the demand side, we are boosting the people's buying power.

Ginagawa nating labor-intensive ang paggawa at pag-ayos ng kalsada at patubig. Noong SONA ng 2001, naglunsad tayo sa NCR ng patrabaho para sa 20,000 na out of school youth, na tinawag na OYSTER. Ngayon, mahigit 20,000 ang ineempleyo ng OYSTER sa buong bansa. [Applause] In disaster-stricken areas, we have a cash-for-work program.

In training, 7.74 million took technical and vocational courses over the last seven years, double the number in the previous 14 years. In 2007 alone, 1.7 million graduated. Among them are Jessica Barlomento now in Hanjin as supply officer, Shenve Catana, Marie Grace Comendador, and Marlyn Tusi, lady welders, congratulations. [Applause]

In microfinance, loans have reached P102 billion or 30 times more than the P3 billion we started with in 2001, with a 98% repayment record, congratulations! [Applause] Major lenders include the Land Bank with P69 billion, the Peoples' Credit and Finance Corporation P8 billion, the National Livelihood Support Fund P3 billion, DBP P1 billion, and the DSWD's SEA-K P800 million. For partnering with us to unleash the entrepreneurial spirit, thank you, Go Negosyo and Joey Concepcion. [Applause]

Upland development benefits farmers through agro-forestry initiatives. Rubber is especially strong in Zamboanga Sibugay and North Cotabato. [Applause] Victoria Mindoro, 56 years old, used to earn P5,000 a month as farmer and factory worker. Now she owns 10 hectares in the Goodyear Agrarian Reform Community in Kabasalan, Zamboanga Sibugay, earning P10,000 a week. [Applause] With 1 hectare, Pedro and Concordia Faviolas of Makilala, North Cotabato, sent their six children to college, bought two more hectares, and earn P15,000 a month. Congratulations! [Applause]

Jatropha estates are starting in 900 hectares in and around Tamlang Valley in Negros Oriental; 200 in CamSur; 300 in GenSan, 500 in Fort Magsaysay near the Cordero Dam, and 700 in Samar, among others.

In our 2006 SONA, our food baskets were identified as North Luzon and Mindanao.

The sad irony of Mindanao as food basket is that it has some of the highest hunger in our nation. It has large fields of high productivity, yet also 6 of our 10 poorest provinces.

The prime reason is the endless Mindanao conflict. A comprehensive peace has eluded us for half a century. But last night, differences on the tough issue of ancestral domain were resolved. Yes, there are political dynamics among the people of Mindanao. Let us sort them out with the utmost sobriety, patience, and restraint. I ask Congress to act on the legislative and political reforms that will lead to a just and lasting peace during our term of office. [Applause]

The demands of decency and compassion urge dialogue. Better talk than fight, if nothing of sovereign value is anyway lost. Dialogue has achieved more than confrontation in many parts of the world. This was the message of the recent World Conference in Madrid organized by the King of Saudi Arabia, and the universal message of the Pope in Sydney.

Pope Benedict's encyclical Deus Caritas Est reminds us: "There will always be situations of material need where help in the form of concrete love for neighbour is indispensable."

Pinagsasama-sama natin ang mga programa ng DSWD, DOH, GSIS, SSS, at iba pang lumalaban sa kahirapan sa isang National Social Welfare Program para proteksyonan ang pinakamahihirap mula sa pandaigdigang krisis, and to help those whose earnings are limited by illness, disability, loss of job, age, and so on—through livelihood projects, microfinance, skills and technology transfer, emergency and temporary employment, pension funds, food aid and cash subsidies, child nutrition and adult health care, medical missions, salary loans, insurance, housing programs, educational and other savings schemes, and now cheaper medicine—thanks to Congress. [Applause]

The World Bank says that in Brazil, the income of the poorest 10% has grown 9% per year versus the 3% for the higher income levels due in large part to their family stipend program linking welfare checks to school attendance. We have introduced a similar program, Pantawid Pamilya.

Employers have funded the two increases in SSS benefits since 2005. Thank you, employers, for paying the premiums. [Applause]

GSIS pensions have been indexed to inflation and have increased every year since 2001. Its salary loan availments have increased from two months equivalent to 10 months, the highest of any system public or private—while repayments have been stretched out.

Pag-Ibig housing loans increased from P3.82 billion in 2001 to P22.6 billion in 2007. This year it experienced an 84% increase in the first four months alone. [Applause] Super heating na. Dapat dagdagan ng GSIS at buksan muli ng SSS ang pautang sa pabahay. I ask Congress to pass a bill allowing SSS to do housing loans beyond the present 10% limitation. [Applause]

Bago ako naging Pangulo, 1.5 milyong maralita lamang ang may health insurance. Noong 2001, sabi natin, dadagdagan pa ng kalahating milyon. Sa taong iyon, mahigit 1 milyon ang nabigyan natin. Ngayon, 65 milyong Pilipino na ang may health insurance, mahigit doble ng 2000, kasama ang 15 milyong maralita. [Applause] PhilHealth has paid P100 billion for hospitalization. The indigent beneficiaries largely come from Central and West Visayas, Central Luzon, and Ilocos. Patuloy nating palalawakin itong napaka-importanteng programa, lalo na sa Tawi-Tawi, Zamboanga Norte, Maguindanao, Apayao, Dinagat, Lanao Sur, Northern Samar, Masbate, Abra, and Misamis Occidental. Lalo na sa kanilang mga magsasaka at mangingisda. [Applause]

In these provinces and in Agusan Sur, Kalinga, Surigao Sur, and calamity-stricken areas, we will launch a massive school feeding program at P10 per child every school day.

Bukod sa libreng edukasyon sa elementarya at high school, nadoble ang pondo para sa mga college scholarships, while private high school scholarship funds from the government have quadrupled.

I have started reforming and clustering the programs of the DepEd, CHED, and TESDA.

As with fiscal and food challenges, the global energy crunch demands better and more focused resource mobilization, conservation, and management.

Government agencies are reducing their energy and fuel bills by 10%, emulating Texas Instruments and Philippine Stock Exchange who did it last year. Congratulations, Justice Vitug and Francis Lim. [Applause]

To reduce power system losses, we count on government regulators and also on EPIRA amendments.

We are successful in increasing energy self-sufficiency—56%, the highest in our history. We promote natural gas and biofuel; geothermal fields, among the world's largest; windmills like those in Ilocos and Batanes; and the solar cells lighting many communities in Mindanao. The new Galoc oil field can produce 17,000 to 22,000 barrels per day, 1/12 of our crude consumption.

The Renewable Energy Bill has passed the House. Thank you, Congressmen and Congresswomen. [Applause]

Our costly commodity imports like oil and rice should be offset by hard commodities exports like primary products, and soft ones like tourism and cyberservices, at which only India beats us.

Our P350 million training partnership with the private sector should qualify 60,000 for call centers, medical transcription, animation, and software development, which have a projected demand of 1 million workers generating $13 billion by 2010.

International finance agrees with our progress. Credit rating agencies have kept their positive or stable outlook on the country. Our world competitiveness ranking rose five notches. Congratulations to us. [Applause]

We are sticking to, and widening, the fiscal reforms that have earned us their respect.

To our investors, thank you for your valuable role in our development. [Applause] I invite you to invest not only in factories and services, but in profitable infrastructure, following the formula for the Tarlac-Pangasinan-La Union Expressway. [Applause]

I ask business and civil society to continue to work for a socially equitable, economically viable balance of interests. Mining companies should ensure that host communities benefit substantively from their investments, and with no environmental damage from operations. [Applause]

Our administration enacted the Solid Waste Management Act, Wildlife Act, Protection of Plant Varieties, Clean Water Act, Biofuels Act, and various laws declaring protected areas.

For reforestation, for next year we have budgeted P2 billion. [Applause] Not only do forests enhance the beauty of the land, they mitigate climate change, a key factor in increasing the frequency and intensity of typhoons and costing the country 0.5% of the GDP. [Applause]

We have set up over 100 marine and fish sanctuaries since 2001. In the whale shark sanctuary of Donsol [Sorsogon], Alan Amanse, a 40-year-old college undergraduate and father of two, was earning P100 a day from fishing and driving a tricycle. Now as whale shark-watching officer, he earns P1,000 a day, 10 times his former income. [Applause]

For clean water, so important to our health, there is P500 million this year and P1.5 billion for next year.

From just one sanitary landfill in 2001, we now have 21, with another 18 in the works.

We launched the Zero Basura Olympics to clear our communities of trash. Rather than more money, all that is needed is for each citizen to keep home and workplace clean, and for garbage officials to stop squabbling. [Applause]

Our investments also include essential ways to strengthen our institutions of governance in order to fight the decades-old scourge of corruption. I will continue to fight this battle every single day. [Applause] While others are happy with headlines through accusation without evidence and privilege speeches without accountability, we have allocated more than P3 billion—the largest anti-graft fund in our history—for real evidence gathering and vigorous prosecution. [Applause]

From its dismal past record, the Ombudsman's conviction rate has increased 500%. [Applause] Lifestyle checks, never seriously implemented before our time, have led to the dismissal and/or criminal prosecution of dozens of corrupt officials. [Applause]

I recently met with the Millennium Challenge Corporation, a U.S. agency that provides grants to countries based on governance. They have commended our gains, contributed P1 billion to our fight against graft, and declared us eligible for more grants. Thank you! [Applause]

Last September, we created the Procurement Transparency Group in the DBM and linked it with business, academe, and the Church, to deter or catch anomalies in government contracts.

On my instruction, the BIR and Customs established similar government-civil society tie-ups for information gathering and tax evasion and smuggling monitoring.

More advanced corruption practices require a commensurate advances in legislative responses. Colleagues in Congress, we need a more stringent Anti-Graft Act. [Applause]

Sa pagmahal ng bilihin, hirap na ang mamimili—tapos, dadayain pa. Dapat itong mahinto. Hinihiling ko sa Kongreso na magpasa ng Consumer Bill of Rights laban sa price gouging, false advertising, at iba pang gawain kontra sa mamimili. [Applause]

I call on all our government workers at the national and local levels to be more responsive and accountable to the people. Panahon ito ng pagsubok. Kung saan kayang tumulong at dapat tumulong ang pamahalaan, we must be there with a helping hand. Where government can contribute nothing useful, stay away. Let's be more helpful, more courteous, more quick.

Kaakibat ng ating mga adhikain ang tuloy na pagkalinga sa kapakanan ng bawat Pilipino. Iisa ang ating pangarap—maunlad at mapayapang lipunan, kung saan ang magandang kinabukasan ay hindi pangarap lamang, bagkus natutupad. [Applause]

Sama-sama tayo sa tungkuling ito. May papel na gagampanan ang bawat mamamayan, negosyante, pinunong bayan, at simbahan, sampu ng mga nasa lalawigan.

We are three branches but one government. We have our disagreements; we each have hopes, and ambitions that drive and divide us, be they personal, ethnic, religious, and cultural. But we are one nation with one fate. [Applause]

As your President, I care too much about this nation to let anyone stand in the way of our people's well-being. Hindi ko papayagang humadlang ang sinuman sa pag-unlad at pagsagana ng taong bayan. [Applause] I will let no one—and no one's political plans—threaten our nation's survival. [Applause]

Our country and our people have never failed to be there for us. We must be there for them now. [Applause]

Maraming salamat. Magandang gabi sa inyong lahat. [Applause] [Standing ovation]

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's 2009 SONA Technical Report

Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, Ninth State of the Nation Address, July 27, 2009

Ninth State of the Nation Address
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening of the 3rd Regular Session of the 14th Congress

[Delivered in the Batasang Pambansa, Quezon City on July 27, 2009]

Thank you.

Ladies and gentlemen, good afternoon. Before I begin my report to the nation, please join me first in a moment of prayer for President Aquino.

Senate President Enrile, Speaker Nograles, Senators, Representatives, Vice President de Castro, former President Ramos, Chief Justice Puno, Ambassadors, friends:

The past 12 months have been a year for the history books. Financial meltdown in the West spread throughout the world. Tens of millions lost their jobs; billions across the globe have been hurt—the poor always harder than the rich. No one was spared.

It has affected us already. But the story of the Philippines in 2008 is that the country weathered a succession of global crises in fuel, in food, then in finance and finally, economy in a global recession, never losing focus and with economic fundamentals intact. [Applause]

A few days ago, Moody's upgraded our credit rating, citing the resilience of our economy. The state of our nation is a strong economy. [Applause] Good news for our people, bad news for our critics. [Applause]

I did not become President to be popular. To work, to lead, to protect and preserve our country, our people, that is why I became President. [Applause] When my father left the Presidency, we were second to Japan. I want our Republic to be ready for the first world in 20 years.

Towards that vision, we made key reforms. Our economic plan centers on putting people first. Higit sa lahat, ang layunin ng ating patakaran ay tulungan ang masisipag na karaniwang Pilipino. [Applause] New tax revenues were put in place to help pay for better health care, more roads, and a strong education system. Housing policies were designed to lift up our poorer citizens so they can live and raise a family with dignity. Ang ating mga puhunan sa agrikultura ay naglalayong kilalanin ang ating mga magsasaka bilang backbone ng ating bansa, [applause] at bigyan sila ng mga modernong kagamitan to feed our nation and feed their own family.

Had we listened to the critics of those policies, had we not braced ourselves for the crisis that came, had we taken the easy road much preferred by politicians eyeing elections, this country would be flat on its back. [Applause] It would take twice the effort just to get it back again on its feet—to where we are now because we took the responsibility and paid the political price of doing the right thing. [Applause] For standing with me and doing the right thing, thank you, Congress.

The strong, bitter, and unpopular revenue measures of the past few years have spared our country the worst of the global financial shocks. They gave us the resources to stimulate the economy. Nabigyan nila ang pinakamalaking pagtaas ng IRA ng mga LGU na P40 billion itong taon, imparting strength throughout the country at every level of government.

Compared to the past, we have built more and better infrastructure, including those started by others but left unfinished. The Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway is a prime example of building better roads. [Applause] It creates wealth as the flagship of the Subic-Clark corridor.

We have built airports of international standard, upgraded domestic airports, built seaports and the Roll On/Roll Off system. I ask Congress for a Philippine Transport Security Law. [Applause]

Some say that after this SONA, it will be all politics. Sorry, but there's more work. [Applause]

Sa telecommunications naman, inatasan ko ang Telecommunications Commission na kumilos na tungkol sa mga sumbong na dropped calls at mga nawawalang load sa cell phone. [Applause] We need to amend the Commonwealth-era Public Service Law. And we need to do it now. [Applause]

Kung noong nakaraan, lumakas ang electronics, today we are creating wealth by developing the BPO and tourism sectors as additional engines of growth. Electronics and other manufactured exports rise and fall in accordance with the state of the world economy. But BPO remains resilient. With earnings of $6 billion and employment of 600,000, the BPO phenomenon speaks eloquently of our competitiveness and productivity. [Applause] Let us have a Department of ICT. [Applause]

In the last four years, tourism almost doubled. [Applause] It is now a $5 billion industry.

Our reforms gave us the resources to protect our people, our financial system, and our economy from the worst of shocks that the best in the West failed to anticipate. [Applause]

They gave us the resources to extend welfare support and enhance spending power.

For helping me raise government salaries through Joint Resolution 4, thank you, Congress. [Applause]

Cash handouts give the most immediate relief and produce the widest stimulating effect. Nakikinabang ang 700,000 na pinakamahihirap na pamilya sa programang Pantawid Pamilya. [Applause]

We prioritize projects with the same stimulus effects plus long-term contributions to progress.

Sa pagpapamahagi ng milyun-milyong hektaryang lupa, 700,000 na katutubo at mahigit 1 milyong benepisyaryo ng CARP ay taas-noong may-ari na ng sariling lupa. [Applause] Hinihiling ko sa Kongreso na ipasa agad ang pagpapalawig ng CARP, [applause] at dapat ma-condone ang P42 billion na land reform liabilities dahil 18% lamang ang nabayaran mula 1972. [Applause] Napapanahon, because it will unfreeze the rural property market. Ang mahal kong ama ang nag-emancipate ng mga magsasaka. Ii-mancipate naman natin ngayon ang titulo. [Applause]

Nakinabang ang pitong milyong entrepreneurs sa P165 billion in microfinance loans.

Nakinabang ang 100,000 sa Emergency Employment ng ating Economic Resiliency Plan. Kasama natin ngayon ang isa sa kanila, si Gigi Gabiola. Dating household service worker sa Dubai, ngayon siya ay nagtatrabaho sa DOLE. Good luck, Gigi. [Applause]

Nakinabang ang 1 milyong pamilya sa programang pabahay at palupa, mula Pag-Ibig, NHA, Community Mortgage Program, Certificates of Lot Award, at saka yung inyong Loan Condonation and Restructuring Act. Salamat. [Applause]

Our average inflation is the lowest since 1966. Last June, it dropped to 1.5%. [Applause] Paano?

Proper policies lowered interest rates, which lowered costs to business and consumers.

Dahil sa ating mga reporma, nakaya nating ibenta ang bigas NFA sa P18.25 per kilo, kahit tumaas ang presyo sa labas mula P17.50 hanggang P30 dahil sa kakulangan sa supply sa mundo. Habang, sa unang pagkakataon, naitaas ang pamimili ng palay sa mga magsasaka, P17 mula sa P11.

Dahil sa ating mga reporma, nakaya nating mamuhunan sa pagkain—anticipating an unexpected global food crisis. Nakagawa tayo ng libu-libong kilometro ng farm-to-market roads at, kasama ng pribadong sector, natubigan ang 2 milyong hektarya. [Applause] Mga Badjao gaya ni Tarnati Dannawi ay tinuruan ng modernong mariculture. Umabot na sa P180,000 ang kinita niya mula noong nakaraang taon. Congratulations, Tarnati. [Applause] We will help more fisherfolk shift to fish farming with a budget of P1 billion. [Applause]

Dahil dumarami na naman daw ang pamilyang nagugutom, mamumuhunan tayo ng panibago sa ating Hunger Mitigation Program na sa nakaraan ay napatunayang mabisa. Tulungan ninyo ako dito, Kongreso. [Applause]

Mula pa noong 2001, nanawagan na tayo ng mas murang gamot. Nagbebenta tayo ng gamot na kalahating presyo sa libu-libong Botika ng Bayan at Botika ng Barangay sa maraming dako ng bansa. Our efforts prodded the pharmaceutical companies to come up with low-cost generics and brands like RiteMed. I supported the tough version of the House of the Cheaper Medicine law. [Applause] I supported it over the weak version of my critics. [Applause] The result: the drug companies volunteered to bring down drug prices, slashing by half the prices of 16 drugs. Thank you, Congressmen Cua, Alvarez, Biron, Locsin. [Applause]

Pursuant to law, we are placing other drugs under a maximum retail price. To those who want to be President, this advice: If you really want something done, just do it. Do it hard, do it well. Don't pussyfoot. Don't pander. And don't say bad words in public. [Applause]

Sa health insurance, sakop na ng 86% ang ating populasyon.

Sa Rent Control Law ng 2005 hanggang 2008, di pwedeng lumampas ng 10% ang pagtaas ng upa taun-taon. Ayon sa kapipirma nating batas, may isang taong moratorium, tapos hanggang 7% lamang ang maaaring pagtaas. Salamat, Kongreso. [Applause]

Noong isang taon, nabiyayaan ng tig-P500 ang mahigit pitong milyong tahanan bilang Pantawid Kuryente sa mga small electricity users.

Yung presyo ng kuryente, ang EPIRA natin ang pangmatagalang sagot. EPIRA dismantled monopoly. Ngunit minana natin ang Power Purchase Agreements, kaya hindi pa natin nakakamtan yung buong intended effect. Pero happy na rin tayo, dahil isang taon na lamang iyan. The next generation will benefit from low prices from our EPIRA. Thank you. [Applause]

Samantala, umabot na sa halos lahat ng barangay ang elektrisidad. We increased indigenous energy from 48% to 58%. Nakatipid tayo ng dollars tapos malaki pa ang na-reduce na oil consumption. The huge reduction in fossil fuel is the biggest proof of energy independence and environmental responsibility. [Applause] Further reduction will come with the implementation of the Renewable Energy Act, and the Biofuels Act. Again, thank you. [Applause]

The next generation will also benefit from our lower public debt-to-GDP ratio. It declined from 78% in 2000 to 55% in 2008. We cut in half the debt of government corporations from 15% to 7%; likewise foreign debt from 73% to 32%. [Applause] Kung meron man tayong malaking kaaway na tinalo, walang iba kundi ang utang, iyong foreign debt. Those in the past conjured the demon of foreign debt. We exorcised it. [Applause]

The market grows economies. A free market, not a free-for-all.

To that end, we improved our banking system to complement its inherent conservatism. The Bangko Sentral has been prudent. Thank you, Governor Tetangco, [applause] for being so effective. The BSP will be even more effective if Congress will amend its Charter. [Applause]

We worked on the Special Purpose Vehicle Act, reducing nonperforming loans from 18% to 4% and improving loan-deposit ratios.

Our new Securitization Law did not encourage the recklessness that brought down giant banks and insurance companies elsewhere and laid their economies to waste. In fact, it monitors and regulates the newfangled financial schemes. Thank you, Congress. [Applause]

We will work to increase tax effort through improved collections and new sin taxes to further our capacity to reduce poverty and pursue growth. Revenue enhancement must come from the Department of Finance plugging leaks and catching tax and customs cheats. I call on tax-paying citizens and tax-paying businesses: help the BIR and customs stop those cheats. [Applause]

Taxes should come from alcohol and tobacco, and not from books. Tax hazards to lungs and livers, do not tax minds. [Applause] Ang kita mula sa buwis sa alak at sigarilyo ay dapat gamitin sa kalusugan at edukasyon. Pondo ang PhilHealth premiums ng pinakamahirap. Pondo ang mas maraming classroom at computers.

Pardon my partiality for the teaching profession. I was a teacher, [applause] kaya namuhunan tayo ng malaki sa education at skills training.

Ang magandang edukasyon ay susi sa mas magandang buhay, the great equalizer that allows every young Filipino a chance to realize their dreams.

Nagtayo tayo ng 95,000 na silid-aralan, nagdagdag ng 60,000 na guro, naglaan ng P1.5 billion para sa teacher training, especially for 100,000 English teachers. [Applause]

Isa sa pinakamahirap sa Millennium Development Goals ay iyong education para sa lahat pagdating ng 2015. Ibig sabihin, lahat ng nasa tamang edad ay dapat nasa primary school. Halos walang bansang nakakatupad nito, ngunit nagsisikap pa rin tayo. Nagtayo tayo ng mga paaralan sa higit 1,000 barangay na dati walang eskwelahan upang makatipid ng gastos sa pasahe ang mga bata. [Applause] Tinanggal natin ang miscellaneous fees para sa primary school. Hindi na kailangan ang uniporme sa estudyante sa public school.

In private high schools, we finance half of the students.

We have provided college and postgraduate education for over 600,000 scholars. One of them, Mylene Amerol-Macumbal, finished Accounting at MSU-IIT, [applause] then she went to law school, and placed second in the last bar exams [applause]—the first Muslim woman bar topnotcher. Congratulations! [Applause]

In technical education and skills training, we have invested three times that of three previous administrations combined. [Applause] Narito si Jennifer Silbor, isa sa 10 milyong trainee. Natuto siya ng medical transcription. Now, as an independent contractor and lecturer for transcriptions in Davao, kumikita siya ng P18,000 bawat buwan. Good job, Jennifer. [Applause]

The Presidential Task Force on Education, headed by Jesuit educator Father Bienvenido Nebres, has come out with the Main Education Highway towards a Knowledge-Based Economy. It envisions seamless education from basic to vocational school or college.

It seeks to mainstream early childhood development in basic education. Our children are our most cherished possession. In their early years we must make sure they get a healthy start in life. They must receive the right food for a healthy body, the right education for a bright and inquiring mind—and the equal opportunity for a meaningful job. [Applause]

For college admission, the Task Force recommends mandatory Scholastic Aptitude Tests. It also recommends that higher private education institutions and state universities and colleges should be harmonized, and also that CHED should oversee local universities and colleges. For professions seeking international recognition—engineering, architecture, accountancy, pharmacy, and physical therapy—the Task Force recommends radical reform: 10 years of basic education, 2 years of pre-university, before 3 years of university.

Our educational system should make the Filipino fit not just for whatever jobs happen to be on offer today, but also for whatever economic challenge life will throw in their way.

Sa hirap at ginhawa, pinapatatag ang ating bansa ng ating overseas Filipinos. Iyong padala nilang $16 billion noong isang taon ay record. Itong taon, mas mataas pa. [Applause]

I know that this is not a sacrifice joyfully borne. This is work where it can be found—in faraway places, among strangers with different cultures. It is lonely work, it is hard work.

Kaya nagsisikap tayong lumikha dito sa atin ng mga trabahong maganda ang sahod, so that overseas work will just be a career choice, not the only option for a hardworking Filipino. [Applause]

Meanwhile, we should make their sacrifices worthwhile. Dapat gumawa tayo ng mas epektibong proteksyon at pagpapalawak ng halaga ng kanilang pinagsikapang suweldo. That means stronger consumer protection for overseas Filipinos investing in property and products back home. Para sa kanila, pinapakilos natin ang Investors Protection Task Force. [Applause]

Hindi ako nag-aatubiling bisitahin ang ating taong bayan at kanilang mga host sa buong mundo—mula Hapon hanggang Brazil, mula Europa at Middle East hanggang sa American Midwest, nakikinig sa kanilang mga problema at pangangailangan, inaalam kung paano sila matutulungan ng ating pamahalaan—by working out better policies on migrant labor, or by saving lives and restoring liberty.

Pagpunta ko sa Saudi, pinatawad ni Haring Abdullah ang 700 OFW na nasa preso. [Applause] Pinuno nila ang isang buong eroplano at umuwi kasama ko. [Applause]

Mula sa ating State Visit sa Espanya, it has become our biggest European donor. [Applause] At si Haring Juan Carlos ay nakikipag-usap sa ibang mga bansa para sa ating mga namomroblemang OFW. Ganoon din si Sheikh Khalifa, ang Prime Minister ng Bahrain. [Applause]

Pagpunta ko sa Kuwait, Emir Al-Sabah commuted death sentences. [Applause] We thank all our leaders, all the world leaders, who have shown compassion for our overseas Filipino workers. Maraming salamat. [Applause]

Our vigorous international engagement has helped bring in foreign investment. Net foreign direct investments multiplied 15 times during our administration. Kasama ng ating mga OFWs, they more than doubled our foreign exchange reserves. Pinalakas ang ating piso at naiwasan ang lubhang pagtaas ng presyo. They upgraded our credit because while the reserves of our peers have shrunk this past year, our reserves grew by $3 billion. [Applause]

Our international engagement has also corrected historical injustice. The day we visited Washington, Senator Daniel Inouye successfully sponsored benefits for our veterans as part of America's stimulus package.

I have accepted the invitation of President Obama to be the first Southeast Asian leader to meet him at the White House, later this week. [Applause]

That he sought out the Philippines testifies to our strong and deep ties.

High on our agenda will be peace and security issues. Terrorism: how to meet it, how to end it, how to address its roots in injustice and prejudice—and first and always how to protect lives.

We will discuss nuclear nonproliferation. The Philippines will chair the review of the Nuclear Weapons Nonproliferation Treaty in New York in May 2010. The success of the talks will be a major diplomatic achievement for us.

There is a range of other issues we will discuss, including the global challenge of climate change, especially the threat to countries with long coastlines. And there is the global recession, its worse impact on poor people, and the options that can spare them from the worst.

In 2008 up to the first quarter of 2009, we stood among only a few economies in Asia Pacific that did not shrink. [Applause] Compare this to 2001, when some of my current critics were driven out by People Power. Asia was then surging but our country was on the brink of bankruptcy. [Applause]

Since then, our economy posted uninterrupted growth for 33 quarters; more than doubled its size from $76 billion to $186 billion. The average GDP growth from 2001 to the first quarter of 2009 is the highest in 43 years. [Applause]

Bumaba ang bilang ng mga nagsasabing mahirap sila sa 47% mula 59%. Maski lumaki ang ating populasyon, nabawasan ng 2 milyon ang bilang ng mahihirap. [Applause] GNP per capita rose from a Third World $967 to $2,000. Lumikha tayo ng 8 milyong trabaho, an average of a million a year—much, much more than at any other time. [Applause]

In sum:

First, we have a strong economy and a strong fiscal position to withstand political shocks.

Second, we built new and modern infrastructure and completed unfinished ones.

Third, the economy is more fair to the poor than ever before. [Applause]

Fourth, we are building a sound base for the next generation.

Fifth, international authorities have taken notice that we are safer from environmental degradation and man-made disasters.

As a country in the path of typhoons and in the Pacific Rim of Fire, we must be prepared as the latest technology permits to anticipate natural calamities when that is possible; to extend immediate and effective relief when it is not. The mapping of flood- and landslide-prone areas is almost complete. Early warning, forecasting, and monitoring systems have been improved, with weather tracking facilities in Subic, Tagaytay, Mactan, Mindanao, Pampanga.

We have worked on flood control infrastructure like those for Pinatubo, Agno, Laoag, and Abucay, which will pump the run off waters from Quezon City and Tondo flooding Sampaloc. This will help relieve hundreds of hectares in this old city of its age-old woe. [Applause]

Patuloy naman iyong sa Camanava, dagdag sa Pinatubo, Iloilo, Pasig-Marikina, Bicol River Basin, at mga river basin ng Mindanao.

The victims of typhoon Frank in Panay should receive their long-overdue assistance package. I ask Congress to pass the SNITS Law. [Applause]

Namana natin ang pinakamatagal na rebelyon ng Komunista sa buong mundo.

Si Leah de la Cruz isa sa labindalawang libong rebel returnee. Sixteen pa lang siya nang sumali sa NPA. Naging kasapi sa regional White Area Committee, napromote sa Leyte Party Committee Secretary. Nahuli noong 2006. She is now involved in an LGU-supported handicraft livelihood training of former rebels. We love you, Leah! [Applause]

There is now a good prospect for peace talks with both the Communist Party of the Philippines and the MILF, with whom we are now on ceasefire. [Applause]

We inherited an age-old conflict in Mindanao, exacerbated by a politically popular but nearsighted policy of massive retaliation. This only provoked the other side to continue the war.

In these two internal conflicts, ang tanong ay hindi, “Sino ang mananalo?” kundi, “Bakit pa ba kailangang maglaban ang kapwa Pilipino tungkol sa mga isyu na alam naman nating lahat na di malulutas sa dahas, at maresolba lang sa paraang demokratiko?” [Applause]

There is nothing more that I would wish for than peace in Mindanao. It will be a blessing for all its people: Muslim, Christian, and Lumads. It will show other religiously divided communities that there can be common ground on which to live together in peace, harmony, and cooperation that respects each other’s religious beliefs. [Applause]

At sa lahat ng dako ng bansa, kailangan nating protektahan ang ating mga mamamayan kontra sa krimen—in their homes, in their neighborhoods, in their communities. How shall crime be fought? With the five pillars of justice, including crime fighters; we call on Congress to fund more policemen on the streets. [Applause]

Real government is about looking beyond the vested to the national interest, setting up the necessary conditions to enable the next, more enabled, and more empowered generation to achieve a country as prosperous, a people as content, as ours deserve to be. [Applause]

The noisiest critics of constitutional reform tirelessly and shamelessly attempted Cha-Cha when they thought they could take advantage of a shift in the form of government. Now that they feel they cannot benefit from it, they oppose it. [Applause]

As the seeds of fundamental political reform are planted, let us address the highest exercise of democracy—voting!

In 2001, I said we would finance fully automated elections. We got it, thanks to Congress. [Applause]

At the end of this speech I shall step down from this stage, but not from the Presidency. [Applause] My term does not end until next year. [Applause] Until then, I will fight for the ordinary Filipino. The nation comes first. There is much to do as Head of State—to the very last day. [Applause]

A year is a long time. Patuloy ang pamumuhunan sa tinatawag na three E’s ng ekonomiya, environment, at edukasyon. There are many perils that we must still guard against.

A man-made calamity is already upon us, global in scale. As I said earlier, so far we have been spared its worst effects but we cannot be complacent. We only know that we have generated more resources on which to draw, and thereby created options we could take. Thank God we did not let our critics stop us. [Applause]

As the campaign unfolds and the candidates take to the airwaves, I ask them to talk more about how they will build up the nation rather than tear down their opponents. [Applause] Give the electorate real choices and not just sweet talk. [Applause]

Meanwhile, I will keep a steady hand on the tiller, keeping the ship of state away from the shallows some prefer, and steering it straight on the course we set in 2001.

Ang ating taong bayan ay masipag at maka-Diyos. These qualities are epitomized in someone like Manny Pacquiao. [Applause] Manny trained tirelessly, by the book, with iron discipline, with the certain knowledge that he had to fight himself, his weaknesses first, before he could beat his opponent. [Applause] That was the way to clinch his victories and his ultimate title: ang pinakadakilang boksingero sa kasaysayan. [Applause] Mabuhay ka, Manny! [Applause]

However much a President wishes it, a national problem cannot be knocked out with a single punch. A president must work with the problem as much as against it, turn it into a solution if she can.

There isn't a day I do not work at my job, or a waking moment when I do not think through a work-related problem. Even my critics cannot begrudge the long hours I put in. Our people deserve a government that works just as hard as they do. [Applause]

A President must be on the job 24/7, ready for any contingency, any crisis, anywhere, anytime.

Everything right can be undone by even a single wrong. Every step forward must be taken in the teeth of political pressures and economic constraints that could push you two steps back—if you flinch and falter. I have not flinched, I have not faltered. Hindi ako umatras sa hamon. [Applause]

And I have never done any of the things that scared my worst critics so much. They are frightened by their own shadows. [Applause]

In the face of attempted coups, I issued emergency proclamations just in case. But I was able to resolve these military crises with the ordinary powers of my office. My critics call it dictatorship. I call it determination. [Applause]

We know it as strong government, but I never declared martial law, [applause] though they are running scared as if I did. In truth, what they are really afraid of is their weakness in the face of this self-imagined threat. [Applause]

I say to them: Do not tell us what we all know, that democracy can be threatened. Tell us what you will do when it is attacked. [Applause]

I know what to do:

As I have shown, I will defend democracy with arms when it is threatened by violence; with firmness when it is weakened by division; with law and order when it is subverted by anarchy; and always, I will try to sustain it by wise policies of economic progress, so that a democracy means not just an empty liberty but a full life for all. [Applause]

I have never expressed the desire to extend myself beyond my term. [Applause] Many of those who accuse me of it tried to cling like nails to their posts. [Applause]

I am accused of misgovernance. Many of those who accuse me of it left me the problem of their misgovernance to solve. [Applause] And we did it.

I am falsely accused, without proof, of using my position for personal profit. Many who accuse me have lifestyles and spending habits that make them walking proofs of that crime. [Applause]

We can read their frustrations. They had the chance to serve this good country and they blew it by serving themselves. [Applause]

Those who live in glass houses should cast no stones. Those who should be in jail should not threaten it, especially if they have been there. [Applause]

Our administration, with the highest average rate of growth, recording multiple increases in investments, with the largest job creation in history, and which gets a credit upgrade at the height of a world recession, must be doing something right, [applause] even if some of those cocooned in corporate privilege refuse to recognize it. [Applause]

Governance, however, is not about looking back and getting even. It is about looking forward and giving more—to the people who gave us the greatest, hardest gift of all: the care of a country. [Applause]

From Bonifacio at Balintawak to Cory Aquino at EDSA and up to today, we have struggled to bring power to the people, and this country to the eminence it deserves.

Today the Philippines is weathering well the storm that is raging around the world. It is growing stronger with the challenge. When the weather clears, as it will, there is no telling how much farther forward it can go. Believe in it. I believe. [Applause]

We can and we must march forward with hope, optimism, and determination.

We must come together, work together, and walk together toward the future. [Applause]

Bagamat malaking hamon ang nasa ating harapan, nasa kamay natin ang malaking kakayahan. [Applause] Halina't pagtulungan nating tiyakin ang karapat-dapat na kinabukasan ng ating Inang Bayan. [Applause]

And to the people of our good country, for allowing me to serve as your President: Maraming salamat. [Applause]
[Standing ovation]

Mabuhay ang Pilipinas! [Applause] [Standing ovation]

PRESS STATEMENTS

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a Press Conference

[Issued at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang, May 2, 2001]

Good afternoon.

First I'd just like to acknowledge the presence of our sure winner reelectionist Jun Magsaysay — together with his regionmates Governor Ding Roman, Governor Vic Magsaysay, Chairman Tong Payumo and Congressman Tony Roman — who are here to express support for what we've done and for the government in general. Thank you.

Unang-una'y gusto kong pasalamatang ang ating mga mamamayan sa kanilang tiwala sa aking liderato. Ang gobyerno ay hindi maaaring magtagal o manatili kung walang suporta ng taong-bayan. Ang pamahalaang ito ay pamahalaan ng Pilipino, ng bayan. Namayani ang pamahalaan at magpapatuloy ng pamamayani nito.

Pangalawa'y sinasaluduhan ko ang ating Armed Forces at ang ating Philippine National Police sa matagumpay na pagtatanggol sa inyong Pangulo at sa Malacañang, ang sentro ng pamahalaan. Ang inyong sakripisyo ay isang maningning na halimbawa ng katapangan, propesyonalismo at katapatan sa ating Konstitusyon.

Pangatlo, gusto kong batiin ang ating media sa kanilang pangunguna na mapahinahon ang isang mapanganib na sitwasyon. Ang coverage ng media ay balanse, maayos at matuwid. Ito'y nakatulong sa tamang pag-unawa sa mga pangyayari na naganap nitong mga nagdaang araw at sa kapayaan ng isipan ng taong-bayan.

Ang klima ng national security ay matatag at hindi nagbabago. Ang legalidad ng gobyerno ay nananatiling malinis. Ang mga institusyong politikal, pang-ekonomiya at sosyal ay ligtas sa ilalim ng pangangalaga ng mga mamamayan, ng AFP at ng PNP.

Ang isyu ay hindi si Gloria laban kay erap. Hindi rin ito simbahan laban sa kapwa simbahan. Lalo namang hindi ito laban ng mayaman sa mahirap. Ang isyu ay demokrasya laban sa abuso, Konstitusyon laban sa diktadura, hustisya laban sa paghamak sa batas.

Ang isyu ay tungkol sa isang kaso na isinampa sa husgado sa kasong plunder, laban sa isang taong malapit nang litisin sa ilalim ng ating batas. Ang nag-iisa nating tungkulin ay hayaan ang hustisya na mamayani at magbigay ng huling hatol.

Kailanman ay hindi tayo dapat matakot, kahit na tayo'y pahirapan o takutin ng isang rebelyon na atin nang dinurog, dahil ang diwa ng demokrasya at ng Konstitusyon ay hustisya para sa lahat: walang mayaman, walang mahirap.

Bilang Presidente, nalulungkot ako at kinakailangan kong gumamit ng puwersa para maipagtanggol ang Malacañang at ang bayan laban sa mga lumusob kahapon.

Alam natin na ang mga demonstrador ay ginamit lamang ng mga mapag-imbot at ambisyosong politiko para maisulong ang kanilang personal na political agenda. Maliwanag na ang kanilang tema ay pabagsakin ang isang lehitimong pamahalaan at magtatag ng isang mapanganib na "civilian-military junta."

Kaya naman magkahalong tuwa at lungkot ang aking naramdaman kahapon kahit nagtagumpay tayo laban sa mga "power grabber."

Bilang isang Pilipino, nalulungkot ako sa tuwing makikita ko sa telebisyon ang mga mukha ng mga maralita nating kababayan na walang kamuwang-muwang na sila pala ay ginagamit ng mga maiitim na puwersa ng ating lipunan.

Awa ang aking nararamdaman sa kanila. Kahit isang saglit ay wala akong naramdamang galit o sama ng loob sa mga dukha nating kababayan sa kabila ng kanilang paglusob sa Malacañang kahapon.

I know that most of those who stormed Malacañang yesterday were programmed to hate, to maim, even to kill, by the power grabbers. Medical tests showed that one-third of those who were tested were under the influence of drugs.

Saan nanggaling at sino ang namahagi ng drugs sa mga lumusob sa Malacañang? Sino ang nasa likod ng maitim na balak na isailalim muna sa droga ang mga demonstrador bago lumusob sa Malacañang? Hindi magtatagal, malalaman po natin ang lahat ng mga ito.

Patuloy ang imbestigasyon. Patuloy ang paghahanap sa mga nagtatago pang “power grabber.” pero hindi magtatagal, mahuhuli natin sila at pagbabayaran sa kanilang krimen sa taong-bayan, lalung-lalo na sa mga dukha.

Mula noong naisip ko na ako ay maaaring maging Presidente, isa sa aking pinakamatibay na palatuntunan ay kung paano matutulungan ang ating mga maralita. Naghahanda ako ng mga programa noon pa para sa mga magbubukid, mangingisda at sa marami pa nating mahihirap na kababayan.

Bagama’t ang aking programa para sa dukha ay nabalangkas na natin noon pa at unti-unti nang naipatutupad, marami sa ating mga kababayan ay naiinip na at parang hindi makapagtiis. Para sa kanila hindi katuwiran na hindi pa ako nagtatagal bilang Presidente. Hindi rin mahalaga sa kanila na 100 days pa lamang akong naging Presidente ng bayan.

Dahil dito, inaasahan ko ang iba’t-ibang sangay ng ating pamahalaan, tulad ng DSWD, na pabilisin at pag-ibayuhin ang pagtulong sa ating maralita. Ang aking instruksyon sa buong gobyerno ay doblehin ang kalinga sa mga kapus-palad.

Upang mapabilis ang panunumbalik ng kapayapaan at kaligtasan sa lipunan, nagdeklara ang inyong Pangulo ng State of Rebellion sa Metro Manila. Ito ay pinahihintulutan ng Konstitusyon upang ang gobyerno ay magkaroon ng kapangyarihan na supilin ang mga masasamang-loob na magsasamantala sa taong-bayan.

Wala akong lalabaging human rights, walang lalabaging human rights ang isang State of Rebellion. Ang karapatang pantao ng lahat ng Pilipino ay patuloy na igagalang. Ang uusigin ng batas ay iyong mga kilalang lider ng rebelyon.

Sa ngayon, ang hinihingi ko sa inyo ay ang ganap na pagtitiwala. Ang hanap ko sa bawat Pilipino — babae at lalake, matanda o bata, ano man ang estado sa buhay — ay makipagtulungan sa gobyerno sa panunumbalik ng normalidad sa lipunan.

Magtulong-tulong po tayo at magkapit-bisig bilang mga Pilipino, bilang anak nina Rizal at tagapagmana ng ating kinabukasan.

Salamat po.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA’s Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412235951/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8600&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the lifting of the proclamation declaring a State of Rebellion

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On the lifting of the proclamation declaring a State of Rebellion

[Issued at the Office of the President, Malacañang, May 6, 2001]

Effective at midnight, I am lifting the proclamation declaring a State of Rebellion in Metro Manila. Humupa na ang gulo. Bagamat mayroon pa ring banta sa ating republika, kontrolado na natin ang sitwasyon. Ang mga power grabber ay nagpo-Poncio Pilato na ngayon. Ang iba sa kanila ay nagtatago sa takot.

Kilala na namin ang mga utak sa likod ng rebelyon. Sila ay nagpagalit at nag-udyok sa mga demonstrador para salakayin ang malakanyang noong Mayo 1. Ipinaaresto na namin sila. Marami sa mga sumalakay ang naka-bilanggo na rin.

Iginagalang ko ang desisyon ng Korte Suprema na makapag-piyansa ang isa o dalawa sa kanila. Pero hindi ibig sabihin nito na ligtas na sila sa kasong rebelyon, ayon na rin sa desisyon ng Korte.

Ang proklamasyon ng State of Rebellion ay sang-ayon sa batas at binigay ng Konstitusyon sa Pangulo ng Pilipinas para iligtas ang bansa at ang kalayaan ng taong-bayan. Sa pamamagitan ng proklamasyon ay nasugpo agad ang paglusob sa Palasyo at nadakip agad ang mga arkitekto ng kasamaan.

Ang rebelyon ay nasugpo nang walang paglabag sa mga karapatang pantao. Ito'y isang katibayan sa katatagan ng ating Saligang Batas at ng makataong tanawin ng administrasyon. Higit sa lahat, ito ay isang tagumpay ng ating demokrasya.

Alam nating lahat kung bakit nagkaroon ng State of Rebellion. Mapayapa ang demonstrasyon ng ating mga maralita sa edsa para iHINGA ang kanilang damdamin. Noong una, ang akala natin ay wala silang lider at walang pagkakaisa.

Pero nang mga huling araw ay lumabas at lumitaw ang mga utak at lider na nagbalak itumba ang ating lihitimong pamahalaan. Ginalit at inudyukan nila ang maralitang nasa edsa na salakayin ang malakanyang — ibagsak ang Gobyerno at magtayo ng bagong kapangyarihan. Isang “junta” ang kanilang balak itayo.

Tuloy, lumusob ang may limampung libo demonstrador sa malakanyang. Nagkagulo sa kahabaan ng Mendiola. Sa kahabaan naman ng J.P. Laurel, sinagasaan ng libu-libong demonstrador ang mga “police checkpoint.” Nagtipon-tipon sila sa harap mismo ng “main gate” ng malakanyang at sa isang kumpas, ay sinimulan ang paglusob sa Palasyo.

Nanindigan ang ating mga magigiting na pulis at sundalo. Ipinagtanggol nila ang integridad ng ating Konstitusyon laban sa mga power grabber.

Nagkamatayan, nagkaduguan, nagkasakitan, nagka-nakawan.

Marami sa mga demonstrador ay lasing o durog ang utak sa droga. Nahulihan sila ng mga baril, patalim, sumpak, molotov cocktail, tear gas at paltik. Sa kanilang dami at dahas ay muntik na silang nakapasok sa loob ng Palasyo. Kung nagkataon, na-masaker sana kami sa loob ng malakanyang ng mga demonstrador. Ang kasunod ay ang pagbagsak ng ating pamahalaan.

Sa ating mga magigiting na pulis at sundalo, sa ngalan ng sambayanang Pilipino, pinasasalamatan ko kayo sa inyong pagtanggol sa ating Konstitusyon at demokrasya. Napanood ng buong Pilipinas at ng buong mundo ang inyong kagitingan. Ipinakita ninyo kung papaano hinarap ang panganib para maipagtanggol ang ating kalayaan.

Sa pamilya ng dalawang pulis na nagbuwis ng buhay, hindi ko kayo pababayaan. Tutulungan namin kayo. Tanggapin ninyo ang taus-pusong pasasalamat ng Sambayanang Pilipino.

Salamat din sa mga miyembro ng “civil society” na walang takot na dumagsa sa Mendiola at sa EDSA Shrine para ipadama sa bayan ang kanilang pakikipag-isa sa Konstitusyon at sa diwa ng EDSA.

Ginagawa ko ang lahat para magbalik ang kapayapaan at pagkakaisa sa ating bansa. Bukod sa aking pag-angat sa state of rebellion sa Metro Manila, dinalaw ko ang mga demonstrador na nakakulong para pakinggan ang kanilang mga hinaing laban sa gobyerno. Ginawa ko iyon para higit kong maunawaan ang kanilang damdamin.

Binisita ko ang sugatang pulis at tiniyak ko na marunong tumanaw ng utang na loob ang bansang Pilipinas.

Dinalaw ko ang dating pangulong Joseph Estrada sa Fort Sto. Domingo, Sta. Rosa, Laguna, para alamin ang kanyang kalagayan at tiyakin namabuti ang kanyang kalusugan at kaligtasan.

Gagawin ko ang lahat para manumbalik ang kapayapaan sa mga lansangan, mga barangay, mga lungsod at mga parang ng bansa; para maging maayos ang halalan sa Mayo 14; para makatulong sa ating peace talks sa National Democratic Front at sa Moro Islamic Liberation Front; para bumilis ang martsa tungo sa kaunlaran; para tumibay lalo ang bigkis ng ating pagkakaisa; at para maipatupad natin nang mabilis ang ating mga programa para sa mga maralita at mga kapus-palad.

Panahon na para bigyan natin ng bagong buhay at bagong pag-asa ang nakararami sa ating mga mamamayan.

Araw-araw ay lumalakas ang daing ng mga walang trabaho, walang hanapbuhay, walang sapat na salapi para ipakain sa pamilya o para pag-aralin ang mga anak.

Iahon natin sila sa kanilang kahirapan para magkaroon sila ng bubong sa kanilang ulunan, sapat na pagkain sa bawat mesa at salapi para sa edukasyon ng kanilang mga anak. Bigyan natin sila ng bagong respeto sa sarili at kompiyansa sa kanilang hinaharap.

Senador at Bise Presidente pa lamang ay marami na akong binuong programa para sa mga maralita. Unti-unti nang (nagkakatatuo) ang programang ito pero kailangan pa natin ng panahon at dagdag na sipag para magtagumpay ang ating mga balak.

Ang ganap na pagsugpo sa rebelyon ay magaganap lamang kapag natalo na natin ang karalitaan at makapagtatag tayo ng isang mas malaki at masaganang middle class, ng isang lipunan na ang halos lahat ay may hanapbuhay o may sariling negosyo at may sapat na kita hindi lamang para sa mga pangangailangan kungdi para din makapag-impok.

May isandaang araw pa lamang akong nanunungkulan bilang Pangulo ng bansa. Bigyan niyo ako ng panahon.

Ibigay din ninyo sa pamahalaan ang patuloy ninyong suporta. Tangkilikin ang ating Armed Forces at National Police. Ipagpatuloy ang suporta sa proseso at diwa ng batas. Itaguyod ang malinis na halalan sa susunod na Lunes.

Tinatawagan ko ang buong burukrasya, ang executive branch ng pamahalaan na sabayan ako sa aking pagpupunyagi para manumbalik ang kapayapaan, mapalakas ang ekonomiya at maiangat ang buhay ng mga dukha.

Nakikiusap ako sa kongreso na magpasa ng makahulugang batas, maging ehemplo ng disiplina at maging katulong sa pagpapalakas ng bansa.

Nakikiusap ako sa mga hukuman na pairalin ang batas, pabilisin ang proseso ng hustisya, at ipanig ang batas sa mga maralita na may karamihan ay nagiging biktima ng mabagal na sistema ng hustisya.

Nakikiusap ako sa private business at sa mga unyon na magtulungan para lumakas ang industrial peace at magtatag ng isang klima para lumago ang investments.

Nagpapasalamat ako sa media sa mahalaga nilang papel sa pagbuo ng isang malusog na bansa at lipunan.

Ito ang aking hamon sa oposisyon: labanan ninyo ang administrasyon nang may prinsipyo at pananagutan. Huwag tumutol para tumutol lamang, magbigay ng alternatibo sa isang paraang malinis at sang-ayon sa batas.

Sa sambayanan, ipagpatuloy natin ang pagmamatyag. Maging alisto at nakabukas ang mata't taynga. Makipagtulungan sa mga may kapangyarihan. Ipagtanggol ang inyong mga kababayan.

Matatag ang gobyerno at ligtas ang sentro ng pamahalaan. Nasa likod natin ang nagkakaisang lakas ng Armed Forces at ng PNP. Malakas ang ating administrasyon dahil sa tulong at pagkakaisa ng mga mamamayan, ng simbahan, ng civil society, ng mga negosyante at ng mga manggagawa.

Maraming salamat. Mabuhay ang pilipinas. Mabuhay tayong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Statement on the Lifting of the Proclamation declaring a State of Rebellion. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412235920/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8589&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the rescue of some Abu Sayyaf captives [Filipino]

Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Sa pagsagip sa ilan sa mga nabihag ng Abu Sayyaf

[Ipinahayag sa Tanggapan ng Pangulo, Malacañang, ika 2 ng Hunyo, 2001]

Mayroon tayong dalawang magandang balita para sa ating mga kababayan. Anim sa mga na-kidnap ng Abu Sayyaf noong isang linggo sa isang beach resort sa Palawan ay nasa kamay na natin ngayon. Ganun din ang labing-apat na dinakip na mangingisda at may report na ang pinakamataas na lider ng mga terorista — si Khadaffy Janjalani ay napatay ng puwersa ng sundalo sa Tuburan, Isabela samantalang si Abu Sabaya naman ay nasugatan sa lamitan na nasa Isabela din. Kinokompirma po natin ito.

Kasama sa mga na-rescue ay sina Ginoong Regis Romero, isang kilalang negosyante, ang walong taong gulang na si Raul Recio at si Eldren Morales na security ng resort.

Si Janjalani ay kapatid ng founder ng Abu Sayyaf at kinikilalang numero unong lider. Sa kanyang pagkamatay, nawalan ng malaking haligi ang mga bandido.

Apat na mangingisda ay nasagip ng mga matapang na sundalo sa Cagayan de Tawi-tawi, sampung mangingisda naman at tatlong taga-beach resort, kasama si Morales ay nasagip sa Tuburan.

Si Morales ay nasagip habang papatayin na sana ng Abu Sayyaf. Ang tatlong hostage naman ay nasagip pagkaraan nang naglaban ang mga Armed Forces at Philippine National Police sa mga bandido sa lamitan.

Patuloy pa po ang labanan sa ngayon at hindi po tayo titigil hanggang hindi nakakalaya ang lahat ng hostage. Uubusin natin ang mga bandido kung hindi sila susuko sa lalong madaling panahon.

Ngunit nalulungkot akong ibalita sa inyo na may nagbuwis ng buhay sa hanay ng ating mga sundalo at Cafgu kapalit ang paglaya ng dalawampung hostages. Limang sundalo kasama ng Cafgu ang namatay. Tatlumpu't-anim naman ang nasugatan.

Nakikiramay po ako sa pamilya ng mga namatay nating sundalo at Cafgu. Tanggapin po ninyo ang pagkikilala ng ating bayan sa kabayanihan ng inyong mga mahal sa buhay. Hindi po kayo pababayaan ng isang bayang kumikilala ng isang malaking utang na loob.

Nais ko rin pong pasalamatang ang mga magigiting na kawal at pulis na patuloy na nakikipaglaban sa mga bandido para mabawi ang natitira pang mga hostage. Ngayon pa man, nakikita ko ang tagumpay ng ating military operation laban sa mga terorista.

Gayundin po sa mga butihing residente ng basilan at Cagayan de Tawi-tawi sa pagtutulong nila sa gobyerno. Marami pong salamat sa inyong lahat.

Nagpapasalamat din po ako sa media sa kanilang pagkakaisa sa pag-unawa sa ating “news blackout” policy. Kailangan pong ma-sorpreza natin ang mga Abu Sayyaf para maligtas ang mga hostage mula sa kamay ng mga bandido.

Samantala, desperado na po ang Abu Sayyaf. Nakabuntot sa kanila ang ating mga kawal at pulis. Na-korner ang isang malaking grupo ng Abu Sayyaf sa bayan ng Lamitan.

Sa kasalukuyan ay nagpipilit ang mga bandido na makalusot sa “lambat” ng ating mga sundalo at pulis. Bigo sila. Patuloy ang pagsukol sa kanila ng AFP at PNP.

May mga residente na naapektuhan ng kaguluhan. Dahil dito, inuutusan ko ang mga sangay ng ating pamahalaan, lalong-lalo na ang dswd na gumawa ng isang malawakang pagtulong sa mga apektadong residente ng Basilan at Cagayan de Tawi-tawi. Kailangan nating iligtas sa hamak ang mga residente.

Sa lahat ng mga Pilipino, magdasal po tayo para sa kaligtasan ng mga hostage, mga kawal at mga pulis.

Sa mga lider ng Abu Sayyaf, wala na kayong tatakbuhan. Kaya mabuti pa, pawalan na ninyo ang mga kinidnap ninyo at sumurender na kayo. Isang bala na lang kayo.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Statement on the rescue of some Abu Sayyaf captives. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412234529/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8656&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: Sa pres-konperensiya

[Ipinahayag sa Heroes Hall, Malacañang, ika 5 ng Hunyo, 2001]

Mga kababayan, nakakalungkot isipin na sa kabila ng mga personal na sakripisyo ng ating mga militar at pulis ay mayroon pa ring bumabatikos sa kanila.

Labing lima na sa kanila ang namatay, singkwenta'y uno naman ang nasugatan ng malubha.

Alam ko na punong-puno na tayo sa mga kalagimang dulot ng mga bandidong Abu Sayyaf. Alam ko rin na kailangang bigyan ng mabilis na solusyon ang "hostage crisis situation." Ginagawa po nating lahat ang ating magagawa para matapos na ang mga panggugulo ng mga Abu Sayyaf.

May mga pumupuna sa ating mga militar kung bakit daw nakalabas sa military cordon sa lamitan ang mga bandido. Naiintindihan ko ang tanong ng ating mga kababayan. Ubos na ang kanilang pasensya. Ganun din tayo.

Pakiusap ko po sa ating mga kababayan, kung maaari sana ay unawain po natin ang ating mga militar at pulis. Totoo, na-korner na nila ang isang bahagi ng Abu Sayyaf sa ospital at simbahan. Tutoo rin na kung gusto nilang ubusin ng mga oras na iyon ang mga na-korner na Abu Sayyaf maaaring natodas na ang mga bandido.

Pero gusto man nilang salakayin ang atin mga nasukol na bandido sa loob ng simbahan at ospital ay hindi nila magawa dahil sa mga hostages. Kung nagkataon, marami pa sa mga hostage ang namatay at nasugatan.

Mahalaga po ang kaligtasan ng mga hostages at sibilyan. Para sa akin, tatanggapin ko po na makatakas pansamantala ang mga bandido, kung ito ang kapalit ng kaligtasan ng kanilang bihag.

Pinagtali-tali ang mga hostage at ginawang human shields sa pagtakas ng mga bandido. Tinignan ng ating mga militar at pulis ang kaligtasan ng mga hostage. Hindi sila nagpaputok para hindi masaktan ang mga hostage. Dahil dito, nakatakas ang mga bandido, kasama ang mga hostage.

Dapat sana na nadurog na ang mga nakorner na miyembro ng Abu Sayyaf. Pero, hindi naman tama at hindi rin ako makakapayag kung ang kapalit naman ay masaktan o mamatay ang mga hostage.

Ganoon pa man, patuloy ang pag-atake ng ating mga militar at pulis. Sa tulong at pag-unawa ng ating mamamayan, tatapusin natin ito.

Hindi po tayo titigil hanggang maligtas ang lahat ng mga hostage. Lalo po tayong hindi titigil hanggang maubos ang mga Abu Sayyaf.

Kailangan po nating harapin ang panibagong hamon sa atin ng sama-sama tayong lahat. Hindi tayo dapat magkahati-hati sa harap ng lantarang insulto sa dangal ng ating bayan.

Nanawagan ako sa ating mga kababayan na magpakita ng pagkakaisa at bigyan ng suporta ang ating mga magigiting na sundalo at pulis. Magkaisa at magtulungan po tayo para mabigyan ng mabilis na solusyon ang hostage crisis.

Sa DSWD, ipinag-uutos ko na ituloy pa ang pagbibigay ng tulong at kalinga sa mga biktima, pamilya nila at sa mga komunidad na naaapektuhan ng gulo ng Abu Sayyaf. Inaasahan ko ang report mula sa larangan sa progreso ng operasyon araw-araw.

Magkaisa tayo, ang ating lipunan. Ang Abu Sayyaf ay dapat pagkaisahan ng lipunan at nang mawala na ang pesteng ito sa ating buhay. Magtulungan tayong maligtas ang mga hostage at tiyaking hindi na mauulit ang kanilang trahedya. Ililibing natin ang kasaysayan ng bandidong Abu Sayyaf.

Tayong mga ligtas at komportable sa ating bahay, opisina't eskwela, ay magdala sa ating katawan ng diwa ng isang kawal laban sa pesteng Abu Sayyaf. Gamitin natin ang ating mga dasal bilang armas laban sa kaaway at bilang tulong para sa magiting na militar at pulis.

Maraming salamat po.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412235859/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8654&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a Press Conference

[Issued at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, July 6, 2001]

Thank you.

I have four statements.

First, lubha akong nalulungkot na marami ang namatay at nawalan ng tirahan dahil sa kay Oferiað. Nakikiramay po ako at ang aking buong pamilya sa sinapit na trahedya ng mga pamilya ng mga biktima.

At ako'y nasisiyahan na ang DSWD at ang national disaster coordinating council ay ginagawa nila ang kailangang gawin para tumulong sa mga biktima ni Oferiað. Kasama ko nga si Secretary Reyes at saka si Secretary Soliman kanina doon sa Pangasinan, sa Bayambang kung saan mukhang iyon ang pinakamalaking natamaan. And I am confident that the disaster agencies will spare no effort to bring relief to the victims and their families.

Now, noong lumipad kami, nakita namin sa Manila mismo na bumaha na nang baha. Ito ay dahil ilang buwan nang nagkakaroon ng paglilinis ng mga estero. Ganoon pa man, naiinis pa rin ako sa mga report na aking tinatanggap na ang pagbaha sa, at least, ibang bahagi man ng Metro Manila ay dahil sa basura. At kung ano pa ang binabaha sa Manila ay dahil sa basura. Palagi na lang basura ang naririnig ko tuwing may baha. I have four statements.

First, lubha akong nalulungkot na marami ang namatay at nawalan ng tirahan dahil sa kay Oferiað. Nakikiramay po ako at ang aking buong pamilya sa sinapit na trahedya ng mga pamilya ng mga biktima.

At sana, natututo na tayo ngayon dahil kahit konting ulan lang, bumabaha na kapag hindi natin nililinis ang ating mga estero at hindi natin tinatanggal ang basura doon sa mga kanal, sa mga imburnal. Lalo na sa Malabon at Navotas, na iyon talaga ay mababa na, umambon lang, nagbabaha kaagad. Kanina nga noong kami ay lumilipad mula sa Pangasinan, halatang-halata mo yung border ng Navotas, Malabon at saka Maynila — yung kabila, wala ng baha, yung kabila, meroon pang baha. Kitang-kita mo. Kaya, meroon tayong long-term project — yung CAMANAVA — pero meroon ding long-term yung Manila, yung Metro Manila. Kaya kahit na hinihintay yung long-term, meron pa rin tayong pwedeng magawa sa short-term.

Kaya, nananawagan akong muli sa lahat ng kinauukulan: kailangan tayong magkaisa sa wastong pagtapon ng basura. Malaking perwisyo ang idinudulot ng basura.

Sa ating mga kababayan, nakikiusap ako na alagaan ang kalikasan, alagaan ang kalinisan sa ating kapaligiran. Itapon ang basura sa tamang lalagyan — huwag ikalat ang basura sa kalsada at lalo namang huwag gamiting tambakan ng basura ang ating mga ilog, dagat, estero at kanal.

Ngayon, ang DPWH ay matagal na naghahanda dito — naglilinis ng estero — ganoon din ang MMDA kaya inaasahan kong tutuloy po sila sa paggagawa nito sa paglilinis sa mga estero para maiwasan ang pagbaha. At pati na rin ang Armed Forces ay tutulong. Actually tumutulong na dati yung naval construction, yung CVS, pero pati ngayon yung ibang bahagi na ng Armed Forces ay tutulong din dito kasi gusto natin sustained effort ito para sa ganoon each time habang hinihintay natin dumating yung long-term flood control na matagal, yung doon sa pangasinan, itong phase II pinuntahan ko, under construction, 2006 magkakaroon sila ng ginhawa, kasi talagang long-term. So in the short term, yun talaga ang paglilinis ng estero ang importante.

Inaasahan ko na sa loob ng darating na araw ay mawawala na sana ang mga nakatambak na basura sa kalsada at mga naglulutang na basura sa mga estero at ilog. Kasi nga, ito pa lang ang unang malaking bagyo, pero siguro mayroon pang labing-isang darating na bagyo kasi on the average may 12 typhoons a year. So, dapat ngayon pa lang — nag-umpisa na yung DPWH at ang MMDA noon — ngayon sana lahat ng mamamayan, lahat ng community ay magiging conscious dito.

Inaasahan ko rin na mawawala na ang mga potholes o lubak sa ating mga kalsada. Kailangan din gawin yun ng DPWH dahil pag umuulan at hindi maganda pagkagawa ng aspalto ay nagkakaroon ng potholes. So, this is very important for all of us to address.

Now, on the peso. The strength of the peso depends on the performance of the total economy and on external factors.

I know, I know what ails the economy, and there are no quick fixes for structural faults. It is also our misfortune that the Abu Sayyaf bandits attacked Dos Palmas resort in Palawan and took hostages. Add to that, the other pernicious events that took place recently that weighed down the peso.

Alam ko na na marami sa atin ay naiinip na pero inaasahan ko na hindi magtatagal, sisiglang muli ang ating kabuhayan.

Some bold measures will be undertaken in the coming days to overcome the internal problems that beset our economy.

So thank you for that particular statement.

Ngayon pangatlo, bukod sa hindi napapanahon at magastos — kasi marami ang nagtatanong sa akin tungkol sa charter change — ang usapang charter change ay makakaabala sa ating prayoridad. Kaya, actually, hindi ko naman mapipigil ang sinumang Congressman o Senador na gustong mag-file, hindi ko rin mapipigil kung i-schedule sa hearing, sa committee, hindi ko rin mapipigil kung i-schedule sa floor debate, at hindi ko rin mapipigil yung mga gustong bumoto o hindi gustong bumuto, ngunit meron akong karapatan na magbigay ng aking kuro-kuro dahil tinatanong sa akin. At para sa akin ay anumang balak na baguhin ang konstitusyon ay maghahati-hati sa bansa.

Mas maraming malalaking problema at major objectives na dapat nating tutukan. Kaya, yung mga politicians, at political parties, or politicians man, gaya ng sabi ko, meron silang karapatan. They have their right. The political parties, however, lalo na yung nasa aking coalition, siguro naman puwede akong magbigay ng aking kuro-kuro sa kanila.

And while I cannot stop the efforts of individual politicians to amend and rewrite the constitution, it is not the administration position. And speaking for the, as for a people power coalition, as I'm their head, and they have elected me to be their head, they have asked me to be their head, it is not also the coalition position.

Any effort to change the charter will be untimely, expensive, and divisive. It will distract us from our priorities and major goals.

Ang pag-amyenda ng Saligang Batas ay maghahati sa bansa dahil ang mga isyu tungkol sa gobyerno, pulitika at ekonomiya ay complex at may kani-kanyang tagatulak na may sariling interest.

Ang debate ay pag-amyenda ng konstitusyon ay makakaapekto sa ating kampanya na palakasin ang ekonomiya, patatagin ang lipunan at palusugin ang kapayapaan ng bansa.

Ito'y nagnanakaw ng ating pansin mula sa malalaking problema at mga mahahalagang proyekto na dapat nating harapin.

And so, as I said, I cannot stop individual leaders who are seeking to rewrite the constitution. They have their freedom to continue or to shelve their plans for the future but I believe that we should wait until the economy has strengthened and national stability and unity are stronger.

I believe we should focus on our more urgent priorities, addressing more pressing problems and continue to accomplish our major goals.

Mas lalo tayong makakatulong kung kalilimutan natin ang “Cha-Cha” at harapin ang mga problema ng bansa.

So, that is my third statement. Thank you.

And finally, I’ve been asked about divorce. I was asked last week and I’ve been asked again and again. So, I will give a statement.

Nanganganib ang pamilyang Pilipino dahil sa balak ng ilan na magkaroon ng divorce sa Pilipinas. Ito’y dapat tutulan.

Hindi ako kumporme sa divorce. Wawasakin ang pamilyang Pilipino kung magkakaroon ng divorce sa ating bayan. Hihina ang institusyon ng pamilya, hihina din ang ating lipunan.

And so I believe, we should resist divorce because it will weaken the Filipino family. It will enervate the home. It will erode society.

Ang pamilya ay isang mahalagang haligi ng lipunan. Ito ang kablesa ng pambansang pagkakaisa.

The family is the central unit of society. It is the basic source of our national bond and fraternity.

In the words of the constitution, the state “recognizes the sanctity of family life and shall protect and strengthen the family as a basic autonomous social institution”.

So I believe, we should protect the mandate of the constitution on the sanctity of the family. Dapat ipagtanggol natin ang atas ng saligang batas tungkol sa karangalan ng pamilya.

Sa mata ng ating Poon, banal din ang pamilya at ang mga kasapi nito. May espesyal silang grasya para sa mga nagbuklod ng mahabang panahon sa ilalim ng isang bubong.

Ang diborsyo ay isang banta sa kasal na maaari pang magtagal. Isang banta sa pamilya na maaari pang sagipin.

Ito’y isang salot sa buhay ng mga batang magiging biktima ng paghihiwalay ng mga magulang. Pangit at parang bangungot ang epekto ng diborsyo sa buhay ng mga bata.

Sa halip ng divorce, sana pairalin natin ang marriage counseling para sa mga kabataan bago sila magdesisyon magpakasal. Pairalin natin ang marriage counseling para sa mga mag-asawang nag-iisip na maghiwalay.

Sa halip na isang batas sa diborsyo, sana ang ating mga senador at kongresista ay mag-isip ng panukala na magpapalakas sa institusyon ng kasal at ng pamilya.

Ito’y para sa kabutihan ng ating kabataan. Ito’y para sa katatagan ng ating lipunan at ito’y para sa kinabukasan ng ating bansa.

So those are my four statements.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409213413/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8665&Itemid=38

Arrival Statement: President Arroyo at Davao City

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: At Davao City

[Issued in Davao City, August 9, 2001]

I am pleased to join the business leaders and local government and community leaders here in Mindanao. And to use this occasion to report to the Filipino people what my mission in Malaysia accomplished.

I would like to say that we accomplished everything that I originally set out to achieve — and much more. As you know, my state visit to Malaysia was my first abroad as president. I set out on this trip for the most fundamental requisites of a nation and people — peace and development. These requisites, I am sure, are also foremost in the minds of those participating in this forum.

I am glad to report our substantial achievements in the cause of peace and development as a result of the unstinting support of Prime Minister Dr. Seri Mahathir Muhammad, his government, and the Malaysian nation and people.

Let me say, therefore, when I went to Malaysia and I talked about peace, I talked about Mindanao. When I talked about trade, I talked about Mindanao. When I talked about investments, I talked about Mindanao. When I talked about EAGA, I talked about Mindanao. When I talked about coming back home, I talked about Mindanao. My visit to Malaysia was all about Mindanao.

In the course of our private talk with the prime minister, he exuded a deep affection for our people especially here in Mindanao. He upholds the vision that our respective nations and peoples should always be partners in peace, development, solidarity and progress. He explicitly and repeatedly stated for all to behold, that Malaysia shall only support a solution to the conflict in Mindanao that derives from the invariable standards of the Philippine constitution, our national sovereignty and our territorial integrity.

In the course of my state visit, the Moro National Liberation Front and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front signed an agreement for unification, placing them firmly behind our common aspirations – peace, justice, equality, progress in sum, the advancement of human security among Filipino Muslims under these lofty and shared standards.

Also, while in Kuala Lumpur, our government and the MILF signed an agreement containing the detailed guidelines for a durable ceasefire. The agreement advances to a higher level the determination of both sides to stop the fighting on the ground, and enables the substantive issues of rehabilitation and development to take precedence on the negotiating table and, as far as I am concerned, on the ground. I have always felt — and I say once again here — that a peace agreement is a piece of paper unless we have development very clearly shown our Muslim brothers. And so I would like, now, that we have a ceasefire, to pursue development so they will be attracted to enter the mainstream not because we keep negotiating with them, but because they want to have a share in the development that peace is making available.

I have faith that our partnership with Malaysia for peace and development will move forward decisively after my state visit. We shall build more bridges of understanding and constructive endeavors as we tackle the issues of broader regional cooperation in security and investment. Reinforcing this mutual commitment is our common abhorrence of all forms of terrorism and extremism and the common vision of constitutional stability and collective security among all nations in this part of the world.

As the guns become silent, the pace of social and economic development must be quickened so that we can infuse the spaces of normalcy with the bounty of jobs and livelihood opportunities. Peace and development are but both sides of the same coin — the coin of national stability and progress.

On the economic front, Prime Minister Mahathir and I agreed to fully support the revitalization of BIMP-EAGA, consistent with the ASEAN initiative to link more closely its less developed regions with more economically progressive areas of ASEAN.

To achieve this, we agreed to strengthen the transportation and financial linkages among our areas. Specifically, we discussed the resumption of direct flights from Malaysia to Davao, as well as the improvement of port facilities to support the existing ferry services between Zamboanga and Sandakan.

I am glad that the former congressman from Davao del Norte, now secretary of transportation and communications is here, Bebot Alvarez. I don't have to give you a separate memo, this is already my notice to you. In addition, financial linkages between Malaysia and southern Philippines will be strengthened with the establishment of a branch office of Maybank, Malaysia's biggest commercial bank. And this branch will be established in Zamboanga City.

The purchase of equity in an Amanah bank by Malaysian investors is also in the final stages of confirmation by our monetary authorities and will significantly expand Islamic banking in the Philippines.

The two countries also agreed to explore collaborations in palm oil, combining the know-how and investment capital of Malaysia with a large pool of available labor in the Philippines. I told the Malaysian businessmen and officials that palm oil is one of our hopes for creating a million jobs in agriculture.

Taking off from the inputs of the private business sector of Mindanao and upon their recommendation, I told them that we hope to open 160,000 hectares of land for palm oil especially in Mindanao. This is intended not to displace our coconut industry but rather to supplement it.

The national agriculture and fisheries council of the department of agriculture represented by secretary of agriculture Leonardo Montemayor, entered into a memorandum of agreement with the Agusan plantations incorporated under its Malaysian chairman, Chan Chok Lim, who will invest in 13,000 new hectares for palm oil to be cultivated over the next three years in Agusan del Sur, Bohol and Cotabato Provinces.

Under this agreement, the NAPC will assist in locating suitable land and identifying participating farmers. The project is expected to generate about 4,000 jobs.

The Khadaffy International Charitable Foundation of Libya is ready, it's got its money and you know it has money, to invest in 35,000 hectares for palm oil in combination with Malaysian expertise. What they need for the Mindanao business community is the specific location of the available land, starting with the available 35,000 hectares.

In this particular case, they have specified that they would like you to be in the Muslim areas for this 35,000. So I urge the private sector, the Mindanao business community to do your part in helping all these investors find that specific hectareage where they can put their money and their expertise. After all, the figure of 160,000 hectares did not come from my magic hat; it came from the private sector of Mindanao. I now challenge you to follow up your words with actual delivery.

Tourism secretary Richard Gordon and his Malaysian counterpart signed a meaningful tourism agreement. Both countries will promote and sell each other's destination in tandem in third countries. This will bring about better awareness of, and more tourist arrivals to the Philippines. As prime minister Mahathir said, the agreement will encourage the 500,000 Chinese and 300,000 Indians who go to Malaysia, to fly from china or Delhi to KL, and then to manila or Cebu or Davao. The agreement also will encourage tourists and citizens within our countries to extend their visit to each others destination.

In other words, if there are tours that go to Kuala Lumpur, the tourism industry of Kuala Lumpur will encourage them to extend the trip to manila or Cebu or Davao, and vice-versa.

The minister of tourism and culture has already committed to bring the Malaysian association of travel agencies to the Philippines in October to implement the agreement with the department of tourism and our Philippine travel agencies. In addition, charter flights are already being organized by a Malaysian group to bring tourists from Shanghai to Clark, Sabah to Clark, and Shen-shen to Cebu, two times a week, or six flights a week, starting November. That is, if, the civil aeronautics board, again, under Bebot Alvarez, will facilitate the clearances for these charter flights. Dumadami ang specific objectives ni Bebot.

The B.O.T and DOLE have already started organizing, also last night, the overseas Filipinos in Malaysia to be tourism volunteers, and to aim for one Malaysian a month to travel to the Philippines. Dick Gordon will provide them the ammunition. Brochures, CD-ROMs and, of course, e-mail and websites, and we'll give a reward to the OFWs who bring the most number of tourists to the Philippines.

Dick may go back to Malaysia in September, to make sure that everything is already on stream. And I think if you get yourselves well-organized, even before the Malaysian tourism minister brings the Malaysian travel agents to the Philippines in September, if you can already organize a mission, Dick will bring the local travel agents to Malaysia for this arrangement. So I urge the private sector to seize this opportunity and join Dick in this exciting project. I Of course, with the Filipino community in the Gargatuan gathering of 1,800 that spilled over the foyer of the huge ballroom of Kuala Lumpur Shangrila hotel. Malaysia, perhaps, if you don't know, is host to the biggest number of overseas Filipino workers in Asia, currently estimated at 600,000 — more than Hongkong, more than Saudi Arabia, more than any country in Asia.

And during that dinner last night, these OFWs contributed P1 million to our poverty alleviation fund, because they said, eh, kung iyong mga foreigners maghihintay-hintay pa, kami na lang ang mag-i-invest sa Pilipinas. We have more than half a million Filipinos living in Sabah. Many of them are undocumented and are subject to periodic crackdowns by immigration authorities. Sometimes they end up becoming boat people for a few days. Because when they are sent out of Malaysia, because they don't have Malaysian papers and then they're sent back to Zamboanga. And Zamboanga says, we have no record that you're a Filipino citizen. So they're deported again from Zamboanga —and they're not going back to Saba. It's a very big irritant; not only an irritant in our relationship, but a great cause of inconvenience and suffering for ... those individuals themselves. It is time to stop the suffering of our brothers in Sabah. It is time to put up an office in Sabah to protect them. And I am asking Vice-President Guingona, who is also our secretary of foreign affairs, to set up an economic and cultural office in Sabah, similar to the one that we had in Taipei in order to protect our Filipino workers in Sabah.

In our one-on-one talks, I discussed with prime Mahathir our need to reopen the National Steel Corporation, Iligan plant, as soon as possible. Apart from this one-on-one discussion, Secretary Mar Roxas also met with the Chairman and Managing Director of Danaharta, which is a Malaysian government entity holding the ownership shares in NSC. Danaharta shares our objective of finding both And long term solutions to NSC. Accordingly, they have agreed to enter and participate in the joint government Philippine creditor banks and Malaysian owners process to receive proposals for the interim operation of national steel pending a more permanent solution. The process — led by DTI — is to invite prospective investors or operators of national steel to submit their proposals. And then the process will evaluate, negotiate, and award to the best-hatched proposal the mandate to operate national steel in the interim that a final solution is being sought for. So that while we are waiting for a final solution to be solved by all the creditors, liquidators, government courts, in the meantime, hopefully, national steel can be temporarily or interimly running, and the people in Iligan city can go back to their jobs. The agreed deadline for the submission of proposals is September 15 next month.

Mar Roxas also signed an agreement with the Malaysian multimedia cyber corridor corporation to enable Philippine software companies to undertake software designed work for Malaysia's smart card project. This agreement will also transfer know-how and technology to enable us to consider its applicability and desirability for better delivery of government service. Malaysia has its cyber corridor and this is the way by which we can participate in that cyber corridor. That is part of our promoting ICT in the Philippines.

The Asian Institute of Management was able to get additional business. It entered into an agreement that will enable it to expand its operations to Malaysia and Singapore by conducting master's degrees programs in entrepreneurship at the Academia. And RFM corporation was one of the many business organizations that were able to get into joint ventures. RFM Corporation signed two joint venture agreements, bringing additional Malaysian markets and investments for the Philippines. One agreement was for the distribution of Selecta ice cream to the Southeast Asian ice cream market. The other is for the setting up of a cold storage facility and logistic services in the Philippines with Malaysian investment funds.

Energy secretary Vince Perez held extensive discussions with Malaysian energy officials. Petronas, for instance, expressed its strong interest in pursuing a Sabah Luzon subsigas pipeline. As you know, we have the Malampaya coming on stream very soon. And the idea is to have a pipeline that will go either from Sabah to Malampaya or from Sabah to Bataan, or from Sabah to Batangas. So that we will have this integration, and this is truly BIMP-EAGA. Petronas is also considering joining a NAFTA cracker project of the PNOC Petro Chemical Development Corporation. And there is a Malaysian consortium of power companies to be led by Tanaga, which may bid in the upcoming privatization of national power corporations.

According to the foreign minister of Malaysia, when we had our forum with the Malaysian business community, it was the best business forum he had ever attended in honor of a visiting head of government. And he said, it was well attended not only in number, but also in quality, because those who were in attendance were the leading captains of Malaysian industry and not just their managing directors.

The diplomatic and parliamentary welcome contingent that greeted me upon my arrival was also four times as large as the usual turnout for a visiting head of state. All these mean that Malaysia is, at the very least, curious about us. But I think, I hope, it means more than that, that it is bullish about the Philippines and considers Philippines an important neighbor to itself. Therefore, I ask you the business community, the local government units, let us seize this opportunity to vigorously work for peace and development. Let us seize the new curiosity and the new bullishness that our neighbors have for us to promote jobs, jobs, jobs, because that is what we need. We need to get them. And to get these jobs, we need investments. So let us all be investor friendly. And according to our Malaysian businessmen, when they talk about an investor-friendly national government, they talk about investor-friendly provincial and local governments. And they talked about transparency in transactions, approvals, and the issuances of permits. The investors want to see seamless efforts from the national to the local governments in transparency in investment promotion. They don't want to talk to too many people for too many licenses and permits. And for this reason, because they want a seamless effort from the national to the local governments, I also ask mar Roxas to expand its one-stop-shop for investment to include local government approvals. I ask the local government to cooperate in this important restructuring of the investment promotion machinery including the reduction of red tape by one-half, which is what I am requiring from the national government agencies and to the local governments, let me say this, it will be for your good. Because those local government units who cooperate most energetically with the cutting down of red tape. And the cutting down of the curtain that separates them from the processes of the national government, will be the favored destinations for incoming investment missions.

I, therefore, especially ask the people of Mindanao to take advantage of all of these doors that we opened up during my visit to Malaysia, after all, Mindanao should be the gateway to the ASEAN. Mindanao should be the gateway to that 21st century. I think I have not been remiss in doing my duty towards Mindanao as a daughter of Mindanao. From January to May, I spent one or two days every week here in Mindanao. I was here every week in Mindanao from January to May. After that, of course, I had to attend to the passage of the power sector reform bill, because it was very important for our investment climate. And I had to attend to the final putting together of the government program that I presented in the state of the nation address. But now we have done all that, we have consolidated and I can begin again my weekly visits to Mindanao. And this is my first of the resumption here in Davie.

So I believe that there is no cause for anyone to complain that I neglect Mindanao. And in return I ask, let us use this opportunity to make Mindanao the gateway to ASEAN, the gateway to the 21st century, the gateway to lasting peace and development for the people of the Philippines.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Arrival Statement at Davao City. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409213336/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8708&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the arrival of the Indonesia President Megawati Soekarnoputri

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the arrival of the Indonesia President Megawati Soekarnoputri

[Issued on August 21, 2001]

History traverses an important crossroad today. It is the death anniversary of the martyr Ninoy Aquino, a great freedom fighter. It is also a day when a champion of democracy, president Megawati, honors us for a state visit. As we honor her and the Indonesian people, we reminisce the common struggle that we share against poverty, oppression, and injustice.

I am glad to receive president Megawati at a time when we have just implemented the final stage of the 1996 peace accord between our government and the Moro National Liberation Front. Indonesia was highly instrumental in facilitating and hosting the negotiations that led to that agreement. And I would like to thank the Indonesian government and the people through president Megawati in helping us regain the peace in Mindanao.

Indonesia continues to be the chair of the committee of the eight of the organization of the Islamic conference, the committee which oversees the involvement of the world Islamic body in peace and development in Mindanao. I am glad that through all these years, Indonesia has exercised its leadership in this committee in keeping with the highest respect for Philippine sovereignty and constitutional processes. And I am very happy to hear from president Megawati that under her administration, Indonesia will continue to do its part in helping us in our peace and development in Mindanao.

It is also in this spirit that I wish to reciprocate by expressing our highest regard and our unrelenting support for Indonesia's quest for unity, peace and progress, under its inherent constitutional standard and lofty national ideas. Our global neighborhood increases in kinship from day to day. President Megawati and I agreed that since our fathers, President Sukarno and President Macapagal, were like brothers, we should also be like sisters supporting each other, as we seek solutions to problems that we inherited in our respective nations. The journey of leaders across the region marks a new dawn of partnerships for peace, development, harmony, and progress, such as that embodied in the East ASEAN Growth Area, or EAGA. With these partnerships, there will certainly emerge a sense of stronger collective security, greater bonds of friendship, and common enterprise, all of which will redound to the good of all our peoples and nations.

Thank you, president Megawati, for your endearing presence in our country.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Statement during the Arrival of the Indonesia President Megawati Soekarnoputri. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409213021/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8703&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During a Press Conference

[Issued at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, February 8, 2002]

Maraming salamat. Thank you Bobi.

Our honorable Secretaries; ating mga awardees; ladies and gentlemen:

Una sa lahat, gusto kong magbigay ng aking pagbati sa lahat ng mga nanalo na mga outstanding local government units. At dahil kayo ay narito ginamit ko itong pagkakataon para magpahayag ng dalawang pahayag sa ating buong bansa sa pamamagitan ninyo.

Ang una ay tungkol sa edukasyon para sa kapayapaan at kaunlaran sa Mindanao. Sa mga sandaling ito’y nagagalak akong ibalita ang isang bagong programa ng pamahalaan para sa kinabukasan ng Mindanao — ang edukasyon para sa kapayapaan at kaunlaran sa Mindanao. ‘yan ang ating programa.

Hahanapin natin ang kaunlaran ng mindanao hindi lamang sa pagpapalusog ng ekonomiya at pagpapalakas sa kaayusan at katahimikan. Ang isang mahalagang susi sa hinaharap ng Mindanao, lalo na ng kabataan ay ang edukasyon o pag-aaral.

Sa pamamagitan ng edukasyon para sa kapayapaan at kaunlaran sa Mindanao ay gagawin nating isang mahalagang bahagi ng pambansang edukasyon ang Madrasah education system.

Hihingin natin ang tulong ng mga eksperto mula sa Muslim communities para i-ambag ang kanilang karanasan at talino sa pagpapalakas ng edukasyon sa buong pulo ng Mindanao, sa Sulu at Basilan.

Isasama natin ang civil society, non-government organizations, ang business sector at iba pang bahagi ng private community sa pagbuo ng isang bagong agenda sa Mindanao.

Maglalagay tayo ng pondo para sa pagpapalakas ng mga paaralan, kalidad ng pagtuturo at pagtaas ng antas ng edukasyon sa katimugang Pilipinas.

Ang programang ito ay may 5-point agenda: information and communication technology; Madrasah education; peace education; Mindanao culture and history; at teacher training program.

Ang mag-iimplement ng programa ay ang tanggapan ng pangulo — at ang aking Presidential Assistant for education ay si Mona Valisno — ang Commission on Higher Education, Department of Education at Technical Education and Skills Development Authority.

Upang ilunsad ang programa, magkakaroon ng isang consultative conference sa susunod na buwan sa isang lungsod sa Mindanao. Hinihingi ko ang tulong ng lahat upang magtagumpay ang edukasyon para sa kapayapaan at kaunlaran sa Mindanao.

Ang pangalawang aking pahayag naman ay tungkol din sa Mindanao.

Tayo ngayon ay naglalayag sa isang dakilang pakikipag- sapalaran sa kasaysayan ng ating bansa. We are now embarked on a great and grand adventure in the history of our nation.

Sa pulo ng Basilan at sa iba't-ibang dako ng Pilipinas ay nagsasanay ang mga magigiting na kawal ng dalawang dakilang bansa na may mahabang kasaysayan ng pagtutulungan at pagkakaibigan.

Sa loob ng anim na buwan ay magtutulungan ang dalawang hukbo sa pagpapalakas ng kapasidad at galing ng sarili nating Armed Forces of the Philippines, ang tagapagtanggol ng bansang Pilipinas sang-ayon sa ating Konstitusyon.

Sa loob at pagkatapos ng anim na buwan, lalong lalakas ang ating hukbo. lalong bubuti ang kanilang galing sa siyensya ng depensa at salakay. Lalong lalakas ang kanilang armas sa tema ng makabagong eroplano, barko, tangke, riple at iba pang kagamitan ng military.

Sa madaling salita, magkakaroon tayo ng makabagong Hukbong Sandatahan ng Pilipinas. At the end of this exercise, we shall have a new, improved and stronger Armed Forces of the Philippines.

At dahil dito ay lalong lalakas ang seguridad ng Pilipinas. Lalong lalakas ang katatagan ng bansa laban sa mga kaaway sa loob at mga kaaway sa labas. At kung malakas at matatag ang ating kaligtasan, kung malakas ang peace and order lalong bibilis ang ating kaunlaran.

Lalo nating mapapabilis ang ating kampanya na umunlad ang ekonomiya, magtatag ng maraming negosyo, lumikha ng maraming trabaho, pataasin ang sahod ng manggagawa, bawasan ang kahirapan at itaas ang kalidad ng buhay ng mga mamamayan.

Lalong bibilis ang pagbagsak ng mga bandidong Abu Sayyaf at bibilis ang pagbabalik ng katahimikan sa Basilan, Sulu at Mindanao. At dahil dito ay lalo nating matututukan ang pagpapalusog sa agrikultura at industriya sa Mindanao. Ang pagpapatayo ng maraming planta at pabrika. Ang paglikha ng maraming hanapbuhay sa mga lungsod, bukid at karagatan.

At lalong lalakas ang pagbalik ng tiwala ng mga negosyante sa ating bansa. investors' confidence in our economy and in our stability will grow and prosper.

Sino ang tutol sa pagpapalakas ng ating hukbong sandatahan? Sino ang laban sa alok na tulong at kaligtasan ng taong-bayan?

Hindi ka Pilipino kung salungat ka sa kapakanan ng sarili mong kawal. Hindi ka Pilipino kung tutol ka sa tulong na inaalok ng isang kaibigan. At hindi ka Pilipino kung tutol ka sa katahimikan at kaunlarang pangako ng Balikatan 2002.

Kung hindi ka Pilipino ay sino ka? Isang protektor ng mga terorista. Isang kasosyo ng mga mamamatay-tao. Isa kang Abu Sayyaf lover. Mas mahal mo ang mga terorista kaysa sa sarili mong kawal na nagtatanggol sa iyo. Mas mahal mo ang bandido at kampo ni Osama Bin Laden kaysa sa isang bansa ang hanap ay tulongan ka.

Panahon na para malaman kung sino ang nasa panig ng kaligtasan, kapayapaan at kaunlaran ng Pilipinas, at kung sino ang gustong mamalagi ang Abu Sayyaf at magpatuloy ang gulo sa Basilan at Mindanao.

Panahon na para makilala kung sino ang kampi ng demokrasya at pagtutulungan ng mga malayang bansa, at kung sino ang kampi ng terorismo at sa paghahari ng puwersa ni Osama Bin Laden.

Dapat makilala kung sino ang nasa panig ng kalayaan at kung sino ang nasa panig ng pananakot. Walang puwedeng miron lamang. You are either for or against democracy, freedom and prosperity. There can be no bystanders.

Nagpapasalamat ako na napakarami ang sumusuporta sa Balikatan at sa pagtutulungan ng Pilipinas at Amerika laban sa terorismo. Kayo'y nasa panig ng katwiran. Kayo'y nasa tamang landas ng kasaysayan.

Hindi tayo mabibigo. Hindi mabibigo ang taong-bayan. Pagkaraan ng anim na buwan magkakaroon tayo ng isang bago at malakas na armed forces na mas may malakas na kapasidad na durugin ang mga kaaway at ipagtanggol ang bansang Pilipinas.

As your President, I will not stop until the last of the Abu Sayyaf members is captured dead or alive.

Malaki ang aking tiwala kung tayo lamang ay magkakaisa at magtutulungan, maililibing natin ang perwisiyong Abu Sayyaf.

At sa oras na magpaalam na tayo sa galamay ng terorismo, magbabalik ang mga kapitalista at investors na ngayon pa lamang ay unti-unti ng bumabalik sa Pilipinas. Lalong dadagsa ang mga turista. Uunlad ang ekonomiya. Sisigla ang negosyo. Dadami ang hanapbuhay. Ang ating ekonomiya na lumakas ng 3.7 percent noong nakaraang taon sa kabila ng global economic downturn ay lalong magiging masagana at malusog.

At iyan ay dahil sa bagong rehimen ng pagtutulungan ng Pilipinas at Amerika, at iba pang ating mga kaibigan, sa tulong ng ating Kongreso, sa tulong ng civil society, sa tulong ng simbahan, at sa tulong ng mas maraming nakakarami sa ating taong-bayan.

Sa inyong lahat lalung-lalo na yung mga local government units, yung mga outstanding local government units natin, yung mga umaakyat dito, halos lahat kilala ko sila. Outstanding sila sa ginagawa nila. Pero alam ko rin na sila ay sumusuporta sa ating patakaran tungkol sa Balikatan.

Kaya sa inyong lahat na nakakuha ng awards itong araw na ito, Congratulations! At maraming salamat sa inyong tuloy na suporta.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412230746/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7618&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the announcement of the discovery of natural gas in Victoria, Tarlac by the Philippine National Oil Company (PNOC)

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

On the announcement of the discovery of natural gas in Victoria, Tarlac by the Philippine National Oil Company (PNOC)

[Issued at the Reception Hall, Malacañang, February 12, 2002]

I'm happy to announce that the Philippine National Oil Company Consortium Drilling for Petroleum in Victoria, Tarlac successfully plowed out natural gas after two months of drilling.

The indigenous fuel find called the Victoria 3 was spotted last December 1st 2001 and drilled to a total depth of 9,000 feet. Natural gas flowed and flared at the depth of between 5,175 and 5,505 feet. The well has continuously been flowing since Friday, February 8, 2002.

While the total volume of the potential gas reserves has yet to be fully determined pending the conduct of further evaluation tests and drilling operations by our PNOC consortium, I am optimistic that this latest discovery will act as a catalyst that will spur exploration and drilling operations in the area and eventually generate economic activities in what is considered to be a basic agricultural region.

This new natural gas find may provide additional energy source for the country. It is also a good indication of the prospects of Central Luzon not only as a rice producing region but also as a petroleum basin.

The gas find is nestled in the foothills of the magnificent Mount Arayat in Central Luzon.

I believe that this find will generate much interest from exploration and power companies. I therefore call on Filipino and foreign companies with expertise in this sector to tie up with PNOC-EDC and PNOC-EC to fully develop this gas potential further.

Much has been said about increasing economic activities in Southern Luzon, I believe it's about time that we further develop Central Luzon as we introduce a new industry — the natural gas industry.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Statement to announce the discovery of Natural Gas in Victoria, Tarlac by the Philippine National Oil Company (PNOC). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412230708/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7614&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a Press Conference

[Delivered at the Multi-purpose Bldg., Clark Field, Angeles City, Pampanga, April 4, 2002]

Good morning to everyone. Please sit down.

I'm happy to welcome the renowned U.S. business company United Parcel Service known as U.P.S. to the Philippines.

The U.P.S. is the biggest carrier service in the world today. And we are happy that they chose the Philippines to be their hub. The company is identified with efficient, dependable and quality service, and is known to bring progress to countries and cities that benefit from its operations.

I am pleased to note the U.P.S. comes to the Philippines not only to provide service here but to make our country its hub for its Asia-Pacific operations.

It is a business decision that honors the great Filipino worker. It is a business decision that reaffirms the Philippines' role as a center for corporate business in the region.

I had the pleasure last year, on my birthday, April 5th 2001, to witness the signing of a memorandum of understanding between the government of the Philippines and the U.P.S. and now, we witness the fruition of that agreement and the inauguration of U.P.S.' services in the country and Southeast Asia.

Today, we are all witness also to the ceremonial landing of the U.P.S. corporate plane named Lipad Pag-asa or soaring hope that inaugurates this vital service to the business world and to private homes and citizens.

The U.P.S. operations are expected... And they have — yes, Mr. Wallace told us this morning — that this investment is worth 300 million dollars. And it is expected to grant better regionwide access to exporters and importers fortifying the Philippines' vital edge in East Asian transportation and logistics.

Most analysts agree that this venture will generate significant interest from locators across the world. This would also create additional investments and tremendous employment opportunities for Filipinos.

This development is a reaffirmation of the growing confidence of foreign investors in the Philippine government — the Philippine government, the health of its economy and the level of stability obtaining in the country today.

Speaking of confidence in the Philippine economy, in the health of the Philippine economy, in the sustainability of what we have done in this administration to gain back the Philippine economy on the path to sustainable growth, I am very happy to learn that just as Moody's last January upgraded our negative to stable, I am happy to learn that standard and poor is now also upgrading our credit rating from negative to stable.

Thus, U.P.S. is a microcosm of what the international business community now considers regarding the Philippines. This investment of U.P.S. — 300 million dollars — manifests the optimism of U.P.S in our future and the close economic ties between the Philippines and the United States.

I wish to reassure U.P.S., the community of businessmen who have come to the Philippines, and those who are about to participate in our national life, that this administration is committed to strengthening conditions that make investments profitable and welcome on our soil.

It is my pleasant task today — among other things — to receive a commemorative check from U.P.S. President Ron Wallace — this is for our Aeta community that was given earlier 30,000 dollars or 1.5 million pesos — and also to witness the arrival of the U.P.S Browntail, the official aircraft courier.

I was also honored to offer a toast to the health of U.P.S., its officials and workers. And to President Ron Wallace and the rest of the U.P.S. family, welcome to the Philippines! May you thrive and prosper, may you help bring Asia together, and may your services multiply our fortunes and blessings.

I would also like to pay the proper acknowledgment to those who made this 300 million dollars investment possible a reality today from our own shores. This investment has been worked on already for about two years by Trade and Industry Secretary Mar Roxas. And when I became President, Secretary Roxas told me that one of the first things I must do is to constitute the new board of Clark because certainly an investor will want to constitute its business with a board that will not be changed the next day. So they wanted to know who is the new board of the new administration, and so we gave them an all Capampangan but all professional board — Roy Navarro, Manny Angeles and the rest of the highly professional board of CDC that they say U.P.S. tells us they have really found to be a professional team to do business with. And for all the licenses and permits from all of the agencies, U.P.S. tells me that they have found nothing but efficient service and they are especially impressed by the fact we just appointed Tony Bernardo as Commissioner. He lost no time in signing all the papers needed. He didn't need a learning curb. And that's what I expect from Tony in our anti-smuggling drive.

So, to all of those who made this investment a reality today I congratulate you and thank you. And to all those who will benefit because of more efficient logistics and therefore greater employment, I congratulate you too. And let us all work together to make the Philippines a good place to do business in and to hire the great Filipino worker.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412230107/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7652&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on her State Visit to the Republic of Singapore, August 26, 2001

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On her State Visit to the Republic of Singapore

[Released on August 26, 2001]

FOSTERING CLOSER BILATERAL TIES WITH BRUNEI AND SINGAPORE

I have just arrived from my state visits to Negara Brunei Darussalam and the Republic of Singapore. I thank you for your support and prayers, which made those visits to our ASEAN neighbors successful.

During the visits, we reaffirmed our commitment to the goals and ideals of ASEAN. At the same time, we fostered closer bilateral ties with these two important countries in our region. Sultan Bolkiah, Prime Minister Goh and I reiterated our determination to project ASEAN as a united regional group that seeks to promote the prosperity of the individual member-states and to contribute to attaining regional and world stability. We reaffirmed our belief in the power of private enterprise and a market-based economy to achieve optimum trading arrangements among and between countries.

My delegation and I presented to the leadership of Brunei and Singapore the direction of Philippine policy in the economic and social spheres. I presented our policies and programs for winning the battle against poverty within the decade, and our efforts to attract investments and create jobs through prudent macro-economic management.

The leaders of Brunei and Singapore commended our briefing and pledged to support our aspirations. Our initiative to reenergize BIMP-EAGA received the warmest reception from the Sultan. We forged 9 (nine) agreements in Brunei.

One was a bilateral agreement on defense and security cooperation and another, accredited Filipino seafarers for service on Brunei registered vessels. The other seven were business arrangements including joint ventures of PNOG and Shell Philippines on oil and gas exploration, charter flights for Air Philippines between Manila and Brunei and international air services training for Cebu Pacific. Our biggest prospect was Brunei's willingness to participate in the $500 billion petrochemical consortium being organized by the Department of Energy in Bataan.

With Singapore, we reached twenty-one (21) agreements. Nine of them were in information and communications technology, or ICT, with an investment value of almost Php2 billion. Aside from the outright investments, U.P. and MAPUA signed agreements with Sun Microsystems for certification programs for programmers, which are vital to our human resource development climate for promoting ICT.

Among the trade agreements, the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines will be able to export products to Singapore. The Philippines and Singapore will promote tourism jointly. We signed an agreement which received banner headline in Singapore broadsheets, increasing air traffic seats between Singapore and the Philippines from 6,500 seats to 8,700. We also started talks on some new projects. One of them is an investment of the Kuok group in 20,000 housing units within the next two years, including a four-lane access road to the housing project. This will be in the Province of Cavite.

The other one, our prospects with the defense industries who will use and develop on a commercial basis some of our defense properties like the arsenal in Bataan and also Crow Valley in Clark Development Area.

I inaugurated a bayanihan center for our overseas Filipinos in Singapore where our countrymen can acquire skills for higher pay, and as in Brunei, we got our Filipino seamen accredited for Singaporean vessels. The tide of opportunity is flowing in our direction. Let us seize the day with hard work, diligence and integrity.

Thank you.

Source: University of the Philippines Main Library

Arrival Statement: President Arroyo from her State Visit to the Republic of Singapore

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: From her State Visit to the Republic of Singapore

[Delivered on August 26, 2001]

I have just arrived from my state visits to Negara Brunei Darussalem and the Republic of Singapore. I thank you for your support and prayers, which made those visits to our ASEAN neighbors successful.

During the visits, we reaffirmed our commitment to the goals and ideals of ASEAN. At the same time, we fostered closer bilateral ties with these two important countries in our region. Sultan Bolkiah, Prime Minister Goh and I reiterated our determination to project ASEAN as a united regional group that seeks to promote the prosperity of the individual member states and to contribute to attaining regional and world stability. We reaffirmed our belief in the power of private enterprise and a market-based economy to achieve optimum trading arrangements among and between countries.

My delegation and I presented to the leadership of Brunei and Singapore the direction of Philippine policy in the economic and social spheres. I presented our policies and programs for winning the battle against poverty within the decade, and our efforts to attract investments and create jobs through prudent macro-economic management.

The leaders of Brunei and Singapore commended our briefing and pledged to support our aspirations. Our initiative to reenergize BIMP-EAGA received the warmest reception from the sultan. We forged nine agreements in Brunei.

One, was a bilateral agreement on defense and security cooperation. Another, accredited Filipino seafarers for service on Brunei registered vessels. The other seven were business arrangements including joint ventures of PNOG and Shell Philippines on oil and gas exploration, charter flights for air Philippines between Manila and Brunei and international air services training for Cebu Pacific. Our biggest prospect was Brunei's willingness to participate in the 0 billion petrochemical consortium being organized by the department of energy in Bataan.

With Singapore, we reached 21 agreements. Nine of them were in information and communication technology, or I.C.T., with an investment value of almost P2 billion. Aside from the outright investments, U.P. and Mapua signed agreements with Sun Microsystems for certification programs for programmers which are vital to our human resource development climate for promoting I.C.T.

Among the trade agreements, the trade union congress of the Philippines will be able to export products to Singapore. The Philippines and Singapore will promote tourism jointly. We signed an agreement which received banner headline in Singapore broadsheets, increasing air traffic seats between Singapore and the Philippines from 6,500 seats to 8,700. We also started talks on some new projects. One of them is an investment of the Kuok Group in 20,000 housing units within the next two years, including a four-lane access road to the housing project. This will be in the province of Cavite.

The other one, our prospects with the defense industries who will use and develop on a commercial basis some of our defense properties like the arsenal in Bataan and also Crow Valley in Clark development area.

I inaugurated a Bayanihan center for our overseas Filipinos in Singapore where our countrymen can acquire skills for higher pay. And as in Brunei, we got our Filipino seamen accredited for Singaporean vessels. The tide of opportunity is flowing in our direction. Let us seize the day with hard work, diligence and integrity.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Arrival Statement from her State Visit to the Republic of Singapore. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409212936/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8695&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo upon arrival from Shanghai, China, October 22, 2001

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Upon arrival from Shanghai, China

[Delivered at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport, Parañaque City, October 22, 2001]

APEC AND THE CHALLENGES OF THE NEW CENTURY

My trip to Shanghai to attend the APEC Summit is a forerunner of my State Visit to China which will start next week. In the next four weeks in fact, I will travel from one end of the Pacific Rim to the other. From China, I shall return home for All Saints Day, then pack up for Brunei for the ASEAN Summit. Soon after, I will go on another State Visit to Indonesia, then to a visit to the United States and Mexico. All these trips are tied together by the common thread of our national interest for I consider it an urgent responsibility to consolidate our foreign relations during this period of conflict, crisis and uncertainty as the global economy continues to take a retarded course in the face of an escalating war against terrorism. At this moment, the world faces the dual imperative of heightened vigilance on one hand and of economic revitalization on the other.

The APEC Meeting in Shanghai defined the paths we now have to take in the face of these challenges, greater security in the face of the terrorist threat, promoting sustainable growth, sharing the benefits of globalization in the new economy, and supporting the multilateral trading system. These paths are amplified in two historic documents that came out of the meeting: the APEC Leaders' Declaration, entitled "Meeting New Challenges in the New Century", and the APLC Economic Leaders' Statement on Counter Terrorism which is considered to be the first political statement made by this world body since its inception. These statements signal the urgency of the moment which has been captured by the APEC Summit.

In our meetings with 20 leaders, we discussed terrorism in the light of the future of the open market, the macroeconomic horizon and the human capacity-building that has to be collectively mustered, both in defense of the global economy from current instabilities and in propelling it in the course of the new century. In behalf of our people, I carried the message to APEC, that while we stand foursquare behind the United Nations and the International Coalition Against Terrorism, we must now take active security measures to secure the ramparts of economic cooperation from further degradation. Most of these measures are obvious: those designed to combat money laundering and terrorist funds movement, as well as to improve aviation and port security, cybersecurity, energy security, and customs enforcement, among others. The less obvious yet equally vital measures relate to the security of our communities where the majority of our small and medium businesses, family farms and family life operations are based. We will further enable these operations, bring them into the regional and global economy and shore up their capacity to cope with economic shocks and to harness new technologies.

The summit was also an occasion for me to make a strong pitch for a regional initiative to bolster the international coalition against terrorism. In this light our government will continue discussions within our immediate neighborhood, with Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand on closer exchanges of information and intelligence. The focus is on tightening security cooperation, an initiative that could move to a higher level during the ASEAN Summit next month. I took the opportunity to call for meaningful steps to ensure that the continuing penetration of cultures in the global milieu is rendered impervious to the influences of political and religious extremism. I explained to our APEC neighbors that our country has institutionalized the tools of autonomy, consensus and inter-faith dialogue to serve this end. I told them that our anti-poverty program is also closely focused on the communities vulnerable to fanaticism and irrational violence.

Traversing the multilateral meetings of the summit, I drove home the message that while our economy is prepared for a full and fair engagement with the world, we shall continue to support several key imperatives:

First, the next round of negotiations of the World Trade Organization or WTO must push through launching a new round of negotiations important to install global business confidence and momentum in the wake of the September 11 attacks. It is also a way to ensure that the WTO maintains its stature and credibility at this crucial time.

Second, to ensure the WTO itself does not lose credibility at this crucial time, our top priority is to ensure that the new round is truly a development round. The trade regime as a whole must accord developing countries sufficient flexibility to pursue vital development goals such as poverty alleviation, reinforced by human capacity-building and technical assistance from the WTO.

Third, our small and medium industries must be empowered by information and communications technology. Our rural entrepreneurs and urban business must be placed on-line. We cannot leave any sector out from agriculture to energy, from health to financial services, we need to integrate e-business and e-commerce technologies to streamline operations, access the global marketplace and increase productivity and efficiency.

Fifth, we have to develop an integrated regional market in ASEAN Plus 3 to create economies of scale because the market demand in the US, Japan and Europe is suffering from steady decline.

In the sidelines of the summit, I had the opportunity to preside over the signing of an agreement, among others between the government and Microsoft Corporation towards strengthening our electronic monitoring system in relation to the commitments contained in my first State of the Nation Address before Congress. Microsoft and Bill Gates visited me at a hotel just to demonstrate this. He is coming to the Philippines to provide e-learning, especially certification programs for programmers and bringing XML into our country. We also had the opportunity to discuss matters of mutual interest during our bilateral meeting with President Kim Dae-Jung of Korea, President Richard Lagos of Chile and Prime Minister Jean Chretien. On separate occasions, I met the leaders of ASEAN, addressed the APEC advisory council and the APEC CEO Summit and presided over the inauguration of Metro Bank Shanghai, the first Philippine bank in China. Before I left home, I also met with the Filipino community in Shanghai and I am glad to bring home their message of affection and concern for our people. A long road to consolidation lies ahead and I thank our people for their unrelenting support for and faith in the presidency.

Thank you.

Source: University of the Philippines Diliman Library

Statement: President Arroyo before the World Economic Forum Media Leaders

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: Before the World Economic Forum Media Leaders

[Delivered at the Drawing room, Grand Hyatt Hotel, Hong Kong, October 30, 2001]

Thank you for inviting me to join you this evening. I greatly value my exchanges with the International Press, as you are important links to those around the world who have a stake in the success of the Philippine economic agenda.

In a recent exchange I had with some members of your distinguished profession, I said that I feel that there is an important story that is not being covered by the International media. That story is the convergence between the global war on terrorism and the efforts of countries like the Philippines to address another war – the war on poverty. To put it simply, the growth of terrorism is linked to the growth in poverty. Because of this, eradication of terrorism will allow for continued alleviation of poverty.

This is why the Philippines has entered the global war on terrorism. We have long been on the frontlines in the fight against terrorism in parts of our country and we know the cost in human lives and scarce resources of this ongoing engagement.

It is clear that one country alone cannot eliminate criminals like the Abu Sayyaf. The global coalition that has been formed to attack terrorism will help the Philippines in our battle with the Abu Sayyaf. Defeat of the Abu Sayyaf will allow long overdue resources to flow into those affected regions and stop the residents of those areas from being held hostage to terrorism.

This evening, I would like to talk briefly about our war on terrorism and our efforts to concurrently address the war on poverty through economic development, as I just said, these are two parts of the same battle.

First, I must stress that terrorism is essentially a political phenomenon, when terrorists attacked New York and Washington, they intended to create a perception of war, a world war between Islam and the West.

The civilized world, in its wisdom, has not played into this perception, we have succeeded in preserving the parameters of civility from threatened disintegration.

This success can be rightfully attributed, in a large measure, to the global media, which has met the situation in a manner that is fair, balanced and responsible. Media reportage and editorial content have provided the bases both for generating broad support for the war against terrorism, and for tempering the emotions and prejudices that could have otherwise aggravated ethnic and religious conflict.

I know that many of those with us here have contributed their share to this effort at responsible and enlightened journalism. I am honored to join you this evening.

Our global and regional priorities have undeniably changed since early September. We face new levels of uncertainty, both in terms of political, security and economic vitality. That was totally unforeseen just a few months ago.

After September 11, we realize just how closely global political and economic security have become intertwined, and how our respective national interests are woven into the overall fabric of counter-terrorism.

It is in this realization that the Philippines has taken a number of steps to assist in the global anti-terrorism campaign. Our decision to join this fight is a strategic terrorism.

We are aggressively pursuing terrorist groups such as the Abu Sayyaf and we are succeeding in capturing hundreds of members of this group as well as their supporters. We will continue the pursuit until this group has been brought to justice.

As a matter of policy, first, there can be no tolerance for kidnapping, no negotiations for ransom, and no backroom deals. This is often a painful choice where innocent lives are at stake. Second, there must be swift justice to those who engage in this kind of sub-human behavior. Third, we must become well-organized in the government in order to respond to this threat including cleaning house in our police, military and intelligence agencies as necessary.

As you know, this is a challenge with many causes. From bandits who hide behind religion – the Abu Sayyaf, to those who prey on their own people – Chinese gangs, to hard-core criminals. In all cases, we are putting the full force of our army and other security forces as well as our negotiation resources against this challenge and we are achieving significant success. We have recently arrested a large number involved in kidnap-for-ransom crimes and I am confident that more will follow as we continue. As you know, we have also signed ceasefire agreements with groups who have decided to give peace and development a chance. This is a clear sign that the war on terrorism is not just won through the barrel of a gun. I will also be signing three treaties on crime-fighting with Beijing in my upcoming state visit to the People's Republic of China: one on extradition, one on narcotics, and one on transnational crimes. These are but a few examples of our cooperation with neighboring countries to solve our common problems of criminality. And finally, we are working to address the root cause of crime, rampant poverty.

We have taken steps to carry out six specific measures, in support of U.N. Security council resolution no. 1368, to combat terrorism:

- To join the international counter terrorist coalition and to work with the United Nations;
- To work closely with the United States on intelligence and security matters concerning terrorism;
- To make available our air space and facilities when required as transit or staging points;
- To contribute logistical support in the form of food supply, medicines, and medical personnel;
- To provide, with Congress's consent, combat troops if there is an international call for such troops; and
- To step up our offensive against and prevent the flow of funds to terrorist groups in the Philippines by more aggressive military action and passing and implementing legislation against money laundering.

I am very pleased that we were recently able to pass Anti-money Laundering Bill that gives government the tools it needs to track financial transactions that may have links to terrorist groups. This is not a short-term initiative. This is now a permanent part of the process that we are taking to ensure the security of the people of the Philippines and our role in the battle that all nations must fight to eradicate terrorism wherever it might be found.

We have moved aggressively both within the Philippines and with the international community to root out of the terrorist tools and networks of course. You can appreciate, given the critical role that intelligence-gathering is playing in the war on terrorism, that I am not at liberty to disclose everything we are doing, but I can tell you that close cooperation between all members of the coalition in the war on terrorism is helping the investigation into all groups with links to terrorism.

Coupled with our participation in global efforts to stamp out terrorism, we are also working to promote cohesion and cooperation at the regional level. For example, we initiated an effort to create a tri-nation anti-terrorist coalition between the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia. Through this coalition, we will work to share intelligence on terrorist activities, tighten border patrols and when necessary partake in joint peacekeeping operations. We are looking to do more at the asean summit meeting in Brunei.

We are pursuing broader interfaith dialogues to promote Christian and Muslim solidarity. Terrorists wish to instigate a religious war. We must make this an opportunity to forge religious understanding, ecumenism and solidarity.

I can only find comfort in the fact that the Philippine economy has proven remarkably resilient given the state of the regional and global economy. This was also true during the Asian financial crisis. Economic growth is at 3.4% better than most of our neighbors and trading partners. Inflation is down and our fiscal situation is stable. That said, the global uncertainty that has resulted from the tragic events of September 11 makes economic planning for any country very difficult. It has also impacted an essential element of global economic growth-confidence. Until businesses and consumers regain confidence in the international economic system all countries remain affected by September 11. No country is truly insulated from the global economic slowdown, but fortunately our country with its heavy agricultural and service composition has fared better than most. Our economy is strong, our democracy stable, our role in the world becoming clearer. I am focused on what needs to be done to address the war on terrorism and on winning the battle against poverty in the Philippines. These two priorities are very linked as poverty fuels the willingness of some to support terrorist activities.

In the battle against terrorism:

At the recently concluded APEC Leaders' meeting in Shanghai, we agreed to take a strong stance against terrorism and discussed ways of prioritizing APEC's work to meet these challenges including money laundering, aviation and port safety and security, and cyber crime.

On the battle against poverty:

Our economic fundamentals remain stable despite an uncertain global environment and although immediate challenges remain, we have near-term fiscal and monetary measures to ensure stable prices, adequate liquidity and funding for our development initiatives.

Immediate contingency measures that we have put in place stand us in good stead to meet immediate needs for macroeconomic stability. We are confident that our GDP and our deficit ceiling targets for this year will be met and we already have funding options in place to meet next year's budget requirements.

We are committed to long-term structural reforms that will ensure continued strength in domestic demand, continued diversification of our GDP and strengthening of the Philippines as a location for foreign investment.

My administration is committed to good governance at all levels. We do not hesitate to investigate any serious allegation and we hold anyone accountable if corruption has been found to take place. This is an important part of our efforts to identify and prosecute those who are corrupt and to change the mindset of those who support this practice by making payments that feed corruption. Corruption is not a soft crime; it impacts our ability to meet our economic targets and it impacts our ability to attract investment. We are addressing these at all levels.

Even my husband is not above the law. I consider intrigues against him as an occupational hazard, but nonetheless I prefer them to a constitutionally independent body where the investigation will go wherever any evidence might take them. Let me assure that my administration is working hard to promote good governance at all levels and we are working diligently to ensure that the people of the Philippines are getting the professional and clean government they expect and deserve.

We face a rocky road ahead, that is certain. But I am confident that our economy, and indeed the global economy can, and will, pull through if we approach our economic uncertainties with the same measure and innovative approach that we have applied to the global anti-terrorism campaign.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Statement before the World Economic Forum Media Leaders. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409212550/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8744&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on her arrival from Brunei Darussalam, November 6, 2001

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On her arrival from Brunei Darussalam

[Delivered at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport, Parañaque City, November 6, 2001]

TOWARDS COLLECTIVE SECURITY AND ECONOMIC STABILITY

In the face of the global crisis, we are steadily consolidating our vision of collective security and economic stability in the Pacific Rim in East Asia and in Southeast Asia.

This is important to our most vital interest as a nation and our people. The flurry of events over the past two weeks have focused on the elemental concerns of Philippine crisis diplomacy. From APEC to China to the 7th ASEAN Summit, the themes have followed a common thread of substance and urgency. These are greater political and economic security in the face of the terrorist threat, sustainable growth in the face of global recession, sharing the benefit of the new globalized economy and supporting the multilateral trading system in various levels of operation from the macro-regional scale to the small corridors of development and investment.

The 7th ASEAN Summit held in Brunei issued the Declaration on Joint Action on Counterterrorism. We are proud that the Philippines produced the first draft of this document. In it, we condemned the terrorist attacks in the United States, stepped up the cooperation in countering, preventing and suppressing all forms of terrorist acts, and affirmed our collective determination to stop terrorist organizations, delimit their support, infrastructure and funding, and bring terrorists to justice.

The ASEAN Declaration comes in synergy with the APEC Economic Leaders' Statement to Counterterrorism issued in Shanghai last October. Both pinpoint terrorism as a direct threat to peace, progress and prosperity. Both share unconditional adherence to the United Nations and International Law, and to all pertinent U.N. resolutions.

In operation, the ASEAN Declaration and the APEC Statement to Counterterrorism will bring together a broad array of alliances that will strengthen the global perimeters of political and economic security. These alliances will be implemented through joint and common actions against terrorism and transnational crime as we pursue a combined strategy of constriction against terrorists and their resources, while keeping open safe avenues for legitimate investment, trade, and labor migration.

APEC and ASEAN are not by themselves in this. Even before September 11, several regional groupings already concluded their own collective instruments against terrorism. I can cite the Association of American States, the European Union, the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation, the Commonwealth of Independent States, the Organization of African Unity, and the Organization of Islamic Conference.

The areas of cooperation are already clear to every nation involved. From north to south, east to west, we are resolved to work more closely on border security cooperation, more active multilateral and bilateral exchanges of information intelligence and communication effective restraints on terrorist fund transfers, transportation, energy and health security, customs controls and generally ensuring a safe and stable environment for trade, investment, travel and tourism.

In the summit itself, I observed that the ASEAN Declaration itself was already an operational document and need not be followed up by a separate convention, thus, averting another debate on whether to have a second document. Instead, I proposed that five member nations, which have common borders experiencing terrorist threats — and these are the Philippines, Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand and Singapore work — on a plurilateral operational agreement and hold simulation exercises on emergency response to terrorist threats. The Philippines offered to host the simulation exercises. So you've got work to do, Roilo Golez. But we must not forget that the global security crisis rides in tandem with preventing economic uncertainty. The soundness of each nation's macroeconomic fundamentals across ASEAN is a prime imperative.

In the Summit, I expressed support to the conduct of a competitive study for the region, which would identify competitive advantages of certain industries vis-à-vis other regions of the world.

I commended the ASEAN economic ministers for the accelerated measures undertaken to implement the e-ASEAN Framework Agreement. I emphasized the need for political will to support and realize the e-ASEAN initiative.

The Philippines also expressed the need for greater coherence and convergence of policies between WTO and the international development institutions such as World Bank, IMF and regional development banks so that trade is mainstreamed in the development agenda of developing nations. Part of the Philippine position on WTO is our view of special and differential treatment to include capacity-building and achieving sufficient flexibility to pursue domestic development goals. Thus, before Secretary Manuel Roxas leaves for Doha, he will be giving a presentation to the Cabinet tomorrow on the Philippine position in WTO.

I believe that the entire regional pie of sustained growth must be cut into smaller manageable slices. On this score, I stress the importance of developing sub-regional growth areas especially the BIMP-EAGA where the Philippines is a member as an appropriate strategy for addressing our current economic challenges. This is also indispensable for stability and growth in Mindanao.

I proposed measures to revitalize BIMP-EAGA starting from closer security cooperation in the sub-region to restore investment confidence. In this context, I emphasize the urgency to fast-track the operational agreement on terrorism among our immediate neighbors, especially involving Indonesia and Malaysia. The reason why Singapore and Thailand got included was that Indonesia proposed that they be included because they are also her neighbors.

The BIMP-EAGA must also be reawakened from its relative dormancy to the resumption of air and sea transport services and joint development project in fisheries, power and energy. In fact, we already have a ferry service that just started recently from Zamboanga to Malaysia. And when I go to Indonesia next week, we will be working at a fisheries agreement between Indonesia and Mindanao.

I called for the acceleration of efforts to harmonize customs, immigration, quarantine and security procedures to ensure the freer flow of goods and services and promote tourism in this growth corridor. Farther down the road, the BIMP-EAGA could gain solid momentum through power and gas interconnections among member-countries. The promotion of EAGA food supply network for China and North Asia, joint tourism marketing and reestablishment of EAGA venture capital fund. All these were taken up in various levels of discussion.

I also raised the need for a more focused government intervention in the sub-region. This will hopefully attract more private sector investments. I batted for greater support for small and medium enterprises. These all would demand greater political will and a more proactive approach to stimulate economic enterprise at all levels.

I also suggested that ADB be tapped as the regional cooperation advisor to BIMP-EAGA and ASEAN accepted my recommendation about ADB. No sooner than ASEAN approved my proposal, Secretary Paul Dominguez already got in touch with ADB and on Monday, they will start the ball rolling on making this EAGA move operationally and in an accelerated manner.

This morning, when we were waiting for all the rest and we were sitting down together in the living room, Prime Minister Goh Tok Chong said, "We have so many good initiatives, I hope they get followed up soon." "Oh yeah, I said. The ADB thing? ADB has been contacted, and Monday, they're already having a meeting. That's the way the Philippines works."

We convened a session on HIV-AIDS and adopted the 7th ASEAN Declaration on HIV-AIDS to show our resolve in combating this scourge to mankind. There was a sharing of best practices about how to address AIDS. And I said,

“in our country, the best way to address AIDS is to have a high level of morality; and also, not to have prostitution.” And President Megawati said, “You have a law prohibiting prostitution?” And I said, “Yes.” She said, “That’s a good idea; maybe I’ll adopt that in Indonesia too.”

The second day of the meeting consisted of the meetings between the leaders of ASEAN on one hand, and leaders of China, Japan, and Korea on the other.

Terrorism was also the order of the day in the ASEAN Plus 3 Summit Meetings. The three nations of Northeast Asia joined us in condemning terrorism as we committed to strengthen the ramparts of East Asian interaction. The larger sphere of East Asia continues to engross the region as we look forward to a larger community of nations sharing goals and aspirations through a future East Asian Summit.

In a longer horizon, discussions are already afoot on the possible establishment of an ASEAN-China Free Trade Area. This will take place in ten years’ time. The modalities have yet to be worked out, but they will include capability-building and technical assistance which the Philippines should take advantage of. I proposed that China consider the BIMP-EAGA sub-region as a long-term supplier of fisheries products, coconut and palm oil, tropical fruits, and other food products. And so I call on agri-business industry to seize the opportunity and sell these tropical products to China because China is a temperate country, and it doesn’t really produce everything. There are many things that we produce because we’re a tropical country, and China can buy them.

During the ASEAN Summit Meeting with Japan, I welcomed increasing contributions to the security and development of the region — of Japan, even as Japan committed never to become a military power.

During the ASEAN Plus Korea Summit, I called for stronger economic cooperation between ASEAN and Korea. Two concrete measures are relevant: the establishment of an ASEAN-Korea promotion center for trade, tourism and ICT and the establishment of the ASEAN Korean Business Council

Since the Philippines is the coordinator of ASEAN-Korea Dialogues, then of course, we’re forced to good. I made those proposals, now we have to be the one to work closely with the ASEAN Secretariat and Korea to look into the details and feasibility of these proposals. But that shouldn’t be too difficult because there’s already an ASEAN-Japan Center that we can replicate and we also have the ASEAN Business Council in different parts of the world.

I also expressed appreciation to China, Japan and Korea for their ICT initiatives. I arrived home with an abiding confidence that the major decisions of the summit will bode well for the economic, political and social welfare of ASEAN as an organization and its individual member countries. I should emphasize that ASEAN is our home, our community, our neighborhood. It has a GDP of more than $800 billion a year.

Intra-ASEAN trade accounts for more than 25 percent of ASEAN’s total trade. Forty percent of tourism in ASEAN countries comes from ASEAN itself. ASEAN is an aggregate economic market of half a billion people. It is in our national interest to further integrate our aspirations and our future with this regional community. And with deeper integration, we pray we’ll have greater progress, prosperity and peace for our people.

We reiterated the need to enhance security cooperation, to restore investor confidence and improve the business climate. And so this is what we have done all this time: pursue the war against terrorism and the war against poverty in all these arenas. And we hope that the Philippines will flourish in a situation and a condition of peace and prosperity in the 21st century.

Thank you.

Source: University of the Philippines Main Library

Statement: President Arroyo on her arrival from Indonesia, November 13, 2001

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On her arrival from Indonesia

[Delivered at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport, Parañaque City, November 13, 2001]

PHILIPPINES AND INDONESIA: GREATER TRADE, WARMER RELATIONS, AND MUTUAL UNDERTAKINGS

In behalf of the Philippine delegation, I am glad to report to the Filipino people some results of a significant state visit to Indonesia.

Ako po ay nagpunta sa Indonesia, sa imbitasyon ni Pangulong Megawati Sukarnoputri. Nagagalak po ako na ipaabot sa inyo ang aking naging mabunga na pagbisita.

Sa overnight na pagdalaw ko ay marami tayong mga kasunduan na pinirmahan sa pagitan ng gobyerno at pribadong sektor ng Pilipinas at Indonesia. Naniniwala po ako na ang mga kasunduang ito sa larangan ng pangingisda, enerhiya, kalakalan, ay higit na makapagpatibay ng pagtutulungan ng ating mga bansa.

My visit to Indonesia is part of a train of diplomacy that I followed after my State of the Nation Address. I went to Malaysia, Singapore and Brunei. I sought to renew our bilateral ties in these countries, emphasizing initiatives that would lead to greater peace and development in the Philippines.

But aside from these bilateral initiatives, there is also a multilateral value in all these. Southeast Asia is our home, our community, our neighborhood.

ASEAN itself has a GDP of more than $800 billion a year. Intra-ASEAN trade accounts for more than 25 percent of ASEAN's total trade. Forty percent of tourist arrivals in ASEAN countries comes from ASEAN itself. ASEAN is an aggregate economic market of half a billion people.

In Indonesia, my delegation and I were warmly received as family. We had substantive discussions with President Megawati and other officials of the Indonesian Government.

The topics we tackled ranged from political and security cooperation to ways to enhance two-way trade and investment consistent with Indonesia's pivotal role in facilitating the 1996 peace agreement between the Philippine Government and the MNLF. President Megawati assured me that Indonesia will continue to support our effort towards peace and development in Southern Philippines.

She likewise assured us that Indonesia, as chair of the OIC Committee on the Eight, could be counted on to support the GRP-MILF Peace Process.

Enforcing our common desire for stability and security in this part of the world, President Megawati and I agreed to pursue a plurilateral agreement against transnational crimes including terrorism, involving the Philippines, Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand and Singapore. Earnest discussions to flesh out this accord will take place in Manila by the 1st week of December. Through it, we can prevent the use of border territories, air space and waters for various forms of transnational crimes such as terrorism, smuggling, piracy, drug trafficking, trafficking women and children and the theft of marine resources.

Meanwhile, I instructed our National Security Adviser, Secretary Roilo Golez, to oversee the ASEAN Center for Transnational Crimes which is headed by the Philippines through its Executive Director, Police General Clyde Fernandez. This will be our coordinating point for regional plans and programs to check transnational crimes in accordance with the plurilateral agreement. These plans and programs will help address the problem of arms trafficking across our borders.

I informed President Megawati that upon my instructions, the Department of National Defense created a task force to resolve the problems of arms trafficking. I asked her to designate an Indonesian counterpart so that the problems can be effectively checked through joint operations. She named the Chief-of-Staff of the Armed Forces of Indonesia, so I shall therefore ask the Chief-of-Staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, General Diomedio Villanueva, to work closely with his Indonesian counterpart on this problem.

I am confident that our partnership with Indonesia on these matters will result in a more conducive environment for social and economic development across our common frontiers. Peace and development are both sides of the same coin – the coin of national stability and progress.

On the economic fronts President Megawati reiterated her full support for the revitalization of BIMP-EAGA, thus, echoing Prime Minister Mohamad Mahathir of Malaysia and Sultan Bolkiah of Brunei. On this score, President Megawati and I discussed the adoption of measures that will facilitate the freer mobility of people, goods and services in the east ASEAN corridor. This will include expanding air and sea transport between Mindanao and Sulawesi, which was suspended as a result of the Asian financial crisis of 1997. Sea transport will be resumed between General Santos City in Mindanao and Bitung in Sulawesi. And I understand that Cebu Pacific is poised to ply a route from Sulawesi to Japan with two Philippine stopovers.

During President Megawati's visit to the Philippines last August, I pushed for a fisheries agreement as an area of complementation. In this light, I am happy to report that as a first step, the Philippines and Indonesia signed yesterday an agreement on fisheries cooperation. This agreement aims to promote cooperation in the development of our respective fisheries industries. It covers such areas as marine fisheries, the prevention and combating of illegal fishing, aquaculture, marine fisheries conservation, research activities, education and training. I expect this development to bring concrete results particularly to a rapidly expanding fishing industry, again in General Santos City.

Relatedly, I assured president Megawati that the Philippines looks forward to continuing talks on maritime boundary delimitation. These talks were stalled for so many years. And she told me last August that now that the two of us are presidents, they can be resumed in an atmosphere of mutual trust and sincerity.

An agreement was forged for the steady supply of coal from Kalimantan to Philippine power plants at preferential prices in our favor. This will save us money. And for the long term, I agreed to the laying of gas pipelines connecting Mindanao to Kalimantan and Sumatra. Indonesia already has laid gas pipelines to Singapore and Malaysia, and is in the process of doing so to Thailand. We must not be left out in the cost-effective delivery of natural gas. But I think one of our major achievements is that after many years of aspiring, the Philippine National Oil Company will finally get a concession to explore and develop the geothermal resources of Indonesia.

In specific trade agreements, I noticed that the Philippines would be buying from Indonesia resource-based products like coal, natural gas, and fertilizer. On the other hand, the Philippines will be selling to Indonesia knowledge-based products such as the computerization of Indonesia's land registration system, the computerization of her passport system, the sale of Philippine movies, and the sale of Philippine patents and products like Splash skin whiteners.

This is consistent with the fact that Filipino ICT workers and other knowledge workers are ranked number one among knowledge workers around the world. The Philippines is poised to be one of the two developing countries that are most likely to be world centers for software development and data management, according to the studies of various international agencies. We can seize and maximize these opportunities by preparing our youth to be the next generation of knowledge workers. We are already training them at an early age by upgrading the math and science curricula in basic education.

Foremost also among the private sector agreements was a countertrade scheme defining payment arrangements. With so many countries experiencing a foreign exchange shortage, Thailand has been pushing for a countertrade as the name of the game. And I instructed the head of the Philippine International Trading Corporation, Arthur Yap, to see whether this can work between the Philippines and Indonesia.

The revitalization of BIMP-EAGA and the overall enhancement of Philippine-Indonesia trade and investment depend heavily upon the harmonious interaction between the business communities of both countries. That is why I held a spirited meeting with the business leaders of Indonesia.

My visit to Indonesia also gave me an opportunity to call on the ASEAN Secretariat in Jakarta. There I affirmed the Philippines' commitment to ASEAN as an institution, and acknowledged the great strides it has taken towards regional consolidation, especially under the stewardship of another Philippine human capital export, former Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Rodolfo Severino, who makes us proud with his admirable dedication and widely-acknowledged competence as Secretary General of ASEAN.

Ang isa pang mahalagang dahilan sa pagbisita ko sa Indonesia ay para makipagkita sa mga Filipino doon. Sa Indonesia, mayroong limang libong Filipinong nagtatrabaho at nakatira. Although, the Filipino community in Indonesia is smaller than in other countries like the U.S. Of 3 million in the Middle East, where Saudi Arabia alone has 800,000; and Malaysia with 700,000, I cannot help but feel proud that our kababayans in Indonesia are in the management echelons of their respective companies – mga directors, managers, supervisors, technical advisers, or consultants ng iba't ibang kompanya at institusyon na matatagpuan sa mahahalagang industriya at serbisyo sa Indonesia.

I am also impressed that quite a few are holding highly-skilled and professional jobs. Marami rin ay mga teachers sa international at local schools. In fact, they have a Philippine Teachers Association in Indonesia, at mga staff pa ng iba't-ibang international organizations, pinakamataas na nga doon ay si Rod Severino ng ASEAN. Siyempre hindi rin nawawala ang mga magagaling nating musiko na kahit saang parte ng mundo ay sikat ang kanilang kakaibang estilo at galing sa pagtugtog, pagkanta at pagsayaw.

At the Grand Hyatt Hotel where I was staying, there was a very good Philippine group that had been contracted to perform there from August to January. But I understand that they are so good and they bring in the crowd that they're going to be extended until May. So maybe you have another set of expats in that group.

Ang magandang halimbawa ng mga Filipino expatriates sa Indonesia ay isang matibay na pagpapatunay lamang na ang mga manggagawang Pilipino ay world-class at globally competitive. In fact, that is what I told the businessmen of Indonesia. We are neighbors, but we are not competitors.

Indonesia has vast natural resources like oil. We are not an oil-rich country, and so what we are rich in is human capital – educated, English-speaking, easily trainable, culturally adaptable workforce. And that is why we have many complementarities together. Ang katotohanang ito ay buong karangalan kong ipinagmamalaki sa buong mundo.

I had the opportunity to meet about 200 Filipino expats. And I thanked them for contributing $6000 for a presidential scholarship for indigent students.

With so many doors open through these visits, as we fare the vicissitudes of the present, let us boldly step through this doorway and reach out across the seas for greater trade, warmer relations, mutual undertakings. This is the key to stability and security. This is the key to peace and development.

Thank you for your warm welcome.

Source: University of the Philippines Main Library

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the Press Conference

[Issued at the Office of the Prime Minister, Centre Block, Parliament Hill, Ottawa, Canada, January 29, 2002]

Thank you Mr. Prime Minister.

I am very pleased and honored to be here in Ottawa upon the invitation of Prime Minister Jean Chretien.

The Philippines and Canada share a deep historical friendship, based on common values and aspirations. I am glad that our bilateral meetings with the Prime Minister and his Cabinet have reaffirmed that spirit and reality.

There is also a global span in this relationship. Canada and the Philippines cooperate in international organizations such as the U.N., WTO, APEC, and as such, we are both committed to international endeavors to promote peace, prosperity and freedom all over the world.

Just now we witnessed the signing of three letters of intent involving projects to be funded by the Canadian international development agency, or CIDA:

One is a private enterprise accelerate resource linkages Project II or Pearl II, which will support the development of small and medium enterprises;

The second is the e-government for efficiency and effectiveness program (e times 3) which will facilitate the delivery of more efficient and effective public services; and,

And third the judicial reform support programme, which will assist in the improvement of the judiciary.

Also signed today it's my privilege to announce the reciprocal awards for higher education which will promote student exchanges between the Philippines and Canada. The Prime Minister said many schools in Canada are just as good if not better in the schools in the United States where many of our students go and I hope this exchange will enable more of our students to enjoy the benefits of Canadian excellent education. The Philippines ... In the other agreement that we signed, the Philippines will also host the seminar on the implementation of the United Nations Programme of action on small arms and light weapons in April of this year. This is going to help our agreement with our neighbors in Southeast Asia because we have agreed to find ways to stop smuggling of small arms within our common borders and common seas.

These agreements span a broad swath of political and socioeconomic concerns. They reflect the depth and detail, as well as the relevance and sense of practicality, that have infused our relations.

The Philippines stands squarely with Canada in our common determination to address the problem of terrorism and poverty. And I am truly very happy that the Canadian CIDA has made a very big difference in lives of many in the Philippines.

During this visit, as the Prime Minister said, I shall also meet the Canadian business community. More than ever, the Philippines promotes foreign investments particularly for human resource-intensive, skills-intensive service sectors and Canadians could do well to take a look at the many profitable opportunities in our country. Canada can be our outsourcing partner for I.T. services. We also invite investments in telecommunications, agribusiness, franchising, low-cost housing, environmental technology, energy and tourism development. And Canada is strong in all these areas.

Another commonality we have is our Canadian-Filipinos. Over 300,000 Filipinos are citizens or residents of Canada. We are proud that these Filipinos have contributed to the well-being, cultural diversity and economic prosperity of this great country. At the same time, they also look back to the Philippines as the sanctuary of their investments in their home communities and their hopes for the future.

Indeed our Filipinos here demonstrate that the Philippines is the home of the great Filipino worker, recognized worldwide for his talent and dedication and his love of the homeland.

All in all, we had very productive bilateral talks. Frank and candid but productive. I believe the goals which have been set on my visit here, on my mind at least, have been met and I am confident that the goodwill between Canadians and Filipinos will be steadfast in the years to come.

So in behalf of my delegation and the Filipino people, I thank you, Mr. Prime Minister and the Canadian people, for your warm hospitality, and your abiding commitment to our common goals.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Opening Statement During the Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412230936/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7585&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Press Conference

[Delivered at the Maeklong Ballroom, Oriental Hotel Bangkok, Thailand, May 8, 2002]

I would like to thank the National Press of Thailand, representatives of the regional and foreign media, and our reporters from the Philippines for joining us here. I value your role in strengthening regional solidarity and cooperation, which is the purpose of my trip.

Mine is a very short overnight trip, but its gains are far-reaching and significant. The form and process of diplomacy is rapidly changing. Where before, we would have had to have long meetings and ceremonies, now the atmosphere and conduct of foreign policy is much more straightforward and businesslike.

This is largely because leaders do not need much time to talk formally to mutually decide on solutions to problems. Sometimes we just agree to use the phone. There is a tone of informality but deep seriousness. This is the spirit of action and diplomacy today. This is the spirit of our relations with Prime Minister Thaksin as well as Prime Minister Mahathir, whom I have just visited in Kuala Lumpur.

In this light, my visits to Bangkok and Kuala Lumpur have been focused, constructive and rewarding. I will leave this evening satisfied that the national interest of the Philippines, the imperatives of regional security and progress, and the cause of global peace will have been served, in this quest I am proud to stand together with this great country. Thailand and the Philippines have a time-honored identity with the values of freedom. Centuries of bonding have made us one in facing historical challenges. Nobody must be surprised why we can come together on many concerns so smoothly and expeditiously.

I understand the necessary briefers on my trip have been distributed. So, I will not dwell on the details, and we can go on to your questions.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412225629/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8290&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the Iraqi situation

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On the Iraqi situation

[Issued at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, September 12, 2002]

I will give the formal Philippine statement on the Iraqi situation and take two questions afterwards.

The Philippines reaffirms its commitment to the global war against terrorism. We believe the world will never be secure unless terrorist lairs are exposed and destroyed, and terrorist supporters are brought to justice.

The Philippines has full confidence in the UN Security Council process. We believe the council will act in accord with the imperatives of world peace and security and find the most expeditious way, the most effective way to serve these imperatives. We support the UN Security Council resolutions on States aiding terrorism and the dismantling of weapons of mass destruction that are an overriding threat to humanity.

We join the United Nations in the most fervent wish for dialogue and peace, but we must say more in defense of our unique national interest.

We are victims of homegrown and regionally-based terrorism. The victims of terrorism cry out for justice. We have vowed to fight against terrorism at home and with our international allies until it is defeated.

The Philippines supports the case brought by the United States against Iraq before the UN General Assembly, before the UN Security Council rather. The UN Security Council should give these charges most urgent and serious consideration.

Consistent with our national interest and in accordance with our constitution, the Philippines is prepared to extend political, security and humanitarian assistance to the united states in the pursuit of its most vital interests, which coincide with our own vital interests, to defeat terrorism.

These policies have been conveyed officially by Secretary Blas Ople to us Secretary of State Colin Powell, and shall be the basis of our position which Secretary Ople will state before the United Nations General Assembly.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Statement on the Iraqi Situation. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409211449/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8381&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a Press Conference

[Issued at the Filipino Community Center Conference Room, Waipahu, Hawaii, October 24, 2002]

Good afternoon everyone.

Please sit down.

I arrived in Honolulu early this morning on a brief stop on my way to the APEC Leaders Economic Summit in Los Cabos, Mexico. I'm glad to meet the press here. Filipinos at home feel a special closeness to Hawaii. We were one of the first migrants here 96 years ago. And we are very proud to have a Filipino Governor of Hawaii. Where is he? In the person of Governor Ben Cayetano.

The history of the Filipinos in Hawaii is a mirror of the partnership of the Philippines and America. This partnership is firm on security and economics. It is molded by history and shared strategic interests. The current Philippine-U.S. alliance is a moral partnership, this is a partnership governed by the common belief in strong democratic institutions that will create peace and freedom for people everywhere. We are determined to fight terrorism to the end.

We have offered political, security and humanitarian assistance to the United States in the pursuit of her most vital interests against terrorism which coincide with our own. Strategic assessments point to a possible shift in Al Qaeda's center of gravity to Southeast Asia. America and the Philippines are sharing eyes and ears on this development.

We are also closely allied with Indonesia and Malaysia under our trilateral agreement to check terrorist movements across our common seas. After the Bali bombing, we had our own — though smaller attacks — in Zamboanga City in Western Mindanao.

But I would like to report that the suspects have been arrested. We won't let these incidents just take for long. Our local communities are enthusiastically helping the national government watch out for terrorists closely.

I am focused on what needs to be done to address the war on terrorism and to win the battle against poverty in the Philippines within the decade. Terrorism will never completely go away unless we root out the handmaiden of terrorism — poverty. We have put a face on terrorists and now we must put a face on the poor. We will eliminate terrorism and we must eliminate poverty. If we don't, the breeding ground of resentment will begin again to plague another generation.

The 21st century war against terrorism is a new kind of war that requires a new kind of peace. Part of this new kind of peace process is reconciling the concerns of developing countries with the perspective of developed economies. Thus, our partnership with America has also leaned much on the common belief that terrorism and poverty are a combined enemy.

I will meet president bush in Los Cabos, not only to take up security matters but also development initiatives striking at the very roots of poverty in our terrorism-prone areas.

Here in Hawaii, I am here in this newly built fantastic, fabulous Filipino Community Center. And tonight, I will meet with the Filipino community.

Earlier in Governor Cayetano's luncheon which included many of the top officials of Hawaii who are of Filipino descent; today here in the Philippine Community Center where I met the Sacadas, the veterans and the students; and tonight with the larger Philippine community, I am thanking them for their support in helping me improve and develop the Philippine economy.

I am also giving them the good news that the Absentee Voting Bill has been passed in both Houses of Congress on third and final reading. This is the farthest the bill has gone in all the administrations which attempted to enact it. I will ask the Filipinos here to join me in praying that the differing provisions of the house and senate versions will be ironed out soon in the bicameral conference committee so that it can be implemented soon. The Dual Citizenship Bill also has been passed in the Philippine senate on third and final reading.

Earlier today, I met Senator Inouye, a good friend of the Filipino people, Senator from Hawaii. We discussed issues of mutual interest and I thank him for his continued support and advocacy of Philippine interests in the American Congress.

After that I received Admiral Tom Fargo, the Commander-in-Chief of the U.D. Pacific Command. We took up matters concerning Philippine and American defense and security cooperation. The forces under Admiral Fargo's command having working very closely with their counterpart in the Philippines under training activities covered by our mutual defense treaty and the visiting forces agreement.

Tomorrow, I will proceed to Mexico. There, I will join the leaders in a collective bid to influence the direction of the global economy away from another threatening economic recession.

I will take a short swing through California to drum up investments in our large ICT industry. American firms are doing well in the Philippines and there is much more room for expansion and new investments.

Again, let me say, it is a very refreshing and rewarding experience for me to visit Hawaii at this time. I thank Governor Cayetano and the Hawaiian people for their warm hospitality.

Now, I will take your questions.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409210750/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8407&Itemid=38a

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a Press Conference

[Issued at Imperial Room II, Hotel Inter-Continental, Phnom Penh, Kingdom of Cambodia, November 5, 2002]

Good evening.

I'm here in Cambodia at the ASEAN Leaders' Summit for the same reason I was in Mexico at the APEC Leaders' Meeting last week: to focus on the economy and security of the Philippines.

The ASEAN-China meeting underscored an achievement that is most significant for our country, namely: the signing of the ASEAN-China declaration on the conduct of parties in the South China Sea.

This document should give our people peace of mind. It is also important to the stability and progress of Asia.

The South China Sea is a main artery of regional and global trade. The world press and strategic think tanks have called it a major flashpoint in Asia. With the ASEAN-China declaration, this is no longer so. It has become an avenue for shared prosperity.

The South China Sea has always been the nexus of our external defense concerns. Now, we can ease our anxieties. Under the declaration, all claimants are now committed to resolve their territorial and jurisdictional disputes through peaceful means without resorting to the threat or use of force in accordance with the recognized principles of the international law, including the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea.

The claimants have also agreed to hold dialogues and exchanges of views among their defense and military officials. They will also step up coordinative activities to combat transnational crime and terrorism.

The Philippines has been avidly engaged in this issue ever since ASEAN promulgated the 1998 Hanoi plan of action which called for a regional code of conduct in the South China Sea.

Our government made a first draft of this code and shepherded it through various amendments and proposals. By 1999, ASEAN had submitted an initial draft to China. In January 2000, ASEAN adopted the Philippine proposal to establish a task team to work further on the code. By October of the same year, China and ASEAN had come up with three consolidated texts, each time narrowing the differences between them.

The defining moment came at the last ministerial meeting in Brunei, when ASEAN agreed in principle to adopt the declaration.

I am gratified to note that the heart and soul of the declaration – the principle of no new occupation — has gained acceptance from all the parties.

I am also proud that in recognition of the role played by the Philippines in moving this declaration to the point of signing, our fellow ASEAN claimant- countries nominated the Philippine senior officials meeting leader, Senior Foreign Affairs Undersecretary Lauro Baja — stand-up Larry and be recognized — to represent them in the initialling of the declaration. I'd like to commend him and the entire government team headed by the department of foreign affairs that worked on this issue for four long years. I would also like to commend Foreign Affairs Secretary Blas Ople, under whose leadership on the part of the Philippines, this work of many years finally came into fruition.

Now, that we have a more comprehensive security framework in place, ASEAN and China can now shift their energies and resources towards broader cooperation in economic and social development. Because for the Philippines, whether it's the defense of the nation's sovereignty or improving E-ASEAN, at the end of the day, it's always about the economy and improving the lives of our Philippine citizens.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409210625/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8487&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a Press Conference

[Issued at Function Rooms 1 and 2, Mezzanine, Melia Hanoi Hotel, Hanoi, Socialist Republic of Vietnam, November 6, 2002]

Good evening.

I'm glad to visit the Socialist Republic of Vietnam upon the invitation of his Excellency President Tran Duc Luong. The visit is timely as it comes after my trip from Mexico for the APEC Leaders Meeting and the ASEAN Summit in Phnom Penh. It wraps up our comprehensive efforts to focus on two vital concerns — the economy and the security.

Vietnam and the Philippines are neighbors, separated only by a sea, the South China Sea.

I deeply appreciate Vietnam's support for the declaration on the conduct of parties in the South China Sea, which was signed two days ago during the 8th ASEAN Summit, and which I consider most significant from the point of view of Philippine national interest.

Negotiations for the declaration started 4 years ago after ASEAN promulgated the 1998 Hanoi plan of action which called for a regional code of conduct in the South China Sea. Vietnam's unstinting cooperation in the 4 years that the declaration was being negotiated paved the way for the adoption of the declaration two days ago.

This document should give people, our peoples' peace of mind. It is also important to the stability and progress of Asia.

The South China Sea is a main artery of regional and global trade. The world press and strategic think tanks have called it a major flashpoint in Asia. In fact, President Tran told me that when he went to visit France, the president of France was asking him about the South China Sea. When he talked to the Prime Minister of Canada, the Prime Minister of Canada would asked him about the South China Sea. The world has been very concerned with the South China Sea. But with the ASEAN-China declaration, this should no longer be so. Now, the South China Sea has become instead an avenue for shared prosperity.

Under the declaration, all claimants commit to resolve their territorial and jurisdictional disputes through peaceful means without resorting to the threat or use of force in accordance with the recognized principles of international law including the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea.

I'm gratified to note that the heart and soul of the declaration – the principle of no new occupation – has gained acceptance from all the parties.

The claimants have also agreed to hold dialogues and exchanges of views among their defense and military officials. They will also step up coordinative activities to combat transnational crime and terrorism.

I asked President Tran Duc Luong to consider acceding to the agreement on information exchange and establishment of communication procedures – a model tool for transnational cooperation in our common fight against terrorism. The government of Vietnam is considering my proposal sympathetically and we look forward to Vietnam's early accession on another occasion.

This leaders' agreement retains its significant at a time when the world is in a quandary over the uncertainty and instability in the Middle East and the recent terrorist attacks in Southeast Asia.

The bomb explosions appear to be part of a new global pattern of attacks which must be stopped. We must also continue to strengthen our common resolve to fight terrorism until it is defeated.

The pattern of terrorist attacks in Southeast Asia must be checked. Tensions arising from the Middle East aggravate the situation in our side of the world. In the Philippines, the battle is switching from a successful military operations against the Abu Sayyaf, to an intelligence manhunt covering a wider swath of suspects moving transnationally. Internal and regional focus is now required and we are working with our neighbors on this. Once again, a black cloud seemingly envelopes the world economy because global security is currently being threatened. And the fact that the world opinion is divided over the Middle East situation compounds the uncertainty and uneasiness which, in turn, fuels the uncertainty and uneasiness in the world economy.

That's why as steward of my nation's economy, I went to APEC, I went to ASEAN, and now I'm here in Vietnam — all of these trips with a mission to create jobs in the Philippines and to build on the regional and global cooperation in the war against terrorism. Only by working together can we stamp out the evil of terrorism and the scourge of poverty.

After September 11 last year, the Pacific economies crafted an initial response encompassing financial monitoring, aviation security, energy security and customs enforcement.

Our collective actions have constrained terrorists operations, but by how much and where, we don't know. But it is very clear we have to expand deterrent measures to include port security, travel documents, air cargo security and others.

We support measures to secure trade and movement of goods from port of origin to port of destination in the same manner that we support measures that will deter movement of terrorists across borders.

We support the principle of secure trade. Since developing countries, however, cannot as yet pay the cost of all the detailed component of secure trade, we have proposed, and many developed countries have agreed that capacity building in terms of training and acquisition of new technology be extended to developing economies to enable us to comply with rigid timetables and standards.

We must strengthen our cooperation in the global fight against terrorism. From an economic perspective, this is the best common response to the threat currently being posed to global security and prosperity.

But just as we are taking security measures to prevent terrorist acts, we should also address the poverty and hopelessness that provides recruits for terrorism.

The Philippines has repeatedly, therefore, called for a truly developmental round of globalization to level the playing field and bring relief to beleaguered economies. The gap between the developed and developing economies has not really narrowed. And even within our own developing economy, we have to be constantly mindful of the effects of each step we take on small communities and small enterprises.

Just as we search out and destroy terrorism, we must search out and destroy the terror of poverty. There is evil in being hungry just as there is evil in being a destructive terrorists. We must work together as a family of nations to alleviate both.

Whether it's the defense of the nation's sovereignty or fighting global terrorism, at the end of the day, it's always about the economy and improving the lives of our citizens.

I now welcome your questions.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409210601/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8486&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference at the Japan National Press Club

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a Press Conference at the Japan National Press Club

[Issued at the Nippon Press Center, Tokyo, Japan, December 4, 2002]

Thank you very much, Chairman Sugita.

Managing Director Nabe; esteemed members of the Japan national press club; my friends: good afternoon.

I am grateful for the chance to address the Japan National Press Club again. Since I was here last year, several key events have occurred: the global war against terrorism, particularly given recent attacks in the region; the U.N. resolution and impending war with Iraq; and the emergence of China as a willing player with ASEAN.

The fight against terrorism is a global one and not the challenge of a single nation or region. We have seen from tragic events that terrorists know no geographical boundaries and are not guided by moral or religious convictions. They are nothing more than murderers of innocent people. They're driven by an ideology of mayhem that's why we must work together as nations around the world to fight terrorism.

We understand the challenge terrorism poses for all countries that value peace and order. From the moment I took office, I declared war on terrorism in the Philippines. That's why I immediately declared my solidarity with the global coalition and have joined the family of nations in the fight against terrorism. A few of my opponents have criticized my decision. But I have to tell you: I make no apologies for aggressively seeking to root out terrorism in the Philippines and to putting considerable effort into seeking regional consensus on fighting terrorism.

Terrorism drains human capital and economic resources, poverty fuels support for terrorist activities, and restoring security assists in enhancing the environment for business and the promotion of foreign direct investment.

Though the Abu Sayyaf remain a threat, they are a diminished threat. We have worked to crush their armed soldiers and break up their intelligence cells. Remember, though solitary acts of destruction are still possible, what is increasingly more difficult for Abu Sayyaf is extensive, coordinated military attacks.

My government is doing its best to restore lasting peace in Mindanao. My overall platform links the global war against terrorism with my vision of eliminating poverty. Thus, I appreciate Japan's fielding of an appraisal mission for the social fund project of the autonomous region of Muslim Mindanao, which is a significant first step.

I consider my state visit as an opportunity to highlight the importance of Japan as the preeminent contributor to the economic security of the Philippines and the region. Japan plays a central role in helping the Philippines on both the economic and military security fronts. For the Philippine-Japanese bilateral relationship, this means that the vital component of the political security of the Philippines depends on the economic contribution of Japan as a source of aid, trade and investment.

We value the investments that the Japanese government and Japan businesses have made in the Philippines. As our partners, the Japanese are witnesses to the creativity, industriousness and skill of the great Filipino workers who are making important contributions in Japanese businesses. We aim to continue to harness this resource to bring change to our lives in the Philippines and increase prosperity to the region.

For example, Marubeni has built the majority of the power plants owned by the Philippine national power corporation and has just completed a 1.4 billion-dollar multi-purpose dam. Matsushita is expanding its air conditioner plant in the Philippines, and we are encouraging it to relocate its entire window-type air condition business to the Philippines.

The Philippines continues to work hard to strengthen our economic environment through continued enhancement of our infrastructure and an ongoing reform process and focus on good governance.

We are making important economic progress. Let's not forget that when my administration took office, we had an economy that was heading towards bankruptcy, and economic and political chaos strained our relations with the international financial community and created significant market instability.

Today, we still face many challenges but have the stability and strong relations with our global financial and economic partners that support implementation of the Philippine economic plan, our blueprint for sustainable growth and poverty reduction.

The economy is on track to achieve a growth this year of four to four-and-a-half percent GDP as evidenced by the better-than-expected performance of leading indicators in the first three quarters of this year. Inflation and interest rates are still at record lows. Export growth is at nine percent versus the original projection of zero growth so that international reserves are 1 billion dollars more than the target.

While the budget deficit remains a challenge, we are taking concrete steps to address it. We remain focused on responsibly managing expenditures and maximizing revenues. We are spending within budget but disbursing it more efficiently and implementing projects faster.

Several enforcement measures are already in place to increase revenue collections. We have put together a good team to increase our tax collections headed by a new commissioner of internal revenue, who is preceded by his impressive record as a successful commissioner of customs, and complemented by a new Anti-Smuggling Intelligence and Investigation Commission.

The team has been reforming the collection of the value-added tax, including cross-checking of importation data from the bureau of customs with that reported to the bureau of internal revenue. Last 15th of November, they closed and prosecuted 53 firms for underpayment of the value-added and other taxes. They are intensifying audit for both corporates and individuals even as they have made the option to pay taxes on-line widely available.

Aside from these immediate reforms, we are committed to long-term structural reforms. We've proposed legislation to corporatize the internal revenue agency into a national revenue authority. Meanwhile, I issued an executive order to restructure the agency.

To reform expenditure management, the Philippine senate has begun deliberating the procurement reform bill which will bring about an estimated savings of 30 percent on the budget. Meanwhile, I'm implementing e-government to electronically release funds to agencies automatically for a more efficient utilization of funds.

The power sector is our key reform area in order to assure adequate and reliable power supply to consumers and to industry. This program was initiated with the passage of the electric power industry reform act last year after a delay of 10 years. The answer to sourcing the huge capital requirements of our power sector is privatization. The first key to privatization is to create an investment climate that's attractive to both domestic and foreign investors. The second key to create a successful privatization process is one that is transparent and free of corruption.

With the reforms we are implementing, and which we hope congress will enact as soon as possible, we are confident we will achieve higher growth in 2003.

There is no more important benchmark of a developed nation than its engagement in the world trading system. But as developed and developing countries alike know to be true, the benefits of globalization and trade are not all apparent or all positive. As the Philippines comes down on the side of trade, we understand that at the same time, we must manage the transition well with our poor in order to gain their political support for additional political and economic reforms down the road.

We are committed to lifting our people out of poverty. We must put food not promises on the table today. Our economic plan will get us there — our trade policy is an integral part of our growth plan. But our price in achieving this vision must be sustainable.

Thus, we commend Japan's efforts to further deepen its ties in the region through economic partnership agreements. In our view, an ideal for the proposed agreement is to maximize the many areas of complementarity between our two economies. One such area is human resource development. One facet of our HRD complementarity involves the demographic realities between our two countries. Japan has an aging population while the Philippines has a young population which supplies some of the best-trained and compassionate health care workers in the world. In a similar vein, Japan is the acknowledged leader in the region in the field of advanced technology including ICT and capital-intensive industry. The Philippines, on the other hand, is well-acknowledged internationally for its top-quality knowledge workers. We can devise the right arrangements to take fuller advantage of these realities.

Japan's aid is important as a vital weapon for ensuring regional stability and security. Japanese leadership to sustain aid to the Philippine government in my efforts to reduce poverty and sustain economic recovery is every bit as important as military cooperation in ensuring regional security.

Economic security is the greatest defense against political instability, poverty and terrorism. Make no mistake: "the Yen is mightier than the sword." the economic role Japan has to play in the region cannot be overstated.

Japan, China and ASEAN form an economic sphere to rival Europe and North America. It is the dawn of a new age in Asia as Japan, China and ASEAN neighbors come together seeking greater economic cooperation and integration.

Japan, as an important development partner and donor for the Philippines and ASEAN is crucial in the regional fight against poverty, the recruiting ground for terrorism. It's only through economic partnership that as a region we will chart the security of Asia and the prosperity of our people. With Japan leading the way, I'm confident the region will flourish.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference at the Japan National Press Club. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409204920/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8519&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the departure ceremonies for a Visit to Bangkok, Thailand

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the departure ceremonies for a Visit to Bangkok, Thailand

[Issued at the Villamor Airbase, Pasay City, April 29, 2003]

The ASEAN SARS Summit in Bangkok today is an effort to gather our collective material and political resources in the region to fight the dreaded disease. The meeting hopefully will bring better results in terms of the identification, containment and treatment of cases as it will carry a strong statement of cohesion in the same way we took a common stand in the face of the Asian crisis in 1997 and the September 2001 tragedy in the United States.

By reaching across borders for common solutions, ASEAN is projecting a very strong message that we are prepared to close ranks for the world to fight this threat to the end.

ASEAN nations are already doing their best individually. But forging a common program will multiply our individual strengths and reduce our weaknesses.

I shall make a special appeal in behalf of the hundreds of thousands of Filipino workers spread across ASEAN. I shall seek protection within ASEAN not only for the health and safety but for the jobs of Filipinos.

I shall appeal to my colleagues to ensure the best treatment is extended to our nationals who are suspected to be or actually afflicted by SARS. And that all possible accommodations be granted to guarantee the security of their jobs in the face of the regional economic slowdown.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Statement during the Departure Ceremonies for a visit to Bangkok, Thailand. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201503/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6134&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during on the “Mindanao Punitive Operations”

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On the “Mindanao Punitive Operations”

[Issued at the Laurel Room, Malacañang, May 16, 2003]

Today, I authorized the Armed Forces of the Philippines to employ selective aerial and artillery attacks to dislodge embedded terrorist cells that have attacked hapless civilian communities and murdered scores of innocent Filipinos in Mindanao.

This is in support of military operations that have been ongoing, in varying degrees of intensity, over the past week in the Zamboanga peninsula, the Lanao provinces and Maguindanao.

We’ve decided to use extraordinary punitive force not merely in view of tactical necessity, but to signify the determination of government to bring terrorists to justice.

I ask Congress to stand behind the people and the government in this action. The local government units in the areas affected have been informed and many of them have heightened their vigilance against reprisals.

This is a time for all Filipinos to stand together, to fight and sacrifice together.

The relief agencies of government are on alert for a possible surge of evacuees in the affected areas. We shall work with local communities to provide food, shelter and medicine to temporarily dislocated families.

I encourage the private sector to gather resources for humanitarian assistance.

We’ve seen that terrorism strikes anywhere, anytime, from the remotest barangays in Mindanao to the capitals of the world. The world in the post Iraq war period has achieved greater strategic stability, but this has driven militant cells to deeper desperation.

Our country has been under terrorist attack sporadic, intermittent but nevertheless, deadly. Davao city has been bombed twice. Siocon and Maigo have been assaulted with impunity. Koronadal has been attacked. Christians and Muslims have been killed.

Filipinos have also been killed and wounded in a terrorist attack in Riyadh. We’re victims in our own land and elsewhere. We must fight back now or face greater peril in the future.

All Filipinos must be vigilant wherever they are.

Secretary Renato de Villa, my adviser on strategic concerns, will help me coordinate the holistic approach to this campaign.

This holistic approach will encompass the political, diplomatic, military, cultural, economic, humanitarian, and information aspects of the campaign.

Regular information briefings on the tactical and humanitarian situation will be handled by the military division commanders teaming up with the regional directors of the DSWD.

I shall embark on a state visit to the United States tonight bearing in mind the need to bolster our strategic relationship with the United States as well as with our neighbors in the fight against terrorism as we face a new global horizon cast by post-war Iraq.

We have to continue to reach out to the Islamic nations through the OIC. To press our principled stand against a common enemy, while seeking consensus for the security and welfare of Muslim Filipinos. This is not simply a war of guns and bullets. It's a strategic war of will and vision. We shall tighten the noose of military operations, anti poverty programs and diplomatic initiatives until the threat of terrorism is beaten.

We will nurture the seeds of a principled, secure and enduring peace. We will banish despair and bring a new light of hope.

We shall build the ramparts of the strong republic in Mindanao.

I order our soldiers to carry on; I ask our people to stand behind them.

Thank you and may God bless us all.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Statement on "Mindanao Punitive Operations". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201237/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6307&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the arrival ceremonies at the White House

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Joint Press Conference with U.S. President George W. Bush

[Issued at the East Room, the White House, Washington D. C., U.S.A., May 19, 2003]

Thank you, Mr. President.

Thank you once again for inviting me on this state visit. As I said earlier, this shows how warm is the relationship between our two countries. We have become closer because of the war on terror but our closeness is really rooted in our deep and long shared history.

We became closer with the war on terror because the Philippines is one of the first countries to join this war on terror. And the reason why we did it is that we, in the Philippines, know what it is to suffer from the hands of terrorism. We know the pain of terrorism. And we are with you in your leadership against terrorism wherever it may be found. There may be others whom I feel timid or hostile about U.S. leadership in the war against terrorism. We believe that U.S. leadership and engagement with the U.S. makes the world a safer place for all of us to live in.

But this trip is not just about terrorism, it's about fighting poverty. Poverty and terrorism are twin evils that we must fight. For the Philippines, we consider the U.S. a strategic partner not only in security matters but also in the economy, in the fight against poverty.

I appreciate the support president bush has announced with regard to our security assistance and also with regard to our economic assistance and economic cooperation with each other. And in other meetings that we will be having with American officials, with multilateral agencies that are based in Washington D.C., and with the U.S. private sector. There will be other developments related to this visit that I'm sure will enhance our relationship with each other even more.

There's been a lot of work in preparation for this state visit. I was supposed to come earlier. I was supposed to be here last March, and we've been working on what we can have together in this state visit. But because we postponed it and we did not know the date of the state visit because we didn't know the timetable for the war, there were many things that America already helped us with in preparation for this state visit even without a date.

So, I'd like to thank you, President Bush for what we have been able to achieve before the state visit, what we are achieving in this state visit, and what we will be achieving afterwards because of the deeper relationship that we have entered into culminated in this wonderful visit of ours to your country.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Joint Press Conference with U.S. Pres. George W. Bush. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201151/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6294&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint Press Conference with U.S. President George W. Bush

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the arrival ceremonies at the White House

[Issued at the South Lawn, the White House, Washington D. C., U.S.A., May 19, 2003]

The relationship of our two countries are deeper and warmer today than they have been in a very long time.

Today, our two countries have revitalized and maturing alliance. Rooted in shared history, shared values, a common interest in global peace and prosperity, and a real commitment to combating terrorism and advancing freedom. Our alliance abides strong as ever even as the world today requires a new perspective on political and economic security in Asia pacific. This new perspective must recognize that while Asia must take greater responsibility for its own political and economic security, it must also recognize that strong relations with the U.S. will contribute greatly to regional peace and prosperity, stability and security especially from terrorism. Thus, we, your friends, must find a way to support continued and active engagement with the U.S. at a time when there are some forces in my region working against such a relationship.

Although wisdom counts as commitment in the face of terror, the temptation to disengage is strong. We must fight that temptation because the answer to fear is confrontation. Indeed, we must close ranks and stand firm against terrorists threats however grave, however armed, and from whatever quarter.

To spare themselves some countries might prefer an accommodation with terrorism — the Philippines has chosen to fight terrorism. We compensate for such modest means as we command with an unshakeable resolve to defeat terrorism once and for all, and with faith in the justness of our cause and our friendship with the United States.

Our war on terrorism has made significant gains but the threat is far from over. The war is not yet won, that it will be won there can be no doubt, how long and at what cost are the only things in doubt as the terrorist attack in Riyadh which took both Filipino and American lives shows. For the Philippines, the new perspective on economic and political security in Asia pacific must take into account the over seven million of our men and women who in seeking a better life abroad contribute greatly to the development of economies around the world, not least that of the United States.

I am proud of these Filipino-Americans. I am proud of the contributions that Filipinos and Filipino-Americans make to the American economy and society in a quiet but equally substantive way we can compare it to the contribution made by Philippine World War II veterans to the defense of our common freedom and security. I also take pride in the robust economic and trade ties that bind the Philippines and the United States. The Philippines is pursuing long needed economic reforms. The current and continuing reforms will strengthen the Philippine republic. They will make easier Philippine and American economic cooperation, and they will promote the cause of fighting world poverty.

I appreciate the help of president bush in our work to alleviate poverty and other socio-economic ills from which terrorism draws its strength. Like the fear on which it feeds, terrorism can be contagious and it will not be contained unless we agree on a comprehensive approach for defeating it in Southeast Asia.

And so, in looking forward to discussing that comprehensive approach, I look forward to my talks with president bush and his officials in this administration. And I hope president bush reciprocates this visit by accepting a state visit to the Philippines towards the end of this year.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Statement during the Arrival Ceremonies at the White House. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201143/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6288&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a press conference with the Philippine media

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a press conference with the Philippine media

[Issued at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York City, U.S.A., May 21, 2003]

When I left the Philippines, when I left to come to the United States for the state visit, I said that we were going to explore a new framework of a strategic relationship with the United States for the 21st century.

Some features of that relationship, I think I can already explain as coming to light.

One, is the designation of the Philippines as a major non-NATO ally. I will ask Dick Gordon later ‘ to explain that in a... You know, in a more direct and a... I’ll expect Dick to explain that in a... In a more picturesque way or you know, in a more illustrative way. But let me just say that it recognizes the Philippines as a key global player in the fight against terrorism. And that it is a tribute to the proven vigilance of the Filipino people not only in this fight, but in upholding our shared values of democracy and freedom. And it paves the way for a stronger partnership for a more secure Philippines, a more secure region and a more secure world.

Another aspect of that new framework is that we have laid a strategic basis for Philippine-U.S. relations based on more trade rather than aid; reciprocity rather than mendicancy; mutuality rather than exclusivity. Our bonds of friendship and values have now grown into an overarching pragmatic alliance for security, peace and development. To illustrate, the alliance goes beyond fighting the Abu Sayaff to mopping up the pockets of poverty where the recruits of terrorism are taken.

You see, if the alliance were just about fighting the Abu Sayaff, we would have signed already the T.O.R. for Balikatan now. But, it is not just about the Abu Sayaff, the Abu Sayaff is incidental, they’re only 215 there on the run. It’s really defining the relationship between the two countries on security assistance and mutual support.

A third aspect of the work to define a framework, a longer term framework for the new relationship is that through this bolstered alliance, we’ve gained solid momentum for a more decisive engagement with the world. This underscores the key role played by our 8 million Filipinos spread across a 140 nations, who are collectively the pivot upon which our economic diplomacy turns. A major part of our foreign policy is the protection of the welfare of our overseas Filipinos. And eight million overseas Filipinos out of the population of 80 million — that’s 10 percent — means that they are a major part of our constituency. And because two-and-a-half million of them are here in the United States, they are a major part of our relationship with each other.

It is our duty to strengthen the political and economic security of our Filipinos in other countries and safeguard them against terrorist attacks in their places of work.

The shared future of Philippine-American relations now demands initiatives that should lend greater momentum to our achievements. This morning, I met with business organizations engaged in business process outsourcing, that is an area that has steady growth potentials in our country. This afternoon I met with U.S. companies projected to invest in the reconstruction of Iraq, that offers a broad range of opportunities for our workers.

Jobs after all are my main concern. We go worldwide with great zeal because we want to expand the quest for jobs through the greater market access that will come as a result of our closer economic engagement. For instance, the duty free status for one billion dollars worth of products under America’s GSP helps us to sustain and increase employment, including in the most depressed areas of Mindanao.

We must optimize economic thrusts that will have first and foremost an immediate effect on national security and peace and order. That is why I am anxious to go back home to apply the gains in our trip to the enhancement of peace and order in our country. That’s why when I return home I shall proceed to Mindanao to evaluate the national security situation and to see how immediately we can apply the gains of this trip to addressing the issues of that security situation in Mindanao.

But speaking of Mindanao, let me salute the courage of our troops who have carried out the punitive actions against the enemy, and they have done it very successfully. And they've done this by attacking specific terrorists enclaves in Mindanao. I also thank the civilian communities that have supported our troops.

After the areas are cleared, we must now get on with holding and consolidating actions. The PNP must be ready to hold the areas cleared by the punitive operations while the national agencies and the local government units must consolidate relief and rehabilitation efforts.

I also commend the PNP for preempting a terrorist plot in metro Manila. This only stresses even more the need for preparedness not only of our law enforcement agencies but of our local governments in threatened communities. Even the United States has gone into heightened alert which they call orange alert. So, all communities must be on alert.

Well, since some members of the delegation will be leaving us tonight, I'd like to express my appreciation to those members especially those from the Cabinet and Congress, and the members... The delegation from Congress was led by Senate President Franklin Drilon and Speaker de Venecia. I'm glad that Monico Puentevella is still with us. I thank him for his very very great support and vigorous and energetic participation in the various activities in this state visit.

I'd like to share that during our meeting at the White House, Speaker De Venecia proposed a dialogue of civilizations and inter-faith solidarity. He proposed the creation of a U.N. inter-religious council as a means to world peace. I also like to acknowledge that Senate President Drilon — oh! There's Joe. I was praising you without knowing you were there, ha! I would like to — Joe, why don't you come here to the front because they might ask you about your dialogue of civilizations now that I announced it. First time I announced it. Eh, kasi nga naman parating, magkano ba? Magkano ba? You know, but you see this great ideas are coming about and they really show the world view of our Philippine leaders.

I'd like to acknowledge that Senate President Drilon has been sharing his legal expertise to the work in progress on Balikatan 03-1 terms of reference.

While some of the delegates will leave us tonight, actually the trip is not yet over. I still have one more leg of my visit. Tomorrow, I shall go to San Francisco to meet with the President of Bechtel, a company which is expected to play a major role. A company projected to invest very largely in the reconstruction of Iraq.

So, two things will be going from tonight: the meeting, the Iraq-related meeting tomorrow and then after that the culmination will be my trip to Mindanao. And I will be making my arrival statement on Monday to report on the trip in Mindanao.

In the meantime, you may ask questions from me and from the cabinet members who are on the other side of this conference.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference with the Philippine Media. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201010/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6272&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a roundtable with U.S. media

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a roundtable with U.S. media

[Issued at the Carnegie Room, Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York City, U.S.A., May 21, 2003]

Well, I don't want to give very formal opening remarks. I just want to begin saying a few things and I'd like to encourage you to interrupt if something I say propels you to ask a question. But this is my way of just breaking the ice and beginning to set the tone of what I think we should be talking about.

I'm very happy to be here and I feel that the country has been honored with a state visit that was prepared by President Bush. I think it's a good time to therefore characterize the relationship not only between the Philippines and the United States but also the relationship between the Philippines and the world as we are in our first years of the 21st century.

Towards the end of the last century, year 2000 and couple of years before that, the Philippines was a picture of great cynicism among the people and disengagement from the world among the officialdom. Today, the Philippines is emerging from that kind of scenario and I think this visit shows that we are back. We are back and that's the message that I'd like to give.

As far as the Philippines and the United States is concerned when I say we are back I say we are talking... We're renewing our good relations with the United States but not in the same old way. It's the 21st century now and it is time to define that alliance as a new and modern alliance suitable to this century. And this alliance is important especially for me as the president of my country because a new modern alliance with the United States is something that is important to our nation that it should cover a whole range of issues and concerns that characterize our 21st century. There is security, regional stability, trade and investment, economic reform, good governance measures, to name a few.

When I met with President Bush at the White House last Monday, one of the clearest things that emerged is that we do have a very strong relationship with each other today. I am very honored to have been so far the only Asian head of state to be given a state visit by the Bush presidency. I think that's a very strong statement about the relationship between our two countries and peoples. And in this strong relationship as I said, President Bush and I, have been developing a modern framework that should be guiding the relationship of our countries for the 21st century, for the decades to come. The relations between our two countries were adrift for awhile. But I think they are back on track and stronger than ever.

To me — all these redefining relationships, strengthening them, revitalizing them, making them more mature — to me, at the end of the day, all these is about my goal of fighting poverty in the Philippines. And of course, I cannot fulfill my goal of working to fight poverty without focusing on the economy. So at the end of all of these, the focus is really on the economy. The first two years of my administration were devoted to making fundamental reforms on the economy. They were devoted to strengthening the institutions of our republic, to strengthening our macro-economic fundamentals. And that's why I'm glad that Secretary of Finance Lito Camacho is here because he was the lead character in the strengthening of the economic fundamentals. We've moved to lower inflation because as far as the people of the Philippines are concerned the bottom line is how much do they have to pay for feeding themselves. We have moved to strengthen the peso. We've moved for macro-economic structural reforms which required legislations, we've achieved a number of them. We're moving more towards... We're moving further towards privatization because that's really the characteristic of a market economy, and more.

And that's what I've been doing on the purely economic area. But because the overriding concern is to fight poverty, which is basically an economy problem, even my foreign relations policy, my foreign policy is all about that, it's all about serving the fight against poverty in the Philippines. And that is why in the service of fighting poverty in the Philippines I strengthened Philippine alliances through aggressive diplomacy, such as what I did in Washington.

Part of my economic plan also is the recognition that we have to wipe out terrorism in the Philippines if we are to focus our resources to help in improving the lives of our poor. So, we don't fight for the sake of fighting. We are fighting because we want to ultimately free up our resources to fight poverty rather than some individual.

And in seeking to wipe out terrorism in the Philippines, the U.S. is an important ally in restoring peace and order on many levels. That's one part of my trip, the security part. But because poverty is my overarching concern, the other part of my trip is business and investment promotion. Every single trip that I take always includes a business... An investment promotion component, business and investment promotion component.

For today, what I did this morning was to launch a new business process outsource initiative, and Mar Roxas was in-charge of that, my Secretary of Trade and Industry. I think because you are business writers and editors many of you know that the Philippines is rapidly becoming a premier destination for outsourcing.

People are often surprised to know just how much the Philippines has evolved into something global — a global country, a global economy. I like to put it this way, I'm not just the head of state of over 80 million Filipinos, I'm also in some way the CEO of a global enterprise, a Philippine global enterprise of 8 million Philippine workers in over a 140 countries generating billions of dollars a year for themselves, their employers and also for their families in the Philippines. That said, I recognize that there are still many economic and social concerns that we have to deal with. Terrorism, of course, is something that the world has been living with for the last... For this first years of this new century. And if we talk about terrorism, what I can say is that we are coming to grips with terrorism in the Philippines. The threat of the Abu Sayaff diminishes by the day. Nonetheless, the world is still fertile ground for terrorists. The region is still fertile ground for terrorists. Some of their weapons are bombings like what they've done recently in Riyadh. Other weapons are kidnapping and that's of course something that makes businessmen very nervous. And so we continue to address the issue, the threat of terrorism very aggressively and proactively.

Another challenge is the budget deficit. But given the performance of our fiscal sector in the first one-third of this year, we're very bullish on the ability of our government to work towards our budget deficit moving quickly to an acceptable level as a percentage of GNP. Our vital signs... Well, all our vital signs are now strong. And these vital signs I'm sure will help generate the stability that we need to continue to tackle the deficit from a position of strength and sustainable development.

Another challenge is structural reform, longer term reform. We've had early successes as we are revamping our economic outlook including strengthening banking laws, money laundering legislation, a renewed stock exchange, revenue collection reform. But now we're going to be working on taxation and anti-corruption reforms.

In sum, what I'd like to say and communicate is that the Philippines has emerged as a stronger economy built on a more vibrant set of structural reforms. Yes, it has more to accomplish but certainly we know and we recognize that we must focus on the economy more than at any time in the past.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Opening Statement during a roundtable with U.S. Media. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201022/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6266&Itemid=38

Press Statement: President Arroyo on accidents at sea

Press Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On accidents at sea

[Issued at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, June 2, 2003]

The sinking of the MV San Nicolas, which caused the death of many of its passengers, was only the latest deadly accident involving passenger ships traversing our seas. As the painful stories of this tragedy move out of our front pages and headlines, we must dedicate ourselves to doing more to prevent similar accidents in the future. We will not allow our attention on other concerns to distract us from what we must do to improve maritime safety.

Inter-island travel by ship is a mode of transport favored by poor Filipinos. Maritime accidents disproportionately afflict the poor. Maritime safety, therefore, is an issue important to the welfare of our poorer citizens.

As the country that provides ships all over the world with thousands of Filipino seamen, the Philippines can't allow recurrence of maritime accidents at our home seas to erode our well-earned reputation for competent seafaring abroad. Lives of the poor and livelihoods of many Filipinos are at stake in maritime safety.

I've issued additional instructions to move ahead with other steps that could prevent future accidents at our seas.

I reiterate my 15-day deadline for the completion of the marine investigation into the MV San Nicolas accident. I expect to receive the findings and recommendations on June 9, upon my return from South Korea and Japan.

Even without the investigation results, however, I've asked DOTC Secretary Leandro Mendoza to undertake the following:

1. Prepare a policy recommendation governing the continued use of wooden-hulled vessels as passenger ships, including rules and regulations on classification implementation for passenger ships, particularly wooden-hulled ships. The MV San Nicolas was a wooden-hulled ship ferrying passengers from Palawan to Manila during stormy weather;
2. Organize a performance and capability assessment of the Philippine Coast Guard relative to this agency's functions of enforcing maritime safety standards and overloading rules, and undertaking rescue operations in sea accidents. We have to identify the most immediate, affordable and cost-effective measures to enable the coast guard to significantly reduce risks of accidents at sea and fatalities from these accidents;
3. Draft measures to improve safety in narrow inter-island passages and areas with heavy sea traffic where most accidents occur. Consideration should be given to delineating sea-lanes and implementing better monitoring and communications systems in these areas;
4. Submit recommendations on structural, functional, and personnel changes to improve the coordination and effectiveness of both marina and the coast guard in assuring our people access to safe, affordable and convenient sea travel;
5. Formulate a program of random drug and alcohol testing of shipping crews and officers, particularly those manning passenger vehicles;
6. Convene a task force for maritime safety that would include representation from government, shipping industry, maritime schools and other stakeholders. This task force shall formulate recommendations that I shall consider for inclusion among my legislative and executive priorities traditionally announced as part of the State of the Nation Address in July. I'd like to see a non-negotiable level of provisions and standards that assure minimum safety at sea.

Government shall require private shipping industry to comply with such standards, and shall provide assistance necessary for them to comply.

I've also instructed the Professional Regulation Commission to review the standards and implementation of training and licensing rules and regulations governing seamen and maritime professionals manning domestic ships. Smaller vessels like the MV San Nicolas are commanded by "major patrons" who don't have the formal training necessary to secure a license. There's a need to review their basic competence despite the absence of a license. There's also a need to eliminate further doubts about fraud attending the licensing of seamen and maritime professionals.

I expect to regularly update our people on the progress of these instructions. I will not allow the inexorable march of events to leave the issue of maritime safety behind. I'm determined to make my administration the point to end the long chain of deadly sea accidents that has marked inter island shipping in our country.

I've decided to turn my utter grief over the deaths of so many Filipinos in the accident last week into firm determination to do what must be done to prevent future deaths at sea.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Press Statement on accidents at sea. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412200856/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6480&Itemid=38

Arrival Statement: President Arroyo in Mindanao

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: In Mindanao

[Issued at the Departure Lounge, Davao City Airport, Davao City, Davao del Sur, June 10, 2003]

Maayong buntag sa tanan. Lingkod, palihog.

Good morning.

Please.

Officials of Mindanao, people of Mindanao, nalipay gyud ako nga dinhi sa inyong manindot nga lunsod diri sa Davao City gisugdan kining akong pagbisita karon sa nagka-laing-laing siyudad sa lunsod sa Mindanao diri sa Davao.

Today, I start one week of intense and focused attention on the priorities for peace and development in Mindanao. The concerns of Mindanao have always been among the most important matters of my administration. This coming week will be an opportunity to make headway on many issues facing Mindanao.

Sa pagsugod tignan ko gihapon ang mga prinsipyo sa atong Mindanao framework o ang tibuok gitukuran sa pagpa-uswag sa Mindanao. Usa ka prinsipyo maoy ang atong ultimo nga tuyo kinahanglan ang kalinaw ug kauswagan na nagkauban.

Ikaduha nga prinsipyo mao'y ang atong pilosopiya kinahanglan nakabase sa konstitusyon. Soberenidad ug atong nasud ug integridad ug atong teritoryo.

Ikatulo nga prinsipyo mao'y... Atong sosyedad mao'y multi ethnic na kinahanglan nakabase sa social justice alang sa tanan ug ang institutionalized accommodation of ethnic traditions. Kristiyano ug Muslim, intsik ug Tsinoy, Tagalog ug Cebuano, mao kini ang gamay ra nga mga ngalan nga gitubagan ug Pilipino sa usa ka gwapo nga testimonya sa akong dako ug laing-laing pamana isip nasud.

Sa nining tulo ka dako nga prinsipyo modagdag nato ug ika-upat. Sa atong pangitas ug kalingaw walay lugar ala sa terorismo ug brutalidad. Kini mga akto kinahanglan kondenado ug tanan. Ang mga elemento sa atong Mindanao framework ug tibug gitukuran sa pagpa-uswag sa Mindanao uban ang domestic o lokal na elemento ang diplomatic ug pang diplomasya nga elemento, ang security o pangseguridad ug ang development o pagpa-uswag.

Iyung mga elemento dunay pareho o kumon nga polisiya ug stratehiya manginuha kita aron makagamit ug puhunan bisan ug lokal o langyaw ang giginkanan ug kining tanang puhunan kinahanglan pang tipunon ug ibutang sa Mindanao.

Kining mga puhunan kinahanglan nga balansehon ta aron sakto ang pagkuyog ug pagsagol sa mga inisyatibo nga alang sa seguridad ug sa mga buluhaton sa pagpa-uswag aron mopaspas gayod ang taong pagkabot sa kalinaw ug modali dayon ang maki-angayon nga pagtaas sa atong ekonomiya sa Mindanao.

I come to Mindanao after a series of successful visits to America, Japan and South Korea. While the gains from these visits will benefit the whole country, I've tried my best to focus the benefits in favor of Mindanao. Much of the trade concessions will obtain benefits for many products coming from Mindanao. A considerable portion of new public and private investments we will mobilize will create more livelihood and employment opportunities for the people of Mindanao.

The bulk of military and law enforcement assistance we secured will provide better security and greater protection for the communities of Mindanao. Much of the grant and official development assistance we obtained will be targeted and focused on providing unmet needs of Mindanao's poorest and most vulnerable.

Members of my Cabinet headed by Secretary Romulo and senior government officials will further amplify on the concrete impact and specific benefits for implementing the agreements that were formalized and finalized during my foreign visits.

I regard the remaining year of my administration as a unique window of opportunity for building the foundations of an enduring framework for principled peace and development. Our government is committed to building an enduring and just peace in Mindanao within the framework of our constitution. Such a peace can be obtained and preserved through political solutions. But our government must have the means to fully guarantee on the ground eventual compliance with whatever might be the terms of a political settlement of the armed conflict in Mindanao. While we welcome and expect sincerity and discipline from those with whom we shall dialogue, the AFP and PNP must have the full capacity and adequate means to protect our communities and enforce our laws without depending solely on sincerity or strength of other parties.

Even as we talk, we will not allow terrorist attacks to go unpunished. Even as we talk patiently, we will not tolerate enclaves of terrorism to exist within our country's territory. Peace can be advanced by patient and sincere dialogue back by our government's capacity to enforce the legal authority of our constitution. Peace will also be needed to be sustained by concrete gains in the welfare and living standards of Mindanao's poor.

The remaining year of my administration will also be an opportunity to deliver these development gains that are crucial to building public confidence and popular demand for continued peace.

Sa sunod nga walo ka adlaw, natamo ako sa laing-laing nga mga aktibidades nga mao'y mga simbolo nining saad o commitments. Pangungahanon ko nga labao pa nga makusog ang pagtinabangay sa sektor sa mga negosyante ug ang mga ubang mga pumuluyo sa komunidad dinhi aron dayon nato malihog ang usa ka kumprehensibo ug balansyado nga programa sa pagpakusog sa ekonomiya ug pagpalambo sa mga maisog ug epektibong buluhaton aron masuklan ang terorismo samtang mauhag pa sab ang mga rebeldeng grupo ang kadtong mga nagasimpatiya sa kanila aron mubalik na sila sa kinabuhing naga sunod sa atong mga balahod.

During this week's work in Mindanao, my administration will focus on preparations for school opening; implementation of key infrastructure projects in transport, highways, communications; accelerating progress in our initiatives in agriculture, trade, industry, tourism and livelihood; securing improvements in law enforcement and police administration. We recognize that armed conflict in Mindanao has been a monster. Bred by injustice, neglect, underdevelopment, poverty, ignorance, disadvantage and economic exclusion. While we're committed to end the current armed conflict by dissuading its most ardent adherents, we are also dedicated in reducing and eliminating the main conditions that might continue to breed conflicts in the future. I realize that one week of effort even by the whole national government wouldn't solve the massive and long standing problems we face in Mindanao. But I'm hopeful that our many strong and committed partners in Mindanao's peace and development will vastly amplify our efforts.

I look to our provincial, city, municipal and barangay governments including the regional government of ARMM as the primary frontline agents for peace and development in our community.

May I take this opportunity to acknowledge these partners who are here with us today: our host mayor, Mayor Rudy Duterte; Congressman Dolfo del Rosario. Ay, Governor Dolfo del Rosario; Congressman Tony Florendo; Congressman Dimaporo; Congressman Ben Cruz of the farmers party or Butil; Region XI cord Bebot Alvarez; Mayor Roger Antalan; my Presidential Adviser for Strategic Concern, Rene De Villa; also my Senior Adviser for Mindanao Affairs, Paul Dominguez; my Presidential Assistant for Mindanao, Jess Dureza; my Consultant on local governments, Luis Santos; RDC XI Chair, Chito Ayala; Arena President, Dolly Castillo; ATO Manager, Felix San Felix.

And may I also recognize and introduce the members of the Cabinet who are joining me here today. I mentioned already Secretary Romulo; Secretary Afable of the Presidential Management Staff; Bobi Tiglao here? Mai Jimenez; Nani Braganza; Angie Reyes; and Chief AFP, Narciso Abaya; Chief PNP, Jun Ebdane; Deputy Chief PNP Virtus Gil; Southcom Commander Roy Kyamko; from the PNP, we have also general Oscar Calderon; and PNP Region XI head, General La Peña; from the Amed Forces Colonel Ubañana.

And I will also greet various city councilors, city department heads of Sangguniang Kabataan members all of whom are our partners, and head of the OMA, Sam Ampatuan.

I'm also optimistic that civil society in Mindanao including non-government and people's organizations, religious leaders and tribal chieftains would continue to provide the cause-oriented conscience in grassroots capacities for effective poverty reduction and outreach to the most disadvantaged.

And I'm sure that our business community in Mindanao will respond with entrepreneurial vigor in translating government's development policies and projects into sustainable production income and livelihood opportunities for the people.

I'd like to take this opportunity also to greet one of the generals of our industry, not captain of industry, Don Antonio Florendo for being here with us.

I know that the people of Mindanao themselves have the greatest stake and stronger commitment to a peace that they most fervently seek and a sustainable development they most surely want.

Nahibalo ko kay ako usa sa mga katawhan ug Mindanao. Isip bata nidako ko usahay sa lungsod sa San Juan, Rizal usahay sa pang-uuma ug akong lola sa Lanao. I have come sa gihapon to join the people of Mindanao secure for themselves and their children the blessings of peace and bounties of development. I come here, dili ra tungod kay ako isa sa mga bata ug Mindanao kundili sab because Mindanao is crucial to our nation's welfare.

May I also recognize Mayor Lopez of Lanao Del Sur and Mayor Barabag and other barangay captains. Ah, yes Mayor Barabag and I already I think recognized the barangay captains of Davao City. Daghang salamat sa mga barangay captains.

My administration has a sound strategy for peace and development in Mindanao. We're implementing this strategy that across many areas of action. From security to infrastructure, to education, to economic growth, to poverty reduction, to law enforcement. We're mobilizing local governments, civil society and the business community to achieve this strategy. Government is joining hands with the people themselves in attaining peace and development in Mindanao. May the almighty his name be praised bless our common undertaking.

"Mindanao muna tungo sa isang matatag na republika." unahon ug Mindanao paadto sa usa ka kusog nga republika.

Daghang salamat sa inyo tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Arrival Statement in Mindanao. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412200755/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6473&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the groundbreaking ceremony of the Panay Power Corp 40-Megawatt Expansion Project

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the groundbreaking ceremony of the Panay Power Corp 40-Megawatt Expansion Project

[Delivered in Ingore, La Paz District, Iloilo City, August 14, 2003]

I listened to him for one hour and a half. I really pity him. He's misguided and very angry. In any case, the truth and the lies are now surfacing for everyone to hear and see. For anyone to say that the Oakwood incident was a spontaneous mutiny is like saying that the Bali and the world trade center was an accident. No way.

The conspirators in the coup d' etat have no respect whatsoever for the intelligence of the Filipino people. One can only recall the antecedents days before the incident, the actuations of the leaders during the event itself, the words spoken and the means employed, as well as the evidence that is emerging, to see that this was a plain and simple attempt to overthrow the duly-constituted government by a civilian-military cabal.

I'm glad that the Feliciano commission, the Senate and the Congress decided to open the hearings to the public so that everyone who can see this arrogant and absurd attempt to cover up treason at the highest levels of the "buddy-buddy" politic. I assure the people that the wheels of justice will unravel and expose the full length and breadth of this conspiracy and exact full retribution from those who led it. Democracy will be redeemed and upheld over dictatorship.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Statement during the Groundbreaking Ceremony of the Panay Power Corp 40-Megawatt Expansion Project. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194701/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6512&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo after a 5-day visit to the U.S.A. and Europe

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

After a 5-day visit to the U.S.A. and Europe

[Delivered on September 30, 2003]

Deputy Speaker Gonzales, Deputy Speaker Espinosa, Secretary Romulo and the other Cabinet members, General Abaya and the other generals, fellow workers in government, mga minamahal kong kababayan.

First, I would like to thank Vice President Guingona for taking care of the government while I was gone. And I would like to report to you, the nation that I had a very productive trip, together with my delegation, we brought the cause of peace, security and development to important venues and events. I would like to thank my delegation, especially the legislative members – senators Nene Pimentel and Manny Villar, and congressmen Nograles, Nachura, Mitra, Bacani and Villar for contributing to the success of our visit to the United Nations to the Vatican and to the Unesco. I look forward to our continuing close partnership with the legislature in mapping out and undertaking Philippine foreign policy.

I will go to a Cabinet meeting straight from here where we shall thresh out the domestic measures necessary to exploit the opportunities we have gained. These opportunities are: first, rapidly consolidating international support for the peace and development process in Mindanao. Also, the firm global consensus against terrorism and transnational crime; the growing confidence in our political stability and our economy; and a surge in dynamism within the global community of Filipinos as a result of more jobs, more remittances and greater political empowerment.

My meeting with the Holy Father in Rome renews and strengthen my resolve to wage the peace and to help the poor of the Philippines uplift them and empower them.

Things are falling into place. Peace in Mindanao is within our grasp. Buoyed not only by the Pope's blessing but by a confluence of positive circumstances and events:

- We have the full support of the U.N. Secretary General;
- Malaysia will continue to spearhead the facilitation of the peace talks;
- The OIC countries are keenly awaiting developments with growing commitments of aid and investments;
- The U.S. Institute for Peace will work with Washington to put in concrete support for conflict-resolution.

We are paving the way for the establishment of a multi-donor trust fund that will cut in once a new Mindanao peace accord is forged. The fund is organized by the World Bank and the USAID with commitments from the Islamic Development Bank, the OPEC, the governments of Bahrain, UAE, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia. We will push the envelope on this effort as we unleash massive public resources and official development assistance for infrastructure, socioeconomic programs and autonomous capacity-building in Mindanao.

Our quest of domestic security will also be enforced by our imminent seat in the U.N. Security Council. There I intend to push the principles of collective security, multilateral approach and the rule of law. We are ready to join U.N. law enforcement and humanitarian teams in Liberia. Our involvement in global peacekeeping is just as important as our participation in the global coalition against terrorism. The restoration of strong democratic institution is indispensable to our bid to marginalize and defeat terror everywhere.

Overseas remittances in the first half of the year have already overtaken the record of last year. We are having a boom in the deployment of caregivers, teachers and medical personnel. They're sending more resources homeward as we are extending to them broader political rights and welfare programs. Filipinos are the best citizens of the world and the best citizens of the Philippines. We're a global enterprise and proud of it.

But being global doesn't simply mean business. I addressed the UNESCO conference in Paris together with the president of Italy and thanked the organization for its indispensable contributions to Philippine culture and heritage. UNESCO supports the restoration of the Banaue Rice Terraces – our Ifugao rice terraces rather – the preservation of Tubbataha reef and the documentation of the 1986 EDSA People Power revolution in the world's register of memory.

The political season seems to be in full tilt, unfortunately, and I hope it's not getting too much in the way of thinking straight about our priorities. I call on all quarters to transform the partisan flavor of current debates into something more constructive. We need everybody's contribution to the shaping of good policy, whether as a proponent or fiscalizer. Let's bring the level of discourse to policies and platforms so that our people can derive the best benefits from politics and governance.

I will continue to weave the right tapestry of foreign and domestic policies that will best serve our nation and people.

Thank You.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Arrival Statement after a 5-day Visit to the U.S.A. and Europe. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194205/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7093&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during coffee with Philippine media

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During coffee with Philippine media

[Issued at the Marque Royal, Hotel Sheraton Laguna, Nusa Dua, Bali, Indonesia, October 7, 2003]

Napunta kami dito sa ASEAN ngayon para hanapin para sa sambayanan yung biyaya ng seguridad sa ekonomiya saka pulitika. Ang isang importanteng nakamit dito ay dito sa Bali pinirmahan yung Bali Concord II. Kasi yung Bali Concord I 1976, yon ang unang ASEAN Summit, yon na nagsimula ng ASEAN at yon ang ginagamit na gabay hanggang ngayon. Ngunit ngayon meron na tayong bagong milenyo, may mga bagong hamon na wala noong 1976 kaya tamang-tama naman ginawa muli sa Bali. Kaya ito ang tutukoy ng sama-samang direksiyon ng ASEAN para sa kinabukasan.

At para sa Pilipinas ang pakay natin dito ay palakasin yung consensus ng rehiyon na labanan ang kahirapan at maisiguro ang ating bansa mula sa terorismo.

Isang pinag-usapan ko sa lahat ng pagkakataon sa ASEAN Business Summit, sa BIMP-EAGA at saka sa ASEAN Plus Three ay well... Para sa akin tatlo ang pinakaimportanteng hamon na kailangan asikasuhin dito sa miting na ito: yung patuloy na hamon ng terorismo, yung pagkakataon na magkaroon ng bagong anyo ng pangangalakal sa mundo dahil sa Cancun — congratulations! Secretary Mar Roxas — at saka yung mga bagong tensyon kagaya ng tensyon sa korean peninsula na malaki ang kinauukulan sa Pilipinas dahil Pilipinas ay malapit lamang doon. Sa lahat ng bansang ASEAN tayo ang pinakamalapit geographically sa Korea kaya tayo ang nag-aabala doon, although lahat sila nag-aabala rin. So, ito ang parati kong pinag-uusapan sa iba't-ibang forum.

Yung tungkol sa terorismo, inulit ko na anuman ang mga teoriya ng ibat-ibang mga lider kung saan nanggagaling ang terorismo alam natin na maraming recruit o pwedeng makuha ang terorista sa mga mahihirap. Kaya dapat kung lalabanan natin ang terorismo, lalabanan natin ang kahirapan. At isang paraan doon sa unang miting sinabi ko na nga na isang paraan kung papano malabanan ang terorismo ay labanan ang kahirapan. Isang paraan doon ay magsama-sama para labanan ang kahirapan. Yan ang economic community na noon pa nung 1976 yon na ang talagang unang intensyon ng ASEAN.

At yung BIMP-EAGA pinabubuhay natin. Yung BIMP-EAGA Pilipinas talaga ang tumulak noon noong 1994. Pero noong nagkaroon ng 1997 Asian crisis maraming mga programa ng mga ibat-ibang bansa ay napatigil, natigil ng panahon. At isa nga doon ay yon nawala ng momentum medyo yung BIMP-EAGA.

Pero noong ako naging pangulo ng 2001 ay doon pa sa unang miting ng ASEAN talagang isang aking pinanukala doon ay dapat buhayin muli yung BIMP-EAGA. At noong panahong iyon sabi ko para mabuhay uli yung BIMP-EAGA kailangan meron tayong financial advisor na tutulong kung papano uulong yon at pinanukala ko na kunin yung Asian Development Bank. At yon nga ang ginawa nila. Kaya marami na ring nagawa ang asian development bank lalong-lalo na sa pagpapairal ng small and medium enterprises sa BIMP-EAGA.

Pero para sa akin itong nangyari ngayon ay isang malaking hakbang na naman muli para umangat, para sumulong ang BIMP-EAGA at yon ay nagkaroon ng first summit on BIMP-EAGA. Kaya nung dumating kami noong monday nagkaroon ng summit yung apat na bansa ng bimp-eaga at lahat sila ay nagbigay sila ng kanilang paniniwala na dapat talaga buhayin muli ang BIMP-EAGA.

Kaya malaking bagay yon at pinanukala ko rin na para naman talagang umurong o sumulong...sumulong dapat meron silang senior official na ang ADB na talagang naka-focus doon magko-coordinate. Balak nga namin na i-recommend si Former ASEAN Director General Rod Severino kung libre siya. Of course, when he quit as Director General... I mean when he retired as Secretary General when his term ended, he had many opportunities. So, I don't know how tied up he is now but he would make a very good point-person for that.

Yung nakita namin na pwedeng magpabuhay sa BIMP-EAGA, unang-una yung transportation linkages: air and sea, passenger and cargo at saka... So, yon ang itutulak.

Ngayon, yung Bali Concord II, tatlo na ngayon ang pillar ng ASEAN. Noon ang pinakabinibigyan ng diin yung economic community. In fact, moving toward an economic community by the year 2020. Pero ngayon dahil sa mga bagong hamon ng panahon hindi lang economic community, security community at saka socio-cultural community. So, tatlo na ang pillars ng ASEAN. Yan ang isang napakaimportanteng pagbabago sa Bali Concord II

Yung economic security hindi naman ibig sabihin na may defense alliance yon. Yung ASEAN Regional Forum na para bang nag-evolve naturally before to discuss security issues and propose confidence-building measures, yon ang parang na-institutionalize dito sa Bali Concord II. At saka kung papano masegurado na within ourselves parating may kapayapaan. Kasi yon naman ang isang malaking naganap naman ng ASEAN all these years. Hindi nag-aaway. Hindi naglalabanan. Hindi naggi-giyera yung mga kasapi ng ASEAN.

And what makes this even more remarkable is that unlike Europe, which is quite homogeneous, ASEAN is every heterogeneous. Different religions; different cultures; different political systems; different social organizations; different historical backgrounds. And yet we've not had any wars among us all these years. Were able to settle irritants and differences very peacefully. Kaya magandang katangian yan. Kaya gusto natin ma-institutionalize yan. Kaya socio-cultural community yung understanding one another's cultures, looking for commonalities so that we can have an ASEAN spirit para mas lalong umiral yung kapayapaan. So, yon ang mga importanteng... Yon ang importansya ng Bali Concord II. At inaasahan ko na makakauwi nang tulong din sa ating laban sa kahirapan at saka laban kontra sa terorismo yung ating economic and political security.

Doon naman sa ASEAN Plus Three dahil nga sabi ko na... Ay, yung Cancun pala. That's one ano, yung fighting terrorists. Yung Cancun kasi nagkaroon ng bagong alyansa yung mga developing countries. Halos naman lahat ng ASEAN developing countries so sabi ko dapat ituloy natin itong alliance na ito. And then when we had the ASEAN Plus Three, of course, from the other side are the developed countries so we also asked them. I said, now we should reduce... They should reduce subsidies to their farm sector. They should bring down the barriers to our products.

At saka doon ko nga napag-usapan yung Korea dahil sa North Korea nag-aabala tayo sa nuclearization ng North Korea. Pero humahanap tayo ng mapayapang paraan kung papano mapigil yon at malaki ang papel ng China, Korea saka Japan doon sa six-way talks. Kaya siyempre nagpasalamat sa kanila at sana maituloy nila kahit na may tensyon ang America at saka North Korea. Kasi sila ang paraan kung papano maitutuloy ito. At sabi naman nila talagang desidido silang ituloy nang ituloy yung dialogue na yon.

Bilaterally, we had our meetings. First bilateral meeting was with Thaksin Shinawatra. And we are encouraging Thailand, because Thailand wants to set up a petroleum hub... Wants to be the petroleum hub of the region. Thailand has two coastlines. One coastline faces the middle east and the other coastline faces the south china sea. So, that's what they plan to do to build a pipeline from one coastline to another so that they will be the hub. And because of that, we said that they can have one of the spokes of their hub in Subic. So, we offered them that possible investment opportunity. And hopefully, they will be able to sign... Thailand and the Philippines will be able to sign an agreement regarding that by the APEC Summit.

And then we had a meeting with Singapore. We thanked Singapore because they agreed to the proposal that I asked Mar to work on the petrochemical industry because we had liberalized it... To my mind, in a way that will hamper the development of our petrochemical industry. So, we had to change the tariff regime and Mar had a very tough assignment there but he was able to... Because first Singapore was objecting and said we are like, like... Like we might be reversing the ASEAN direction but Mar was able to get it done and with very reasonable compensation from Singapore. So, we thank Singapore for that. You wanna elaborate?

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Opening Statement during Coffee with Philippine Media. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194134/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7400&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a press conference with local press

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a press conference with local press

[Issued at the Ballroom, Marco Polo Hotel Davao City, Davao del Sur, October 29, 2003]

Thank you, Claro.

I'd like to thank everyone who's here today in this press conference. I'm very happy to be in Davao again. According to Congressman Nograles, maybe this is the 12th time I'd been here as president. If you count before I became president, we cannot count the number of times I'd been here. That's how important Davao City is and that's how important it is to our administration.

I know that Davao is a very cosmopolitan city, and you are concerned not only with local issues but also with national issues. And I know that the number one national issue today is the issue of the impeachment raps against Supreme Court Justice Davide. Although the national media already heard my statement about that in Mati this morning, I shall reiterate my statement for the benefit of the local Davao media who were not in Mati today.

"I remain confident that the leaders of congress and the judiciary realize that this unabated controversy is causing our nation and our democratic system more harm than good.

I call for a covenant within the two branches of government to resolve this impasse under the principle that while the high court has the final authority to interpret the constitution and the laws of the land, we must also keep in mind the need for strong institutional checks and balances forged by the separation of powers among co equal branches of government.

The presidency stands for the separation of powers under the rule of law.

There is a solution to this issue and it does not lie in protracted bickering or partisan debates but in the will of everyone concerned to sacrifice personal interest or partisan concern for the supreme national interest.

Let's reach forth for the solution without blame or recrimination through principled consensus and with dignity for all concerned."

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference with Local Press. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141230/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7171&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a press conference in Misamis Oriental

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a press conference in Misamis Oriental

[Issued at the Port Management Office Conference Room Cagayan de Oro City, Misamis Oriental, October 31, 2003]

I'm happy to be here again in Cagayan de Oro, for the second time in a few day's time. And today, the occasion of my coming, is the invitation to the Mindanao Business Conference which was held here and in Tagaloan. And I'm very happy to tie up my activity in the Mindanao Business Conference by highlighting the two ports: the Cagayan de Oro port and the Mindanao container port. Both of which the funds were made available for their upgrading, even construction, the funds were made available to make Cagayan de Oro a 21st century national and international transport hub. Both of the funds for the two projects were made available in my administration.

Now, I'm very happy to be here as well in Cagayan de Oro city because Cagayan de Oro being a hub for national and international commerce is not just a city that cares about parochial concerns but also national concerns.

If I may, therefore, I would like to address the nation through the media of Cagayan de Oro, and open the press conference with a statement not on local issues but on a national issue, namely the impeachment raps against Chief Justice Davide:

The executive shall firmly hold the middle ground in this controversy. But let this never be interpreted as weakness.

To be drawn wantonly to either side of this dispute will derail the chances of a principled compromise and further erode national stability.

I shall not overact to events, as I call upon our people not to be unduly alarmed. The presidency has the will, the authority and the resources to quell any disorder or attempts at destabilization.

And we shall not hesitate to move decisively against those who will exploit this interbranch impasse to foment violence. No one is above the law.

Our crisis mechanism are in place even if we have not reached a crisis point. There is hope in dialogue. And we shall continue to pursue it while keeping our options open. We have the flexibility to change track if called for by the imperatives of national security.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141210/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7165&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference with local media

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During a Press Conference with local media

[Issued at the Green House, Polangui, Albay, November 5, 2003]

Good afternoon.

I'd like to begin by thanking the people of Albay headed by Governor Bichara and the people of Polangui and Pantao headed by Congressman Joey Salceda for their wonderful welcome that they gave me in my visit today.

I would like to thank also the governors of the various provinces of Bicol for coming here to express their support. And inasmuch as Joey Salceda, Congressman, talked not only about local matters in his original matters, in his statement, but also announced that he was withdrawing his signature in the impeachment raps against Chief Justice Davide, I would like to take this opportunity to open this conference with an update on my own efforts. Do we have a copy of the covenant?

I have tried a common solution but its meeting obstacles.

I remain hopeful of a principled way out of the impasse driven by the statesmanship of all concerned. We've made an initiative in the national interest, and we leave the house to thresh out its position under the leadership of the speaker.

Meanwhile, the executive branch will continue to take the cue from the Supreme Court on the exclusive interpretation of the law.

My focus on good governance and service is unrelenting.

I shall continue to be a unifier under the rule of law.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference with Local Media. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141127/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7529&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the resolved short-lived takeover of the NAIA Control Tower

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On the resolved short-lived takeover of the NAIA Control Tower

[Issued at the Press Briefing Room, Kalayaan Hall, Malacañang, November 8, 2003]

The situation in the Ninoy Aquino international airport has been resolved.

Nothing will ever justify the taking over of an international airport control tower and prejudice the lives of air passengers. There can be absolutely no excuse to terrorize the public in this manner.

I commend the swift and decisive response of our aviation security units to this incident. They acted firmly... They acted under firmly established contingency plans and procedures to protect our national security.

I'm glad that after a spate of high alarm, all passengers, guests and airport personnel are out of harm's way. I assure our people and the world that our airport is safe and sound.

Security and operational facilities and procedures are uninterrupted. Alternate control tower facilities have been set up, and inbound and outbound flights will proceed as scheduled.

The nature, course and magnitude of this incident show that it is not an attempt to take over the government. No unauthorized movements of troops have been detected as of this time anywhere in the country. No unusual threats directly or remotely related to the incident have been monitored.

As a precautionary measure, the people and military are on maximum alert. Checkpoints along the perimeter of metro manila have been established. Security monitoring posts are up in the provinces and key urban centers.

I ask the public to remain calm, cooperate with the authorities, and bear with the temporary inconveniences brought about by this incident.

There's no cause for alarm. The situation has been resolved. We will scale down our alerts quickly as complete normalcy is established.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Statement on the Resolved Short-Lived Takeover of the NAIA Control Tower. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141032/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7510&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference in Angono, Rizal

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo During a Press Conference in Angono, Rizal

[Delivered at the Municipal Bldg., Angono, Rizal, November 14, 2003]

Gusto ko lang ulitin yung dalawang mensaheng binigay ko itong araw na ito. Yung isang mensahe na ngayon ay sinabi ko na ang ating bansa ay sapat nang nagdusa sa lubhang pagwawatak-watak. Ako ay nanawagan sa rekonsilyasyon at paghilom bilang isang tungkuling moral. At ito ay itutuloy ko kahit na ako ay mabigo. Hinahanap ko ang linaw sa mga pag-iisip ng ating mga lider, sa ganun ay malampasan natin yung cynicism at saka yung hatred na naghahati sa ating bansa. At tuloy natatangalan sa ating taong bayan ang kapayapaan ng pag-iisip at oportunidad sa ekonomiya.

Ginagawa ko itong alok bago lumubha ang mga bagay. Dapat hindi natin maiwan na ang taumbayang pilipino ay nai-entrap sa gitna ng mga labanang pulitikal. Huwag nating kalimutan na ang taong bayan ang ating mga amo at inaasahan nilang higit na statesmanship at pagkakaisa mula sa kanilang mga lider.

Kanina naman dito sa angono, sinabi ko po ay ito: merong pattern ng panibagong destabilisasyon para sa ganun ay masabotahe ang parating na proseso ng halalan. Nananawagan ako sa taong bayan na manindigan para sa demokrasya. Rerespetuhin natin ang karapatan ng mga nagpo-protesta na ipahayag ang kanilang mga pananaw sa pulitika, mga daing ngunit iguguhit natin ang linya sa panig ng civility, lawful conduct at publikong katiwasayan.

Ako ay nananawagan para sa rekonsilyasyon ngunit pipigilan ko ang anarchy. Ako ay ibinibigay ko ang aking kamay sa mga nagbabatikos sa akin ngunit hindi ko pwedeng payagan silang pagtawanan ang batas. Ako ay hinihingi ko sa mga lider ng mga kilos protesta na sila ay idisiplina nila ang sarili nilang mga ranggo, sa kanilang mga... At maglagay ng disiplinang sa kanilang mga sumusunod sa kanila. Ang pulis, ang sundalo ay gumagawa ng maximum tolerance ngunit sila ay handa na ipatupad ang buong puwersa ng batas kung ito ay kailangan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference in Angono, Rizal. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140805/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7452&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Statement of the President: Re Lucena fire tragedy

Statement of the President: Re Lucena fire tragedy

I have the deepest sympathy for the families of the Lucena fire victims, but such tragedies could have been prevented if precautionary measures were observed.

I would like the DILG through the Bureau of Fire Protection to work with the LGUs in conducting thorough inspections of all vulnerable commercial or residential areas, especially in urban areas, to enforce compliance with fire safety measures under the law.

Let us start now and let us not relent until we can get rid of these fire traps and hazards that pose a threat to public safety.

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Statement of the President: Re Betty Sy case

Statement of the President: Re Betty Sy case

I commend the NAKTAF and all its allied units for this latest accomplishment.

We are also grateful to the ordinary citizens in the community who provided information leading to the arrest of the mastermind behind the kidnapping and murder of Ms. Sy.

This bolsters the restoration of the public's faith in our quest for criminal justice.

That the arrest of Fernando Niegas came on New Year's Day is a sign and an assurance that the country's peace and order situation will continue to look up in 2004.

Statement of the President: Re Air marshals

Statement of the President: Re Air marshals

We are prepared to deploy air marshals in PAL planes entering US territory as requested, on the basis of reciprocity.

I would like the National Security Adviser to see to it that US commercial passenger aircraft entering the Philippines are similarly covered so that we can have a two-way mechanism to check terrorist incursions.

This is important for the safety of our own nationals as well as foreign travelers, and is part of our commitment to the global fight against terror.

We shall continue to provide seamless security to air travel on the ground and on air.

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Joint Press Conference with Prime Minister Abdullah Ahmad Badawi of Malaysia

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Joint Press Conference with Prime Minister Abdullah Ahmad Badawi of Malaysia

[Released on January 20, 2004]

I am very happy and honored to welcome Prime Minister Abdullah of Malaysia to the Philippines. He's a very old friend of the Philippines. He has known the Philippines for more than 30 years, but it's an honor to welcome him for the First time as a Prime Minister.

And he's here and it is our great pleasure to have him here not only because as a person he is an old friend of the Philippines and he knows and loves the Philippines. But also because of the essential role that Malaysia plays in our efforts to find a just and lasting solution to the search and peace in Southern Philippines.

I am very honored and happy that Prime Minister Abdullah is committed to help us achieve that goal.

I am very happy that part of what we agreed on in our talks today is that we have agreed to hold a new round of exploratory talks in Kuala Lumpur by the second week of February this year.

The talks will strive to resolve outstanding issues and to advance the overall climate of peace. The Filipino people are grateful for Malaysia's unwavering support especially in providing the indispensable bridge of understanding between our government and the MILF.

Prime Minister Abdullah enjoys the trust and confidence of both sides of the domestic and global community.

The Philippines is also looking forward to the deepening of our relations between the two countries in many, many ways. And we are together not only as partners in the search for peace, we are also partners in the search for prosperity in our part of the world.

And I would also like therefore to take this opportunity to announce together with Prime Minister Abdullah that Petronas, the national oil company of Malaysia, has agreed to a joint venture with our PNOC to explore and drill for oil in offshore Mindoro. The investment is worth about 800 million pesos. This will be another fruit of our efforts to develop our indigenous energy resources

We are now, under my administration, we've been able to achieve 53 percent self-sufficiency in energy. And this exploration jointly with Petronas will help us to increase that self-sufficiency further.

I will not take much time to make any further statements because our honored guest is a precious guest, and I would like him to be the one to speak before the media today.

Excellency.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Joint Press Conference with Prime Minister Abdullah Ahmad Badawi of Malaysia. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412091119/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5498&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on her Holy Week Message

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On her Holy Week Message

[Delivered on April 5, 2004]

There is no more I can ask for on this day than for peace and solidarity among our people.

Let us celebrate the Holy Week in the tone of sacrifice, forgiveness and concern for one another.

Let us make it a time to contemplate the blessings that have come our way from the Almighty: the wholeness of our families, the peace of our communities and the unity of the Filipino despite the trials of a harsh and uncertain world.

Let us be thankful to God for the great gifts bestowed upon us.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). Statement of the President on her Holy Week Message. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412085735/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5671&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the National Elections, May 11, 2004

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On the National Elections

[Released on May 11, 2004]

Good afternoon. Mga kababayan, binabati ko ang samabayanang Pilipino sa idinaos at katatapos na mapayapa, maayos at malinis na halalan. Ipinagkakapuri ko ang sambayanang Pilipino dahil sa pagbibigay ng tunay na kahulugan at pananalig sa demokrasya. Ito ay magandang ugaling namumukod sa puso ng bawat mamamayan, pamilya, pamayanan at sektor ng bansa natin. Nagpupugay din ako sa ating mga overseas workers sa pagbibigay-halaga sa bagong tuklas sa pananagutan sa pagboto, magkakasama nating pinatunayan sa daigdig na umaalingawngaw ang tunay na kalayaan sa lahat ng sulok ng ating Republika at sa buong daigdig.

Pinupuri ko ang lahat ng nagsakatuparan ng halalan— mga guro, mga kawal, mga pulis sa matagumpay na idinaos nating botohan kahapon. Bagaman, may ilan-ilang karahasang nangyari, ang ating mga alagad ng batas ay buong giting na nanindigan laban sa anumang uri ng pandaraya at paglabag sa mga batas, habang ang ating mga guro at mga katuwang sa pagdaraos ng halalan ay walang puknat na nagsikap mula madaling-araw hanggang hating-gabi upang magawa ng tuloy-tuloy ang halalan.

Dapat pa rin tayong magbantay hanggang mabilang ang kahuli-hulihang boto at paghahayag ng kinalabasan ng halalan. Nananawagan ako sa mga kandidatong lokal na igalang ang pasiya ng bayan. Bawat isa ay kailangan maging higit na maingat, mahinahon at lalo pang gumagalang sa diwa ng demokrasya. Ito ang maningning na saglit ng pambansagng luwalhati ng ating bayan na dapat nating ipagkapuri, mahalin at pangalagaan sa lahat ng saglit.

And now for the foreign media I will say it in English.

I must congratulate the entire nation over a generally peaceful, orderly and clean elections. I am proud of the Filipino's adherence to and faith in democracy. This is a worthy trait that stands out in every citizen, family, community and sector. I must also commend our overseas workers for upholding their new found responsibility of suffrage. Together, we have proven to the world that our freedom rings in all corners of the Republic and of the world.

I commend our electoral workers, our teachers, soldiers and our police officers for the successful conduct of yesterday's polls. While, there were isolated cases of election violence, the men and women in uniform held the line against fraud and lawlessness while our teachers and election workers insured an uninterrupted process from day till night. Everyone must continue to be vigilant until the last vote is counted and the last canvass is done.

I call on the local candidates to respect the decision of their constituents. Everyone must now conduct themselves with prudence, sobriety and respect for the democratic process. This is a moment of national glory that we must cherish and preserve.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). PGMA's statement on the National Elections. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409175808/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5672&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the National Elections

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On the National Elections

[Delivered on May 11, 2004]

Good afternoon. Mga kababayan, binabati ko ang samabayanang Pilipino sa idinaos at katatapos na mapayapa, maayos at malinis na halalan. Ipinagkakapuri ko ang sambayanang Pilipino dahil sa pagbibigay ng tunay na kahulugan at pananalig sa demokrasya. Ito ay magandang ugaling namumukod sa puso ng bawat mamamayan, pamilya, pamayanan at sektor ng bansa natin. Nagpupugay din ako sa ating mga overseas workers sa pagbibigay-halaga sa bagong tuklas sa pananagutan sa pagboto, magkakasama nating pinatunayan sa daigdig na umaalingawngaw ang tunay na kalayaan sa lahat ng sulok ng ating Republika at sa buong daigdig.

Pinupuri ko ang lahat ng nagsakatuparan ng halalan— mga guro, mga kawal, mga pulis sa matagumpay na idinaos nating botohan kahapon. Bagaman, may ilan-ilang karahasang nangyari, ang ating mga alagad ng batas ay buong giting na nanindigan laban sa anumang uri ng pandaraya at paglabag sa mga batas, habang ang ating mga guro at mga katuwang sa pagdaraos ng halalan ay walang puknat na nagsikap mula madaling-araw hanggang hating-gabi upang magawa ng tuloy-tuloy ang halalan.

Dapat pa rin tayong magbantay hanggang mabilang ang kahuli-hulihang boto at paghahayag ng kinalabasan ng halalan. Nananawagan ako sa mga kandidatong lokal na igalang ang pasiya ng bayan. Bawat isa ay kailangan maging higit na maingat, mahinahon at lalo pang gumagalang sa diwa ng demokrasya. Ito ang maningning na saglit ng pambansagng luwalhati ng ating bayan na dapat nating ipagkapuri, mahalin at pangalagaan sa lahat ng saglit.

And now for the foreign media I will say it in English.

I must congratulate the entire nation over a generally peaceful, orderly and clean elections. I am proud of the Filipino's adherence to and faith in democracy. This is a worthy trait that stands out in every citizen, family, community and sector. I must also commend our overseas workers for upholding their new found responsibility of suffrage. Together, we have proven to the world that our freedom rings in all corners of the Republic and of the world.

I commend our electoral workers, our teachers, soldiers and our police officers for the successful conduct of yesterday's polls. While, there were isolated cases of election violence, the men and women in uniform held the line against fraud and lawlessness while our teachers and election workers insured an uninterrupted process from day till night. Everyone must continue to be vigilant until the last vote is counted and the last canvass is done.

I call on the local candidates to respect the decision of their constituents. Everyone must now conduct themselves with prudence, sobriety and respect for the democratic process. This is a moment of national glory that we must cherish and preserve.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). PGMA's Statement on the National Elections. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615133523/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5672&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Mid-Year Briefing with Columnists and Broadcasters (Joint MOPC and Tuesday Breakfast Club Forum) Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Mid-Year Briefing with Columnists and Broadcasters (Joint MOPC and Tuesday Breakfast Club Forum)

[Delivered at the La Dolce Fontana Restaurant, Greenhills, San Juan, September 7, 2004]

Greetings everyone!

For the first time in a long while, our people are united in common purpose to work together as patriots to contribute to the new Philippines. The road will not be easy but the bumps will lessen over time and the slope will be less steep.

This is a stark difference from the time I assumed the presidency three years ago — the country was on the edge, politically, economically and socially. My job at the time was to stabilize the nation and provide a calm platform from which to grow.

And growth we have had. The overall economy rose by 6.35 percent in the first half of 2004. It's the highest it's ever been I should note, in 16 years. At a time when there are many naysayers at home and abroad in the Philippines, it is important to understand that much is going right, and our resolve to make things even better is solid.

Today, I believe we are poised for the success that this nation truly deserves and our people are more than ready to call for change. Change for a new, hopeful and more modern nation.

The Philippines is ready for a 21st century economy, based on modern financial and transport systems, an open and transparent business environment, and a government that will live within its means.

We're a nation of remarkable resilience, endowed with deep natural resources, a young and motivated work force, a dynamic democracy and a growing economy.

I've always believed that the businessmen and women of the Philippines and our international stakeholders have been the backbone of this effort to build a new and prosperous Philippines.

And today, we are joined by the support of the entire nation. More than ever, the people understand the importance of the economy to their lives, and the need for fundamental reform, if we are to live up to our full potential as a nation, to offer hope to hardworking Filipino workers.

I'm therefore confident and optimistic. But I cannot do it alone. I need every single person, company and leader to continue to do their part with greater commitment to unlock the concealed wonders of this nation, create a new middle class, and eliminate poverty.

Indeed, it is a challenge and I don't underestimate the obstacles to change. We must pass vital legislation in congress to raise much needed fiscal revenues and to remove the obstacles to increased investments and growth.

To meet these challenges head on, I've put forward a series of sweeping reform packages that, taken together, will fundamentally strengthen what is weak and further invest in what is strong.

Every sector of the economy and society has been accounted for in my government's five reform packages that include job creation and economic growth; energy independence; social justice and basic needs; education and youth opportunity; and anti-corruption and good governance. Each of these initiatives includes a combination of cabinet department action, executive orders, legislation and public/private sector partnership. They are interconnected and comprehensive but also open to suggestions for improvements from all entities, political or economic, who have a stake in our success.

To our strengths, I will bolster education, invest in infrastructure and encourage greater investments all over the country such as logistics investments in Clark and Subic economic zones; investments in expressways and railways in Luzon; business process outsourcing in Cebu and Davao; tourism investments in the Visayas and Palawan; agri-business investments in Mindanao and North Luzon; and ports throughout the archipelago, to name only a few.

To our weaknesses, I plan to provide more teeth to the enforcement capabilities of revenue agencies such as the bureau of internal revenue and regulatory institutions to create a truly modern, transparent and world-class revenue and financial systems.

In the area of endemic corruption, I'm adding values formation to the lifestyle checks that have been noted by the world bank as a commendable effort to weed out official corruption. I'm building an anti-corruption capability modeled on Hong Kong's ICAC. The national government has increased the budget of the office of the ombudsman to enable it to build capacity and train up its team of investigators who can stand up to the challenge of well-paid private attorneys.

I ask our citizens to unite in common purpose and change the culture of corruption that besets government and commercial enterprises alike. We must all work together as patriots and nationalists in our schools, places of worship and the workplace to build a culture of honesty and integrity by rewarding hard work over easy gain.

We will aggressively pursue restructuring and reforming the energy sector, which aims to: first, plug the big hole in our consolidated fiscal position; second, privatize the power generation and transmission operations of NAPOCOR; and third, lead the way to increase investments in new energy-related projects.

And most importantly, concerning sound fiscal management, I am paring back our government to live within its means by eliminating what is old and inefficient and reallocating funds into areas of vital investments that will build a strong foundation for the future. A consolidated fiscal budget by the time I step down as president in 2010 can only mean reduced spending for debt service and greater allocation for public services and infrastructure.

It's not easy to take on entrenched interests that can strangle government bureaucracy or selfishly propel private gain. There are many generations of neglect and abuse to be weeded out. Armed with patience and dogged persistence, I am peeling back the layers one by one, ever mindful for those who want to undermine my sincere efforts to bring our nation back into fighting form.

Let there be no mistake: I will move this nation forward and I will take on whatever vested interests stand in my way. If these interests believe they can destabilize or sabotage our efforts, they better think twice. Our people are behind me. I have their mandate, and I'm here to serve that mandate for our nation's best interest.

I'll continue to aggressively link the Philippines to the world of commerce and trade, and to bring the best practices of the world to the Philippines, just as the best products, services, and skilled human resources of the Philippines go out to the world.

I'm so proud of this nation, its people and our many friends around the world who continue to invest in our nation and believe in the promise of the Philippines.

With your help and determination, we, at long last, will bring forth a new modern nation that will lift up its people while reaching out to the world. Our time has come.

Thank you very much.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Mid-Year Briefing with Columnists and Broadcasters (Joint MOPC and Tuesday Breakfast Club Forum). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615133217/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5697&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the 5th Asia-Europe Meeting

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: At the 5th Asia-Europe Meeting

[Delivered on October 8, 2004]

Mr. Chairman:

It is timely for us to agree on the future of ASEM because the coming years will see the redefinition of the role of multilateral and inter-regional organizations like ASEM in promoting common interests. The initiative for ASEM was proposed by Singapore in 1994, adopted by ASEAN in 1995, and implemented in the Bangkok Summit in 1996. The objective was to establish and clear and open channels of dialogue between Europe and Asia – the “missing link” in the triangular global relations between Europe, America and Asia – complementing what Asia had already established with America within the APEC framework.

It is now 16 years since the Singapore initiative. I agree with our summit Chairman Prime Minister Khai’s proposal to further revitalize the ASEM and substantiate the ASEM process, moving towards enhanced cooperation with specific goals and results-programs and projects. What might some of these specific be? Let me express some ideas by way of the Philippines’ experience with ASEM.

Late last month in our financial district, I opened a beautiful state-of-the-art museum which featured among other treasures a rare and valuable exhibit of authentic antique Filipino costumes, never seen before, discovered in the storage boxes of European Museums under the auspices of ASEM, particularly through a commendable project of the Asia-Europe Museum network or ASEMUS called “Unearthing Philippine Past in European Museums”. ASEMUS is a model of ASEM cooperation to preserve national cultures. What I am saying is that ASEM has provided the Philippines with a forum where it can increase civil society and cultural networks with Asian and European interests. Similarly, ASEM can provide Asia and Europe with a forum where we can engage in substantive political dialogue on international issues of common concern, like a dialogue of civilizations in order to transform the threat of religious warfare and terrorism into an opportunity for interfaith understanding; or strengthen economic relations through trade and investment facilitation like what is envisioned in APEC for Asia and America, cooperation in sanitary and phytosanitary standards, customs procedures, dialogue on WTO issues and Small and Medium Enterprises promotion; or establish cooperation between our two economic blocs in various sectors which can facilitate human resource development, technology transfer, and capacity-building programs; or formulate initiatives which can further our respective countries’ strategic interests and promote a positive image for our respective countries and region, such as providing Myanmar with the opportunity to engage the rest of the world.

In order to coordinate, rationalize and sustain such cooperation, especially with our increased membership, a permanent ASEM Secretariat may be necessary. The Philippines is willing to host such a Secretariat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). THE FUTURE OF ASEM: Statement delivered by President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo at the 5th Asia-Europe Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615133125/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5705&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During a Press Conference

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, November 11, 2004]

Good afternoon.

This morning at 2:00 a.m. the House of Representatives passed the Lateral Attrition Bill on second reading. This bill will allow the government to weed out scalawags and non-performers in the revenue agencies, and reward those who work hard to fill up our coffers and grow the economy.

The full cooperation and patriotic response of our legislators is the fulcrum that will allow our fiscal problem to be turned around. Senate President Drilon and Speaker De Venecia are spearheading this valiant effort through singleminded will and cooperation.

I thank Senator Ralph Recto and Congressman Jesli Lapus, chairs of the Senate and House committee on ways and means, respectively. I also thank Congressman Suarez, sponsor of the lateral attrition bill in the House. Senator Recto has given his assurance that he will report out the Alcohol and Cigarette Tax Bill on the floor by early next week, at about the same time Congressman Lapus will get out the House version of the fiscal incentives bill to the floor. Their committees are doing a gallant deed for our nation and our people.

In the meantime, I have asked Secretary Boncodin to allocate an amount of 100 million pesos to bolster our anti-smuggling campaign. We will continue to clean up the customs service, beef up its human resources, and sharpen its capability to bring smugglers to justice. I will take this fight down the road and allow no one to stand in the way.

With certainty and optimism, I declare, that our consolidated campaign for reforms in solidarity with Congress, the business community, the local governments and all other concerned sectors is inexorably moving forward. Our unity and teamwork will continue to shore up confidence in the economy and the cutting edge in the relentless fight against poverty.

Now, I've asked my economic managers: Secretary Neri, Boncodin and Amatong to be here. Secretary Purisima is out of the country on a BPO investment mission.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615132957/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5748&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during her visit to the NDCC Headquarters

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During her visit to the NDCC Headquarters

[Delivered at the NDCC Headquarters, Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, December 3, 2004]

I'd like to call this meeting to order. Can we have some silence please.

I'd like to begin with a soundbite that we can share for the whole country:

It's a time for the country to come together. For individuals to do heroic deeds together. For everyone to help in whatever way for all to reach out to those who need help. This tragedy will unite this country, together as one nation we will rise from the devastation.

I'm grateful to all those who've poured their hearts and energies into this effort – our government workers, volunteers, the media, the uniformed services and the unnamed heroes from all levels of the national community.

This is a time to show ourselves and to show the world the solidarity, resiliency and the self-reliance and communities that can clasp hands to meet misfortune.

The manpower and resources of government are stretched thinly, but I'm proud that volunteers and private resources have filled the gap.

We need one great heave to deliver the relief supplies, find the missing, rescue the isolated, feed the hungry and shelter the homeless.

Let's do it now with unity of mind and purpose we can muster as one nation and one people.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). PGMA's Statement during her visit to the NDCC Headquarters. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615132841/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5759&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the signing of Accountability Reform Law

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
During the signing of Accountability Reform Law

[Issued at the Ceremonial Hall, January 25, 2005]

Speaker De Venecia, Deputy Speaker Raul Del Mar, Majority Floor Leader Boy Nograles, Principal Authors and Sponsors of the Attrition Law from the Senate, Senator Recto, Senator Ponce Enrile, from the House, Congressman Suarez, Congressman Lapuz. I'd like to greet also Senator Lito Lapid and all the Congressmen and Congresswomen who are here today, Secretary Ermita, and the members of the Executive Branch, ladies and gentlemen.

I thank Congress and the Senate for passing the Attrition Law which I like to call the accountability reform law. I also congratulate those in the legislative and executive branch who did the complete staff work that is so important to the work of economic legislation.

I thank the economic community, local and international, for acknowledging our legislative-executive partnership for reform by their putting their money where their mouth is so that the peso has been strengthening and the stock market has been rallying, while Asian stocks are sliding, Philippine stocks are showing strength. And I thank the congressmen and the senators for that.

I hope that by tomorrow at the latest, the house will pass the VAT.

And I'd like to assure our revenue agencies that we are doing our best to help you meet and go beyond your targets upon the commendation of Senate President Drilon. Nitz Amatong, our representative in the monetary board put in a resolution which the Central Bank approved and that is to give forward-looking amnesty in the sense that those who will pay 20 percent more than last year's taxes will be exempted from audit. That should make BIR Willy Parayno and his whole crew very happy.

The buoyancy of the economy combined with an equitable revenue program and a strong fight against corruption are setting the stage for a decisive turn around that will bring in investments and jobs for our people. From the start, we have assiduously worked with Congress to build in the safety nets to cushion the impact of new tax measures on the poor, should there be any. We are willing to listen to all well-meaning proposals in this direction whether these come from administration allies or opposition or various groups that have the interest of the people in mind. There should be no divisions between pro-business or populist advocates. We must all be for one, united stable and prosperous nation.

Congratulations and thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Opening Statement During the Signing of Accountability Reform Law. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412082401/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3061&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During a Press Conference

[Issued at the Heroes' Hall, February 11, 2005]

I'd like to thank the Senate for passing the people's budget that will continue to fuel our 10-point pro-poor agenda to create jobs, build the vital infrastructure to draw in more investments, and bring more basic services to the needy in communities far and wide. I'm confident that this budget will draw its full force from the revenue measures that are now on stream in the upper chamber. We're going full steam ahead in setting our fiscal house on firm foundations, from which we can boost business confidence and enterprise at all levels. Now is the time to strike out boldly in our reforms to notch up our gains every passing day.

We must break the back of corruption as our economic gains move forward. The anti-corruption campaign is a gate to economic confidence that must have the full support and participation of the people. This isn't only a matter of directly cleansing the bureaucracy but a campaign for moral values among the entire citizenry. We will match every ounce of political resolve to pass our fiscal measures with the equal resolve to challenge corruption in all levels. This is a strategic campaign that will be fought to the finish.

Nais ko magpasalamat sa senado sa kanilang pagpasa ng budget ng taong-bayan, na patuloy tutustusan ang ating sampung-puntong agenda para sa mahihirap na magbibigay ng trabaho, magtatayo ng kina-kailangang imprastrakturang aakit ng marami pang investment, at magdadala ng batayang serbisyo sa mga nangangailangan na komunidad kung saan-saan. Matibay ang aking paniniwala na palalakasin ang budget nito ng mga panukalang buwis na kumikilos ngayon sa senado. Walang pagod nating nilalatag ang matibay na pundasyon ng ating maayos na pananalaping publiko upang lumakas ang kumpiyansa at sigasig ng negosyo sa lahat ng antas. Panahon na upang ibayuhin ang ating mga reporma para humakbang tungo sa tagumpay sa bawat araw.

Kailangan sakalin natin ang katiwalian habang isinusulong natin ang ekonomiya. Ito ang mag-aangat sa loob ng mga investor na kailangan ang walang humpay na suporta ng taong-bayan. Kailangan dito hindi lamang ang paglilinis ng mga tanggapan ng pamahalaan, kundi pati ang pagbabagong-asal ng buong sambayanan. Tutumbasin natin ang sigasig sa pagsusulong ng mga panukalang buwis na walang tigil na pagtuligsa sa katiwalian sa lahat ng antas. Hindi tayo susuko sa ating pakikibaka.

Kaya itong araw na ito inimbata ko si Acting Secretary Manny Relampagos ng budget para kung kailangan may tanong kayo tungkol sa budget. At I've also asked Secretary Reyes, who is handling our anti-smuggling and our anti-drug campaign, to join us so you can ask him questions about those two campaigns against corruption.

I've asked incoming secretary of public works, Jun Ebdane to come and tell you if you'd like to hear from him what are his plans to fight corruption in the DPWH.

I've also asked retired General Al Dagudag of DENR, the task force on anti-illegal logging to come here to answer your questions, if you have any, on our fight against corruption in that area of forestry.

I'd like to extend my deepest sympathy to the family of Colonel Villanueva and the rest of the soldiers who've given up life and limb in the fight against terror and in restoring law and order for the people of Sulu. Their gallantry in combat brings deep pride and prestige to the command at a time that the Filipino soldier must be seen at his or her finest.

I also sympathize with the civilian families that have been displaced by this isolated conflict. A humanitarian partnership between our national and local governments is working on the ground to care for those displaced by hostilities. The peace of mind of the people is paramount even as we press on to dismantle the terrorist lairs.

Taus-puso akong nakikiramay sa pamilya ni Coronel Villanueva at sa mga mag-anak ng iba pang kawal na nasawi o nasugatan sa paglaban sa terorismo at pagtatanggol ng kapayapaan at batas para sa mga mamamayan ng Sulu. Nagdadala ang kagitingan nila sa labanan ng malaking karangalan at papuri sa mga sundalong Pilipino sa panahong ito na dapat siyang tingalain at igalang. Nakikiisa rin ako sa mga pamilyang sibilyan na napipilitang lumikas dahil sa labanan. Dudulog sa kanila ang mga ahensiya ng gobyernong pambansa at lokal na nagtutulungan alang-alang sa mga nag-alsa balutan. Pinakamahalaga ang mapanatag ang loob ng taong-bayan habang binubuwag natin ang mga lungga ng mga terorista.

So I've asked also Vice Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces, Aris Delos Santos to join — Delos Reyes, excuse me — to join us today to represent General Abu, who is inspecting troops in Lucena, so he can answer questions if you have any about the battle in Sulu.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412082118/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3071&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the issue of the tape recordings

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On the issue of the tape recordings

[Issued at the Study Room, Malacañang, June 27, 2005]

Mga Minamahal kong Kababayan,

For the last several weeks, the issue of the tape recordings has spun out of control. Tonight, I want to set the record straight.

You deserve an explanation from me, because you are the people I was elected to serve.

As you recall, the election canvassing process was unnecessarily slow even after the election results were already in and the votes had been counted. I was anxious to protect my votes and during that time had conversations with many people, including a COMELEC official. My intent was not to influence the outcome of the election, and it did not. As I mentioned, the election had already been decided and the votes counted. And as you remember, the outcome had been predicted by every major public opinion poll, and adjudged free, fair and decisive by international election observers, and our own NAMFREL.

That said, let me tell you how I feel personally. I recognize that making any such call was a lapse in judgment. I am sorry. I also regret taking so long to speak before you on this matter. I take full responsibility for my actions, and to you and to all those good citizens who may have had their faith shaken by these events. I want to assure you that I have redoubled my efforts to serve the nation and earn your trust.

Nagagambala ako. Maliwanag na may kakulangan sa wastong pagpapasya ang nangyaring pagtawag sa telepono. Pinagsisisihan ko ito ng lubos. Pinananagutan ko nang lubusan ang aking mga ginawa at humihingi ako ng tawad sa inyo, sa lahat ng mga butihing mamamayan na nabawasan ng tiwala dahil sa mga pangyayaring ito. Ibig kong tiyakin sa inyo na lalo pa akong magsisikap upang maglingkod sa bayan at matamo ang inyong tiwala.

I took office with a mandate to carry out a plan for the nation. Since that time, I've focused on making the tough but necessary decisions to make up for years of economic neglect. We passed a comprehensive fiscally responsible national budget; raised new and necessary revenues to reinvest in the people, and implemented new anti-corruption measures that have led to the highest collection of taxes in history.

Nothing should stand in the way of this work, or the next phase of my reform agenda, which includes new investments in education and social services with our new revenues, and an expansion of our successful anti-corruption and lifestyle checks.

That is why I want to close this chapter and move on with the business of governing.

I ask each and every one of you to join hands with me in a show of unity, to help forge One Philippines, where everyone is equal under the law, and where everyone has the opportunity to use their God-given talents to make a better life.

Our nation is strong and getting stronger. The progress is steady and I ask you to walk with me on this journey to rebuild our great nation.

I remain your humble servant and promise you that I will fulfill my constitutional oath of office to serve the people to the best of my ability.

God Bless the Philippines!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Statement on the Issue of the Tape Recordings. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412080530/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5068&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a press conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a press conference

[Issued at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 27, 2005]

Thank you.

Good morning everyone.

I'll make an opening statement and then I'll be happy to take some questions. So, magsisimula ako ng salitang pambukas, tapos noon sasagot ako ng ilang mga tanong.

In my State of the Nation Address, I made it clear that every man and woman should strive for one nation, one people, one Philippines. Sabi ko sana lahat ay magsikap para magkaroon tayo ng isang bansa, isang sambayanan, isang Pilipinas. And to achieve the full promise of one nation, we must deliver many things. Sabi ko nga meron tayong dalawang bahagi... Dalawang klaseng Pilipinas: 'yung Pilipinas na handa nang umangat ang ekonomiya, 'Yung Pilipinas na 'yung ating sistema ng pulitika ay lalung sumasama ng sumasama. 'Yung sa unang Pilipinas, the Philippines that's poised for take off, what I said is that we must deliver for the young of the nation — education. They're our hope and our inspiration, they're our tomorrow. And we must provide our youth with world class education. Help them get a decent paying job when they graduate or even before they graduate. And put in place a modern responsive government to help them succeed and to move the country forward, not hold it back.

Kaya sinabi ko isang malaking kailangan gawin natin ay para sa kinabukasan. At 'yung kinabukasan nga ng ating bansa ay ating mga kabataan na dapat tama ang kanilang edukasyon, 'yung magbibigay ng trabaho para sa kanila. At hindi lang yon at magaganap pa rin nila 'yung hangarin ng bawat pamilya na magtapos ang anak sa kolehiyo.

Dito nga sa isang Pilipinas, 'yung Pilipinas ng ekonomiya, Phase Two of my economic plan is underway and is designed to deliver on the education, jobs, and of course, 'yung beyond Phase 2, 'yung bagong sistema ng ating pulitika. 'Yung sinasabi kong edukasyon nga, sinabi ko na na gusto ko sana na maayos 'Yung ating pre-need industry dahil ito ay naging paraan na ng buhay sa ating bansa. Milyung pamilyang humahangad na ganun ang magiging susi nila sa edukasyon ng kanilang anak. Kaya kailangan ayusin natin ito. At saka 'yung kino-combine natin 'yung hangarin na magkaroon ng... magtapos sa kolehiyo sa vocational technical school para mas madaling makahanap ng trabaho. "Yung... pero 'yung sinasabi ko talaga na kailangan baguhin ang ating sistema kasi umaangat, Handa ng umangat 'yung isang Pilipinas. 'Yung isang Pilipinas naman ay lalung nagpapahirap sa ating bansa.

'Yung... babalik ako doon sa Phase 2 ng ating ekonomiya. It's built on the hard work of Phase One when we tackled the budget, fiscal restraint and new revenues. And I am thankful that we have already started to implement the alcohol and cigarette taxes. and I'm hoping that... I've asked Secretary Gary Teves to make sure that soon the rules for the lateral attrition law will be in place because that will give us a lot of improvements in our tax system.

'Yung ating mga gagawin dito sa ating bagong mga paraan para mapondohan ang ating pamahalaan ay sinabi ko na kung saan natin ilalagay dito sa Phase Two. 'Yung ating pag-ayos ng ating imprastruktura na kailangan ng mga namumuhunan para maganda ang negosyo at makakabigay ng mas maraming trabaho. At saka 'yung edukasyon, 'yung ating pagtayo ng paaralan ay mas malaki kaysa sa dati at itutuloy natin ito at ako ay... sa ating... compared to sa ginawa na natin talagang kaya natin maisarado 'yung ating classroom gap sa loob ng kasalukuyang administrasyon basta importante na double shift din ang ating eskuwela para full utilization. Doon naman sa high school, kaysa magtatayo ng mga bagong paaralan dahil meron naming excess capacity rin 'yung mga private high schools, eh voucher system ang mas mura kaysa pagtatayo ng mga bagong paaralan.

Ito ang nakikita nating paraan to make the best use of the resources that we have. Because even if we are able to collect more taxes now, it doesn't mean that we should be wasteful. We should still exercise fiscal restraint.

At 'yung mga trabaho, alam naman ni Bobi, 'no? 'Yung ating bagong microfinance funding. Meron tayong dagdag na microfinance funding. Three hundred million coming from the Quedancor, the Land Bank through the Quedancor, 100 million to the National Livelihood Support Fund, and those are ready. The one that's about to be ready is 600 million from the NDC. But I hope that our NGO and microfinance conduits can really already start sourcing from the initial 400 million available.

'Yung importante rin para sa ating trabaho ay 'yung two million new hectares of land for agri-business. So infrastructure so that big investors will come, and also reducing red tape and corruption that the businessmen encounter. And then the microfinance will still continue to develop three million new entrepreneurs and two million new hectares of land for agri-business, itutuloy natin yuon.

And I also ask Congress, as you know, 'yung pre-need at saka 'yung anti- terrorism law, yon ang hinihingi natin sa Kongreso. At siyempre kailangan ayusin din natin 'yung ating problema ng enerhiya at sama na doon 'yung kuryente. Kaya napakaimportante 'yung ating mga panukalang batas sa renewable and indigenous energy.

Sabi ng Central Bank, foreign direct investment for the first quarter was up 65 percent from last year. At tignan naman niyo 'yung stock market, it's still... today, I just pass my monitor, and the stock market is still doing well and as the last survey of employment showed — Bobi, hindi ba we had a reduction of 200,000 net unemployment? 'Yung talagang kailangan ayusin natin 'yung problema ng enerhiya dahil ito ay nanggagaling sa labas ng ating bansa. Kaya si Secretary Lotilla ay inaatasan ko na 'yung ating mga reporma para maging mas... meron tayong kasarinlan sa enerhiya ay gawin niya at kung papano maiwasan ang lubhang pagtaas ng presyo, kung papano bigyan ng ginhawa. ito ay importanteng-importante, 'yung energy conservation. Kaya pumunta ako doon sa isang neighborhood noong isang gabi para ipahayag 'yung isang malaking puwedeng panggalingan ng pag-iimpok. at yon na nga 'yung gagamit ng fluorescent kaysa incandescent lamps.

Iinaatasan ko rin ang ating bagong Secretary of Trade and Industry na apurahin na niya 'yung trade agreement sa Hapon at saka magsimula na ng negosasyon ng trade agreement sa Amerika.

Talagang napaka... gaya ng sabi ko sa aking State of the Nation Address, talagang napakahati ang ating bansa for a long time. The nation has been divided and there's the division between Metro Manila and the provinces. There's the division between the haves and the have nots. There's the division of a system of Justice. But the deepest division is the division between the Philippines that's poised for economic take off and the Philippines that is deteriorating in its political system.

So ito ang kailangan nating asikasuhin. 'Yung ituloy natin 'yung reporma sa ekonomiya pero ang pinakamabigat na reporma ay nagawa na. Pero ang mabigat na reporma sa sistema ng ating pulitika ito ay kailangan nating gawin. And I'd like to assure everyone that I am keeping the faith, applying the rule of law, depending our democratic way of life. We're poised to fly if we would only stop weighing down our wings with the burdens of our own making.

Kaya ako ay nagpapasalamat. And now I will take a few question.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Opening Statement During a Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412063113/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5088&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during an Informal Meeting of Leaders of the Co-Sponsoring States on Inter-Religious, Inter-Cultural and Inter-Civilization Dialogue and Cooperation

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During an Informal Meeting of Leaders of the Co-Sponsoring States on Inter-Religious, Inter-Cultural and Inter-Civilization Dialogue and Cooperation (Inter-Faith Cooperation for Peace Dialogue)

[Delivered at the ECOSOC Chamber, U.N. Headquarters New York City, USA, September 13, 2005]

I thank your excellencies for accepting our invitation.

Your presence today demonstrate the importance we all give to the focus of our discussion today — the promotion of peace as well as to promote development.

I wish to thank the Honorable Koichiro Matsuura, Director General of the UNESCO and the Honorable Dr. Ekmeleddin Ihsanoglu, Secretary General of the Organization of the Islamic Conference.

Let me also welcome observer-delegation present here this afternoon. Excellencies, our meeting will have simultaneous translation in all U.N. languages. We will try to have two rounds of discussions time permitting. The first will be national statements and the second will be additional comments. If time also permits, we will invite delegates from our brother delegation to take part in our discussion.

Before we adjourn, we will adopt a declaration recommended to us by our senior of co-solidarity. Terrorists: ways to instigate a religious war. They camouflage their evil designs by invoking religious prejudice in the hope of heightening cultural conflict for a clash of civilizations. We must make this instead an opportunity to forge religious understanding, ecumenism and solidarity. In this scenario, religious leaders can speed up dialogue and reconciliation. We should invite them as partners in the peace-making process.

The role of inter-faith dialogue to restore peace in Southern Philippines is an experience we would like to share with the world. The Bishop Tulaga forum, our format for inter-faith dialogue, was gilded in good and mutual understanding and reconciliation between Christians and Muslims.

The Philippine government has adopted inter-faith dialogue as an official policy contained in the Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan, our framework for governance. Indeed, in governance as well as in searching for peace, inter-faith understanding involves considering religious sensitivities in development policy. For instance, Muslims are sensitive about collecting interest on loans. Catholics are sensitive about artificial birth control. Such sensitivities will be addressed.

In the case of Muslim creditors of Muslim financing, understanding and promoting Islamic banking make it easier to fund economic endeavors in the Muslim areas of our country. Thus, we are undertaking efforts to rehabilitate the Pagalamatan in Muslim Mindanao so that there will be a bank catering to the sensitivities of our Muslim population. And speaking of population, understanding the deep Catholicism of the vast majority of our people, reduces the resistance to family planning of the poor for development.

Accordingly, the united nations funding given to the Philippine national government for reproductive health project will be dedicated to train our married couples in the biddings of the age of technology which the world health organization has found effective even compared to artificial contraceptives.

Indeed, excellencies, as we integrate inter-faith understanding in development policy, inter-faith dialogues becomes more effective in resolving conflict and promoting peace.

Now, excellencies, I go back to my role as presiding officer of this summit meeting. And first on my list of speakers is His Excellency General Pervez Musharraf, President of Pakistan.

You have the floor, Excellency.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Opening Statement during an Informal Meeting of Leaders of the Co-Sponsoring States on Inter-Religious, Inter-Cultural and Inter-Civilization Dialogue and Cooperation (Inter-Faith Cooperation for Peace Dialogue). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412062840/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5168&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the United Nations Security Council Summit

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo During the United Nations Security Council Summit

[Delivered at the UNSC Chamber, U.N Headquarters New York City, USA, September 14, 2005]

The 5,261st meeting of the security council is called to order.

The provisional agenda for this meeting is before the council in document S/ Agenda 5261 which reads “Threats to international peace and security.” Unless I hear any objection I shall consider the agenda adopted.

The agenda is adopted.

I am pleased to acknowledge the participation in the Summit Meeting of the Security Council of the heads of state or government, ministers for foreign affairs, and other distinguished representatives of the security council member-states.

We all greatly appreciate the spirit of cooperation which has motivated and imbued this very important meeting.

I would like to take this opportunity to express our deepest concerns and sympathies to the American people led by President Bush for the loss of lives and damage to properties inflicted by Hurricane ‘Katrina.’ we are all confident that America will overcome this natural disaster.

It is man-made disasters like terrorism and conflict that continue to elude a comprehensive solution.

The U.N. charter was born because of conflict. And its job continues to be to prevent conflict among other things. Although the charter did not foresee the threat of terror form today, it is adequate to provide appropriate means to meet this challenge through the security council.

In Madrid last March, the Secretary General acknowledged the need for a principled comprehensive strategy to fight terrorism globally.

Our job in this August body today is to pass a resolution to support that comprehensive strategy as well as a resolution to prevent conflict especially in Africa. Because we are the only body in the United Nations whose resolutions are binding on member-states, this high council must provide the leadership for effective solutions to the problems of terrorism and conflict.

The security council meeting at summit level will now begin its consideration of the questions of threats to international peace and security. Members of the council have before them documents S/2005/577 and S/2005/578 which contain the texts of the two draft resolutions prepared in the course of the council’s prior consultations.

In accordance with the understanding reached earlier among members, the Security Council will take action on the two draft resolutions before it prior to hearing statements from the Secretary General and council members. Accordingly, I shall put the draft resolutions to a vote one after the other.

Well, those in favor of the draft resolution contained in document S/2005/577 concerning the prevention of incitement to terrorism, please raise their hand.

The result of the voting is as follows: the draft resolution received 15 votes in favor. The draft resolution has been adopted unanimously as resolution 1624 of 2005.

Well, those in favor of the draft resolution contained in document S/2005/578 concerning the prevention of conflict particularly in Africa, please raise their hand.

The result of the voting is as follows: the draft resolution received 15 votes in favor. The draft resolution has been adopted unanimously as resolution 1625 of 2005.

I now invite the Secretary General, His Excellency, Mr. Kofi Annan to take the floor.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Opening Statement during the United Nations Security Council Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615132724/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5139&Itemid=38

Closing Statement: President Arroyo during the United Nations Security Council Summit

Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the United Nations Security Council Summit

[Delivered at the UNSC Chamber, U.N. Headquarters New York City, USA, September 14, 2005]

I thank Minister Matsimura for his statement.

Excellencies, as the secretary general said in Madrid last march, terrorism is a threat to all states, to all peoples which can strike anywhere, anytime. Like many countries, the Philippines has been struck by the pain of terror but we have fought back.

Since the international war on terror started in 2001 almost 4,000 terrorists in the Philippines had been killed or captured mostly from the New People's Army but also including about 300 Abu Sayyaf Group members and about 40 international terrorist personalities.

We have fought back with the vigilance of ordinary citizens, a strong bilateral and regional security network, our strategic alliance with the United States, and the tools of inter-faith dialogue.

A few days after 9/11, the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia entered into an operational agreement to protect our common seas from terrorism.

Other ASEAN countries subsequently joined us in that agreement. We've been able to dissuade the rebels in Mindanao from choosing terrorism as a tactic to achieve their goals. We've isolated the insurgent formations from the terrorist cells, negotiating with the former and hunting down the latter without spawning collateral conflict.

Our peace process is perhaps the only one in the world that formally incorporates an anti-terrorism component. Alongside our ceasefire agreement, we have an agreement to cooperate in the interdiction of terrorist cells through the exchange of intelligence information and orders of battle. To deny terrorist the means to carry out their attacks, we have found it practical to recognize the leadership of the United States in the war against terror.

We work closely with the United States on intelligence and security matters and in intercepting clandestine fund transfers to the Anti-money Laundering Law which we enacted after 9/11.

To develop our state capacity to prevent terrorism, the Philippines has also found it practical to accept American assistance for our ongoing defense reforms and soon for Philippine law enforcement reforms.

Therefore, let me take this opportunity to declare Philippine support for the United States proliferation security initiative.

The United State is the natural leader in this war on terror. America was the first and remains the biggest victim of terrorism in this present era. It's the most motivated and the best equipped member-state in the fight against terrorism.

Thus, it would be practical for the Security Council Counter Terrorism Committee to undertake a special intelligence coordinating project with the united states to consolidate international sources of information relevant to the war against terrorism including an immediate inventory of private organizations that may be working as fronts for terrorist activities and a watch list of governments abetting or directly involved in terrorism and related criminal acts.

Those found culpable should face the full force of U.N. sanctions.

The fight against terror and the prevention of conflict must thrive on synergy, creativity, strategic alliances for peace and sturdy parameters of collective vigilance.

May God bless our work in our own countries and in this hall, and all of mankind that waits upon our courage and wisdom.

I wish to thank all the participants for joining together to make this meeting possible. My thanks go to all the heads of state or government and ministers of foreign affairs, as well as representatives of member-states, regional organizations and to the secretary general.

There are no further speakers inscribed on my list. The security council has thus concluded its business for this meeting.

The meeting is adjourned.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Closing Statement during the United Nations Security Council Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412062607/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5163&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the Passage of the Committee Report on the Anti-Terrorism Bill in Congress

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on the Passage of the Committee Report on the Anti-Terrorism Bill in Congress

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, October 5, 2005]

Maraming salamat, Veronica.

Magandang hapon sa inyong lahat.

Nagpapasalamat ako sa pagpasa ng kongreso sa committee report ng panukalang batas laban sa terorismo. Narito ngayon ang ating mga mambabatas. Narito ang chairman ng Committee on Foreign Relations, si Congressman Tony Cuenco, na ito kasama ng Committee on Justice ang mga komiteng namahala dito sa ating panukalang batas. Katabi niya ay si Congressman Nonoy Libanan at sa aking kanan naman ay nandito rin si Congressman Amado Espino at saka si Congressman Teddy Boy Locsin, pati na rin si Congressman Salacnib Bateria at saka si Congressman Roquito Ablan.

Hihilingin natin sa kanila na ipaliwanag nila ang ilang mga detalye ng sinabing panukalang batas. Ang pangalawang atake sa Bali at ang banta ng Al-Qaeda ng higit pang terorismo sa buong mundo sa panahon ng Ramadan ay sapat ng babala sa lahat. Sakop na rito lahat ng ating inisyatiba sa seguridad kasama ang calibrated preemptive response. Narito ang pinuno ng pulis, si Heneral Arturo Lomibao upang ipaliwanag ang peligro ng mga rally sa panahon ng terorismo. At narito rin ang pinuno ng Armed Forces of the Philippines, si Heneral Heneroso Senga, pati na rin ang chairman ng APEC Anti-Terrorism Task Force, si special envoy Benjamin Defensor.

So, Congressman Cuenco, dahil kayo ang pinuno ng Committee on Foreign Relations na kasama ng Committee on Justice siya ang namahala dito sa Committee report, pwede ho niyo ipaliwanag sa taong-bayan ano ang laman nitong panukalang batas at committee report ninyo.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Opening Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on the Passage of the Committee Report on the Anti-Terrorism Bill in Congress. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615092427/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5221&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Emergency Meeting of the OCD-NDCC to assess the progress of the rescue and relief operations in St. Bernard, Southern Leyte

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Emergency Meeting of the OCD-NDCC to assess the progress of the rescue and relief operations in St. Bernard, Southern Leyte

[Issued at Conference Room, NDMC Bldg., Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, February 19, 2006]

After my statement, we will let the media... We'll excuse the media so we can have a closed door meeting.

Habang patuloy na nagluluksa ang bansa sa trahedyang ito, gusto kong pasalamatan ang lahat ng mga Pilipino at lahat ng ating mga kaibigan sa buong mundo sa bumubuhos na simpatiya at tulong. Lahat ng kakayahan ng ating pamahalaan ay patuloy at walang tigil na gagamitin habang patuloy tayong umaasa sa paghanap sa mga ligtas.

Kinikilala ko ang ating mga malakas na loob na mga nagtatrabaho sa paghanap at pagkakalinga — pulis, military, kawani ng pamahalaan at mamamayang nagmamalasakit sa pamayanan na pinapanatiling mataas ang ating pananampalataya na lahat ng mga biktima nitong trahedya ay mahahanap.

Ang bansa ay nagpapasalamat sa patuloy na pagdasal at malasakit na tulong mula sa ating mga pangmundong pang-alyado. Matinding nagkakaisa ang bansa dito sa trahedya habang kapwa pinagsama-sama ng mayaman at mahirap ang kanilang kakayahan at dasal. Magkapitbisig tayong lahat sa preserbasyon ng ating kapaligiran at proteksyonan ang nalalabi pa para sa mga darating na henerasyon.

I'll ask now the media to excuse us. Anyway, the other members of the NDCC can give a briefing after our meeting.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Statement during the Emergency Meeting of the OCD-NDCC to assess the progress of the rescue and relief operations in St. Bernard, Southern Leyte. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412215213/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2404&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo declaring a State of Emergency [Filipino]

Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Sa pagdedeklara ng State of Emergency

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 24 ng Pebrero, 2006]

Mga kababayan:

Nagdeklara ako ng State of Emergency dahil sa maliwanag at kasalukuyang banta sa Republika na ating napag-alaman at napigil.

May ilang sumubok lumihis sa Armed Forces chain of command, lumabag sa gobyernong sibil, at magtatag ng rehimen sa labas ng saligang batas.

Nabuwag natin ang pakanang ito. Kasama sa pagkilos natin ang pagdakip ng mga militar at sibilyang magkakasabwat. At hindi rin palalampasin ang mga nagbibigay ng salapi at suportang pulitika sa pag-aalsa.

Napigil na ng pamahalaan itong ilegal na pagkilos. Maliban sa ilang tumiwalag, nasa puwesto at matapat sa linya ng pamunuan ang lahat ng opisyal na militar hanggang sa mga batalyon. Bilang Commander-in-Chief kontrolado ko ang sitwasyon.

Katatapos ko lamang pulungin ang aking Gabinete na nagkakaisa at buo ang loob na ipagpatuloy ang serbisyo publiko sa kabila ng kalagayan ng seguridad. Nananawagan ako sa lahat ng ating mga pamahalaang lokal na patuloy ring maglingkod. Hindi dapat malagay sa alanganin ang kaligtasan at kabuhayan ng tao.

Samantala, ipinapaubaya ko sa pinuno ng AFP at hepe ng PNP ang mga nararapat na pagkilos. Mag-uulat sila sa media hinggil sa mga darating na pangyayari.

Mag-uulat naman ang Secretary of Foreign Affairs sa mga Embahador.

Ito ang babala ko sa mga nagbabalak laban sa bayan: babagsak sa inyong pagtataksil ang buong bigat ng batas. Ipinahahamak ninyo ang mahihirap sa inyong paghatak ng bansa palayo sa ating nararapat na antas sa daigdig bilang kuta ng pagkakaisa, pagsasakripisyo, pagmamalasakit at kahusayan sa mundo. Kinakalas din ninyo ang ekonomiya sa kaniyang mga tumatatag na saligan.

Mga kababayan, hinihiling ko naman sa inyong lahat na manatiling mahinahon. Nananawagan ako sa media na iulat ang mga pangyayari sang-ayon sa tungkulin sa bayan, at huwag palampasin ang mga nakakasamang alingasngas at maling balita.

Salamat sa inyong pananalig sa bayan at sa ating magandang hinaharap. Pagpalain nawa ng Diyos ang sambayanang Pilipino.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Statement on the lifting of Proclamation 1017. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412215018/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2428&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the state of the economy and the peace and order situation [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa Roundtable Discussion ukol sa estado ng ekonomiya at sitwasyong pangkapayapaan at pangkaayusan

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 27 ng Pebrero, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Veronica.

Salamat sa Panginoon at tumaas kanina ang stock market ng mahigit labing-siyam na punto at ang piso ay lumakas ng fourteen centavos. Malamang dahil sa mahusay na pagtapos ng stand off sa marines kahapon.

Ngunit, gaya nang sabi ni Congressman Joey Salceda sa kanyang text message sa akin: “walang panahon para mag-congratulate sa sarili kung hindi magsaludo sa patriotismo ng mga sundalo sa integridad ng chain of command at sa patuloy-tuloy na pananampalataya ng taumbayan. Ang tanging makabuluhang tagumpay ay ang tagumpay laban sa kahirapan.

We can only claim credit once we get a credit upgrade. Ngayon ang ating pamahalaan ay tripleng kasigasig magtatrabaho para isigurado muli ang momentum at iwasan ang economic fallout sa mga... Halimbawa, nangyari sa mga nabigong coup mula noong 1989, dalawang porsyento nawala sa pagsulong. Ibig sabihin nito yung dalawang porsyento anong ibig sabihin ngayon? Yan ang ibig sabihin namimiligro ang 120 billion pesos sa aktibidad ng negosyo, 12 bilyong kita sa bansa — a steep price for political mischief. And that is the reason why we have to declare a state of national emergency.

At para mabawi itong namimiligrong mawala sa ating pagsulong, ngayon papataasin natin ang imprastruktura, mamumuhunan tayo sa edukasyon, at gagawin mas matindi ang koleksyon ng buwis.

Narito ngayon kasama natin ang ating Secretary of National Defense, si Secretary Nonong Cruz. Magandang hapon, Nonong. At narito rin si Secretary of Finance, si Secretary Gary Teves. Magandang hapon, Gary. At ang Secretary of Trade and Industry, si Secretary Peter Favila. Magandang hapon, Peter.

Well, nagbigay tayo nang konting update doon sa mga sukat ng ating ekonomiya, pero gaya nang sabi ni Veronica, itong pag-uusapan natin hindi lamang yung update sa ekonomiya, yung update din tungkol sa ating law and order. Nonong, kumusta na ngayon ang kalagayan ng ating law and order and peace and order sa ating bansa?

Closing statement:

Merong tayong pera, ang kailangan natin ngayon ay yung pumasa itong increase in pay doon po sa senado, yan ang importante. Kaya ito ay pangpataas ng suweldo ng sundalo, ng pulis at saka ng teachers at lahat ng mga national government employees.

Merong pa tayong isang biyaya, gumastos nga tayo ng... Gagastos ng one billion for housing pero sa ibabaw pa noon ay nagpapasalamat tayo sa Central Bank, Gary, Peter, Nonong dahil nagbigay sila ng dibidendo sa national government. Yung donacion en fago ng manila bank na 1,600 hectares sa San Miguel, Bulacan ay ginawang dibidendo ng Central Bank at yon ay gagawin natin ng government housing. Ang laki-laki ng 1,600 hectares, doble ng makati yung kalakihan noon. Kaya ihahati natin ito sa apat na development: one-fourth para sa sundalo; one-fourth para sa pulis; one-fourth para sa teachers; at one-fourth para sa ibang mga empleyado ng ibang mga ahensiya.

Kasi ganun naman more or less ang ating empleyado sa national government: half a million ay teachers, 250 ay soldiers and policemen, and the balance are the rest of the government's — more or less ganun. Kaya ito ang kailangan nating ituloy, itong paggastos sa imprastruktura kagaya ng housing, paggastos natin sa edukasyon, at pagpatindi ng pagkakubra ng buwis. Lahat nito ay hindi natin hahayaan na masira ng mga destabilizers.

Kaya maraming salamat sa lahat na nagsuporta. Maraming salamat sa mga matapat sa ating konstitusyon at sa ating chain of command. At maraming salamat din sa inyo Nonong, Gary at Peter.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on the State of the Economy and the Peace and Order Situation. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412215049/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2391&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the lifting of Proclamation No. 1017 [Filipino]

Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Sa kanyang pagbawi ng Proklamasyon Bilang 1017

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 3 ng Marso, 2006]

Mga kababayan:

Inihalal ninyo ako upang ayusin ang ekonomiya, mamuhunan sa ating mamamayan, at tanggalin ang nakadudurog na bigat ng kahirapan. Nagtatagumpay ang plano; sumusulong na ang ekonomiya. Patibay nito ang malakas na piso, lumalagong investment mula sa ibayong dagat, at mas malaking koleksiyon ng buwis na siyang popondo sa mga serbisyo publiko gaya ng edukasyon, paggamot at imprastruktura.

Subalit sa gitna ng pagsigla ng ekonomiya, may mga elemento sa ating lipunan na sukat naglunsad ng pakanang pabagsakin ang ating pamahalaan.

Isang linggo nakaraan, nagsanib ang mga malisyosong destabilizer at ilang mga sundalo at pulis na ligaw upang samantalahin ang maramdaming pangyayari sa ika-dalawampung pagdiriwang ng EDSA. Wala silang ibang hangarin kundi ang sabotaje ng saligang batas at pagwasak sa ligal na gobyerno ng Pilipinas. Ayon sa mga pangyayari, bumuo ako ng paghusga na may clear and present danger sa republika dahil sa pagsasama ng mga puwersang ito. Bilang commander-in-chief ng sandatahang lakas at ayon sa kapangyarihang kaloob sa akin ng Konstitusyon, kumilos ako upang ipagtanggol ang katiwasayan ng mamamayan at sambayanan.

Napatibayan ang aking pagkabahala: maraming subersibo at ilang mga kawal at pulis ang naaresto natin. Bahala ang ating sistema ng hustisiya sa kanilang makatarungang paglilitis. At gaya nang nakita natin noong linggo ng gabi, nagpatuloy ang pakikibaka sa mga araw na sumunod. Kaya naman hindi ko binawi ang State of Emergency hanggang matiyak kong ligtas at maayos ang bayan.

Hindi ito hakbang basta ko ginawa; napakalaki ang nakataya upang kumilos nang kapos. Naniniwala ako na napalakas at nasanggahan ng aking ginawa ang ating mga karapatan at ang kalayaan ng media sa banta ng diktaturang leftist-rightist. At aking ipinagtanggol ang pagsulong ng ekonomiya na pinagsisikapan nating matamo.

Ngayon, matapos ang isang linggo, ikinagagalak kong sabihin na nawasak ang pagsasabwatan, at panahon na upang bumalik sa tunay na gawain ng pamahalaan. Matibay ang aking tiwala na nanumbalik ang kaayusan. Samakatwid, ayon sa kapangyarihang kaloob sa akin ng saligang batas, ipinapahayag ko na mula sa sandaling ito hindi na umiiral ang State of Emergency.

Ibig kong pasalamatan ang ating mga tauhang militar at pulis na hindi nagpadala sa hatak ng pulitika at nanatiling tapat sa kanilang kalooban at sa bayan na sumpa nilang ipagtanggol. Napakarami nilang pasanin alang-alang sa atin. Inatasan ko si Secretary of Defense Cruz na mamuno sa malawakang balik-tanaw upang alamin ang pananaw ng ating mga kawal sa larangan, tugunin ang kanilang mga hinaing at pangangailangan, at siguruhing magpapatuloy ang reporma ng sandatahang lakas tungo sa modernisasyon at katarungan. Ganoon din sa kapulisan.

Nagpapasalamat din ako sa ating mga pinunong lokal at pambansa na nanindigan sa panig ng demokrasya. At hindi ko mapupuri nang sapat ang dunong ng ating mga kababayan sa pag-unawa na nasa kasipagan ang magandang kinabukasan, wala sa pag-aalsa sa lansangan.

Napakahalaga ngayon na tumigil na ang ating mga kalaban sa pulitika at ang mga oportunista sa perhuwisyo sa ekonomiya at kahihiyan sa Pilipinas dulot ng mga walang kuwentang palabas.

Mas malakas ang bayan sa mabilis at buong loob nating pagtugon sa hamong ito. Hindi ko kailanman kukunsintihin ang ganitong uring adventurism. At kahit ilang ulit, kikilos ako nang may paninindigan at determinasyon tuwing mamimilit ang ating mga kaaway na alanganin sa bansa at pahamak sa ekonomiya.

Samantala, pinagpala tayong nakatira sa masiglang demokrasya na malakas, matatag at sumusulong.

Maraming salamat po.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Statement on the lifting of Proclamation 1017. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412215018/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2428&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the privatization efforts of Government and the successful sale of the Manila Gas property [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa Roundtable Discussion sa pagsisikap ng pribatisasyon ng Gobyerno at ang matagumpay na pagbenta ng ari-arian ng Manila Gas

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 8 ng Marso, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Veronica at Happy Women's Day sa iyo.

Napakahalaga ang kumpiyansa ng mga investor sa paglago ng kapital upang makalikha ng trabaho at tumaas ang suweldo. Kung maraming nagtatayo o nagpapalaki ng negosyo, mas maraming manggagawa ang makakapagtrabaho, tataas ang sahod upang makaakit ng mahusay na empleyado.

Kaya naman nagalak tayo sa more than a half a billion pesos na investment ng Robinson Group sa pagbili ng lupa ng Manila Gas mula sa pamahalaan. Hindi lamang ito pera para sa pamahalaan, kung hindi isa pa sa dumaraming senyas na palakas ang kumpiyansa ng mga investor sa Pilipinas.

Balak ng Robinson na magtayo ng mall sa lupang binili nila, at sa gayon marami ang makakapagtrabaho bilang trabahador sa construction, sales attendant sa mall, at mga namamasadang tsuper sa bagong komersiyo sa bagong mall. Ito ay magandang halimbawa ng mga biyayang nanggagaling sa privatization program ng ating pamahalaan.

At narito ngayon upang talakayin ang privatization program: to the far right, si Art Aguilar ng National Development Company. Sila yung may-ari dati ng Manila Gas. Ito ay kompaniya ng pamahalaan; at to my far left, si Pepito Bengzon ng Privatization Management Office; narito rin yung boss ni Pepito, si Undersecretary for Privatization Jay Singson ng Department of Finance; at sa aking kanan, si Agnes Devanadera, ang ating Government Corporate Counsel. Happy Women's Day din, Agnes.

Oh, eto. So, pag-usapan natin itong privatization dahil ang Undersecretary for Privatization ay si Jay Singson. Ay, nung araw kilala lang namin ito bilang anak ni Gabby Singson, yung dating Governor ng Central Bank. Anyway, Jay on your own ka na ngayon, ano ba itong privatization at saka ano ang mga patakaran mo sa privatization?

Closing statement:

When we say that we are not rushing, hindi ibig sabihin nuon na kahit na hindi mabenta mas masaya na tayo, hindi. Gusto na... Yung mga nilista natin dapat ibenta dahil either lugi tayo or hindi talaga kailangan ng gobyerno. Yes, balansiyado.

So, nagpapasalamat ako at congratulations on this latest privatization — matagumpay. At sana mas matagumpay pa ang mga darating na importanteng privatization natin.

So, sa inyong lahat, Agnes, congratulations! And Happy Women's Day. Thank you Art, congratulations! Thank you Jay, congratulations! Thank you, Pepito, congratulations!

And Happy Women's Day again and back to you, Veronica.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing statements during a roundtable discussion on the privatization efforts of government and the successful sale of the Manila Gas property. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214942/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2425&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during an Official Dinner in Honor of New Zealand Prime Minister Helen Clark

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During an Official Dinner in Honor of New Zealand Prime Minister Helen Clark

[Issued at the Beach front, Bohol Beach Club Panglao Island, Bohol, March 14, 2006]

HER Excellency Prime Minister Clark, members of the New Zealand delegation, officials of the Philippine government, friends.

I wish to extend once again our warmest welcome to Prime Minister Helen Clark and her delegation to the very first state visit outside of Manila.

We're delighted by your presence, Prime Minister as the Philippines and New Zealand celebrate 40 years of diplomatic relations this year. And on this occasion, we reaffirm our commitment to pursue closer economic ties, more trade, and to seek complementarities in trade and also in environmental protection. We are so happy that you will spend your morning tomorrow with the whales and dolphins in Pamilakan Island.

Thank you for your partnership with the Philippines with our natural resource management and ecotourism, indigenous peoples welfare, governance, education and peace and development in Mindanao.

We acknowledge your leadership and unique contribution towards increased understanding and cooperation within and among communities of different faiths, ethnicities and race.

This year is our 40th year but in all of the 365 days on the 40th year of our anniversary as diplomatic partners, we have chosen the day when you could co-sponsor our interfaith dialogue in Cebu where we had 50 nations in Asia and Oceania and 185 leaders of the political and spiritual communities of those countries.

This year, we'll see the Philippines as incoming chair of ASEAN, of the ASEAN Regional Forum, and the East Asia Summit. We see this as an opportunity to strengthen our bonds with New Zealand brought together as we are by our common commitment to the good of mankind.

New Zealand has been a good partner of economic cooperation in the Philippines. And I do hope that under the leadership of the Philippines in the ASEAN, we will be able to work towards having New Zealand as a full partner of ASEAN Summit.

And so on this beautiful balmy evening, let me ask you all to join me in a toast to the warm friendship between our two countries, to the continued success and good health of Prime Minister Helen Clark.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Statement during an Official Dinner in Honor of New Zealand Prime Minister Helen Clark. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214927/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2422&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statement: President Arroyo during the “Usapang Micronegosyo with the President” at the ‘Go Negosyo’ Micro-enterprise Fair [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa “Usapang Micronegosyo with the President” sa ‘Go Negosyo’ Micro-enterprise Fair

[Ipinahayag sa Philippine Army Wellness Center (Army Gym) Fort Bonifacio, Lungsod ng Taguig, Metro Manila, ika 1 ng Abril, 2006]

Maraming salamat sa kay Joey Concepcion at ang kanyang buong team na parating tumutulong sa pag-iral ng ating entrepreneurs. At nagpapasalamat tayo sa ating mga host ngayon, yung top brass ng Armed Forces of the Philippines ay narito lahat. Narito ang kanilang boss, si Secretary Nonong Cruz. At ayun! Nakikita ko yung lahat ng mga four and three-star generals: si General Senga, General Esperon, General Reyes, General Mayuga, General Romero and General Datu.

Sa lahat sa inyo, congratulations! At Joey, eto ay isang pagkwentu-kwentuhan tungkol sa mga karanasan ng ating mga entrepreneurs na mula sa community ng Philippine Army pati na rin yung questions they have always wanted to ask and it is time to answer, Joey.

* * *

CLOSING STATEMENT:

So, in other words ang ating mensahe sa mga pamilya ng mga sundalo na narito ngayon o nanonood sa atin, ang suggestions na pasukan ninyong mga negosyo ay yung ‘Tindahan Natin’ at saka yung agri-business doon sa mga lupa ng mga kampo na binubuksan natin para sa ganung bagay.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA’s Opening/Closing Statements during the “Usapang Micronegosyo with the President” at the ‘Go Negosyo’ Micro-enterprise Fair. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214313/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2455&Itemid=38

Post-Statement: President Arroyo on Labor Day 2006

Post-Statement on President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On Labor Day 2006 [Filipino]

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, May 2, 2006]

Binabati natin ang lahat ng ating manggagawa para sa makabuluhan at mapayapang pagdiriwang ng Araw ng Manggagawa, na naglalarawan ng political maturity ng pilipinong pinaninindigan ang pagkakaisa at kasipagan bilang solusyon sa problema ng bansa at hindi ang pansarili at walang tigil na hidwaan.

Nagpapasalamat din tayo sa inspiradong paninindigan ng ating pwersa ng manggagawa kontra sa mga tangkang destabilisasyon, na nagmamarka ng matatag na pakikipagbalikat ng pamahalaan at sektor ng manggagawa sa pag-ibayo ng klima para sa kaunlaran, pamumuhunan at trabaho.

Pinupuri ko ang PNP at AFP sa kanilang pagmamatyag katabi ng taumbayan sa pagmamantene ng batas at katiwasayan sa gitna ng paulit-ulit na mga banta ng mga kaguluhang pulitika. Higit na katatagan sa pulitika at kaunlarang pangkabuhayan ang magpapasulong sa ikabubuti at pakinabang ng ating mga manggagawa, habang tuloy nating dinadala ang manggagawang pilipino sa pinakamataas na punto ng pagbuo ng bansa at kagalingang pangmundo.

Payback time is here at nananawagan tayo sa ating taumbayan na higit pang magkaisa upang mabura ang ingay pulitika at i-angat ang sama-sama nating pakikibaka kontra sa kahirapan, katiwalian at karahasan na sila ang kalaban ng isang makatarungan at progresibong social order.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Post-Labor Day 2006 Statement. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213901/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2793&Itemid=38

Arrival Statement: President Arroyo after a 4-day State Visit to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

After a 4-day State Visit to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia

[Delivered at the Bulwagang Kalayaan, 250th Presidential Airlift Wing Villamor Airbase, Pasay City, May 11, 2006]

I arrived home not just with those who left Manila a few days ago to Saudi Arabia with me. Following later, in a few hours, will be Filipinos who had been released from prison by His Majesty King Abdullah of Saudi Arabia as a gesture of friendship and compassion.

The King told me how he cherishes our workers. He ordered the immediate release and pardon from blood money, not of 50 Filipinos, not of 180 Filipinos, not of 200 Filipinos, but of more than 500 Filipinos.

This in addition to the 200 or so that had been released since February in anticipation of my visit. So all and all, it's about 700, nearly 700. And the first batch, because there are so many — 500 — they're coming in three batches. The first batch will be coming at 5:00 o'clock this afternoon. Ten of those coming this afternoon are homicide cases, and his majesty paid for their blood money. So, we are very happy about this.

Ako ay nagagalak na kasabay ng aking pagbabalik sa Saudi Arabia ang mga detainee na makakabalik na rin sa ating bansa, sa kanilang mga pamilya na matagal nang naghihintay sa kanilang pag-uwi. Ito ay mensahe sa ating mga kababayan na makakaasa kayo sa ating gobyerno na mas pag-iibayuhin pa ang pakikipagtulungan sa Saudi Arabia upang alagaan ang lahat, sa lahat ng pagkakataon, ang kapakanan ng ating mga kababayan doon.

Saudi Arabia is a strategic ally of the Philippines. Not only because it hosts more than a million Filipino workers, but also because it is our leading supplier of oil and a leading supporter of our peace process in Mindanao.

Alam naman natin na ang presyo ng langis sa buong mundo ay patuloy na tumataas. That is why I am glad to receive assurances from the Kingdom of a stable oil supply. I'm harnessing strategic diplomacy to protect the national interests and leverage the growing political stability to gain more investments to spur jobs in the Philippines and abroad.

And speaking of leveraging political stability, on one of the meetings that has not been reported yet to the media, is the meeting that took place when I was visited at the Palace by Prince Al Waleed, rank by Forbes as the number 5 richest person in the world. And Prince Al Waleed said that he's going to send a team as the first step in his investment in tourism in the Philippines. And he said, the reason why he is doing this is that he believes in my political will to bring about stability and economic continuity in our policies.

The Saudi Aramco through Petron will study the feasibility of refining oil in Mindanao. These days oil refineries cost a billion dollars. But even as they're doing this feasibility study, they are pushing through with their 300 million-dollar investment in the petrochemical pit stop in Bataan.

I also invited our friend from Saudi Arabia to join in the efforts to promote the rational exploration development utilization and conservation of our mineral resources, to enhance national growth in the Philippines in a way that effectively safeguards the environment and protects the rights of affected communities. We clarified to our Saudi Arabian investors that foreign investment is welcomed in our mining industry.

The Saudi business center was very receptive to my invitation to recycle their petrodollars to invest in the Philippines. I won't talk about all of them today because we will leave that to Peter Favila to give the creative details.

There is a connection between our challenges at home and our opportunities abroad, and that's why immediately I want to have a cabinet meeting here, so that we can address our challenges abroad.

The dollars we earn and the confidence we reap also come home to create jobs, educate our children and feed the hungry, which is one of the main topics of our agenda today.

I conveyed to the King our deepest appreciation for the Kingdom's unwavering support for peace and development in Southern Philippines. And in addition, the Crown Prince and I agreed to add security cooperation to the many facets of our bilateral relationship. The ties of friendship between the Filipinos and Saudis are stronger than ever.

Magpapatuloy tayo sa pag-unlad, magpapatuloy ang ating pagtutulungan.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Arrival Statement after a 4-day State Visit to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213337/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2776&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on Charter Change and other vital issues to be tackled during the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) Meeting

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

On Charter Change and other vital issues to be tackled during the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) Meeting

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, May 16, 2006]

Welcome! Everyone.

The signing into law of the juvenile justice and welfare act this morning is a fitting prelude to our meeting, because it shows that the executive-legislative working together is as good as ever when it comes to our future generations.

I hope that the same forward-looking spirit will pervade our discussions as we bring to fore our common agenda for the nation, and see through our shared resolve to drive the legislative mill along the most vital issues affecting the political, economic and social horizon.

Tough decisions are also in the offing as we take up proposals for the charter change. I trust and hope that each sincere thought shall pour out of this gathering with the paramount interest of the people in mind.

We need to talk about charter change or the pace of the world could overwhelm us. The time is now, and I must stress this even if it invites controversy, because I'm aware that we are a gathering of statespersons despite our disagreements. We can only mold consensus from challenge and ferment in the marketplace of ideas.

Indeed, we must consider our political options in the light of strong economic indicators that have brought the national enterprise to the threshold of take off. We shall have a briefing on key economic issues to see how we can shape the political-economic landscape to bring the people closer to their aspirations.

I open this meeting, therefore, with an open mind and a firm belief that principled politics will pervade our endeavors.

Thank you all for coming.

Thank you to the media.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Statement on Charter Change and other vital issues to be tackled during the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213310/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2771&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas Survey on Business Confidence

Opening/Closing Statements of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas Survey on Business Confidence

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, May 22, 2006]

Nakasalalay ang masiglang pananaw ng negosyante sa lumalaking kompiyansa ng mga negosyante lalo na sa lakas at katatagan ng mga saligan ng ekonomiya at tumatatag na kalagayan ng pulitika.

Sinisigurado natin na inaasikaso ng pamahalaan ang lahat ng larangan ng kaunlaran at seguridad, habang hinahabol natin ang mga reporma ng saligang batas sa pamamagitan ng demokratikong kapangyarihan ng taongbayan at ng pagkakaunawaan ng ating mga institusyon.

Hinaharap natin ang nagkakaisang determinasyon ng lahat ng sektor, kabilang ang mga negosyante, upang samantalain ang sandaling ito upang ibalik ang Pilipinas sa mapa bilang masigasig na tagalahok sa ekonomiya ng Asya at ng mundo.

Bunga ng mahihirap kong desisyon ang kompiyansa ng mamumuhunan — mga desisyon hindi lamang sa larangan ng ekonomiya, kundi pati sa paglaban sa katiwalian, pagsusulong ng katarungang panlipunan, malayang pagnenegosyo, at pag-iral ng batas.

Sa nakikita ng mga eksperto at investor, palabas na ang Pilipinas sa ligalig ng pulitika at patungo sa higit pang paglago ng ekonomiya at pagtatag ng republika. Ito ang hudyat ng lalong pagganda ng buhay para sa ating taongbayan na siyang makikinabang sa mabisang pamumuno sa bansa.

Ngayong hapon makakasama natin mula sa Bangko Sentral na gumawa nung survey na yon ay si Diwa Guinigundo, deputy governor. Magandang hapon, Diwa. Sa kanyang kanan naman ang naging pangulo ng Philippine Stock Exchange, si Trina Kalaw. Magandang hapon, Trina. At sa aking kaliwa, another very important businesswoman, si Josephine Gotianun Yap, pangulo ng Filinvest Development Corporation. Magandang hapon, Josephine. At sa kanyang kaliwa, narito naman si Jess Arranza, ang pangulo ng Federation of Philippine Industries. Magandang hapon, Jess. And to his left, si Attorney Paul Santos ng Philippine Retailers Association. Magandang hapon, Paul.

Okay, unang-una yung Bangko Sentral, Diwa, itong survey na ginagawa ninyo papano yon ininterview niyo yung mga negosyante, ganun ba 'to?

* * *

Closing statement:

Sana mag-draft kayo ng executive order para madaan natin sa ating _____ pag-aralan ng mga legal experts natin kung wala tayong mga linalabag na batas or international agreement. Okay, so dapat unahin na natin bago tayo pumasok. Kung pwede kung yung association niyo mag-draft ng executive order. Very good, very good.

So, itong araw na ito starting with the Central Bank na gumawa nga nung survey na yon meron tayong mga kinatawan ng stock market, ng real estate, banking and agriculture, ng manufacturing saka ng retail and services. So nakikita natin masigla ang lahat ng sektor ng ating ekonomiya at sana ito ay matuloy.

Kaya nagpapasalamat ako sa inyong lahat hindi lamang sa inyong pagdalo ngayon kung hindi na rin pati sa inyong mga contributions sa ating ekonomiya.

So, thank you, thank you, Diwa. Salamat, Trina. Thank you, Joji. Jess, thank you very much. At Paul, maraming salamat din.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas Survey on Business Confidence. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213240/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2760&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the DBM allocation for additional teachers and activities related to the opening of the school year 2006-2007

Opening/Closing Statements of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on the DBM allocation for additional teachers and activities related to the opening of the school year 2006-2007

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, May 29, 2006]

Sa paglapit ng pasukan, marapat alamin ang paghahanda ng pamahalaan at mga eskuwelahan para sa edukasyon ng ating kabataan. Kaya naman itong araw inanyayahan ko ang kalihim ng edukasyon at ng budget upang siguruhin na hindi kakapusin ang pondo at aksiyon ng mga programang pampaaralan.

Maganda naman ang mga ulat: may sampung libong guro ang magpapadagdag sa mga paaralan sa taong ito; may limang libong tatlong daan ang mga bagong item at anim na daang milyong piso ang nakalaan sa kanila mula Hunyo; may dagdag namang apat na libo at pitong-raan na posisyong tagasuporta o tagapangasiwa upang makabalik sa pagtuturo ang mga gurong gumagawa ng mga trabahong ito ngayon.

Samantala, nakapaglabas din nang mahigit limang bilyong piso para sa mga programang pang-eskuwela. Kasama rito ang dalawang bilyong piso para sa mga bagong silid-aralan, isang bilyon para sa mga aklat, halos anim na daang milyon para sa karagdagang pagsasanay ng mga guro, at kalahating bilyon bilang high school vouchers na tulong sa mga estudyanteng mag-aaral sa pribadong high school.

Sa panahon ng aking pagkapangulo ay una sa lahat — mamaya na lang ang mga numero. Sila na ang magbibigay kung ilan ang na-hire na natin mula ako ay naging pangulo — so, nandito ngayon, kasama natin para pag-usapan itong mga ito ay si Secretary Nonoy Andaya ng DBM. Hello! Nonoy; at kasama rin si Acting Secretary Fe Hidalgo ng DEPED. Magandang hapon, Fe; at kasama niya si Assistant Secretary Lilia Roces. Magandang hapon, Lilia; at mayroon tayong principal na narito, ang principal ng Pembo Elementary School, si Teresita Arreola. Magandang hapon, principal; at ang teacher sa Quezon City Science High School, si Ms. Nena Bongon. Magandang hapon, Nena.

Nonoy, sabi mo mula nung ako ay naging pangulo, ilan ang na-hire natin na mga teachers at school personnel?

* * *

Closing statement:

Okay, so we'd like to thank the teachers. We'd like to thank you because they mold our students, they mold their values, they also mold their skills, and therefore, they mold their future. Kaya maraming salamat sa ating mga guro.

At malapit na ang eskuwelahan. Sabi nga ni Fe, walang bakasyon ang mga guro. Tapos na ang training for the summer eh magtatrabaho na naman, maghahanda na naman sa pagbukas ng eskuwelahan. Kaya maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

At maraming salamat din, Nonoy sa mabilis mong paglalabas ng kanilang budget. Maraming salamat, Fe sa pagdadala mo ng mga desisyon ng gabinete sa baba. Thank you very much, Lilia. Maraming salamat, principal. At maraming salamat, teacher.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on the DBM allocation for additional teachers and activities related to the opening of the school year 2006-2007. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213135/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2710&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on increasing exports and investments

Opening/Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During a Roundtable Discussion on increasing exports and investments

[Issued at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, June 14, 2006]

Mga kababayan:

Sa awa ng Diyos, patuloy ang pag-akyat ng export at pamumuhunan sa ating bansa. Mula Enero hanggang Abril mahigit labinlimang porsiyento ang itinaas ng export. Mga two billion dollars ang dagdag haming sa nung nakaraang taon. Mga pangunahing exports ng bansa umakyat ng 20.5 percent ang microchips at 15.7 percent ang garments.

Sa investment naman, maligaya nating tinatanggap ang plano ng International Finance Corporation ng World Bank na dadagdagan ng 32 percent ang kaniyang ilalagay sa Pilipinas bilang senyas ng lumalagong tiwala sa pamumuhunan kasama ng pagtaas ng exports ng Pilipinas at pagtaas ng 11.4 percent ng direct foreign investment sa unang tatlong buwan nitong taon.

At sa hapon ng ito, ibig kong bigyang-pugay at talakayin ang paglakas ng export at investment. Kasama natin ang kalihim ng DTI, si Secretary Peter Favila. Magandang hapon, Peter; at gayun din naman sa aking kaliwa, si Ginoong Roberto Amores. Siya ang pangulo ng HI-LAS Marketing Corporation at bahagi siya ng PHILFOODEX, yung samahan ng mga nag-e-export ng mga pagkain at yung Philippine Mango Exporter Foundation. Magandang hapon — Bobby, ba ang nickname mo? — okay, Bobby.

At sa kanan naman ni Peter, si Ginoong Henry Co, ang pangulo ng Ford Motors Philippines. Magandang hapon, Henry; at sa kaliwa naman ni Bobby, si Ernie Santiago, dating kasama ko sa DTI. Ngayon siya ang executive director ng SEIPI or Semiconductor and Electronics Industries in the Philippines, Incorporated. Kinakatawan niya ang two-thirds ng ating exports, hindi ba? Magandang hapon, Ernie; at sa aking kanan naman ang isa sa ating mga present generation Taipans, si Lance Gokongwei, ang pangulo ng Robinsons Land Corporation. Good afternoon, Lance.

Una, Peter yung ating exports and investments, double digit ang pagtaas ng dalawa kung pag-uusapan natin muna yung exports gaya nang sabi ko, two-thirds ang electronics, tapos number two ang garments, tapos number three yung mineral products, tapos food products.

* * *

Closing statement:

Well, just to summarize before we go. In automobile, we have 20,000 direct workers. What about in your conglomerate alone, Lance, how many workers do you have? Thirty thousand. And then just in the mango export or food export industry alone, you have two-and-a-half... Mangga pa lang two-and-a-half million. Five million right in full exports. And then yung electronics, 400,000.

So we can see how kung gaano karami talaga ang trabahong nabibigay ng ilang mga halimbawa lang ng mga investment at saka export products. Kaya importante yung sinasabi ni Peter na parating inalam natin ano ang pinaka-importanteng tulong at suportang mabibigay ng pamahalaan at dapat sinasagot parati yon.

Kaya gusto kong magpasalamat sa lahat ng ating mga exporters, ating mga investors. Gusto kong batiin lahat ng mga nagtra-trabaho sa kanilang mga kumpanya at kailangan talaga lahat tayo nakikipagbalikat sa isat-isa para sa ganun ay lalong lumaki ang investments, lalong lumaki ang export, lalong dumami ang trabaho.

So, thank you very much gentlemen. Maraming salamat, Bobby. Thank you once again, Ernie. Thank you very much, Lance for joining us and Henry as well. And Peter, maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on Increasing Exports and Investments. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213008/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2806&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint RDC-Cabinet Meeting of the North Luzon Group

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Joint RDC-Cabinet Meeting of the North Luzon Group

[Issued at the Isabela Hotel, Cauayan City, Isabela, June 16, 2006]

Well, Vice President de Castro and other members of the Cabinet; our Regional Development Council chairmen and other members of the RDC; governors; congressmen and other officials of the three regions that are meeting today and other local officials; ladies and gentlemen.

Despite obstacles thrown our way, we've remained steadfast in advancing reform and recover on a broad front, as we fight poverty with the same fervor as fighting destructive politics.

And thanking all of you involved in the people's initiative with its eight million plus signatures, the people's initiative made Charter Change a legitimate issue, and gave the initiative and the constituent assembly a life of its own.

On my part, I am concentrating on protecting our gains in many crucial areas, and aligning with the regions as opposed to "Imperial Metro Manila."

On protecting our gains... on protecting our gains: we have made great fiscal gains. Gary, we have a five billion surplus for the month of May. The first time there's ever been a surplus in the month of May which is not the income tax return. In twenty years, first time in twenty years. But we will continue to monitor BIR and Customs closely. In fact, next week, early next week, we will have a command conference of these revenue agencies.

Second, on the AFP-PNP against the left: while the revenues are the enabling mechanism for us to carry out our anti-poverty programs, the fight against the left remains the glue that binds. I'm instructing the national security group to work with the DBM on selected hardware and funding, aside from the five billion pesos per year modernization, that will give the decisive edge against the NPA. The timetable of six to ten years is too long.

We need to buy and we will buy surplus Hueys and other attack helicopters and control aircraft on soft terms. And I am instructing Secretary Andaya to release one billion pesos to the AFP and PNP to finance operations versus the NPA. This is an investment that will yield peace dividends to the economy.

On the international front: we have succeeded in putting the Philippines back on the global map. Stymied locally, the opposition-left is internationalizing regime change efforts, using the issue of human rights to demonize our administration in the international community.

And that's one reason why I'm doing my Spain visit, to thank the government of Spain because they have consistently supported us in our fight for security and stability in our country. The eve of my departure for Spain is the 24th of June. That's a good day to sign the death penalty abolition, not only is it on the eve of my departure but it is the feast of St. John the Baptist, who was a victim of the death penalty in his time.

On aligning with the regions: a very important vehicle for the national government and the administration aligning with the regions would be the ongoing revision of the Medium-Term Public Investment Program and the forthcoming State of the Nation Address, used in a novel way that is rather than discussing the administration's vision from the usual central/national point of view, we shall discuss the vision and program of government from the perspective of the regional development councils and other regional institutions. Recognizing the RDCs and other regional institutions as our administration's partner in development. And that's why we are all here today.

Today we begin a renewed partnership with regional leaders to bolster education all over the country, to invest in infrastructure and encourage greater investments also all over the country such as logistics investments, expressways and ports in the urban beltway that extends from Subic-Clark, through Metro Manila to Calabarzon to Batangas port; business outsourcing in areas of the north like Baguio, in areas of the south like Cebu and Davao; tourism investments in the Visayas, Palawan and Bicol and agri-business in Mindanao and northern Luzon, to name a few.

And that's why I'd like to call this meeting of ours a meeting on agri-business north because the strength of Northern Luzon is agri-business. I said just to name a few because there are other sub-strengths in specific regions: tourism in the Cordilleras and the Ilocos, and also the BPO in Baguio. But by and large, if you look at the northern Luzon as a whole, the strongest way to fight poverty is to concentrate agri-business investments in this area.

So, I would like to thank all of you for being here today and for us to work together on the revision of the Medium-Term Public Investment program and the statement that we will all make together for the State of the Nation Address.

So, before I call on the different local government executives to make their statements, Mike Defensor, the Presidential Chief of Staff says that we should still let the media stay and listen to the report of NEDA Secretary Romy Neri. Romy?

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Joint RDC-Cabinet Meeting of the North Luzon Group. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212956/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2805&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Command Conference on the Millennium Challenge Account and on the Revenue

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Command Conference on the Millennium Challenge Account and on the Revenue

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, June 19, 2006]

I'd like to begin this command conference by thanking the United States for its grant of 200,685 million dollars — so, Gary that's more than one billion pesos, right? — to help us fight graft and corruption, making the Philippines one of a handful, only a handful of countries in the world to benefit from its Millennium Challenge Account. An account which is put up by President Bush at the turn of the millennium to reward countries that govern well.

A major goal of the project is to strengthen the Department of Finance and its two attached agencies, the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs. The project will develop an effective mechanism for gathering and validating tax collection data and invest in information technology, surveillance tools and a customs tracking system, so investigations are more thorough and efficient. Another major objective of the grant is to strengthen the Office of the Ombudsman. Part of the U.S. funding will be used to attract more local investigators by providing them with just compensation under an employment contract with well-defined performance indicators.

This morning, I was talking to Secretary Andaya of the budget. I instructed him to allocate a counterpart of one billion pesos for an all-out war against graft and corruption with the Presidential Anti-Graft Commission on the helm of the executive efforts, cooperating with the constitutionally independent ombudsman: an intensified drive against tax cheats and smugglers by the BIR and the BOC; high-impact anti-illegal drugs operations by the PNP and the PDEA, including the transfer of the anti-drugs function from the PNP to the PDEA; and a values reorientation and moral recovery program through the Presidential Council on Values Formation in partnership with the religious sector, the educational institutions — DepEd and CHED and allied NGOs.

The Philippines has a strong, modern and confident relationship with the U.S. based on our shared democratic values, the fight against terrorism and strengthening the economy to liberate the poor.

Tough reforms in the economy are now converging with tough decisions in the security field. This command conference comes in the heels of a recent joint Cabinet and RDC meeting in North Luzon where we instructed the allocation of funds for a strong campaign against the threat posed by the CPP-NPA. Security and development must be bolstered by a solid fiscal footing if we are to fight terror and poverty.

The Philippine relationship with the U.S. has matured and grown under our administration. We brought the relationship back from the brink after the closure of Clark and Subic.

The Philippines is a staunch ally in the war against terror. Our administration believes fervently in democracy and we are sworn to uphold the rights and liberties of every Filipino. We bring these values and our deep religiosity as a people to our governance of the Philippines and to our relationship with the U.S. and all nations.

I commend the hardworking men and women of our revenue agencies for your contribution to these causes. Much more is to be done and I trust that you are ready to bring the effort to a higher level.

Growing the economy, fighting terror, getting rid of graft and corruption — all these goals will travel on parallel and related paths as we consolidate the nation.

So now I will ask the media to leave us now to our candid and frank discussions about how we can still improve an already very good revenue performance.

Thank you. Thank you to the media.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Command Conference on the Millennium Challenge Account and on the Revenue. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212948/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2803&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint Cabinet and Regional Development Council meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Joint Cabinet and Regional Development Council meeting

[Issued at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang, June 20, 2006]

Cabinet members; officers of the different Regional Development Councils and local government officials of the different regions that are present here today; mga kababayan.

Sa ating pangalawang pulong sa Gabinete at mga Regional Development Council, babalangkas tayo ng mga estratehiya at proyekto para sa itong araw na ito, para sa urban beltway na nagsisimula sa Clark-Subic hanggang Batangas Port, ang bahagi ng bansa na pinanggagalingan ng mahigit kalahati ng produksiyon ng ating ekonomiya; pati na rin yung bahagi ng Central Luzon na lalagyan ng malaki pang dagdag sa puhunan ng agri-business; pati na rin kung papaano yung ibang mga pulong na malapit sa Calabarzon ay pwedeng makinabang at sa kaunlaran dito.

Kailangan ng investment ng pamahalaan at invesment ng negosyante. Kailangan nakakaakit ang reputasyon ng Pilipinas sa investment at financial community. Against the backdrop of the 'best borrower' award conferred to the country by Euro money along with the reported decline of debt in the month of March, we should bolster education over the country, invest in infrastructure and encourage greater investments such as logistics investment in Clark and Subic Economic Zones, investments in expressways and ports in the urban beltway as well as Aurora which requires support, and agri-business investments in Nueva Ecija, the country's number one rice producing province. And also investments that will make the island provinces — Mindoro and Marinduque — benefit from the development of Calabarzon.

Ayon sa Asian Development Bank, ang pangunahing institusyong pangkaunlaran ng Asya, kailangan lumago ang investment o capital stock sa bansa ng sampung porsiyento taun-taon. If our fiscal program goes as planned, we want to invest an additional 100 billion pesos a year in total public investment.

Kailangan mamuhunan ang gobyerno at negosyo sa imprastruktura at industriya, sa kalusugan at edukasyon, sa seguridad at pag-iral ng batas. At gayon ang gagawin natin gamit ang lumalagong kaban ng bayan.

Kaya tinawag natin itong miting na ito para sa ganun sabay-sabay nating pa-planuhin yung mga gastos at pamumuhunan sa mga aktibidad ng ekonomiya na nagkakaugnay sa isa't-isa.

So, welcome to all of you to this Joint Meeting of the Cabinet and the various RDCs involved: Region III, IV and Metro Manila. And we will begin by asking Romy Neri to make his regional economic and social report on what we call basically the urban beltway and the nearby provinces.

Okay, Romy.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Joint Cabinet and Regional Development Council Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212941/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2801&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Departure Ceremony for an Official Visit to the Vatican City, Italy and Spain

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Departure Ceremony for an Official Visit to the Vatican City, Italy and Spain

[Issued at the Centennial Terminal NAIA 2, Pasay City, June 25, 2006]

Kagalang-galang na Bise Presidente De Castro, mga kasapi ng Gabinete, mga sundalo at pulis, mga kababayan:

Buhay, pagkakaisa at kasaganaan ang tema ng aking lakbay.

Sa unang pagkakataon, makikipagkita ako sa Santo Papang Benedicto XVI sa Vaticano, upang ihatid sa kanya ang pagtangi at pagtataguyod ng ating sambayanan sa kanyang pagka-Papa. At nagpapasalamat ako sa Kongreso dahil meron akong madadalang magandang pasalubong sa kanya — ang ating abolition ng death penalty.

Sa Roma, kapulong sina Pangulong Napolitano at Prime Minister Romano Prodi, lalo nating palalakasin ang mga programa sa kalakal, investments, turismo at kultura sa pagitan ng Italya at Pilipinas.

Sa Madrid, makikipagkita ako kina Haring Juan Carlos at Pangulong Jose Rodriguez Zapatero at ang mga pinunong komersyal at lokal sa España.

Nagpapasalamat ang sambayanang Pilipino sa España dahil siya ang pinakamalapit na kaalyado at tagataguyod natin sa Europa. At dahil ang España ay yumaman sa turismo hahanap din tayo ng mga investors para sa turismo sa Pilipinas. At kapwa sa Italya at España, gagamitin ko ang aking mga pulong sa matataas na opisyal upang isulong ang kagalingan ng ating mga OFW.

Ipinaubaya ko ang gobyerno sa mga mahusay na kamay ni Bise Presidente Noli De Castro. Isusulong niya ang araw-araw nating pagsisikap upang mapanatiling matiwasay ang bansa.

As I leave, tropical depression ‘Domeng’ is now 20 kilometers east of Tacloban. It’s raining in the Bicol region, including Bulusan. The Armed Forces units in the area have shifted from counter-communist-terrorist operations to disaster and relief operations.

Right now the volcano is quiet. The summit is characterized by the emission of voluminous steam. Under these circumstances it is unlikely that the magma-driven eruption will take place in the next few days of rain. PHIVOLCS should be able to detect the possibility of such a magma-driven eruption in such an unlikely event. And if that should happen — though it is highly unlikely at this time — the NDCC is prepared to implement its contingency measures, plus the following which I have instructed this morning:

First, a Bulusan express which means: two C-130s, eight helicopters including the presidential helicopter, and a train whose coaches will be filled up with relief goods to be transported from manila to Bicol;

Second, the PSG shall send a medical contingent to the area;

Third, an NFA rice stockpile;

Fourth, donation of the recently seized customs ukay-ukay;

Fifth, Secretary Andaya of DBM, who is also Region V CORD, shall make available the appropriate calamity fund;

Sixth, GSIS, and PAG-IBIG shall grant emergency loans.

Inaasahan ko ang panalangin at suporta ng lahat. Manalangin tayo para itong mga contingency ay hindi na kailangan gawin dahil malamang hindi mag-e-erupt ang Bulusan sa panahon nitong ulan. Ah yung eruption at pinag-uusapan natin ay yung malaking eruption na magma-driven. At magdasal din tayo hindi lamang para sa gawain natin sa bansa, pati na rin sa misyon ko sa ibayong dagat.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Statement during the Departure Ceremony for an Official Visit to the Vatican City, Italy and Spain. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212844/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2796&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on North Korea's missile test-fire

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

On North Korea's missile test-fire during an inspection of brand new police patrol cars

[Issued at the Parade Grounds, Camp Crame, Quezon City, July 6, 2006]

Itong dalawandaang sasakyan ay bahagi ng isang bilyon na binigay natin sa PNP upang maging mas mabisa ang kanilang trabaho sa pagpapatupad ng kapayapaan at seguridad.

Gaya nang sabi ko kahapon, ang ating mga alagad ng batas ay napaka- importante sa pagtataguyod ng saligang batas at ng rule of law na napaka- importante naman sa ating demokrasya.

Importante rin sa kapayapaan at seguridad ang mga pangyayari sa ibayong dagat lalung-lalo na doon sa mga bansang malapit sa Pilipinas. Kaya hayaan niyong gamitin ko itong pagkakataon na magbigay ng ulat ukol sa North Korea.

In solidarity with the international community, the Philippines condemns the missile test of North Korea and urges that nation to refrain from further compromising the peace and security of the region and of the world. The world has had enough of weapons of mass destruction and it's high time to walk away from armed confrontation and lend more focus in addressing the welfare of every human being and the growing economic disparity among nations.

As a peace-loving nation and as a country who is geographically located near North Korea and the Korean peninsula, we shall continue to be at the forefront of supporting moves to ensure world security and peaceful co-existence among all nations.

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Statement on North Korea's missile test-fire during an inspection of brand new police patrol cars. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212802/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2837&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during her Joint Cabinet and Regional Development Council (RDC) meeting on Super Regions

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During her Joint Cabinet and Regional Development Council (RDC) meeting on Super Regions

[Issued at the Heroes' Hall, Malacañang, July 11, 2006]

Vice President De Castro; Regional Development Council leaders; members of the Cabinet; Governors and City Mayors of Northern Luzon, Central Philippines and Mindanao; Mga kababayan.

Let me first congratulate all of you for the successful first round of Cabinet-RDC discussions for Northern Luzon, Central Philippines and Mindanao, and the frank deliberations... (we can have the Central Philippines governor sit over here in front. They were going to do changes in the seating arrangements but there's... Please, oo. Ric can you have them...? They can sit in front. Okay.)

Again, if I may still congratulate you all for the frank deliberations and broad-based perspective in our meetings which have showcased the close national and regional cooperation that makes for more responsive and effective governance and development planning as well as greater benefits to our people.

We are here today to prioritize the programs and projects for each super region or sub-economy — as we might also call them — for the next three years. We need to increase investments by 10 percent a year in order to catch up with the richer countries of Asia. And today, we will move towards a decision on the Medium-Term Public Investments in infrastructure, social development, security, and also more productive agriculture. That would be a further draw for investors, whose outlays would help propel the country to first world status within a generation.

We will bring vital money to investments to create truly super regions, from Luzon to Mindanao. Each will have its own natural competitive advantage — that's how we divided the country, the economy into this super regions or we can call them sub-economies because they were divided according to their natural competitive advantage — and we will build on that.

And so, in consultation with the Regional Development Councils, we will put forward a series of packages that if taken together will further invest in what is strong. To the strength of the regions, we will bolster education, especially in the poorer provinces of the regions; invest in infrastructure and encourage greater investments all over the country; and to repeat, speaking of landmark investments, for instance, logistics investments and investments in expressways and ports in the urban beltway which stretches from Clark and Subic Economic Zones through Metro Manila to Southern Tagalog; business process outsourcing in the cyber corridor which stretches from Baguio City through Cebu to Davao; tourism investments in Central Philippines; and agri-business investments in Mindanao and North Luzon. To name only a few though these are the flagship investments.

With the government's new planning and economic development mode of grouping the economy into four sub-economies, we shall build upon enlarged economies of scale and enhanced synergies and complementation.

Thus, we hope this massive decentralization of development from imperial Manila to the regions would unleash the creative vigor that not only breaks up the bureaucratic clog that impedes local progress, but also spell a quantum leap in investments and jobs.

And so, may I now turn over to Secretary Romy Neri for the discussion on the North Luzon super region. Romy.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212751/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2835&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during her Joint Cabinet and Regional Development Council (RDC) round 2 meeting for Metro Luzon (Urban Beltway)

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During her Joint Cabinet and Regional Development Council (RDC) round 2 meeting for Metro Luzon (Urban Beltway)

[Issued at the Clark Museum Function Hall, Clarkfield, Pampanga, July 13, 2006]

Mga gobernador at city mayor ng buong Region III, IV, Metro Manila and half of IV-A; mga Regional Development Council leaders; mga miyembro ng Gabinete; mga kababayan.

Salamat sa Diyos at sa pagsisikap at pananalig nating lahat, unti-unting umaayos ang mga mahalagang aspeto ng ating bansa sa paglakas ng pamumuhunan at pagsasagana ng kabuhayan.

Consider these: 5.5 percent increase in GDP for the first quarter of 2006, and we may be expecting even 6 percent for the second quarter; record high of 21 billion dollars in foreign exchange reserves, when we need only 16 billion dollars to be able to meet our foreign exchange needs, and therefore stability of the Philippine peso, and therefore, continuing slowdown of inflation inspite of the fact that world oil prices are soaring; we had a historic 18 billion-peso budget surplus in April and 5 billion pesos in May. The biggest in almost a decade and yet we're expected to balance our budget by 2008 or 2010 yet; we have a marked inflow in foreign direct investments at 500 million dollars for the first 4 months; we have a double-digit growth of our exports, 17 percent for May. Congratulations! Peter and all the exporters including the ones located here in Clark Economic Zone. Lumalago na ang kaban ng bayan. Salamat sa ating mga fiscal reforms. Napopondohan na ang mga proyekto at programang matagal nang hinihingi ng mga tao, mga negosyo pati na rin ng mga regions.

Sa wakas, puwede nang umarangkada ang investment ng gobyerno at negosyo. Ito ang susi sa pag-unlad ng bansa at pagpawi sa kahirapan, gaya ng ipinamalas ng mga maunlad na bansa sa Asya at iba pang dako ng mundo. Sa wakas, handa nang bumangon ang Pilipinas at lumahok sa liga ng kasaganaan, kapayapaan at tunay na kalayaan.

Today, we shall bring that day of national resurgence closer by unleashing the great strategic investment and development initiatives of the Metro Luzon Urban Beltway super region or sub-economy. As we have already done with North Luzon, Central Philippines, and Mindanao, we shall today have our final consultation in prioritizing projects so that we can input them in the revised Medium-Term Philippine Development Plan and my State of the Nation Address on July 24th.

As I have said earlier, we will bring vital money to investments to create truly "super" regions in our sub-economies from Luzon to Mindanao. We envision this to change the economic landscape for the better because each super region or sub-economy has its own natural competitive advantage and we will build on that. And so in consultation with the Regional Development Councils, we're putting forward a series of packages that if taken together will invest in what is strong. To the strengths of the regions, we will bolster education, invest in infrastructure and encourage greater investments in the super regions or sub-economies such as — and I will repeat what I have said earlier — logistics investments here in the Clark-Subic Economic Zones; investments in expressways and ports in the urban beltway stretching from Clark and Subic Economic Zones through Metro Manila to Southern Tagalog; business process outsourcing in the cyber corridor which stretches from Baguio City through Clark, through Cebu to Davao; touristic investments in the Central Philippines; and agri-business investments in Mindanao and North Luzon, to name only a few.

The most important expressways in the Metro Luzon Urban Beltway are the North Luzon Expressway, which most of you passed today to come here; the South Luzon Expressway connecting to the Southern Tagalog arterial road; the 27 billion-peso Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway; and then, we are building also a highway from Clark to Dinggalan, right? So that the urban beltway is gonna be really like cross-shaped rather than just one belt. And now, speaking of the urban beltway's newest ongoing project which is the Clark-Subic, a lot of people have been asking what's the status. I understand that as of June 21 the Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway is one-third complete.

Although, there's a 5 percent slippage, the contractor has assured the BCDA that the Clark-Tarlac package will be completed in August 2007 and the Subic-Clark in November 2007 as scheduled.

Earlier, there was a problem given to me, Gary. I told Gary Teves about this, that from 1,000 pesos the BIR raised the assessment of the land for the right-of-way in the Mabalacat interchange to 10,000 pesos. And I asked Gary to investigate this, but the mayor of Mabalacat heard about our problem and he said, he is talking to their constituents to tell them that they should just sell it at P1,000. So that's solve our problem. Otherwise, we would have to increase the value of the cost of what we have to pay from P100 million to P1 billion just for the right-of-way in Mabalacat interchange. Well, it's good that we're having this meetings now so that we can solve these problems.

We have to do this because we have to increase our capital stock by 10 percent a year to catch up with the richer countries of Asia. So we will undertake an additional 100 billion pesos in annual investments for the whole country because our tax reforms gave us P80 billion a year. And our administrative reforms are giving us at least P20 billion more. So that's P100 billion more that we will be investing. We will spend in public investments in infrastructure but also in social development, security, livelihood and enterprise facilities, and good governance. And this will in turn address the problem of employment, food and prices.

So, I'd like to thank all of you and on this last day of consultation for the Medium-Term Philippine Public Investment program. Where is Romy Neri? Oh, I thought you were not here. We will have no meeting without you. We will ask Romy now to take the floor.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during her Joint Cabinet and Regional Development Council (RDC) round 2 meeting for Metro Luzon (Urban Beltway). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212732/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2833&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during 15th Cabinet Meeting and National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) Board Meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During 15th Cabinet Meeting and National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) Board Meeting

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, August 1, 2006]

Before I go to the first item of the agenda which will be Nonoy Andaya's accounting of the SONA budget, I'd like to make a statement:

I continue to condemn media and leftist killings in the strongest terms, and I have ordered law enforcement to dig deeper into the motives involved. These cases could be personally or politically motivated, but whatever the score, it is the full intent of the government to check all criminal acts and uphold the rule of law.

I am giving a 10-week deadline for the Department of Justice and the Philippine National Police to jail suspects in at least ten media or leftist killings.

Thank you.

Can we go now to Nonoy Andaya. And the media is invited to listen to Nonoy's presentation.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during 15th Cabinet Meeting and National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) Board Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212316/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2923&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the Mount Mayon evacuation

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

On the Mount Mayon evacuation during a Joint NEDA Board and NAPC Cabinet Group Meeting

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, August 8, 2006]

I commend the local officials of Albay, the concerned agencies of the national government, the private sector and the affected communities for the successful evacuation of families exposed to the danger of an imminent eruption of Mount Mayon.

With the well-organized and effective handling of this crisis, we are confident of achieving a zero-casualty goal in this looming natural disaster.

We call on all the residents, local residents not to flirt with danger by going back to the declared danger zones and instead heed the advice of experts and disaster officials to stay out of harm's way.

We are sure those affected that we have enough resources to shoulder basic needs and services in the evacuation centers, and that the people will not be kept from their homes a minute longer than is necessary.

Our solidarity and cooperation are imperative in keeping our families safe and sound.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement on Mount Mayon Evacuation during a Joint NEDA Board and NAPC Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212226/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2912&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on improved tax collection and lowering of the inflation target to 3.5 – 4.0 percent

Opening/Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on improved tax collection and lowering of the inflation target to 3.5 – 4.0 percent along with the marked drop in poverty incidence in the different provinces of the country

[Issued at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, August 10, 2006]

Magandang hapon.

Habang abala tayo sa paglikas ng ating mga kababayan sa digmaan at bulkan maganda ring bigyan natin ng pansin ang mga tagumpay nating natatamo lalo na sa ekonomiya.

Kanina lamang nanggaling ako sa Clark kung saan may bagong call center na naman na tinatayo, isang libo siguro ang kanilang kukunin. Yung mga investor mula sa America kanina ay walang tigil nagpahayag ng kanilang kompiyansa sa mga patakaran at taong-bayan ng ating bansa. Importante ang ganitong kompiyansa upang lumago ang investment at trabaho at sumagana ang buhay ng lahat ng Pilipino.

Pangunahin sa mga pagsusog sa ekonomiya at kompiyansa ang pagkolekta ng buwis na kailangan para sa ating mga imprastruktura at mga serbisyo sa taong-bayan. At ako ay nasisiyahan at lampas sa target ng value-added tax ang nakubra natin sa unang anim na buwan ng kanyang implementasyon. Malaking naitutulong nito para mapondohan natin ang mga imprastrukturang nagpapaunlad sa mga super region at upang mapondohan natin ang kalusugan at edukasyon ng taong-bayan.

Isa pang good news: ang laki ng ating exports ngayon, Hunyo ngayon mula Hunyo nung isang taon, beinte porsiyento compare to anim na buwan nung isang taon ay 17 percent ang pagtaas ng export. At ang pinakamabilis umangat ay ang garments, ibig sabihin noon kahit na walang quota kaya na natin ang kumpetensya. Higit na exports, higit na trabaho, higit na pag-angat ng kabuhatan.

Isasalaysay ngayon ng ating economic team kung papano natin natamo ang mga tagumpay na ito at ang gagawin upang lalong sumulong ang ekonomiya, dumami ang trabaho at maiangat ang buhay ng buong sambayanan. Hindi lamang ating economic team kundi na rin ang economic team ng buong mundo na tumutulong sa atin.

So, narito ngayon katabi ko si Secretary Peter Favila ng Trade and Industry. Congratulations! Peter for the big growth in exports; sa aking kaliwa naman, si Secretary Romy Neri, ang ating chief economist, head ng NEDA. Congratulations! Romy for the good things happening in the economy.

Meron tayong dalawang panauhin: we have Mr. Joachim Von Amsberg, country director of the World Bank. Welcome to our show, Joachim! Joachim is what Joey Salceda likes to call you; and we have our new IMF representative, Mr. Reza Baqir. Welcome to the Philippines, Reza!

At si Gary Teves, ang ating Secretary of Finance ay nasa ospital. Magdasal tayo na makalabas siya kaagad. Liquid diet pa siya hanggang ngayon. Pero nandito ang Undersecretary ng Finance, si Gil Beltran. Good afternoon, Gil.

Okay. So Peter magsimula tayo doon sa exports. Congratulations! 20 percent June to June; 17 percent six months to six months.

* * *

Closing statement:

So, I'd like to thank everybody involved. First of all, our tax collectors, thank you for giving us the taxes to spend; our economic planners, thank you for helping us point out to the world where we're going to spend the money; our managers of our business community, thank you for the increase in exports which increases jobs; and to our friends from the international financial community, thank you also for your support to us.

So, I'd like to thank you all: Peter Favila, Romy Neri, Gil Beltran, Joachim Von Amsberg, and Reza Baqir, welcome to the Philippines once again!

To all of you, thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing statements during a roundtable discussion on improved tax collection and lowering of the inflation target to 3.5 – 4.0 percent along with the marked drop in poverty incidence in the different provinces of the country. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212208/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2883&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) meeting

[Issued at the Salvacion Elementary School, Brgy. Salvacion Nueva Valencia, Guimaras, August 26, 2006]

Good noon. Good noon.

I would like to call this National Disaster Coordinating Council meeting to order. We just came from Barangay La Paz in Nueva Valencia.

Indeed, this is a tragic accident. Our first order of business is to ensure the health and safety of our citizens who are in the path of the spill. We must make sure that the physical health and livelihood of our people are cared for today and in the days ahead.

Central to the care of our citizens is to clean up the spill as soon as possible to protect the health and well-being of our people, and make sure our pristine coastline is preserved and brought back to health.

I am personally pressing our government, Petron, the ship owner, and every responsible party to move quickly and decisively to clean up this eco mess. And we want to make sure the sunken tanker is secured, the fuel safely off-loaded, and this accident comes to a rapid conclusion.

I am instructing the meticulous and rapid assessment of the situation by the Department of Health, followed by prompt and sustained actions. Mobile hospitals shall be set up and evacuation procedures shall be undertaken as necessary to ease suffering and save lives. As to the need for coconut husks, bagas, rice straw, human hair and chicken feathers, Task Force Guimaras headed by Secretary Nonong Cruz, has been instructed to work with the private sector, including the media and the maritime industry, to put up drop off centers all over the country, and ensure speedy transport and deployment in the affected area. I have declared the Guimaras oil spill as a national calamity that demands the cooperation and solidarity of all Filipinos.

Moving forward, we can assure every single concerned citizen and group that there will be a full investigation of this entire matter to determine what happened, who is responsible and what steps we need to take to make sure that this type of accident doesn't happen again.

For this purpose, we shall be adding the Secretary of Justice to the Task Force Guimaras which is right now headed by Secretary Nonong Cruz and with members: the Secretary of Environment, the Secretary of Transportation and Communication, the Secretary of Health, the Secretary of Social Welfare and the Commanding Admiral of the Coast Guard.

We commend all of the volunteers who are working tirelessly to clean up this spill. This includes a heartfelt thanks to not only the men and women from the Philippines, but our international friends and partners from governments and the environmental community who are part of this clean up crusade. On behalf of the Filipino people, thank you.

This accident once again underscores the fragile nature of our environment and why we must, as a people, seek to do more to preserve our precious natural resources. In the months ahead, we will be revealing a comprehensive blueprint we have previously announced called the 'Berdeng Pilipinas' initiative.

We must as a nation move aggressively toward energy independence and protection of our land, air and sea. 'Berdeng Pilipinas' will be an ambitious but achievable plan for environmental protection consistent with our values as a nation.

On a personal note, let me express how saddened I am to see our beautiful beaches besmirched by this accident, and the pain I feel for the men and women who are in harm's way, and who have had their health and livelihood affected. We will do everything in our power to right the wrongs caused by this unfortunate accident.

So I would like to thank the media who covered this opening statement so that we can have a frank and candid discussion. I would request now that those who are not members of the NDCC be excused so that we can have an executive session.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212101/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2853&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) meeting

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, September 29, 2006]

I'd like to call this NDCC meeting to order.

Before anything, I would like to issue a statement:

Pinupuri natin ang lahat ng mga ahensiya ng pamahalaan sa kanilang mabilisang tugon at mahusay na koordinasyon sa kalamidad. Habang nagsisikap tayong aksiyonan ang landas ng nasira, sinisiguro natin sa publiko na wala tayong kakaligtaang pagkilos upang makabangon muli ang taumbayan at pamayanan.

Kagalingan ng sambayanan ang pangunahin nating layunin upang masagip ang mga buhay at tahanan, at tiyaking may sapat na pagkain, gamot at saklolo. Ako mismo ang nakikipa-ugnay sa mga pamahalaang lokal sa mga nasalantang lugar, at dapat silang manguna at mamuno bilang mga lider sa krisis. Tinutukoy natin hindi lamang ang Metro Manila kundi ang mga lalawigang malayo.

Ipinapaabot ko ang aking matinding pagmamalasakit sa mga pamilyang tinamaan nitong mabagsik na trahedya, at panata natin sa kanila na darating ang mga tulong mula sa pamahalaan. Pagkalinga sa mga biktima ang una nating tungkulin.

Samantala, inaatasan ko rin ang mga ahensiyang kinauukulan na subaybayan ang mga presyo ng mga pangunahing bilihin, upang maiwasan ang pagsasamantala, agad ibalik ang kuryente sa Luzon, at kagyat na linisin at hakutin ang mga nakakalat na bagay at mapanganib na sagabal. Inaatasan ko sa MMDA at DPWH na isumite sa akin ang kanilang mga detalyadong rekomendasyon ukol sa mga konkretong regulasyon para sa pagtatayo ng mga malalaking karatula.

Hangad natin makaahon ang buong bansa sa kalamidad na ito na nagkakaisa at buo ang loob upang maisaayos ang lahat ng pagkasalanta sa lalong madaling panahon.

Kasihan nawa tayo ng diyos.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412212052/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2926&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the 2007 National Budget [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Sa Roundtable Discussion ukol sa 2007 Pambansang Badyet

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 16 ng Oktubre, 2006]

Magandang hapon sa inyong lahat.

Nagalak tayo sa pag-apruba ng Mababang Kapulungan sa ating budget sa susunod na taon. Ngayon naghihintay tayo sa pagsulong ng budget sa Senado para maisabatas na itong lalo sa madaling panahon at agad makinabang ang taong-bayan lalo na ang karaniwang mamamayan sa mga programa at proyektong nasa budget.

Makikita natin sa budget ng 2007 ang bunga ng ating mga reporma sa buwis. Lampas 1.1 trillion pesos ang halaga ng mga programa at proyektong papopondohan. Subalit magagawa pa rin natin hatiin ang budget deficit, yung bang kalabisan ng gastos sa kita ng gobyerno, dahil sa lumalaking koleksiyon ng buwis. Dahil bumaba ang deficit, bumababa rin ang interest na sinisingil ng mga nagkakautang sa pamahalaan. Kaya naman sa kauna-unang pagkakataon bababa ang interest na babayaran ng gobyerno. Ang matitipid natin sa interest ay 22 billion pesos at ito ay uukol natin sa serbisyo publiko.

Tignan niyo kung saan yung 22 billion pesos sa bayad ng interes pupunta. Tataas nang halos 16 billion pesos ang alokasyon para sa edukasyon; halos limang bilyon ang dagdag sa kagawaran ng kalusugan kasama ang 3.5 billion pesos sa PhilHealth. At ito ay more than four times the budget for this year. At samantala naman lalago ng higit isang bilyon ang budget ng DSWD. Di ngayon na-save natin 22 billion sa interest — tataas tuloy ng 16 sa edukasyon, five sa kalusugan, at one sa DSWD. Tamang-tama yung na-save nating 22 billion ay pupunta sa social services.

Narito ngayon upang ipaliwanag ang mga programang nasa 2007 budget, si Budget Secretary Nonoy Andaya. Magandang hapon, Nonoy; nandito rin si Assistant Secretary Lilia Roces ng Department of Education. Magandang hapon, Lilia; nandito yung aking kumadre si — Undersecretary na nga pala noon nakilala ko Regional Director pa lang — Undersecretary Ethelyn Nieto ng Department of Health. Magandang hapon, kumadre; at ang aking dating kasamahan sa DSWD, si Lulu Pablo. Magandang hapon, Lulu.

So Nonoy, congratulations! Sa magandang pag-allocate mo ng budget natin. At first time, Nonoy, di ba na mas malaki ang social services kaysa sa interest payments.

* * *

Closing statement:

Sa Luzon naman kasi dalawa lang ang province that belong to the ten poorest — Mt. Province at saka... No, pero ang pinakamahirap Mt. Province at saka Masbate. Dapat siguraduhin ninyo that you are upgrading the hospital in Mt. Province and Masbate.

Siyempre kaya ko minemorize yung ten poorest province eh dapat pina-prioritize talaga natin yon kasi gusto natin na maramdaman ng pinakamahirap. Susunod nating imemorize uli yung pangalan ng limang pinakamahirap na bayan.

Nonoy, yung itong ginawa mong budget for 2007 ay talagang makakaraniwang Pilipino dahil nga sa pag-increase ng budget ng DepEd, ng DOH at PhilHealth, at saka ng DSWD. Kaya ang importante ay sana pumasa sa Senado itong budget na ito nang hindi pinapalitan. Hindi ba, Nonoy? Kaya ito kung pumasa ito sa ganitong anyo masasabi natin na 2007 is the year that it all comes together. Mararamdaman ng karaniwang mamamayan ang biyaya ng ating mga reporma.

Kaya maraming salamat Nonoy sa iyong leadership sa budget. At good luck din Assistant Secretary Roces sa iyong mga bagong paaralan to close the classroom gap. At saka Undersecretary Nieto, congratulations! Din sa upgrade ng ating public health services. At Lulu, good luck! Din sa ating KALAHI.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on the 2007 National Budget. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412210852/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3012&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on infrastructures and how they affect the average Filipino [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa Roundtable Discussion ukol sa mga inprastruktura at kung papaano nakakaapekto ang mga ito sa karaniwang Pilipino

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 17 ng Oktubre, 2006]

Magandang umaga sa inyong lahat.

Mga kalsada at tulay ang pag-uusapan natin ngayon, at mga pantalan, paliparan, tren at paaralan, patubig at kuryente. Sa madaling salita imprastruktura.

Sa napakatagal na panahon kapus na kapus ang ating ginugugol sa imprastruktura. Tuloy noong mga taon ng dekada 90 at saka 80s, araw-araw ang mahahabang brownout. At bago natin pinalawak ang patubig sa ating administrasyon, minsan lamang umani sa isang taon ang libo-libung magsasaka. Kaya naman sa ilalim ng planong pangkaunlaran na hinayag natin sa SONA noong Hulyo, sa State of the Nation Address noong Hulyo, dodoblehin natin ang porsiyento ng ekonomiya na inilalaan sa imprastruktura. Sa ganitong paraan lalakas ang kita ng karaniwang Pilipino lalo na ang nasa lalawigan, giginhawa ang buhay at dadami ang trabaho. Ano ang ating maitatayo at paano ito makakatulong sa karaniwang Pilipino? Itong tatalakayin natin ngayon kasama ang ilang miyembro ng pamahalaan na may kinalaman sa imprastruktura.

Narito ang Secretary ng Public Works, si Jun Ebdane. Magandang umaga, Jun; narito ang Secretary ng Transportasyon, si Larry Mendoza. Magandang umaga rin, Larry; narito ang Chairman ng Infrastructure Monitoring Task Force, si Arty Yap ng PMS. Magandang umaga, Arty; at narito ang bagong administrasyon ng irigasyon si Art Lomibao. Magandang umaga, Art.

So, magandang tanghali sa inyong lahat at pag-usapan na natin yung imprastruktura. Arty, bilang PMS Director General, ikaw ang namumuno sa nagmomonitor ng imprastruktura natin. So, yung sinasabi ko kanina ang imprastruktura kasama dito yung mga kalsada. Jun, ano-anung mga importanteng kalsadang tinatayo natin ngayon sa ating bansa?

* * *

Closing Statement:

Yung Instrument Landing System. Kasi yung Instrument Landing System kinakailangan ng foreign airlines para sa kanilang mga standards. So November lalagyan na ng... Mabubuo na ang Instrument Landing System ng Boracay. Darating na yung unang chartered flight kasi ayos na, handa na lahat ang mga chartered planes hinihintay na lamang ito. 'di mas lalong dadami ang turista na naman sa Aklan at makakatulong doon sa kahirapan or sa karaniwang Pilipino doon sa Panay Island.

Yes, magsisimula ng Cagayan de Oro, Camiguin, Bohol, Cebu, Masbate at saka abot ng Bicol. Yon ang Central Nautical Highway. Kaya pupunta tayo sa Camiguin sa Huwebes para anunsiyuhin yung ginagawa natin para sa Nautical Highway na combination ng pantalan at saka yung highway. Kaya ang imprastruktura ay nakakatulong talaga sa karaniwang Pilipino at nagiging mas madali ang negosyo, nagiging mas madali magkaroon ng trabaho.

Kaya maraming salamat sa ating mga infrastructure officials. Maraming salamat, Larry Mendoza. Maraming salamat, Jun Ebdane. Maraming salamat, Art Lomibao. At yung nagmomonitor para tuloy-tuloy at walang mga aksayang panahon ang pagtayo ng imprastruktura si Arty Yap, maraming salamat din.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on Infrastructures and how they affect the average Filipino. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412211007/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3011&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on interfaith dialogue and collaboration [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa Roundtable Discussion ukol sa dayalogo at kolaborasyon sa pagitan ng iba't-ibang relihiyon

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 20 ng Oktubre, 2006]

Magandang hapon sa inyong lahat.

Sa darating na Martes, ipagdidiriwang natin ang Eid Ul Fitre, ang katapusan ng Ramadan. Kaya minarapat nating talakayin ngayon ang mga pagkilos upang isulong ang kaunlaran ng mga Pilipinong Muslim.

Pangunahin sa mga pagkilos na ito ang masigasig na patuloy na pagpapatupad ng kasunduang pangkapayapaan ng ating republika at ng Moro National Liberation Front o MNLF. Kabilang dito ang agarang pag-apruba sa budget ng ARMM, ang pagtatayo ng mga Shariah Court, at ang patuloy na paghirang ng mga Muslim sa iba't-ibang matataas na tungkulin sa gobyerno kabilang na ang Cabinet secretary, walong undersecretary, tatlong commissioner at limang embahador.

Hangad natin makapagpatupad din ng kasunduang pangkapayapaan sa pagitan ng republika at ng Moro Islamic Liberation Front o MILF. Bilyun-bilyong piso ang naghihintay ng kapayapaan upang magpondo ng mga negosyo, imprastruktura at proyektong pangkaunlaran sa Muslim Mindanao pag nagkaroon na tayo ng peace agreement.

Ngunit kahit wala pang peace agreement, umaarangkada na ang ating proyekto at mga programa para sa Mindanao Super Region, na si Secretary Jess Dureza ang nakatalagang champion. Para sa mga magsasaka, halimbawa, naglaan tayo ng higit dalawang bilyong piso taun-taon para sa mga maliliit na patubig at gayon ding halaga para sa mga kalsada mula sakahan patungong pamilihan.

Isinusulong din natin ang pagkakaunawaan ng Muslim at Kristiyano, at ang paglago at pagsigla ng kulturang Muslim. At walang patid ang suporta natin sa kilusan ng mga Muslim na mapayapa at kontra sa karahasang bunga ng pagbaluktot ng mga paniniwala ng Islam.

Ito ang ating tatalakayin ngayon kaya kasama natin sina Archbishop Tony Ledesma na Archbishop ng Cagayan de Oro at siya rin ang Chairman ng Episcopal Commission for Inter-Religious Dialogue. Magandang hapon, Archbishop Ledesma; at narito rin si Assistant Secretary Cora Yap Bahjin, ang pinakabago nating Muslim na ambassador. Siya ay namamahala ngayon sa Office of Strategic Planning and Policy Coordination for the Department of Foreign Affairs. Magandang hapon, Ambassador Bahjin; at sa aking kanan naman ay si Isabel Tobias, ang Secretary General ng Presidential Council for Values Formation at siya rin ang namamahala ng ating interfaith dialogue. Magandang hapon, Isabel; at sa ating kanan isang kilalang-kilalang leader ng ating mga Christian community, si Bishop Efraim Tendero, siya ang National Director ng Philippine Council for Evangelical Churches. Siya rin ang co-chairperson ng National Interfaith Council. Magandang hapon, Bishop Ten, ang tawag natin; at nandito naman din si Professor Taj Basman, siya ay Commissioner ng UNESCO at siya rin ay commissioner for the Presidential Center for Moderate Muslims. Magandang hapon, professor Basman.

Thank you. Umpisahan natin si Archbishop Ledesma. Archbishop, dito sa Episcopal Commission for Inter-Religious Dialogues, kumusta na ho ang ating Inter-Religious Dialogue kasi ito'y isang napakaimportanteng gawain na kinikilala ngayon pati ng United Nations dahil sa resolution na pinakilala ng Pilipinas doon sa U.N.

* * *

Closing statement:

So, on this occasion of Ramadan and Eid Ul Fitre, it is very important that we remember that we are multi-ethnic society. So whether you are Catholic, Christian, Evangelical, Muslim, indigenous people, you answer to the name Filipino. And on the day of Eid Ul Fitre, in advance we'd like to say, Eid Mubarak. And we hope that there will be even greater understanding for peace in our country.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat. Thank you very much for being with us. I'll start my thanks again now with Professor Basman, maraming salamat. Thank you for promoting moderate Muslim; and thank you also Bishop Tendero for bringing interfaith dialogue to the grassroots; salamat Isabel because you're the one that puts it altogether for me, thank you very much; and to Cora, congratulations! On a well-deserved promotion to the ambassadorship; and archbishop, thank you very much, and in behalf of the Philippine government and the Filipino people thank you for all that the Bishop-Ulama Conference has been doing for peace in our country.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on Interfaith Dialogue and Collaboration. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409204444/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3009&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on top performing schools and students of the National Achievement Test for School Year 2005-2006 [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa Roundtable Discussion ukol sa pinakamagagaling na paaralan at mag-aaral sa National Achievement Test para sa Taon ng Paaralan 2005-2006

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 25 ng Oktubre, 2006]

Magandang umaga sa inyong lahat.

Napakahalaga ang edukasyon sa ating hangad na wakasan ang kahirapan at ipaunlad ang bansa. Sa gayon makikibahagi at makikinabang ang bawat Pilipino sa lumalakas na ekonomiya.

Upang tingnan ang kagalingan ng ating mga estudyante, taun-taon nagkakaroon tayo ng National Achievement Test.

Ngayong umaga kukuha tayo ng mga balita tungkol sa mga nangungunang eskwelahan at estudyante sa kamakailan lamang ginanap na National Achievement Test. Sa alam ko sa mga mababang paaralan, nangunguna ang Balatero Elementary School ng Mindoro Oriental at Sindangan Elementary School at Tinago Elementary School ng Southern Leyte. Nakakuha sila ng average na marka ng lampas siyamnapu't-tatlong porsiyento.

Sa mga high school naman, kinikilala natin ang Calbayog City National High School at Sulat National High School, kapwa nasa Samar, at Giloctong National High School sa lalawigan ng Cebu. Halos walumpung porsiyento ang average nila.

Dalawa ang galing sa Southern Leyte at dalawa ang galing sa Samar Island. Nagmukhang napakagaling ng Eastern Visayas. Alamin natin ang kanilang sikreto. Pero meron naman tayong dalawang estudyante naka-100 sa math mula naman sa Bohol. Alamin din natin ang kanilang sikreto pati yung sikreto ng mga number one at number two na mga eskwelahan.

Sa umagang ito, kilalanin natin at pakinggan ang mga guro at mag-aaral ng mga nangungunang pampublikong paaralan sa ating bansa. Ipapakilala sila ng ating Kalihim ng Edukasyon, si Secretary Jesli Lapus. Magandang umaga, Jing.

Sec. Jesli Lapus: magandang umaga, ma'am. Ma'am, bisita natin ngayon ang dalawang number one at number two sa high school at elementary. Sa inyo pong kaliwa ay si Mr. Renato Cagamoc, ang principal ng Calbayog City High School.

Binati nga natin siya nung nandoon tayo sa Calbayog, kaya nga inisip ko na magkaron tayo nitong talakayang ito kasi yung ipinagmamalaki nga ng mayor ng Calbayog yung kanilang naganap.

Sec. Jesli Lapus: at sa kanan po naman, ma'am ay si Mr. Marcelino Abordo, ang head teacher 3 ng Giloctong National High School sa Boloboloc extension, Cebu. At ang number one naman na paaralan sa elementarya galing po sa Balatero Elementary School, Puerto Galera, Oriental Mindoro. Si Mrs. Emilie Marquez ang atin pong principal.

Hindi lang pala maganda ang baybay at ang diving ng Mindoro, magagaling na mga bata sa Puerto Galera.

Sec. Jesli Lapus: si Mrs. Virginia Cortina naman po ang teacher in charge ng Sindangan Elementary School sa Macrohon, Southern Leyte.

Malayo, malayung-malayong bayan...

Sec. Jesli Lapus: number two po sila.

....Pero ang tatalino ng mga bata at mga guro.

* * *

Closing statement:

Okay. What we are going to do is we're going to instruct the Chairman of CHED, Secretary Carlito Puno to provide both of you a scholarship. Our answer to your prayers. Siyempre naman 100 yata ang math. Dapat papasok kayo sa engineering na kailangan-kailangan ng ating bansa at yon ang ating kinabukasan.

So, Jing napakaganda yung inyong program, and we have all these very masabi nating very inspiring examples. Siyempre kailangan magaling ang guro, kailangan magaling ang administrators, kailangan magaling ang mga bata, madasalin, masipag at lalo nakakatulong kapag tumutulong yung buong pamayanan at yung mga business community kung tumutulong sila. Eto ang mga sikreto kung papano nagiging magaling ang ating mga paaralan. Eto na rin ang sikreto ng kagalingan ng ating buong sistema ng edukasyon.

So, ibig sabihin noon tama yung mga hakbang, ngayon ang importante i-upscale natin. Very good.

So, maraming salamat at congratulations! Ha. Congratulations! Julie; congratulations! Flores; congratulations! din kay Principal Marquez; congratulations! Kay Mr. Cagamoc; congratulations! Kay Virginia, teacher; at congratulations! Din kay teacher Marcelino. At sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Jing Lapus.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on Top Performing Schools and Students of the National Achievement Test for Schoolyear 2005-2006. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203838/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3003&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo for an Official Visit to the People's Republic of China

Departure Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
For an Official Visit to the People's Republic of China

[Issued on October 27, 2006]

There is nothing more important for our nation than peace and prosperity. My most sacred pledge as President is to keep our nation strong and secure and to promote the common welfare. The recent nuclear test in North Korea reminded us all of the importance of regional solidarity in the face of irrational aggression.

My trip to China to meet with the regional leaders of ASEAN and China is a step toward securing the peace and security we need. We are in a new era, and we must forge new alliances and new friendships to protect our way of life.

My trip to China is also to celebrate the role ASEAN has played in bringing China into the fold and integrating China into the world economy. China is now a powerhouse and I am proud that ASEAN and the Philippines have played a role in their success.

Our relationship with China will bring not only strengthened regional security, but it will also enhance our economic fortunes. Economic prosperity through new investments and new markets will help build a new, modern, more prosperous Philippines. We can and must continue to lift up our poor and improve our quality of life with good jobs and good wages. International engagement has helped us attain growth; it will continue to do so.

Meeting with ASEAN leaders and China is another strong step toward preparing the Philippines for greater prosperity. Promoting openness, extending cooperation and building friendship is a policy that clearly wins out over perpetuating a closed society, aiding alienation and seeking confrontation. We are on the right track in the region as we build solidarity among neighbors in pursuit of peace and economic development.

I am proud to represent the Philippines at this important moment in history. The Philippines is blessed with the honor of being the Chair of the ASEAN Leaders Summit and the host of the East Asian Leaders meeting, both in Cebu in December. This reflects great pride on the Philippines.

It is with pride that I depart for China to represent 85 million hardworking Filipinos. I look forward to a fruitful trip and, as always, I look forward to my return.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). President's Departure Statement for an Official Visit to the People's Republic of China. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203734/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3002&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Commemorative Summit marking the 15th anniversary of ASEAN-China Dialogue Relations

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Commemorative Summit marking the 15th anniversary of ASEAN-China Dialogue Relations

[Released at the Multifunctional Hall, International Conference Centre, Li Yuan Hotel, Nanning, Guangxi, PROC, October 30, 2006]

Members of the media, ladies and gentlemen.

All of the ASEAN leaders are here in China to celebrate the 15th year of China 's partnership with ASEAN. As the chair of ASEAN this year, I would like to express how proud we are of the role that ASEAN has played in helping China integrate its economy and become an economic powerhouse. This role of China has helped ASEAN. Our trade is surging with China and we are starting to see more Chinese investment in ASEAN. We hope to see more.

China has surged onto the world stage and ASEAN has surged with it. The change has been profound. The leaders welcome the deepening of ties to the ASEAN – China free trade agreement. This agreement is built on respect, reciprocity and pragmatism. It will help all of our economies grow and strengthen peace and security in the region.

Going forward, the leaders agreed that we should continue to strengthen the ASEAN – China partnership. We agreed to promote confidence-building measures to further enhance mutual trust and understanding, to intensify interactions and to allocate adequate resources to steer the relations and cooperation for mutual benefit.

In the light of recent events in North Korea, regional peace and security has never been more important. Although ASEAN is not a security organization and it is focused on economic and regional integration, the meeting of ASEAN and Chinese leaders provides a significant forum for discussing economic and security issues. It helps tie the region together and strengthen solidarity in times of crisis.

We were impressed by the unanimity of every leader on the issue of North Korea and the resolve to work together as a region to seek a diplomatic solution through the resumption of the six-party talks. We were also impressed with the concern that was expressed by China and the hands on role it is playing to bring this issue to a positive conclusion.

We in ASEAN thank Premier Wen Jiabao and the government and people of China and Guangxi and Nanning for their excellent and magnificent hospitality. And I invite all of you to the ASEAN Summit in Cebu, Philippines where we shall also hold the annual ASEAN + China Summit, the ASEAN + Three Summit and the East Asia Summit.

We also look forward to the opportunity of hosting a meeting among China, Korea and Japan.

We are confident that these series of meetings which started today here in Nanning will make a very significant contribution to our shared goals of regional peace, stability and prosperity.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Commemorative Summit Marking the 15th Anniversary of ASEAN-China Dialogue Relations. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203701/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2997&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Commemorative Summit marking the 15th anniversary of ASEAN-China Dialogue Relations

Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Commemorative Summit marking the 15th anniversary of ASEAN-China Dialogue Relations

[Released at the Multifunctional Hall, International Conference Centre, Li Yuan Hotel Nanning, Guangxi, PROC, October 30, 2006]

Thank you, your Excellency Premier Wen Jiabao.

My fellow leaders in the ASEAN family:

I would like to begin by thanking Premier Wen Jiabao and the government of China for the magnificent hosting of this 15th anniversary of ASEAN-China Commemorative Summit.

This summit is more important than ever because open dialogue and trust between peoples and nations has never been more important than in today's world — all of the ASEAN leaders who travelled to China to celebrate this very important milestone for ASEAN, the region and the world.

We in ASEAN takes some amount of pride and satisfaction in helping China become an economic powerhouse as a result of economic, political and cultural collaboration between ASEAN and China.

China has surged onto the world stage and ASEAN has surged with it. The change has been profound. ASEAN welcomes the deepening of ties to the ASEAN-China free trade agreement. This agreement is built on respect, reciprocity and pragmatism. It will help all of our economies grow and strengthen peace and security in the region.

So it gives me great pleasure to declare today that we in ASEAN believe that relations between China and ASEAN have never been better or stronger. This is an important state of affairs that can only help the region and the world.

Yet, what is most important is not what has transpired between ASEAN and China or even between our individual countries and China. What is important is what happens next. What will our relationship look like 15 years from today? Will our economies not improve? Will there be less poverty and more prosperity? Will the world be safer and more secure?

In the light of recent events in North Korea, regional peace and security has never been more important. ASEAN is not a security organization. It is focused on economic and social integration.

Yet, this meeting of ASEAN and Chinese leaders provides a significant forum for discussing economic and security issues. It helps tie the region together and strengthen solidarity in times of crisis.

These are the issues that we must focus our attention on. These are the issues that should be the subject of our meeting here in China and later in the Philippines as we forge a vision of what the future will be like for the next generation.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203715/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2998&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo after an Official Visit to the People's Republic of China

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
After an Official Visit to the People's Republic of China

[Released at the Terminal 2, NAIA, Pasay City, November 3, 2006]

Good evening. Please sit down.

Vice President De Castro, Cabinet members, General Esperon, our officers of the Armed Forces, other government officials, ladies and gentlemen.

Umuwi ang inyong lingkod na may malaking pag-asa para sa Pilipinas ukol sa pagsulong ng ekonomiya at seguridad sa buong East Asia. Bilang chair ng ASEAN at co-chair ng ASEAN-China Summit, nadala natin sa pansin ng rehiyon ang mga adhikain ng mga Pilipino para sa sama-samang katatagan at kaunlaran sa ilalim ng pag-iral ng tunay na kalayaan at demokrasya.

Buong loob tayong mapabisa ang diplomasya para sa taumbayan maging sa paghandog ng higit na pangangalakal at pamumuhunan upang lumikha ng mga trabaho o humubog ng malakas na pagkakasundo sa rehiyon para sa kapayapaan at seguridad o proteksyunan ang interes at kinabubuti ng mga Pilipino saan man sila nagtrabaho at nakatira.

Moody's investor service raised our outlook in recognition of the huge progress we have made in the Philippines to reform our economy and take control of our economic future. I want to thank the millions of hardworking Filipinos including our overseas workers who have come together to help turn around our economic fortunes. The bandwagon of Filipino productivity and excellence is pulling us forward in the world. For the first time in a generation, we now had the money for long overdue investments in our people and our nation.

We have the first fruits of our reform, surplus money not debt, to invest in infrastructure, education and health care, and attract new investments to create good, high-paying jobs in the Philippines. This is another important step forward to help build up our great nation and raise the quality of life and help lift up our poor from the grip of poverty.

Maraming salamat. Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Arrival Statement after an Official Visit to the People's Republic of China. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203636/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3043&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the Millennium Development Goals

Opening/Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During a Roundtable Discussion on the Millennium Development Goals

[Released at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, November 7, 2006]

Magandang umaga, mga kababayan.

Malakas ang piso at mataas ang stockmarket; gayon din ang rating ng bansa at pasok ng investment. Nakabalik na tayo sa mabilis na paglago ng ekonomiya noong dekada 60 — panahon ng aking ama — kung kailan nung panahon niya pangalawa sa Asya ang Pilipinas. Hindi na tayo pangalawa sa Asya dahil marami nang nakalampas sa atin mula nung panahong yon, pero at least yung mga growth rate natin ay umaabot na sa mga panahong yon.

Ngunit malamang tinatanong ng marami, ano ang biyaya sa masa nang pagsigla ng negosyo at ekonomiya? Sa pag-angat ang merkado at ekonomiya, kailangang makabangon ang karaniwang Pilipino.

Sa ating administrasyon, pinakamababa ang average na porsiyento ng mga tao nagsasabing mahirap sila. Yon ang tinatawag ng mga survey na 'average self-rated poverty.' nagmula itong survey nung panahon ni President Aquino. Nung panahong yon, 63 percent ang nagsabing mahirap sila on the average. Pababa ito bawat administrasyon: 62 kay Ramos, 60 kay Estrada, at nung Setyembre nitong taong ito malaking binaba, 51 percent ang nagsabing mahirap sila.

Isa sa mga pangunahing target natin sa pag-angat ng masa ang Millennium Development Goals na pinagkasunduan ng United Nations na sisikapin nating gawin mula taong 2000 hanggang 2015.

Labingdalawa ang Millennium Development Goals. Kasama dito... Well, first ano itong labingdalawa? — poverty, dietary energy requirement, gender equality and education, child mortality, HIV/AIDS, malaria, access to safe drinking water, nutrition, maternal health, elementary cohort survival rate, elementary participation rate, access to reproductive health services. Sa madaling panahon, sa madaling salita, itong pinag-uusapan nating mga Millennium Development Goals kasama dito yung hatiin ang dami ng maralita, labanan ang malaria at AIDS, ang pagkasawi ng mga bata, at paabutin sa lahat sa babae at lalaki ang pagkain, tubig at edukasyong kailangan para sa magandang buhay at kinabukasan.

Ngayong umaga, tatalakayin nating kung papano lalo nating mapapahusay ang ating pagsisikap para sa Millennium Development Goals, at sa gayon, mai-angat ang buhay at kabuhayan ng mamamayang Pilipino. Ginawa natin itong programang ito bilang pag-welcome sa ating National Anti-Poverty Commission Lead Convenor, si Secretary Ding Panganiban — congratulations! Ding — dahil yung National Anti-Poverty Commission na naghahangad na mabawasan natin ang kahirapan ay kasing-importante ng NEDA kaya nandito naman ang head ng NEDA, si Secretary Romy Neri. Magandang umaga, Romy.

At isa sa pinakamalaking dapat asikasuhin sa problema ni Ding Panganiban at tamang-tama dahil sa malawak niyang kasaysayan sa agrikultura ay yung sinasabi nila rin sa survey na marami ang nagugutom. Kaya itong kagutumang ito ay isa sa magiging malaking trabaho ng NAPC at ng National Nutrition Council na nasa ilalim ng Department of Health, kaya nandito rin ang ating Secretary of Health, si Pingkoy Duque. Magandang umaga, Pingkoy.

And of course, because we have internalized the Millennium Development Goals in our country, we are working very closely with the United Nations Development Program on monitoring our progress, and so here we have again the UNDP resident representative, Ms. Nileema Noble. Hello! Nileema.

Ding, maikuwento mo nga, sa nakita mo na yung challenges at saka yung scope ng trabaho ng NAPC Ding, ano. Ano ang gagawin natin para tuloy na bumaba yung ating poverty rate at saka itong hunger, itong very recent problem na lumalabas?

* * *

Closing statement:

Thank you, Nileema.

So, this is something that is very important to our economy, to make sure that the ordinary Filipinos feel the blessings of development. Pero siyempre kailangan din natin yung macro-economy, yung paglago ng ekonomiya para merong umaabot sa karaniwang Pilipino.

The growth of the economy, the opportunities for enterprise and the social payback of reforms — eto na nga, itong pinag-uusapan na natin ngayon — all are combining to boost our competitiveness in the international arena. We are making our mark in reaping confidence in Filipino excellence and enterprise operating in an environment of economic and political security.

Kailangan natin ang trabaho. Kailangan nating labanan ang kahirapan. Kailangan natin ang kakayahang makipagkompentensiya sa buong mundo. Kaya naman para maiwasan ang kahirapan or umangat mas lalo ang ating taong-bayan pinapaangat natin ang mga sektor na nagbibigay ng maraming trabaho, gaya ng call center at turismo, at lalo na ngayon umaangat ang medical tourism.

Medical tourism is one of the solid niches for the Philippines. We have among the best doctors, nurses and caregivers in the world. We've among the best medical facilities and we can have more in the tourist zones in our super regions. Cost is competitive and quality is high. Filipino professionals can serve the world right here at home, as we provide more jobs downstream and cut down poverty.

Kaya abangan ang susunod nating talakayan kung saan pag-uusapan natin ang medical tourism.

Until then, thank you so much, Nileema for joining us once again. Maraming salamat Pingkoy, good luck sa ating Anti-Hunger Campaign. Salamat Romy sa iyong framework na ginawa sa ating 'mitigating hunger plan.' and congratulations! And good luck! Ding sa iyong leadership sa National Anti-Poverty Commission.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on the Millennium Development Goals. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203607/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3041&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on medical tourism

Opening/Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During a Roundtable Discussion on medical tourism

[Released at the Asian Hospital and Medical Center, Civic Drive, Alabang, Muntinlupa City, November 8, 2006]

Magandang umaga, mga kababayan.

Medical tourism is one of the solid niches for the Philippines. Nasa atin ang ilan sa pinakamagagaling na doktor, nurse at taga-alaga sa buong mundo. We've among the best doctors, nurses and caregivers in the world. We've among the best medical facilities kagaya nitong Asian hospital kung saan tayo narito ngayon. And we can have more in the tourist zones in our super regions. Cost is competitive and quality is high. Filipino professionals can serve the world right here at home as we provide more jobs downstream and cut down poverty.

Itong araw na ito, nandito nga tayo sa Asian hospital para magbigay ng halimbawa ng medical tourism. At kasama natin para sa talakayan ng medical tourism ang pinuno ng Department of Health, si Secretary Pingkoy Duque, magandang umaga, Pingkoy.

Ang medical tourism hindi lamang ibig sabihin mga doctor, ito ang pag-aalaga sa kalusugan ng mga maysakit o matatanda. At nandito rin ang namumuno ng ating Philippine Retirement Authority, si Former General Aglipay na siya ang namumuno ng Philippine Retirement Authority, para sa ganun magkakaroon din tayo ng mga nagpupunta dito para sa mga retirement villages. Magandang umaga, Egay.

And of course, one of the... Its the rich people who like to travel for medical reasons and among the things that they like to do is to have cosmetic surgery. We have here one of our cosmetic surgeons in our country, Dr. Manny Calayan of the Calayan Surgicenter Corporation. Good morning, Dr. Calayan.

And you know, Thailand is famous for medical tourism. Hindi naman tayo nahihya sa kumpetensiya ng Thailand dahil talaga namang number one ang Thailand sa tourism sa buong region. At sila naman ay hindi naman sila nagdadamot, pinapadala nila yung teknolohiya sa atin. Kaya itong Asian Hospital ay thirty percent ng Asian Hospital ang may-ari ay Thailand Medical Tourism, isang korporasyon ng Thailand na gumagawa nga ng medical tourism, and therefore, the CEO of the Asian Hospital and Medical Center is Pamela Robinson, president. Hello! Pamela, good morning. At ang medical director nitong Asian Hospital and Medical Center ay si Dr. Antonio Rivera. Magandang umaga, Dr. Rivera.

And we have another pioneer in medical tourism and cosmetic surgery tourism in the Philippines. We have David Bunevacz, president and founder and CEO of the Beverly Hills 6750 Cosmetic Surgery and Skin Institute. Good morning, David.

So, let's begin with Pingkoy. Nagpa-partner kayo ng Department of Tourism para sa medical tourism. So, gaano kalawak na ang ating mga facilities ng medical tourism dito sa ating bansa?

* * *

Closing Statement:

So, I hope that you'll all be very successful. So, thank you, David. I hope that you will be successful. Dr. Calayan, I hope you will continue to be successful. Dr. Rivera and Pamela, I hope that you will really bring the technology of successful practice here in the Philippines. And Egay, bring home all those balikbayan for their medical tourism here. At sa iyo rin Pingkoy, tuloy-tuloy na tulungan natin yung ospital at clinic para sa medical tourism.

The growth of the economy, the opportunities of our enterprise, and the social payback of reforms — all are combining to boost our competitiveness in the international arena. We are making our mark in reaping confidence in Filipino excellence and enterprise operating in an environment of economic and political security.

So, sa inyong lahat, congratulations!

Thank you very much, David. Thank you, Dr. Rivera. Thank you, Pamela. And thank you also Dr. Calayan. Thank you, Egay and thank you, Pingkoy.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on Medical Tourism. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203540/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3040&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the 10 percent increase across the board for Social Security System (SSS) pensioners

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on the 10 percent increase across the board for Social Security System (SSS) pensioners

[Released at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, November 13, 2006]

Magandang umaga, mga kababayan.

Bago sa lahat, we take this opportunity:

We salute Ronnie Alcano for making the Filipino people proud once again by dominating the World Pool Championship. This victory not only showcases the Filipino's master of the game, but the fact that we never run out of champions of excellence in all fields. This victory serves as an inspiration for our athletes who will compete in the forthcoming Asian games in Qatar, lalo na sa 2008 Beijing olympics, and for the younger generations to work hard in achieving our dreams for the greater good of the nation.

We join all Filipinos here and all over the world who continue to cheer for our victories in all fronts of world competition. And we join the nation in praying and hoping for a grand victory for Manny Pacquiao for his upcoming big fight.

Naisip kong pag-usapan ang mga atleta dahil ang ating mga atleta — at hindi lang ating mga atleta, atleta sa buong mundo — ay gaya ng maraming karaniwang Pilipino paglipas ng kanilang tumbok ng kalakasan, pag retired na sila, hindi na nakakahanap-buhay sa sariling kalakasan. Kaya kailangan-kailangan ng pensiyon. At dito naman sa ating bansa, bahagi ng ating reporma sa pananalapi ng gobyerno ang pagpapatibay ng Social Security System or SSS.

Dahil sa mga reporma sa ilalim ng ating administrasyon, inatasan ko hindi nagtatagal nakaraan si Chairman Thelmo Cunanan na dagdagan ang mga pensiyong ibinibigay ng SSS sa mga retiradong kasapi. Maagang Pasko ito mula sa inyong pamahalaang SSS.

Nagawa ito dahil ang SSS ay malakas ang mga reporma, mas malakas ang koleksiyon ng kontribusyon mula sa mga kompanya, lalo na sa mga hindi nagbabayad noon. Dahil din sa mga reporma, napahaba ang actuarial life ng SSS hanggang 2031 mula 2015 noon.

Alamin natin ngayong umaga kung paano napalakas ang SSS at kung anu-anong mas magandang serbisyo at benepisyo ang naging bunga ng ating mga reporma sa Social Security System. Kasama natin ngayon ang namuno ng mga reporma ng SSS, si Cora Dela Paz, ang pangulo at CEO ng SSS. Magandang umaga, Cora at congratulations! Sa mga reporma; nandito rin si May Catherine Ciriaco, siya ang Vice President ng Management Services Division. Magandang umaga, Catherine; at yung mga beneficiary natin, nandito si Errol Reburiano, ang Pangulo ng Philippine Retirees Club. Magandang umaga, Ginoong Errol; at si Pilar Racaza, ang Secretary ng SSS Pensioner's Club. Magandang umaga, Aling Pilar.

Okay. Ngayon, naalala ko noon pa, noon pang 2004 sinsabi ko na kay Cora, "Cora, itaas na natin ang pension, andami nagdadaing." At nung panahong yon sabi ni Cora hindi pa panahon kasi hindi pa matatag ang pondo ng SSS kaya sabi niya, hayaan niyo muna akong patatagin ito. At ngayon nga lately, matatag na. Naalala ko nung isang birthday ni Joey Salceda, yung ekonomista natin sa Kongreso at binigyan niya tayo ng lecture tungkol sa ekonomiya, isa sa mga sinabi niya bumaba na yung actuarial life ng SSS sa liderato ni Cora Dela Paz. Aba, sabi ko pwede ko nang kulinin uli yung SSS para mabigay na yung pension. Kaya nung nakita ko si Thelmo sabi ko, "Thelmo, panahon na."

Cora, anong mga ginawa mo mula nung 2004 noong kinukulit kita hanggang ngayon 2006 na ngayon nakaya na natin?

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement during a Roundtable Discussion on the 10 percent increase across the board for Social Security System (SSS) pensioners. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203441/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3036&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the successful outcome of the 14th APEC Leaders Meeting in Hanoi, Vietnam

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

On the successful outcome of the 14th APEC Leaders Meeting in Hanoi, Vietnam during an informal interaction with media

[Released on board PAL flight bound for Singapore, November 19, 2006]

At the APEC meetings were a success. Anytime that world leaders come together to discuss regional and international problems, it's a positive.

Clearly, the world is changing. And in no time has there ever been such a need for greater and economic security than now.

APEC continues to make a contribution to peace, security and economic cooperation.

Siguro kung tatanungin mo ano'ng mga kontribusyon ko? Mabuti siguro pag-usapan natin, ano yung mga outcome?

Dalawa yung importanteng retreat ng APEC: yung isa tungkol sa ekonomiya, at yung isa tungkol sa seguridad.

Tungkol sa ekonomiya, ang pinaka-importanteng tanong: papaano natin ipapabalik ang usapan ng Doha Round? At yung pinagkasundo ng lahat ng mga leader, everybody should give more than when the talks fell, especially U.S., Europe and the G-20.

Ngayon sabi ko naman, kung gusto ng mga malalaking ekonomiya na sumama yung mga maliliit na ekonomiya, na kumbinsihin itong mga ito — U.S., Europe, the big economies of the G-20 — we should have a stake in making the Doha Round successful because many of our constituents don't have a clear view of the benefits of the Doha Round for them. Because in many of the developing countries that are still agricultural and industrial sectors that are not yet competitive. And so therefore, it's just convenient for them that the Doha Round is stalled.

So if you want Doha Round to go on, they must have a stake in the resumption of the Doha Round. And the way to do that I said is for WTO and the multilaterals help these sectors become competitive so that they will have a stake. They might even be able to export more under a globalized trading regime.

So, yon ang aking kontribusyon. Kasi lalo na sabi ko, ecotech... Because APEC is supposed to have three legs: the trade and investment liberalization; trade and investment facilitation; and ecotech (economic and technical cooperation) and... Improvement. And ecotech was born ten years ago in the Manila Summit. So it's ten years old. So we have... I mean, we also have a stake in making sure that ecotech has an important role to play in the APEC process not only in negotiating liberalization, facilitation but also economic and technical cooperation to make the developing countries competitive and therefore be able to convince their constituents that indeed there is a stake for everybody in making the Doha Round successful.

Ngayon doon naman doon sa second retreat, tungkol naman sa seguridad, security. At yung isang pinaka-importanteng pinag-usapan doon yung North Korea at ano ang gagawin para yung North Korea ay tigil-tigilin na itong kanyang nuclearization. Yung isang malaking pinag-kasunduan doon ay yung ano... Yung support for the Security Council Resolution 1718. Now, that that... The Security Council Resolution has not yet been unanimously adopted by all the members of the U.N. so there is an advocacy for that. And the Philippines was one of those who expressed strong support for that Security Council Resolution.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening Statement on the successful outcome of the 14th APEC Leaders Meeting in Hanoi, Vietnam during an informal interaction with media. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203406/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3033&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Roundtable Discussion on lifting the poor through economic growth

Opening/Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Roundtable Discussion on lifting the poor through economic growth

[Released at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, November 22, 2006]

Magandang hapon mga kababayan.

Sa pagsigla ng ating ekonomiya, hindi agad nakikita ang biyaya nito para sa mahihirap. Kung nagtatrabaho ang dating walang hanapbuhay, bihira sa kanila ang magtutungo sa media para magsabing gumanda ang buhay niya dahil sa paglakas ng negosyo, samantala pa ring nagrereklamo yung hindi pa nakakaahon sa kahirapan. At ito ang madalas nakikita.

Kaya naman mahalaga ang pagsusuri at istatistika mula sa mga... yung pinagkakatiwalaang eksperto at institusyon sa kanilang mga survey at pag-aaral, nakikita nila kapwa ang nakikinabang sa paglago ng ekonomiya at ang hindi pa nabibiyayaan.

Isa sa mga institusyong talagang tinitingala sa buong mundo ang World Bank. At nasisiyahan tayo na sa kanilang ulat kamakailan, yung East Asia Review, pinuri ng World Bank ang pagsulong sa ating ekonomiya dala ng ating mga reporma sa pananalapi ng gobyerno, kabilang nito ang paglakas ng kompiyansa at investment ang isang milyon at dalawang libong dagdag sa trabahong pasahod at ang mas mabagal na pagtaas ng presyo ng bilihin.

Makakasama natin ngayong hapon ang namumuno ng World Bank dito sa Pilipinas, our frequent guest, Country Director World Bank of the Philippines Joachim Von Amsberg, whom we call Joachim. Good afternoon, Joachim; at yung ating mga nag-aalaga ng ating mga mahihirap, ang Assistant Secretary ng Social Welfare and Development, si Mat Montaña. Magandang hapon, Mat; at yung Assistant Secretary Dolly Castillo ng National Anti-Poverty Commission. Magandang hapon, Dolly.

Meron din tayong mga karaniwang mamamayan na pwedeng magkuwento kung papaano gumanda ang kanilang buhay itong nakaraang panahon ng ating administrasyon, si Marilyn Pagunsan ng Barangay 639 sa San Miguel, Manila. Magandang hapon, Marilyn; at si Rogelio Amatorio, fisherfolk sectoral representative. Maayong hapon, Roger. Maayo nga hapon tungod kay ikaw ay isa nga Ilonggo, Ilonggo. Okay, halin sa Guimaras.

So, let's begin with Mr. Joachim Von Amsberg. You have your East Asia Review of the World Bank, thank you for the nice things you've said about the Philippines. And since you've said that we're having good... A good economic performance, and everybody accepts that there's good economic performance. The question is, how does it get to the poor in our country? And that's what the World Bank also can evaluate for us.

* * *

Closing statement:

And a lot of them live in those ten poorest provinces. So that's being monitored now by the National Anti-Poverty Commission.

So, I would like to thank the World Bank for pointing out where we have improved and also for giving us indications where we need to improve more to lift up the lives of our poor from poverty. And also the willingness to lend us funds to be able to meet the problem of poverty. So I'd like to thank you Joachim of the World Bank and thank you for being with us once again.

And I would like to thank also of course our representatives of the ordinary Filipinos who can explain to us how our policies have made their lives better. Maraming salamat, Marilyn, kapitbahay, sa iyong pagbisita ngayon. Damo gid nga salamat Roger, ang atong supporter halin sa Guimaras, thank you very much. And I would like to thank our government senior officials for the work they're doing in order to make lives better for the poor. Thank you Mat for helping us with the local governments to lift up the lives of the poor, for your KALAHI-CIDSS which is a community development program of DSWD. And thank you Dolly for the work, the very important work that we will be counting on NAPC to do in the coming weeks and months under your new boss, Secretary Panganiban. So thank you for being here with us as well.

And to all of you, maraming salamat. Magdasal tayo na itong magandang mga istatistika natin ay talagang maramdaman ng ating mga mahihirap sa pinakamadaling panahon.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing statements during the roundtable discussion on lifting the poor through economic growth. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203050/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3030&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) and National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Joint National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) and National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, December 12, 2006]

The Philippines welcomes the sale of Mirant assets to a consortium led by Tokyo Electric Power Company and Marubeni Corporation of Japan. This is the peak of business confidence. It's clear proof that we're on the runway to economic take off on the back of growing political stability.

Moreover, this sale seals the stability of electric power in the Luzon area over the long-term. I thank Mirant for being a superb corporate citizen of the country, and I welcome our Japanese investors as true allies for progress and prosperity.

This happy development comes in the heels of Prime Minister Shinzo Abe's commitment of huge development assistance to the Philippines. His commitment combines with investments such as this power venture to build a formidable alliance exemplified by the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement. Our tough economic decisions have driven investor confidence to the peak. This will continue to break the back of poverty. It will bring a windfall of jobs and grassroots enterprise.

Thank you.

Okay, thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Statement during the Joint National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) and National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141840/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3054&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on jeepney fare rollback [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa Roundtable Discussion ukol sa pagbaba ng pamasaha ng mga jeep

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, ika 13 ng Disyembre, 2006]

Mga mahal kong kababayan:

Noong Lunes, binawasan ang pasahe ng singkwenta sentimo sa Metro Manila, gitnang Luzon at timog katagalugan.

Sinimulan natin ang Linggong ito ng magandang balita. Napakagandang handog pamasko ang 50 sentimos kaltas.

Ang sunud-sunod na rollback sa presyo ng gasolina at krudo ang nagbigay daan para maipatupad natin ang kaltas pasahe. Dahil din sa pagmura ng gasolina at krudo, inaatas din natin na ang mga taxi operator ang kanilang hiling na pagdagdag sa flag down o unang singil sa taxi.

Kaya ngayong umaga, kasama natin sina Transportation Secretary Larry Mendoza. Magandang umaga, Larry; si LTFRB Chairman Tom Lantion. Magandang umaga, Tom; ang representative ng mga jeepney drivers at operators na si Olympio Vidallo. Magandang umaga, Olympio. Anong nickname mo? Olympio; at si Aling Sonia Mamaril na pasahero sa jeep araw-araw. Magandang umaga, Aling Sonia.

Okay. Sa una umpisahin natin kay Aling Sonia. Saan kayo sumasakay sa jeep araw-araw, Aling Sonia?

* * *

Closing statement:

Maganda talaga mapag-usapan ang ganitong magagandang balita para sa ating mga kababayan kaya nagpapasalamat ako sa ating masisipag at magigiting na tsuper sa kanilang tulong upang maipatupad ang bawas-pasahe sa diwa ng pasko.

Kaya mga kababayan, tulungan ninyong ikalat ang magandang balitang ito. Seven pesos na lang ang pamasaha sa pampublikong sasakyan sa Metro Manila, gitnang Luzon at timog katagalugan. At mas mababa pa kung kayo ay senior citizen o batang estudyante.

Maraming salamat Olympio sa iyo at sa lahat ng mga jeepney driver at sa iyong pagdalo sa araw na ito. Maraming salamat naman Ginang Sonia at sana manatili kayong may mga biyaya sa mga epekto ng ginagawang reporma ng ating pamahalaan. At maraming salamat din Tom. Congratulations! Sa iyong bagong pwesto bilang Chairman ng LTFRB. At maraming salamat din Secretary Mendoza. Ngayon asikasuhin natin naman yung ating closing the loop ng MRT-LRT.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on Jeepney fare rollback. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141809/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3053&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the Philippine National Oil Company-Energy Development Corporation (PNOC-EDC) Initial Public Offering (IPO)

Opening/Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on the Philippine National Oil Company-Energy Development Corporation
(PNOC-EDC) Initial Public Offering (IPO)

[Issued at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, December 14, 2006]

Magandang araw mga mahal kong kababayan.

Una sa lahat, magsimula tayo tungkol sa Constituent Assembly:

I commend the decision of the House leadership as an act of statesmanship to unify not only the two chambers of the legislature but the whole nation around the issue of Charter change. I thank Speaker De Venecia and his valiant allies in the house for heeding the voice of national consolidation and unity without sacrificing the high vision of political renewal.

It's time to gather together all the energies of our people for the continuing work ahead, maintaining our economic strength, ensuring the social payback of economic reforms, and helping distressed communities back to their feet. Philippine democracy will find the proper time and opportunity for Charter reform at a time when the people deem it ripe and needful, and in the manner they deem proper.

The nation must consolidate now. I call upon all our institutions to stand as one for the country's future.

Sa larangan ng ekonomiya, kailangan tayo rin ay nagkakaisa. At sa larangan ng ekonomiya, nalalabi pa ang reporma ng kuryente. Kung magmahal ang elektrisidad, tataas din ang gastusin ng mga pamilya at ang presyo ng bilingin.

Kaya naman nagagalak tayo sa malaking pera na nalikom sa paglilista sa stock market ng ating PNOC-Energy Development Corporation, ang pinakamalaking kompanya sa Asya sa paglikha ng energy at kuryente mula sa singaw ng lupa o geothermal energy. Kumita ng halos labimpitong bilyong piso ang PNOC na magagamit upang maghanap at mag-develop ng marami pang geothermal energy.

Upang ipaliwanag ang magandang balitang ito, inanyayahan natin si Energy Secretary Popo Lotilla. Magandang hapon, Popo; ang presidente at CEO ng PNOC, si Paul Aquino. Magandang hapon, Paul; nandito rin si Mayor Giovani Ed Napari ng Kananga, Leyte. Maayong hapon, mayor; at nandito rin si Mr. Manuel Paete, ang PNOC Leyte manager. Maupay nga kulop; at si Mr. Bienvenido Napoles, isang beneficiary dahil siya ang barangay captain ng barangay Tongonan sa Kananga, kaya nandoon yung Tongonan geothermal plant ng Leyte.

Well, Paul you're the hero of the day because you had a very, very successful offering. So papaano natin mapapaliwanag 'to? Anong ibig sabihin nitong nakabenta ang PNOC-EDC sa stock market? Maraming bumili, sobra pa sa hiningi n'yong presyo. Tumaas ang presyo ng stock, hindi ng kuryente, ng stock. Oo.

* * *

Closing statement:

Kaya talagang nandito tayo sa virtuous cycle — maraming biyaya sa pamayanan, maraming biyaya rin sa lahat ng consumers dahil sa pagbawas ng kuryente maraming biyaya rin ang buong sambayanan dahil sa lumalakas ang kaban ng ating bansa.

Okay. Masigla ang tugon ng merkado sa initial public offering o IPO ng PNOC-EDC. Dahil dito mas lalong sumisigla ang ating ekonomiya. Kapag masigla ang ekonomiya, ang benepisyo ay bumababa sa mga kababayan natin sa pamamagitan ng dagdag na trabaho, kabuhayan at serbisyong pampubliko. Mas matatag ang piso, mas pinalakas na social services at magagandang imprastraktura.

Kaya salamat Secretary Popo Lotilla sa buong energy family dahil sa mga ginagawa ninyo para mas guminhawa ang buhay ng taong-bayan. Maraming salamat din at congratulations! Paul for the very, very successful public offering. At Ginoong Paete, maraming salamat sa lahat ng official and staff ng PNOC dahil magandang korporasyon kayo kaya tuloy mabenta yung inyong stocks. Okay. Ug daghan salamat sab kan Mayor Napari and more power. Literally more power to the town of Kananga and may we have electronics companies going to invest in your town. Ug kan Barangay Captain Napoles, congratulations! To all of your constituents. At sana mas dumami ang Barangay Tongonan sa iba't-ibang bahagi ng Pilipinas na nakikinabang dito sa masigla at masigasig na public offering ng PNOC-EDC.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable discussion on the Philippine National Oil Company-Energy Development Corporation (PNOC-EDC) Initial Public Offering (IPO). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141751/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3052&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on Social Reform, January 3, 2007

Statement of President Arroyo: On Social Reform

[Delivered at Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 3, 2007]

The social payback of reform

We're grateful to all the sectors and to the Filipino people themselves who've worked hard to keep the economy humming. The strength of the peso will cut our debt payments and free up funds for greater social impact, uplifting more households, bringing more kids to school, extending better health services and feeding the hungry. In the meantime, we also acknowledge the growing anxieties of our exporters over this development but our economic team is on top of this issue, conducting the necessary consultations to deal with it fairly and equitably. We want a balanced economy with balanced benefits that would keep profits intact and generate more jobs while driving more resources to assisting the poorest of the poor.

Kung ipapasa ng Kongreso ang badyet, malaki ang i-aambag nito sa mga programang pangkabuhayan, pang-edukasyon, pangkalusugan, pabahay at pagkain, kasama na ang pagbibigay ng isang kilong bigas araw-araw sa mga nagugutom na pamilya. Bukod dito, lalo nating mapapabilis at mapapalawak ang rehabilitasyon ng mga nasalanta ng bagyo, baha, bulkan at iba pang kalamidad sa taong nagdaan.

Okay. So ano ang pinaka-kailangang gawin natin para masigurado maramdaman ng taong-bayan, ng karaniwang taong-bayan yung mga biyaya ng ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint AFP and PNP Command Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the Joint AFP and PNP Command Conference

[Issued at the Conference Room, 104th Brigade Headquarters, Camp Gen. Teodulfo Bautista, Brgy. Busbus Jolo, Sulu, January 8, 2007]

Before we have the command conference, I would like to make a statement:

I commend the AFP for the successful operation against the Abu Sayyaf and the JI. This proves that these terrorists elements have nowhere to hide. They're in fact already doomed to annihilation. Our fight against terror goes hand in hand with the global and regional effort. As we face the ASEAN Summit, we would like to assure all our allies in East Asia and beyond that the Filipino soldiery and people are on watch every hour of the day. They are determined to do their share to defeat terror for a more secure and safer world. Our meetings in Cebu will sustain the momentum in our collective fight against terror and in mapping up all forms of instability that affect the run of trade, cooperation and people-to-people solidarity in this part of the world.

The Philippines will continue to be a strong player in security and trade, in fighting poverty and building prosperity. This is our commitment to the Filipino people, to all the peoples of East Asia and to all our allies like the United States represented here by Charge d' Affaires Paul Jones of the U.S. Embassy.

Earlier this morning, we were in the town of Parang, the hometown of Governor Loong — where is Governor Loong? — and we inaugurated the USAID project, the Parang-Indanan road, which brings the former far away town of Parang to within half an hour's drive of Jolo. In fact, General Esperon said, it used to take him one week.

So, these are some of the benefits of our strategic alliance with the United States. And indeed, we welcome everybody, we welcome this partnership. And once again congratulate the AFP for their stunning victory against the Abu Sayyaf and the JI.

Thank you.

* * *

Second statement:

I commend the Armed Forces of the Philippines for the successful operation against the Abu Sayyaf and the JI. This only proves that these terrorists elements have nowhere to hide. They're in fact already doomed to annihilation. Our fight against terror goes hand in hand with the global and regional effort. As we face the ASEAN Summit, we'd like to assure all our allies in East Asia and beyond that the Filipino soldiery and people are on watch every hour of the day. They are determined to do their share to defeat terror for a more secure and safer world. Our meetings in Cebu will sustain the momentum in our collective fight against terror and in mapping up all forms of instability that affect the run of trade, cooperation and people-to-people solidarity in this part of the world.

The Philippines will continue to be a strong player in security and trade, in fighting poverty and building prosperity. This is our commitment to the Filipino people, to all the peoples of East Asia and to all our allies like the United States. Speaking of the United States, earlier this morning, we were in Parang, which used to be a very remote town of Sulu. It used to take General Esperon and the other soldiers one week from Jolo to Parang Barring Ambuscades. Now, it only takes half an hour. And we thank our American allies for contributing that road through the growth with equity in Mindanao project of the USAID. This is only of the many examples of how our Filipino and American troops and officials have been working together and bringing prosperity to areas like this beautiful island of Sulu.

Once again, congratulations! To our men in the armed forces for their stunning victory against the Abu Sayyaf and the JI yesterday.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Joint AFP and PNP Command Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412173613/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1850&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statement: President Arroyo during the Roundtable Discussion on ecozone and Information and Communications Technology (ICT)

Opening/Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Roundtable Discussion on ecozone and Information and Communications Technology (ICT)

[Issued at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 10, 2007]

Mga kababayan:

The Philippines hosts the ASEAN Summit at a time that the whole region is taking stock of the present and planning ahead for the future. Great stakes are involved in the continuing integration of the entire East Asia which is driven by strong centripetal forces, to close ranks for a safer and more secure community, more open and equitable trade cooperation in all fronts of energy development and the prosperity of diverse peoples.

We have a great future in East Asia as a caring and sharing community. This meeting of leaders will be another golden opportunity to carve out new directions of development across borders, fighting poverty, and building coalitions of technology. We stand at the threshold of great challenges and opportunities. Timely decisions will enable ASEAN and East Asia to seize the moment and the momentum to achieve broader human security, peace and prosperity at the grassroots of every village and community.

The Philippines is determined to exercise its leadership towards this noble end. The Filipino people are determined to play their role as good regional and global citizens to spread the message of goodwill, cooperation and consensus for the benefit of all. All roads lead to Cebu, all for one and one for all.

Sa pagsisikap nating ipa-abot sa karaniwang tao ang mga biyaya ng ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya, pati na rin ang ating liderato sa ASEAN itong taon, napakahalaga ang pag-akit ng investment at paglago ng negosyo upang lumikha ng anim hanggang sampung milyong dagdag na trabaho sa ating panunungkulan mula 2004.

Sa kabutihang palad, hindi lamang sa tumatalong stock market at lumalakas na piso umaagos ang puhunan na maaakit ng paghusay ng pananalapi ng gobyerno. Dumadagsa rin ang kapital sa mga pabrika, call center at iba pang industriya at serbisyo na nagbibigay hanapbuhay.

Kaya naman inanyayahan natin itong hapon si... Una sa lahat si Chairman ng Commission on Information Communications Technology, si Ramon Sales. Good afternoon, Mon; at sa aking kaliwa naman si Director General Lilia de Lima ng Philippine Economic Zone Authority. Good afternoon, Lilia; at to the left of Lilia is Mr. Greg Ricechow, the Managing Director of Sun Power Philippines which produces those solar panels, right? For our solar power; at sa kanan naman ni Chairman Sales ay si Mr. Victor Endaya, President and CEO ng Advanced Contact Solutions Incorporated, isa sa ating mga BPO firms, good afternoon.

So, pag-usapan natin muna yung mga investments sa economic zones kasi dito naglalagay ng mga pabrika yung mga malalaking mga investors. Lilia, kumusta na yung ating mga economic zones at kumusta naman yung trabahong binibigay nila?

* * *

Closing statement:

Right, because we put solar power in areas where the transmission line would be too long and the power would become too expensive. So, today we have solar power there in the remote barangays of Mindanao. Yes, thank you. And that directly benefits the people who are poor in those poor provinces and helps bring them towards prosperity. Thank you very much for your contribution to the electrification of our remote villages.

Yes, excellent, excellent. So that is interdependence which is also what ASEAN and East Asia are all about.

So, thank you so much for all the jobs, all the dollars, and all the energy that you have brought to our people up to the very farthest reaches of our country.

Thank you very much for being with us today. Thank you very much Greg, maraming salamat Vic and thank you so much Lilia, at maraming salamat Mon.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during the Roundtable Discussion on Ecozone and Information and Communications Technology (ICT). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412173248/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1848&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statement: President Arroyo during the Roundtable Discussion on ASEAN Regional security, migrant workers, energy and the environment

Opening/Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Roundtable Discussion on ASEAN Regional security, migrant workers, energy and the environment

[Issued at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 11, 2007]

Magandang araw sa inyong lahat:

The Philippines is proud to welcome the leaders of ASEAN and East Asia to Cebu. We believe in the collective power of the leaders and peoples of this region to make a difference in world security and economic prosperity, and we are privileged to take part in this quest through our hosting of the summits. All colors and creeds, peoples of diverse origins and social station are represented in this key meeting of the first decade of the new millennium.

We are charting a future that will bring stability and peace, comfort to the disaster-stricken and the sick, a safer environment, cheaper and more abundant energy, food for the poor and most of all, friendships among peoples that will endure into this century. The Philippines is not only a strategic hub for East Asia but a center of excellence and democracy streaming out the great Filipino worker while streaming in new friends each passing day. We lie at an equidistant point from the capitals of East Asia. We can be the crossroads of goodwill and change. This is the spirit of the ASEAN meeting. Let all our people put their best foot forward for the whole regional neighborhood for the sake of one caring and sharing community.

Kaya ngayong araw na ito, kapiling natin ang mga eksperto sa mga nabanggit na larangan na pag-uusapan sa ASEAN. Halimbawa, narito sa aking kanan ang Secretary of Energy, si Secretary Popo Lotilla. Magandang hapon, Popo; sa aking kaliwa naman si Ambassador Benjie Defensor, siya ang ating special envoy for anti-terrorism. Magandang hapon, Benjie; at sa kanyang kaliwa nandito si General Jun Esperon, ang Chief-of-Staff ng Armed Forces of the Philippines. Magandang hapon, Jun; sa kanan naman ni Popo Lotilla si Undersecretary Sonny Conejos, siya ang Foreign Affairs Undersecretary na nag-aalaga sa ating mga Overseas Filipino Workers, mga migrant workers natin. Maganda hapon, Undersecretary Conejos; at sa kanyang kanan naman si Undersecretary Demetrio Ignacio mula sa Department of Environment and Natural Resources. Magandang hapon, Demit.

Umpisahan natin si Popo kasi ako talaga pinilit ko na doon sa ating East Asian Summit dahil dalawang session yon, yung isang session ay tungkol lamang sa energy. So in effect it's going to be an energy summit. Popo, ano ang maaasahan ng karaniwang Pilipino na magkabiya sa kanya na resulta nitong ating energy summit sa East Asian Summit?

* * *

Closing statement:

So, we are winning the war against terrorism at mas lalong mananalo tayo kapag itong convention na ito ay mabubuo sa mga bansa ng ASEAN. Kaya talagang marami ang mga biyaya na makukuha ng karaniwang mamamayan ng Pilipino sa ating pagpulong sa asean. Kaya mga kababayan, binabagtas natin ang landas patungo sa kapayapaan at estabilidad, mura at saganang enerhiya, mas ligtas na komunidad para sa ating mga anak, at mas mayabong na pakikipagkaibigan sa ating mga kapit-bansa.

Ipinagmamalaki natin na ang ating bansa, dahil sa kagitingan ng bawa't Pilipino, ngayon ay kilala na bilang sentro ng kagalingan at demokrasya. Maraming magiging na Pilipino ang ikinakalat natin sa buong mundo kasama ng ASEAN countries upang tulungan ang ibang bansa. Kapalit dito, dumaring ang mga bagong kaibigan araw-araw maging sila ay turista, maging sila ay investors mula sa ibayong dagat.

So, therefore, let us put our best foot forward for the sake of one sharing and caring community that is the ASEAN.

Kaya maraming salamat sa 'yo Secretary Popo Lotilla at good luck sa energy summit. Maraming salamat Undersecretary Conejos at sana talaga yung dalawang nalalabing issue ay maayos. At congratulations! At maraming salamat Demit sa... At alagaan ninyo ng mabuti yung ating ASEAN center for bio-diversity. At good luck! Din sa 'yo Benjie sa ating convention on counter-terrorism. Very good. And congratulations! Jun Esperon, to all our troops and intelligence forces for wiining the war against terrorism. So, congratulations din sa ating mga PNP.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during the Roundtable Discussion on ASEAN Regional security, migrant workers, energy and the environment. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412173047/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1845&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the ASEAN HOS/G Meeting with the Eminent Persons Groups (EPG) on the ASEAN Charter

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the ASEAN HOS/G Meeting with the Eminent Persons Groups (EPG) on the ASEAN Charter

[Issued at Room 102, CICC, Mandaue City, Cebu, January 12, 2007]

Good evening everyone.

Welcome to the leaders of ASEAN and welcome to the Eminent Persons!

Welcome to the Philippines! You are in the beautiful island of Cebu, the biggest, most populous province in our country. You are staying at the Mactan Island Shangri La. And Mactan Island is the island that has many beautiful resorts. We are in Mandaue City right now. This is the industrial center of Cebu. And we are staying in a convention center that was built by the people of the province of Cebu for Mandaue City but they timed it and designed it so that they could have the ASEAN Summit as their first event here. So we are very happy to have you here.

It is not only the people of Cebu but the people of the entire Philippines that are proud to host the ASEAN and related summits and the meeting with the eminent persons group. As we push forward in one heave of leadership to uplift the lives of the people in our region and preserve their safety, their greater safety and security. Let this summit be another opportunity for the world to witness the best of one caring and sharing community, carving out a united response in addressing problems of poverty, terrorism, environmental degradation, trade and energy, marking a vibrant market and a new phase of trade and development across borders.

The future looks brighter for the region, and in the collective stewardship of committed leaders reaching out to each other in the spirit of friendship and common purpose.

Tonight, with the eminent persons group, we talk not only about the world today and the region today but the world tomorrow and the ASEAN region tomorrow.

We would like to congratulate the eminent persons group, you have done an excellent job in consulting and working hard to come up with the blueprint for the ASEAN charter that we are looking forward to listening.

We have high hopes that your work will ensure that ASEAN gains deeper relevance to the people and the international community as a credible, cohesive and single-minded and economically competitive institution, and as one caring and sharing community.

On a personal note, I hope we can make progress on issues of energy independence, human rights, economic legislation and social justice.

So without further ado, may I call on the chairman of the Eminent Persons Group Ton Musa to present the blueprint of the ASEAN charter.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the ASEAN HOS/G Meeting with the Eminent Persons Groups (EPG) on the ASEAN Charter. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412153012/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1842&Itemid=38

Closing Statement: President Arroyo during the ASEAN HOS/G Meeting with the Eminent Persons Groups (EPG) on the ASEAN Charter

Closing Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the ASEAN HOS/G Meeting with the Eminent Persons Groups (EPG) on the ASEAN Charter

[Issued at Room 102, CICC, Mandaue City, Cebu, January 12, 2007]

Alright. So if there's none, the leaders either endorse the report in whole or in very large part and it seems that indeed the next step is to draft the ASEAN charter.

I take it from the comments of the leaders that the ASEAN charter should be guided by the following principles. As the Prime Minister of Laos say, it should affirm the objectives contained in ASEAN's milestone declarations, agreements and treaties.

And as his majesty reminded us, the ASEAN economic community, we should retain the principles of an economic community as well as security community and the socio-cultural community. And also recognize the existing development gaps among and within the member countries as Prime Minister of Cambodia pointed out. The Prime Minister of Thailand dwelt on the people-centered character of ASEAN and that this means that we should conform to international principles and standards.

And I'd like to take this opportunity to make my own comment that we hope that therefore the human rights mechanism could be adopted when we work on the ASEAN charter.

The Prime Minister of Singapore has said that indeed we must make sure that we have a cohesive organization and this is the reason why we need an ASEAN charter. And there are very important organs for this organization — the counsel, the ministerial counsels, a stronger secretary general with enough funding to be able to carry out the work.

Most of our leaders talk about the ASEAN consensus and agree that we should retain an ASEAN consensus but consider that there may be some issues which need not be by consensus but can be decided upon through a vote.

Several of the leaders, also starting with Singapore and Thailand and Malaysia, have said that we should have appropriate monitoring compliance, enforcement and dispute settlement mechanisms, and of course, everybody agree that we should have a legal personality for ASEAN.

I would like to make an additional comment also about the reservations regarding the idea of a union. The ASEAN charter need not provide for a union but we believe that we should at least perpetuate it as aspiration in the future. So we need not spell out the rules of a union but rather the rules of a counsel in a community.

And therefore, the ASEAN charter which our eminent persons group has indeed helped in preparing for by providing the principles to guide it will help achieve in one vision, one identity, one community, and perhaps one day one union for ASEAN.

So we thank the eminent persons group for your outstanding work and we hope that you will indeed continue to guide the high level task force in the putting together of the ASEAN charter.

Thank you very much for your excellent work and we hope that you will have a very successful press conference announcing the work.

Thank you.

While the Eminent Persons will face the media, I invite the leaders to join our ministers for a working dinner.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Closing Statement during the ASEAN HOS/G Meeting with the Eminent Persons Groups (EPG) on the ASEAN Charter. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412153020/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1835&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the 3rd Brunei Darussalam-Indonesia-Malaysia-Philippines East ASEAN Growth Area (BIMP-EAGA) Summit

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the 3rd Brunei Darussalam-Indonesia-Malaysia-Philippines East ASEAN Growth Area (BIMP-EAGA) Summit

[Issued at the Mactan Ballroom 3, Shangri-La Hotel Mactan, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, January 12, 2007]

Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen.

And your Majesty Excellencies, welcome to Cebu for this BIMP-EAGA Summit.

I hope that in this BIMP-EAGA Summit, we can make progress on issues of energy independence, humanitarian concerns, and economic integration. We want to welcome also our development partners.

On energy independence, we are looking forward to our continuing negotiations with Indonesia on the memorandum of understanding concerning cooperation in the field of energy and mineral resources.

On humanitarian concerns, we recognize the vast importance of preserving the environment beyond borders by maintaining the delicate ecological balance of our region. For this, we should mention in the joint statement the declaration on the heart of Borneo project in which our three countries — Indonesia, Malaysia and Brunei Darussalam — have expressed interest in pursuing.

On economic integration, I think one of the important achievements of this BIMP-EAGA Summit is the signing of the memorandum of understanding on the expansion of air linkages granting freedom rights to one another in specific points of entry.

And also the economic integration, of course, we can do our air linkages by memorandum of understanding but in the end, it is the private sector of the region that plays a crucial role in economic integration.

And so in this summit, we hope that we can indeed urge the private sector to play a more proactive role in the implementation of BIMP-EAGA flagship programs and projects. I'd like to mention only one of the many — the Halal poultry project which we are pushing.

We're confident that with the support of the region's development partners such as the Asian Development Bank — sir, welcome — the GTZ, the People's Republic of China, the northern territory of Australia, we shall be able to harness the region's potentials and create an environment conducive to further trade and investments.

Finally, may I take this opportunity once again to thank our BIMP-EAGA leaders for your valuable support in the success of the Philippine model for dealing with the flash point in Mindanao.

Malaysia — our peace process facilitator and head of the Ceasefire Monitoring Team; Indonesia — chair of the Committee of the Eight; Brunei — member of the Ceasefire Monitoring Team and a host to our Madrasah scholars.

We had been able to meld together confidence-building measures grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness, investors and economic and basic infrastructure development, and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

So, I would like to therefore end this opening statement by saying that I'm sure I speak for President Ramos and our government officials, especially our officials from Mindanao for the Philippine force in the BIMP-EAGA in welcoming all of you to this very important and I believe fruitful summit.

May I now take this opportunity to ask Foreign Minister Albar, Foreign Minister of Malaysia to give the chairman's report on the accomplishment and recent developments in BIMP-EAGA.

There you are.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the 3rd Brunei Darussalam-Indonesia-Malaysia-Philippines East ASEAN Growth Area (BIMP-EAGA) Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412153028/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1839&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the dialogue between the ASEAN HOS/G and ASEAN-BAC members

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the dialogue between the ASEAN HOS/G and ASEAN-BAC members

[Issued at the Mactan Ballroom 4, Shangri-la Hotel Mactan Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, January 13, 2007]

Your Majesty, your Excellencies, fellow ASEAN leaders, officers of the ASEAN Business Advisory Council, ASEAN's captains of industry and our partners in economic development, ladies and gentlemen.

I call this meeting to order. At a time when the Doha round is faltering, ASEAN wants to stand up and proclaim its support for keeping the doors of global trade open. And ASEAN is committed to expanding its trade area to create one of the worlds greatest trading blocs.

So I believe the future of ASEAN is bright indeed. But we, the leaders do policy; you, the business community actually create the wealth.

The leaders will be pleased to receive the report of the ASEAN Business Advisory Council chaired by Former Secretary of Trade of the Philippines, Jose Concepcion. And we may comment on or inquire into the progress of your report... Your projects.

On the other hand, we shall be pleased to receive your own questions about the ASEAN economic community and point out the areas where we will need further inputs from you.

So, now I invite the ABAC Chair, Mr. Concepcion, to deliver the ABAC report.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Dialogue between the ASEAN HOS/G and ASEAN-BAC Members. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152938/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1833&Itemid=38

Opening Statement of President Arroyo during the 12th ASEAN Summit

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the 12th ASEAN Summit

[Delivered at the Mactan Summit Hall, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, January 13, 2007]

Majesties, Excellencies, we now formally open this ASEAN Summit.

The Philippines is proud to be hosting ASEAN as such an important time. At the time when the DOHA Round is faltering, ASEAN wants to stand up and proclaim its support for keeping the doors of global trade open. And there is concern about nuclear proliferation, we have stood firm in our commitment on the issue of North Korea. And finally, ASEAN is committed to expanding its trade area to create one of the world's greatest trading blocks. So I believe the future of ASEAN is bright indeed.

It is vitally important at this time in world events that ASEAN is bringing so many nations and leaders together to discuss peace, security, and social justice and economic growth. The fact that leaders of 17 great nations will be here is a testament to the desire of leaders and their people for greater collaboration between nations.

I hope we can make progress on issues of energy independence, human rights, economic integration and social justice. As the theme of the Summit, "One Caring and Sharing Community" suggests, we want to advance the sense of community in our shared interest to look after each other in terms of social justice, economic development and common security.

From the Filipino point of view, I believe we bring that focus in our own peace model in Mindanao, as an example of how nations working together can make positive things happen.

I want to reiterate my thanks to the ASEAN leaders, who have been helping the success of the Philippines model for dealing with the flashpoint area of Mindanao. We have been able to meld together confidence building measures, grounded on strong interfaith dialogue and cultural awareness, investments in economic and basic infrastructure development and mutual security arrangements to keep the peace in Mindanao.

Perhaps most notably, we have worked to the broad spectrum with the broad range of international organizations and nations from across the spectrum including Sweden, European Union, Japan, Malaysia, the U.S., Libya, Indonesia, Brunei and other OIC countries. This broad-based coalition is working to keep the peace, isolate general security threats and promote the economic well-being of Muslim and Christian residents of Mindanao.

This is a model setting of positive example. It is something we all wish to share with the rest of the world. It will lead to a permanent peace in Mindanao. Once again, welcome to this Retreat.

Last night, we had a much longer discussion on the Eminent Persons Group's presentation and we discussed the ASEAN Charter already. So I believe that while we took longer last night than we had anticipated, we can therefore have a shorter session today than originally scheduled, because much of what we would have said today about the ASEAN Charter has been said yesterday. So, maybe we will have a shorter lunch.

So now, I would like to open our Retreat discussion this morning. This morning we will be talking about the future directions of ASEAN.

Before the coffee break, I hope we can talk about internal relations within ASEAN including the Charter, if anybody wishes to continue talking about that and also including the Eminent Persons Group report if anybody wishes to talk about that. And then after the coffee break, I hope that we can also continue talking about the future of ASEAN then talk about the external relations.

So I would like to open the floor now for discussion on the future of ASEAN especially, our internal relations with one another.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the 10th ASEAN-ROK (Republic of Korea) Summit

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the 10th ASEAN-ROK (Republic of Korea) Summit

[Issued at the Mactan Ballroom 3, Shangri-la Hotel Mactan Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, January 14, 2007]

Your Excellency President Roh Moo-Hyun, my fellow leaders in the ASEAN family:

This meeting is called to order on the review and future directions of ASEAN-Korea Cooperation and an exchange of views on regional and international issues.

This is our first formal gathering since former Foreign Minister of Korea, Ban Ki-Moon, assumed the top United Nations post to the pride of all of East Asia. We congratulate President Roh and the people of Korea.

In this summit, we in ASEAN also got the chance to express our solidarity with the Republic of Korea and the Korean people in their efforts to exhaust all peaceful means to keep the Korean peninsula nuclear-free and our region safe and secure.

Amidst the concern about nuclear proliferation, we in ASEAN have stood firm in our commitment to urge North Korea to abandon nuclear weapons. We have all and we continue to express our great concern about recent developments in the Korean peninsula.

I hope that we're all speaking with one voice in urging North Korea once again to abandon all nuclear weapons and existing nuclear programs, and to work towards the expeditious implementation of U.N. Security Council Resolution Nos. 1695 and 1718. I hope also that we are in one voice in urging North Korea to take concrete and effective steps towards the full implementation of the joint statement of September 19th of 2005.

And again, I hope that we can all be in one voice in urging North Korea to respond to other security and humanitarian concerns of the international community including abductions' abuse.

I invite President Roh to deliver his opening statement.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the 10th ASEAN-ROK (Republic of Korea) Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152829/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1826&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the 5th ASEAN-India Summit

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the 5th ASEAN-India Summit

[Issued at the Sugbu Summit Hall, Portofino Structural Unit, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, January 14, 2007]

Your Excellency, Mr. Co-chair; Your Majesty; Excellencies:

Once again, welcome!

We look forward to discussing the review and future direction of ASEAN-India cooperation and exchanging views on regional and international issues.

I invite His Excellency, Prime Minister Singh to deliver his opening statement.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the 5th ASEAN-India Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152854/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1823&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the 10th ASEAN Plus Three Summit

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the 10th ASEAN Plus Three Summit

[Issued at the Sugbu Summit Hall, Portofino Structural Unit, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, January 14, 2007]

Your Excellencies, Premier Wen Jiabao, Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, President Roh Moo-Hyun, my fellow leaders in the ASEAN family:

I call this meeting to order to discuss the review and future directions of ASEAN plus three cooperation and exchange of views on regional and international issues.

First of all, we would like to congratulate our three dialogue partners from Northeast Asia for convening the China-Japan and ROK Summit here in Cebu. This is a positive development for the entire regional process.

ASEAN stands to benefit whenever our plus three partners hold dialogues among themselves. It was on the sidelines of the ASEAN Summit in Manila in November 1999 that our three Northeast Asian partners had their first informal dialogue. It was also in the Manila Summit when the joint statement on East Asian Cooperation was adopted.

During our own retreat among the ASEAN leaders yesterday, it was pointed out that together Southeast Asia and Northeast Asia geographically comprise East Asia. The security of Southeast Asia and Northeast Asia are indeed intertwined.

This year's summits are set to break new ground towards greater solidarity, cohesiveness and cooperation in the whole of East Asia. The unequivocal commitment of the regional leaders to peace, stability and economic prosperity, for regional leaders, for their peoples will continue to mark one caring and sharing regional community, sailing through challenging seas.

The prospects are bright. The visions have become even grander with every meeting and discussion among the movers and shakers of ASEAN and East Asia.

All the leaders are at the proper time and place to make key decisions that will make a difference to the future course of the region and the world. This is the century of ASEAN and East Asia as the center of gravity of global trade and investments.

This year's co-chairman for the ASEAN Plus Three Summit is Premier Wen Jiabao, and I would like to invite His Excellency Premier Wen to deliver his opening statement.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the 10th ASEAN Plus Three Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152904/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1821&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the 10th ASEAN-China Summit

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the 10th ASEAN-China Summit

[Issued at the Mactan Ballroom 3, Shangri-la Hotel Mactan Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, January 14, 2007]

Excellency, Mr. Co-chair; Majesty; Excellencies:

This ASEAN-China Summit meeting is called to order. We gathered recently in Nanning last October to commemorate 15 years of ASEAN-China relations. The success of that summit is wonderfully fresh in our minds.

The ASEAN-China partnership remains one of the most dynamic and progressive in the East Asian region. When ASEAN and China first began relations in 1991, the focus was on cooperation in economic and trade relations.

Over the past 15 years, the ASEAN-China relationship has evolved to include cooperation on political security, development and other regional issues. Going forward, we should continue to strengthen the ASEAN-China partnership by promoting confidence-building measures, intensifying interactions, and allocating adequate resources to steer the relations and cooperation for mutual benefit.

China has an important and strategic role to play in the economic development and security situation of the Asia-Pacific region. We're hopeful that China will continue to pursue the foreign policy based on peaceful rise.

We also look to China to take the lead in promoting good neighborly relations and regional cooperation by handling sensitive issues with surrounding countries in a manner that is guided by the spirit of equality, respect, consultation and mutual benefit.

We are very happy to have China as our big brother in this region.

I now invite His Excellency Premier Wen Jiabao to deliver his opening statement.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the 10th ASEAN-China Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152918/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1819&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the 10th ASEAN-Japan Summit

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the 10th ASEAN-Japan Summit

[Issued at the Sugbu Summit Hall, Portofino Structural Unit, Lapu-Lapu City, Cebu, January 14, 2007]

Your Excellency Prime Minister Shinzo Abe.

My colleagues in the ASEAN family, let us welcome Prime Minister Abe to his first ASEAN-Japan Summit.

Japan is the biggest source of ODA for ASEAN and one of the top trading partners, investors and source of tourists for most of our countries.

Here in this ASEAN-Japan Summit, we will be discussing the review and future direction of ASEAN-Japan cooperation, and exchange views on regional and international issues.

Your Excellency, we express our great concern about the recent developments on the Korean Peninsula, and we share your great concern. North Korea has just defied the international community by exploding again a nuclear device last October 9, 2006. North Korea has also been involved in abducting foreign nationals from Japan and countries in ASEAN, among others. We join you, Your Excellency, in urging North Korea to abandon all nuclear weapons and existing nuclear programs, and to work towards the expeditious implementation of U.S. Security Council Resolutions 1695 and 1718.

We urge North Korea to take concrete and effective steps towards the full implementation of the joint statement of September 19th 2005. For those who recall, in that joint statement, the DPRK committed to abandon all nuclear weapons and existing nuclear programs, and to return at an early date to the treaty on the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons and to the IAEA safeguards.

Excellency, speaking in behalf of our country — and I hope, in behalf of other countries as well in our region — we also urge North Korea to respond to other security and humanitarian concerns of the international community including the abductions' issue.

I now invite His Excellency Shinzo Abe to deliver his opening statement.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the 10th ASEAN-Japan Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152930/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1816&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Opening Session of the 2nd East Asia Summit

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the Opening Session of the 2nd East Asia Summit

[Delivered at the Summit Hall, Cebu International Convention Center (CICC), Mandaue City, Cebu, January 15, 2007]

Your Majesty, Your Excellencies:

I call this East Asia Summit meeting to order.

It's vitally important at this time in world events that ASEAN is bringing so many nations and leaders together to discuss peace, security and social justice and economic growth. The fact that the leaders of 16 great nations are here is a testament to the desire of leaders and their people for greater collaboration between nations.

I hope we make progress on the issues of energy independence, human rights, economic integration, and social justice.

And before we begin our first session, which is on energy security, we can now thank the media for being here in the opening of the session.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Opening Session of the 2nd East Asia Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152811/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1812&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Press Conference

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the Press Conference

[Issued at the Main Briefing Room, Cebu International Convention Center (CICC), Mandaue City, Cebu, January 15, 2007]

Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen of the media.

With the ASEAN moving forward towards firm accords on its own charter, security, overseas workers and trade, the prospect for the region becoming a formidable bloc in the world is well within our reach. From one caring and sharing community, we can become a dynamo as the hub and core of East Asia, immersed in robust, open trade from within the region and across the oceans, building security and prosperity in millions of communities from east to west.

The eminent persons group recommendations move ASEAN towards a firm accord on its own charter. We're inspired by the determination to establish one vision, one identity, one community and perhaps, in the future, one union within ASEAN. The eminent persons group recommendations are particularly useful in making the association a rules-based organization better prepared to face the challenges of one caring and sharing community in today's world.

As the theme of this summit "One Caring and Sharing Community" suggests, we want to advance the sense of community and our shared interests and look after each other in terms of social justice, economic development and common security.

The Cebu Declaration on the Protection and Promotion of the Rights of Migrant Workers, and the mutual recognition arrangement on nursing services advance our shared interests in terms of social justice for our migrant workers, including nurses. The declaration on migrant workers is a commitment to promote decent, humane, productive, dignified and remunerative employment for migrant workers. It accords our overseas Filipino workers with employment protection, access to justice and welfare services, training and consular services. The arrangement on nursing gives Filipino nurses the opportunity to practice their profession in other ASEAN countries based on their professional licenses.

The ASEAN convention on counter-terrorism advances our shared interests in terms of common security. It provides for the framework for regional cooperation to counter, prevent and suppress terrorism. The Philippines will benefit from the convention in terms of training, intelligence sharing and networking with ASEAN member countries.

Speaking of security, we express our grave concern about the recent developments on the Korean peninsula. We urge North Korea to abandon all nuclear weapons and existing nuclear programs, and to work towards the expeditious implementation of U.N. Security Council resolutions 1695 and 1718. We urge North Korea to take concrete and effective steps towards the full implementation of the joint statement of September 19th of 2005. We also urge North Korea to respond to other security and humanitarian concerns of the international community including the abductions' issue.

It's vitally important at this time in world events that ASEAN brought so many nations together to discuss peace, security and social justice, and economic growth. The fact that the leaders of 17 great nations — 17 because we have the 16 East Asia country and we had Timor Leste — the fact that leaders of 17 great nations were here is a testament to the desire of the leaders and their people for greater collaboration between nations.

We made progress on issues of energy independence, human rights, economic integration and social justice. The ASEAN-China agreement on trade in services of the framework on comprehensive economic cooperation inched us closer to free trade in the region, cutting barriers on services such as telecommunications, transportation and tourism.

I also talked about the success of the Philippine model for dealing with the flashpoint area of Mindanao. In the East Asia summit, I pushed for the issue of energy independence and the signing of the Cebu Declaration on Energy Security.

The unequivocal commitment and common spirit of the leaders of the region have carved out an unprecedented road map of ASEAN community towards closer integration and greater heights of achievement by 2015, backed by enhanced economic, political and socio-cultural partnerships. Through thick and thin, we have sailed towards unity as one formidable alliance to stamp out poverty, address inequality in its varied dimensions, attend to the social impact of economic integration, guarantee social protection and sound environmental governance and focus on the welfare of our workers. For all of ASEAN 's great efforts, it is payback time for a region whose legacy to its people is within reach. This summit broke a new dawn as we continue to foster peace and stability, economic prosperity and claim our collective destiny.

The Philippines is proud to have welcomed the leaders of ASEAN and East Asia to Cebu. The Philippines is not only a strategic hub for East Asia but a center of excellence and democracy — streaming out the great Filipino worker while streaming in new friends each passing day. We lie at an equidistant point from the capitals of East Asia. We can be at the crossroads of goodwill and change. This was the spirit of the ASEAN meeting and our people put their best foot forward for the whole regional neighborhood, for the sake of one caring and sharing community. And I thank them, especially daghan salamat, Sugbu.

And in behalf of the Filipino people, I would like to express our heartfelt gratitude to all the leaders who attended the ASEAN and East Asia summits. We thank the leaders for the honor they have bestowed upon the Philippines and for working for one caring and sharing regional community. They've made the Filipino proud as we have emerged triumphant with all Asians from the agreements reached and signed. The peoples of Asia are the victors in these summits as we march forward in the collective spirit of hope within this century.

Along with all the leaders, we dedicate these accords to a safer world, a realm of human security and greater and deeper friendships within Asia bridging to all global capitals. We as a region have started to muster our vast human and material resources to broaden trade, tourism, energy security and political integration at a pace and scale never seen before. And we are out to capture the grand prize: more prosperous and safer communities, a region of peace and stability, and a world of goodwill and friendship of all creeds, cultures and colors.

I'm willing to answer a few questions.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Press Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152820/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1814&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on ASEAN and its benefits to Filipinos, January 16, 2007

Press Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On ASEAN and its benefits to Filipinos

[Released at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 16, 2007]

Ang tagumpay ng ASEAN at East Asia Summit ay di-mapipigilang pwersang magsusulong ng balangkas ng kaunlaran sa Pilipinas sa mga taong darating. Bukas ang abot-tanaw sa mga malalaking hamon at pagkakataon upang lumaganap ang galing ng pilipino sa lumalagong merkado sa mga serbisyo, sa pagpapalin ng teknolohiya sa ibang panggagalingan ng enerhiya sa pagtutulungan ng mga bansa laban sa mga banta sa kapayapaan, at sa pagtatanggol ng demokrasya at karapatang-tao.

Sa ating paghahanda upang ipatupad ang lahat ng mga kasunduang nabuo, hindi dapat mawala ang pagtutok ng taong-bayan sa pag-unlad ng bayan. Hindi dapat magpadala sa hangin ng pamumulitika. Dapat pandayin ang bakal habang nagbabaga at sumulong tayong lahat kasama ng buong ASEAN at Silangang Asya.

Nagpapasalamat ako sa lahat ng mga Pilipino, lalo na ang mga Cebuano, para sa matinding pagtanggap at pagmamagandang-loob na ipinakita sa ating mga panauhin. Pinupuri din natin ang sandatahang lakas at pambansang kapulisan sa pagtatanggol laban sa lahat ng banta sa kaligtasan at kapayapaan sa buong panahon ng summit.

Foreign affairs Sec. Alberto Romulo: magandang hapon sa inyo Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo at bumabati ako sa ating mga nakikinig at dudugtungan ko lang yung nasabi ni Pangulong Arroyo among others na itong summit na ito malaki ang pagtulon nito sa kaunlaran at kabutihan ng mamamayang Pilipino sapagkat sasabihin namin kung anu-ano yung nagawa. But isang napakahalaga yung tinatawag nating Cebu Declaration for the Promotion and Protection of Migrant Workers. Alam natin, sabi sa akin ni Secretary Art Brion, na halos 10 million ng ating mga manggagawa all over the world. At itong ginawa ng ating summit at under the leadership of the president protects and enhances the welfare of our migrant workers.

Ano ang gagawin nilang magagawa diyan, unang-una, they recognize the overseas workers and their families. Importante yan sapagkat heretofore yung pamilya ay mukhang hindi kasama at yung pamilya kasama diyan ang women and children, husbands and wives. Ano ang mga binibigay niyan? May binibigay diyan access to health, to education, to social services, to the judicial system. Kanya malaki ang proteksyon at ito'y pinaglaban ni Pangulong Arroyo — kanya kami naman ang sundalo ni Pangulong Arroyo sinundan naming siya — at kinausap ni Pangulong Arroyo ang mga liderato ng East Asia kanyat napasa yan. At gusto ko lang sabihin sana itong liderato ni Pangulong Arroyo sa East Asia, alam ba ninyo that is probably the biggest bloc. Mahigit sa three billion people are represented in East Asia. And so that is one of the pillars of the success ng citing ASEAN Summit under the leadership of President Arroyo.

Labor Sec. Arturo Brian: Magandang hapon. Madame President. Dadagdagan ko lang po yung sinasabi kanina ni Secretary Romulo dahil dati po ay tayo punta nang punta sa iba't-ibang mga bansa upang magkaroon tayo ng mga agreements but this is the first time that we have a multilateral agreement on migrant worker. At nakakatuwa po sapagkat kasama nito ay meron tayong ASEAN Mutual Recognition Arrangement on Nursing Services. Yon pong pag recognize nung ating mga nurses dito sa Pilipinas yung kanilang sertipiko.

At Madame President ayon po sa aming data sa Department of Labor na ang ating mga nurses ay pinadadala natin sa Middle East, pinadadala natin sa Amerika at saka sa Canada. Dito po sa atin sa Asya hindi masyado lalo na sa Southeast Asia. Sa Brunei po over the past three years, apat; Cambodia, wala; Singapore, 373; Thailand, wala; Japan, wala pa; Taiwan, siyam lamang po. Eh ngayon with this type of agreement ay marahil po ay hindi na magpapakalayo-layo ang ating mga nurses, dito lang sa malapit sa Pilipinas sila makakapunta.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Opening Statement: President Arroyo on the successful hosting of the ASEAN and East Asia Summits during the Joint NEDA and NAPC Cabinet Group Meeting

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

On the successful hosting of the ASEAN and East Asia Summits during the Joint NEDA and NAPC Cabinet Group Meeting

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, January 16, 2007]

The success of the ASEAN and East Asia Summits is an unstoppable force that will drive the Philippine agenda in the years to come. The horizon is open of great challenges and opportunities, in fielding Filipino excellence through a broader regional market of services, sharing technology in alternative energy sources, bringing collective resources to bear upon pockets of instability, and enforcing democracy and human rights.

A fitting sequel to the summits is the current visit of Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao to Manila. It puts another milestone in our golden age of partnership with china. Yet another fitting sequel is our trip to the World Economic Forum in Davos that will gather the business moguls of the world in search of destinations of excellence and investments.

Japan and China provide indispensable leadership for our region, alongside the United States as a strategic partner in the fight against terror and poverty.

As we gear towards the realization and implementation of all the accords reached, we call the Filipino people to be focused on the ball. We call on the Filipino people not to be distracted by the wind of political partisanship. Let us strike while the iron is hot and move forward with the rest of ASEAN and East Asia.

I thank all the Filipinos, especially the Cebuanos for the deep warmth and hospitality extended to our guests.

I commend the AFP and PNP for keeping all threats to law and order at bay during the meetings. Let us all savour this monumental triumph of the Philippines.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement on the successful hosting of the ASEAN and East Asia Summits during the Joint NEDA and NAPC Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152756/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1807&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during the Roundtable Discussion on “The ASEAN Summit – How the benefits of the agreements reach the Filipino people”

Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Roundtable Discussion on “The ASEAN Summit – How the benefits of the agreements reach the Filipino people”

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 16, 2007]

Ang tagumpay ng ASEAN at East Asia Summit ay di-mapipigilang pwersang magsusulong ng balangkas ng kaunlaran sa Pilipinas sa mga taong darating. Bukas ang abot-tanaw sa mga malalaking hamon at pagkakataon upang lumaganap ang galing ng pilipino sa lumalagong merkado sa mga serbisyo, sa pagpapalitan ng teknolohiya sa ibang panggagalingan ng enerhiya, sa pagtutulungan ng mga bansa laban sa mga banta sa kapayapaan, at sa pagtatanggol ng demokrasya at karapatang-tao.

Tamang-tama namang kasunod ang pagdalaw sa Maynila ni Premier Wen Jiabao ng Tsina. Isa pa itong makasaysayang hakbang sa ginintuang panahon ng ating pakikipag-ugnayan sa bansang Tsina.

Isa pa ring naa-angkop na okasyon ang ating pagbiyahe sa World Economic Forum sa Davos, ang pagpupulong ng mga higitang pangdaigdigang kalakal at industriya na laging naghahanap ng natatanging kakayahan at paglalagyan ng kapital.

Di-matatawaran ang halaga ng pamumuno ng Hapon at Tsina sa ating rehiyon, kasama ng Estados Unidos bilang kabalikat sa ating pakikibaka sa terorismo at kahirapan.

Sa ating paghahanda upang ipatupad ang lahat ng mga kasunduang nabuo, hindi dapat mawala ang pagtutok ng taong-bayan sa pag-unlad ng bayan. Hindi dapat magpadala sa hangin ng pamumulitika. Dapat pandayin ang bakal habang nagbabaga at sumulong tayong lahat kasama ng buong ASEAN at Silangang Asya.

Nagpapasalamat ako sa lahat ng mga Pilipino, lalo na ang mga Cebuano, para sa matinding pagtanggap at pagmamagandang-loob na ipinakita sa ating mga panauhin. Pinupuri din natin ang sandatahang lakas at pambansang kapulisan sa pagtatanggol laban sa lahat ng banta sa kaligtasan at kapayapaan sa buong panahon ng summit.

Sama-sama nating ipagdiwang itong dakilang tagumpay ng bansang Pilipinas. At itong araw na ito ay inimbita natin ang mga opisyal na malaki ang pag-uugnay sa mga nagawa sa ASEAN at hingiin natin ang kanilang mensahe sa karaniwang Pilipino. At narito rin ang ilang karaniwang Pilipino, pakinggan din natin ang kanilang reaksiyon sa mga mensaheng ito. Una sa lahat, siyempre ang ASEAN ang nandoon ay yung lider ng pamahalaan, tapos nandoon ang foreign secretary at saka yung trade secretary. Kaya nandito si Secretary Romulo, ang namumuno sa ating mga Cabinet officials na pumunta doon sa ASEAN summit. Magandang hapon, Bert.

Foreign affairs Sec. Alberto Romulo: magandang hapon sa inyo Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo at bumabati ako sa ating mga nakikinig at dudugtungan ko lang yung nasabi ni Pangulong Arroyo among others na itong summit na ito malaki ang pagtulong nito sa kaunlaran at kabutihan ng mamamayang Pilipino sapagkat sasabihin namin kung anu-ano yung nagawa. But isang napakahalaga yung tinatawag nating Cebu Declaration for the Promotion and Protection of Migrant Workers. Alam natin, sabi sa akin ni Secretary Art Brion, na halos 10 million ng ating mga manggagawa all over the world. At itong ginawa ng ating summit at under the leadership of the president protects and enhances the welfare of our migrant workers.

Ano ang gagawin nilang magagawa diyan, unang-una, they recognize the overseas workers and their families. Importante yan sapagkat heretofore yung pamilya ay mukhang hindi kasama at yung pamilya kasama diyan ang women and children, husbands and wives. Ano ang mga binibigay niyan? May binibigay diyan access to health, to education, to social services, to the judicial system. Kanya malaki ang proteksyon at ito’y pinaglaban ni Pangulong Arroyo — kanya kami naman mga sundalo ni Pangulong Arroyo sinundan namin siya — at kinausap ni Pangulong

Arroyo ang mga liderato ng East Asia kanyat napasa yan. At gusto ko lang sabihin sana itong liderato ni Pangulong Arroyo sa East Asia, alam ba ninyo that is probably the biggest bloc. Mahigit sa three billion people are represented in East Asia. And so that is one of the pillars of the success ng ating ASEAN Summit under the leadership of President Arroyo.

Maraming salamat, Bert. Kaya namumuno sa summit bukod sa pangulo ay yung foreign minister. At ang pangatlo naman sa namumuno ay yung trade minister. Kaya narito rin si Secretary Peter Favila. Magandang hapon, Peter.

Trade Sec. Peter Favila: Good afternoon, Mrs. President at nais ko lang po sana idagdag tulad nang nasabi ng ating mahal na pangulo at ang ating secretary ng foreign affairs si Secretary Romulo. Alam niyo po itong ASEAN, itong mga negosasyon isang malaking bagay ang nanatili sa aking kaisipan habang ako ay nakikipag-ugnayan sa aking mga katumbas na sekretaryo ng iba-ibang bansa at ito po yung sinasabi ng mahal na pangulo, ganunpaman din kakumplikado at kahirap ang negosasyon, ang sabi po niya is — dapat yan ang resulta niyan ay para sa benepisyo ng mamamayang Pilipino, mga pangkaraniwang Pilipino. Kaya dito po sa ating pagpupulong ngayon gagawin ko pong lahat ng aking magagawa na maipapaliwanag po sa inyo itong mga nangyari po sa ating summit sa Cebu.

Salamat, Peter. Gaya nang sabi ko usually yung Cabinet members na naroon at namumuno ay yung foreign secretary at saka yung trade secretary dahil ang pinag-uusapan ay foreign relations at saka trade relations. Ngunit itong taong ito sinabi natin hindi na lang... Ang ASEAN hindi lamang pangangalakal, ang ASEAN ay kasama rin yung socio-cultural community. Kaya kailangan social justice din kasama. At binigyan natin ng kabuuan yan, tinawag nating “One Caring and Sharing Community” ang ating tema. Kaya malaking papel ang binigay natin doon sa mga kasunduan tungkol sa mga manggagawang migrante kaya malaki rin ang papel ng Department of Labor kaya narito si Secretary Art Brion. Magandang hapon, secretary.

Labor Sec. Arturo Brion: Magandang hapon, Madame President. Dadagdagan ko lang po yung sinasabi kanina ni Secretary Romulo dahil dati po ay tayo punta nang punta sa ibat-ibang mga bansa upang magkaroon tayo ng mga agreements but this is the first time that we have a multilateral agreement on migrant worker. At nakakatuwa po sapagkat kasama nito ay meron tayong ASEAN Mutual Recognition Arrangement on Nursing Services. Yon pong pag recognize nung ating mga nurses dito sa Pilipinas yung kanilang sertipiko.

At Madame President ayon po sa aming data sa Department of Labor na ang ating mga nurses ay pinadadala natin sa Middle East, pinadadala natin sa Amerika at saka sa Canada. Dito po sa atin sa Asya hindi masyado lalo na sa Southeast Asia. Sa Brunei po over the past three years, apat; Cambodia, wala; Singapore, 373; Thailand, wala; Japan, wala pa; Taiwan, siyam lamang po. Eh ngayon with this type of agreement ay marahil po ay hindi na magpapakalayo-layo ang ating mga nurses, dito lang sa malapit sa Pilipinas sila makakapunta.

At doon sa ating East Asian Summit pinilit natin, Pilipinas bilang chairman, na may isang session na bukod-tanging pag-uusapan ay enerhiya. Kaya naging importante rin ang papel ng ating Department of Energy doon kaya narito ang ating Secretary of Energy, si Secretary Popo Lotilla. Magandang hapon, Popo.

Energy Sec. Raphael ‘Popo’ Lotilla: Magandang hapon po Ginang Presidente. At dito siguro isa sa mga highlights ng session ninyo ay nagkaroon ng signing ng Declaration on East Asian Energy Security. At ang objective nito ay magkaroon tayo ng sapat na supply ng elektrisidad sa resonable na presyo. So ito ang kasunduan ng mga leaders ng East Asia at mukhang nahamon Mrs. President ang mga leaders at ang bansang hapon ay nagbigay ng kanilang pledge na two billion dollars in the next three years para mapababa yung walang access to electricity. So yung programa po ninyo sa rural electrification ay sinusuportahan dito ng bansang Hapon at ng iba pang mga leader, so at sa biofuels ay nagiging isang importante ding elemento nitong deklarasyon.

At doon sa ASEAN Summit ay pinagkasunduan na rin ng mga bansa ng Asya kung papano natin lalabanan ang terorismo. Noong araw nagdedeklara lang tayo na kontra tayo sa terorismo pero ngayon gumawa tayo ng kontrata. Ano ang mga obligasyon ng bawat bansa para labanan ang terorismo, kaya naging importante rin ang papel ng Department of National Defense. At narito rin ang ating Undersecretary ng National Defense, si Ric Blanciaflor. Magandang hapon, Ric.

National Defense Usec. Ric Blancaflor: Magandang hapon, Ma'am. Congratulations po sa pagbuo ng ASEAN Convention on Counter-terrorism. Sa totoo lang po Ma'am nabuo yon in less than three months. And malaking bagay yon dahil mula ngayon mahihirapan nang pumasok sa atin ang mga teroristang galing sa ibang bansa.

Very good, very good. Ngayon narito... Kasi ang ating mensahe ay itong ASEAN at East Asia Summit nung tayo ay namuno ay ginawa natin ito para sa karaniwang Pilipino. Ngayon meron tayong tatlong karaniwang Pilipino inimbata sa ating piling para makipagkuwentuhan sa kanila at maikuwento sa kanila at sila rin ay maikuwento rin ang impresyon tungkol sa summit na ito. Nandito si Maribel Danchez, isang manininda, hindi ba, Maribel? Saan ka nagtitinda? Magandang hapon. Saan ka nagtitinda, Maribel? Sa may St. Jude. Uy! Kapitbahay tayo, oo. Ikaw ba yung isa sa mga... Yung tindahan sa harap ng ano... Sa gilid. Ano ang binebenta mo? Okey. So ano, Peter. Ano ang magagawa ng ASEAN at East Asia para kay Maribel na nagbebenta siya ng mga sari-saring bagay doon sa gilid ng St. Jude Church.

Nandito rin si Joe Barsita, isang Overseas Filipino Worker. Doon ka nagtatrabaho sa Saudi Arabia, Joe? Bumalik ka na. Ikaw naman Joe, ano ang inaasahan mo sa ASEAN at East Asia?

Si Rolly Formanes naman. Magandang hapon, Rolly. Ikaw naman ay driver. Kasapi ka ng Piston? Toda, Toda. Okey, so ang menamaneho mo ay PUJ. Very good. So ang pinakamalaking problema mo ay yung gasolina, yung diesel. Kaya ito talagang... Kaya alam ko na maraming kagaya mo ay nagkakaproblema sa diesel. Kaya talagang sinabi ko bukod... Dapat mayron tayong isang yan lang ang pag-uusapan natin. Gaya nang sabi ni Popo na yung mga mayayamang bansa gaya ng Hapon ay two billion ang kanilang kontribusyon dito sa ating energy fund, hindi ba? So, Rolly bagong produkto yon. Oo, kaya mas maraming kapalit ng diesel na made-develop natin mas magaling para sa mga driver at operator ng mga jeepney.

* * *

Closing statement:

Sa pangangalakal. Yon bang sa pag-aayos natin sa ASEAN at East Asia meron tayong kasunduan, yung isang bahagi ng kotse dito gagawin, ang isang bahagi ng kotse diyaan gagawin, nasa baba. Kaya yung mayron tayong ibang economies of scale, so bawat isa naging mas mura yung kanyang produksiyon at kaya yung buong produkto ay mas mura. So iyon ang isang paraan kung papano makikinabang ang ating karaniwang tao dahil napakalaking bagay yung sasakyan at saka yung gasolina. Dahil hindi ba ang laki ng bagay ng transportasyon sa inyong hanapbuhay. So yon ang isang malaking resulta rin bukod doon sa proteksiyon ng ating manggagawa at yung proteksiyon ng ating kapayapaan.

Kaya ako'y nagpapasalamat sa lahat ng Pilipino na tumulong lalo na yung hospitality ipinakita sa ating mga bisita. At salamat sa ating mga Cabinet member sa inyong magandang homework na ginawa. At dahil karaniwang Pilipino ay malaking tinulong sa tagumpay ng ating pagho-host itong summit na ito karapatdapat naman na ang karaniwang pilipino rin ang makakatanggap ng biyaya.

Kaya ngayong hapon ako'y nagpapasalamat sa ating mga panauhin. Maraming salamat, Rolly. Salamat muli sa 50 centavos rollback na binigay ninyo sa inyong pasahe; maraming salamat din, Joe at nawa na yung mga bagong henerasyon ng OFW ay hindi kasing-hirap ang dadaanan haming sa dinaanan mo noong 1980s; salamat din Maribel bilang isang single parent sana itong mga bagay na ito ay mas bibigay ng higit na ginhawa sa inyong pamumuhay; at salamat Ric sa ating... Hindi lamang sa anti-terrorism convention, salamat din doon sa lahat ng mga sundalo na tumulong para sa ganun ay ligtas ang ating summit; maraming salamat Popo, marami ka pang gagawin para mas maraming magagawa, makukuha ang Pilipinas dito sa two billion dollars na hinandog ng ating mayayamang kapit-bansa; at maraming salamat din sa iyo Art Brion dahil yung mga nurses and other Overseas Filipino Workers ay kailangang ipahayag mo sa kanila ang mga biyayang makukuha nila sa ASEAN at East Asia para sa ganun ay magamit nila itong mga biyayang ito.

Yung trabaho mo ba noon Joe nagluluto ka? Very good, chef or sous chef. Very good, excellent. So, marami, marami tayong mga pagkakataon doon. At maraming salamat din Peter dahil talagang maganda ang iyong mga pagkakaugnay sa ibang mga trade ministers ng buong ASEAN. And of course yung ating team leader, at hindi lamang sa dahil foreign minister dahil head tayo, siya rin ang chairman ng National Organizing Committee ng ating ASEAN and East Asia Summit. Congratulations! Bert sa tagumpay na ikaw ay namuno.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during the Roundtable Discussion on "The ASEAN Summit – How the benefits of the agreements reach the Filipino people". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152748/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1810&Itemid=38

Press Statement: President Arroyo on fighting terrorism, January 16, 2007

Press Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On fighting terrorism

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 16, 2007]

Fighting terrorism

At doon sa ASEAN Summit ay pinagkasunduan na rin ng mga bansa ng Asya kung papano natin lalabanan ang terorismo. Noong araw nagdedeklara lang tayo na kontra tayo sa terorismo pero ngayon gumuwa tayo ng kontrata. Ano ang mga obligasyon ng bawat bansa para labanan ang terorismo, kaya naging importante rin ang papel ng Department of National Defense. At narito rin ang ating Undersecretary ng National Defense, si Ric Blancaflor. Magandang hapon, Ric

Sa pangangalakal. Yon bang sa pag-aayos natin sa ASEAN at East Asia meron tayong kasunduan, yung isang bahagi ng kotse dito gagawin, ang isang bahagi ng kotse diyaan gagawin, nasa baba. Kaya yung mayron tayong ibang economies of scale, so bawat isa naging mas mura yung kanyang produksiyon at kaya yung buong produkto ay mas mura. So iyon ang isang paraan kung papano makikinabang ang ating karaniwang tao dahil napakalaking bagay yung sasakyan at saka yung gasolina. Dahil hindi ba ang laki ng bagay ng transportasyon sa inyong hanapbuhay. So yon ang isang malaking resulta rin bukod doon sa proteksiyon ng ating manggagawa at yung proteksiyon ng ating kapayapaan.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during the Roundtable Discussion on Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao's Visit and the Signing of 12 Agreements with China

Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Roundtable Discussion on Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao's Visit and the Signing of 12 Agreements with China

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 17, 2007]

Mga kababayan:

Kahapon tinalakay natin ang mga biyaya sa mamamayang Pilipino mula sa ASEAN Summit. Ngayon pag-uusapan natin ang pakinabang sa bayan mula sa mga kasunduang pinirmahan sa pagdalaw ng Punong Ministro ng Tsina, si Wen Jiabao, hanggang kahapon.

Ito ang bunga ng walang tigil nating pagsusulong ng kagalingan at kaunlaran ng bansa sa iba't-ibang larangan, kabilang ang ugnayang panlabas.

Ngayon, pakinggan natin ang ating mga panauhin. Nandito sa aking kaliwa si Secretary Peter Favila ng Department of Trade and Industry. Siya ang tinatawag nating Chinaman natin dahil siya ang namamahala sa ating mga bagay tungkol sa Tsina; sa aking kanan naman ay narito si Secretary Gary Teves at siya bilang Secretary of Finance ang namamahala sa mga pautang na binibigay sa atin ng iba't-ibang mga bansa sa ibabaw ng kanyang responsibilidad na magkubra ng mga buwis; at sa kanan naman yung tunay na Chinaman ng ating gabinete dahil siya ay Chinese descent, si Arthur Yap ng Department of Agriculture, na maraming napirmahan o napapirmahan na mga kasunduan sa Tsina kahapon; at sa kaliwa naman ni Peter Favila ay si Ginoong Lito Arenas, isang magsasaka mula sa Manaoag, Pangasinan. Magandang hapon, Lito.

Good afternoon to all of you: Peter, Gary, Arty at masantos siya ngaremed sikayo, Lito Arenas. Si Arty taga-Pangasinan din, si Peter tiga-Dagupan. O yon, pero si Gary bisaya.

Anyway, o Peter, ikaw gaya nang sabi ko ikaw ang ating Chinaman in the sense na ikaw ang namamahala sa bagay tungkol sa China. So, ano yung maikukwento mo kay Lito, ano ang biyaya ni Lito mula sa pagbisita ni Premier Wen Jiabao ng Tsina.

* * *

CLOSING STATEMENT:

Yes, outstanding farmer, outstanding seed grower. Congratulations! Okay, so dapat Arty gagastos ka ng 500 million pesos a month for the next three months, for the next six months pala. Okay.

Okay. So, maraming salamat Lito sa yong kontribusyon sa ating self-sufficiency na hinahangad natin sa bigas. At maraming salamat din arty doon sa mga kasunduan na trinabaho mo. Maraming salamat Gary doon sa magandang negosasyon ng mga pautang mula sa China at maraming salamat Peter sa pangkalahatang pagmamaneho mo ng ating relasyon sa Tsina.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152735/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1801&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the Dollar Surplus and RP named as Best Borrower

Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on the Dollar Surplus and RP named as Best Borrower

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 18, 2007]

Mga kababayan:

Bahagi ng ating paglaban sa kahirapan ang pag-akit ng investment upang makalikha ng sampung milyong trabaho sa panahon ng ating panungkulan. At sa hangarin nating ito importante na marami tayong dolyar sa ating kaban. Importante rin na tinuturing tayo ng mga bangko ng mundo bilang mabuting taga-hiram.

Paano magagamit ang ating mga dolyar at ang ating magandang pangalan sa mga bangko ng mundo sa sinasabi nating payback para sa bayan — ang pagbibigay sa mamamayan ng mga biyaya mula sa ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya.

Narito ngayon upang iliwanag ito kung paano ay sina Secretary Gary Teves ng Department of Finance. Magandang hapon, Gary; narito rin ang Deputy Governor ng Bangko Sentral, si Diwa Guinigundo. Magandang hapon, Diwa; at meron tayong karaniwang Pilipino, si Ronaldo Perez ang isang taxi driver, magandang hapon. Ronnie ka ba, Ronnie? Ronald. Ronald, magandang hapon.

Una sa lahat, Gary, congratulations! Dahil sabi ng mga international financiers tayo ang pinakamagaling na bond issuer or pinakamagaling na taga-hiram sa mga bangko ng mundo. Ano ang ibig sabihin nito para sa karaniwang Pilipino?

* * *

CLOSING STATEMENT:

Ikaw ba meron ka ng Philhealth card? O ayan, kasi, kasi yan ang isang gusto nating mangyari. Yung Philhealth kasi kapag... Ang siguradong may Philhealth yung mga employer at saka employee. Yung mga employer yung mga may pabrika o kumpanya, let's say taxi company na may suweldong binibigay. So, yung suweldong binibigay kasama na doon yung Philhealth. Pero ikaw parang self-employed ka. So ito naman ang isang puwede nating gawin. Puwede nating bigyan ng... Ikaw willing ka ba... Ikaw makakaya mo ba yung 100 pesos a month para sa health insurance? Dahil nga tumataas ang iyong kita dahil nagmumura yung gasolina, nagmumura yung spare parts. So, ang problema ay wala kang impormasyon tungkol sa kung papano. Kasi hindi ba medyo mura yon kung 100 pesos a month? Tapos nuon pag magkakasakit kayo, pag kayo ay maho-hospitalized libre ito hanggang 30,000 pesos yata. Malaking tulong yon. So, kung malaman mo kung saan mag-aaply ka? Hindi ba? Yon ang isa sa atin sigurong pwede pag-aralan sa ating pamahalaan ngayon dahil nga maraming lumalaki ang kanilang kita. Mas liliit ang inyong gastos dahil kung magkakasakit kayo ay sagot na ng Philhealth hanggang 30,000. So, for 1,200 a year na gagastusin ninyo pati yung mga anak mo sakop doon.

In fact, gumagawa tayo ng programa para pag merong Philhealth yung pamilya bibigyan na rin ng card yung bawat anak. Para halimbawa nandoon sila sa probinsya dadalhin na yung Philhealth card doon sa ospital sa probinsya.

So, ito ang isang mga gusto nating gawin para sa ganun yung mga biyaya ng ating mga magagandang rating ay pupunta sa ating taong-bayan. Kasi yung binabayad niyong 1,200 every year tapos marami sa inyo magkakaroon ng hospitalization na mas malaki keysa sa 1,200 ang gastos, di ba? Saan kinukuha ng Philhealth yung diperensya? Eh nanggagaling din yuon doon sa kita ng ating bansa. At isang dahilan kung bakit maganda nga ang ating rating ay lumalaki ang kita ng ating bansa, hindi ba Gary? Marami tayong tax collection pero bumababa ang bayad ng interes dahil lumalakas ang piso. Hindi na rin umuutang so yung mga dating binabayad natin sa interes na dollar denominated kaya mahal ay pumupunta sa mga serbisyo gaya ng Philhealth.

So, Ronald, I hope one of these days maka-apply ka sa Philhealth. So, maraming salamat muli sa iyo, sa lahat ng mga taxi driver dahil hindi niyo itinataas ang inyong boundary.

At maraming salamat, diwa sa magandang pagmamaneho ng ating foreign exchange and dollars and monetary policy ng Central Bank. Kaya ang dami-dami nating dolyar ngayon.

At maraming salamat din Gary sa mga ginawa mo para lumakas ang ating pangalan sa mga bangko ng mundo dahil yon ay nakakapagbigay din ng biyaya sa pamamagitan ng... Nalilipat yung budget sa interest payment at nabibigay sa mga biyaya gaya ng dagdag na health services.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat din.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on the Dollar Surplus and RP named as Best Borrower. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152713/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1794&Itemid=38

Press Statement: President Arroyo on Philhealth, January 18, 2007

Press Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On Philhealth

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 18, 2007]

Philhealth card, anyone?

Ikaw ba meron ka ng Philhealth card? O ayan, kasi, kasi, yan ang isang gusto nating mangyari. Yung Philhealth kasi kapag ang siguradong may Philhealth yung mga employer at saka employee. Yung mga employer yung mga may pabrika o kumpanya, let's say taxi company na may suweldong binibigay. So, yung suweldong binibigay kasama na doon yung Philhealth. Pero ikaw parang self-employed ka. So ito naman ang isang puwede nating gawin. Puwede nating bigyan ng. . Ikaw willing ka ba. . . Ikaw makakaya mo ba yung 100 pesos a month para sa health insurance? Dahil nga tumataas ang iyong kita dahil nagmumura yung spare parts. So, ang problema ay wala kang impormasyon tungkol sa kung papano. Kasi hindi ba medyo mura yon kung 100 pesos a month? Tapos nuon pag magkakasakit kayo, pag kayo ay maho-hospitalized libre ito hanggang 30,000 pesos yata. Malaking tulong yon. So, kung malaman mo kung saan mag-aaply ka? Hindi ba? Yon ang isa sa atin sigurong pwede pag-aralan sa ating pamahalaan ngayon dahil nga maraming lumalaki ang kanilang kita. Mas maliliit ang inyong gastos dahil kung magkakasakit kayo ay sagot na ng Philhealth hanggang 30,000. So, for 1,200 a year na gagastusin ninyo pati yung mga anak mo sakop doon.

So, ito ang isang mga gusto nating gawin para sa ganun yung mga biyaya ng ating mga magagandang rating ay pupunta sa ating taong-bayan. Kasi yung binabayad ninyon 1,200 every year tapos marami sa inyo magkakaroon ng hospitalization na mas malaki keysa sa 1,200 ang gastos, di ba? Sana kinukuha ng Philhealth yung diperensya? Eh nanggagaling din yuon doon sa kita ng ating bansa. At isang dahilan kung bakit maganda nga ang ating rating ay lumalaki ang kita ng ating bansa, hindi ba Gary? Marami tayong tax collection pero bumababa ang bayad ng interes dahil lumalakas ang piso. Hindi na rin umuutang so yung mga dating binabayad natin sa interes na dollar denominated kaya mahal ay pumupunta sa mga serbisyo gaya ng Philhealth.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Opening and Closing Statements of President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the Dollar Surplus and RP named as Best Borrower

Opening/Closing Statements of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on the Dollar Surplus and RP named as Best Borrower

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 18, 2007]

Mga kababayan bahagi ng ating paglaban sa kahirapan ay ang pag-akit ng investments upang makalikha ng sampung milyong trabaho sa panahon ng ating panunungkulan. At sa hangarin nating ito importante na marami tayong dolyar sa ating kaban. Importante rin na tinuturing tayo ng mga bangko ng mundo bilang mabuting taga-hiram.

Paano magagamit ang ating mga dolyar at ang ating magandang pangalan sa mga bangko ng mundo sa sinasabi nating payback para sa bayan – ang pagbibigay sa mamamayan ng mga biyaya mula sa ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya.

Narito ngayon upang ipaliwanag ito kung paano ay sina Secretary Gary Teves ng Department of Finance at Deputy Governor ng Bangko Sentral, si Diwa Guinigundo. magandang hapon.

Una sa lahat, Gary, congratulations! Dahil sabi ng mga international financiers tayo ang pinakamagaling na bond issuer or pinakamagaling na taga-hiram sa mga bangko ng mundo. Ano ang ibig sabihin nito para sa karaniwang Pilipino?

Ikaw ba meron ka ng Philhealth card? O ayan, kasi yan ang isang gusto nating mangyari. Yung Philhealth kasi, ang siguradong may Philhealth yung mga employer at saka employee. Yung mga employer ay yaong mga may pabrika o kumpanya, let's say taxi company na may suweldong binibigay. So, yung suweldong binibigay kasama na doon yung Philhealth. Pero ikaw parang self-employed ka ito naman ang isang puwede nating gawin. Puwede nating bigyan ng... ikaw willing ka ba... Ikaw makakaya mo ba yung 100 pesos a month para sa health insurance? Dahil nga tumataas ang iyong kita dahil nagiging mura yung gasolina, yung smre parts. So, ang problema ay wala kang impormasyontungkol sakung papano. Kasi hindi ba medyo mura yon kung 100 pesos a month? Tapos nuon pag magkakasakit kayo, pag kayo ay mahohospitalized libre ito hanggang 30,000 pesos yata. Malaking tulong yon. So, kung malaman mo kung saan mag-aapply ka? Hindi ba? Yon ang isa sa atin sigurong pwede pag-aralan sa ating pamahalaan ngayon dahil nga maraming lumalaki ang kanilang kita. Mas liliit ang inyong gastos dahil kung magkakasakit kayo ay sagot na ng Philhealth hanggang 30,000. So, for 1,200 a year na gagastusin ninyo pati yung mga anak mo sakop doon.

In fact, gumagawa tayo ng programa para pag merong Philhealth yung pamilya bibigyan na rin ng card yung bawat anak. Para halimbawa nandoon sila sa probinsya dadalhin na yung Philhealth card doon sa ospital sa probinsya.

So, ito ang mga gusto nating gawin para sa ganun yung mga biyaya ng ating mga magagandang rating ay pupunta sa ating taong-bayan. Kasi yung binabayad niyong 1,200 every year tapos marami sa inyo magkakaroon ng hospitalization na mas malaki kesa sa 1,200 ang gastos, di ba? Saan kinukuha ng Philhealth yung diperensya? Manggagaling din iyon doon sa kita ng ating bansa. At isang dahilan kung bakit maganda nga ang ating rating ay lumalaki ang kita ng ating bansa, hindi ba Gary? Marami tayong tax collection pero bumababa ang bayad ng interes dahil lumalakas ang piso. Hindi na rin umuutang so yung mga dating binabayad natin sa interes na dollar denominated kaya mahal ay pumupunta sa mga serbisyo gaya ng Philhealth.

At maraming salamat, Dep. Governor Diwa Guinigundo sa magandang pagmamaneho ng ating foreign exchange and dollars and monetary policy ng Central Bank. Kaya ang damidami nating dolyar ngayon.

At maraming salamat din Gary sa mga ginawa mo para lumakas ang ating pangalan sa mga bangko ng mundo dahil yon ay nakakapagbigay din ng biyaya sa pamamagitan ng... Nalilipat yung budget sa interest payment at nabibigay sa mga biyaya gaya ng dagdag na health services.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat din.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the Benefits of the ASEAN in 2007 as ‘Boom Year’ line up

Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on the Benefits of the ASEAN in 2007 as ‘Boom Year’ line up

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 20, 2007]

My thought for today on this EDSA Dos Anniversary is the satisfaction of having done what I could for the good of the nation. The past has carried heavy trials but great triumphs for the people. I am but an instrument of their most ardent aspirations. I face the day sharing the hopes of those families who have been lifted from poverty and I promise to do better if I can.

I face the day sharing the dream of a Philippines mightily taking on the challenges of the world with excellence and pride. No more is our nation a basket case in the region or a weak link in the fight against terror. We’re rising above the specter of the past. We are crossing the threshold to an era of confidence and hope. The momentum is ours. We must keep and drive it forward with our solidarity and hard work, building peace and reconciliation along the way, in every nook and cranny of this great land.

Nagsisimula tayo ng taong 2007 ng maraming magandang balita. Bumagal ang inflation rate, ibig-sabihin dahan-dahan ang pag-akyat ng presyo haming sa mga panahong nakaraan. Tumalon din ang kapital na dumagsa sa bansa. Lumalago ang ating mga exports, lampas sa target. Matibay din ang paninindigan ng pamahalaan na ayusin ang ating pananalapi.

Tuloy-tuloy tayong binabati ng mga lider ng mundo sa tagumpay ng ASEAN Summit. Kaya sa panibagong taon, puno tayo ng pag-asang mapagpapatuloy natin ang pagsulong ng ekonomiya at makakaabot ang kaniyang biyaya sa karaniwang pamilyang Pilipino.

Sa 2007 pagtutuunan natin ng pansin ang tinatawag na “Social payback.” yon bang ipadama sa lahat ng mamamayan, lalo na sa maralita, ang biyaya ng kasiglaan ng ekonomiya at malakas na pananalapi ng pamahalaan. Panahon na upang makatanggap ang masa ng higit pang biyaya sa edukasyon, kalusugan, nutrisyon at hanapbuhay.

Pag-uusapan natin ngayon kung paano natin isisiguro ang “boom year” ng 2007. Pag-uusapan rin natin kung paano natin isusulong ang mga plano ng ASEAN at East Asia sa lahat ng larangan ng seguridad, kalakal at kaunlaran.

At ngayon tayo bilang mga panauhin natin narito ang ating undersecretary sa Department of Foreign Affairs, si Undersecretary Conejos. Magandang umaga, Undersecretary Conejos. Siya ang kampeon ng ating mga OFW lalo na pag may problema. Okay; at sa kaliwa ko naman ang NEDA Deputy Director — mabuti nasa pamahalaan siya ngayon, pero noong araw magaling na magaling na manunulat — si Director Dennis Arroyo. Magandang umaga, Dennis. Deputy, oh, Deputy Director, Deputy Director General, okay. Ah, no, Director. Okay, okay; at isang madalas nating panauhin, financial analyst, isang dalubhasa sa stock market, si Astro Del Castillo. Magandang umaga, Astro. Thank you for coming again; at meron tayong masasabi rin nating karaniwang Pilipino kasi may iba’t-ibang mga antas ng karaniwang Pilipino. Eto ay dalawang mga overseas Filipino workers na matataas ang kanilang kita sa kanilang pinagtrabahuan. Nandito sa kanan ni Undersecretary Conejos, si Esther Mangulabnan. Magandang umaga, Esther. At si Ginoong Eduardo Mangulabnan. Magandang umaga rin, Mr. Mangulabnan. Magandang umaga sa iyo. Kayo ay nasa Qatar nagtrabaho at dinig ko na ilang taon kayong nagpunta, many years ago, 27 years ago ba? Twenty five years ago, 1982, hand-to- mouth ang inyong pamumuhay.

* * *

CLOSING STATEMENT:

Sa pangangalakal naman pinapalaya natin ang pangangalakal. Halimbawa, yung biofuel, para maging mas mura yung gasolina natin ay puwedeng libre pangangalakal. Halimbawa, tayo nagpro-produce ng ethanol madali natin maibenta sa ibang bansa yun. O kaya kung magkukulang tayo ng ethanol madali tayong makakabili rin sa ibang bansa para ganun ay bababa ang presyo ng bilihin ng gasolina.

So, yun ang makakatulong din sa ating mga mamamayan, at yung kaunlaran. Yung kaunlaran doon sa East Asian Summit ay yung... Dahil kasama yung mayayaman na bansa gaya ng Japan, kaagad-agad nangako ang Japan ng two billion dollars para madvelop natin yung ating mga alternative sources of energy na makakatulong din sa ating mga mahihirap. Una sa lahat nga yung pagbaba ng presyo ng gasolina, yung pagbaba ng presyo ng jeepney, yung hindi tinataas ng taxi yung kanilang presyo — lahat nuon ay may biyaya para sa ating mga karaniwang mamamayan.

Kaya ako'y nagpapasalamat sa ating mga overseas Filipino workers dahil ang laki ng inyong kontribusyon, puwede maging seven percent ang growth rate dahil sa inyo; lumawak ang ating real estate, ang ating housing; at dumami ang ating investments sa mga iba't-ibang kumpanya na magbibigay ng dagdag na trabaho. Thank you, Mr. And Mrs. Mangulabnan.

Lalo na kasama yung ibang ASEAN countries ngayon sa pagtatanggol.

Palagay ko siguro kumikita kayo ngayong itong taong ito, ano? Oo, excellent, congratulations! And Astro, sana mas maging matagumpay pa ang stock market. Salamat dahil kayo ang PR natin, mataas ang credit rating agencies.

Yes, yes from Ing Barrings, one of the best investors. Ang dami naging milyonaryo sa stock market itong taong nakaraan.

Well, thank you very much, Dennis din dahil yung iyong kagalingan ay ginagamit mo paglingkod sa ating pamahalaan. And thank you also Undersecretary Conejos, ikaw talaga ang parating nagbibigay ng proteksyon sa ating mga overseas Filipino workers. And to you all, maraming salamat.

*Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on the Benefits of the ASEAN in 2007 as 'Boom Year' line up. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152608/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1790&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo on the Capture and Elimination of Key Figures of the Abu Sayyaf and J.I. Terrorists

Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On the Capture and Elimination of Key Figures of the Abu Sayyaf and J.I. Terrorists

[Delivered at the Ramos Room, Malacañang, January 23, 2007]

Congratulations! To our soldiers, our communities and our allies for the capture and elimination of key figures of the Abu Sayyaf and J.I. terrorists.

Our military has hit them hard and with success. This is in part due to the fact that their lair is becoming smaller because our grasp on peace in Mindanao and Southern Philippines has become wider. The natural outcome of peace is the defeat of extremism and violence perpetrated by these terrorist thugs.

At noon pa man, isa sa mga pangunahing saligan ng kapayapaan sa Pilipinas at sa buong rehiyon ang ugnayang panseguridad natin ng Estados Unidos. It becomes even more important as we push for strong collective security arrangements in ASEAN and the Asia-Pacific involving the U.S., China and Japan.

Ipinamalas ng ating mga panalo laban sa Abu Sayyaf ang tagumpay ng ating programa para sa pagsasanay at impormasyon kabalikat ang Estados Unidos. These are reinforced by broader programs for peace and development, trade and investment.

Saklaw ng ating aliansiya sa Amerika ang ating pagsanib sa lahat ng bansa sa Asya-Pasipiko para sa mas masagana at ligtas na mundo — a world that can secure the movement of people, goods and technology across borders while effectively checking terrorist persons, funds and materiel. This is a high point for global security based on strong and committed alliances to a comprehensive strategy against terror.

Once again, we salute our troops for their fighting mettle and we generously praise the communities involved.

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Statement on the Capture and Elimination of Key Figures of the Abu Sayyaf and J.I. Terrorists. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151905/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1788&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on the: Rollback of Oil Prices; Shrinking of the budget deficit; And drop in the interest rates of treasury bills

Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on the: Rollback of Oil Prices; Shrinking of the budget deficit; And drop in the interest rates of treasury bills

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 23, 2007]

Magandang araw mahal kong mga kababayan:

Bumagsak sa pinakamababang antas ang interes sa treasury bills sa auction kahapon dahil sa patuloy na pagtaas ng kumpiyansa ng merkado sa takbo ng ating ekonomiya. Inaasahang higit pang lalakas ang investments dahil sa patuloy na pagbaba ng interest rates.

Dahil din sa pagbaba ng interest rates, nababawasan ang kailangan nating isantabi para sa debt service at nadadagdagan ang pondo para sa pangangailangan ng taumbayan gaya ng social services at infrastructure.

Ang ating budget deficit sa nakaraang taon ay higit na mababa sa 125 billion na ceiling. Akala nga natin magkakaroon tayo ng depito na 125 billion. Eh, ayon kay Secretary Teves, isa sa ating panauhin ngayon — magandang hapon, Gary — ay kung isasama mo ang gobyerno at lahat ng korporasyon niya, meron pa tayong surplus. Congratulations! As of September.

Mayroon pang napipintong rollback sa presyo ng langis. Kaya ngayong hapon ay minarapat nating imbitahin hindi lang si Secretary Teves ng Department of Finance, narito rin si Secretary Nonoy Andaya ng Department of Budget and Management. Magandang hapon, Nonoy; si Secretary Lotilla ng Department of Energy. Magandang hapon, Popo; nandito rin si Francis Glenn Yu, President ng Independent Oil Players Group. Magandang hapon, good afternoon, Glenn; at si Mrs. Maura Alair, vendor and housewife. Magandang hapon, Maura.

Una sa lahat, yung interest rate, Gary. Ano'ng ibig sabihin nang bumaba yung treasury rates to the lowest... To historic level? Ano'ng ibig sabihin noon?

* * *

Closing Statement:

Alam mo, Maura dahil sa kumpiyansa nagpunta sa ating bansa — inumpisahan na natin dahil sa ating taxation, yung value-added tax — lumaki ang kumpiyansa. Ngayon mas malaki ang ginagastos natin sa social services keysa sa pagbayad ng utang.

Kaya yon ang dahilan kung bakit nararamdaman mo yung microfinance, mas mababa keysa... At merong microfinance keysa yung 5/6, tapos naramdaman mo ang pagbaba ng pasahe at saka yung Philhealth, yung Philhealth na pwedeng ma-renew. Kaya ito ang sinasabi nating mga bunga ng reporma para sa karaniwang mamamayan.

Dahil sa ating pagpupunyaging isulong ang mga reporma sa pananalapi at ekonomiya, nakikita natin na nagbubunga ito ng magandang buhay para sa ating mga mamamayan. Kaya muli inaasahan ko lalo pang gaganda ang mga numero na nagbabadya ng mga magandang bukas para sa ating lahat.

Muli, maraming salamat Maura sa iyong pagkuwento sa iyong buhay, kabuhatan at lahat. Thank you very much Glenn for the forthcoming third round of 50 centavos decrease. At saka thank you very much Popo Lotilla for always talking to the oil companies dahil deregulated ito, hindi mo sila mapipilit pero nape-persuade mo sila. And thank you very much Nonoy Andaya dahil sa magandang pagmaneho mo sa budget ay talagang tuloy-tuloy itong pagbaba ng deficit natin at baka nga maka-balanced budget tayo ng maagang panahon. And of course thank you very much Secretary Teves for all of the very efficient tax collection.

Sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Roundtable Discussion on the: Rollback of Oil Prices; Shrinking of the budget deficit; And drop in the interest rates of treasury bills. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152253/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1787&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion on: ASEAN-European Union talks, Ecozone Export, oil and LPG rollback, trade fairs

Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion on: ASEAN-European Union talks, Ecozone Export, oil and LPG rollback, trade fairs

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Press Briefing Room, Malacañang, January 24, 2007]

Magandang araw mga kababayan ko:

Natapos na ang ASEAN Summit, ngayon nagkakaroon naman ng mahalagang ugnayang pangangalakalan sa pagitan ng ASEAN at European Union. Makikinabang tayo dito, makikinabang ang marami nating produkto na proudly Philippine made na rumarampa ngayon sa mga pambansang merkado. Marami ditong mga produktong ito ay nandoon sa mga economic zones natin.

At lumalawak ang ating mga palengke dahil din sa pamamagitan ng trade fairs, pareho sa lokal at pandaigdigang merkado, mas napapamalas ang galing at husay ng Pilipino sa pamamagitan ng mga dekalidad na mga produkto.

Isa pang magandang balita ay ang napipintong rollback sa presyo ng langis at ng LPG na ginagamit ng ating mga maybahay sa pagluluto. At malaking kaugnayan dito ay dahil nalalaman na ng buong mundo na tayo ay gumagawa ng kilusang maging malaya o sa enerhiya nanggagaling sa langis.

Kaya kasama natin itong araw na ito, nandito una sa lahat, si Undersecretary ng Foreign Affairs, si Edsel Custodio. Magandang hapon, Edsel; at narito rin si Undersecretary Mar Salazar ng Energy. Magandang hapon din Mar; at narito ang Director General ng Philippine Economic Zone Authority, si Lilia de Lima. Magandang hapon, Lilia; at narito rin yung namamahala ng ating mga trade fairs, si Fe Agoncillo Reyes — magandang hapon, Fe — sa CITEM.

Umpisahan natin itong ASEAN-European Union, Edsel. Actually, supposed to be mapipirmahan sana natin ito noon pang... Itong summit natin ng January dahil, first of all, hindi kasama ito sa ating agenda nung December pa, dahil hindi pa handa. Pero in the meantime nang na-postpone to January, nung Christmas eve, handa na pala ang European Union. Nung tsini-check ko sa DFA, “ano, pwede pa tayong magpirmahan sa European Union?” I-check pa raw sa Cambodia dahil ang sistema ng ASEAN ay may sariling mga bansa-bansang namamahala doon.

So hindi nakahabol doon sa ating ASEAN Summit. Pero ngayon dahil chairman pa rin tayo hanggang hulyo, hanggang katapusan ng hulyo ay tinutuloy natin yon. So, ano na ang status nito Edsel, at ano’ng ibig sabihin kung makakapagsunduan tayo sa European Union sa karaniwang Pilipino?

* * *

CLOSING STATEMENT:

Basta gusto na nga natin eh custom-demand yung ano... Talagang kung may specific demand, yon ang tini-training ng TESDA. Hindi na sila nagpupunta doon sa mga pastillas making masyado kasi maghahanap pa tayo ng market. Yon dapat na may market na talaga yon ang ginagawa ng TESDA. At hindi sila mismo nagti-training, nagbibigay sila ng scholarships kung saan may mga dalubhasa nagti-training.

So, maraming salamat sa inyong lahat, sa ating mga tumutulong sa exports, Fe, congratulations! Sa inyong magandang trabaho sa trade fairs; Lilia, congratulations! At parating nagre-record breaking yung performance ng economic zone authority; at congratulations! Din Undersecretary Salazar dahil tayo ay patungo na talaga sa kasarinlan sa enerhiya; at congratulations! Din Edsel at good luck! Para mabuksan natin ang bagong palengke ng Europe.

At sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statement during a Roundtable Discussion on: ASEAN-European Union talks, Ecozone Export, oil and LPG rollback, trade fairs. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412151848/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1785&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo before the key officials and major national media management editors and senior journalists

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Before the key officials and major national media management editors and senior journalists

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, June 14, 2007]

Thank you.

Today, we are holding this meeting between the information and security officials of the government and the representatives of media to review our efforts to prosecute and prevent journalist killings.

First of all, let me once again deplore the killings of journalists. We have a sorry history in our nation for political violence. We aim to break this cycle of violence once and for all.

I happen to believe that 99 percent of our military and policemen and women are good, upstanding and loyal patriots fighting to protect our country everyday. But if rogue members of the military or police are involved, we have all agreed that they shall be punished.

Former Justice Melo has provided his initial report. We have made it public. We are in the process of following his recommendations. This includes: special courts, stronger witness protection measures, more money for prosecutors, and investigations of left and right to bring the perpetrators of these crimes to justice. As we have made tough choices to turn around our economy, we will also get a handle on these killings to end them once and for all.

Today, let us join hands in mutual trust and common purpose so that all the violence will be stopped. We will have two parts to this meeting. I will leave you first for half an hour. Of course, you may start your lunch. And then so that you can have some brainstorming or something candid that you might want to say to one another. And then I'll be back at about 1:00 o'clock so that then, probably you could give me a consensus of what you have agreed on in the first half hour and then we can move on from there, if that's alright with you.

So, I'd like to thank you once again until I see you in about half an hour's time. Please enjoy your lunch in the meantime.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo opening statement before the key officials and major national media management editors and senior journalists. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150013/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2028&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on rallying Pinoys abroad, June 26, 2007

Policy Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On rallying Pinoys abroad

[Delivered at the Equatorial Guinea, June 26, 2007]

Rallying Pinoys abroad

We are proud of the contribution of Filipino workers to the development of this country, particularly the 2,500 Filipinos employed in the banking, finance and oil sectors of Equatorial Guinea.

Sinisikap nating lalo pang mapabuti ang inyong kalagayan.

Pinararangalan ng pamahalaan at taumbayan ang mga Pilipinong manggagawa sa ibayong dagat sa inyong sakripisyo at malasakit sa inyong trabaho, inyong pamilya at inyong bansa. Tinatanggap nang buong loob ang inyong kontribusyon. Nguni't karangalan din nating sabihin na ang mga ganansya sa ekonomiya na nakikita natin ngayon sa Pilipinas ay inihahanda ang araw kung kailan hindi na kailangang mag-abroad pa ang mga Pilipino para sa trabaho, and the day when overseas work is just another option and not the only choice you have to earn a living.

Nasa landas ng permanenteng pagsulong at katatagan ng ekonomiya ang Pilipinas.

Inaasahan natin na magtatrabaho ang Senado at Kamara ng Pilipinas kasama nating siguraduhing isosostento natin ang ating mga biyaya sa ekonomiya. Nakalingingon tayo sa makabuluhang pag-uusap at pagtutulungan sa ating mga gumagawa ng mga patakarang masiguradong tuloy tayong sumulong sa reporma sa ekonomiya.

We have turned the corner on our economy.

Mayroon nang mga kapansin-pansin na tagumpay. Nguni't di-hamak na may higit pang magagawa at gagawin.

Sa unang pagkakataon sa isang henerasyon, binibigyan tayo ng kakayahan ng ating mga biyaya sa ekonomiya at kaban ng bayang gumawa ng malalakas na pamumuhunan sa ating bayan at ating taumbayan. Patungo doon, naglikha tayo ng estratehiyang pamumuhunang nakatukoy sa apat na pinaka-inisyatibo: 1) pag-ibayuhin ang ating imprastraktura upang lumikha ng kapaligiran kung saan may kumpyansa ang mga negosyong mag-expand at mag-employ ng higit pang tao, dahil kahulugan ng higit na trabaho ay bawas sa kahirapan; 2) pag-ibayuhin ang social services gaya ng health insurance subsidies para sa mga dukhang pamilya at nutrition programs para sa mga mag-aaral at kanilang mga pamilya; 3) pagpapalakas ng suporta sa edukasyon sa ating pagsisikap na bawasan ang kahirapan sa pamamagitan ng pamumuhunan sa mas mabuting school buildings, mga bagong libro at teaching materials, at training programs para sa mga guro at school administrators; at 4) pagputol ng red tape at pagpapatuloy na tanggalin ang katiwalian sa sistema.

Ito ang mga paraan upang mai-ahon ang mga mahihirap. Ginagawa natin ito sa unang pagkakataon sa isang henerasyon.

Kaakibat kayo at ang buong pamilyang Pilipino, maisusulong natin ang ating layunin.

Together, we will push forward and fulfill our common dreams of peace and prosperity.

Source: University of the Philippines Main Library

Statement: President Arroyo at the Mindanao Peace and Security Summit

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
At the Mindanao Peace and Security Summit

[Issued in Cagayan De Oro City, July 10, 2007]

To my fellow Mindanaoans, daghang salamat sa inyong pagtambong dinhi.

We are here together because we must work together from day one to ensure that we respect the rights of our citizens.

We must invest in peace and order. Crime is down in the nation because we have made the investments to put more policemen on the street.

Our military must continue on its path to reform. They must become even more professional every day at the same time they fight to eliminate the armed terrorist threats to the nation from religious extremists or communist terrorists. Whatever ideology is being pursued that undermines our stability must be defeated.

Hand in hand with the need for economic prosperity is the need to strengthen our institutions of government to ensure that civil rights and social justice are available to all Filipinos, not just a privileged few. We must weed out corruption, stop political violence and build a strong system of justice that people can trust.

Political violence has been with this nation for way too long. Among our ranks here in this Summit, friends and colleagues have been gunned down in spurts of mindless violence. Spikes of election and political violence, while down, remain too high. Even one death is one death too many for the people who are fighting to be a part of our democratic society.

This violence extends to the men and women in the media who have put their lives on the line to do their job. We must protect our journalists from violence just as we must protect all innocent civilians.

The political terrorists who live outside the boundaries of human justice and who have marked the stability of our nation and the rule of law for extinction live by no moral code. They lack all humanity and concern for the people.

We must all band together as a people and as public servants to stop this violence once and for all. We plan to introduce into the new Congress sweeping legislation that will transform our nation's response to political violence and remove this stain from our nation. Legislation that will guarantee swift justice through more funding for special courts to prosecute human rights violators. We will strengthen the rights of victims, including more money for enforcement. We will impose tougher penalties for human rights violators and for anyone committing a crime with a firearm.

If you are armed and kill innocent civilians, you will be tracked down and prosecuted. If you are a communist terrorist, we will stop you. If you are a religious terrorist, we will stop you. If you are a rogue element of our own police or military, we will stop you.

I have the deepest respect for our military and police institutions as do most Filipinos. We want our nation safe. We trust our men and women who put their life on the line everyday to protect our nation and our communities. Ninety-nine percent of these hard working and patriotic men and women love this nation and abide by the rule of law.

Yet for our public servants in uniform, fidelity to the Constitution is a sacred duty. These public servants have a moral obligation to uphold the Constitution and to protect the innocent. For this reason, any violent crime that a member of the law enforcement or military community may commit against innocent people is even more wrong and must be stopped. No one is above the law.

We are entering a new era of civil and human rights. The front line of this effort is built on lifting up our poor and liberating them from poverty. That is the most fundamental human right – to live in dignity free from the fear of hunger and want.

No less important is to bring political stability to every region so that our people can live in peace, free from the fear of harassment, kidnapping and plunder that are so often part of the communist terrorists who flog a failed ideology. The civil rights of our people will be upheld as we tie down and eliminate enemies of peace and prosperity.

There is a fundamental difference between those who take up arms and those who take to the ballot box. Our government will protect the political rights of any person who wishes to participate in our democracy however we might disagree on philosophy and approach. We cannot stand idly by, however, and let the purveyors of violence cloak their agenda behind the innocent men and women they hold hostage to their failed ideology. We will wrestle with these failed terrorists to the ground and free the nation to live in peace and harmony.

This nation will not be complete until we bring peace to Mindanao. Our Muslim brothers and sisters have been working in good faith with our government for many years. We are on the cusp of a permanent peace. The process we have employed has been gaining the attention of the world. We have created a Philippine model for reconciliation that is built on interfaith dialogue, the building of roads, bridges and schools and investments to build up the local economy. The hard power of our military presence is merely to isolate the violent terrorists while our soft power of seeing to the people's needs is expanding the peace every day. Peace and order will prevail over violence and chaos in the Southern Philippines.

I am hereby ordering the increased security of vital power and transportation facilities in Mindanao. Let us begin the implementation of the Human Security Act by using it as a tool to prevent multi-billion-peso hydroelectric dams and power grids from being whacked by terrorists. The people have a civic and collective duty to protect essential infrastructure which their taxes paid for.

Our community assets are at stake. We will suffer blackouts or erratic cellphone signals if these conveniences are disrupted by terrorism. Pag walang koryente, walang trabaho. The Human Security Act is about defending our way of life.

Equal to our determination to eliminate violence and suppress the violent is our determination to lift up the nation to a brighter future.

Let us strive to create a mass movement of Mindanaoans actively engaged in fighting crime, terrorism and poverty.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's statement at the Mindanao Peace and Security Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145855/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2058&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the Central Philippines Infra Conference

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: At the Central Philippines Infra Conference

[Issued at the New Silay Airport, Silay City, Negros Occidental, July 13, 2007]

* We must invest in the vital infrastructure that is the backbone of a modern nation: mga bilyon sa mga bag-o nga kalsada, airports kag energy reliability, agod maka-kumpetensiya ang Pilipinas.

* Investing in the vital infrastructure includes building up our environment as a reflection of our commitment to our quality of life. People need to breathe clean air and swim in clean water while we also build manufacturing and bridges to span our waters.

* In last year's State of the Nation Address I unveiled the theme of the Super Regions that spread development from concentration in Manila. It was not just a State of the Nation gimmick. It is a concept that will be carried all the way to 2010. For instance:

* The majority of tourists visiting the Philippines go to Central Philippines. Boracay is the top overall destination while Cebu is the top destination for foreign tourists.

* Roads:

* Boracay beachcombers reach up to Libertad and Pandan in Antique. More so when the road awaiting Japan's approval of the bid documents is completed. Meanwhile, we are improving other Panay roads. The Iloilo-Santa Barbara Road and the Metro Iloilo Radial Road will be completed in 2009.

* From Metro Iloilo we go to Guimaras through the Jordan Wharf. In 2009 we will build the road from Jordan to Sibunag Roll-on, Roll-off (RORO) Port, which we started building last May. Governor now Congressman Rahman Nava chose Sibunag as the best connection to Bacolod Port.

* Investors in Boracay are expanding in Palawan. In March last year we opened the Puerto Princesa-Taytay Road, followed in March this year by the Taytay-El Nido. The Puerto Princesa-Bataraza Road will be completed by December 2009.

* Cebu tourism can spill over to other destinations through the road and roll-on-roll-off ferry system that we call the Central Nautical Highway:

* Going south, Cebu Port to Tubigon Port in Bohol, to Jagna RORO Port, opened last May 9 and Ubay Port through the Bohol Circumferential Road which we also inaugurated last May 9.

* Ubay to Maasin Port in Southern Leyte, completed last October, or Limawasa Port, to be completed in September. Governor Mian Mercado will have lots of scuba divers.

* Jagna to Mambajao Port in Camiguin, to be completed in November, then by road on to Guinsiliban Port, the gateway to the Mindanao mainland and Loloy Romualdo's Lanzones Festival.

* Going north from Cebu City, North Cebu Coastal Road, which will be delogged when the Mandaue-Consolacion Bridge is completed in 2009, to the Bogo Port.

* Bogo to Naval or Maripipi Port in Biliran, or Esperanza of Cawayan in Masbate. Naval Port will be finished in December; Maripipi, Esperanza and Cawayan next year.

* Esperanza or Cawayan to Aroroy Port by a road to be completed in 2009.

* Aroroy to Claveria, Burias Island whose RORO ramp will be finished next April.

* Claveria to the Pasacao Port, where RORO operations started in 2002, and onto the rest of Bicol.

* Airports:

* Last month we started operating the Iloilo International Airport, which was Art Defensor's dream ever since he was Governor of Iloilo.

* Kalibo Airport has likewise gone international with Asian Spirit operating direct flights from Korea. Hopefully by August Governor Carlito Marquez shall have completed the acquisition of the land for the instrument landing system. We will also build an P80 million passenger terminal building on the strong representation of Congressman Joben Miraflores to accommodate the hordes of Boracay fans.

* As we can see the new Bacolod Airport is also finished, but we will await the completion of the access road in November before opening it. I assure Congressman Monico Puentevella that the airport fees will stay the same.

* Other deadlines: September for Guian Airport in Eastern Samar so that Governor Ben Evardone will have more surfers. November for the San Vicente airstrip in Palawan. December for Siargao Airport in Surigao and, courtesy of KOICA of Korea, Busuanga Airport in Palawan. January for the runway overlay and shore protection of Tacloban Airport. February for the Puerto Princesa airport terminal. April for upgrading the Dumaguete runway which then Governor now Congressman George Arnaiz said should be done so that electronics firms can be encouraged to locate in Oriental Negros where electric power rates can be subsidized.

* We thank the local government of Kabankalan, Negros Occidental which will start civil works on its airport in October to access the Mediterranean ambience of the Sipalay beaches.

* The local government of Bohol will acquire the land for the Panglao International Airport by December.

* Last month in Legazpi, Albay, upon recommendation of Governor Joey Salceda I instructed the release of P85 million for the advanced engineering study for the international airport in Daraga, Albay, which will serve the whole Bicol peninsula.

* Energy Reliability:

* In the Visayas, an electric power gap of 100 megawatts will appear in 2009. The Korean Electric Power Company project in Cebu will come in only at 2010 with 200 megawatts. So five power barges of 100 megawatts will be on standby to fill in the gap.

* But the real solution is to privatize ASAP as is where is the geothermal power plants in Oriental Negros, Southern Leyte, Albay and Sorsogon so that the private sector can expand their capacity before 2009. With the successful privatization of PNOC-EDC, the development of new geothermal power resources has gained additional momentum. It is attractive enough for the private sector so that the government need not be the one to spend.

* Last May we turned on the lights in Masbate. But that was also temporary. The final solution will come in 2008, when a new 13-megawatt clean coal plant will increase customer coverage from 125,000 to 500,000. I hope to visit Representatives Lina Seacheon, Tony Kho and Bong Bravo on the ground when that happens.

* In Negros Occidental, the San Carlos bioethanol plant will start its commercial operation in October 2008. Let us create an ethanol corridor in Negros Island from San Carlos City to Tamlang Valley.

* Environment:

* As our investment in natural parks, since 2001, we have declared eight new protected areas in Central Philippines: Tubbataha Reefs and Rasa Island in Palawan, Mt. Isarog in Bicol, Northern Negros, Northwest Panay Peninsula in Antique, Panglao Island in Bohol, Samar Island and Central Cebu.

* We monitor water quality in 24 Central Philippines beaches, including Boracay, Panglao and El Nido.

* Two years ago, Southern Leyte suffered a deadly mudslide. Today it is back on its feet and implementing a $3 million Japanese project to manage its fragile ecosystem.

* Guimaras has also made a dramatic comeback from last year's oil spill. Thank you, Congress, for allocating almost P900 million to address their calamity. For the long term, initiatives have started on studying their mangroves and replenishing the populations of the organisms living in their shores.

* Thank you also, Congress, for allocating P10 billion for the Bicol Calamity Assistance and Rehabilitation Effort. P7 billion has been released, the biggest single one-time calamity fund release in our history.

* Together with the World Bank, we are funding the Bicol River Basin and Watershed with $15 million over the next three years for irrigation, flood control and water resources conservation.

* Together we shall make Central Philippines a haven for business and tourism. Let us push on with greater solidarity and focus.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Statement at the Central Philippines Infra Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145655/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2055&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the Central Philippines Infra Conference

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: At the Central Philippines Infra Conference

[Issued at the New Silay Airport, Silay City, Negros Occidental, July 13, 2007]

* We must invest in the vital infrastructure that is the backbone of a modern nation: mga bilyon sa mga bag-o nga kalsada, airports kag energy reliability, agod maka-kumpetensiya ang Pilipinas.

* Investing in the vital infrastructure includes building up our environment as a reflection of our commitment to our quality of life. People need to breathe clean air and swim in clean water while we also build manufacturing and bridges to span our waters.

* In last year's State of the Nation Address I unveiled the theme of the Super Regions that spread development from concentration in Manila. It was not just a State of the Nation gimmick. It is a concept that will be carried all the way to 2010. For instance:

* The majority of tourists visiting the Philippines go to Central Philippines. Boracay is the top overall destination while Cebu is the top destination for foreign tourists.

* Roads:

* Boracay beachcombers reach up to Libertad and Pandan in Antique. More so when the road awaiting Japan's approval of the bid documents is completed. Meanwhile, we are improving other Panay roads. The Iloilo-Santa Barbara Road and the Metro Iloilo Radial Road will be completed in 2009.

* From Metro Iloilo we go to Guimaras through the Jordan Wharf. In 2009 we will build the road from Jordan to Sibunag Roll-on, Roll-off (RORO) Port, which we started building last May. Governor now Congressman Rahman Nava chose Sibunag as the best connection to Bacolod Port.

* Investors in Boracay are expanding in Palawan. In March last year we opened the Puerto Princesa-Taytay Road, followed in March this year by the Taytay-El Nido. The Puerto Princesa-Bataraza Road will be completed by December 2009.

* Cebu tourism can spill over to other destinations through the road and roll-on-roll-off ferry system that we call the Central Nautical Highway:

* Going south, Cebu Port to Tubigon Port in Bohol, to Jagna RORO Port, opened last May 9 and Ubay Port through the Bohol Circumferential Road which we also inaugurated last May 9.

* Ubay to Maasin Port in Southern Leyte, completed last October, or Limawasa Port, to be completed in September. Governor Mian Mercado will have lots of scuba divers.

* Jagna to Mambajao Port in Camiguin, to be completed in November, then by road on to Guinsiliban Port, the gateway to the Mindanao mainland and Loloy Romualdo's Lanzones Festival.

* Going north from Cebu City, North Cebu Coastal Road, which will be delogged when the Mandaue-Consolacion Bridge is completed in 2009, to the Bogo Port.

* Bogo to Naval or Maripipi Port in Biliran, or Esperanza of Cawayan in Masbate. Naval Port will be finished in December; Maripipi, Esperanza and Cawayan next year.

* Esperanza or Cawayan to Aroroy Port by a road to be completed in 2009.

* Aroroy to Claveria, Burias Island whose RORO ramp will be finished next April.

* Claveria to the Pasacao Port, where RORO operations started in 2002, and onto the rest of Bicol.

* Airports:

* Last month we started operating the Iloilo International Airport, which was Art Defensor's dream ever since he was Governor of Iloilo.

* Kalibo Airport has likewise gone international with Asian Spirit operating direct flights from Korea. Hopefully by August Governor Carlito Marquez shall have completed the acquisition of the land for the instrument landing system. We will also build an P80 million passenger terminal building on the strong representation of Congressman Joben Miraflores to accommodate the hordes of Boracay fans.

* As we can see the new Bacolod Airport is also finished, but we will await the completion of the access road in November before opening it. I assure Congressman Monico Puentevella that the airport fees will stay the same.

* Other deadlines: September for Guian Airport in Eastern Samar so that Governor Ben Evardone will have more surfers. November for the San Vicente airstrip in Palawan. December for Siargao Airport in Surigao and, courtesy of KOICA of Korea, Busuanga Airport in Palawan. January for the runway overlay and shore protection of Tacloban Airport. February for the Puerto Princesa airport terminal. April for upgrading the Dumaguete runway which then Governor now Congressman George Arnaiz said should be done so that electronics firms can be encouraged to locate in Oriental Negros where electric power rates can be subsidized.

* We thank the local government of Kabankalan, Negros Occidental which will start civil works on its airport in October to access the Mediterranean ambience of the Sipalay beaches.

* The local government of Bohol will acquire the land for the Panglao International Airport by December.

* Last month in Legazpi, Albay, upon recommendation of Governor Joey Salceda I instructed the release of P85 million for the advanced engineering study for the international airport in Daraga, Albay, which will serve the whole Bicol peninsula.

* Energy Reliability:

* In the Visayas, an electric power gap of 100 megawatts will appear in 2009. The Korean Electric Power Company project in Cebu will come in only at 2010 with 200 megawatts. So five power barges of 100 megawatts will be on standby to fill in the gap.

* But the real solution is to privatize ASAP as is where is the geothermal power plants in Oriental Negros, Southern Leyte, Albay and Sorsogon so that the private sector can expand their capacity before 2009. With the successful privatization of PNOC-EDC, the development of new geothermal power resources has gained additional momentum. It is attractive enough for the private sector so that the government need not be the one to spend.

* Last May we turned on the lights in Masbate. But that was also temporary. The final solution will come in 2008, when a new 13-megawatt clean coal plant will increase customer coverage from 125,000 to 500,000. I hope to visit Representatives Lina Seacheon, Tony Kho and Bong Bravo on the ground when that happens.

* In Negros Occidental, the San Carlos bioethanol plant will start its commercial operation in October 2008. Let us create an ethanol corridor in Negros Island from San Carlos City to Tamlang Valley.

* Environment:

* As our investment in natural parks, since 2001, we have declared eight new protected areas in Central Philippines: Tubbataha Reefs and Rasa Island in Palawan, Mt. Isarog in Bicol, Northern Negros, Northwest Panay Peninsula in Antique, Panglao Island in Bohol, Samar Island and Central Cebu.

* We monitor water quality in 24 Central Philippines beaches, including Boracay, Panglao and El Nido.

* Two years ago, Southern Leyte suffered a deadly mudslide. Today it is back on its feet and implementing a $3 million Japanese project to manage its fragile ecosystem.

* Guimaras has also made a dramatic comeback from last year's oil spill. Thank you, Congress, for allocating almost P900 million to address their calamity. For the long term, initiatives have started on studying their mangroves and replenishing the populations of the organisms living in their shores.

* Thank you also, Congress, for allocating P10 billion for the Bicol Calamity Assistance and Rehabilitation Effort. P7 billion has been released, the biggest single one-time calamity fund release in our history.

* Together with the World Bank, we are funding the Bicol River Basin and Watershed with $15 million over the next three years for irrigation, flood control and water resources conservation.

* Together we shall make Central Philippines a haven for business and tourism. Let us push on with greater solidarity and focus.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Statement at the Central Philippines Infra Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145655/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2055&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the Luzon Urban Beltway Infrastructure Conference

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: At the Luzon Urban Beltway Infrastructure Conference

[Issued at the Subic Bay International Airport Terminal Lounge, Subic Freeport Zone, Zambales, July 19, 2007]

In last year's State of the Nation Address, I unveiled the Super Regions – Central Philippines, North Luzon Agribusiness Quadrangle, Luzon Urban Beltway, Cyber Corridor and Mindanao – where development must spread, away from an unhealthy and inequitable concentration in Metro Manila.

It was not just a gimmick for the occasion but the blueprint of the only viable future.

Our Super Regions strategy is doing great for the Luzon Urban Beltway.

The Subic-Clark-Tarlac Express Road is in its final stages. This first-world motorway will cut travel time between Clark and Subic from two hours to 30 minutes. Clark Airport got its radar approach control in April. Although it will open its new passenger terminal in January, it already has 50 international flights a week, the second busiest after NAIA.

We just came from Cubi Point where we inaugurated a new world-class container port that will make the Subic Bay Freeport together with the Clark Freeport one of the best international service and logistics centers in the region.

In my State of the Nation Address last year, I said we would connect North Luzon and South Luzon Expressways through C-5.

Ginagawa na ang C-5 mula sa Katipunan. Kausap na ang UP para sa ibubutas na daan patungong Commonwealth, na kasalukuyang nilalapan. Sa kabila ng Mindanao Avenue (sa Quezon City), binibili na ang lupang daraan mula Barangay Talipapa (Novaliches) hanggang Malinta (Valenzuela City) kabit na ng NLEX.

On the South Expressway we are widening Alabang Viaduct up to Santo Tomas, Batangas. By March, SLEX will extend all the way to Batangas Port through the Southern Tagalog Arterial Road.

I'm sure everyone wants to know about NAIA Airport Terminal 3. The ceiling that fell wasn't the only thing in danger of falling. Intrusive inspection revealed that the airport cannot withstand an Intensity VI earthquake. The contractor took so long to start the remedial work that government sent a termination notice. Now it's back, taking responsibility for the structural defects. We have pinned them down to complete the work by this year's end. Or else.

More modern airports mean more work for the ATO (Air Transportation Office). I am submitting a priority administration measure creating the Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines. Public safety comes first.

With regard to energy and power, Luzon needs 150 megawatts additional by 2010. This will be covered by the announced 350-megawatt, $350-million expansion of the Pagbilao plant by Marubeni and Tokyo Electric, part of their $4 billion that constitutes the biggest Japanese investment in Philippine history.

Only four percent of Luzon's power comes from oil. Yet power rates are high. I will ask Congress to amend the Electric Power Industry Reform Act for open access and more competition.

Our resolve to provide the necessary infrastructure for growth and prosperity has heightened investors' confidence in our capability to slug it out in the global arena such as the US$1.6-billion Hanjin Shipbuilding facility, considered to be the third largest in the world and the $1-billion Texas Instruments chip plant in Clark.

People need to breathe clean air while we also build manufacturing. We have closed 88 firms for polluting the environment. Public safety first, as I said.

Nagtayo tayo ng mga tangkeng maglilinis ng maruming tubig sa halagang P300 milyon, para maalís ang panganib sa apat na milyong residente ng Kamaynilaan dahil sa marumi at baradong mga ilog at estero.

Earlier this year we proclaimed a critical habitat within the coastal lagoon of Las Piñas and Paranaque.

P7 billion in investments from Maynilad's new owners is bringing clean and, at last, running water in Paranaque and other parts of its franchise area. Manila Water just completed a similar P2 billion project for Antipolo.

Ang tubig ay nagbibigay-buhay, hindi pumapatay dahil sa baha. Matapos ang maraming taong usapan at malaking gastos sa nakaraan, sa wakas ginagawa sa ilalim natin ang KAMANAVA (Kalookan-Malabon-Navotas-Valenzuela) Flood Control Project hanggang Septiyembre 2008.

Flood control in Central Luzon will continue with the P5 billion Mt. Pinatubo Hazard Urgent Mitigation Project that will protect San Fernando City, Sasmuan, Guagua, and, of course, Lubao. Who knows, I may run for Congress from my home town.

The Luzon Urban Beltway is oozing with prospects. This meeting is a testament to our seriousness and resolve to bring economic vibrancy to the super region.

To the local government units, I invite you to take an active part in the development of our Luzon Urban Beltway.

Together we shall make the Luzon Urban Beltway a globally competitive urban, industrial and services center. Let us push on with greater solidarity and focus.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Statement at the Luzon Urban Beltway Infrastructure Conference. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145559/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2049&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) meeting

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, August 7, 2007]

Welcome to the first LEDAC of the 14th Congress.

And once again, I want to congratulate every legislator for your service and dedication to the nation. The people are watching this council with high hopes that everyone is ready to work for the nation to move forward towards a modern nation; and that everyone is ready to work for economic progress, social justice and peace and order — the three main items in our legislative agenda.

Through the LEDAC (Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council), we hope that all parties and the two political branches of the government can work together to solve common problems.

Our senior deputy executive secretary for legislative liaison, Jake Lagonera, will present the framework of our proposed legislative agenda in terms of the three areas I mentioned: Economic progress, social justice, and peace and order. Then we will have presentations on the three topics related to the area of economic progress: the proposed budget, the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement, and a proposed national strategy to conserve resources and help arrest climate change.

The first topic, the budget, will be presented by Nonoy Andaya; and of course it's an annual priority. The second topic, the JPEPA, is a leftover but urgent business from the last congress. And let me introduce the third topic in this way:

The present water and power shortages due to the dry spell deliver a wake-up call for our generation to urgently embark upon a determined, well-planned and well-funded wide ranging strategic initiative to conserve resources even as we strive for development.

Hence, I have instructed NEDA (National Economic and Development Authority), DOE (Department of Energy) and DENR (Department of Environment and Natural Resources), to work with Congress and key sectors of society, to draw up a package of policies and programs designed to progressively reduce the usage of water and energy per unit of farm, factory and other economic output.

This is the direction the whole world will eventually have to go. It's our competitive advantage to race ahead in the inevitable imperative to maximize the growth we generate for every drop of water and spark of energy we use.

We must also build up the environment through forest conservation and expansion to absorb greenhouse gases warming the world, and to enhance our water resources while preventing flooding, erosion and siltation.

And we count on all sectors, starting with our congressional leaders, to work together towards this goal of resource-efficient, environmentally sound development.

So thank you once again. And now SDES Lagonera will begin his presentation. Please, although we will have our open forum at the end of the four presentations, Jake's and the three topics, please feel free to interrupt at anytime that you think you should interrupt.

Thank you.

Okay, Jake?

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's opening statement during the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145329/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2137&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the National Security Council (NSC) meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the National Security Council (NSC) meeting

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, August 14, 2007]

We already have a quorum. So I'd like to call this National Security Council meeting in order.

I've called for this meeting of the National Security Council to brief our leaders on Basilan and Sulu, and to consult them on our unrelenting efforts to forge lasting peace with justice, harmony and security for all Mindanaoans and the rest of the Filipino people.

These efforts shall include protection of civilians in battle zones, strict adherence to ceasefire parameters, harnessing of all sectors and international support for peace and development initiatives, and fast-tracking of projects and programs for infrastructure, health, housing, livelihood, farming and fisheries upgrading, and Muslim education and culture in the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao.

It's imperative that we all work together without selfish politicking to preserve the peace we have achieved so far and to advance it toward a final agreement and the massive development that will follow.

We ask the Lord God for His blessing on our collective efforts to accomplish His plan for peace, justice and progress in our land.

So I'd like to ask our new secretary of National Defense, Gilbert Teodoro, to lead the opening prayer.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during the National Security Council (NSC) meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145233/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2131&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the National Security Council (NSC) Cabinet Group meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Sa pagpupulong ng Gabinete ng National Security Council (NSC)

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, ika 21 ng Agosto, 2007]

Mga minamahal kong kababayan:

May mahalaga akong sasabihin sa inyo para sa mapayapa at maayos na buhay ng ating mga pamilya at pamayanan, at para sa kapayapaan at kaunlaran ng ating bansa. Sa ating panawagang magkaisa ang bayan sa pagsuporta sa ating mga kawal, ibig nating maging saksi at kapanalig ang pamunuan ng ating republika ng sandatahang lakas at ng pambansang kapulisan.

Una, parangalan natin ang mga kawal na lumaban, nasawi at nasugatan sa Basilan at Sulu. Hindi dapat maaksaya ang kanilang pagtaya ng buhay. Hindi tayo aatras sa pakikibaka upang mabigyan ng katarungan ang ating mga marines at upang mabigyan ng kapayapaan at kaunlaran ang bayan. Nauunawaan natin ang mga ibig ihinto ang labanan, subalit dapat nating tandaan: na hindi magkakaroon ng seguridad ang bansa kung ni hindi natin mabibigyan ng hustisya ang mga sundalong nagtatanggol ng ating republika. Sa halip, lalong lalakas ang loob ng mga terorista kung hindi sila pagbabayaran sa kanilang paglapastangan sa ating mga bayaning kawal.

Pangalawa, against terrorism, our principal weapon remains to be economic development, which we draw from the arsenal of democracy. Ongoing operations against rearguard actions of a despised and defeated group are meant to clear the path for these provinces journey to peace and progress which terror has delayed for so long.

Pangatlo, hindi rin tayo hihinto sa ating paghahangad ng kasunduang pangkapayapaan sa Mindanao, na siyang maglulunsad ng malawakang pag-unlad sa mga pamayananag Muslim sa pagdagsa ng investment at pondong pangkaunlaran. Inaasahan natin na sa susunod na buwan magpapatuloy ang pulong pangkapayapaan ng ating pamahalaan at MILF sa Malaysia; at sa Huwebes, a beinte tres ng Agosto, idaraos ang unang Regional Peace Assembly sa Bohol, na uulitin sa ibang rehiyon. Ito ang suporta ng pamahalaan sa mga pagkilos ng mga pinunong lokal para sa kapayapaan.

Pang-apat, sa pagwawagi ng ating mga kawal at pulis sa mga terorista sa Basilan at Sulu hindi malayong magtangka silang maghasik ng lagim sa ibang bahagi ng bansa, kaya naman inuutos natin sa ating pambansang kapulisan at sandatahang lakas na makipagtulungan sa mga gobyerno lokal at sa taong- bayan upang pagtibayin ang ating mga lungsod at pamayanan laban sa anumang pakana ng mga terorista.

Pang-lima, sa ating pakikibaka sa mga kalabang nagbabanta sa ating kapayapaan at kaunlaran, pinakamahalagang magkaisa tayo at huwag mapadala sa mga naghahangad hati-hatiin ang hukbo at sambayanan sa bisa ng mga mapalinlang at walang katotohanang propaganda.

Nahaharap sa ligalig ang tangi nating bansa. Huwag natin siyang isuko sa kalaban dahil lamang sa mapanira at makasariling pamumulitika.

At panghuli, bukod sa terorismo, nagbabanta rin sa atin ang bagyo at baha sa ilang bahagi ng bansa, at kakulangan ng ulan sa ibang lugar. Kailangan ng ating bayan ngayon ang kabayanihan mula sa bawat Pilipino.

Nananawagan ako sa lahat ng sektor at sa bawat mamamayan: huwag natin biguin ang ating inang Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the National Security Council (NSC) Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412144941/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2129&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during Press Briefing on the Philippine Economic Performance and Direction

Opening/Closing Statements of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Press Briefing on the Philippine Economic Performance and Direction

[Issued at the Rizal Hall, Malacanañg, August 30, 2007]

Magandang umaga.

Ang ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya ay nasa harapan ng ating kampanyang bawasan ang kahirapan. Ito ang ating pangkalahatang layunin. Ang pagbalansiyado ng kaban ng bayan ay unang hakbang lamang. Gumagawa tayo ng matagal nang dapat gawing pamumuhunan sa human at physical infrastructure.

Kasama rito ang bilyung-bilyong piso sa edukasyon, kalinga sa kalusugan at training. Kasama ng bilyun-bilyon sa mga bagong tulay, kalsada, pantalan to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines. This in turn attracts more investments at lumilikha ng dadag na trabaho. Mas maraming trabaho, mas konting kahirapan.

Hangang ngayon, mataas ang ating hinahangad. Naharap natin ang hamon. No one thought we could get more revenue, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. No one thought we could bring our budget into balance, pre-pay our debts at dagdagan ang trabaho – ngunit nagagawa natin.

Our newfound money for investments allows us to pick up the pace of growth. Umuobra ang ating plano sa ekonomiya.

Today we have the latest glowing indicators to show it. For the second quarter of the year, gross domestic product or GDP rose by 7.5 percent, (applause) the fastest in two decades, gross national product or GNP rose by 8.3 percent. (applause) This brings our first semester economic growth to 7.3 percent.

We're confident of meeting our full year growth forecast of 6.1 to 6.7 percent. Based on additional data, our statisticians have also revised the first quarter GDP growth. And that's why I said that GDP grew in the first semester by 7.3 percent.

Sa mga tagumpay na ito, pinupugay natin ang bawat Pilipino dito at sa ibayong dagat.

While our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with one of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in two decades, dapat hindi tayo magpahinga kundi sumulong at isustento ang momentum. Sa susunod na tatlong taon, ita-translate natin ang mga positibong resulta ng ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya sa mga tunay na biyaya para sa taong-bayan.

To sustain our expansion and global business uncertainties, we must undertake more efforts to boost the domestic economy. We call on the business leaders gathered here to join hands with our economic team in advancing crucial initiatives toward faster and faster growth.

First, we must achieve our revenue and deficit targets to maintain investor and creditor confidence and keep the flow of low interest capital strong. We have given strict marching orders to BIR and Customs in three meetings since July to hit their targets or else. And they have been meeting their targets. With resolute collection and payment of the right taxes, we shall all enjoy ample, cheap funds for business and development.

Second, with the world economy hitting some bumps due to dearer oil and market turmoil, we must intensify domestic growth and investment especially in micro, small and medium enterprises, exports and agri-business, tourism and infrastructure. That means addressing business concerns over power costs and red tape.

I have instructed Secretary (Peter) Favila, as chairman of the National Competitiveness Council, to work with the PCCI (Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry) and other leading business associations in focusing priority government action on their concerns so that we can report solid gains and solutions when the Philippine Business Conference comes around in a couple of months.

Peter, please slash more red tape, as well as the drag of power costs on our exporters and manufacturers.

Last week, we met with the Department of Energy precisely to ensure our power cost production strategy. DOE has committed to privatize half of months NAPOCOR's generating capacity in the months ahead, along with Transco which has attracted interest from nine consortia. We hope Congress can prioritize the bill to amend EPIRA and make open access a reality for industrial users of electricity.

Third, I instruct the Super Region champions, the infrastructure agencies and state corporations, and the infrastructure monitoring task force of the Presidential Management Staff to be merciless in ripping through undue obstacles in the way of long overdue priority infrastructure.

Let us end the days when our public works were held back by huge deficits and reenacted budgets. To this end, we also urge Congress to speedily enact next year's budget for hopefully even faster growth in 2008.

Meron pang trabaho ang PMS – si Cerge Remonde – itulak ang mga government at private financial institutions at NGOs na magpahiram sa mga macro, small at medium na negosyo. Ito ang mga saligan ng ating ekonomiya. Dapat palawakin natin sila sa sapat na pantang at technical assistance.

Salamat muli sa lahat sa sama-samang pagtatrabaho para gawing mas kahanga-hanga ang Pilipinas habang paspas tayo sa larangan ng progreso at prosperidad.

Sa pag-aani din ng debidendo ng ating mga pagsisikap sa kapayapaan at seguridad at sa mas malaking mga pondo ng ating mga programang panlipunan, nakakapamuhunan tayo sa paglikha ng trabaho. Mas mabuting kalinga sa kalusugan at higit na oportunidad sa edukasyon. Ito ang mga susi para umahon ang mahihirap.

Sa tulong ng Maykapal, magbalikatan tayo sa sama-sama nating trabaho.

Maraming salamat.

And now I ask Estrella Domingo, the Secretary General of the NSCB (National Statistical Coordination Board), to give a presentation that will open the press conference on economic issues.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening/Closing Statements during the Press Briefing on the Philippine Economic Performance and Direction. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412144525/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2126&Itemid=38

Departure Statement: President Arroyo on her visit to Malaysia

Departure Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On her visit to Malaysia

[Issued on August 30, 2007]

As I leave for Malaysia to join the other ASEAN leaders in the 50th anniversary of Malaysia's independence from British rule, I am elated that for the second quarter of this year, our gross domestic product or GDP rose by 7.5 percent and gross national product or GNP by 8.3 percent bringing to 7.3 percent our economic growth in the first half of the year.

We bring this elation and pride to Malaysia, the third largest economy in the region, and second home to thousands of overseas Filipino workers. I will bring my thanks and congratulations to the Filipinos in Malaysia for their contribution to our GNP growth. Malaysia also plays an important role in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations and in our peace process in Mindanao.

Since winning independence from Britain, Malaysia has transformed itself into one of the region's modernized countries, with a remarkable history of political stability and economic growth.

During our visit, I shall take the opportunity to reiterate to the government and people of Malaysia, our country's profound appreciation for their role in facilitating the peace process in Mindanao.

The Philippines and Malaysia have been co-founders, along with Indonesia, Singapore and Thailand, of the original five-member Association of Southeast Nations (ASEAN) in 1967. Today, ASEAN has grown into a dynamic regional bloc and much sought after trading partner across the world.

The Philippines and Malaysia are members of the 21-nation Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Forum, which is holding their annual conference in Australia this September. Our participation in APEC has resulted in greater security for all due to stronger multilateral, regional, and bilateral partnerships between and among APEC members against terrorism.

We have made international relations a centerpiece of our government's political and economic reform agenda. Every diplomatic mission is an occasion to build stronger ties and preserve friendships that can be counted upon when most needed. Always at the heart of such visits is the welfare and future of our OFWs. In Kuala Lumpur, we shall make time to visit and chat with the vibrant and hardworking Filipino community. They, too, are part of this celebration as direct contributors to Malaysia's growth and our own national economy.

Our agenda for this trip is clear: to honor the invitation of a dear and well-respected neighbor; to thank the King and government of Malaysia for its help in our quest for peace; and to visit our workers who embody the resilient and industrious spirit of the Global Filipino.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Departure Statement on Her Visit to Malaysia. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412144716/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2117&Itemid=38

Arrival Statement: President Arroyo from her official visit to Malaysia

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
From her official visit to Malaysia

[Issued on September 1, 2007]

It was an honor for the Philippines to witness the celebration of the Golden or 50th Anniversary of Malaysia's Merdeka or Independence Day.

In the Malaysian capital, we joined other heads of state and government of countries with long years of diplomatic relations with Malaysia.

I personally thanked Prime Minister Dato' Seri Abdullah Badawi and other Malaysian government officials for their support in the Exploratory Talks between the Government of the Republic of the Philippines (GRP) and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) and for the extension of the International Monitoring Team's tour of duty in the Philippines.

When I left Manila on Thursday afternoon, I brought with me very good news for our fellow Filipinos in Malaysia — the latest indicators showing that the Philippine economy registered its highest growth rate of 7.3 percent in two decades during the first half of this year.

Our kababayans in Malaysia expressed optimism that soon they can come home to a better country and a brighter future.

The statistics from our National Statistical Coordination Board (NSCB) shows that our economic roadmap is unfolding as it should, and right on schedule.

From Third World to First World, this is the only journey worth taking.

I call on our people and their representatives in Congress to work for progress and unite for peace, so that finally we can leave the chains of poverty and political instability behind us.

Malaysia and some of our other neighbors have shown us that this can be done. Our Gross Domestic Product (GDP) growth shows that we can prosper, and that in fact, we are on our way to better times, as long as we stay on course and fight poverty as Team Philippines.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's arrival statement from her official visit to Malaysia, September 1, 2007. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412135240/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2198&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the 50th anniversary Celebration of the Social Security System (SSS)

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
At the 50th anniversary Celebration of the Social Security System (SSS)

[Issued at the Social Security System (SSS) Building, Quezon City, September 3, 2007]

Happy Golden Anniversary, SSS! Thank you for half a century of service to the Filipino people.

We also congratulate Cora de la Paz for being the first Asian to be elected president of the International Social Security System!

Six and a half years ago, SSS was facing financial collapse and your funds were in danger of running dry by 2015.

We embarked on a radical reform program and now SSS is back on its feet, stronger and more resilient than ever, and with the credibility regained ranking 3rd in the polls of institutions effectively fighting corruption.

Our administration's anti-corruption advisor, Tony Kwok, the former anti-corruption czar in Hong Kong who was a key player in efforts to clean up corruption there, believes that perceptions cloud the reality of our progress in the Philippines. SSS is one shining example of the fact that we have undertaken in a strong and steady effort to curb graft through criminal justice, administrative controls and procedural reforms. This effort of the government focuses on the revenue agencies that, like SSS, have improved their performance in recent years; and agencies that are in the frontline of day-to-day public services. We take this issue very seriously and with the accomplishments of agencies like the SSS, we believe perception will match reality in a few short years. This is a problem that has plagued the Philippines, as it has plagued other countries, for generations; and, as the SSS experience has shown, it won't be eliminated overnight but progress is being made.

The reform of SSS was part of the hard-fought economic reform battles through which the Philippine economy has finally broken loose from its historic legacy of lethargy. New revenues, including increases in contributions for SSS, better collection and a crackdown on remittance cheats along with fiscal discipline has put the SSS and the Philippines on a path to permanent, sustainable economic growth and stability.

Thanks to the SSS and other outstanding institutions, the rate of poverty is down, unemployment is up and our education and healthcare services to the poor vastly improved. We have a long way to go, but only through a strong economy and strong institutions like the SSS can we improve the plight of the poor. We have turned the corner on our economy. New revenue sources are here to stay, for the national government and for the SSS: our national budget will be balanced next year, while SSS assets have risen to P248 billion and its investment income P15.58 billion in the last six months; the peso is strong. This allows us to invest in job creation, better healthcare and more educational opportunities. Most notably and most felt, this has allowed us to increase the SSS pensions twice in the last 12 months; 10% in September last year and another 10% last month, SSS 50th anniversary present to the Filipino people.

We have also condoned penalties and restructured housing loans, allowing 6,000 SSS members to keep their homes, enabling the speedy grant of housing loans to calamity victims and various loans for sickness and other personnel emergencies, and the fast-track processing and quicker delivery of retirement and disability pensions.

I ask Thelmo Cunanan and the SSS board to extend the condonation program for six more months. This is social payback.

We are proud of the discipline of SSS to focus on financing viability, sound investments, quality service, and corporate culture. We are committed to making sure we use the new resources these developments are generating to provide vital social and economic needs. It has been a tough road, both for the national government and for the SSS, but long ago I made a decision not to sacrifice long term gains for short term political expediency. And Cora de la Paz long ago made the same decision for the SSS, backed up fully by Thelmo Cunanan and his board.

SSS reflects the new level of maturity and stability our economy has reached with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in two decades.

New social security schemes are imperative as we modernize our economy.

I encourage your strategic plans to expand your membership through mandatory coverage of all OFWs, especially seafarers and amend the SSS Charter, particularly to institutionalize actuarial standards and formulas.

Last week, I issued a directive to push government and private financial institutions and NGOs to increase lending to micro, small and medium enterprises which are the biggest job generators. Thank you for your recent announcement of a P1 billion special window for MSME lending in celebration of your fiftieth jubilee.

SSS at 50 has done a good job balancing your vital functions of capital build-up and support for national social programs along the mandate of providing a lifeline to your members. I am confident that you are up to the challenge of continuing to be financially viable and living up to your anniversary theme as our people's KAAGAPAY, KAIBIGAN AT KABALIKAT. MAGPAKAILANMAN. Thank you!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Statement at the 50th anniversary Celebration of the Social Security System (SSS). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412144515/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2196&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the National Security Council-Cabinet Group Meeting [Filipino]

Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Sa pagpupulong ng Gabinete ng National Security Council

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, ika 4 ng Setyembre, 2007]

Mga kababayan, hindi man gaanong nababalita, nagdaragsaan na ang mga positibong ulat ng mga eksperto tungkol sa kagila-gilalas na paglago ng ating ekonomiya, pinakamalakas sa dalawang dekada. Mangyari, nagaganap na sa Pilipinas ang uri ng growth rate na ipinamalas ng Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Singapore at Tsina: mahigit 7% ang paglago ng ekonomiya at 10% ang pagtaas ng pamumuhunan o investment. Ito ang itinuro ng Asian Development Bank na susi sa paglaya ng bansa sa hirap. Sama-sama nating ituloy ito, at maaabot ng Pilipinas ang kasaganaan at kaunlaran, gaya ng ating mga kalapit-bansa.

Sa pagsisikap nating ito, mahalagang pag-ibayuhin ang ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya, lalo na ang pagkolekta ng tamang buwis, upang mabalanse ang budget, lalong mapalakas ang investment, at mapondohan ang imprastraktura, paaralan, pagamutan, pabahay, patubig at iba pang serbisyong bayan.

Mahalaga rin sa investment ang kapayapaan at katatagan ng bansa, upang mapanatag ang mga investor at lalo silang mamuhunan at lumikha ng trabaho. Kaya naman pinulong natin ngayon ang mga liga ng gobyernong lokal at ang ilang pinunong relihiyoso, kasama ang Gabinete, upang ilunsad ang plano para sa mga inisyatibong pangkapayapaan sa iba't ibang rehiyon ng bansa.

Kasama ng balangkas pangkapayapaan ang amnestiya at kabuhayan para sa mga rebeldeng ibig bumalik sa panig ng batas. Kalahating bilyong piso ang paunang pondo rito, upang mabilis na itanim ang matibay na kapayapaan at seguridad sa mga rehiyon, sa pangunguna ng mga pinunong lokal at relihiyoso, at katulong ang buong gobyerno ng bansa.

Sa mga dekadang nagdaan, nagkaroon din ng pagkakataong ganito ang ating bansa, subalit dahil sa mga ligalig sa politika, natakot ang mga investor at nahinto ang pag-unlad. Ngayon, bumabalik na ang capital at negosyo, at dapat tayong magkapit-bisig upang wakasan na ang hidwaan, ligalig at dahas na tumakot sa mga mamumuhunan noon.

Ito ang kailangan ng bayan ngayon: reporma sa ekonomiya, kapayapaan sa bansa at panatag na politika, upang isulong ang pamumuhunan ng gobyerno, negosyo at mundo sa sambayanang Pilipino.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Statement at the National Security Council-Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412144454/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2192&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a Roundtable Discussion with the country's Math and Science champions

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Roundtable Discussion with the country's Math and Science champions

[Issued at the Malacañang's Heroes Hall, September 4, 2007]

Nagagalak tayong makasama dito sa Malacañan bilang panauhing pangdangal sa Testimonial Merienda ang mga pangkat ng Science at Matematika na nagwagi ng mga medalya sa mga international competition na nabasa natin sa peryodiko dalawang buwan na ang nakaraan:

Ang ating mga Science champions mula sa Philippine Science High School: Paulo Miguel Manzanila at Lawrence Medina.

Ang ating mga Math champions mula sa Philippine Science High School: Amiel Sy, Arvin Alba at Joana Patricia Santelices.

Ang ating Math champion mula sa Chiang Kai Shek College: Henry Jefferson Morco.

Ang ating Math and Science champion mula sa Naic Central School: Robert Allan Buendia.

Bilang parangal sa kanila at upang dumami pa ang ating mga magagaling na estudyante, ibig nating gamitin itong pagkakataon na iulat ang sumusunod na mga programa para sa agham at teknolohiya sa 2008 budget:

Itataas ng 51% ang budget ng Department of Science and Technology mula P3.5 billion tungo sa P5.5 billion.

Sa dagdag na ito, maitataas ng DOST ang budget ng Philippine Science High School at iba pang Science High School ng 68%. siyanga pala, malaking karangalan sa aming pamilya na ang pangulong nagtayo ng Philippine Science High School ay ang aking ama si Diosdado Macapagal. kaya naman karangalan ko ring bigyang paraang lumago pa itong pugad ng mga magagaling.

May dalawang proyekto ng U.P. na nagkakahalaga ng P1.5 billion, upang magtayo ng cluster ng research at technology incubation facilities sa information technology zone ng pamantasan.

Kasama ito sa ating pamumuhunan sa human and physical infrastructure upang masostento ang ating paglago ng ekonomiya na lampas na sa pitong porsyento.

Uulitin ko ang sinabi ng mga dalubhasa tungkol sa ating ekonomiya:

Revisions in the first quarter 2007 data occurred mainly in construction. Public construction was the reason as it expanded 39.6 percent in second quarter 2007 from 24.6 percent the previous quarter. The huge increase in public investments shows the government is delivering on its ambitious medium term capital spending program that concentrates on physical infrastructure upgrades.

When investment, especially basic infrastructure, is one of the economy's growth engines, there can be little doubt of sustainability. This is relevant, in light of the U.S. subprime mortgage crisis. Public investment is possible due to fiscal reforms that hiked government revenues significantly. Spending increased even as the budget deficit narrowed. It will not be affected by the U.S. credit crunch. The success in implementing the government's spending program inclines us toward more optimism.

Hindi lamang physical infrastructure kundi pati human infrastructure ang pinagkakagastusan ng malaki ng ating pamahalaan.

May P1 billion para sa pagsasanay sa Matematika, Agham at Ingles. P700 million para sa maramihang paggawa ng mga equipment sa pag-aaral ng Math at Science. P55 million para sa bagong programa ng Department of Education upang magturo ng Engineering Science sa mga high school.

Lahat ng ito ay sa 2008 budget.

Makakaya natin ito dahil nakamit na naman ng Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) at Customs ang kanilang target para sa buwan ng Agosto. Congratulations sa kanila.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's statement during a round table discussion with the country's Math & Science champions. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412144322/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2194&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statement: President Arroyo during a Barangay Visit and Pulong Bayan with Officials of Quezon City District 2 Barangays [Filipino]

Panimula/Katapusang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa pagbisita sa Barangay at Pulong Bayan kasama ang mga opisyal ng Lungsod ng Quezon, Mga Barangay sa Ikalawang Distrito (Sauyo, Gulod, Talipapa, Bagbag at San Bartolome)

[Ipinahayag sa Colegio de San Bartolome de Novaliches covered Court Area, Brgy. San Bartolome, Lungsod ng Quezon, ika 5 ng Setyembre, 2007]

Magandang tanghali sa inyong lahat.

Narito tayo ngayon sa Colegio De San Bartolome De Novaliches dito sa Quezon City, ang pinakamalaking lungsod sa buong Pilipinas.

Binabati ko ang mga mahal kong kababayan at ang ating mga lider ng siyudad na narito ngayon. Narito si Congresswoman Annie Susano. Magandang tanghali, Annie. Si Annie ang Reyna ng Novaliches; at narito si Vice Mayor Herbert Bautista, si Bistek; si Mayor Sonny Belmonte na parati nating kasama ay nasa Amerika sa ngayon. At nandito ang barangay captains ng limang barangay na makakausap natin itong araw na ito pati yung ibang mga national government officials.

Ginagamit natin itong pagkakataon upang talakayin ang peace and order. Kaya kapiling natin ngayon sa pagbisita sa Quezon City ang ating mga leader ng peace and order: nandiyan si Secretary Puno ng DILG; nandiyan si Chairman Bayani Fernando ng MMFA; nandiyan si Acting Secretary ng Justice, Agnes Devanadera; nandiyan ang Chief ng PNP, si Oscar Calderon; nandiyan ang namumuno ng Jail Management, si General Lamazares; at dahil parating pinag-uusapan natin kung ano ang biyaya ng mga programa natin para sa mahihirap nandyan ang ating Lead Convenor ng National Anti-Poverty Commission, si Secretary Ding Panganiban.

Sa paglaban sa krimen at pagpapairal ng batas at kaayusan, napakahalaga ang pagtutulungan ng mga pamahalaang lokal, pambansang kapulisan at taong- bayan. Dapat nating ipanatag ang kalooban ng mga pamilyang Pilipino tuwing lalabas sa tahanan. Mabuti na lamang at nakamit na naman ng BIR at Customs ang kanilang mga target para sa buwang Agosto. Congratulations sa kanila!

Kaya naman sa 2008 tataas ng mahigit eight billion pesos ang budget para sa public order and safety, mula 64.9 billion ngayong taon tungo sa 73.3 billion sa 2008, kung ipapasa nila Annie Susano ang ating budget. Kasama rito ang one billion pesos para sa pagpalakas ng PNP, kasama ang pagbili ng sasakyan at armas, pagkuha ng bagong tauhan, at pagbili ng mga makabagong kagamitan at pagsisiyasat.

Palapit na tayo sa ating target na magtalaga ng isang pulis bawat limangdaang katao pagsapit ng 2010. Sa dalawampung libong pulis na nadagdagan ngayong taon, may isang pulis na tayo para sa 620 na katao. Lalo pa dadami ang pulis sa susunod na taon, at may 500 pang patrol car na bibilhin. Pero dito sa Quezon City, salamat kay Mayor Belmonte at ang Quezon City ang pinakamaraming mga dino-donate na mga police car para hindi na lahat nakakarga sa national government. Kaya kanina doon sa likod natin nandiyan may mga bagong police car at motorsiklo na lumilibot sa mga barangay, limang barangay natin dito, pero meron din tayong dalang bagong multicab galing sa PAGCOR para makalibot naman dito sa station 4 na sinasakupan nitong mga limang barangay.

Sa paglaki ng kaban ng bayan dahil sa reporma sa buwis, nagiging mas panatag din ang sambayanan dahil sa mas malakas at makabagong Philippine National Police. Kaya ngayon, punta tayo kay Undersecretary Mel Rosales na tutulong kay Secretary Ronnie Puno ipapaliwanang sa atin ang budget ng peace and order related agencies para sa 2008. Budget presentation na rin ito para kay Congresswoman Annie Susano.

* * *

Closing statement:

Unti-unti nang naiibsan ang kapayapaan sa ating kapaligiran. Kasama rito ang tiwalang naibabalik na sa ating pulisya at militar.

Sa ikalawang quarter ng taon, lumago ng 7.5 percent ang ating ekonomiya, pinakamabilis sa dalawang dekada. Sabi nila aabot pa ito sa mahihirap. Kung hindi tayo aangat ng 7.5 percent walang aabot sa mahihirap, kaya yan ang unang kondisyon. It may not be a sufficient condition but it's a necessary condition para makapaggastos tayo para sa mahihirap. Isa rin itong bunga ng mas panatag na lipunan at ligtas na lansangan.

At sa bisa ng lumalagong ekonomiya at pondo ng gobyerno, lalo nating mapopondohan ang peace and order, upang mas lalong mapanatag ang sambayanan, lalo na't nakakamit na ng BIR at Customs ang kanilang target.

Kaya maraming salamat po sa inyong lahat. At sana tayo ay sama-sama para sa livelihood at para sa kapayapaan.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statement during a Barangay Visit and Pulong Bayan with Officials of Quezon City District 2 Barangays, namely: Sauyo, Gulod, Talipapa, Bagbag and San Bartolome. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412144219/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2190&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on her visit to Australia to attend the 15th APEC Leaders' Meeting

Departure Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On her visit to Australia to attend the 15th APEC Leaders' Meeting

[Released on September 6, 2007]

I leave today for Sydney, Australia to join other heads of economies in the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Leaders' Meeting on September 8-9.

Pero bago ako umalis, ibig nating ipanatag ang loob ng mga pamilyang naapektuhan ng pagka-antala ng ani ng palay dahil sa tagtuyot sa Luzon.

Kumikilos na ang pamahalaan upang pigilan ang pagtaas ng presyo ng bigas, at ang kakulangan sa mga palengke ng bigas sa pangmasang halaga na P18 kada kilo.

Sa pulong ng Gabinete noong Martes, inatasan na natin ang Kagawaran ng Pagsasaka at ang National Food Authority na bilisan ang pagdadala ng bigas sa mga pamilihan kung saan tumataas ang presyo at walang mabiling bigas ng NFA sa halagang P18 isang kilo.

Inutusan natin si Secretary Arthur Yap na dagliang hakutin ang bigas na sagana sa Bisaya at Mindanao, at dalhin ito sa Metro Manila. Bukod dito, kukuha ang NFA sa kanilang mga bodega upang makapagbigay ng mahigit sa 30% ng bigas sa Kamaynilaan.

Titiyakin nating sapat at abot-kaya ang bigas para sa taong-bayan, at tututukan natin ito kahit na nasa APEC meeting ako.

At a time of uncertainty in the world, APEC remains a central pillar of global engagement and dialogue. We believe in strong global engagement for our country and our people to grow our economy, ensure peace and security and lift our nation out of poverty.

APEC presents another opportunity to engage allies in economic, political and security issues at a time when the world needs closer cooperation. We hope to see greater regional economic integration made possible with all twenty-one APEC economies agreeing to pursue the path of trade liberalization and a discussion on how the APEC can work together to address the global challenges of climate change through a renewed framework for cooperation as a follow up to the Kyoto Protocol.

Figuratively speaking, the more bridges we build, the more people can cross to new lands and new ideas. We must be open to the world and peoples and places other than our own. That is what the 21st century will be about. That is why APEC plays such a large role for the Philippines – it is one of the most important bridges we can build and cross together. We want the Philippines actively engaged in local, regional and global affairs because that is the future.

We believe in the power of the global trading system to alleviate poverty and modernize nations through market forces. That does not mean we believe that countries like the Philippines are ready to compete head-to-head today in every sector, but it does mean we cannot afford to be afraid of globalization. Poverty alleviation is the number one most important part of our agenda and our vision to lift the Philippines into modernized country status in 20 years. And the APEC, along with the ASEAN and other trading agreements, provides the opportunity for nations to work together to lift up our poor, not just in the Philippines but all over the world.

We will also be meeting with business leaders as well as our countrymen in Australia and we will bring to them the good news about our country. We have been focused like a laser beam on the economy. Our plan is bearing results: lower inflation, higher revenues, spectacular growth, robust stock market, fiscal discipline and so much more. Job creation is significant – six million jobs since I have been President. APEC is part of our economic vision and thus is central to our strategic plan for the nation.

Sumusulong ang bayan, salamat sa ating sikap, reporma at pagkakaisa.

Mabuhay ang Pilipinas!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Departure Statement on Her Visit to Australia to Attend the 15th APEC Leaders' Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412144210/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2188&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Signing of the Executive Order on Generating Investments in Geothermal Areas

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Signing of the Executive Order on Generating Investments in Geothermal Areas

[Delivered in Kidapawan City, North Cotabato, September 10, 2007]

Gi-abi-bi ko si Pastor Quiboloy ug ang tanan nga mga apil sa Kingdom of Jesus Christ, the Name Above Every Name, ni-ining inyong anibersaryo. Gapasalamat ako sa oportunidad aron maka-apil sa inyong International Kingdom Leaders Convention dinhi sa syudad sa Davao.

Nagtipon kita sa ngalan sa kalinaw, pangahiusa ug rekonsilasyon, kay kini ang labing kinahanglan karon. Salamat sa kanunay ninyong suporta ug pag-ampo alang sa padayon ng kaayuhan sa atong nasod ug katawhan.

This morning we arrived from the APEC Summit which presented another opportunity to engage allies in economic, political and security issues at a time when the world needs closer cooperation: the US on our paradigm for peace in Mindanao using both soft and hard power, China on our Comprehensive Economic Cooperation, Japan and Brunei on the international team monitoring the ceasefire in Mindanao, Malaysia on our peace process with the MILF, Indonesia and New Zealand on our joint projects against the avian flu.

At the Summit meetings, we saw greater regional economic integration made possible with all twenty-one APEC economies agreeing to pursue the path of trade liberalization and a declaration on how the APEC can work together to address the global challenges of climate change through the UN renewed framework for cooperation.

We embrace sustainable development. We have move forward with an aggressive effort to create a Green Philippines, including reducing reliance on fossil fuels with our biofuels, wind and solar efforts and geothermal programs.

We take this opportunity of being in Davao City, the regional center near the geothermal field of Mount Apo, to sign an Executive Order to launch GIGA – G – I – G – A – Generating Investments in Geothermal Areas.

Kining E.O. usa ka dakong hakbang aron mopaspas pa ang pag-usbaw sa mga lunsod nga du-ol sa mga geothermal sites sa PNOC (Philippine National Oil Company).

Kining E.O. gahangyo sa mga local nga pamunuan o LGUs nga magpatindog ug economic zones sa mga lungsod na malapit sa mga planta ng enerhiya ng PNOC, aron labaw pa silang maka-bentaha sa ilahang royalties nga ginagamit nila sa pag-subsidize sa electric bill sa ilahang mga konstituente.

The acronym GIGA connotes bigness, which describes our geothermal fields as well as the potential in incubating businesses near them. What should lure investors to set up shop near geothermal plants is the same reason that led government to put in billions (of pesos) to build them; the availability of cheap and clean energy. It will be cheap because in these areas local governments have large bank accounts from geothermal project royalties that they use to subsidize the electric bill of their constituents.

But geothermal plants need not to only transform steam to power. They can also be harnessed to channel steam to jobs. We can do this by convincing investors to take advantage of cheap power in communities hosting geothermal plants. Cheap power by itself is already a powerful draw but we will make it more irresistible by throwing in other fiscal incentives which an ecozone is allowed to grant. Thus if we build them, they will come. The synergy of geothermal power and ecozones will power up progress.

So to the host communities, I urge you: full steam ahead.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Statement during the Signing of the Executive Order on Generating Investments in Geothermal Areas. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412143558/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2180&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the NEDA Board Meeting

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During the NEDA Board Meeting

[Delivered at the Malacañang Aguinaldo State Dining Room, September 18, 2007]

Mga kababayan, sa pagsulong ng ekonomiya at pag-angat ng kabuhayan, kailangan nating isulong ang pamumuhunan, lalo na sa imprastraktura at mga serbisyong bayan na lalong aakit ng investment at lilikha ng trabaho. Kaya naman pinulong natin ngayon ang neda board upang aprobahan at madaliin ang mga proyektong napakahalaga sa kaunlaran, kabilang ang expressway at tren, upang bumilis ang daloy ng tao at produkto sa kamaynilaan.

Kasama rin ng ating pagsusulong ng kaunlaran, kailangang pagtibayin ng pag-iral ng batas at panatag na politika. Ito ang hanap ng bawat investor. Nakita nila ito sa payapang pagtanggap ng bayan sa hatol ng sandiganbayan. Ngayon, batas din ang ating susundin sa paglutas ng iba pang usaping kaharap natin.

Iniaatas ko kay Secretary Mendoza ng DOTC na humarap at magpaliwanag sa Korte Suprema hinggil sa kaso ng National Broadband Network. Walang pamumulitika at batay sa ebidensiya ang mga proseso ng hukuman. Doon matitimbang nang wasto kung ayon sa batas at kapakanan ng bayan ang kasunduan.

Handa ring tumulong ang pamahalaan sa pagsisiyasat ng ombudsman sa mga paratang ng katiwalian na nakasampa na roon.

Sa demokrasya, natural lang ang magkatalong pananaw at posisyon. Ang mahalaga, may mga hukuman at proseso ng batas upang magdesisyon sa anumang di pagkakasundo sa payapang paraan ayon sa hustisya at ebidensiya nang walang pamumulitika.

Mahalaga rin sa pag-akit ng kapital at pag-unlad ng lahat ng mamamayan ang kapayapaan. Dapat wakasan ang mga atake at pangingikil sa mga negosyong nagbibigay ng trabaho at serbisyo sa taong bayan. Inaatasan ko ang ating sandatahang lakas na pag-ibayuhin ang depensa sa mga paninira at pagpaslang ng mga kaaway ng bayan. Sa pakikibakang ito ng ating mga kawal, marapat igalang ang kanilang pamunuan at mga lihim militar, na napakahalaga sa pagtatanggol ng ating bansa.

Samantala, kailangang isulong ang pagkilos ng mga gobyerno at pamayanang lokal upang magpundar ng kapayapaan sa mga lalawigan, sa ilalim ng amnestiya at pagbabalik-loob ng mga dating rebelde. Sa hangarin nating ito, nananawagan tayo sa kongreso na bigyan ng agarang aksiyon ang ating proklamasyon ng amnestiya.

Mga kababayan, sumusulong na ang bansa sa landas ng progreso, katatagan, pag-iral ng batas, at pagtingala ng sandaigdigan. Pag-ibayuhin nating lahat ang mga layuning ito, pag-unlad, serbisyong bayan, at katatagan ng bansa sa mapayapa at demokratikong paglutas ng mga suliranin alinsunod sa batas.

Maraming salamat at mabuhay ang demokrasya at pag-iral ng batas sa ating bansa.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the NEDA Board Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412143048/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2166&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during a visit to District 1 Quezon City Barangays and Pulong Bayan on Food Terminal/Tindahan Natin and the Resumption of the Food-for-School Program in NCR

Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During a Visit to District 1 Quezon City Barangays and Pulong Bayan on Food Terminal/Tindahan Natin and the Resumption of the Food-for-School Program in NCR

[Delivered at the Project 6 Elementary School, Road 2 cor. Road 7, Quezon City, September 21, 2007]

Yan ang tindahan natin outlets, so yung Food-For-School at Tindahan Natin ang dalawa sa pangunahing sandata ng ating administrasyon laban sa kahirapan at kagutuman. Sa pamamagitan nito, bumaba ang hunger incidence rate ng 14.7 percent ngayong second quarter mula sa dating 19 percent noong first quarter.

Naglaan na ng 2.75 bilyong piso ang pamahalaan ngayong taon at halos 3.3 bilyong piso sa 2008 upang maisakatuparan ang pagpapakain sa mga pamilya ng ating mga maliliit na batang pumapasok sa eskwela. Kaya ito, yung kanina pinakita natin yung mga bata pagpasok nila binibigyan sila ng bigas para maiuwi sila. Umaabot na sa 1.15 milyong mga maliliit na bata ang nakinabang sa Food- For-School programs na ginagawa ng Department of Health, Department of Education, Department of Social Welfare and Development at National Food Authority.

Pero dito sa Quezon City dahil nung unang upo ni Mayor Belmonte ay gumawa na siya ng fiscal reforms kaya tuloy maraming pera ang Quezon City sa ibabaw ng mga bigas na binibigay natin sa mga bata pag pumapasok sila ay kanina kung may nakakita yung television dinaanan natin yung kanilang school feeding program. At sabi nga ni Mayor Belmonte ay gusto niya lahat ng eskwelahan sa Quezon City na public school maging mayaman ang barangay o mahirap o middle-class meron kayong Food-For-School program... Ah, meron kayong school feeding program, di ba, Sonny?

Umaabot na rin sa 6,583 tindahan natin outlets sa loob ng 52 na mahihirap na probinsya ang naipapatayo dito sa Pilipinas. Naglaan ang pamahalaan ng 181 milyong piso para sa bahagi ng hunger mitigation program na ito. At karagdagang 200 pa ang itatayo sa Metro Manila sa taong ito dahil ang karamihan — ito ang ating irony — ang Metro Manila ang pinakamayamang rehiyon nagkaroon dito ng napakaraming nagugutom. Tapos meron naman tayong 300 tindahan natin sa ating mga priority poor provinces.

Nagpupugay ako sa mga opisyal nating nagmamalasakit dito. Kasama natin ang ilan sa ating cabinet officials at officials ng Quezon City, nagpasalamat na ako kay Mayor Belmonte at saka kay Congressman Crisologo. Narito rin ang ating mga konsehala, narito rin yung ilang mga barangay captain sa isa namang talakayan dito sa project 6 elementary school.

Kaya magsimula tayo sa pagpapaliwanag ng budget sa darating na taon para dito sa... Unahin natin yung Tindahan Natin program. Sige, pwede ba, Arty? Ito si Secretary Yap para magpapaliwanag ng Tindahan Natin program. Ayun ang nakalagay sa background: “Bigas at Noodles sa Halagang Abot-kaya” kasi yan ang pinaka dinadala natin sa Tindahan Natin program.

* * *

Closing statement:

So, ang ganda naman nung ating souvenir video nung nandito tayo nung may dengue. So at least naayos na yung problema ninyo ng dengue at tuloy-tuloy na binabantayan na natin dito. In fact, dengue is one of the biggest killers. Noon natatakot ang tao sa SARS pero dengue is a bigger killer. Yung anak ko si Luli nagkaroon ng dengue nung 4 years old siya eh. At kaya tuloy-tuloy ang ating pagsusubaybay.

Kaya eto ang mga nakikita nating mga commonality sa mga barangay dito sa Quezon City. Yung isa sa mga depressed areas siyempre kailangan ng murang pagkain kaya meron tayong Food-For-School at saka meron tayong Tindahan Natin. At sa kabuuan naman ng Quezon City or maraming lugar sa Quezon City, hindi naman lahat, pero sa banda rito sa distrito ni Congressman Crisologo ay yung problema ng baha. Gagastusin ng administrasyon dito at naidadala sa mga mas mahihirap na probinsya.

Kaya muli maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. Maraming salamat, Sonny; maraming salamat, Bingbong; mga kapitan; chairman; mga konsehala.

At gusto ko lang ulitin, layunin ng ating administrasyon na labanan ang problema sa kahirapan, alagaan ang kalusugan at nutrisyon sa ating bansa, kaya naglunsad tayo ng mga programang makatutulong sa ating mamamayan na makakain ng masustansiya at murang pagkain.

Ang Food-For-School program ay patuloy na naghahatid ng pagpapakain sa mga pamilya ng ating mga maliliit na batang pumapasok sa eskwela upang hindi magutom ang kanilang pamilya. Antabayan po niyo sila sa mga pinakamahirap na lalawigan sa ating bansa.

Murang halaga na bigas at noodles naman ang pinakahatid ng Tindahan Natin outlets. Iniimbata ang mga gipit na mamimili na magsadya sa pinakamalapit na tindahan natin kaakibat ng ating pamahalaan at ilang lokal na government units at pribadong sektor sa pagsasakatuparan ng tindahan natin.

Kaya maraming-maraming salamat po muli sa mga naging kapiling natin ngayon or hindi naging kapiling kundi naging host natin ngayon dahil tayo ang nagbisita sa kanilang lugar na walang humpay ang pagsusuporta sa mga programa ng ating administrasyon.

Huwag kayong magsasawa sa pagtunghay ng pulong bayan. Ito po si Pangulong Gloria, salamat, magkita tayo muli sa susunod na talakayan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Visit to District 1 Quezon City Barangays and Pulong Bayan on Food Terminal/Tindahan Natin and the Resumption of the Food-for-School Program in NCR. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412142936/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2156&Itemid=38

Departure Statement: President Arroyo on her visit to New York to attend the United Nations General Assembly

Departure Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On Her Visit to New York to attend the United Nations General Assembly

[Released on September 25, 2007]

Tonight we leave for New York to deliver our Country Report to the United Nations General Assembly, to actively participate in two international fora, to meet with US business leaders with present and potential investment in the Philippines, and to meet our kababayans in New York and environs. All these meetings are in pursuit of our policy of active global engagement.

In all these fora, I will bring to the our international audience and stakeholders the very important message that is threatened to be drowned by the chronic political noise.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability with some of the strongest macroeconomic fundamentals in 20 years. We have aimed high and have met the challenge: six years ago, no one thought we could get more revenues, cut down on tax cheats, strengthen the peso and move the stock market. And no one thought I could bring our budget into balance, as we did last month, prepay our debts and raise employment, but we have.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent economic growth and stability. Investments are pouring in, the peso is strong, our stock market has reached historic heights and we have created 6 million jobs in six years. And the world is taking notice: I believe the Philippines offers one of the best values in Asia for domestic and foreign investors.

The surge of investments has been anchored by the billion dollar investments I the Philippines of several major international companies, including Texas Instruments, Korea's Hanjin and Japan's Marubeni and Tokyo Electric and lately, America's AES. This is happening across the board in a number of industries. We are working to ensure this will be sustained. We are committed to consolidating the gains in new revenue by making long overdue investments in human and physical infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, healthcare and training along with billions in new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

We take great pride in the discipline of our administration to focus on the economy and our overall economic health. I am personally proud of the fact that external debt is being prepaid at a rapid clip, optimistic that we will balance the budget in 2008, two years ahead of schedule, and that we are making sure to use the gains to invest in vital social and economic needs.

As an economist, I believe in the power of the global trading system to alleviate poverty and modernize nations through market forces. This does not mean that we believe that countries like the Philippines are ready to compete head-to-head today in every sector, but it does mean that we cannot afford to be afraid of globalization.

We have been aggressive in seeking multilateral and bilateral trade relations.

We have taken a personal and hands-on role in trying to move the Doha Round forward because I believe it is good for the Philippines. And I believe my faith in the marketplace both at home and abroad has been a boon to the Philippine economy.

Mabuhay. God bless the Philippines.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Departure Statement on Her Visit to New York to attend the United Nations General Assembly. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412142042/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2146&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint Pro-Performance Steering Committee and GPPB Procurement Transparency Board Meeting

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Joint Pro-Performance Steering Committee and GPPB Procurement Transparency Board Meeting

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, September 25, 2007]

Good afternoon.

I'd like to call this joint pro-performance steering committee and GPPB Procurement Transparency Board Meeting to order.

Please sit down while I give my opening statement.

We have suspended the National Broadband and Cyber Education projects in response to political criticisms.

When we learned of alleged bribery attempt in connection with the broadband project, we instructed that the matter be discreetly investigated. The results of the investigation were reported as uncorroborated.

We proceeded with the preliminary processes regarding the project because we need to keep our good relations with china, even as we consulted with our highest authorities about a possible deferment. We announced the deferment as soon as they indicated that they will try to understand our predicament.

China is the fastest growing country in the world and in the region. We see its rise as a significant opportunity for the Philippines. Our overall relations with china have become more confident, mature and comprehensive, punctuated with substantial and important projects aimed at deepening exchanges in a number of areas, including trade and official development assistance. China is currently our third largest trading partner with whom we have had a substantial trade surplus since 2002. Our framework agreement on expanding and deepening bilateral economic and trade cooperation is expected to further enhance bilateral merchandise trade with china.

I'm creating a special panel to oversee projects under the China Official Development Assistance Program. The China projects oversight panel shall be headed by Secretary Peter Favila as the overall coordinator of our framework agreement with China; with Secretary Rolando Andaya as the chairman of the Government Procurement Policy Board; Secretary Cerge Remonde as chairman of the Pro-Performance Group; a church leader whom we shall invite; and a representative of the union of local authorities as members.

Even as we defer the two China projects, this should not be construed as a precedent for every disgruntled project proponent and his backers to undermine undertakings that comply with the law and benefit the nation. All branches of government must ensure that vested interests do not exploit our democracy to block our development.

We also assure our hardworking, competent civil servants planning and doing the technical work that we appreciate their laudable work. Under our separation of powers, the executive shall continue to invest in our land and our people, subject to budgets and laws enacted by congress and rulings handed down by the courts.

In my inaugural address last 2004, I said: "Hangad kong makapasok sa eskuwela ang bawa't bata, may sapat na lugar sa silid-aralan at may computer sa bawat paaralan." because distance-learning is part of our ten-point program. I also shared the vision that by 2010 the network digital infrastructure on which our government had embarked will have linked the entire country.

The suspension of the said projects has created a gap in these aspects of our ten-point agenda. Government telecom savings of three billion pesos a year from broadband may not be forthcoming, slashing that much from funds for social services. And world-class ICT might no longer reach 4th to 6th class municipalities and the least-endowed schools.

For this reason, I have asked Secretary Mendoza to discuss with the private telecom companies how government can cut its phone, fax and online expenses, so we can spend more on programs and projects.

The state remains committed to making long-overdue investments in our country and our people.

So, thank you. And I'd like to ask now Agnes Devanadera to lead our opening prayer.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Statement during the Joint Pro-Performance Steering Committee and GPPB Procurement Transparency Board Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141802/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2153&Itemid=38

Opening/Closing Statements: President Arroyo during a Barangay Visit and Pulong Bayan with Officials of Six Barangays of District 1 and 2 of Valenzuela City Opening/Closing Statements of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Barangay Visit and Pulong Bayan with Officials of Six Barangays of District 1 and 2 of Valenzuela City

[Delivered at the Covered area, Marulas Central Elementary School, Valenzuela City, Metro Manila, October 01, 2007]

Magandang araw sa inyong lahat.

Narito tayo ngayon sa Lungsod ng Valenzuela sa Barangay ng Marulas upang ating masaksihan ang pagtugon sa problema ng malinis na tubig.

Isa sa ating hangarin ay magkaroon nang malinis na tubig ang lahat ng bayan sa Pilipinas. Sa kamaynilaan naman ang mga lungsod ay kasinlaki ng probinsya at ang mga barangay ay kasinlaki ng bayan. Kaya hangarin nating may tubig sa lahat ng barangay sa Kamaynilaan.

Noong umupo ang inyong lingkod bilang pangulo, mayroon tayong problemang namana dahil yung may-ari ng concession ng tubig, ang Maynilad ay hindi napatupad yung kaniyang pangakong paglalagyan ng tubig. Kaya kinailangan binawi ng pamahalaan ang concession at pagkatapos binenta muli sa napakagandang bidding. Ngayon ang maynilad sa ilalim ng bagong may-ari ay tinutupad na ang kaniyang mga pangako.

Sa ating programa ng imprastraktura, hindi lahat ay tayo ng pamahalaan. Ang tubig sa kamaynilaan, dahil nababawi naman ang puhunan, ay ginagawa ng pribadong sektor. Ngunit mayroon ding mga gastos ang pamahalaan ukol sa tubig. Itong mga bagay and pag-uusapan nating ngayon. At tayo ay nagpapasalamat kay Mayor Sherwin Gatchalian sa kanyang pag host sa atin itong araw na ito, mayor ng Valenzuela. At itong Marulas ay distrito ni Maggy, Congressman Maggy Guinigundo. Maraming salamat Maggy na tinatanggap niyo kami sa inyong distrito. Narito rin yung congressman doon sa kabilang distrito naman, si Congressman Rex Gatchalian. Magandang hapon at narito ang mga barangay captain ng Marulas at iba pang mga malalapit na barangay. Mamaya ay maririnig niyo ang kanilang tinig at bilang mga kasama dito na makikipag-usap... Mag-uusap tungkol sa ating... Una yung tubig tapos yung ibang kung ano pang problema ng mga barangay, ay siguro bigyan natin nang upuan dito sa harap si Secretary Panganiban at saka si Mr. Babes Aingson ng Maynilad sa harap. Bigyan ng upuan sa harap. Okay.

Narito rin si Secretary Jun Ebdane dahil ang mwss ay nasa ilalim ng DPWH at siyempre narito si Chairman Bayani Fernando dahil Valenzuela ay bahagi ng Metro Manila. At si Secretary Panganiban naman ang nangunguna ng National Anti-Poverty Commission na sinusubaybayan at ino-oversee lahat ng proyektong makamahirap, at kasama nga rin dito yung tubig.

So, umpisahan natin kay Secretary Jun Ebdane na siguro tutulungan siya mamaya ni MWSS Deputy, si Macra Cruz. Ano ang nilalaang badyet nila Congressmen Guinigundo at saka Congressman Gatchalian para sa tubig sa darating na taon?

* * *

Closing statement:

So, yung distrito pala ni Maggy yun ang koneksiyon talaga between C-5 and Northrail. Yung distrito naman ni Rex yun ang Polo, yun ang puto, di ba? Yun ang dating bahagi ng Bulacan. Ayun, Polo, Bulacan. At silang dalawang bayan ay naging isang malaking siyudad, yung lungsod nga kung saan mayor si Sherwin Gatchalian. Kaya maraming salamat sa inyong pag-host sa amin.

At nakita natin ang problema sa Valenzuela — tubig. Either kulang ang tubig or sobra ang tubig kaya binabaha, kaya teknolohiya ang kailangan natin gamitin para yung sobra ay nawawala at yung kulang ay nagkakaroon.

Ang pagpahatid ng malinis na tubig sa bayan ng bansa at bawat barangay ng kamaynilaan ay makakatulong sa pagangat ng antas ng buhay ng ating mamamayan. Hindi lamang ito magbibigay ng proteksiyon sa ating mga kalusugan nguni't makapagdudulot din ito ng kaaya-ayang kapaligiran at magiging daan sa paghahanapbuhay. Biro niyo yung Tullahan River pala sinabi, kapitan, na dirtiest river on record. Siguro ngayon hindi na ganun. Hindi na ganun at lalo na pag natapos yung ating flood control project ng Camanava lalo nang gaganda.

For a booming city like Valenzuela, a city filled with vision, dream and hope, hindi maaaring pabayaang ng ating pamahalaan na di magkaroon ng sapat na supply ng serbisyo ng malinis na tubig ang mga barangay dito at sa iba pang lugar sa Metro Manila.

Kaya maraming salamat muli sa inyong pagtitiwala sa ating mga nakasama sa araw na ito, ang ating naging katuwang sa tubig. Maraming salamat din kay Mayor Sherwin Gatchalian, kay Congressman Maggy Guinigundo kung saang distrito tayo ngayon, si Congressman Rex Gatchalian, ang ating mga kapitan, presidente ng Maynilad si Babes Singson, ang ating mga Cabinet members: si Jun Ebdane, si Bayani Fernando at saka si Ding Panganiban, at lahat ng ating mga officials ng pamahalaan na narito ngayon.

Sa inyong lahat maraming salamat. Dahil dito sa ginagawa ng Maynilad na kung saan naibenta natin yung kalugiluging company noon hindi na magiging tuyo ang gripo ng maraming barangay ng kamaynilaan at bayan ng Pilipinas. Handa nating punan ang inyong mga balde, ang inyong mga pangangailangan sa tubig. At ngayon naman pag natapos yung ating Camanava Flood Control Project handa rin nating sabihin na yung tubig ay hindi na masasayang na magbibigay nang lubog at kasakitan at hindi lang yun kung minsan pa kamatayan.

Kaya maraming salamat sa lahat nang nagsisikap na ang tubig ay maglilingkod sa taong-bayan at hindi makakapinsala.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening/Closing Statements during a Barangay Visit and Pulong Bayan with Officials of Six Barangays of District 1 and 2 of Valenzuela City. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141524/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2246&Itemid=38

Departure Statement: President Arroyo on Her Visits to China and India

Departure Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On Her Visits to China and India

[Released on October 2, 2007]

Today, we leave for Shanghai on the first leg of a two-nation swing that will take us to China and India, two of the fastest growing countries in the region and in the world. Our visits underscore our country's continuing commitment to be regionally and globally engaged, politically, economically and diplomatically.

While in China, I will have bilateral meetings with President Hu Jintao, under whose leadership our overall relations have grown to become more confident, mature and comprehensive, punctuated with substantial and important projects aimed at deepening exchanges in a number of areas, including trade and investment. China is currently our third largest trading partner with whom we have had a substantial trade surplus since 2002 and our Framework Agreement on Expanding and Deepening Bilateral Economic and Trade Cooperation is expected to further enhance bilateral merchandise trade with China.

While in Shanghai, I shall also have the opportunity to keynote the Philippine Business and Investment Forum, organized by the Council for the Promotion of International Trade and the Shanghai Overseas Chinese Chamber of Commerce.

We will join President Hu in the opening ceremonies of the Special Olympics. Philippine participation in this year's Special Olympics is organized and coordinated by the Special Olympics Philippines headed by its current President Mariano Ong Inductivo.

The Philippine delegation this year will be the largest so far and will include 52 athletes who will participate in nine events: basketball, football, badminton, gymnastics, power lifting, athletics, aquatics, table tennis, and soccer.

Afterwards, I shall speak at the Global Policy Summit on the Well-being of People with Intellectual Disabilities, a gathering of leaders from government, academia, health care, disability; business, philanthropy, sports, to discuss challenges and opportunities for full inclusion of people with intellectual disabilities.

Following the inauguration of the Filipino joint venture at the container terminal in Shandong, we will be flying to India on a State Visit. We look forward to meeting with President Pratibha Patil, the first female President of India, Prime Minister Manmohan Singh, their party Chairperson Sonia Gandhi and other Indian political leaders.

India currently supplies our huge demand for half-priced medicine. It is the pioneer in Business Process Outsourcing, the fastest rising industry in the Philippines.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Departure Statement on Her Visits to China and India. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141238/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2244&Itemid=38

Arrival Statement: President Arroyo after Official visit to China and India

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

After her Official visit to China and India

[Delivered at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport, Pasay City, October 6, 2007]

Good evening, everyone.

I'd like to report that in our visit to China, we followed up large investment prospects coming from the fastest growing economy in the world, networked for the well-being of persons with intellectual disabilities and addressed the fate of concessional China loans for the infrastructure our country needs.

In our visit to India, we addressed urgent concerns over the situation in Myanmar and put the Philippines on the radar screen of the fourth largest economy in the world.

China's hosting of the Special Olympics world games and the global policy summit on the well-being of persons with intellectual disabilities gave us the opportunity to network for that sector of our society. Doctor Timothy Kennedy Shriver, Chairman of Special Olympics, offered to raise foundation money to support special education for children with intellectual disabilities. We accepted his offer with a counterpart to build the school buildings to house the special education programs.

And upon the recommendation of the Philippine NGOs, who were there in the special summit and the special games, the ones concerned with intellectual disabilities, we are making the following reforms in the administration of the welfare of the disabled: we are placing the Council for the Welfare of the Disabled under the Office of the President; appointing a representative nominated by the private sector, namely, Mrs. Lovely Romulo, as Chair; and appointing a person with disability, Mr. Mateo Lee, as Executive Director. However, the Secretary of the Department of Social Welfare and Development, shall continue to oversee the council in my behalf, even though it's already part of the Office of the President. The Chief Presidential Legal Counsel and the Presidential Management Staff shall prepare the appropriate documentation to effect these changes.

Shanghai was our first of four stops, the only stop in China. It is the center of commerce of China which is the fastest growing economy in the world. Shanghai has been experiencing double-digit growth for 15 years and it is home to some of the wealthiest individual businessmen in China. We are nurturing concrete investment prospects from some of them. We will make the appropriate announcements when their plans are ready for disclosure.

We believe we have further strengthened our robust ties with China by clarifying recent developments related to the massive Chinese assistance for our infrastructure program. We are grateful that China remains committed to our confident, mature and comprehensive relations. We have asked for China's understanding on our decision not to continue the national broadband network project and they gave their understanding. The china projects oversight panel headed by Peter Favila, and which includes the private sector, should now begin working out procedures to protect the cyber education project from unnecessary controversy, so that world-class ICT would reach 4th to 6th class municipalities and least-endowed schools.

We're disappointed that with the broadband not being continued, telecom savings of three billion pesos a year from broadband may not be forthcoming. So we reiterate our instruction to Secretary Leandro Mendoza to discuss with private telecommunication companies how government can cut its phone, fax and online expenses, so we can spend more on programs and projects. And once again, we urge the private telecommunications companies to fill the gaps in telecommunication facilities and services, especially in depressed areas. Whether government or the private sector, we must invest in digital infrastructure to link the entire country all the way to the poorest villages.

Myanmar or Burma used to be part of India. And India has become one of Asia's most robust democracies. And so when we were in India, a lot of the discussions with the top officials was on Myanmar. We encouraged New Delhi on their urging the rulers in Yangon toward dialogue with the democratic groups in the country, we carried this message as part of the global community of persons who see tolerance, restraint and consensus-building as the indispensable first steps toward a great future for Myanmar and its people.

We believe we have increased the economic potential of our ties with India. Our visit to Mumbai was highlighted by the commitment of Global Steel of Mittal to invest 1.6 billion dollars to build an integrated steel mill in Iligan City. Also leading Bollywood Producer Aditya Taj Kapoor, Raj Kapoor and two other producers have decided to film a movie and move their respective movies using the Philippines as location site. And I understand a mission will be coming this November.

We encourage the Iligan City government to provide a welcoming climate for the integrated steel mill, the way that Olongapo and Zambales governments provided a very welcoming climate for the billion-dollar Hanjin investment in Subic and the way that Angeles City and Pampanga province provided a very welcoming climate for the billion-dollar Texas Instruments investment in Clark. Hanjin and Texas instruments have reciprocated the very welcoming environment when they set up their business by providing thousands of jobs in their investment locations and we expect the steel mill will also provide about as many jobs at least or even more than Texas Instruments for the people of Iligan City and Lanao Del Norte.

Our massive spending on health care includes importing pharmaceuticals from India as part of our program to cut in half the price of medicines commonly bought by the poor. The main importer of medicines from India is the government-owned Philippine International Trading Corporation. But we wanted to stress that PITC need not be the exclusive agent. That is why we invited private drugstore owners, traders and local governments interested in acquiring affordable medicine to our state visit so that they can do business directly with Indian corporations.

When we were in India, we learned that the Senate passed their version on second reading, and that the House already reported out their version of the bill. Congressman Tony Alvarez, Chairman of the House Committee on Trade and Industry, is right. We can make Botika ng Barangays or BnBs the fastest growing drugstore chain in the country by increasing by 50 percent its branch expansion fund of P98 million for 2008 to a 150 million pesos. That augmentation would increase the number of Botika outlets to be established next year to 6,000 from the planned 3,913. If this target will be met, there will be 13,514 branches by the end of 2008. The common man's access to quality affordable medicine can only be made possible if Botika ng Barangays are spread throughout the land.

We should be putting up more of these community-owned pharmacies in anticipation of the passage of the affordable medicines bill and the participation of the private sector and local government units in the pharmaceutical trade with India. Drugs must not only be more affordable, they must be accessible. And there is no better way to guarantee the latter than by letting the people themselves own and run their own pharmacies.

The Botika ng Barangay is just one in the constellation of government dispensaries. There is the privately-owned but state-supplied Botika ng Bayan, of which there are 1,481 outlets at present. There are drugstores run by cooperatives. Some are in the military and the police commissary. Let us also clarify that the budget for Botika ng Bayan expansion, which we amended to P150 million is only a part of the total medicine purchase budget for next year. Just a part because there is PITC and PCSO, etc.. and only a part of the total medicine purchase budget for next year. So if we increase to 150 million, that will be an additional P52 million, that will be good for 2,000 branches.

So I'm now issuing the following directives which will accelerate the roll-out and widen the reach of this very vital health delivery mechanism:

Number one, to the extent allowed by law, the procurement service of the DBM shall sell PITC pharma products in its depots and commissaries. It shall serve as a drug central that will serve as a distribution point of cheap medicines. Henceforth, its inventory shall now include pharmaceuticals.

Number two, a variant of the Botika ng Barangay shall be set up in state universities and colleges or SUCs to be called Botika ng Pamantasan or BnP. This will allow students to buy medicines not only for themselves but for family members left at home. Ang isang batang pumapasok sa isang SUC ay maaaring utusan ng kaniyang mga magulang na bumili ng murang gamot sa kaniyang eskwelahan. By locating these BnPs (Botika ng Pamantasan) in tertiary educational institutions, we're also educating our youth on the generic medicines, information which each can echo to his clan and community. By creating an army of generic drug converts out of the MTV generation, we're empowering them and indirectly their families, with rights they can exercise on matters that affect the health of their loved ones.

More than that, the Botika ng Pamantasan or BnPs can serve as laboratories for business courses. They can provide employment to students who wish to work there.

The viability of the Botika ng Pamantasan is secure as it has the financial backing of its host college because the host college has no business offering a commerce course if it cannot run a small enterprise. In these stores, presumably, our academics can practice what they preach. An ordinary SUC has a population bigger than an average barangay, so it has a customer base for a drugstore.

Yun ang mga bahagi sa mga hangarin natin sa pagdalaw sa Tsina at India: isulong ang payapang diyalogosa Myanmar, pag-ibayuhin ang patutulungan natin sa Tsina, at mapansin tayo ng mga napakagaling na negosyante sa India, at palawakin ang abot-kayang gamot.

Kalayaan, kaunlaran at kalinga – yon ang mga adhikain natin.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches of Her Excellency President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Arrival Statement: President Arroyo after an Official Visit to China and India

Arrival Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: After an Official Visit to China and India

[Delivered at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport (NAIA) Terminal 2, Pasay City, October 6, 2007]

Good evening, everyone.

I'd like to report that in our visit to China, we followed up large investment prospects coming from the fastest growing economy in the world, networked for the well-being of persons with intellectual disabilities and addressed the fate of concessional China loans for the infrastructure our country needs.

In our visit to India, we addressed urgent concerns over the situation in Myanmar and put the Philippines on the radar screen of the fourth largest economy in the world.

China's hosting of the Special Olympics world games and the global policy summit on the well-being of persons with intellectual disabilities gave us the opportunity to network for that sector of our society. Doctor Timothy Kennedy Shriver, Chairman of Special Olympics, offered to raise foundation money to support special education for children with intellectual disabilities. We accepted his offer with a counterpart to build the school buildings to house the special education programs.

And upon the recommendation of the Philippine NGOs, who were there in the special summit and the special games, the ones concerned with intellectual disabilities, we are making the following reforms in the administration of the welfare of the disabled: we are placing the Council for the Welfare of the Disabled under the Office of the President; appointing a representative nominated by the private sector, namely, Mrs. Lovely Romulo, as chair; and appointing a person with disability, Mr. Mateo Lee, as executive director. However, the secretary of social welfare and development shall continue to oversee the council in my behalf, even though it's already part of the Office of the President. The Chief Presidential Legal Counsel and the Presidential Management Staff shall prepare the appropriate documentation to effect these changes.

Shanghai was our first of four stops, the only stop in China. It is the Center of Commerce of China which is the fastest growing economy in the world. Shanghai has been experiencing double-digit growth for 15 years and it is home to some of the wealthiest individual businessmen in China. We are nurturing concrete investment prospects from some of them. We will make the appropriate announcements when their plans are ready for disclosure.

We believe we have further strengthened our robust ties with China by clarifying recent developments related to the massive Chinese assistance for our infrastructure program. We are grateful that China remains committed to our confident, mature and comprehensive relations. We have asked for China's understanding on our decision not to continue the national broadband network project and they gave their understanding. The China projects oversight panel headed by Peter Favila, and which includes the private sector, should now begin working out procedures to protect the cyber education project from unnecessary controversy, so that world-class ICT would reach 4th to 6th class municipalities and least-endowed schools.

We're disappointed that with the broadband not being continued, telecom savings of three billion pesos a year from broadband may not be forthcoming. So we reiterate our instruction to Secretary Leandro Mendoza to discuss with private telecommunication companies how government can cut its phone, fax and online expenses, so we can spend more on programs and projects. And once again, we urge the private telecommunications companies to fill the gaps in telecommunication facilities and services, especially in depressed areas. Whether government or the private sector, we must invest in digital infrastructure to link the entire country all the way to the poorest villages.

Myanmar as Burma used to be part of India. And India has become one of Asia's most robust democracies. And so when we were in India, a lot of the discussions with the top officials was on Myanmar. We encouraged New Delhi on their urging the rulers in Yangon toward dialogue with the democratic groups in the country. We carried this message as part of the global community of persons who see tolerance, restraint and consensus-building as the indispensable first steps toward a great future for Myanmar and its people.

We believe we have increased the economic potential of our ties with India.

Our visit to Mumbai was highlighted by the commitment of Global Steel of Mittal to invest 1.6 billion dollars to build an integrated steel mill in Iligan City. Also leading Bollywood Producer Aditya Taj Kapoor, Raj Kapoor and two other producers have decided to film a movie... Move their respective movies using the Philippines as location site. And I understand a mission will be coming this November.

We encourage the Iligan City government to provide a welcoming climate for the integrated steel mill, the way that Olongapo and Zambales governments provided a very welcoming climate for the billion-dollar Hanjin investment in Subic and the way that Angeles City and Pampanga province provided a very welcoming climate for the billion-dollar Texas Instruments investment in Clark. Hanjin and Texas instruments have reciprocated the very welcoming environment when they set up their business by providing thousands of jobs in their investment locations and we expect the steel mill will also provide about as many jobs at least or even more than Texas Instruments for the people of Iligan City and Lanao Del Norte.

Our massive spending on health care includes importing pharmaceuticals from India as part of our program to cut in half the price of medicines commonly bought by the poor. The main importer of medicines from India is the government-owned Philippine International Trading Corporation. But we wanted to stress that PITC need not be the exclusive agent. That is why we invited private drugstore owners, traders and local governments interested in acquiring affordable medicine to our state visit so that they can do business directly with Indian corporations.

When we were in India, we learned that the senate passed their version on second reading, and that the House already reported out their version of the bill. Congressman Tony Alvarez, Chairman of the House Committee on Trade and Industry, is right. We can make Botika ng Barangays or BnBs the fastest growing drugstore chain in the country by increasing by 50 percent its branch expansion fund of P98 million for 2008 to a 150 million pesos. That augmentation would increase the number of Botika outlets to be established next year to 6,000 from the planned 3,913. If this target will be met, there will be 13,514 branches by the end of 2008. The common man's access to quality affordable medicine can only be made possible if Botika ng Barangays are spread throughout the land.

We should be putting up more of these community-owned pharmacies in anticipation of the passage of the affordable medicines bill and the participation of the private sector and local government units in the pharmaceutical trade with India. Drugs must not only be more affordable, they must be accessible. And there is no better way to guarantee the latter than by letting the people themselves own and run their own pharmacies.

The Botika ng Barangay is just one in the constellation of government dispensaries. There is the privately-owned but state-supplied Botika ng Bayan, of which there are 1,481 outlets at present. There are drugstores run by cooperatives. Some are in the military and the police commissary. Let us also clarify that the budget for Botika ng Bayan expansion, which we amended to P150 million is only a part of the total medicine purchase budget for next year. Just a part because there is PITC and PCSO, etc. And etc., only a part of the total medicine purchase budget for next year. So if we increase to 150 million, that will be an additional p52 million, that will be good for 2,000 branches.

So I'm now issuing the following directives which will accelerate the roll-out and widen the reach of this very vital health delivery mechanism:

Number one, to the extent allowed by law, the procurement service of the DBM shall sell PITC pharma products in its depots and commissaries. It shall serve as a drug central that will serve as a distribution point of cheap medicines. Henceforth, its inventory shall now include pharmaceuticals.

Number two, a variant of the Botika ng Barangay shall be set up in state universities and colleges or SUCs to be called Botika ng Pamantasan or BnP. This will allow students to buy medicines not only for themselves but for family members left at home. Ang isang batang pumapasok sa isang SUC ay maaaring utusan ng kaniyang mga magulang na bumili ng murang gamot sa kaniyang eskwelahan. By locating these BnPs (Botika ng Pamantasan) in tertiary educational institutions, we're also educating our youth on the generic medicines, information which each can echo to his clan and community. By creating an army of generic drug converts out of the MTV generation, we're empowering them and indirectly their families, with rights they can exercise on matters that affect the health of their loved ones.

More than that, the Botika ng Pamantasan or BnPs can serve as laboratories for business courses. They can provide employment to students who wish to work there. The viability of the Botika ng Pamantasan is secure as it has the financial backing of its host college because the host college has no business offering a commerce course if it cannot run a small enterprise. In these stores, presumably, our academics can practice what they preach. An ordinary SUC has a population bigger than an average barangay, so it has a customer base for a drugstore.

Yon ang mga bahagi sa mga hangarin natin sa pagdalaw sa Tsina at India: isulong ang payapang diyalogo sa Myanmar, pag-ibayuhin ang pagtutulungan natin sa Tsina, at mapansin tayo ng mga napakagaling na negosyante sa India, at palawakin ang abot ng abot-kayang gamot.

Kalayaan, kaunlaran at kalinga — yon ang mga adhikain natin.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Arrival Statement after an Official Visit to China and India. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141051/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2239&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the National Security Council – NEDA Meeting

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: At the National Security Council – NEDA Meeting

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, October 09, 2007]

Mga kababayan, magpupulong ngayon ang dalawang pangkat ng Gabinete, ang National Security Council-Cabinet Group, at mamaya ang NEDA Cabinet Group, upang tutukan ang ilang napakahalagang programa na maaaring nakaligtaan nitong nagdaang mga linggo.

Una, isusulong natin ang kapayapaan at kaunlaran sa mga lalawigang sinasalanta ng mga rebeldeng komunista. Sa susunod na linggo, magkakaroon ng kapulungang pangkayapaan sa Butuan, kasunod ng matagumpay na peace assembly sa Bohol noong Agosto. At pag-uusapan sa National Security Council-Cabinet meeting ang plano ni Gov. (Erico) Aumentado para sa tigil-putukan at mas masigasig na mga programang pangkaunlaran sa Bohol. Dapat matigil ang karahasan sa bansa upang mabigyang-daan ang kaunlaran ng taong-bayan.

Pangalawa, hindi dapat mahinto ang imprastraktura at investment dahil sa mga batikos. Kaya naman iniatas ko sa China Projects Oversight Panel sa ilalim ni Secretary (Peter) Favila na siguruhing walang balakid ang napakahalagang proyekto ng Cyber Education para sa karunungan ng milyun-milyon nating mag-aaral. Kokonsultahin nila rito ang Education Task Force sa ilalim ni Fr. Ben Nebres ng Ateneo, upang matiyak na alinsunod sa pangangailangan ng edukasyon ang proyekto. Kabalik din ang Procurement Transparency Group, kasama ang Civil Society Organizations for Procurement Reform, upang maging bukas at transparent ang pagproseso ng proyekto.

Mahalaga rin sa negosyo at trabaho ang lumalawak at lumalalim na ugnayan sa kalakal at kapital sa pagitan ng Pilipinas at ibang bansa. Dalawang bilyong dolyar ng investment ang nakuha natin sa pagbiyahe ko sa Tsina at India noong isang linggo, at lilikha ito ng libu-libong trabaho. Tatalakayin naman ng NEDA Cabinet Group ang napakahalagang Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement o JPEPA, na lalong magpapalago ng kalakal at investment mula sa bansang Hapon. Gaya ng sabi ni Gov. Joey Salceda noong isang linggo, hindi tayo dapat mahuli sa ating mga karatig-bansa sa pagbuo ng kasunduang pangkalakal sa Japan. Kailangan ang JPEPA para sa trabaho at kaunlaran.

Kabilang sa NEDA Cabinet Group ang Housing and Urban Development Coordinating Council o HUDCC, sa ilalim ni Vice President Noli de Castro. Masigasig na isinusulong ni Noli ang pinalawak na programang pabahay. Hinihiling ko sa ating Bise Presidente na ilahok ang mga pamahalaang lokal, ang Simbahan at ang lipunang sibil sa pagbalangkas ng mga programa at proyekto sa pabahay, sa kahilingan ng ating mga obispo.

Nanawagan si dating pangulong Fidel Ramos na itutok ng pambansang pamunuan ang pansin at panahon sa pagpapalago ng ekonomiya. Ito mismo ang pangunahing adhikain ng pamahalaan at hangarin ng taong-bayan: ang pag-angat ng kabuhayan, karunungan, kalakalan, at sambayanan. Napakahalaga rito ang pagsulong ng mga panukalang batas, lalo na ang budget at ang priority legislation gaya ng Cheaper Medicines Bill at pag-amyenda sa EPIRA (Electric Power Industry Reform Act) para sa mas mababang singil sa koryente. At sa pagdepensa ng budget, inuulit ko sa Gabinete ang atas na ipakita sa Kongreso, media at sambayanan ang mga nagawa ng pamahalaan para sa bayan. Sa kabila ng mga panira at pamumulitika, patuloy tayong sumusulong sa landas ng kaunlaran.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Statement at the National Security Council – NEDA Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412141024/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2237&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a meeting on the SONA/MTPIP priority projects and oathtaking of the Interim National Executive board of the ULAP and officers of LMP Pangasinan Chapter Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a meeting on the SONA/MTPIP priority projects and oathtaking of the Interim National Executive board of the ULAP and officers of LMP Pangasinan Chapter

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, October 11, 2007]

Good afternoon everyone.

Thank you for coming to this meeting with the Union of Local Authorities and the Regional Development Councils. May I ask Ramon Guico to lead the opening prayer.

Thank you, thank you. Please sit down.

Leaders of the local government leagues, local government officials, leaders of the Regional Development Councils, mga kabalikat sa kaunlaran ng Pamahalaang Bansa at ng sambayanang Pilipino.

Sa patuloy na paglakas ng ekonomiya, ng piso at ng stock market, the world and the markets acknowledge our gains in economic reform and political stability, bagaman kabaligtaran ang pilit pinalalabas ng mga ilan.

Sa panahong ito, lalong dapat isustento ang paglago ng ekonomiya at pag-akit ng investment. Napakahalaga rito ang pagbibilis ng mga proyekto ng mga superregion. Kailangan ding ipasa sa oras ang budget para sa 2008.

Tama na sana ang pamumulitika.

Upang dumami rin ang investment at trabaho, kailangan ding isulong ang katahimikan at kapayapaan, lalo na sa mga lugar ng insureksiyon, through amnesty and local peace initiatives, as being undertaken in Bohol and Agusan. Hindi papasok ang negosyo kung patuloy ang pangangikil, pagpaslang at paninira ng mga rebelde.

Higit sa lahat, lalo nating palakasin ang pagkakaisa at pagkakapit-bisig ng pamunuang pambansa at lokal, na siyang nagdulot ng katatagan at kaunlaran sa kabila ng mga ligalig at hamon ng mga nagdaang mga taon, lalo na ang ulap at ang iba-ibang mga liga, na siyang nagdulot sa tagumpay at kaunlaran.

Kaya, inilalahok natin ang ulap sa China Projects Oversight Panel, upang mabigyan kayo ng tinig sa pagbalangkas sa mga proyekto na pinopondohan ng mga concessional funding mula sa Tsina. Isasama rin natin ang ULAP sa pro-performance system, na siya ang nagsusubaybay ng ating mga pangunahing proyekto.

Sa ating pagkakaisa laban sa pamumulitika, karahasan at iba pang balakid sa kaunlaran, ihahatid natin ang mga biyaya ng makabago at makataong pamayanan sa lahat ng superregion at bawat mamamayan.

So, I'd like to thank you all for coming here today.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's statement during a meeting on the SONA/MTPIP priority projects and oathtaking of the Interim National Executive board of the ULAP and officers of LMP Pangasinan Chapter . Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140259/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2235&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo at the National Security Council Meeting

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: At the National Security Council Meeting

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, October 23, 2007]

Mga kababayan, magpupulong tayo ngayon kasama sina Vice President Noli de Castro, dating Pangulong Fidel V. Ramos, Speaker Jose de Venecia, at Senate Majority Leader Francis Pangilinan na kumatawan kay Senate President Villar na wala sa Maynila ngayon, kasama ang National Security Cabinet group.

Rerepasuhin natin ang kampanya kontra terorismo at iba pang programang panseguridad. Bagaman hindi pa tapos ang pagsisiyasat sa Glorietta (blast), kailangan pa ring pagtibayin ang ating mga pagkilos para sa kaligtasan ng bayan.

Kabilang dito ang pagpapalakas ng Kapulisan at Santadahang Lakas, pagsusulong ng kapayapaan at pagkakasundo sa mga rebelde, pagtutulungan ng mamamayan, sundalo, pulis at pamahalaan, at pagpapatibay ng ating balikatan sa mga kaalyadong bansa.

Magpupulong din mamaya ang Anti-Poverty at Economic and Development Cabinet group upang pabilisin ang ating programa para sa pagsasaka ng dalawang milyong bagong ektarya upang lumikha ng dalawang milyong bagong trabaho sa sakahan.

Mag-uulat din ang Kagawaran ng Paggawa tungkol sa tulong natin sa mga overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) sa panahon ng pagtaas ng piso, including the series of Bangko Sentral investment incentives and programs for overseas Filipino remittances to be invested into capital enterprises. Inaatasan din natin ang Gabinete na ireport tuwina ang ating mga ginagawa sa seguridad at karapatang tao, paglaban sa kahirapan, at pagsulong ng ekonomiya at kanayunan.

Akala ng mga kaaway ng bayan na madali tayong susuko sa mga pwersa ng takot, gulo at hidwaan. Nagkakamali sila. Sama-sama nating itataguyod ang kaunlaran, kapayapaan at katatagan ng bayan, at mas magandang buhay para sa bawat Pilipino. Sumusulong na ang Pilipinas, huwag nating payagang pigilin tayo.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement at the National Security Council Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140156/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2217&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the National Competitiveness Council (NCC) and Export Development Council (EDC) meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa pagpupulong ng National Competitiveness Council (NCC) at Export Development Council (EDC) Meeting

[Ipinahayag sa Heroes Hall ng Malacañang, ika 6 ng Nobyembre, 2007]

Mga kababayan, sa paglapit ng langis sa presyong sandaang dolyar bawat bariles, kailangan kumilos ang bansa, lalo na ang mga liderato ng pamahalaan at ekonomiya, upang mabawasan ang hampas sa tao ng krudo, gasolina at LPG. Pinakamalakas ang tama ng pagtaas ng presyo sa mga mababa ang kinikita at hindi makahabol sa pagtaas ng presyo ng bilingin.

Sa ganitong panahon, hindi katawad-tawad ang pag-aaksaya ng panahon sa pamumulitika samantalang nakabinbin ang mga panukalang kailangan upang mabawasan ang gastos ng pamilyang Pilipino at dagdagan ang kita at hanapbuhay. Kaya naman hinihiling natin sa Kongreso na agad ipasa ang batas para sa Murang Gamot, at ang amyenda sa Electric Power Industry Reform Act na makababawas ng singil sa koryente. Hindi rin dapat mahuli ang budget para sa susunod na taon, upang agad makinabang ang sambayanan sa mga proyekto para sa maralita, lalo na ang patubig, farm to market roads, pabahay at pagamot.

Para rin tutukan ang problema ng langis, bilingin at hanapbuhay, pinulong natin ngayon ang National Competitiveness Council, Export Development Council at mga labor federation. Babalangkas tayo ng mga aksyon upang maagapan ang pagtaas ng presyo ng petrolyo, at lalong mapalakas ang productivity. Sa pagtaas ng productivity, mas makalalaban ang Pilipino sa dayuhang mga produkto dito at sa ibayong dagat, at hindi gaanong tataas ang presyo ng bilinging gawa sa ating bansa.

Bukod sa productivity at presyo, kailangan ding magsulong ng mga panukala, programa at proyekto upang maihatid sa karaniwang Pilipino ang mga biyaya ng lumalagong ekonomiya. Kabalikat ng kalakal at industriya ang manggagawang Pilipino sa pagsulong ng kaunlaran, at marapat lamang na magtamasa din sila ng mga bunga ng pagod nating lahat. Bibigyan din ito ng pansin ngayon, at sa iba pang pulong ng mga organisasyong ito, na aking inaatasang magpulong bawat buwan upang subaybayan, isulong at dagdagan pa ang mga inisyatibo upang ipaabot sa masang Pilipino ang mga biyaya ng ating lumalakas na ekonomiya.

Unti-unti nang umaabot sa karaniwang tao ang pag-angat sa ibang bahagi ng lipunan. Ayon sa poverty survey na inilabas kahapon, bumaba na ang porsyento ng nagsasabing mahirap sila mula noong unang bahagi ng 2006. Isang dahilan ang mga reporma sa buwis na nagpalakas ng piso at investment, at nagdagdag sa pondong pangkaunlaran. Ito rin ang rerepasuhin sa BIR command conference ngayong hapon.

Hindi na tayo dapat mag-aksaya ng panahon at pagod sa mga bagay na malayo sa mga pangunahing pangangailangan at pasanin ng sambayanan: presyo, trabaho at benepisyo. Pagtulungan na nating lahat ito – ang gobyerno, Kongreso, negosyo at manggagawa – sa ikabubuti ng taong bayan.

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement at the National Competitiveness Council (NCC) and Export Development Council (EDC) Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140059/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2293&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo for the NSC-NAPC Cabinet Meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
For the NSC-NAPC Cabinet Meeting

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, November 13, 2007]

Maraming idadahilan sa mga trahedyang nina Mariannet at Dalaig, at isa ang ibig nating tutukan: ang mga kalabisan ng politika.

Maraming naghihirap dahil may mga pinuno na pamumulitika at pansariling hangarin ang binibigyang halaga, higit sa pag-angat ng bayan.

Samantala, may mga politiko at grupo na walang puso at budhi, at handang gumamit ng dahas upang makamit ang ambisyon at layunin.

The preoccupation with politics, past and present, does not promote the stability, policy continuity, security and peace and order that we will need to continue to move our country forward.

The people want results, not rhetoric, action not political posturing. Let us get on with the people's work.

The people of the Philippines are tired of negative political rhetoric that does nothing to bring about legislation that will create a new future for our people.

We call on legislators to stop political wrangling and start legislating. Congress has demonstrated that when it sets aside self interest it can produce legislation that improves the quality of life of all Filipinos. The most notable recent example is the bill that reduces the cost of medicines commonly needed by the poor and the 2008 budget especially for healthcare and education.

But much more needs to be done to improve human rights, invest more in peace and order and to advance our national interests with other nations on trade, economy and security issues.

Kailangang pagtulungan ng buong sambayanan, simula sa ating liderato, na malabanan ang mga kalabisan ng politika: ang karahasan, katiwalian, at pagbale-wala sa karaingan ng maralita.

Hindi ito madali, subalit dapat nating pagsikapan ito upang hindi mas lumala ang kahirapan, karahasan at hidwaan sa ating bansa.

It is time for the nation to move on and focus on the issues that are important to our future: creating more jobs, lowering prices, providing affordable housing, and providing access to education for all our children.

Sa araw na ito, magpupulong ang Gabinete upang isulong ang kapayapaan, at maghatid ng serbisyo sa mahihirap, lalo na ang malinis na tubig, mahusay na edukasyon, at isang bilyong piso para sa mga programang kontra sa gutom.

At sa mga linggong darating, makikipag-ugnay tayo sa iba't-ibang pinuno ng politika, relihiyon, at iba pang sektor upang labanan nating lahat ang karahasan sa politika, at isulong ang kapayapaan at mas masigasig na pagsaklolo sa maralita.

Mapalad tayong patuloy ang paglago ng ekonomiya. Sabi ng Standard and Poors, na tinitingalang tagasuri ng mga ekonomiya sa buong mundo: "The Philippines [is] apparently shifting to higher growth trajectories. Political stability, microeconomic reforms, and a dramatic improvement in the fiscal position, are now translating into better growth prospects, underpinned by increased infrastructure spending."

Ngayong naituwid na natin ang ekonomiya, panahon namang isulong ang reporma sa politika. Bawasan ang hidwaan, labanan ang katiwalian, itigil ang karahasan, at unahin ang kapakanan ng karaniwang mamamayan.

Alang-alang sa bayan, ipagdasal at pagtulungan natin ito.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement for the NSC-NAPC Cabinet Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135944/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2282&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on her departure for the ASEAN Leaders Summit

Departure Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: For the ASEAN Leaders Summit

[Released on November 18, 2007]

We are departing for Singapore and the ASEAN Leaders Summit committed to advancing the interests of the Philippine people in three key areas: human rights, environmental protection and economic development.

The interests of the people of the Philippines come first. Their agenda is my agenda in Singapore: energy independence, environmental stewardship, a strong economy and a commitment to human rights.

ASEAN is increasingly important as our region becomes more integrated economically, socially and politically. ASEAN is becoming a more cohesive regional powerhouse that will enhance the interests of each member nation and provide balance to the rise of China as well as to our traditional relationship with North America and Europe.

At the successful ASEAN Summit in Cebu which we chaired last year, we launched several key initiatives, most notably the pursuit of the ASEAN Charter for the purpose of strengthening our economic clout and regional self-sufficiency. At that time, we also called for stronger environmental standards, energy self-sufficiency and insisted upon an ASEAN Human Rights body.

We are proud to announce that ASEAN is making progress on each and every initiative we started in Cebu – and this is good news for the Philippines. We are determined to complete in Singapore what we started in Cebu. We are committed to advance our commitment to human rights, propel our commitment to a healthy environment led by energy self sufficiency and continue to strengthen our economic comeback.

Our nation is moving forward on the strength of the Philippine worker, our willingness to engage the world and the work of our administration to bring peace, order and stability to our nation. ASEAN is part of our plan to achieve these goals.

In this holiday season, it is important to be connected to peoples and nations abroad just as we are focused on our friends, neighbors and families at home. We must all stand together to advance the interests of humanity and lift up the fortunes of the poor and dispossessed.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Departure Statement. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135918/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2276&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo after the Regional Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) Meeting in Iligan City

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

After the Regional Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) Meeting in Iligan City

[Delivered in Iligan City, November 22, 2007]

We return to the Philippines ahead of schedule from the ASEAN Summit saddened about the onslaught of typhoon “Lando” in Regions V, VII, VIII, X and Caraga. We sympathize with the affected families, especially those that lost loved ones. We have directed the authorities to find the missing and treat the wounded with dispatch.

Here in our city of Iligan is the largest number of families displaced. We need to get them back home and on their feet as soon as possible.

The damage to lives and property would have been worse were it not for the timely action of the Government. Congratulations to the NDCC, the LGUs of affected areas and all related agencies for their quick response.

In behalf of our fellow Iliganons, we thanked all those who helped in the rescue efforts and set relief goods, especially those from outside Iligan.

In countless times in the past, we have united in the face of calamities. We will show that unity once again.

Even as we are saddened about typhoon “Lando,” we are satisfied that as a result of our efforts in Singapore, the Philippines will benefit from greater security, stronger economic growth and enhanced solidarity to make progress to protect our environment.

The fact that ASEAN has signed a Charter that is legally binding and that will create a more powerful bloc is an important milestone in the history of our region. It sends a signal that ASEAN nations are determined to play a larger, more strategic role to move our region and each member nation forward.

The Philippine economy and our people have benefited from economic growth due to global engagement. Increased trade between ASEAN nations will continue to accelerate our economic growth, foreign investment and the creation of good jobs for our people.

And while we are pleased that we have incorporated language in the Charter that advances human rights and democracy, we remain concerned that the forces of authoritarianism still move rather slowly towards democracy in Myanmar. Let me be clear: We embrace the advances of ASEAN but remain concerned about the pace of progress of Myanmar on the issue of human rights. We particularly deplore the treatment of Aung San Suu Kyi. She must be released. Now.

We will not rest, in representation of the political leadership and constituency of the Philippines and as a member of ASEAN, in the pursuit of justice and reconciliation in Myanmar. We must be active in advocating peaceful reforms in that nation. It is good for Myanmar, for ASEAN and the world.

We are both sad and happy to return home to press forward with the agenda and focus on the needs of the victims of the recent as well as the incoming typhoons and also the needs of poorest among us during this holiday season.

In this era of climate change, the world is divided into climate makers and climate takers. Climate makers are those responsible for large emissions of greenhouse gases that warm the globe. Climate takers are those who do not emit large amounts of greenhouse gas but nonetheless suffer the consequences of climate change because climate change is global. Climate makers are responsible for mitigating global warming, while climate takers must undertake adaptation measures.

The Philippines belongs to the category of climate takers. We emit less than one percent of greenhouse gases but we suffer the consequences of global warming, including disasters like typhoon “Lando.”

Being a climate taker rather than climate maker, we cannot prevent disasters but certainly we can undertake adaptation measures to prevent the loss of lives and reduce damage to property. We instruct the Department of Science and Technology to fast track the purchase of Mindanao’s Doppler radar.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA’s Statement after the Regional Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) Meeting in Iligan City. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409190301/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2275&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo after the Regional Disaster Coordinating Council (RDCC) Meeting in Surigao City

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

After the Regional Disaster Coordinating Council (RDCC) Meeting in Surigao City

[Delivered in Surigao City, November 22, 2007]

We return to the Philippines ahead of schedule from the ASEAN Summit saddened about the onslaught of typhoon “Lando” in Regions V, VII, VIII, X and Caraga.

We sympathize with the affected families, especially those that lost loved ones in Taganaan, Placer and Surigao City. We have directed the authorities to find the missing and treat the wounded with dispatch.

We need to get the displaced families back home and on their feet as soon as possible.

The damage to lives and property would have been worse were it not for the timely action of the Government. Congratulations to the NDCC, the LGUs of affected areas and all related agencies for their quick response.

The NDCC shall continue to coordinate the efforts of the Department of Health (DOH), Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) and other agencies to prevent the outbreak of diseases and deliver assistance. I understand the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH), Department of Transportation and Communications (DOTC), Department of Agriculture (DA) and other agencies have commenced repair and rehabilitation works.

Even as we are saddened about typhoon “Lando,” we are satisfied that as a result of our efforts in Singapore, the Philippines will benefit from greater security, stronger economic growth and enhanced solidarity to make progress to protect our environment.

The fact that ASEAN has signed a Charter that is legally binding and that will create a more powerful regional bloc is an important milestone in the history of our region. It sends a signal that ASEAN nations are determined to play a larger, more strategic role to move our region and each member nation forward.

The Philippine economy and our people have benefited from economic growth due to global engagement.

China is one of the world’s biggest consumers of metal so for the Philippine mining industry, this represents significant opportunity in terms of mining exploration, development and mineral exports, particularly at a time when we are looking to develop our US$1 trillion worth of mineral reserves across the country. China’s Jinchuan, CITIC and Jilin Nickel are some of the investors who have expressed interest in nickel mining projects of Surigao. We hope to see these nickel projects and others come to fruition soon.

Increased trade between ASEAN nations will continue to accelerate our economic growth, foreign investment and the creation of good jobs for our people.

Banyan Tree, the Singaporean tourism giant that developed Phuket in Thailand, just bought a 55-hectare island in Coron, Palawan to put up a resort. But in addition, they are looking for a 300-hectare property with a beach to develop a total tourism estate the way they did in Phuket, Maldives and Seychelles and the way they are doing now in Vietnam.

And while we are pleased that we have incorporated language in the Charter that advances human rights and democracy, we remain concerned that the forces of authoritarianism still move rather slowly towards democracy in Myanmar. Let me be clear: We embrace the advances of ASEAN but remain concerned about the pace of progress of Myanmar on the issue of human rights. We particularly deplore the treatment of Aung San Suu Kyi. She must be released. Now.

At the ASEAN Summit, I also said that in this era of climate change, the world is divided into climate makers and climate takers. Climate makers are those responsible for large emissions of greenhouse gases that warm the globe. Climate takers are those who do not emit large amounts of greenhouse gas but nonetheless suffer the consequences of climate change because climate change is global. Climate makers are responsible for mitigating global warming, while climate takers must undertake adaptation measures.

The Philippines belongs to the category of climate takers. We emit less than one percent of greenhouse gases but we suffer the consequences of global warming, including landslides such as the ones that hit Surigao now and a few years ago.

Being a climate taker rather than a climate maker, we cannot prevent disasters, but certainly we can undertake adaptation measures to prevent the loss of lives and reduce damage to property. We instruct the Department of Science and Technology to fast track the purchase of Doppler radar of Cebu and South Cotabato which combined will serve the more detailed weather forecast needs of Caraga.

In countless times in the past, we have united in the face of calamities. We will show that unity once again.

We are both sad and happy to return home to press forward with our agenda and focus on the needs of the victims of the recent as well as the incoming typhoons and also the needs of the poorest among us during this holiday season.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Statement after the Regional Disaster Coordinating Council (RDCC) Meeting in Surigao City. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135912/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2272&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during an informal interaction with officials of Barangay 20, District 1, Manila [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa impormal na interaksyon kasama ang mga opisyal ng Barangay 20, District 1, Manila

[Ipinahayag sa Manila Parola Basketball Court, Purok 4, Brgy. 20, District 1 Isla Puting Bato, Tondo, Manila, ika 26 ng Nobyembre, 2007]

Magandang umaga sa inyong lahat.

At nagpapasalamat ako kay Mayor Lim sa pag-host nitong ating barangay visit ngayon at sa ating bagong congressman asilo, magandang umaga din sa inyo. At gusto kong batiin ang bagong barangay chairman at ang ating outgoing barangay chairman, magpasalamat sa kanyang paglilingkod sa barangay.

Gusto ko lang sabihin na pag-angat ng mahihirap ang pangunahing layunin ng ating pamahalaan at lipunan. Malapit na ang pasko. Itong darating na linggo ay first Sunday of Advent na. Marapat lamang na tumulong ang maykaya sa nangangailangan at gagawin ng pamahalaan ang makakaya upang isulong ang ganitong pagtulong. Hindi lamang pangunahing pagkain ang bigas, kundi tanda ng ating kakayahang magbigay ng sapat na makakain sa nagugutom. Buo ang loob natin upang tiyaking may sapat at abot-kayang bigas ang mahihirap sa napakahalagang pagdiriwang ng pasko.

Hindi natin masasabing nakahakbang tayo nang malayo bilang isang bayan kung hindi natin mai-aangat ang nagugutom at naghihirap sa ating lipunan. Dapat nating pangatawanan ang ating pinaniniwalaan at pananampalataya.

Pang-matagalan nating hangarin na mabilang ang bansa sa mga maunlad na bansa sa loob ng dalawampung taon. Upang matupad ito, kailangan magkaroon tayo ng malakas na middle-class, imprastrakturang kapantay ang mundo, at matatag na mga institusyon ng pamahalaan. Subalit sa panahong ito mismo, kailangan nating aksyunan ang mga hamon ng kahirapan at gutom na hinaharap natin ngayon.

Nabawasan na ang porsiyento ng naghihirap, subalit dapat nating pagsikapan nang lalong masigasig ang lubusang pagkawala ng kahirapan. Kaya naman ngayong kapaskuhan at sa panahong darating, gagawin natin ang lahat ng makakaya upang makapagdala ng bigas sa walang makain at magawang abot-kaya ang presyo ng bilihan.

Ito ang ating handog ng pamahalaan sa mamamayang Pilipino.

Kaya itong araw na ito ay kinatawan ng department of agriculture ang unang tatawagin natin upang ipaliwanag ang programa ng pamahalaan na... Para maka-abot ang abot-kayang bigas sa nakararami na taumbayan.

By the way Mayor, regards mula... Galing kay Arty Yap kaya lang... Nandoon pa ba siya sa Amerika, si Arty o nakabalik na? Ah, tumuloy ng Europe, ano? Nagpunta siya sa Amerika gawa ng 'yung Worldwide Life Fund ay merong pondo para sa agricultural component, yung fisheries component ng ating coral triangle, itong coral ng Sulu-Sulawesi sea at pagkatapos tumuloy sa Food and Agriculture Organization... Sa Rome for the food and agriculture organization. Tapos noon ay tutuloy siya ng España, makikipag-kita sa inyong lingkod dahil may malaking investments ng agri-business na darating. At hindi na natin iuulat yun, doon na lang iuulat sa España.

Pero binabanggit ko ito Mayor kasi gustong-gusto ni Arty na kasama siya kapag nagbibisita sa inyo. Gawa nang si Arty ay malapit na malapit kay Mayor Lim. Inaanak, 'di ba?

So, anyway, yun ang makakasiguro naman na... Isang bagay na makakasiguro na talagang ang bibigyan ng pansin, ng malaking pansin ng D.A. ang Maynila. Hindi dahil Maynila ang panggagalingan ng tinatanim na agrikultura, dahil urban naman ang Maynila, kung hindi yung distribution ng mga produktong agricultural na kinakain ng taong-bayan.

Kaya we'll call the D.A. now to make the presentation kung papano natin sinisigurado na may sapat at abot-kayang bigas ang taong-bayan. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's opening statement during an informal interaction with officials of Barangay 20, District 1, Manila. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135855/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2270&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the National Security Council-Cabinet Group Meeting [Filipino]

Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Sa pagpupulong ng Gabinete ng National Security Council

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room ng Malacañang, ika 27 ng Nobyembre, 2007]

Mga kababayan, nagpapasalamat at nagpupugay tayo sa lahat ng mamamayang nagtaya ng buhay at nag-alay ng puyat at pagod upang saklolohan at tulungan ang ating mga kapwa Pilipino na nasalanta ng bagyo at baha sa iba't ibang dako ng bansa. Bukod nating pinupuri ang mga sundalo, pulis, manggagamot, mga pinuno at kawaning lokal, at iba pang tauhan ng pamahalaan at mga pribadong organisasyon. Sa kanilang kagitingan, sinagip nila ang libu-libong tao sa malaking tubig, matinding gutom at karamdamang nakamamatay.

Ganitong kabayanihan ang kailangan tuwina ng ating bayan: paglilingkod sa nagigipit at naghihirap nang walang atubili at buong pagkalinga. Ito rin ang hangad natin sa mga pulong ng Gabinete ngayon: pagsusulong ng mga proyekto at programa upang ipadama sa karaniwang mamamayan ngayong Pasko at Bagong Taon ang mga biyaya ng lumalagong ekonomiya at kaban ng bayan. Kabilang dito ang bigas para sa pamilya, tulong sa nagkakasakit, patrabaho, patubig at pabahay.

Tatalakayin din ngayon ang mga pagkilos ng mga ahensiya ng buwis upang lalong pagbutihin ang paglikom ng salapi para sa mga programa ng pamahalaan at katamtaman gastos sa mga malaking imprastraktura. Sa gayon, lalo nating mapondohan at mapalalakas ang mga serbisyo sa maralita. Bahagi rin ito ng ating pamaskong handog sa taong bayan.

Nagpapasalamat din tayo sa ating mga kapwa lingkod bayan sa Kongreso sa kanilang pagtutok sa budget at iba pang panukalang kailangang-kailangan sa kanilang huling buwan ng pagpupulong sa taong ito. Milyun-milyong kababayan ang naghihintay ng kinakailangang panukala sa murang gamot, mas mababang singil sa koryente, amnestiya sa rebelde, at ang mga programang pangkaunlaran at pangmasa sa budget sa 2008. Importante rin ang nakabinbing batas laban sa mga ilegal na pasabog, gaya ng nakamatay at nakapinsala sa Batasang Pambansa.

These measures are also crucial to business expansion. The 2008 budget will fund major infrastructure that would boost industrial and agricultural productivity and competitiveness. JPEPA (Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement) will boost investment and trade from Japan, while the EPIRA (Electric Power Industry Reform Act) amendment will give relief to firms struggling with rising power costs.

Upang mas madali ang mga panukalang ito, pupulungin natin ang Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council or LEDAC pagbalik natin mula sa Europa, upang maresolba na ang anumang sagabal sa mga panukalang kailangang-kailangan ng bayan.

Ito ang kailangan ng bayan ngayon. Tutukan at pagtulungan natin.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Statement at the National Security Council-Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135844/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2264&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the National Security Cabinet Group meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
At the National Security Cabinet Group meeting

[Released via Videoconferencing from London, December 7, 2007]

Mga kababayan, magandang araw. Minarapat kong magbigay ng pahayag mula sa biyahe upang siguruhing nakatutok ang pamahalaan sa mga mahalagang pagkilos para sa bayan at ekonomiya.

Unang-una, marapat maging masigasig ang buong kapulisan at sandatahan sa pagtugis ng ilang nalalabing tauhan na sangkot sa pag-aalsa, upang hindi na muling magambala ang bayan. Kaya naman pinupulong natin ngayon ang National Security Cabinet Group sa pamamagitan ng video conferencing, upang repasuhin ang ating seguridad.

The people are grateful to our loyal soldiers and police for defending our democracy and constitution.

We must remain vigilant against groups exploiting grievances to grab power for their own selfish ambitions.

Pangalawa, ipinapa-alaala natin sa gabinete na isulong ang mga pagkilos na aking itinakda sa mga pulong kamakailan upang aksyunan ang pagtaas ng presyo ng langis, at maghatid ng abot-kayang bigas at iba pang handog sa masa. Mahalaga ring tumugon sa mga hinaing ng maralita, kabilang ang mga magsasakang nangangailangan ng tulong para sa kabuhayan at katarungan. Dapat ding bilisan ang mahalagang imprastraktura, ipuno ang kaban ng bayan, at tulungan ang mga kompanya at mangagawang nai-ipit ng malakas na piso.

Pangatlo, nagpapasalamat tayo sa Klongreso na patuloy na magtuon ng pansin sa mga kinakailangang panukala, lalo na ang budget. Cheaper medicines bill, amyenda sa epira para sa murang singil sa koryente, at amnestiya para sa maraming rebelde na ibig magbalik-loob. Sa ating biyahe rin, kapakanan ng taong bayan ang tanging adhikain. Bago ako umuwi, daraan ako sa kuwait sa linggo upang maki-usap sa Emir alang-alang sa buhay ni Marilou Ranario. Mahalaga sa bayan at pamahalaan ang buhay at laya ng bawat Pilipino.

Sa pakikipag-usap sa mga pinuno, mga investor at mga kababayan sa Europe, maliwanag na buo pa rin ang kanilang tiwala at pag-asa sa ating bansa. Sabi nila, basta patuloy tayong magkakaisa at magsisikap para sa masiglang ekonomiya at panatag ng bansa, lalo silang magdadala ng investment sa bansa, lilikha ng trabaho, at magsusulong ng pag-unlad.

Our adherence to democracy is winning kudos and boosting confidence around the world for our nation.

Pagkakaisa, pag-unlad, kapayapaan at kasaganaan para sa lahat — ito ang susi ng pangarap natin. Mabuhay ang bayang Pilipino.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement at the National Security Cabinet Group meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135707/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2336&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Statement: President Arroyo during the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council Meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
Sa pagpupulong ng Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, ika 11 ng Disyembre, 2007]

Mga kababayan, magandang araw. Sa pagsapit ng Pasko at Bagong Taon, marapat itutok natin ang pansin at pagsisikap sa mga panukalang hinihintay at kinakailangan ng taong bayan. Sa panig ng gobyerno, inaatasan ko ang Gabinete na ilunsad sa mga araw at linggong darating ang pamamahagi ng bigas, pagkakabit ng kuryente at tubig, pagbubukas ng mga tindahang abot-kaya, at iba pang programang pang-masa na siyang Pamaskong Handog natin sa taong bayan.

Sa pagtaas ng presyo ng bilihin dahil sa pagmahal ng halaga ng langis, hindi tayo dapat mag-aksaya ng panahon sa paghahatid ng murang pagkain at gamot at libreng serbisyo sa maralita.

Samantala, pinupulong natin ngayon ang Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council o LEDAC, upang isulong ang mga napakahalagang panukalang batas sa Kongreso. Kabilang dito ang 2008 budget na magpopondo sa mga serbisyo publiko at imprastrakturang matagal nang hinihiling ng mamamayan at negosyo. Ibig din nating maipasa bago magpahinga ang Kongreso sa a-beinte uno ng Disyembre ang Cheaper Medicines Bill na lalong makakabawas sa presyo ng gamot at amyenda sa EPIRA (Electric Power Industry Reform Act), upang maibaba ang singil sa kuryente.

Pag-uusapan din ngayon ang proklamasyon ng amnestiya sa mga rebeldeng komunista. Marami sa kanila ang ibig nang bumalik sa panig ng batas, kaya nagproklama tayo ng amnestiya para sa mga susuko, at kinakailangan ngayon ang pagsang-ayon ng Kongreso.

Sa paglapit ng Bagong Taon, ilulunsad din natin ang mga pagkilos para sa mas murang kuryente, tulong sa mga manggagawa, mga exporters at mga OFWs, at patuloy na paglago ng kaban ng bayan upang mabalanse ang budget. Magsisikap din tayo upang patuloy na aksiyunan ang mga ligalig sa ating kapayapaan at mga usapin ng karapatang-tao, at palakasin ang suporta sa edukasyon, na pagpupulungan mamaya ng mga stakeholder ng sector ng edukasyon sa ilalim ni Fr. Bienvenido Nebres ng Ateneo.

Sa Pilipinas man, sa Kuwait at iba pang bansa, laging nakatutok ang inyong pinuno at gobyerno sa kagalingan ng bayan. Taus-pusong pasasalamat sa ating pagkakaisa at pagbabalikatan para sa kaunlaran, kapayapaan, at magandang kinabukasan ng bawat mamamayan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening Statement during the Legislative-Executive Development Advisory Council Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135640/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2327&Itemid=38

Arrival Statement: President Arroyo on her Visits to Spain, UK and Kuwait

Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On her Visits to Spain, UK and Kuwait

[Issued on December 11, 2007]

Mga kababayan, magandang umaga.

Nagbabalik ako mula sa pag-bisita sa Espanya, Loudres at Kuwait at nagagalak ako para sa bayan at sa mga ibinunga ng biyahe.

Nagtungo ako sa Europa upang isulong ang patakarang panlabas ng Pilipinas sa ating mga pulong sa matataas na opisyal ng mga kaalyado nating bansa.

Nagtungo ako sa Espanya sa imbitasyon ng Kanilang Mahestad, si Haring Juan Carlos at Reyna Sofia, upang magamit ang mga bentaha ng ating pinagsamahang kasaysayan sa mga masigasig na pagbalikat para sa prosperidad. Sa mga miting ko sa Hari at kay Pangulong Zapatero, inulit natin ang pananaw na napakahalaga ang seguridad ng bayan sa pag-unlad ng ating bansa. Dahil ang Kastila ay umangat muli ngayon bilang isang pangunahing lenggwahe ng mundo, ipinaalam natin sa kanila ang ating balak na ipairal ang pagtuturo at pag-aaral ng lenggwaheng Kastila sa Pilipinas upang palawakin ang bentaha ng ating mga manggagawa sa kumpetensiya sa mundo. Ito rin ay kinukumpirmang muli ang ating malalim na koneksyon ng kasaysayan at kultura sa Espanya.

Sa Loudres, nakipagkita ako kay Reyna Elizabeth Pangalawa upang makipag-usap sa kanya tungkol sa malusog na kalagayan ng relasyon ng ating dalawang bansa. Nagkaroon din tayo ng pagkakataong nakipagkita sa dating Prime Minister Tony Blair, na nagtrabaho para sa proseso ng kapayapaan sa Northern Ireland, at ngayon ay nagtatrabaho sa proseso ng kapayapaan sa Middle East, upang makipagpalitan ng mga pananaw sa mga pangmundong pangyayari at posibilidad na matuto tayo sa kaniya ukol sa ating proseso ng kapayapaan sa Mindanao.

Isa pang haligi ng ating seguridad ang katatagan ng ekonomiya — sa pag-akit ng investments, paglikha ng trabaho, at paglaganap ng oportunidad sa hanapbuhay sa bawat lalawigan ng ating dakilang kapuluan. Para rito, masigasig tayong nagsisikap upang himukin ang mga negosyanteng mamuhunan sa ating bansa.

Pinataas natin ang kaalaman ng komunidad ng Kastilang negosyante tungkol sa maaaring pagkakataon sa negosyo at puhunan sa Pilipinas. Nagsalita ako sa pulong ng mahigit isang daang mga negosyante ng Espanya. Nasiyahan tayong marinig ang kanilang tiwala sa mga kaunlaran na nangyari sa paglago ng ating ekonomiya. Sa mga hiwalay na miting natin sa kanila, may kumpanya tayo na ang tiwala ay magiging kongkretong pamumuhunan at pagkakataon ng paglikha ng trabaho, lalo sa renewable energy, imprastraktura at logistics.

Today, the Philippines is on a path to permanent growth and stability. Investments are pouring in. The peso is strong. The stock market has reached historic heights. We have created six (6) million jobs in six years. And the world is taking notice.

Sa pagsisikap ni Albay Governor Joey Salceda na kasama sa ating delegasyon ng mga negosyante, ang Bangko Bilbao Vizcaya Argentaria, ang pinakamalaking bangko ng Espanya, ay inaprobahan ang pasilidad ng walong daang milyong Euro para sa mga Espanyol na pamuhunan at suppliers' credit sa Pilipinas. Sakop nito ang renewable energy, particular sa hangin at solar, at mga modular na pantalan at tulay. Sa pagsisikap naman ni Congressman Dodo Mandanas, pinuntahan tayo ni Adnan Kashoggi at ng Abu Dhabi Investment Company dahil sila ay magpapasok ng panukalang BOT (Build-Operate-Transfer) project na nagkakahalaga ng $500 million para sa economic zone sa pantalan ng Batangas at paliparan ng Lipa. Ang Indra, isa sa pinakakilalang kompanya sa Espanya, ay papalakihin ang kanilang kumpanyang IT sa Pilipinas at sasama sa mga bidding sa pag-ibayo ng air traffic control system ng ating paliparan upang makabalik ito sa pinakamataas na kategorya.

Bionor Transformacion is part of the INSECC and CIE Automotive Group, Spain's leading producer of biodiesel. It signed an agreement with the Philippine Agricultural Development and Commercial Corporation to develop at least 100,000 hectares of jatropha plantations in Palawan.

Ganoon din ang tiwala at kumpyansa ng komunidad ng negosyante sa Londres habang nakipagkita tayo sa tatlong hiwa-hiwalay na grupo upang magpabatid sa kanila ng ating mahahalagang hakbang dito sa Pilipinas. Halimbawa, inulit ng grupong Mittal na nakabase sa Londres ang kaniyang planong maglagay ng integrated steel mill sa Iligan City na may halagang $1.6 billion. Ang CEO naman ng Anglo-American, na itinuturing bilang flagship British Company, ay nagpahayag ng kanilang patuloy na importanteng pamumuhunan sa industriya ng minahan sa Pilipinas.

Malaking halaga ang ibinibigay ng Pilipinas sa ating mga responsibilidad sa mundo, mula sa Kumbensiyon ukol sa Climate Change hanggang sa pagkampanya kontra sa death penalty sa daigdig. Matibay ang ating paniniwala sa ating mga kompromiso bilang tunay na mamamayan ng mundo, upang isulong ang karapatang tao, kaunlaran ng ekonomiya, at seguridad ng mga bansa para sa kapayapaan ng daigdig.

Kasama ng ating kasaysayan ang mga kaalyado natin sa Europa, at kalahok din ng ating kinabukasan. Dapat tayong makipagbalikatan sa kanila. Ang mga OFWs ang ating mga sugo araw-araw sa maraming bahagi ng mundo, at kabilang sa aking agenda sa bawat bansa. Ipinagmamalaki natin ang kanilang kontribusyon sa maganda nating pangalan sa daigdig.

Ipinahayag natin sa Hari at Pangulo ng Espanya ang ating taus-pusong pagpapasalamat sa napakagandang tratong ibinibigay sa mga Pilipino sa Espanya sa matagal na panahon. Nagpasalamat tayo sa Reyna ng United Kingdom para sa mabuting pagtrato sa ating mga OFWs doon.

Ang kapakanan ng ating taumbayan ang ating pangunahing agenda sa aking pagbisita sa Kuwait. Nagpapasalamat ako sa pangunawa ng Emir, na dahil sa ating tiling, sa unang pangyayari sa kanilang kaharian, ay nangakong hindi itutuloy ang pagpataw ng parusang kamatayan kay Marilou Ranario. Tininyak din niya sa akin na sa tamang panahon, titingnan niya kung maaaring bawasan ang kaniyang panahon sa bilangguan. Nagagalak din ako na makatagpo ang ating masisipag na OFW sa Kuwait.

Tungkol sa adventurism ng ilang tao, it is clear that the actions of these few desperate men reveal just how out of touch they are with the hopes and dreams of the average Filipino. Filipinos want political stability, a bright economic future and social justice. The actions of these misguided men undermine each and every one of the genuine aspirations of real Filipinos. Instead of working to bring the nation together by working within our democratic process, their actions merely are fuel for selfish motives for personal gain.

In the end, nanaig ang rule of law. The transgressors will not hold our nation hostage with impunity. Parurusahan sila nang buong higpit ng bansa. Justice shall be served and the interests of the people upheld.

Napakahalaga ang seguridad ng bayan sa pag-unlad ng ating bansa. Ang patuloy na pagbuo ng malapit na alyansa sa Espanya, Inglatera at Kuwait ay nagpapalakas ng seguridad natin at sa ating bansa.

Source: Presidential Museum and Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches [of] Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2007. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the National Security Council (NSC) Cabinet Group Executive Committee Meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa pagpupulong ng Ehekutibong Komite ng Gabinete ng National Security Council (NSC)

[Ipinahayag sa Ramos Music Conference Room, Malacañang, ika 18 ng Disyembre, 2007]

I'd like to call this NSC cabinet group Executive Committee meeting to order.

Can we ask Jess Dureza to give the opening prayer.

Mga kababayan:

Kasama tayong nakikiramay sa tatlong marines na pinaslang ng npa bagaman walang armas dahil sa unilateral ceasefire na idineklara ng pamahalaan at sandatahang lakas ngayong pasko. Bilang Commander-in-Chief, iniutos ko sa ating hukbo at sa kapulisan na higpitan ang seguridad ng kanilang mga pangkat, kampo at gusali laban sa mga rebeldeng nagsasamantala sa tigil-putukan.

At pag-uusapan din natin itong ceasefire na ito dahil yung mga rebelde ay hindi tinatanggap yung ceasefire. Isusulong din natin ang kapayapaan at seguridad sa mindanao. Dito sa NSC Executive Committee meeting ngayon, pag-uusapan ang prosesong pangkapayapaan at kung paano ito makakasulong alinsunod sa saligang batas, kasarinlan at integridad ng teritoryo ng ating republika.

Pilipino lahat tayo, Muslim man o Kristiyano. Hindi natin dapat payagang maaksaya itong pagkakataon para sa kapayapaan at kaunlaran sa ilalim ng isang bandila, konstitusyon at republika.

Kailangan din tayong magtulung-tulong upang aksyunan ang pagtaas ng presyo at paglakas ng piso. Bunga ito ng malakas na paglago ng ekonomiya ng bansa at mundo, na siyang nagsusulong pataas kapwa ng presyo ng langis at palitan ng piso at dolyar. Upang tulungan ang masa sa nagtataasang bilihin, iniutos nating pabilisan ang pamimigay ng bigas, pagtatayo ng murang tindahan natin at bagsakan sa barangay, gayon din ang mga bagong botika ng barangay, mga koryente at tubig.

Bukod dito, dapat higpitan ng kagawaran ng kalakalan at industriya ang bantay-presyo sa mga palengke katulong ang mga pamahalaang lokal. At nagagalak tayo sa pagkilos ng kagawaran ng enerhiya, kasama ng sgv, na suriin ang kinikita ng mga kompanya ng langis at siguruhing hindi ito labis-labis. Sama-sama tayo magmamatyag para sa presyong abot-kaya.

Para naman sa pagtaas ng piso, nananawagan tayo sa mga bangko na gawin ang paraang maibaba ang singil sa remittance. At upang mapigilan ang paglakas ng piso, inuutos natin sa kagawaran ng pananalapi o dof na pag-aralan mabuting bawasan o ihinto muna ang paghiram sa ibayong dagat.

At upang maprotektahan ang kita ng mga OFW, dapat higpitan ng Kagawaran ng Paggawa or DOLE ang mga panukala at pagkilos laban sa nangingikil na recruiter at madayang employer. Para dito, ibig nating mag-anunsiyo ang DOLE ng isang numero para sa tawag o text ng OFW na kailangan ng tulong saan man sa mundo. Gamitin natin ang galing ng Pinoy sa call center para tulungan ang mga bagong bayani ng bansa.

Sa pagsapit ng Pasko at bagong taon, pinakamagandang handog sa bayan ang pagsusulong ng kapayapaan, kasaganaan, at tulong sa lahat ng mamamayan, lalo na ang nangangailangan. Ito ang handog ng inyong gobyerno.

Maraming salmat sa pagtitiwala ninyo.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during the National Security Council (NSC) Cabinet Group Executive Committee Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135535/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2308&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo at the Year-End National Economic and Development (NEDA)-Cabinet Group Meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa pagpupulong sa katapusan ng taon ng mga Gabinete ng National Economic Development Authority

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, ika 27 ng Disyembre, 2007]

Mga kababayan, puno tayo ng pag-asa sa pagwawakas ng kasalukuyang taon at pagbubukas ng bagong taon.

Ngayong Pasko, nakikitang matatag, malakas at mapayapa ang Pilipinas. Masigla ang ekonomiya, tumatalon ang stock market, at umaagos ang investment. Patuloy ang pagsulong ng ating mga programa at imprastraktura para sa kaunlaran at kasaganaan ng sambayanan.

Sa taong darating, dapat lamang na lalo nating palawakin ang biyaya mula sa lumalago nating ekonomiya at kaban ng bayan.

Kaya naman sa huling pulong ng Gabinete sa taong ito, ibig nating balangkasin at palakasin ang mga programa para sa kaunlaran at pamumuhunan sa lalawigan, at para sa edukasyon sa magandang kabuhayan at kinabukasan ng mamamayan.

Paaabutin natin sa nayon ang kapital, kaalaman, imprastraktura at teknolohiya na mabilis magpasagana sa lungsod. At pag-iibayuhin natin ang pagtuturo ng wikang Ingles at mga kasanayan sa mga trabahong agad makukuha ng may sapat na kaalaman.

At the same time, we shall redouble revenue efforts to ensure that we balance the budget next year while accelerating our infrastructure projects. These include the transfer or attrition of poor-performing Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) and Customs personnel, and more intensive anti-smuggling operations.

And lest we forget the environment in our rush for development, we shall also survey the condition of water, land and air in and around Laguna de Bay. We must build up our environment as a reflection of our commitment to our quality of life. People need to breath clean air and swim in clean water while we also build manufacturing and bridges to span our waters.

Maliwanang ang ating mga gawain sa taong darating. Magdiwang tayo sa gumagandang hinaharap ng bayan, at ating balikating sama-sama ang kaunlaran ng bawat mamamayan, sa lungsod man o bukid, sa bisa ng dunong, imprastraktura at puhunan para sa taong bayan.

Maraming salamat po!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement at the Year-End National Economic and Development (NEDA)-Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135442/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2300&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo at the Joint National Economic Development Authority Board and National Anti-Poverty Commission (NEDA-NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa magkasamang pagpupulong ng mga Gabinete ng National Economic Development Authority Board at ng National Anti-Poverty Commission (NEDA-NAPC)

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, ika 8 ng Enero, 2008]

Sa kabila ng tumataas na presyo ng langis, maganda pa rin ang takbo ng ekonomiya sa pagtapos ng kapaskuhan. Kaya naman maganda ang pag-asa sa taong ito ng higit nobeinta porsiyento ng mga Pilipino. At sa tatlong taong sunud-sunod mula 2006, una ang Pilipinas sa pandaigdigang survey ng mga negosyante na ginawa ng international auditing firm Grant Thornton.

Ibig sabihin, maganda ang mga panukala at palakad natin sa ekonomiya, kabilang ang ating mga reporma sa buwis na nagpalakas ng kumpiyansa at investment sa bansa, at nagpalago ng kaban ng bayan para sa imprastraktura at tulong sa masa.

Gagamitin natin ngayon ang patuloy na lumalagong kita ng gobyerno upang bigyan ng tulong ang mga sektor na pinakamahirap sa pagtaas ng presyo ng langis at iba pang bilingin. Bahagi ito ng mga pagkilos na isusulong sa Energy Summit na balalangkasin sa pulong ng NAPC at NEDA cabinet groups ngayon.

Daragdagan din natin ang pondo para iangat ang magsasaka, mangingisda at iba pang nabubuhay sa bukid, bundok at dagat. Paplanuhin ngayon ang mga proyekto para sa rural development upang pawin ang kahirapan at gawing abot-kaya ang pagkain. Sa lahat ng ito at ng iba pang programa ng gobyerno, poverty alleviation is our overarching goal. Isinulong natin ang reporma sa ekonomiya at buwis upang lumakas ang negosyo, dumami ang trabaho at lumago ang kaban ng bayan para sa mga programang direktong tumutulong sa mahihirap sa halip ng mga panukalang nakakabawas daw ng gastos ngunit mas pabor sa may-kaya.

Walang patid nating isusulong ang reporma at mga programang pangkaunlaran tungo sa malawakang pag-angat ng maralita na siyang layunin ng ating Millennium Development Goals sa ilalim ng United Nations, ang isa pa nating paksain ngayon.

Our economy has reached a new level of maturity and stability, salamat sa ating mga reporma. Now we will translate the positive results of our reforms to real benefits for the people.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement During the Joint National Economic Development Authority Board and National Anti-Poverty Commission (NEDA-NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412124239/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=940&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a press conference on oil price hike [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: Sa pres-konpirensiya ukol sa pagtaas ng presyo ng langis

[Ipinahayag sa Presidential Broadcast Studio, Kalayaan Hall, Malacañang, ika 8 ng Enero, 2008]

Magandang hapon, mga kababayan.

Upang aksyunan ang pagmahal ng langis sa buong mundo, iniatas natin sa gabinete na agad ipatupad ang mga kagyat na tulong sa masa.

Una, ibababa natin ang taripa sa langis at mga produktong petrolyo. Hihilingin natin sa mga kompanya ng langis na gamitin ang bawas upang ibaba ang presyo ng diesel. Ilalabas natin ang executive order nito bukas.

Pangalawa, pinapaspasan ang mga programa upang mapalakas ang produksyon at pagmudmod ng pagkain. Sa produksyon, kasama ang patubig, farm-to-market roads, post-harvest facilities. Bukod dito, magtatayo rin ng maraming bagsakan sa mga barangay ng urban areas lalo na nagbebenta ng murang bigas, gulay at karne at tindahan natin na magbebenta ng murang bigas.

Pangatlo, magpepetisyon ang gobyerno sa Energy Regulatory Commission upang palawakin ang mga diskwento sa kuryente para sa pinakamahihirap na pamilya, yung mga pinakamaliliit na gumagamit ng kuryente, yung lifeline rates.

Pang-apat, iniatas natin sa DPWH na dagdagan ang pag-empleyo ng out-of-school youth sa pagmantene ng kalsada, ito yung OYSTER program. Papalawakin natin lalo na dito sa urban areas kung saan matatamaan ang pinakamalaking bahagi ng ating mga mamamayan.

Panlima, palalawakin ng TESDA ang kursong pagtrabaho. Actually, sa ngayon pinalawak na nga ng TESDA yung kanilang programa sa welding — dahil Hanjin, siya lang mag-isa 40,000 na ang hinahanap na welders — mga butchering at saka call centers. Pero ngayon papalawakin din natin yung pagkakarapintero, kasi mukhang kailangan na kailangan ng ating lumalagong konstruksyon. Gayon din yung mga trabahong hinahanap sa Middle East, dahil sa pagtaas ng presyo ng langis, lalong lalago ang mga ekonomiya ng Middle East. Kaya lalong hahanap sila ng mga manggagawa at paborito nila ang pilipino. Kaya upang makapagsamantala tayo sa ganung hahanapin nila yung mga skills na kailangan doon ay papalawakin natin sa TESDA. At patuloy ang ating pagproteksyon sa karapatan ng ating mga manggagawa. Halimbawa, tinaas na nga natin ang minimum wage para sa mga katulong sa bahay. Noong araw 200 dollars, ngayon 400 dollars na.

Gayon din papalawakin natin ang trabaho sa mga call center at business process outsourcing. Papalawakin natin ang training dahil sa pagtaas ng presyo ng langis sa America, at kahit na sa Europe, lalong dadalhin niya sa labas ang ilang trabaho para mas lumaki ang kita nila or mamenos ang kanilang losses. At dadalhin sa labas ang pangangailangan nilang serbisyo ng mga call center at BPO at paborito ang Pilipinas kasama ng India. In fact, kung sa call center or BPO lamang ang pag-uusapan natin number one na talaga ang Pilipinas kaya papalawakin natin ang training doon.

Pang-anim, daragdagan din ang microfinance at pautang sa mga munting negosyo, upang dumami ang kabuhayan at trabaho.

Pampito, magbubukas ng marami pang murang Botika ng Barangay at Botika ng Bayan. Mamamahagi ng libu-libo pang PhilHealth card para sa pagamot ng mahihirap. Wala dito ngayon si Secretary Duque dahil nandoon siya sa Kalinga inaasikaso yung ating mga mahihirap doon para sa Kalinga. Pero dapat icongratulate natin si Secretary Duque at saka yung National Nutrition Council dahil bumaba yung hunger rate from 21% to 16%.

Ito ang mga mabilis na aksyon ng inyong pamahalaan para tulungan ang mamamayan at pamilyang Pilipino. At narito ang mga opisyal na magpapatupad nito ang kulang lang yata dito si Secretary Ebdane saka si Secretary Cerge Remonde. Si Ebdane para sa OYSTER saka si Remonde para sa microfinance. Maybe we can call Remonde naman holds office somewhere here, okay. So, anyway these are the gentlemen who will carry out the actions that I outlined and you may ask details from any of them.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during a press conference on Oil Price Hike. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412124338/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=943&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the opening of the meeting of the National Security Council – National Anti-Poverty Commission – Cabinet Group [Filipino]

Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa pagbubukas ng pulong ng National Security Council – National Anti-Poverty Commission – Cabinet Group

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, ika 15 ng Enero, 2008]

Mga kababayan, sa bisa ng lumalago nating ekonomiya at kaban ng bayan, masigasig na ang takbo ng mga proyekto ng pamahalaan sa imprastraktura, tulong sa masa, at paglaban sa katiwalian. Sa araw na ito, susuriin ng National Security Council-Cabinet Group at National Anti-Poverty Commission-Cabinet Group ang mga programa kontra sa kurakot at para sa kabuhayan, pagpaplano ng pamilya, ang pag-aalaga ng ating mga mamamayan sa ibayong dagat.

Upang di maantala ang mahahalagang proyekto at programa, nananawagan tayo sa Kongreso na agad makabuo ng kasunduan sa pagitan ng Senado at Kamara, at ipasa ang budget sa lalong madaling panahon. Ito ang pondong makapagpapalawak ng tulong sa maralitang nahihirapan kapag tumataas ang presyo ng pagunahing bilihin dahil sa pagtaas ng presyo ng langis sa buong mundo. Kailangan din ito upang matapos ang mga patubig at farm-to-market roads bago dumating ang susunod na taniman. Sa gayon, aangat ang kita ng magsasaka at dadami ang pagkaing abot-kaya. Ito ang mabisang tugon sa pagtaas ng bilihin dala ng tumatalong presyo ng langis sa mundo.

Samantala, rerepasuhin natin ang mga programa ng Presidential Anti-Graft Commission, Department of Finance at Department of Budget and Management upang maging mas malinis ang palakad ng pamahalaan at masigurong mapupunta sa taong bayan ang lahat ng biyaya mula sa lumalagong ekonomiya at kaban ng bayan. Kasama rito ang mas masigasig na pag-iimbestiga at pagtanggap sa mga tiwaling opisyal, at ang pagmamasid ng mga samahang civil society sa pagkokontrata ng mga ahensiya sa pamahalaan.

Sa lahat ng ating pagsisikap para sa kaunlaran at investment, napakahalaga ang katatagan ng lipunan, na kailangan upang makasulong ng mabilis ang mga programa ng gobyerno, at makaakit ng pribadong investment para sa dagdag trabaho.

Magkapit-bisig tayo, mga kababayan, at sama-samang isulong ang pag-unlad ng sambayanan.

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Pahayag ng Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo sa Pagbubukas ng Pulong ng National Security Council – National Anti-Poverty Commission – Cabinet Group. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412124202/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=938&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on her arrival

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On her arrival

[Issued on January 29, 2008]

Magandang umaga mga kababayan. Nagagalak akong makabalik at makasama kayong muli.

Global engagement remains a corner stone of our administration in order to ensure our security, advance our economy and promote our social advancement. In each area we made progress on our trip to Europe and the Middle East this past week. The trip has yielded benefits in terms of new trade and investment opportunities, friends and relations with multilateral agencies and donor agencies to support our development program, better working conditions for our overseas Filipinos and increase level of cooperation with countries around the world. This trip was an important part of that engagement process.

Pinapalakpakan ng mundo amg pagsulong ng ating ekonomiya na pinagpaguran natin. Sabi ng pinuno ng CityCorp, ang pinakamalaking bangko sa Amerika, everyone is positive about the Philippines. Ganoon nga ang sabi ng mga pinuno ng Hong Kong-Shanghai Bank, Credit Swiss, United Bank of Switzerland, Dubai Investment Authority, Dubai World, Dubai Holdings, Abu Dhabi Investment Authority, at Qatar Investment Authority. It's clear that the world is taking notice of the success our country has achieved in turning our economy around and in generating some of the highest economic growth levels in a generation. Its because of that international recognition that the number of current foreign investors told us of their plans to expand their operations in the Philippines, a new investor confirmed intentions to establish operations here. These investment commitments came during our meeting to the Switzerland at the World Economic Forum in Davos and at the meeting with members of all international board of advisers in Zurich as well as the meetings in Dubai.

The fact that the international rating agency Moody's allowed its upgrade of its ... credit outlook in the Philippines from stable to positive during our attendance at the World Economic Forum only serves to confirm what we've already been telling the assemblies of this important event that the Philippines has some of the best economic fundamentals in Asia and we have created a new business environment that offers one of the best values for investment in the world – at least in Asia.

Maraming bunga ang maikling dalaw natin sa Dubai. In meeting with senior government officials including the UAE Prime Minister and ruler of Dubai Sheikh Mohammed bin Rashid Al Maktoum and leaders in that nation's business community we carried our message that no location offers better value for investment than the Philippines. The message was received and there will be new investments from Dubai entering into the Philippines beginning this year. For one, we are happy that Dubai Ports (?) World was already has a big operation in Manila signed an agreement, a memorandum of understanding with the Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority and expressed its intention also for investing Cebu as well as in tourism.

Isa pang mahalagang layunin ng pagdalaw natin sa Dubai ang paghatid ng biyaya sa ating mga overseas Filipinos. Mga tatlong daang libong nagtatrabaho sa pitong bahagi ng United Arab Emirates kabilang ang Dubai. We use that session to announce measures that are designed to ease the impact of a strong peso on our overseas Filipinos no matter where they are in the world. This includes a new deposit instrument of the Development Bank of the Philippines designed to ease the impact of fluctuations in currency rates on the remittances of overseas Filipinos.

Dahil sa paglakas ng piso inutos natin na gumawa ng paraang mabawasan ang gastos sa remittance. Inilunsad ang Land Bank card upang makapag-remit sa cellphones sa mababang singil at upang magproteksiyon ng ating mga overseas Filipinos may ipinaliwanag (?) ang Land Bank tungkol sa OFW funds na ilulunsad sa Marso. Sa Dubai, inilunsad natin ang Tindahang Pinoy project ng Department of Trade and Industry upang magkaroon ng karagdagang kita ang mga overseas Filipinos. That project would enable overseas Filipinos to earn income, extra income as franchise holders in the sale of Filipino products under the One Town-One Product program of the DTI in their host countries. Bahagi rin ito ng programa ng Overseas Workers Welfare Administration upang maturuan ang mga overseas Filipinos sa pagnenegosyo bago sila bumalik sa Pilipinas.

In conclusion is as clear as everyone who knows our country agrees that we are in a better position today than ever to withstand and be resilient when confounded with international economic uncertainty. While we are confident and optimistic about the long term process of our economy we are also cautious about the current state of the world economy.

As such, we assure everyone we went abroad and we say to our people here at home we are not complacent. We remain vigilant in pursuing economic reform and maintaining our fiscal discipline just as we are working hard at home to mitigate the impact of any economic slow down on our people. At bagaman pinakamababa sa buong kasaysayan ang Filipino nagsasabing mahirap sila sa kanilang kinakain, walang tigil pa rin ang ating programa kontra sa gutom at kahirapan. Ito ang bahagi ng pagpupulong natin ngayon sa Kabinete. Sa ibayong dagat man o dito sa bayan walang tigil ang pagsisikap natin para sa magandang buhay at kinabukasan ng buong sambayanan. Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Arrival Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123706/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=927&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo at the Cabinet meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: Sa pagpupulong ng Gabinete

[Inilabas noong ika 12 ng Pebrero, 2008]

Mga kababayan, mahalagang tutukan natin ang nagbabantang paghina ng ekonomiya ng mundo. Ito ang babala ng mga ministro ng ekonomiya at pananalapi ng pinakamalaking mga ekonomiya ng mundo sa kanilang pulong sa Tokyo.

Dahil sa pagsama ng ekonomiya ng Amerika, ma-a-aring tamaan ang ating exports, investments, turismo at padalang pera ng mga OFW. Kaya naman dapat tayong kumilos upang pagtibayin ang ating ekonomiya at isulong ang patuloy nitong paglago at paglikha ng trabaho at hanapbuhay para sa taong bayan.

Maliwanag ang dapat nating gawin. Una, papaspasan natin ang mga proyektong imprastraktura at mga programang pangmasa sa mga buwang darating, upang kargahan ang paglago ng ekonomiya at palakasin ang negosyo at agrikultura. Ganitong mga proyekto ang mismong pag-uusapan at pabibilisin sa pulong ng Gabinete ngayon.

Pangalawa, daragdagan pa natin ang pamumuhunan sa taong bayan, sa pamamagitan ng edukasyon at pagsasanay, lalo na sa mga trabahong kailangang-kailangan dito at sa ibayong dagat, gaya ng konstruksiyon at call center. Importante ring tugunan ang mga pangangailangan ng OFW na inilapit sa atin ni dating Chief Justice Artemio Panganiban.

Pangatlo, isusulong natin ang reporma upang mapabilis ang mga proseso sa gobyerno at mabawasan ang katiwalian at kabagalang inirereklamo ng karaniwang mamamayan at mga investor. Iniaatas ko sa Anti-Red Tape Task Force ni Secretary Peter Favila at sa Procurement Transparency Group ni Secretary Nonoy Andaya na makipagtulungan sa pribadong business sector, academe at simbahan para sa reporma ng mga sistema ng pamahalaan.

Sa ating pagkakapit-bisig upang isulong ang ekonomiya, mahalagang pagtibayin ang panatag at payapang lipunan na napakahalaga sa mga turista, investor at bumibili ng ating mga produkto. Sa gitna ng mga ligalig sa mundo, gawin nating isla ng matatag at malakas na ekonomiya ang Pilipinas. Pagtulungan natin ito para sa ating mga komunidad at pamilya. Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). PGMA's Opening Statement: Cabinet meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412123501/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=986&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a meeting of the National Price Coordinating Council with the NEDA-Cabinet Group

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a meeting of the National Price Coordinating Council with the NEDA-Cabinet Group

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, March 25, 2008]

I'd like to call this National Price Coordinating Council and NEDA-Cabinet Group meeting to order.

Please sit down so I can make a few opening remarks for this and for the next meeting.

Nalulungkot tayo, ang sambayanang Pilipino, sa karamdaman ni dating Pangulong Aquino. Siya ang nanguna sa ating bansa sa mapayapang pagbabago. Ipinanalalangin natin siya, ang paggaling niya at ang katatagan ng kaniyang pamilya.

Mga kababayan, matapos ang dalangin at sakripisyo ng Mahal na Araw, kailangan bumalik agad tayong lahat sa trabaho. Ngayong umaga, magpupulong ang NEDA-Cabinet Group kasama ang National Price Coordinating Council upang lalong paigtingin ang mga pagkilos mula pa noong isang taon upang mabawasan ang pagtaas ng presyo ng bilihan.

The global economy is facing significant challenges. These global forces are putting more strain on our working poor as prices for commodities like rice and fuel increase. We are a price-sensitive nation.

Kaya naman pinulong natin agad ang Gabinete at Price Coordinating Council para sa anumang aksiyong kailangan pa upang laging sapat ang pagkain. Hinihiling natin sa mga tindero na huwag magtaas ng presyo dahil lamang may nagsasabing may krisis.

The Secretary of Agriculture is staking out all NFA warehouses so he can follow the big 10-wheeler trucks and see where they are bringing rice. I'm instructing the NBI to assist him in doing this.

He's investigating all warehouses, watching them, re-licensing them. He shall hit the hoarders.

Patuloy ang iba pa nating pagkilos upang pigilin ang pagtaas ng gastusin. Nagpapasalamat tayo sa Manila Water, Maynilad at Meralco sa kamakailan pagsunod sa ating panawagan na bawasan ang singil sa mahihirap na pamilya. At nagagalak tayo sa paghinto ng welga at taas-pasahe ng pampublikong sasakyan matapos nating iutos na huwag paulit-ulit na tikitan ang mga tsuper ng mga local governments. Dapat magtulungan tayong lahat laban sa pagmahal ng bilihan.

Magpupulong din mamaya ang National Security Cabinet Group, kasama ng NEDA, Bureau of Customs at BIR upang pataasin ang koleksiyon ng buwis at sugpuin ang smuggling.

Our revenue target for this year according to Secretary Teves is P1.236 trillion broken down as follows: BIR P845 billion, BOC P254 billion, Treasury P57 billion, and other offices P80 billion, P30 billion of which is privatization.

We recently signed a letter of instructions to the DOF, the BIR and Customs to propose a government-civil society body similar to the Procurement Transparency Group, to monitor collection efforts, gather lifestyle and corruption information, and follow up major evasion or smuggling cases, the latter in close coordination with the Presidential Anti-Smuggling Group.

The PTG version in Customs shall be called PORTAL or Ports Transparency Alliance. The mode for partnership shall be defined by a Framework of Cooperation to Undermine Smuggling or FOCUS which will define the duties and responsibilities of the Bureau of Customs and the partner trade, businessmen, church, civil society groups which will monitor a particular smuggling-prone commodity like oil, which shall be called OilWatch and foodstuffs under AgriWatch.

The alliance should follow product lines as there exist a bilateral anti-smuggling relationship between the BOC and the likes of PHILSUCOM and the Sugar Alliance on sugar led by Governor Joe Zubiri; the tile manufacturers of ceramics; there's a petrochemical alliance on resins; PHILCEMCOR on cement. The idea is to build on these institutional linkages but give them a shot in the arm by expanding membership to include churchmen, fair trade advocates, and proponents of trade facilitation or anti-red tape.

These alliances shall be federated into the overarching PORTAL without, however, losing the independence and the initiative of the anti-smuggling compact of the BOC and trade associations. What is important is to provide civil society a peephole into Customs operations but in a way that won't disrupt the main job of raising revenues which might be disrupted if excessive oversight powers are delegated to the private sector. Selection of outside lifestyle checkers shall be done carefully to avert witchhunt.

PORTAL shall also undertake downstream activities by plugging smuggling from the demand side, by asking consumers to boycott smuggled goods — "When the buying stops, the smuggling does, too." This shall dovetail with the Buy Philippine Made Campaign by domestic manufacturers. PORTAL shall highlight technology-aided revenue enhancement measures, such as X-ray and computerization, and other interventions that reduce personal contacts in transactions which in turn give discretionary powers to revenue officers.

The PORTAL program shall be for immediate implementation.

The PTG-like formation for BIR shall be called Partnership for a Transparent and Efficient Revenue Service or PARTNERS, a name that captures our vision for a principled and productive collaboration between the government and those that provide the lifeblood for its operations. If we believe that taxation without representation is tyranny, we likewise believe that citizen representation in taxation is also a democratic ideal.

We count on our civil society partners to help us remind our people that taxes are the membership dues of citizens. In return, taxes paid shall be rebated in the form of public services. The citizens will get their rebates in kind, in terms of new infrastructure, peace and order, and education for all. But this can only proceed from voluntary tax obedience, which we encourage by ensuring that every one pays their share as fixed by laws and not fixed by men.

Ito ang landas na ating lalakaran sa mga taong darating. Tututukan natin ang mga programang pang-imprastruktura at pangmasa, at hindi magpapalihis sa pamumulitika. Samantala, kikilos ang mga institusyon ng hustisya — ang Ombudsman, ang Kagawaran ng Katarungan, ang mga hukuman, upang siyasatin at hatulan ang mga paratang ayon sa katibayan at bantay ng taong bayan. Sa ganitong paraan matatamo natin ang kaunlaran, kapayapaan, katotohanan at katarungan sa ating bayan.

Maraming salamat at Mabuhay ang sambayanang Pilipino! (applause)

*Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during a meeting of the National Price Coordinating Council with the NEDA-Cabinet Group. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122721/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1060&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during a meeting of the National Price Coordinating Council with the NEDA-Cabinet Group, March 25, 2008

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a Meeting of the National Price Coordinating Council with the NEDA-Cabinet Group

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, Manila, Philippines, March 25, 2008]

I'd like to call this National Price Coordinating Council and NEDA-Cabinet Group meeting to order.

Please sit down so I can make a few opening remarks for this and for the next meeting.

Nalulungkot tayo, ang sambayanang Pilipino, sa karamdaman ni dating Pangulong Aquino. Siya ang nanguna sa ating bansa sa mapayapang pagbabago. Ipinanalalangin natin siya, ang paggaling niya at ang katatagan ng kaniyang pamilya.

Mga kababayan, matapos ang dalangin at sakripisyo ng Mahal na Araw, kailangan bumalik agad tayong lahat sa trabaho. Ngayong umaga, magpupulong ang NEDA-Cabinet Group kasama ang National Price Coordinating Council, upang lalong paigtingin ang mga pagkilos mula pa noong isang taon upang mabawasan ang pagtaas ng presyo ng bilingin.

The global economy is facing significant challenges. These global forces are putting more strain on our working poor, as prices for commodities like rice and fuel increase. We are a price-sensitive nation.

Kaya naman pinulong natin agad ang Gabinete at Price Coordinating Council para sa anumang aksiyong kailangan pa upang laging sapat ang pagkain. Hinihiling natin sa mga tindero na huwag magtaas ng presyo dahil lamang may nagsasabing may krisis.

The Secretary of Agriculture is staking out all NFA warehouses so he can follow the big 10-wheeler trucks and see where they are bringing rice. I'm instructing the NBI to assist him in doing this. He's investigating all warehouses, watching them, re-licensing them. He shall hit the hoarders.

Patuloy ang iba pa nating pagkilos upang pigilin ang pagtaas ng gastusin. Nagpapasalamat tayo sa Manila Water, Maynilad at Meralco sa kamakailan pagsunod sa ating panawagan na bawasan ang singil sa mahihirap na pamilya. At nagagalak tayo sa paghinto ng welga at taas-pasahe ng pampublikong sasakyan matapos nating iutos na huwag paulit-ulit na tikitan ang mga tsuper ng mga local governments. Dapat magtulungan tayong lahat laban sa pagmahal ng bilingin.

Magpupulong din mamaya ang National Security Cabinet Group, kasama ng NEDA, Bureau of Customs at BIR upang pataasin ang koleksiyon ng buwis at sugpuin ang smuggling.

Our revenue target for this year according to Secretary Teves is P1.236 trillion broken down as follows: BIR P845 billion, BOC P254 billion, Treasury P57 billion, and other offices P80 billion, P30 billion of which is privatization.

We recently signed a letter of instructions to the DOF, the BIR and Bureau of Customs to propose a government-civil society body similar to the Procurement Transparency Group, to monitor collection efforts, gather lifestyle and corruption information, and follow up major evasion or smuggling cases, the latter in close coordination with the Presidential Anti-Smuggling Group.

The PTG version in Customs shall be called PORTAL or Ports Transparency Alliance. The mode for partnership shall be defined by a Framework of Cooperation to Undermine Smuggling or FOCUS which will define the duties and responsibilities of the Bureau of Customs and the partner trade, businessmen, church, civil society groups which will monitor a particular smuggling-prone commodity like oil, which shall be called OilWatch and foodstuffs under AgriWatch.

The alliance should follow product lines as there exist a bilateral anti-smuggling relationship between the BOC and the likes of PHILSUCOM and the Sugar Alliance on Sugar led by Governor Joe Zubiri; the tile manufacturers of ceramics; there's a petrochemical alliance on resins; PHILCEMCOR on cement. The idea is to build on these institutional linkages but give them a shot in the arm by expanding membership to include churchmen, fair trade advocates, and proponents of trade facilitation or anti-red tape.

These alliances shall be federated into the overarching PORTAL without, however, losing the independence and the initiative of the anti-smuggling compact of the BOC and trade associations. What is important is to provide civil society a peephole into Customs operations, but in a way that won't disrupt the main job of raising revenues which might be disrupted, if excessive oversight powers are delegated to the private sector. Selection of outside lifestyle checkers shall be done carefully to avert witchhunt.

PORTAL shall also undertake downstream activities by plugging smuggling from the demand side, by asking consumers to boycott smuggled goods—"When the buying stops, the smuggling does, too." This shall dovetail with the Buy Philippine Made Campaign by domestic manufacturers. PORTAL shall highlight technology-aided revenue enhancement measures, such as X-ray and computerization, and other interventions that reduce personal contacts in transactions which in turn give discretionary powers to revenue officers. The PORTAL program shall be for immediate implementation.

The PTG-like formation for BIR shall be called Partnership for a Transparent and Efficient Revenue Service or PARTNERS, a name that captures our vision for a principled and productive collaboration between the government and those that provide the lifeblood for its operations. If we believe that taxation without representation is tyranny, we likewise believe that citizen representation in taxation is also a democratic ideal.

We count on our civil society partners, to help us remind our people that taxes are the membership dues of citizens. In return, taxes paid shall be rebated in the form of public services. The citizens will get their rebates in kind, in terms of new infrastructure, peace and order, and education for all. But this can only proceed from voluntary tax obedience, which we encourage by ensuring that every one pays their share as fixed by laws and not fixed by men.

Ito ang landas na ating lalakaran sa mga taong darating. Tututukan natin ang mga programang pang-imprastruktura at pangmasa, at hindi magpapalihis sa pamumulitika. Samantala, kikilos ang mga institusyon ng hustisya — ang Ombudsman, ang Kagawaran ng Katarungan, ang mga hukuman, upang siyasatin at hatulan ang mga paratang ayon sa katibayan at bantay ng taong bayan. Sa ganitong paraan matatamo natin ang kaunlaran, kapayapaan, katotohanan at katarungan sa ating bayan.

Maraming salamat at mabuhay ang sambayanang Pilipino!

Source: Adamson University Library

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a Cabinet Meeting

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: During a Cabinet Meeting

[Delivered at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport Terminal 2, Pasay City, April 01, 2008]

Our trip to Hong Kong was dedicated to meeting with our strong OFW contingent in Hong Kong and to meeting with business leaders to encourage them to continue to make strong investments in the Philippines.

At a time when the Philippine economy is at its strongest in over 30 years, it is imperative that we stay focused on continuing to strengthen our economy through aggressive outreach to investors and to enhance our cooperation with governments in the region like Hong Kong.

One central component of our economic plan has been steady and consistent investment by our government in strengthening our regional economic engagement.

Taken together, all of these efforts – our economic plan at home and our foreign engagement abroad – have helped prepare us for the global economic forces that are affecting the Philippines today.

Our trip to Hong Kong is another action we took to continue to bolster our economy through more investments and to confer with vital business leaders on cooperative steps we can take to cushion ourselves in Asia against these global issues. We also took the opportunity to meet with our precious OFWs and introduce a series of programs we are taking to mitigate the strengthening of the peso against the dollar.

The fact that I have been asked to deliver the keynote address at the Asia investment conference in Hong Kong to over a thousands investors and fund managers underscores the interest the outside world has in the growing stability and economic fortunes of the Philippines.

We are proud to once again having carried the banner of our nation and led the charge for even more investments in our great nation.

Bahagi rin ng ating pagsisikap na umakit ng investment are palakasin ang ekonomiya, magpupulong ngayon ang NEDA Board upang talakayin ang ASEAN-Japan Economic Partnership Agreement na kasalukuyang binubuo ng mga ministro ng kalakal sa ASEAN. Gaya ng ginagawa natin sa Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement o JPEPA, sisiguruhin natin na makikinabang ang Pilipinas sa kasunduang binabalangkas ng ASEAN, lalo na ang mga manggagawa at maralita na umaasa sa investment para sa dagdag kita at trabaho.

Mag-uulat din sa NEDA Board si Agriculture Secretary Arthur Yap tungkol sa ating mga pagkilos to crack down on price gouging; increase the supply of rice where necessary; and invest more in planting and agricultural modernization. Nagagalak tayo sa ulat ng Department of Justice at NBI na malapit na silang maghabla sa mga mangangalakal ng bigas na negbebenta ng bigas NFA na mahal.

Sa ating mga programa para sa abot-kayang pagkain, kailangan magtulungan ang lahat – gobyerno, mga pamahalaang local, pribadong sector, at mga samahang bayan. Noong isang lingo, pinulong natin ang mga negosyante sa ilalim ng National Price Coordinating Council, at hinirang si Bise-Presidente Noli de Castro upang subaybayan ang mga pagkilos para sa abot-kayang bilihan. Ngayon, nananawagan tayo sa mga pamahalaang local at mga korporasyon at institusyon ng gobyerno.

Inaatasan ko ang DA at DTI na makipagtulungan sa mga gobyernong local sa pagmamatyang sa mga bodega at palengke, at sa pagpapalakas ng ani ng bigas sa bansa. Dapat siguruhing ngay nagbebenta ng bigas NFA malapit sa mga maralitang barangay, at ipaalam sa tao kung nasaan sila sa mge sentro ng barangay at simbahan ng parokya. Inaatasan ko rin ang DA na gumawa ng programa upang makapagtanim ng palay ang mga LGU at ibenta ito sa

NFA. Maraming lupain ang mga lalawigan at lungsod na pwede bungkalin, at sa local government code devolved ang Department of Agriculture sa mga local government. May pera sila upang pondohan ang pagsasaka – mga P32 billion surplus noong isang taon.

Maglalabas din tayo ng administrative order upang gamitin ng mga korporasyon at institusyon ng gobyerno ang limang porsyento ng kanilang surplus na mahigit sandaang bilyong piso sa pagsasaka ng palay at iba pang programang pangmaralita, alinsunod sa batas. Dapat silang sumangguni sa da at DSWD sa pagbabalangkas ng mga proyekto at simulang ang mga ito sa loob ng tatlong buwan. Dapat magtulungan tayong lahat upang labanan ang kahirapan.

We look forward to key allies among LGU leaders and top GOCCs, GFIs and SSIs (PAGCOR, PCSO, SSS, GSIS, NPC and PNOC) to immediately and prominently respond to this call. We invite them to present their initial plans to the cabinet on April 8, and begin implementation within three months.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during a Cabinet Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122239/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1364&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Live Reports from the Field of Palay Harvest at the NAPC-NEDA Cabinet Group Meeting

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Live Reports from the Field of Palay Harvest at the NAPC-NEDA Cabinet Group Meeting

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, April 8, 2008]

Mga kababayan:

Our near-term objective is to focus on putting food on the table for our people. The global rise in the price of basic commodities like fuel and rice is putting a strain on all hardworking Filipinos, particularly on our very poor.

We aim to prevent these strains on individuals and their families from becoming a crisis by taking decisive action. Concerning rice, it is essential for the people of the nation understand what the situation exactly is and what we are doing about it. It would be unfortunate if panic overtook logic, for we will endure and survive this moment and come through it stronger. In the meantime, however, it will take unity and hard work. Gaya ng dalangin natin, kailangan magtulungan tayong lahat upang mailahad ang pagkain sa bawat mesa. We must all pull together including the government, the private sector, civil society and our faith community to help the poor and see us through this challenging time.

Overall, our strengthened economic situation gives us the ability and flexibility to respond forcefully to make sure we maintain control of the situation. Specific to the rice issue, we have an Action Plan comprising of three phases to make sure our rice situation remains stable: First, is to secure supply; second, to ensure proper distribution; third, is to guarantee enforcement of laws to protect our people against gouging and corruption.

We can report that our supply is secure for the foreseeable future. Our program of fertilizers, irrigation and infrastructure, equipment, education and expansion, loans, dryers and post-harvest facilities and seeds have allowed us to increase our rice production by more than the population growth rate of 2.04 percent. And as far as the historical gap between production and consumption in our country, 500,000 metric tons (70 percent from Vietnam, 30 percent from Thailand) have arrived. Seven hundred thousand metric tons are arriving in April, May and June (at least 80 percent from Vietnam, the balance from Thailand and about 30,000 metric tons from Pakistan). There is a public bidding on April 17 for 500,000 metric tons arriving in May, June and July. Another bidding is set in May for rice deliveries in June, July and August for the balance of 500,000 metric tons.

Ihaharap ngayon sa Gabinete ang ulat ng Kagawaran ng Pagsasaka tungkol sa sitwasyon sa bigas at mga pagkilos natin upang madala ang ating inaani ngayon mula sa bukid patungo sa merkado nang walang labis na gastos at pagka-antala.

Concerning distribution, the government is sparing no effort to ensure that our supplies of rice get from the source to the tables of Filipinos throughout our nation. But to improve the ability of government to deliver rice to those most in need, we are going to enlist the aid of the faith-based community — our churches and mosques — to bring relief to our poor in terms of essential supplies of rice and other basic commodities. We are also harnessing the power of our government to use our schools, where it is needed most, to deliver rice to our poorest children, for they must not be hungry. They must remain healthy and strong and ready to get the education that will ensure their future and the future of our country.

Concerning enforcement of laws against gouging and corruption, we have already taken steps to protect our consumers from rice bandits and unscrupulous traders who would hold our citizens hostage to their own selfish and corrupt practices. Those who seek to take advantage of our people must be stopped. I am leading the charge to crack down on any form of corruption by public and private officials who would divert supplies or pervert the price of this essential commodity in any way.

Anyone caught stealing rice from the people, we will seek to throw in jail. In order to reinforce this, we will be submitting a Consumers Bill of Rights to Congress that will help strengthen the protection and defense of consumers while strengthening penalties against those individuals or entities that abuse the right of our people to this basic commodity.

Sa lahat ng mga pagsisikap nating ito, pinakamahalaga ang pagtutulungan at pagkakaisa, gaya ng ating dalangin kanina. Magkapit-bisig tayo para sa kaunlaran at laban sa kahirapan.

Maraming salamat at pagpalain nawa tayo ng Poong Maykapal.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement During the Live Reports from the Field of Palay Harvest at the NAPC-NEDA Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122210/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1356&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during a meeting with the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) with the NEDA Cabinet Group

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During a meeting with the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) with the NEDA Cabinet Group

[Delivered at the Multi-purpose Hall, DOJ Bldg., Padre Faura St., Manila, April 15, 2008]

Mga Kababayan:

Magpupulong muli ngayon ang NEDA Cabinet Group at ang National Price Coordinating Council upang lalong paigtingin ang mga pagkilos para sa sapat at abot-kayang bigas.

The global rise in the price of basic commodities like fuel and rice is putting a strain on all hardworking Filipinos, particularly on our very poor.

Our strengthened economic situation gives us the ability and flexibility to respond forcefully to make sure we maintain control of the situation. Specific to the rice issue, we have an Action Plan, comprising three phases: First, is to secure supply; second, to ensure proper distribution; third, to guarantee enforcement of the law to protect our people against price gouging and corruption. That is why we are here in the DOJ today because cases were filed this morning and we may be discussing some of these cases later on.

Supply is secure for the foreseeable future. Total contracted quantity of NFA rice from the December 2007 to March 2008 bidding is 1.2 million metric tons. Fifty percent of the quantity has arrived. Quantity in transit is 66,000 metric tons. Rice being loaded at roadports is 30,600 metric tons. NFA is set to bid for additional rice stocks on May 2, subject to the approval of the Government Policy Procurement Board which will meet today, I understand. This is for rice for arrival in June, July and August.

Matagal nang sinisikap ng bansang maipantay and produksiyon ng bigas sa ating pangangailangan. Tuloy pa rin ang ating pagsisikap. Dapat ding siguruhin na sapat ang kikitain ng magsasaka. Kaya hanggang Mayo 17 pesos ang bili ng NFA sa palay.

Concerning distribution, the government is sparing no effort to ensure that our supplies of rice get from the source to the tables of Filipinos throughout our nation. But to improve the ability of government to deliver rice to those most in need, we are going to enlist the aid of the faith-based community — our churches and mosques — and perhaps the local governments as well. Nakikipagtulungan ang pamahalaan sa Simbahan, mga gobyernong lokal, mga ahensiya ng pamahalaan, kabilang ang Sandatahang Lakas at Pambansang Pulis, upang maihatid sa taong-bayan ang bigas at iba pang pagkain.

Concerning enforcement of our laws against price gouging and corruption, we have already taken steps to protect our consumers from rice and even bread bandits and unscrupulous traders together with their accomplices in the bureaucracy who would hold our citizens hostage to their own selfish and corrupt practices. Those who seek to take advantage of our people will be stopped.

I am leading the charge to crack-down on any form of corruption by public or private persons who would divert supplies or pervert the price of the essential commodity of rice in any way. Anyone caught stealing rice from the people must be thrown in jail.

This morning cases were filed in the DOJ and DOJ will be issuing subpoenas today and the respondents will be given ten days to respond to the subpoena. Part of the Rules of Court.

In order to reinforce all of these, we will be submitting a Consumers Bill of Rights to Congress.

I call on all our leaders — political, civic, religious — to join hands and close ranks to meet this challenge.

Thank you. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during a meeting with the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) with the NEDA Cabinet Group. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412122105/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1346&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint Legislative Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) and the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) Meeting

Opening Statement of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Joint Legislative Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) and the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) Meeting

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, April 22, 2008]

I call this LEDAC Meeting to order.

And for today we have invited also the members of the Price Coordinating Council. Can we ask Secretary Peter Favila to lead the opening prayer.

Mr. Vice President and the other members of the Cabinet, Mr. Senate President and the other members of the Senate, Mr. Speaker and the other members of the House, other members of LEDAC, members of the Price Coordinating Council, ladies and gentlemen.

Welcome to this LEDAC Meeting.

Today is Earth Day and in our Cabinet meeting earlier we took up the theme of DENR for this year which is "Clean Water."

The environment has a great deal to do with the high fuel prices, the global climate change and the lessen production of food in the world today. So, what we will be discussing with the Price Coordinating Council yesterday is also very much a result of the events that have happened to the environment over the past several years.

Our vision is based on a strong and growing economy. It's the central pillar that we have labored to create to help guarantee peace, order and stability in our country.

The results of our efforts come none too soon. There are global clouds on the horizon that are driving up the price of oil and food, particularly rice. Thankfully, with the support of previous legislation and with Executive Action and with the good work of our business sector, our workers, our farmers, we are now in a position to weather this storm.

But this is a global problem and we must work together to resolve this.

We are totally sensitive to the fact that a large segment of the Philippine population is price sensitive.

Sa buong kasaysayan ng Pilipinas, sama-samang pagkakabalikatan ang laging nagpapatibay at nagdadala ng ating sambayanan lampas ng mga ligalig, kalamidad at pagtutulungan sumagabal sa bansa.

Pagkakaisa at pagtutulungan din ang ating pakay sa mahalagang pulong sa araw na ito.

Paiigtingin ang ating pagsisikap na maipasa ang kinakailangang mga batas, lalo na para sa abot-kayang gamot, kaltas-buwis sa mga manggagawa, proteksyon ng mga mamimili, reporma sa lupa, mga panukala para sa ating kalikasan at mga panukala upang umakit ng negosyo at lumikha ng trabaho.

Dinig natin ang panawagan ng mamamayan na magkapit-bisig ang lahat, anuman ang partido, upang sama-sama nating maihatid sa abot-kayang halaga ang pagkain, paggamot, at iba pang biyaya ng kaunlaran sa bawat Pilipino.

During the entire administration, we have have been focused on our economy and modernizing every aspect of the economic underpinnings of the Philippines. This includes agriculture, from development of new hybrids to bringing irrigated land to 1.4 million hectares — the largest irrigated area ever in our history — to investments in best agricultural practices, to increases in loans to help our farmers purchase the best equipment, among other activities. What is happening now with rice and global prices despite all these efforts is a once in a millennium global crisis.

Because we must work together to resolve this, together with other countries but most of all, among ourselves, we have invited the Price Coordinating Council, leaders of the private sector to join our meeting.

Once again, welcome to all!

And as we excuse the media we can now go to Secretary Jake Lagonera who will start us with the briefing on the common legislative agenda.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during the Joint Legislative Executive Development Advisory Council (LEDAC) and the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121947/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1339&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the signing of the Memorandum of Agreement creating the Judiciary, Executive and Legislative Advisory and Consultative Council (JELAC)

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the signing of the Memorandum of Agreement creating the Judiciary, Executive and Legislative Advisory and Consultative Council (JELAC)

[Issued at the Reception Hall Area, Malacañang, May 13, 2008]

Thank you Secretary Bunye.

Magandang umaga mga Kababayan:

Today, we witnessed a historic moment in our constitutional democracy — the creation of the Judiciary, Executive, Legislative Advisory and Consultative Council or JELAC. With us now are the highest officials of our land, representing the three co-equal branches of government to affix our signatures to the agreement institutionalizing consultation, cooperation and coordination in pursuit of the rule of law and the advancement of our nation.

Sa ating pagharap sa maraming hamon sa ating bayan pagbabalikatan at pag-uunawaan ang pinakamahalaga kaya naman inilulunsad natin ngayon ang Judiciary, Executive, Legislative Advisory and Consultative Council o JELAC.

Ang kapulungan ng mga pinuno ng sangay ng pamahalaan, hukuman, panguluhan at batasan. The separation of power into three co-equal independent branches of government lies at the foundation of our constitutional system, with the division of labor in promulgating the rule of law.

Congress enacts legislation. The Executive implements it. And the Courts interpret it. Our different functions and duties serve to circumscribe our powers and enhance the liberties and interests of citizens.

At the same time, separation does not mean isolation, rather, among our co-equal branches there should be consultation and cooperation to advance shared priorities in the national interest and welfare of all Filipinos.

We envision JELAC to be the venue where representatives of the three branches can identify issues pertaining to the primacy of the rule of law and formulate and undertake solutions to strengthen due process and the institutions of justice, and implement our laws better for the betterment of every Filipino.

Maraming maitutulong ang JELAC upang mas makatugon ang pamahalaan sa mga pangangailangan ng bayan. Nang palakpakan ng United Nations Human Rights Council and ulat ni Secretary Eduardo Ermita sa Geneva noon Abril, ang tatlong sangay ng gobyerno, and the independent bodies like the Commission on Human Rights and the Office of the Ombudsman, ay binigyang puri sa ating sama-samang pagkilos upang pagtibayin at igalang ang karapatang pantao sa ating bansa.

We need Judicial-Executive-Legislative cooperation in other priority thrusts. Our fiscal efforts, cheered by global investors, are built on new tax legislation, stricter tax collection, and swift justice for violators of tax laws. In bringing adequate, affordable rice to our people, we harness the procurement law and the Agriculture and Fisheries Modernization Act, and we charge price manipulators in court.

Most crucial of all, our drive towards development will grind to a halt without the rule of law as its foundation. The JELAC's mandate is centered on the rule of law.

Tulong-tulong sa pag-unlad ng sambayanan at pag-iral ng batas — ito ang layunin ng JELAC.

Maraming salamat at Mabuhay ang tatlong magkapantay na sangay.

Maraming salamat, thank you. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during the Signing of the Memorandum of Agreement Creating the Judiciary, Executive and Legislative Advisory and Consultative Council (JELAC). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121748/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1409&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Department Of Education Command Conference “Oplan Balik Eskwela 2008” and simultaneous oath taking of the Professional Regulatory Commission (PRC)

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Department Of Education Command Conference “Oplan Balik Eskwela 2008” and simultaneous oath taking of the Professional Regulatory Commission’s (PRC)

[Released at the Bulwagan ng Karunungan, Dept. of Education complex, Meralco Ave., Pasig City, May 26, 2008]

Thank you.

Before we go to the subject matter of the presentations, I just want to congratulate the teachers who already got the 13th month pay earlier, a few days ago and... (Applause) half, I mean half of the 13th month pay. And we’ve also been releasing the chalk allowance, and I asked Secretary Lapus because the chalk allowance was increased this year, I asked Secretary Lapus because he is still preparing the budget for next year to increase the chalk allowance further for next year. (Applause)

And then, I’d like to make an announcement related to CHED because it’s still related to education before we go to the DepEd proper if I may:

The non-stop increase in oil prices and the unprecedented food price shock now roiling the world are adversely affecting household incomes and forcing families to cut back on spending if not do away altogether with certain necessities.

At an average of 450 pesos per unit parents are spending about 10,000 for their children with 21 unit loads in college, an expense that eats up the sizable amount of the hard-earned income of ordinary Filipinos. Hence any adjustment in school fees is an added burden most of them can ill-afford during this belt-tightening times.

For us to keep producing highly skilled graduates who will lead our country in its leap to first world status in decades time, government must reverse the drop out rate and set off an environment conducive for our parents to provide quality tertiary education for their children. Be it in private institutions or in our state colleges and universities.

With this in mind, I have directed the Commission on Higher Education... I’m directing the Commission on Higher Education to put off any increase in tuition fees for state universities and colleges this coming school year 2008 and 2009. (Applause)

I’m also directing the CHED to communicate my appeal to private higher education institutions to reconsider and freeze plans to increase tuition fees and other fees this school year. (Applause)

The last thing that our parents need at this point to keep their children striving for college diplomas is another round of adjustment in tuition fees and other school expenses.

The CHED should also do an extensive study on the extent of compliance of past tuition fee increases with what the law provides, which is for school administrators to set aside 70 percent of the new fees for salaries and other benefits of their faculty and non-academic personnel and 20 percent for modernizing their facilities.

Although government cannot deny private business the fruits of its legitimate investments, especially in lofty causes such as higher learning, it must nonetheless balance this interest with that of the rest of our people who regard college education the lasting legacy to future generations.

Moreover, this move is in keeping with the Constitutional mandate for the State to protect and promote the right of its citizens to education for all from the primary to tertiary levels.

Thank you. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's Statement during the Department Of Education Command Conference "Oplan Balik Eskwela 2008" and simultaneous oath taking of the Professional Regulatory Commission's (PRC). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121649/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1389&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the joint NEDA and NAPC Cabinet group meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the joint NEDA and NAPC Cabinet group meeting

[Released at the Diego Silang Hall, Provincial Capitol Bldg., May 27, 2008]

Thank you. Please sit down.

Naimbag nga aldaw yo amin, kakailayak gapo San Fernando, La Union.

Pansamantalang tayo huminto sa paglilibot sa mga lalawigang nasalanta ng bagyong 'Cosme' upang makipagpulong sa Gabinete.

Noong isang linggo pinakilos natin ang National Disaster Coordinating Council upang maghatid ng tulong sa mga tinamaan ng kalamidad, katulong ang mga pinunong mga lokal sa Hilaga at Gitnang Luzon. Sa susunod na linggo mag-iinspeksyon tayo upang tiyakin na dumarating ang tulong sa tao.

Besides relief and rehabilitation, we must take urgent action on the continued escalation of world oil prices and school opening preparations. The NEDA and NAPC Cabinet Groups will deliberate on these concerns today, so we can undertake appropriate responses.

The high price of gasoline and everyday commodities hits our poor the hardest. While the high price of oil is a global issue outside the control of government, we have nevertheless taken and will continue to take actions to reduce the pain on our people of these high prices. We have cut tariffs. We are providing cash payments to the poorest of the poor to help them cope. We will be introducing in Congress a Consumer Bill of Rights to protect our citizens from price gouging, false advertising and other scams that prey on our people.

In addition, we're accelerating infrastructure, energy and transport projects to reduce the costs of consumers and companies while generating more employment and investment. Implementing agencies are now being pressed to fast-track these undertakings. Led by Secretary Bunye and later by Secretary Dureza, they shall be giving media briefings on them until the State of the Nation Address in late July. The answer to expensive oil is more development.

The stability of our macroeconomic fundamentals is aided by the increasing diversity of our export picture. For instance, our reliance on the U.S. market has dramatically reduced and our access to China and other markets in the region much stronger.

Sa pagsimula naman ng klase, inaatasan natin ang mga ahensiya ng gobyerno na paspasin ang pagtatayo at pagkumpuni ng mga paaralan, ang pagpapadala ng mga aklat at iba pang materyales sa lahat ng eskwela sa bansa, at ang paglalabas ng kinakailangang pondo para sa mga scholarship at pautang sa mga estudyante sa mataas na paaralan, pamantasan at eskwelang technical-vocational.

Inaatasan din natin ang DPWH na maglagay ng mga tawiran sa harap ng mga paaralan, at ang DOE at DILG na maglagay ng ilaw sa mga eskwelang may klase sa gabi. May programa rin tayo para sa mga mag-aaral na ibig magbisikleta patungo sa klase. Edukasyon ang magbibigay ng kasaganaan at kaunlaran para sa lahat ng mamamayan, at ito ang lagi nating tinututukan.

Let me emphasize again the indispensable role of local governments in driving development and bringing needed goods and services to our people, especially the poor. Magkabalikat para sa kaunlaran ang mga pamahalaan ng bansa, mga lalawigan, lungsod at bayan, kasama ang mga kinakatawan sa Kongreso, sampu ng pribadong sektor, mga samahang bayan at lahat ng mamamayan.

Dios ti agngina kada kayo amin, apo. Thank you. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's Opening Statement during the joint NEDA and NAPC Cabinet group meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121629/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1377&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on World Environment Day

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On World Environment Day

[Issued on June 5, 2008]

Saving fuel and electricity is an economic imperative, moral duty and global obligation.

Everyone in this nation, public and private, has an obligation to meet the needs of the nation on vital services like energy.

Starting today, all government agencies and entities, including government-owned and controlled corporations, are directed to start electricity and fuel-saving measures, using widely accepted practices and creative and innovative ways that can be employed to substantially lower fuel and electricity consumption.

We are also appealing to the local government units to undertake similar energy-saving measures.

The era of cheap and plentiful fossil fuel, the source of much of our fuel, and a major generator of electricity in the Visayas and Mindanao, is definitely over. In this context, cutting down on fuel and electricity consumption is an economic imperative, a moral duty and a global obligation. Much of the world has adopted stringent measures to cut down the consumption of fuel and electricity.

In celebrating World Environment Day today (June 5), we can add that reducing our use of fossil fuel is also a direct boost to our environmental programs, specifically efforts to mitigate the impact of climate change.

Adhering to this directive, or going the extra mile to be creative and innovative in cutting down fuel and electricity use, will have its rewards.

The savings, translated into peso value, shall be given back to the personnel of the complying agencies in the form of additional rice and transportation subsidies. This will provide immediate relief from the rising price of rice and the adjusted transport fares.

A breakdown of the household expenditures of employees — public or private — shows that a sizable portion of a family's household expense goes to rice and transport fares.

I have directed the Chairman of the Philippine National Oil Company- Development and Management Corporation (PNOC-DMC) and the Department of Budget and Management to monitor the compliance of government entities with this directive.

The PNOC-DMC and the DBM have been tasked to submit quarterly reports on the compliance of government agencies so that the additional rice and transport subsidies can be released to their employees every quarter.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Statement of President on World Environment Day. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121515/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1569&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) Cabinet Group with the National Food and Energy Council and the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) Meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) Cabinet Group with the National Food and Energy Council and the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) Meeting

[Issued at the Malacañang Golf Club, Malacañang Park, June 10, 2008]

I would like to open this NEDA Cabinet Group, National Price Coordinating Council and National Food and Energy Council Meeting to order.

Welcome to one of the buildings in Malacañang that we have retrofitted to become more energy efficient.

Today, we're going to discuss exactly the subject matter of the Council we invited — the prices and food and energy.

Pandaigdigang problema ang mataas na presyo ng langis at pagkain na apektado ang maralita at middle-class sa buong mundo. Masipag na kumikilos ang pamahalaang Pilipino upang lutasin ang mga isyu sa bigas at presyong kaharap ng ating bansa at taong-bayan.

Mahalagang maunawaan ng taong-bayan na may sapat na tayong bigas para sa ating kasalukuyang pangangailangan. Bibili pa ng bigas sa ibang bansa kapag maganda ang presyo at mga kondisyon upang i-ambag ang ating buffer stock.

Sa mga panahong parating, napakahalaga ring malaman ng tao na gagawin natin ang lahat ng ating makakaya upang mapatatag o mapababa ang presyo, at hulihin ang mga nagsasamantala sa bigas. At dapat malaman ng mamamayan na kumikilos tayo upang mapanghawakan ang ating supply ng bigas, at magiging sapat sa ating pangangailangan ang ating produksiyon sa loob ng limang taon o 2013.

Una, tungkol sa sapat na supply at pagkilos patungo sa self-sufficiency, tugon sa bagong ekonomiya ng pangmundong seguridad sa pagkain:

Isinigurado na natin ang sapat na bigas para sa taong ito galing sa ating produksiyon at saangkat ng bigas. Dagdag ngangkat ang gagawin kung katanggap-tanggap ang mga presyo at kondisyon habang ipinalalawak natin ang buffer stock. Sang-ayon ito sa ating patakaran tungkol sa buffer stock sa dati pa nating kasaysayan.

Dahil sa bagong kalakaran ng pandaigdigang katiyakan ng pagkain, kailangan ngayon nating mapanghawakan ang ating katayuan pagdating sa bigas. Nakikipagtulungan tayo sa lahat ng antas ng gobyerno sa ating bansa, sa mga pandaigdigang organisasyon, sa iba pang kabalikat sa kaunlaran, at sa pribadong sektor upang matamo ang sariling kasapatan ng bigas sa 2013.

Tungkol sa pagpapatatag at pagbaba ng presyo ng bigas:

Iba't-ibang bansa sa mundo ang naliligalig ng tumatalong presyo ng bigas. Ang ating pagsisikap na tugon sa hamong ito ay nakatutok na gawin ang lahat ng posibleng magawa upang tiyaking makakabiling sapat na bigas sa abot-kayang halaga ang lahat ng Pilipino. Kasama sa ating aksiyon ang pagbebenta ng bigas NFA sa presyong may subsidiyo, sa mga kasapi ng ating lipunan na pinaka-maaaring tamaan saan man naroon. Kasama rin ang pakikipagtulungan sa mga gobyernong lokal, mga pangkat relihiyoso, at iba pang grupo upang maipa-abot ang bigas ng NFA sa mga tinutukoy.

Nakatutok tayo sa makatuwirang presyo ngayon at makatuwirang presyo sa hinaharap. Ang ating pangmatagalang pagsisikap sa pamamahala ng kagawaran ng pagsasaka na isulong ang rice self-sufficiency ay titiyakin din na hindi na tayo aasa sa mamahaling importasyon ng bigas upang punan ang pangangailangan ng ating bayan sa napakahalagang biliing ito. Kabilang sa ating mga aksiyon para sa kasapatan ng pambansang produksiyon ang paglalaan ng pinakamalaking pondo sa kasaysayan para sa fertilizer, irigasyon at iba pang imprastraktura, agricultural education, extension and equipment, dryers and other post-harvest facilities, loans and seeds.

Pangatlo, tungkol sa mamatyang at walang urong na pagtugon doon sa mga gumagawa ng kontra-Pilipinong nagmamanipla sa presyo at hoarding:

Mga kriminal ang sinumang mangangalakal ng bigas at iba pang nagmamanipla ng presyo at nagtatago ng bigas, na maliwanag sa kanilang asal na wala silang malasakit sa kanilang kababayan. Patuloy tayong magpupursige upang matunton at maipasakdal sila hanggang mahinto ang ganitong pagtataksil sa bayan. Kabilang sa ating mga pagkilos ang filing of charges against two NFA Regional Directors, three NFA Provincial Managers, one Assistant Provincial Manager, two NFA Operations Assistants, four grains buyers, two Irrigators Associations presidents, one Grecon president, and three retailers.

In addition, administrative and criminal charges have been filed against 63 grains business establishments for violation of PD No. 4 and the Price Act with regard to grains hoarding, profiteering, and re-bagging of NFA rice.

Nawa'y makipagkapit-bisig ang mamamayan sa ating mga pagkilos upang labanan ang kahirapan ngayon at maka-abot sa antas ng mayayamang bansa sa loob ng dalawampung taon.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during the National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) Cabinet Group with the National Food and Energy Council and the National Price Coordinating Council (NPCC) Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121417/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1564&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the joint National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group and National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) Cabinet Group Meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa magkasamang pulong ng mga Gabinete ng National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) at ng National Economic Development Authority (NEDA)

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, ika 17 ng Hunyo, 2008]

Mga kababayan:

Sumusulong na ang ating daglian at pansamantalang tulong sa mga pamilyang Pilipino na nagigipit ng pandaigdigang presyo ng langis at bigas.

Kanina pinirmahan natin ang batas na hindi na kailangang magbayad ng income tax ang mga sumasahod lamang ng minimum wage.

Mula naman sa value-added tax sa langis na kinokolekta sa mga maykayang de-kotse, naglaan tayo ng apat na bilyong piso upang pondohan ang iba't-ibang programang pangmahihirap na tinatawag nating Katas ng VAT.

Sa mga nakalipas na linggo, sinimulan natin ang unang Katas ng VAT sa paglunsad ng Pantawid Kuryente, ang limangdaang pisong tulong sa kumokonsumo ng hindi hihigit sa 100 kilowatts. Apat na milyong pamilya ang mabibigyan ng dalawang bilyong pisong nakalaan sa programang ito.

Nagbigay rin tayo ng Katas ng VAT para sa mga estudyante sa halagang isang bilyong piso — kalahating bilyon para sa scholarships sa mahihirap, at kalahating bilyon bilang pautang sa malapit nang magtapos. Nakalaan ang mga scholarship sa nag-aaral sa mga kurso kailangan sa pagpapalago ng pagkain tulad ng agrikultura. Samantala, sa ilalim ng programang SAFE 4 SR (Student Assistance Fund for Education for a Strong Republic), makakahiram ng hanggang walong libong piso sa isang semestre ang estudyanteng nasa third, fourth o fifth year.

Kahapon, inilunsad ang isang bilyong pisong pautang sa mga namamasada sa jeepney at iba pang pampublikong sasakyan upang magpalit ng makina para magamit ang LPG, CNG, biofuel, at iba pang alternatibong pangkarga sa sasakyan na malaking mura kaysa sa gasolina at diesel.

Sa darating na buwan, maglalaan tayo ng kalahating bilyon piso para sa mga bombilyang fluorescent na mababa ang konsumo ng kuryente.

Pero ngayon, kailangan namang bigyan aksiyon ang mga pangmatagalang pagkilos upang pagtibayin ang seguridad sa pagkain at enerhiya para sa hinaharap. Ito ang pagpupulong ngayon ng National Food and Energy Council at NEDA. Papaksain ng DOST, na nagdidiriwang ng kanyang ikalimampung anibersaryo itong buwan, ang teknolohiya para mapalakas ang produksyon ng pagkain. Titiyakin natin na todo-todo ang suporta para sa pagtanim ng palay sa Hulyo, kasama rito ang paggamit ng mabisang teknolohiya, upang todo-todo rin ang ating aanihin.

Rerepasuhin din natin ngayon, sa pangunguna ng PMS, ang mga mahalagang proyekto sa imprastraktura at programang pangmasa na iniatas nating noong mga nakaraang SONA. Bagamat abala ang gobyerno sa kasalukuyang mga problema ng langis at bigas, hindi natin kinakaligtaan ang mga kalsada, daungan, paliparan, patubig, paggamot at paaral na kailangan ng bayan. Mahalaga ang ganitong mga proyekto sa imprastraktura at serbisyo publiko upang maabot-kaya ng lahat ang sapat na pagkain bunga ng murang transportasyon, malawakang patubig at modernong kaalaman at pautang sa hanay ng magsasaka at pangangisda.

Maraming salamat. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during the joint National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group and National Economic Development Authority (NEDA) Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121323/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1558&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on her preliminary departure

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On her preliminary departure

[Issued on June 21, 2008]

The United States is the Philippines' strongest friend and ally. Filipinos love America, its people and culture. We may be separated by an ocean, but we are bound by a shared history and common values of economic prosperity and a strong democracy. The relations between the US and the Philippines are stable, strong and mature.

Our friendship goes well beyond simple diplomatic relations between nations. Over 4 million American citizens are of Filipino heritage and over 250,000 Americans live and work in the Philippines. We are more than allies; we are family.

During my West Coast visit, I will meet with our FilAm and OFW community to discuss their needs and concerns. Not a day goes by that my administration is not fighting for the interests of our OFWs somewhere in the world.

In Washington, I will be meeting with President Bush and members of his administration as well as political leaders of both parties in the US Congress. We share many issues that are of global concern, beginning with the price of food and fuel and food security. As such, discussions will focus on food security, defense cooperation, environmental protection and economic assistance.

And I will personally thank those members of the US Senate who voted 96-1 to support our Philippine veterans who served valiantly in WWII. This strong vote is an indication of the long overdue desire to bring equity and justice to Filipino veterans who fought under the American flag. The Philippine veteran provision is part of a much larger bill and is currently caught up in domestic US politics. And while its immediate fate remains unknown, I will meet with Congressional leaders to fight for passage to ensure equity for Philippine veterans of WWII.

And finally, in New York I will meet with numerous investors and business leaders to promote more investment and job creation in the Philippines. I will also be meeting with officials from the United Nations about issues related to food security food and to champion the candidacy of Senator Santiago to the Court of Justice. And no trip to New York is complete without meeting with our strong and lively OFW community there.

The Philippine-US relationship is essential for a strong, growing and stable Philippines. I am looking forward to my talks in order to advance the interests of the Philippines and further deepen our historic ties.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Preliminary Departure Statement of the President. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412120831/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1548&Itemid=38

Departure Statement: President Arroyo on her visit to the U.S.

Departure Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On her visit to the U.S.

[Issued on June 21, 2008]

Before we leave home tonight for the United States, we called a meeting of the National Disaster Coordinating Council (NDCC) this noon wherein we issued the following instructions:

1. Put the whole Department of National Defense (DND) and the Department of Interior and Local Government (DILG) into a relief-and-rescue standby mode.
2. We ordered the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) into a repair-and-rehabilitation footing so work on damaged infrastructure can begin once the weather clears up.
3. The Department of Health (DOH) and the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD) shall forward-deploy resources to areas on typhoon path. By law, Calamity Funds have been advanced to DND, DPWH and DSWD, which means that the tools to provide care and comfort have been pre-positioned in our first responders.
4. The Philippine Air Force (PAF), including the Presidential Airlift Wing (PAW), are under orders to fly mercy missions, when the need arises.
5. Agriculture Secretary Arthur Yap has been ordered to ensure stable rice supply in affected areas. If Typhoon 'Frank' will bring flood, Art will respond by flooding these areas with rice. If they will exploit the situation, hoarders will soon find themselves in hot water, a certainty Justice Secretary Raul Gonzales will guarantee.
6. I have also instructed the Pink Brigade of the Metro Manila Development Authority (MMDA) to rush to areas that might be damaged by the storm. Army engineers, with their heavy equipment, will roll out and join the 'bayanis' of Bayani Fernando in their mercy caravan.
7. We dropped by Villamor Air Base (VAB) and inspected the aircraft and the airmen on standby. We designated VAB as operations center, a springboard for help.
8. With or without the typhoon, but the latter would make it urgent, the distribution of power subsidies will commence in areas the typhoon will hit, in a manner that will not overburden government officials attending to relief work.

The United States is the Philippines' strongest friend and ally. Filipinos love America, its people and culture. We may be separated by an ocean, but we are bound by a shared history and common values of economic prosperity and a strong democracy. The relations between the US and the Philippines are stable, strong and mature.

Our friendship goes well beyond simple diplomatic relations between nations. Over four (4) million American citizens are of Filipino heritage. Over 250,000 Americans live and work in the Philippines. We are more than allies — we are family.

During our West Coast visit, we will meet with our Fil-Am and OFW community to discuss their needs and concerns. Not a day goes by that our administration is not fighting for the interests of our OFWs somewhere in the world.

In Washington, we will be meeting with President Bush and members of his administration as well as political leaders of both parties in the US Congress. We share many issues that are of global concern, beginning with the price of food and fuel and food security. As such, discussions will focus on food security, defense cooperation, environmental protection and economic assistance.

On food security, the agreement between our two governments will lay the groundwork for securing the following:

- a) hastening phyto-sanitary protocols that will open the way for fresh banana and mango exports from the Philippines to the US starting with an initial shipment of $5 million, then $15 million, and growing in the years to come;
- b) biotechnology cooperation especially in the development of disease- tolerant rice seeds varieties through a $1.5 million grant;
- c) accelerated dairy development program which plans to infuse 10,000 dairy animals in the next five years worth $25 million;
- d) increased rice supply purchase agreements through the Public Law 480 of at least $20 million and General Services Manager 102 Program of at least $70 million;
- e) a proposed surplus equipment program of $50 million, extension service capacity building program of $25 million, and accelerated livestock genetic resource improvement program of $25 million.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Departure Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo on her visit to the US. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121012/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1552&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa pagpupulong ng mga Gabinete ng National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC)

[Ipinahayag sa Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, ika 8 ng Hulyo, 2008]

I'd like to call this National Food and Energy Council Meeting first to order.

Mga kababayan:

Tatlo ang pulong ngayon ng Gabinete.

Una, magpupulong ang National Food and Energy Council upang repasuhin ang takbo ng pagtanim ng palay, upang mapalakas ang produksyon ng bigas hanggang katapusan ng taon. Titiyakin nating masigasig at malawakan ang pagtanim ng palay, kasama ang FIELDS Program – fertilizer; irrigation and other infrastructure; extension, equipment and education; loans; dryers and other post-harvest facilities; and seeds.

Pagkatapos, babalangkasin ng National Anti-Poverty Commission Cabinet Group ang pambansang programa para sa kagalingang panlipunan. The existing programs of DSWD, DOH, GSIS, SSS and other agencies providing social welfare services shall be clustered into a National Social Welfare Program that directly addresses the impact of the adverse global environment.

Samantala, patuloy ang mga programa natin sa pamamahagi ng bigas sa mga paaralan, pagbibigay ng tulong pantawid sa mahihirap na pamilya, at kooperasyon sa mga pangkat ng namamasadang bus at jeepney, upang hindi gaanong tumaas ang pabigat sa ating mananakay. Nagagawa nating lahat ito sa bisa ng lumalagong kaban ng bayan mula sa buwis na galing sa mga may-kayang antas ng lipunan.

Panghuli, susuriin ng NEDA Cabinet Group ang datos sa kalakal sa mundo. If on the liability side of the national balance sheet we sustain a loss from rising prices of commodities we import like oil and rice, then we should endeavor to generate compensating gains from the asset side through commodities we can export. This asset consists of “hard” commodities such primary products, supplemented by “soft” commodities such as tourism and outsourced business processing.

Sa ating pagkakapit-bisig, sama-sama nating lampasan ang mga hamon ng pandaigdigang ekonomiya.

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during the National Anti-Poverty Commission (NAPC) Cabinet Group Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412115952/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1614&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the NDCC Meeting [Filipino]

Panimulang Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: Sa pagpupulong kasama ng NDCC

[Ipinahayag sa Placer, Masbate, ika 15 ng Hulyo, 2008]

Mga kaibigan, sa ulat ng PAG-ASA, labing-apat pang bagyo ang baka dumaan sa Pilipinas hanggang katapusan ng taon. Our disaster management consists of four phases: mitigation, preparation, response and rehabilitation. Kaya rerepasuhin ngayon ng National Disaster Coordinating Council ang mga pagkilos para sa rehabilitasyon matapos ang mga Bagyong Cosme at Frank, at ang kahandaan ng ating mga binabagyang rehiyon.

Sa ating paghahanda at pagsaklolo sa panahon ng bagyo, pati na rin sa araw-araw nating pag-ayuda sa mga pamilyang nahihirapan sa pagmahal ng bilihin, kailangan ang todong tutok sa trabaho ang taong bayan. Walang panahon para sa pamumulitika, at laging magkapit-bisig sa lahat ng handang tumutulong sa nagigipit at nahihirapan.

Importante din ang may sapat na pondo upang maghatid ng biyaya sa masa. Mabuti na lamang at lumalago ang kaban ng bayan, salamat sa ating mga reporma sa buwis. Dapat pag-igihin ang paglikom ng buwis, upang makakilos ang pamahalaan para sa taong bayan nang hindi kinakapos.

Bilyun-bilyong piso ang nasalanta sa Typhoon Frank, at bilyun-bilyon din ang kailangan upang maibangon ang mga magsasaka, mangingisda, at tagalunsod na binaha at binagyo. Samantala, patuloy ang paglalaan ng pondo para sa mga sector na lubhang nahihirapan sa pagtaas ng presyo ng langis.

Noong isang buwan, nagpalabas tayo ng apat na bilyong piso mula sa koleksyon ng value added tax sa langis—dalawang bilyon para sa pambayad ng koryente ng apat na milyong mahihirap at isang bilyon bilang college scholarship at pautang sa 70,000 na estudyanteng maralita.

Mayroon kalahating bilyon ding pautang upang palitan ang motor ng mga apat na libong jeepney sa mas matipid na makinang LPG, at sa July 16 ilulunsad natin ang kalahating bilyon upang palitan ang makonsumong bumbilya sa mas matipid na fluorescent para sa mga palengke, paaralan, ospital, gusali ng pamahalaan, kalsada, tahanan, at traffic lights.

Sa sunod na KATAS ng VAT na nakolekta mula Abril hanggan Hunyo, may karagdagang P1 billion na pambayad ng koryente ng mahihirap; at P1 billion ng capital na ipauutang sa mga maybahay at kapamilya ng mga namamasadang tsuper at konduktor.

May kalahating bilyon ding halaga upang mapataas ang kakayahan at kasangkapan ng mga munting ospital sa lalawigan. Para sa mga kalamidad, maglalagay tayo ng bumabagay na halaga para sa tinatawag na Panay and Other Islands Calamity Assistance and Rehabilitation. Ang Masbate ay kasama doon sa mga other islands.

Bukod sa pagkilos at pangangailangan ng mga ahensiya ng pamahalaang pambansa, diringgin din ng NDCC ang mga gobyernong lokal, ang mga pagkilos nila at ng pangangailangan ng kanilang mga nasasakupan. Ganitong pagtutulungan ng mga lider ng bansa ang kailangan sa panahong ito. Hindi mawawala ang mga di-pinagkakaunawaan at di-pagkakasundo. Subalit sa wakas, dapat itabi ang mga ito at magbalikatan para sa sambayanan.

Ito ang ating kailangan ngayon—tutok sa trabaho at taong bayan, gamit ang lumalagong kaban ng bansa, at kabalikat ang mga pinuno ng sambayanan.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo during the NDCC Meeting.
Retrieved
from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412115918/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1611&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during an Official Banquet in Honor of His Highness Sheikh Nasser Al-Mohammed Al-Ahmed Al-Jaber Al-Sabah, Prime Minister of the State of Kuwait

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During an Official Banquet in Honor of His Highness Sheikh Nasser Al-Mohammed Al-Ahmed Al-Jaber Al-Sabah,
Prime Minister of the State of Kuwait

[Issued at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, August 15, 2008]

His Highness Sheikh Nasser Al-Sabah, Prime Minister of Kuwait; distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

Assalamu alaikum and welcome to the Philippines!

This is to reciprocate the warm and cordial reception we received when we visited Kuwait last December and other visits to Kuwait prior to this. So, we hope that Your Highness has had a very good stay here in the Philippines since yesterday.

That visit of mine to Kuwait, Your Highness, was a humanitarian mission. It was to ask His Royal Highness the Emir for clemency for two Filipinos sentenced to death by Kuwait's courts. And the Filipinos thanked His Royal Highness and your government, Your Highness, for commuting the death sentences on Marilou Ranario and May Decena. And so it is with joy that we now receive His Highness the Prime Minister of Kuwait.

Earlier today, His Highness and his delegation and our delegation had a very good and candid discussion on areas of bilateral engagement. And we witnessed the signing of three cooperative agreements in the fields of oil and gas, tourism and health. And we are very grateful that we will be issuing a joint statement as well on the transfer of sentenced persons.

Other agreements will be forthcoming because His Highness has said that we must move very fast and make decisions very quickly in order to heighten our relationship with each other.

Kuwait hosts the third largest Filipino community in the Middle East. There are over a thousand Filipinos there. And we thank His Highness for saying that there's actually no quota on Filipinos going to Kuwait because we have all skills, from domestic helpers to scientists, and I think we can have one million Filipinos in Kuwait and they will still be very happy with the presence of our compatriots there. Thus, we look forward to the Implementing Guidelines of our Memorandum of Understanding on labor and manpower development. Kuwait has started investment in the Philippines. The Kuwait Foreign Petroleum Exploration Company has made enrobes in oil and gas exploration in the Philippines together with Shell. The Kuwaiti KGL Investment Company recently ventured into logistics as the latest member to our billion-dollar club. We welcome Kuwait's continued interest and trust in our economy. And today, His Highness, talked about many other areas of investment and joint ventures between our two countries.

Kuwait was the first Arab country to extend a developmental loan to the Philippines. It's biggest project is the 115 kilometers of road from Pagadian City through Lanao del Norte, Lanao del Sur and Maguindanao to Cotabato City. And tonight, we have the presence of some of the congressmen through whose district this very long road passes.

Your Excellency, your visit gives a boost to our efforts to bring about long lasting peace in Mindanao, just as our brothers in the Middle East look forward to a long lasting peace in the Middle East. Yes, there are political dynamics. We are working to sort them out.

The government will assume a supporting role and let non-government organizations supportive of the peace effort spearhead the discussions on the problematic concerns. We want to end the conflict that has claimed more than a 120,000 lives on both sides over the last four decades. This progress will be good for the people of Mindanao because in bringing peace and order to the island, it will create an environment that will attract much needed development assistance as well as foreign investment such as those from Kuwait that will create jobs and generate revenues that can be used to invest in new infrastructure, increase agricultural programs for which His Highness has expressed a very great deal of interest in behalf of the Kuwaiti business community and improve social services for the people including health services for which the Kuwaiti fund will now be one of our sources, a very important assistance. We thank Kuwait and all our friends and allies around the world who are already committed to helping us refocus local communities away from security issues and towards their economic future.

Once again, Your Highness, welcome and thank you on your mission to bring us good tidings of friendship and brotherhood.

Welcome to the Philippines! Mabuhay! (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Statement during an Official Banquet in Honor of His Highness Sheikh Nasser Al-Mohammed Al-Ahmed Al-Jaber Al-Sabah, Prime Minister of the State of Kuwait. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412115539/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1638&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the 63rd UN General Assembly General Debate

National Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
At the 63rd UN General Assembly General Debate

[Released at the General Assembly Hall, UN Headquarters, New York City, USA, September 23, 2008]

Senior Don Miguel d'Escoto Brockmann. His Excellency the Secretary General of the United Nations Ban Ki Moon, friends.

The developing world is at a tipping point. In the Philippines, we feel the pain of high prices of food, fuel and rice.

Our people pursue the universal dream of a better life for themselves and their children: better education, better health-care, higher wages, a dignified retirement. We are proving the value of a new paradigm for self-reliance through the use of:

First, a targeted strategy with a set of precise prescriptions to ease our price challenges;

Second, food self-sufficiency and more energy independence; and Third, long term reforms.

This is a positive example we wish to share with the rest of the world.

Our gains in the last seven years were hard-earned. We made tough and sometimes painful decisions to reset our economy — tax increases, banking reforms, crackdown on smugglers and tough fiscal discipline, to name a few. Thankfully, these reforms have given us some running room to weather the first wave of global price shocks that reverberated across the world earlier this year.

It hasn't been easy, but Filipinos are tough and resilient. We have pulled together. We have been able to draw on additional revenues to provide targeted investments in food and fuel to keep our poor afloat until a better day.

But we are also realistic that we cannot do it alone. We need a strong UN as never before. We need rigorous international cooperation as never before.

Economic uncertainty has moved like a terrible tsunami around the globe, wiping away gains, erasing progress — not just here in Manhattan Island, but also in the many islands of the Philippines.

Just when we thought the worst had passed, the light at the end of the tunnel became an oncoming train hurtling forward with new shocks to the global financial system. The setbacks from these global shocks of the past year, and the past weeks, are real and profound. It will take time and perseverance to put the pieces back together.

To address these global challenges, we must go on building bridges among allies around the world. To bring rice to where it is needed to feed the people, investments to create jobs and keep the peace and stability in the world.

It is, therefore, timely that our Secretary General Ban Ki Moon has organized this year's agenda around the impact of the global economy on the poor. He deserves our highest praise for his quick and decisive action on the global food crisis. His Comprehensive Framework for Action involving the UN, donor countries, civil society and the private sector seeks to achieve food security through the right combination of policies, technologies and investments. This is a model of the United Nations in action.

Since the volatile global economies became apparent in its situation many months ago, in the Philippines we have increased and stabilized the supply of rice, and delivered targeted subsidies to the poor. We have reached out to our neighbors like Vietnam and others in ASEAN and elsewhere to ensure a stable supply and affordable prices. We have clamped down on price gouging and invested more billions in planting and agricultural modernization.

We have increased our energy independence by 17% through greater use of geothermal, biofuel and other renewables. We expect to attain 60% energy independence in two years.

Biofuels have been cited for being a positive factor for clean energy. At the same time, they have also been cited as a negative factor that contributes to high food prices. We are pursuing a policy of using non-food biofuel sources planted on land unusable for food production purposes. We see this approach as a way for countries to seek a sustainable balance between food and energy needs.

For food self-sufficiency, our food baskets are North Luzon in our largest island and the southern island of Mindanao.

Mindanao has fields of the highest productivity, yet also the majority of our poorest provinces. It is a sad irony that our food basket has some of the highest hunger in our nation.

The prime reason is the endless Mindanao conflict.

Our archipelago of 7,000 islands has had its share of religious strife, ethnic tension and violence.

For years we have worked to achieve peace in Mindanao. Much progress was made until violent elements within the Moro Islamic Liberation Front decided to take the law into their own hands. We will restart the dialogue when the area is secure, our people are safe and responsible elements in the MILF regain control.

There is no alternative to peace. I stand before you today to declare loud and clear that we are committed to the process of peace in Mindanao.

We gratefully acknowledge here today the central role of so many friends and allies, like the UN; Brunei, Indonesia, Libya, Malaysia, Saudi Arabia, and others in the Organization of the Islamic Conference; Australia, Japan, New Zealand, the US and other bilateral ODA partners; the EU and Sweden. All have played a big role in advancing peace and development in Mindanao.

We will refocus the peace talks from one that is centered on dialogues with rebels to one of authentic dialogues with the communities. The context of our engagement with all armed groups shall subscribe to the UN-recognized principle of demobilization, disarmament and reintegration.

We maintain high hopes in interfaith dialogue as a means to build bridges rather than barriers between communities of different cultures and ethnicity.

In continuation of this effort, the Philippines will host the first-ever Special Ministerial Meeting on Interfaith Dialogue for Cooperation and Development in May next year. We will also cooperate with the Alliance of Civilizations.

We are also pleased that our Secretary General will join us in Manila during the Second Global Forum on Migration and Development. Our overseas Filipino workers are true global pioneers. There isn't a ship abroad that doesn't have a Filipino crew or a nation without highly skilled Filipino workers. The movement of people from one country to another will surely increase as globalization continues to erase borders.

This should be recognized as having implications on the growth and development of both sending and receiving countries.

Mr. President, in many troubled places of our world, the U.N. is the last great hope for peace and security. For this reason, the Philippines contributes one of the largest police contingents to U.N. Peacekeeping Operations.

Mr. President, your leadership is more vital than ever. The Philippines will fully support you as you lead our General Assembly for the coming year.

In conclusion, Mr. President and friends, there are hundreds of millions of good people across this globe who are struggling as never before. We must hear their cry for help. It is within the collective power of the leaders at this UN Assembly to fulfill the universal dream of better education, better health, food on the table, and a dignified life.

Thank you. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's National Statement at the 63rd UN General Assembly General Debate. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135254/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1664&Itemid=38

National Statement: President Arroyo at the 63rd UN General Assembly General Debate, September 23, 2008

National Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
At the 63rd UN General Assembly General Debate

[Released at the General Assembly Hall, UN Headquarters, New York City, USA, September 23, 2008]

The developing world is at a tipping point. In the Philippines, we feel the pain of high prices of food, fuel and rice.

Our people pursue the universal dream of a better life for themselves and their children: better education, better health-care, higher wages, a dignified retirement. We are proving the value of a new paradigm for self-reliance through the use of:

First, a targeted strategy with a set of precise prescriptions to ease our price challenges;

Second, food self-sufficiency and more energy independence; and,

Third, long term reforms.

This is a positive example we wish to share with the rest of the world.

Our gains in the last seven years were hard-earned. We made tough and sometimes painful decisions to reset our economy — tax increases, banking reforms, crackdown on smugglers and tough fiscal discipline, to name a few. Thankfully, these reforms have given us some running room to weather the first wave of global price shocks that reverberated across the world earlier this year.

It hasn't been easy, but Filipinos are tough and resilient. We have pulled together. We have been able to draw on additional revenues to provide targeted investments in food and fuel to keep our poor afloat until a better day.

But we are also realistic that we cannot do it alone. We need a strong UN as never before. We need rigorous international cooperation as never before.

Economic uncertainty has moved like a terrible tsunami around the globe, wiping away gains, erasing progress — not just here in Manhattan Island, but also in the many islands of the Philippines.

Just when we thought the worst had passed, the light at the end of the tunnel became an oncoming train hurtling forward with new shocks to the global financial system. The setbacks from these global shocks of the past year, and the past weeks, are real and profound. It will take time and perseverance to put the pieces back together.

To address these global challenges, we must go on building bridges among allies around the world. To bring rice to where it is needed to feed the people, investments to create jobs and keep the peace and stability in the world.

It is, therefore, timely that our Secretary General Ban Ki Moon has organized this year's agenda around the impact of the global economy on the poor. He deserves our highest praise for his quick and decisive action on the global food crisis. His Comprehensive Framework for Action involving the UN, donor countries, civil society and the private sector seeks to achieve food security through the right combination of policies, technologies and investments. This is a model of the United Nations in action.

Since the volatile global economies became apparent in its situation many months ago, in the Philippines we have increased and stabilized the supply of rice, and delivered targeted subsidies to the poor. We have reached out to our neighbors like Vietnam and others in ASEAN and elsewhere to ensure a stable supply and affordable prices. We have clamped down on price gouging and invested more billions in planting and agricultural modernization.

We have increased our energy independence by 17% through greater use of geothermal, biofuel and other renewables. We expect to attain 60% energy independence in two years.

Biofuels have been cited for being a positive factor for clean energy. At the same time, they have also been cited as a negative factor that contributes to high food prices. We are pursuing a policy of using non-food biofuel sources planted on land unusable for food production purposes. We see this approach as a way for countries to seek a sustainable balance between food and energy needs.

For food self-sufficiency, our food baskets are North Luzon in our largest island and the southern island of Mindanao.

Mindanao has fields of the highest productivity, yet also the majority of our poorest provinces. It is a sad irony that our food basket has some of the highest hunger in our nation.

The prime reason is the endless Mindanao conflict.

Our archipelago of 7,000 islands has had its share of religious strife, ethnic tension and violence.

For years, we have worked to achieve peace in Mindanao. Much progress was made until violent elements within the Moro Islamic Liberation Front decided to take the law into their own hands. We will restart the dialogue when the area is secure, our people are safe and responsible elements in the MILF regain control.

There is no alternative to peace. I stand before you today to declare loud and clear that we are committed to the process of peace in Mindanao.

We gratefully acknowledge here today the central role of so many friends and allies, like the UN; Brunei, Indonesia, Libya, Malaysia, Saudi Arabia, and others in the Organization of the Islamic Conference; Australia, Japan, New Zealand, the US and other bilateral ODA partners; the EU and Sweden. All have played a big role in advancing peace and development in Mindanao.

We will refocus the peace talks from one that is centered on dialogues with rebels to one of authentic dialogues with the communities. The context of our engagement with all armed groups shall subscribe to the UN-recognized principle of demobilization, disarmament and reintegration.

We maintain high hopes in interfaith dialogue, as a means to build bridges rather than barriers between communities of different cultures and ethnicity.

In continuation of this effort, the Philippines will host the first-ever Special Ministerial Meeting on Interfaith Dialogue for Cooperation and Development in May next year. We will also cooperate with the Alliance of Civilizations.

We are also pleased that our Secretary General will join us in Manila during the Second Global Forum on Migration and Development. Our overseas Filipino workers are true global pioneers. There isn't a ship abroad that doesn't have a Filipino crew or a nation without highly skilled Filipino workers. The movement of people from one country to another will surely increase as globalization continues to erase borders.

This should be recognized as having implications on the growth and development of both sending and receiving countries.

Mr. President, in many troubled places of our world, the U.N. is the last great hope for peace and security. For this reason, the Philippines contributes one of the largest police contingents to UN Peacekeeping Operations.

Mr. President, your leadership is more vital than ever. The Philippines will fully support you as you lead our General Assembly for the coming year.

In conclusion, Mr. President and friends, there are hundreds of millions of good people across the globe that are struggling as never before. We must hear their cry for help. It is within the collective power of the leaders at this UN Assembly to fulfill the universal dream of better education, better health, food on the table, and a dignified life.

Thank you.

Source: Adamson University Library

Statement: President Arroyo during the session of the Women Leaders' Working Group

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the session of the Women Leaders' Working Group

[Released at The Empire Room, Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York, USA, September 25, 2008]

One of our greatest achievements as a country under the MDG, the Millennium Developing Goals, is improving gender equality.

In that meeting, it was revealed that the Philippines is among the top six in the world and the top rated in Asia in terms of gender parity. And I would like to congratulate again President Halonen because the Philippines being number six ranked behind Finland, three other Scandinavian countries and New Zealand, and we were number six.

And we are number one among several... we're number one in the world in gender equality in terms of the literacy rate. In fact, females in the Philippines have a slight edge in both simple and functional literacy over males.

We are also number one in the world together with several others in the number one slot in enrolment in primary, secondary and tertiary education. There are more females than males who enrolled in school and there are fewer females who drop out.

So, I believe that we have made important gains not only in the Philippines but also all over the world as far as gender parity is concerned, but more needs to be done to ensure that we all meet our MDG goals by 2015, one of which is gender parity.

In every corner of the world, we must attain today when all men and women are truly treated with equality. Meaning, equal before the law, equal in terms of pay and equal in terms of opportunity.

And now we face the most significant global economic and financial crisis in a generation, and women especially suffer from that. The poor feel this crisis the most, but women in particular take a harder hit even in the best of times. Women bear a heavier burden when it comes to economic equality. So, it is unfortunate that a disproportionate number of women live in poverty. Many of them are single heads of households and many of them receive less health care. So, what more now during the hard times that the world is experiencing.

With soaring prices of food and fuel, the poor women the world over are on the frontlines because they have to be the ones to manage the strains of this uncertain economic times on their families and also on their communities.

We have said traditionally women have a double burden. For instance, in the Philippines, we have many career women but at the same time, they must be the housewives as well. Now, there's a triple burden when we have a global fuel, food and financial crises.

So, as women leaders, we must be champions of women in this special hour of need. It is now, more than ever, that we need women's voices to be heard to fight for the rights and opportunities of women both in our respective nations and in the whole world.

Earlier, Secretary Rice talked about a great gain of women empowerment within the U.N. organization.

I would like to add, therefore, that hopefully, we can have another great gain after this particular year session of ours. Because right here at the U.N., we can have another small but significant blow for women that can be struck if we secure, if we continue to secure a seat for a woman in the International Court of Justice. There is only one woman in the International Court of Justice now and she is the presiding officer but she is ending her term. Among the eight candidates for five seats, where you can elect at large, there is only one woman nominee and that is the candidate from the Republic of the Philippines, Senator Miriam Defensor Santiago, an eminently qualified woman.

So, if she is selected, we continue to have one even if it's only one woman in the Court of International Justice. But if she's not selected then a woman's voice will not be represented on that very important court and that would be a shame.

So, it is important that within the U.N. we all fight for women's empowerment. And beyond the U.N., we must also pledge here today, that we should pursue justice, dignity and equality for women the world over. And we must make sure that the burdens of a sagging economy do not weigh disproportionately on the poor and particularly women.

That's why, I thank Secretary Rice for launching this group together with originally 18 women leaders, and we hope that this will be one of her legacies and that the work will continue as Secretary Rice becomes, hopefully, our senior adviser on the Women's Working Group in the years to come.

Thank you. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's statement during the session of the Women Leaders' Working Group. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135230/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1661&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Session of the Women Leaders' Working Group, September 25, 2008

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Session of the Women Leaders' Working Group

[Delivered at the Empire Room, Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York, USA, September 25, 2008]

One of our greatest achievements as a country under the MDG, the Millennium Developing Goals, is improving gender equality.

In that meeting, it was revealed that the Philippines is among the top six in the world and the top rated in Asia in terms of gender parity. And I would like to congratulate again President Halonen, because the Philippines being number six ranked behind Finland, three other Scandinavian countries and New Zealand, and we were number six.

And we are number one in the world in gender equality in terms of the literacy rate. In fact, females in the Philippines have a slight edge in both simple and functional literacy over males.

We are also number one in the world together with several others in the number one slot in enrollment in primary, secondary and tertiary education. There are more females than males who enrolled in school and there are fewer females who drop out.

So, I believe that we have made important gains not only in the Philippines but also all over the world as far as gender parity is concerned, but more needs to be done to ensure that we all meet our MDG goals by 2015, one of which is gender parity.

In every corner of the world, we must attain today when all men and women are truly treated with equality. Meaning, equal before the law, equal in terms of pay and equal in terms of opportunity.

And now we face the most significant global economic and financial crisis in a generation, and women especially suffer from that. The poor feel this crisis the most, but women in particular take a harder hit even in the best of times. Women bear a heavier burden when it comes to economic equality. So, it is unfortunate that a disproportionate number of women live in poverty. Many of them are single heads of households and many of them receive less health care. So, what more now during the hard times that the world is experiencing.

With soaring prices of food and fuel, the poor women the world over are on the frontlines because they have to be the ones to manage the strains of this uncertain economic times on their families and also on their communities.

We have said traditionally women have a double burden. For instance, in the Philippines, we have many career women but at the same time, they must be housewives as well. Now, there's a triple burden when we have a global fuel, food and financial crises.

So, as women leaders, we must be champions of women in this special hour of need. It is now, more than ever, that we need women's voices to be heard to fight for the rights and opportunities of women both in our respective nations and in the whole world.

Earlier, Secretary Rice talked about a great gain of women empowerment within the U.N. organization.

I would like to add, therefore, that hopefully, we can have another great gain after this particular year session of ours. Because right here at the United Nation, we can have another small but significant blow for women that can be struck if we secure, if we continue to secure a seat for a woman in the International Court of Justice. There is only one woman in the International Court of Justice now and she is the presiding officer but she is ending her term.

Among the eight candidates for five seats, where you can elect at large, there is only one woman nominee and that is the candidate from the Republic of the Philippines, Senator Miriam Defensor Santiago, an eminently qualified woman. So, if she is selected, we continue to have one even if it's only one woman in the Court of International Justice. But if she's not selected then a woman's voice will not be represented on that very important court and that would be a shame.

So, it is important that within the UN we all fight for women's empowerment. And beyond the UN, we must also pledge here today, that we should pursue justice, dignity and equality for women the world over. And we must make sure that the burdens of a sagging economy do not weigh disproportionately on the poor and particularly women.

That's why, I thank Secretary Rice for launching this group together with originally 18 women leaders, and we hope that this will be one of her legacies and that the work will continue as Secretary Rice becomes, hopefully, our senior adviser on the Women's Working Group in the years to come.

Thank you.

Source: Adamson University Library

Statement: President Arroyo during the Working Dinner of the Leaders at the 7th Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM) Summit

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo:
During the Working Dinner of the Leaders at the 7th ASEM Summit

[Delivered at the Great Hall of the People, People's Republic of China, October 24, 2008]

All eyes are glued to the world's stock and financial markets. But we must never lose sight of the impact of the global credit crunch on the poor. We congratulate President Sarkozy in bringing G-7 together to seek common ground on ways to coordinate assistance in this once-in-a-century financial turmoil. We call on G-7 to do so in a way that puts the interest of the poor and dispossessed ahead of the rich and powerful.

The problem is sweeping every part of the globe, from the tropic to the arctic.

Therefore, we count on the G-7 members of ASEM, to consider the emerging economies in the bold actions and extraordinary measures that they plan to undertake, to ease in crisis in the global financial system.

The emerging economies are part of the solution.

We must instill confidence in our market economies, but we must also take action to provide hope for those who need it most.

We should inject equity where it is needed. We all have agreed that coordinated action among nations is the better path than going it alone. Our global financial system must learn from its mistakes and as called for PM Wen Jiabao and other leaders, our global financial system must embrace fundamental reforms so that this global storm does not turn into a tidal wave of despair again.

In doing fundamental reforms, we urge the developed economies to establish giant tools of money for our major financial institutions, and that they also set aside funds to ensure that developing nations and their people also have access to lifelines if required.

We count on the developed economies to do this in a way that offers a global solution to a global challenge.

Thus, we also support the summit to be held in Washington of world leaders to address the common and shared challenges. This global summit complements our efforts to gather consensus among our respective regional group on ways to deal with the crisis.

As recounted earlier, last night and this morning, ASEAN, under the chairmanship of PM Somchai and ASEAN +3 under the Chairmanship of PM Wen Jiabao, agreed to strengthen the Chiang Mai Initiative into a liquidity fund large enough and very important, quick disbursing enough.

Finally, while serious measures have taken to address the global credit crunch, I echo the reminders of the other Leaders that the fundamental principles of free and fair trade, as well as the specific challenges facing developing nations, should be properly recognized.

Therefore, we believe an ASEAN-European Union trade deal and a new WTO deal would do more to ease the possible global recession than all bailouts we can make, because they could optimize the impacts of stimulus packages and thus, prepare the stage for eventual recovery. The ASEAN and EU countries should work towards the ASEAN-EU trade agreement, and we should also work for the immediate resumption and successful conclusion of WTO talks.

Source: Adamson University Library

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). A Compilation of selected presidential speeches [of] Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, 2008. [Manila : Office of the Press Secretary, Bureau of Communications Services].

Statement: President Arroyo during the Working Dinner of the Leaders at the 7th ASEM Summit

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the Working Dinner of the Leaders at the 7th ASEM Summit

[Released at the Great Hall of the People, October 24, 2008]

All eyes are glued to the world's stock and financial markets. But we must never lose sight of the impact of the global credit crunch on the poor. We congratulate President Sarkozy in bringing G-7 together to seek common ground on ways to coordinate assistance in this once-in-a-century financial turmoil. We call on G-7 to do so in a way that puts the interest of the poor and dispossessed ahead of the rich and powerful.

The problem is sweeping every part of the globe, from the tropic to the arctic.

Therefore, we count on the G-7 members of ASEM to consider the emerging economies in the bold actions and extraordinary measures that they plan to undertake to ease in crisis in the global financial system.

The emerging economies are part of the solution.

We must instill confidence in our market economies, but we must also take action to provide hope for those who need it most.

We should inject equity where it is needed. We all have agreed that coordinated action among nations is the better path than going it alone. Our global financial system must learn from its mistakes and as called for PM Wen Jiabao and other leaders, our global financial system must embrace fundamental reforms so that this global storm does not turn into a tidal wave of despair again.

In doing fundamental reforms we urge the developed economies to establish giant tools of money for our major financial institutions, and that they also set aside funds to ensure that developing nations and their people also have access to lifelines if required.

We count on the developed economies to do this in a way that offers a global solution to a global challenge.

Thus we also support the summit to be held in Washington of world leaders to address the common and shared challenges. This global summit complements our efforts to gather consensus among our respective regional group on ways to deal with the crisis.

As recounted earlier, last night and this morning, ASEAN, under the chairmanship of PM Somchai and ASEAN +3 under the Chairmanship of PM Wen Jiabao agreed to strengthen the Chiang Mai Initiative into a liquidity fund large enough and very important, quick disbursing enough.

Finally, while serious measures have taken to address the global credit crunch, I echo the reminders of the other Leaders that the fundamental principles of free and fair trade, as well as the specific challenges facing developing nations, should be properly recognized.

Therefore, we believe an ASEAN-EU trade deal and a new WTO deal would do more to ease the possible global recession than all bailouts we can make, because they could optimize the impacts of stimulus packages and thus prepare the stage for eventual recovery. The ASEAN and EU countries should work towards the ASEAN-EU trade agreement, and we should also work for the immediate resumption and successful conclusion of WTO talks.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's statement during the Working Dinner of the Leaders at the 7th ASEM Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615134851/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1718&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the 24th Cabinet Meeting

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the 24th Cabinet Meeting

[Issued at the Macaraeg-Macapagal Ancestral House, Brgy. Buru-un, Timoga, Iligan City, Lanao del Norte, January 6, 2009]

Please sit down everyone. Welcome to my childhood home! (laughter)

Today is our first Cabinet meeting for the New Year 2009.

This is the year that the overwhelming majority of our people have greeted with hope in their hearts — 92 percent they say — despite the perils of a global economy in crisis and the importunings of the usual critics and fault-finders.

We who are privileged to lead our country, especially through times of global crisis like this, are blessed by the spiritual strength of our millions of countrymen for whom and to whom we are accountable.

Let us not squander this blessing. Let us put this blessing to good account and multiply it into the daily good works of our office, the uncounted fruits of our leadership that our people have a right to demand from us.

The start of 2009 should also mark the renewal of sustained, intense and vigorous efforts to ensure the fulfillment of the government's Mindanao Agenda. An agenda of two main planks and anchored on two Ps — Peace Talks for All and Projects for Peace.

First, in Peace Talks for All, we should put in place lasting peace — stilling the guns of war, drawing from the biblical theme of turning swords into plowshares. This shall be an all-inclusive effort. All Mindanao stakeholders are welcome to join in the peace process — LGUs, NGOs, religious groups, separatists and federalists.

Those in the negotiating table shall bring one mindset — a passion for peace. The second plank is Projects for Peace, which means a surge in government investments in Mindanao and the accelerated pace of implementation for its development programs.

The Projects for Peace, for example, shall create agri-business processing zones that shall fully exploit the awesome asset of Mindanao — its being typhoon-free.

The worth of this asset is incalculable.

We will undertake a crash program against illiteracy and poverty in the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao and the other provinces of Mindanao that belong to the ten poorest.

Our objective is to realize the century-old quest for lasting peace from the wreckage of war we will fashion implements for progress and lasting peace. And that will be a big part of our subject matter for the Cabinet meeting today.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's statement during the 24th Cabinet Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412105802/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=17870&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the National Security Council Cabinet Meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the National Security Council Cabinet Meeting

[Issued at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, January 13, 2009]

Good morning, everyone. Please sit down.

First, naka-leave of absence na ang lahat ng mga opisyal ng DOJ na ipinautos natin sa

Kalihim ng Katarungan. Ang hakbang na ito ay upang ipakita sa lahat kung gaano kaseryoso ang pamahalaan sa kampanya laban sa suliranin ng droga.

Contemporary events are instructive. No other criminal activity does a better and faster job of tearing apart the social and security fabric of a nation than the trade of illegal drugs. Ang mga nagbebenta ng mga bawal na droga sa ating mga kabataan ay mistulang anay na sumisira hindi lamang ng ating pamilya kundi pati na ng ating lipunan.

Governments that delay action against illegal drugs or regard it as a routine police matter do so at their own peril.

A country awash with illegal drugs is a country compromised; its law and order institutions tainted and corrupted.

It is in this tragic context that the government should map out its all-out war, an unyielding and unrelenting war against illegal drugs and their devil merchants. The war shall be waged from three fronts, a trinity against illegal drugs:

Law enforcement is the first component.

Judicial action is the second.

Policy-making will make up the third front of this all-out war, a comprehensive policy consisting of prevention, enforcement, rehabilitation and after-care.

I will temporarily act as the czar or overseer of the war against illegal drugs. Then, after a short while, I will turn the job over back to the tandem of Tito Sotto and Dionex Santiago.

We should not allow this menace to spread its tentacles, ruin our youth and gnaw on the integrity of our law enforcement institutions and our judicial system.

The case of the so-called ‘Alabang Boys’ should jolt us into action. Not with temporizing and tentativeness but with the resoluteness and grit of a government fighting a just and moral war.

I also call on the LGUs, the academe, the church, NGOs, and all other sectors to intensify their anti-drug campaigns. The LGUs that can declare a barangay, municipality, city and province a “drug-free zone” will be rewarded with development projects to sustain their efforts and ensure a bright future for our children and communities.

Kinakailangan na makamit natin ang pagkakaisa ng iba’t-ibang sektor ng ating lipunan upang matagumpay nating mapaglabanan ang paglalaganap ng mga bawal na gamot.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's opening statement during the National Security Council Cabinet Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412105727/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=17864&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the LAKAS Expanded Executive Committee Meeting

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the LAKAS Expanded Executive Committee Meeting

[Issued at the Molave Function Room, Holiday Inn Resort Hotel, Mimosa Leisure Estate, Clark Freeport Zone, Angeles City, Pampanga, January 29, 2009]

Thank you. Please sit down.

Thank you, Speaker Nograles and party president for your introduction.

President Ramos, our Emeritus, who continues to be a beacon of wisdom, guidance and inspiration to many of our partymates but not only partymates but also fellow Filipinos; (Applause) members of this expanded Executive Committee of our great party LAKAS-CMD; dear partymates:

First of all, welcome to my province, the province of Lito and the province of Tarzan and everybody else, the Kapampangans and I hope you enjoyed our beautiful new SCTEX entrance into Clark. And to the Executive Committee of the Party, headed by our Party President Boy Nograles, for bringing us together auspiciously at the start of the new year, thank you very much and thank you for all being here. Thank you for being also punctual.

As President Ramos said, we meet at a very auspicious time in world history, a crucial moment in world history. The global financial turmoil has spread and jeopardized the well-being of people across the globe. Two-thirds of the world is in recession. But I think we should all be proud that we, our country is growing at 6.0 percent GNP and 4.6 percent GDP for 2008. (Applause) Congratulations to our administration!

Keeping the global crisis from consuming our nation has been a great accomplishment of our party. Despite the recession in two-thirds of the world, nine out of ten Filipinos or 92 out of 100 Filipinos look forward with hope to this new year. This is because the global crisis did not catch us unprepared or without reserves, thank God and again thank our party. We were able to do this because half of the country's elected officials, including the President of the Philippines and the Speaker of the House, the Deputy Speakers, the Majority Leaders of both the House and the Senate, are LAKAS-CMD members. The leaders of all the local government leagues are LAKASCMD.

So, indeed, we have leadership in the country and we have exercised that leadership not only to achieve sustainable growth but to show that sustainability by being resilient in this current global economic crisis. And I'd like to thank you and congratulate you all for that. (Applause) Certainly, congratulations are in order because it wasn't a picnic.

Together, we had to make hard decisions. Hard on the people at the time we made them, unpopular with some big businessmen, but as events have shown good for the country. Our preparations have so far shielded the nation from the worst effects of the global crisis. But had we acted differently, had we been populist, had we been scared or timid, all would be lost today. And we would be part of the two-thirds of the world. But moving forward: we shouldn't be complacent.

Our administration must harness all the resources and the unity we can muster to provide job creation and economic stimulus at a time when it is most needed, while still pursuing needed investments in people and infrastructure; to aid our people today, while building a better tomorrow. And our administration must establish such conditions on the ground as well facilitate the peace process with the MILF.

For these purposes, the unification and merger of LAKAS and KAMPI must now proceed in earnest and with deliberate speed. Separately, LAKAS-CMD and KAMPI are the country's most dominant and strongest political parties. There is basically no ideological difference in our platforms. Merging LAKAS-CMD and KAMPI will keep us on track and firmly focused on our vision of getting the country by 2010 well on the road to first world in 20 years.

Our working together has been one of the major factors that have put the Philippines on the path of sustained growth and resiliency. Our working together is one of the major reasons why we have the resources to absorb the current global shocks. With our unity institutionalized in a merger, our proven political resilience and reform agenda will position the nation to sustain its gains.

As intended, such a merger will result in an effective consolidation of political support for government's programs for economic stability and social equity, now when it is most needed. And aside from that, it will also ensure that we fight side by side in 2010. With other groups and parties, let us also strengthen alliances where they have proven to be of benefit to our Party and the nation.

Even as we strengthen our ranks, let us also commit ourselves to the holding of orderly and credible elections in 2010 principally by ensuring the successful automation of our electoral processes.

Guided by a common vision and united by a sense of purpose, with the best interest of the people at heart, I now ask you our expanded executive committee to work on the merger with KAMPI and fortify the ramparts of our merged party so that we may face the electoral challenge of 2010 with righteousness and confidence.

In this context, I hereby direct the creation of a National Consolidation and Unification Committee, to be chaired by the Presidential Adviser on Political Affairs, Gabby Claudio. This Committee shall pursue the merger with KAMPI and such alliances with other political parties and groups as are in the interest of the administration coalition and which, with our merged party, shall be responsible for determining and activating the criteria and mechanism for choosing our candidates for 2010.

Let the findings and recommendations of that Committee of Gabby reflect the mind and voice of our membership down to the grassroots level. Let us look to our members in the grassroots. Let us look to our people for inspiration. Let the cause of the Filipino people be our motive for working, for striving and for winning in 2010.

Mabuhay ang LAKAS-CMD! At magandang umaga.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Opening Statement during the LAKAS Expanded Executive Committee Meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412105649/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=19343&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the celebration of the signing of the U.S. Economic Stimulus Bill

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the celebration of the signing of the U.S. Economic Stimulus Bill which includes cash benefits for the Filipino veterans of World War II

[Issued at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, February 23, 2009]

Thank you.

Thank you Secretary Romulo for your introduction, and thank you also for all the hard work that you have been doing for veterans' benefits way back when you were still a senator. Thank you.

Ambassador Kristie Kenney and our other friends in the United States, Senator Lito Lapid representing the Senate, our various congressmen and congresswomen who are here with us today led by our deputy speakers, members of the Cabinet, members of the Diplomatic Corps, and of course, our honorees today and our honorees in the special provision in the stimulus package — the veterans, the Filipino World War II veterans: (Applause)

Our long battle for justice for our Filipino World War II veterans has achieved a great victory. And I would like to join Secretary Romulo and Colonel de Ocampo in thanking the U.S. Congress for passing the bill and President Barack Obama for signing into law the Stimulus Package that grants cash benefits for Filipino World War II veterans in payment of damages for human suffering that they endured in their military service during the Second World War.

And I might add, when I thanked the senators and congressmen who worked very hard for this bill, they said, "please, make sure to remind everybody that this is in addition to the present benefits they're already getting not in replacement of." In other words, any addition to the recognition of their military service and the lump-sum payments, that are now forthcoming, those enjoying the supplementary security income will be able to continue with that benefit.

With the passage of the bill and the stroke of a pen, the U.S. Congress and the U.S. President recognized, as Secretary Romulo said, more than 60 years of struggle endured by surviving Filipino veterans for World War II.

And Secretary Romulo and Colonel de Ocampo have mentioned some of the legislators, the leading legislators to whom we owe this very important recognition and benefits aside from President Obama, Speaker Nancy Pelosi, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, Senators Daniel Inouye and Daniel Akaka, and I might also add Senator Richard Lugar, and we have already mentioned Congressman Bob Filner, I should add also Congressman Darrel Issa and Mike Honda and former Senator Ted Stevens, and many other Senators and Congressmen who have been staunch supporters of Filipino veterans all these years.

These are the congressmen and senators that we have been working with all these years every time we go to Washington, everytime we go to California and every time they come to the Philippines.

We look forward to the speedy implementation of the provisions for Filipino veterans in the Stimulus Bill. We will continue working with the U.S. government in ensuring that benefits and recognition are given to our veterans. In order to speed up these benefits, I already told Secretary Teodoro about this yesterday. Today, I am directing the Philippine Veterans Affairs Office to put up temporary processing centers in provinces with a large number of World War II veterans to speed up the processing of the benefits.

The temporary centers shall be called "PVAO Fast-Track Centers". The roster of surviving World War II veterans now with PVAO and the updated data base of government agencies that have records of living veterans will be the basis for where the PVAO FTCs shall be located.

This will spare the veterans, who have served our country in the cause of freedom, from the physical torture and cost of going to Metro Manila to have their claims processed. (Applause)

The dispersal of the PVAO staffers to carry out outreach program in the provinces will also help them develop a keener understanding of the problems faced by our war veterans.

The PVAO staffers to be assigned to the temporary processing centers are hereby instructed to coordinate with the Regional Offices of the Department of Foreign Affairs and the local government leaders in their areas of assignment to fast-track centers.

Our PVAO staffers should also need to communicate, in simple and easy-to-understand language, the entire processing exercise.

In their old age and in the winter of their lives, the veterans need more than ever, the tender and caring hand of government.

Speaking of old age, I'd like to spend this day remembering those who did not live to see this day. There was my father, who is in the guerilla movement in charge of holding the funds of the guerillas in his area in San Juan, and that's where he earned the term 'Macapagal, the incorruptible.'

I'd like to remember my uncle, his brother, Congressman Angel Macapagal who was in the death march; but because the death march passed through our hometown of Lubao, Pampanga when he was drinking water, he noticed that nobody noticed him. So he was able to get out, escape from the death march as many others were able to do during that march from Bataan to Capas. Of course, more were not able to find a way to escape. They did not pass through their hometowns. They did not know. They were not familiar with the areas in which they were.

I even want to remember our family chauffeur, Osias Navarro, who had to leave his family, our cook and his children, one of whom now works with us and one of who married an American and lived in the United States. He had to leave them in the Philippines so he could live in the United States so he could earn, he could receive the monthly veterans pensions. And you have to live in the U.S. to be eligible for that. And I remember his getting his visa in the U.S. Embassy and working for his green card. I remember my daughter rehearsing him for his interview in the U.S. Embassy. I remember all of them, and I think they're happy for all of you who are still alive here today. (applause)

We also congratulate President Obama for his keen leadership that led to the passage of the Stimulus Bill as a whole.

In all of our calculations, the world must take the poorest people into account at the same time that we are looking at ways to help developed economies. We observe that the welfare of the poorest people and the poorest economies are not yet a priority as the world searches for solutions to the global crisis.

And we urge that it must be made a priority moving forward.

The inclusion in the Stimulus Bill of payments of Filipino World War II veterans is an example of what we had been advocating for — that is, in looking for solutions to the crisis. We must not neglect the hardships of those most hurt by the global downturn including our Filipino veterans.

I hope the payments to Filipino World War II veterans as included in the Stimulus Package will be followed by other measures all over the world to help the downtrodden during this world crisis.

In closing, Ambassador Kenney, please convey to President Obama that we join the rest of the world in supporting his efforts to bring financial recovery to the U.S. and to the whole world.

Congratulations! Good luck and thank you. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's statement during the celebration of the signing of the U.S. Economic Stimulus Bill which includes cash benefits for the Filipino veterans of World War II. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412105218/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=21085&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo at the opening of the 2009 Private Schools Athletic Association (PRISAA) National Games [Filipino]

Pahayag ni Pangulong Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

Sa panimulang seremonya ng 2009 Private Schools Athletic Association (PRISAA) National Games

[Ipinahayag sa University of Nueva Caceres (UNC) Sports Palace, Lungsod ng City, Camarines Sur, ika 20 ng Abril, 2009

Maraming salamat Chairman Angeles at ibang mga Cabinet members na narito: si Nonoy Andaya at saka si Cerge Remonde.

Maraming salamat rin sa welcome remarks, Mayor Robredo and the other officials of Bicol, kasama na si Congressman Alfelor at saka si Congressman Dato Arroyo.

Maraming salamat din sa mga officials ng PRISAA sa pamumuno ni Gon Duque at saka ni President Villanueva. Congratulations! sa ating mga atleta pati yung ating mga scholar na atleta, congratulations sa inyong lahat! (Applause)

Sa aton mga officials, officiating officials, (applause) una sa lahat, congratulations dahil for the first time in PRISAA's history lahat ng 17 regions ay dumalo. Congratulations sa atleta at sa inyong lahat! (Applause)

Napakaimportante ito sa panahong ganito meron tayong world economic crisis. Kailangan magkaroon tayo ng mga ensayo kung papano magkaisa, kung papano magkaroon ng teamwork. At inaasahan ko ang mga kabataan na narito ngayon pagbalik niyo sa eskwela o kahit na diay summer ay gagawin kayo ng mga volunteer teams para tumulong sa inyong pamayanan at para nga sa pag ensayo ng teamwork kailangan ang mga kumpetensya gaya ng PRISAA.

And so, in my capacity as President of the Philippines, I hereby declare the PRISAA Games 2009 open! (Applause)

Dios mabalos sa indo gabos.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's statement during the opening ceremony of the 2009 Private Schools Athletic Association (PRISAA) National Games. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412104044/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=23659&Itemid=38

Departure Statement: President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo on her visit to the Republic of Korea and the Russian Federation

Departure Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On her visit to the Republic of Korea and the Russian Federation

[Issued on May 30, 2009]

Upon the invitation of President Lee Myung bak, I am going to the Republic of Korea to highlight our strong and productive partnership with Korea as we celebrate the 60th anniversary of our diplomatic relations. Our relations with Korea has thrived through the years to become one of our most enduring, dynamic and mutually beneficial.

In Seoul, I will have a bilateral meeting with President Lee to discuss with him the state of our bilateral relations and chart a new direction for a more strategic and prosperous region, especially in the fields of economic and trade cooperation, development cooperation and people-to-people linkages. We will also witness the signing of several official agreements with Korea in our efforts to promote the interests of our country and our people. These agreements pertain to labor cooperation, agriculture, energy, scientific and technical cooperation, sister-city arrangements, and environment conservation.

After my bilateral visit to Seoul, I will proceed to Jeju to attend the ASEAN-Korea Commemorative Summit as we celebrate the 20th anniversary of ASEAN-Korea dialogue relations. This will be the first summit that Korea will host for the ten ASEAN member-countries. At the Summit, we will tackle different pressing issues with the aim of strengthening ASEAN-Korea cooperation to effectively address regional and global challenges, such as the financial crisis, energy security and climate change.

While in Korea, I will meet with Korean businessmen and investors to promote the Philippines as the best value investment and tourism destination in Asia. I will also meet with our Filipino community to discuss their needs and concerns, and to reiterate to them the support and assistance of the Philippine government.

After the Commemorative Summit in Jeju, I will proceed to Russia to meet with President Dmitry Medvedev and other officials of the Russian government. Then, on 5 June, I will speak at the 13th St. Petersburg International Economic Forum, the first time that a Head of State from Asia to be able to do so, and I will put forward the Philippines' ideas and contributions in resolving the global financial crisis.

In my bilateral meeting with President Medvedev, I hope to discuss with him various initiatives that could enhance our bilateral relations, especially in the fields of defense and energy cooperation, and trade and investment. My visit to Russia will undoubtedly enhance the growing engagement of Russia in Asia, especially with regional organizations like the ASEAN and APEC.

As I begin my visit to Korea and Russia, I carry with me the hopes and aspirations of our people in attaining peace, security and prosperity. Together, we can look forward to a strong and prosperous nation.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). Departure Statement of PGMA on her visit to the Republic of Korea and the Russian Federation. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412102427/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25219&Itemid=38

Departure Statement: President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo on her visit to Japan and Brazil

Departure Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo: On her visit to Japan and Brazil

[Issued on June 17, 2009]

I will leave for Japan today to continue to intensify our robust and vibrant partnership with Japan, and to sustain the momentum resulting from the historic entry into force and implementation of the Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement (JPEPA) last December.

Japan is the Philippines' biggest source of official development assistance (ODA), the top export market for Philippine goods and products, the second top trading partner, and one of the major sources of investment and tourist arrivals.

In Tokyo, I will have an audience with Their Majesties the Emperor and Empress of Japan. I will also have a bilateral meeting with Prime Minister Taro Aso and other top officials of the Japanese Government to discuss the state of our bilateral relations. I will also meet with Japanese businessmen and investors to invite them to take advantage of the many trade and investment opportunities in the Philippines. I also look forward to meeting the Filipino community in Japan, including some of our medical workers who have started their intensive training in Japan under JPEPA.

From Tokyo, I will go on a State Visit to Brazil upon the invitation of President Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva. As the first Philippine President to visit Brazil, I have high hopes that my visit will provide the impetus for enhanced relations with Brazil, the largest economy in Latin America and an emerging major global player.

In Brasilia, I will meet with President Lula to discuss ways and means to enhance our bilateral cooperation and people-to-people linkages. We will also witness the signing of official agreements in the fields of agriculture and bio-energy, as well as an agreement to develop stronger and better linkages between Philippine and Brazilian business communities.

I am very optimistic that my visit to Japan and Brazil will mark another milestone in our quest to further deepen and widen our cooperation with two of the world's economic powerhouses.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). Departure Statement of President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo on her visit to Japan and Brazil. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412101547/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25372&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the 15th Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) Summit General Debate

Country Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the 15th Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) Summit General Debate

[Delivered at the Maritim Congress Center, Sharm El Sheikh, Egypt, July 15, 2009]

Mr. Chairman:

We reiterate our congratulations on the assumption by Egypt and President Mubarak of the chairmanship of the Non-Aligned Movement. We are confident that His Excellency's stewardship will bear significant results for our Movement. And we assure that Egypt can count on the full cooperation of the Philippines.

We also thank His Excellency President Fidel Castro and his successor, President Raul Castro, for having ably steered our Movement during the past three years.

Mr. Chairman:

We must halt the divisions in international relations that work against our common effort to promote peace, stability, development and progress.

For this noble purpose, we, the more than 100 NAM members, are partners working together to advance the family of nations. Global cooperation is the only means of securing lasting peace and progress. Our Movement must continue to work with others towards this crucial end.

Mr. Chairman:

There are five key areas where NAM can take the lead in forging international solidarity for peace and development.

First, the international community must take decisive and sustained actions to address the worst global economic crisis in the post-war era. The past twelve months have been a year for the history books. The global financial turmoil spread and jeopardized the well-being of billions of people across the globe.

This is also a crisis that have taught us all many lessons that will serve us well as we work together to restructure the global economic system. The most important thing we have learned is that our economies are closely interconnected. We sink or swim as one. In the face of this grave situation, we need to strengthen South-South cooperation. We need to enhance regional and sub-regional efforts.

Amidst the dark clouds of the global economic crisis are silver linings that will redound to our mutual benefit. Not the least of which is the increasing acknowledgement that all nations and regions of the world must now take the place at the table. No longer can a few lead the many. We need to make the G-20 or even a G-30 the norm, and not revert to simply viewing the world through the eyes of the G-7. We must create greater stronger global oversight and greater transparency in the financial system. We must all have a voice and help supply the vision of the world economy in the next generation.

The second area NAM should address relates to the crucial negotiations leading to the Conference of the Parties to the U.N. Framework Convention on Climate Change to be held this December in Copenhagen.

The Philippines is active in the preparatory discussions and negotiations. We have been designated as the overall coordinator of the Group of 77 and China for the Ad-Hoc Working Group on Long-Term Cooperative Action.

NAM, through its participation in the G77 and China, must remain actively involved in negotiations concerning carbon emission reduction targets, financing and technology. If we are going to impact the climate change dialogue, we must carry a message from NAM to the ongoing meetings of the U.N. Framework Convention on Climate Change.

The industrialized countries must decide, before the Copenhagen meeting, on the range of their carbon emission reduction targets.

The announced aggregate targets will enable us to determine whether or not we can keep the global temperature rise to less than two percent. Beyond that point, the developing world, with its poor technologies and inefficient resources that restrict their ability to adapt or to mitigate the impacts of climate change, would experience adverse climate change impacts of unmanageable proportions.

And we must call on all countries, but most importantly the major industrialized nations and the rest of the developed world, to live up to their UNFCCC obligations, particularly those related to access to affordable and appropriate technology and funding for climate change management programs.

Third, interfaith dialogue is essential if we are to end the disagreements between faiths and between cultures that are killing so many innocent people in so many countries around the world.

The Philippines is pleased to host the Special NAM Ministerial Meeting on Interfaith Dialogue and Cooperation for Peace in Manila from December 1 to 3 this year. This will mark the first time that NAM will harness the great potentials of interfaith dialogue and cooperation to advance our concerns for a durable and lasting peace and sustainable development.

The Philippines has long been an advocate of peace and the promotion of an open dialogue among various faiths and religions to foster understanding and cooperation for peace and development. We are a predominantly Catholic country. However, we recognize the importance of reaching out to our Muslim brothers through continuous engagement and to put aside differences and to bring together the people of different faiths for a common good. We value the opportunity to share insights from our unique paradigm for peace, which has been a mix of both soft and hard power in dealing with insurgencies, and to learn from the invaluable experiences of other NAM member countries on their respective interfaith programs that have helped bridge their religious and cultural divides.

We look forward to welcoming all the NAM delegations in Manila. This will blaze a new landmark in our Movement's quest for international solidarity.

Fourth, as we look at international security of regions, we cannot overlook the important issue of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation. The Philippines stands with all peace-loving nations against dangerous experimentations with nuclear weapons. We support the decisions of the United Nations Security Council in this regard. We are grateful to the NAM membership for your trust in the Philippines for endorsing the Philippines' presidency of the 2010 Review Conference of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty — the NPT 2010.

Fifth, let us focus our collective action on our migrant workers, a group whose labors benefit both their home and their host nations. Despite their contributions to the global economy, many migrant workers are our unsung heroes, often vulnerable to exploitation.

In the U.N., the Philippines has been one of the foremost advocates for the International Convention for the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Their Families. I urge all our NAM partners that have not yet done so, to accede to this important Convention.

Of immediate concern is our migrant workers who are falling victim to kidnapping and piracy while working on board international vessels. We call on the member states of NAM to do everything in your power to help protect those vulnerable workers from pirates and other non-state actors who would do harm.

Mr. Chairman:

Indeed, NAM brings together nations to address global challenges such as the global economic crisis, climate change, nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament, interfaith understanding, and the welfare and development of migrant workers particularly as the global economy becomes more integrated.

These are the areas in which we hope to see greater levels of cooperation among NAM members because if the developing world speaks as one, we have the power to move toward faster solution to these challenges.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the 15th Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) Summit General Debate. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412100800/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25675&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the pre-SONA Task Force on Education meeting

Opening Statement President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
During the pre-SONA Task Force on Education meeting

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, July 26, 2009]

Thank you.

Thank you all for joining us on a Sunday.

I value weekends with my family and I know you also do. I wouldn't have called you here if it weren't so important. As you know, we will be delivering our State of the Nation Address or SONA tomorrow. We've been working night and day and through this weekend to get ready. As part of our presentation, we have convened experts from across government on subjects that will be discussed in the SONA — national security, the economy, social service, infrastructure and more, all will be part of our SONA.

All have been crucial to my priorities as President. We take the SONA very seriously. Our people deserve to know what their government is doing, how the money is spent, and what our priorities for the nation are. Nothing is more sacred or more valuable to enhancing the dignity of every Filipino than a good education. So, no issue is more important to us than education. Our children, the children of our nation, are our most precious to us and we must lead on every opportunity to use their God-given talents to lift themselves up. Education is their ticket to a better life.

So, today we have also taken up valuable family time of our education experts who came here to report about the state of education — our progress, our challenges, our aspirations. Their advice and findings will be the inputs for our SONA tomorrow.

So, we thank them for coming out today to brief us. And we also thank everyone for taking time out of your day of rest to join us for this important subject.

So, if I may excuse the members of the media so we can receive the report of the Task Force on Education.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's opening statement during the pre-SONA Task Force on Education meeting. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412100629/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25789&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Departure Honors for her visit to the United States of America

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Departure Honors for her visit to the United States of America

[Delivered at the Pre-departure area, NAIA Terminal 2, July 29, 2009]

Good afternoon everyone.

We are pleased to accept the invitation of President Obama to be the first Southeast Asian Leader to meet with him at the White House.

The fact that President Obama sought out the Philippines for this opportunity is a testament to the strong and deep ties between our two nations. It also reflects the ongoing relationship we have built through a series of phone conversations and correspondence reaching back to when he was a candidate for President.

My expectations for the trip are straightforward: to meet the new U.S. President and advance the interests of the Philippines with our strongest friend and ally. The U.S. is essential to our economic, diplomatic and national security. We plan to ensure that these objectives remain front and center and on track between our two nations.

High on our agenda will be peace and security issues, including ways to continue to strengthen regional cooperation on anti-terrorism, particularly in the light of the recent Jakarta bombings. The Oval Office meeting with President Obama comes at a pivotal time for U.S. relations in Asia.

I am very hopeful that the Obama Administration will once again put America back on the radar screen in Asia. The visit to the region by Secretary Clinton and the early outreach by President Obama sends strong signals that the U.S. is committed to a new, more robust engagement with the region.

Closer to home, we will discuss how best to advance the peace process in Mindanao. The U.S. has helped train our military to be more professional and effective. Just as important, the U.S. has been a key ally in advancing “soft” power by helping build schools, roads and bridges, and building up our economy through U.S. development assistance in Mindanao and across the nation.

We will discuss the global economic crisis that has swept the world and what we can do to mitigate the impact on the poor everywhere, especially in Asia and the Philippines.

There are a range of other issues we plan to discuss including climate change. We applaud President Obama’s leadership on climate change. President Obama understands the pressing need for the U.S. to step up and take action.

As an island nation, the Philippines is particularly vulnerable to dramatic changes in our weather and rising seas. We will do everything in our power to work with the U.S. on this vital issue that confronts the Philippines and the entire human race.

Finally, we will convey our deep appreciation for the payment of a 190 million dollars by the U.S. for Philippine veterans of World War II. This long overdue recognition will go a long way to rewarding those patriotic Filipinos who fought side-by-side with Americans, under U.S. command, during the heroic days of World War II.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's statement during the Departure Honors for her visit to the United States of America. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615172458/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25788&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the official dinner in honor of Prime Minister Abhisit Vejjajiva of the Kingdom of Thailand

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the official dinner in honor of Prime Minister Abhisit Vejjajiva of the Kingdom of Thailand

[Released at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, August 14, 2009]

His Excellency Prime Minister Abhisit Vejjajiva, members of the Diplomatic Corps, Vice President de Castro, Speaker Nograles, members of the Thai delegation and officials of the Philippine government, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen.

In behalf of the Filipino people, it's my great pleasure to welcome His Excellency Prime Minister Abhisit.

Your Excellency, your visit is a fitting celebration of our 60 years of diplomatic relations this year.

This afternoon, you gave me a book commemorating our anniversary and the book is entitled, "Thailand-Philippines — Ties Beyond Times." What an appropriate title.

The book puts together historical photographs and documents of important events such as the state visit of Their Majesties the King and Queen of Thailand to the Philippines when my father was President. But the ties are truly beyond times because while formal diplomatic relations between the Philippines and Thailand go back to 1949, our relations go back to the 11th century as evidenced by Thai ceramics from Sawankalok kilns found in Philippine archaeological sites. In other words, trade with Thailand goes back almost a thousand years.

Before the Philippines was born as a nation in 1898, our relationship with Thailand were explored by various embassies sent from the Spanish Manila. History records a gift of elephants from Siam by the Spanish Governor General in Manila in the 18th century. So indeed, our trade and friendly relations go back a long way in history and we are resolved that they should also go forward to the future.

Our trade, economic and socio-cultural links are even more valuable during the current global economic crisis. When the world faces unprecedented economic challenges, countries must work together to forge stronger relations, to continue to trade and to make greater strides in integrating the global economy so that we emerged stronger from the global crisis and so that we instill global systems that ensure such a global crisis does not happen again.

On the part of ASEAN, such systems include the forthcoming Chiang Mai Initiative on Multilateralization under the able leadership of Thailand as chair of ASEAN this year. On our part, as the coordinator for U.S. relations as designated by ASEAN, we congratulate His Excellency for the success of the recent ASEAN Regional Forum where the active reengagement in our region of the world's most powerful nation and largest economy was launched.

We look forward to a similar success of the ASEAN and related summits in Thailand later this year. On this note, Excellencies, ladies and gentlemen, I invite you to join me in a toast to the continued health and success of His Majesty, Their Majesties the King and Queen of Thailand, and to our distinguished guest Prime Minister Abhisit, and to the enduring friendship between the peoples of the Philippines and Thailand.

Mabuhay! (Toast)

Mabuhay! Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412100310/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25959&Itemid=38

NATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Statement: President Arroyo during the briefing on Climate Change and Solid Waste Management with the Barangay Captains of Baguio City

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the briefing on Climate Change and Solid Waste Management with the Barangay Captains of Baguio City

[Delivered at the Mansion Conference Hall, Baguio City, August 28, 2009]

Naimbag a malem yo amin, Apo.

I don't know if you waited very long for us, but you would have waited longer if the weather were bad, because we almost landed in La Union. But thank goodness, there was a clearing in the sky, a big part of it was blue even though there were many clouds, so here we are.

Every Friday is Climate Change Day for the Office of the President. Because on this day, we devote ourselves to discussing how to mitigate and to adopt to climate change because of the different parts of the country. And this is in accordance with the practice that was carried out in my Executive Order that created the Presidential Task Force on Climate Change headed by the President.

Under this Task Force, there are 17 task groups. And one of the task groups is DENR on Solid Waste Management. Another task which is also DENR on reforestation. So between December and June, we went around every Friday, where Lito would talk about Solid Waste Management in a given area. But after six months from my Executive Order, we would add reforestation to the topic of the presentation.

Now what Lito Atienza and I do every Friday is done by Sonny Alvarez everyday as Presidential Adviser on Climate Change. But every Friday, he give us a report on the activities of the Presidential Adviser on Climate Change whether it is going abroad and sharing the participating and policy making on climate change in the world or also going around and propagating the requirements of the law among Local Government Units with regard to climate change.

So I thank Congressman Domogan and Mayor Bautista for helping us to organize all the barangay officials of the City of Baguio which is a very, very important city in our country, and especially in as much as we are now celebrating our Centennial of Baguio City.

So without much ado, I will call on Secretary Lito Atienza to make his presentation.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's opening statement during the briefing on Climate Change and Solid Waste Management with the Barangay Captains of Baguio City. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412100140/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=26197&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint NEDA-NAPC Cabinet Group Meeting with the Pro-Performance System Steering Committee

Opening statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Joint NEDA-NAPC Cabinet Group Meeting with the Pro-Performance System Steering Committee

[Released at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, November 24, 2009]

Before we convene the Cabinet Meeting, I just like to inform everyone that I have directed the AFP through Secretary Bert Gonzales and Acting Chief of Staff General Maclang and the Police through Secretary Puno and Chief PNP Verzosa to order their units to conduct immediate and relentless pursuit of the perpetrators to secure the affected areas in Maguindanao.

I asked them to proceed to Maguindanao today to personally oversee military action against the perpetrators of the dastardly acts that occurred yesterday. No effort will be spared to bring justice to the victims and hold the perpetrators accountable to the full limit of the law.

The Chief of Staff has ordered the establishment of check points and choke points, and as of last night the military elements were in place to preserve peace in the areas. Additional troops have also been deployed to the area last night to further secure the area.

I'd like to call now the Cabinet Meeting to order. Can we ask Secretary Ermita to lead the opening prayer?

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's opening statement during the Joint NEDA-NAPC Cabinet Group Meeting with the Pro-Performance System Steering Committee. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615133800/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=26928&Itemid=38

Statement: President Arroyo on the Mindanao massacre

Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:
On the Mindanao massacre

[Released at the Porac Interchange of the SCTEX, Porac, Pamapanga, November 25, 2009]

Ako'y nagdedeklara ng Araw ng Pagluluksa para sa mga biktima ng nangyaring maramihang pagpapaslang sa Mindanao. Hindi makakatakas ang mga may kagagawan ng karumal-dumal na krimeng ito. Hahabulin sila ng batas hanggang sila ay mapaparusahan.

I am outraged as is everyone at this crime. It is a travesty of our pledge to uphold the basic humanity of every Filipino. The perpetrators will not escape justice. The law will haunt them until they are caught. Commitment to human rights and human dignity shall prevail in the Philippines.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's statement on the Mindanao massacre. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615133745/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=26957&Itemid=38

National Statement: President Arroyo during the Joint High-Level Segment of Conference of the Parties (COP) and CMP of intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations on behalf of constituencies

National Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the Joint High-Level Segment of Conference of the Parties (COP) and CMP of intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations on behalf of constituencies

[Issued at the Plenary Hall, Bella Center, Copenhagen, Denmark, December 17, 2009]

Thank you, Madame President.

The people of the Philippines look upon these negotiations in Copenhagen with a critical sense of urgency. The average world per capita CO₂ equivalent emission of six tons must be brought down to three tons to stabilize at 450 parts per million in 2050. The Philippines is already doing better than that. Our emission is only 1.6 tons per capita, and we are further committed to deviate by 20 percent from our business as usual emissions growth path.

Yet, though our country has a good carbon footprint, we are disproportionately vulnerable to the devastation of Mother Nature, accelerated by the mistreatment of the fragile environment by human beings all over the world. This vulnerability is due in large part to the fact that we are an archipelago of 7,000 islands, with the majority of our people living in low-lying areas prone to climate hazards.

The UN reports that the Philippines is one of the top 12 countries at the greatest risk from climate change. In fact, we topped the list of nations most in danger of facing more frequent and more intense storms as the impact of climate change intensifies.

Tropical storms of historical scale have inflicted devastation and tragic loss of lives upon our country. Two recent typhoons cost our people four billion dollars or 2.7 percent of our GDP. Our major food regions lost 8 to 10 percent of their GDP because over 600,000 hectares of farmland were destroyed, while the industrial areas lost 6 to 8 percent. These same typhoons affected more than nine million people and killed 900. Over 200,000 homes were damaged or destroyed. Our nation was already struggling against the headwinds of the global economic storm when we were forced to confront these natural disasters.

Thank God that we pulled together as a nation. We have begun to rebuild the affected areas of our country. We thank our international friends and development partners who assisted us in our moment of need over the past few months.

We come to Copenhagen in partnership with other nations to find a way to meet the harsh impacts of climate change and avert a global climate crisis. It is time to harmonize economic development with environmental protection in a new global order where they are not mutually exclusive, but rather synonymous. It is time all countries of the world owned up to our collective responsibilities. Solving this problem will certainly take years, but we need to start the process now.

We cannot afford to leave Copenhagen without a deal, and a deal based on the principle of common but differentiated responsibilities. For an equitable outcome, developed countries need to lead in reducing emissions. A robust financial mechanism must also be established to meet the needs of the costs of adaptation for developing countries and for effective development and transfer of technologies. We applaud Secretary Clinton's groundbreaking announcement that the United States is "prepared to work with other countries toward a goal of jointly mobilizing $100 billion a year by 2020 to address the climate change needs of developing countries." It is essential that this augmentation of global funds should include the replenishment of existing global grant facilities.

Madame President, colleagues, humans started the problem of climate change; humans can certainly solve it.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's National Statement during the Joint High-Level Segment of Conference of the Parties (COP) and CMP of intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations on behalf of constituencies. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615133628/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27163&Itemid=38

Opening Statement: President Arroyo during the event on “Climate Finance: Challenges and Opportunities for Developing Countries”

Opening Statement of President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo:

During the event on “Climate Finance: Challenges and Opportunities for Developing Countries”

[Issued at the Liva Weel Room, Bella Center, Copenhagen, Denmark, December 17, 2009]

Thank you.

Thank you very much Mr. De Boer. Thank you for organizing this event. And thank you for inviting me to be here.

The people of the Philippines attached a critical sense of urgency to our negotiations here in Copenhagen. Our country, I'm proud to say, has a good carbon footprint. Our per capita CO2 equivalent emission is only 1.6 tons compared to the world average of six tons. To stabilize at 450 parts per million in 2050, the world average must be brought down to three tons per capita, but we've already gone beyond that. The Philippines is already doing better than that and yet we are committed to further deviate by 20 percent from our business as usual emissions growth path. Yet the Philippines is a country, but I'm sad to say, demonstrates disproportionate vulnerability to the devastation of Mother Nature accelerated by the mistreatment of the fragile environment by human beings all over the world. And maybe that's why I'm a fellow keynote speaker to demonstrate what happens to a climate taker not a climate maker.

The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change paints a stark picture of the challenges we face due to climate change. Consistent with the global findings with the IBCC, our Philippine Weather Bureau says that the temperature in our country increased at an average of 0.61 degrees Celsius from 1951 to 2006. The U.N. reported that the Philippines is one of the top twelve countries at the greatest risk from climate change. In fact, we topped the list of nations most in danger of facing more frequent and more intense storms as the impact of climate change intensifies. The western part of the Pacific where we belong sees more tropical cyclones than any of the five other ocean basins. And among Southeast Asian countries, the Philippines is the most exposed and the most sensitive to climate hazards due to our geographical, geophysical and socio-economic circumstances.

We're always the first ones to be hit because the Philippines fronts the ocean basin. We often experience the brunt of the typhoon intensity and rainfall which has been increasing. In the last two decades alone the Philippines suffered damages that caused the death of 25,000 people. Twenty-two storms have hit the Philippines this year. The typhoons are becoming more horrific, the rains more violent, the seas more savage.

We are highly susceptible to flooding. This is due in large part to the fact that we are an archipelago of over 7,000 islands with the majority of our people living in low-lying areas exposed to sea level rises. Seventy percent of our cities and towns are coastal areas.

The change in global environment is already dramatically and negatively affecting the Philippines. Tropical storms of historic scale have inflicted devastation and tragic loss of lives in our country. Two recent typhoons, Ketsana and Parma, caused our people four billion dollars or 2.7 percent of our GDP. Our major food regions lost eight to ten percent of their GDP because over 600,000 hectares of farmland were destroyed, while industrial areas lost six to eight percent. These same typhoons affected more than nine million people and killed more than 900. Over 200,000 homes were damaged or destroyed. Ketsana recorded the highest rainfall in Philippine history — 17.9 inches — meaning, a foot and a half in 24 hours last September 26.

Our nation was already struggling against the headwinds of the global economic storm when we were forced to confront these natural disasters. Thank God that we pulled together as a nation. We have begun to rebuild the affected areas of our country due in part to the international assistance we received over the past few months. In behalf of a grateful Filipino nation, we thank our friends and development partners in our moment of need.

And apart from typhoons, global warming is also affecting our agriculture, our fishing stocks, our forests and our cities. Climate change impacts on our ecosystems such as the increase of sea temperature of 0.5 degrees Celsius. This causes coral bleaching. In some areas about half of the corals have died. Even in an ideal world with successful economic development and efficient energy technologies, temperatures are still projected to increase beyond sustainable targets and beyond the threshold of highly vulnerable, low-lying archipelagos like the Philippines.

Our ecosystems can only be sustainable if we enhance their integrity. That is why even if we already have a good carbon footprint, we are still committed to further protect our natural systems and ecological processes by vigorously implementing our very progressive environmental laws, such as: the Ecological Solid Waste Management Act; the Clean Water Act; the Clean Air Act; the Renewable Energy Act, considered the best in the world; the Bio-Fuels Act; the National Integrated Protected Areas Act; the Fisheries Code; and now most recently, the Climate Change Act.

That is also why vulnerable developing nations like us, the countries represented in this forum for instance, have come to Copenhagen in partnership with others to find a way to meet the harsh impacts of climate change and avert a global climate crisis. It is time to harmonize economic development with environmental protection in a new global order where they are not mutually exclusive but they should be synonymous. It is time all countries of the world own up to our collective responsibilities. Solving this problem will certainly take years but we need to start the process now. To avert the most dangerous climate change, global emissions must decline by 2020. For an equitable outcome, developed countries need to lead in reducing emissions.

We cannot afford to leave Copenhagen without a deal. And our subject matter here: a robust financial mechanism must also be established to meet the cost of adaptation for developing countries and for effective development and transfer of technologies. That is why we appreciate the UNFCCC Secretariat for providing technical assistance to conduct the National Economic Environment Development Study or NEEDS for climate change in the Philippines and the other countries participating in this event. And that is also why we appreciate the UNFCCC Secretariat for organizing this event, and that is also why we applaud Secretary Clinton's groundbreaking breakthrough announcement that the U.S. is prepared to work with other countries toward the goal of jointly mobilizing $100 billion a year by 2020 to address the climate needs of developing countries. This augmentation of global funds will include the replenishment of existing global grant facilities. And it should also encourage each and every government to take steps to solve the climate change crisis.

Colleagues, climate takers — I think most of us here in this hall are that — humans started the problem of climate change, humans can certainly solve it. And I hope this event tonight will contribute to that solution.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's opening statement during the event on "Climate Finance: Challenges and Opportunities for Developing Countries". Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615133637/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27162&Itemid=38

HISTORICAL PAPERS AND DOCUMENTS

Remarks of President Arroyo during the 2002 Chinese New Year celebration of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Incorporated (FCCCII)

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 2002 Chinese New Year celebration of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Incorporated (FCCCII)

[Delivered at the Main Theater, Cultural Center of the Philippines (CCP) Roxas Blvd., Pasay City, February 12, 2002]

Last night as many of you were either in the streets of Binondo or in your New Year's parties or in the temple, I was watching television watching the many events related to the coming of the Chinese New Year, and I was listening to the analysis and the geomancers and I heard several of them say that the Year of the Water Horse is good for some bad for some but it is best for those who were born during the year of the pig. And I was born in the Year of the Pig.

So on this occasion I thank you, I thank you for inviting me to be part of your beautiful celebration tonight to learn more about the culture of the Filipino-Chinese. I thank you also for what you will be doing for our Manians. And I thank you for the lovely horse that you gave tonight.

And I ask you to help me indeed, being as your President, lucky during this year. And I ask you to help me make whatever good luck I have from the Year of the Horse spread out to you and to the rest of the Filipino people.

Kung Hei Fat Choi!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Remarks during the 2002 Chinese New Year Celebration of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Incorporated (FCCCII). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412230655/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7615&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the 4th Charter Anniversary of Valenzuela City [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa ika-4 na anibersaryo ng pagkakatatag ng Lungsod ng Valenzuela

[Ipinahayag sa Valenzuela City Hall, Lungsod ng Valenzuela, ika 14 ng Pebrero, 2002]

Maraming salamat Congressman Sherwin Gatchalian sa iyong magandang pagpakilala sa akin. At puwede na po kayong lahat maupo.

Si Mayor at Mrs. Bobbit Carlos, Happy Anniversary at congratulations; pati na rin kay Vice Mayor Espiritu at lahat ng mga officials sa lungsod ng Valenzuela, at lahat ng ating mga mamamayan sa lungsod ng Valenzuela. Happy 4th Anniversary at saka Happy Valentines sa inyong lahat.

Ako ho ay nasisiyahan na pumunta muli sa inyong Valentine at Anniversary kasi naalala ko two years ago noong ako ay Vice President, ako rin ang inyong Guest of Honor sa Valentine Anniversary. At naalala ko noong ako'y outside the kulambo dahil nandoon na tayo sa panahon ng mga impeachment ay ako rin ang ginawang Guest of Honor ni Mayor Bobbit Carlos sa kanyang birthday celebration.

Kaya po alam n'yo dito sa Metro Manila, lalung-lalo na iyong mga ibang lugar na maraming urban poor at maraming nagpunta sa Edsa tres na tinatawag nila, 'pag ako pumupunta nagdadala ako ng mensahe na healing — magkaisa na tayo, ganon — pero dito pagdating ko sa Valenzuela, hindi ako kailangang magdala ng ganoong klaseng mensahe kasi kayo sa halip na pumunta kayo sa Edsa tres, nandoon kayo sa Mendiola at binabantayan ninyo iyung Malacañang noong April 30. Kasi naalala ninyo noong sinabi ko may plot, na iyung gabi ay pupunta sila kaya kayo ay nagpunta doon para ma-gwardya. Kaya salamat dahil ang ganda ng inyong pagsuporta at handa kayong magproteksyon sa katawan ninyo at buhay ninyo sa Pangulo at sa Republika. Kaya sa halip na ang message of healing, ang aking message ay maraming salamat sa inyong suporta.

Kaya naman sabi ni Sherwin na bibigyan na lang daw niya ako ng opisina dito sa kadalasan kong pagpunta ngayong last 45 days na tatlong beses akong pumunta rito, at pumunta para sa maghahanap tayo ng mga kung papano maresolba ang mga iba't-ibang mga problema ng maralitang taga-lungsod.

Halimbawa, para sa kaalaman ng lahat, iyung ating grupo na nagpapasalamat ay iyung ating ginawang problem solving ay nagresulta, iyung kinuwento ni Congressman Gatchalian, iyung sa dike na matagal na nating hinahangad doon. Kaya ako nag-contribute, City of Valenzuela, Congressional district, Malacañang ay nagsama-sama para ganon matayo na natin iyung dikeng 'yon kasi 20 million iyung gastos, 'di ba? So nag-combine si Congressman saka Si Mayor sa Ten million at Malacañang naman ang nagbigay ng ten million. Puwede nang magsimula ngayon.

Kaya nasisiyahan ako doon sa scroll na binigay sa akin ng urban poor na sinabi na nakikita ninyo na 'pag akoy nagpupunta dito hindi para mamulitika kung hindi para umupo at hanapan ng solusyon ang mga problema. At dahil dun sa ang sinasabi ng scroll kaya dahil doon kayo ay nagpapasalamat, gusto niyong magsuporta at handa kayong gawin kung ano ang kailangan para sa suporta ninyo.

Ako'y nagpapasalamat doon, nakita ko na handa niyong gawin kung ano ang kailangan kasi noong gabi ng April 30, noong kailangan ko ng suporta sa Malacañang dahil sa May 1 ng madaling araw, papunta na sila, nandoon nga kayo. Kaya nakita ko na na handa kayong magsuporta.

At kung noon ay narinig lang niyo na may problema ako, tumakbo na kayo doon para tumulong, ngayon nagpapahayag naman kayo muli na handa kayong sumuporta. Anong klaseng suporta naman ngayon ang kailangan ng inyong lingkod sa inyo? Siguro iyung ipahayag ninyo iyung ginagawa ng ating administrasyon para sa maralita dahil iyun ay nararamdaman ninyo. Kasi ang daming nagsasabi, maganda raw iyung statistics ko pero hindi raw nararamdaman ng taong-bayan. Eh, dito sa pinahayag ninyo sa scroll, Sinasabi ninyong nararamdaman ninyo ang ginagawa ng ating administrasyon.

Kaya ang suportang hinihingi ko sa inyo, ipahayag niyo at ikwento ninyo hindi lamang dito sa Valenzuela dahil kayo ay pinaka-northernmost part ng Metro Manila, ipahayag na rin ninyo doon sa iba't-ibang mga mamamayan sa iba't-ibang mga probinsya. Halimbawa, kayo ay dating Bulacan, eh ipahayag na ninyo doon sa mga kilala niyo sa Bulacan. Sabi nga ni Bobbit Carlos ay ito ay nabuo, isang Valenzuela, naalala niya — salamat iyung tulong ng tatay ko — kaya ngayon ang Valenzuela ay, hanggang ngayon alam mo Bobbit 'pag ako ay pupunta dito kinukwento sa akin, pag tinatanong ako doon sa Malacañang saan ako pupunta bukas, ay doon ho sa Bulacan, iyun pala Valenzuela. Uy, sabi ko Valenzuela ay bukod na Lungsod ng Metro Manila, highly urbanized city; at sa mahigit na 150 cities na yata kayo, number 25 sa most urbanized city ang Valenzuela.

Iyon ho ang nangyari, kaya kinukwento ni Bobbit kung pano nagdoble ang income ng Valenzuela. At iyung ating binigyan ng mga sobre dito, kumbinasyon 'yon iyung mga pinakamahihirap na pamilya ng Valenzuela na hinanap ng National Anti-Poverty Commission at iyung mga nag-training sa micro-finance para sa mga kariton, 'di ba? At iyun ay nagpapalawak ng mga negosyo, maliliit na negosyo, malalaking negosyo dito sa Valenzuela.

Iyung isa sa pagbisita ko dito in the last 45 days nga, ay nagpunta ako doon sa 200 million expansion ng Splash na binebenta sa iba't-ibang lugar. saan ba 'yong ... ay number one tax payer pa 'yung Splash kaya dapat bigyan natin special na recognition. At iyung kanilang Skin Whitener, hanggang doon sa, ano, sa Indonesia 'di ba? Hanggang sa ibang mga karatig bansa ay binibili iyung produktong gawa ng Valenzuela.

Kaya sa Valenzuela meron tayong malalaking negosyo, kagaya ng Splash, kagaya noong plastic ng pamilya ni Sherwin. Malalaking negosyo nasa Valenzuela. Nandoon din iyung maliliit na negosyo, iyung microfinance na binigyan natin ng mga sobre kanina. Kaya from the giant to the smallest, ang dakilang manggagawang Pilipino ay nakikita dito sa lungsod ng Valenzuela.

Kaya naman ba't hindi kayo bibisitahing madalas. 'Pag pumupunta ako dito, nagkakaroon ako muli ng pag-asa. Kasi sa katotohanan, ako ay tao rin. Kahit na, siyempre 'pag araw-araw nagtatrabaho, 16 hours a day, 6 days a week, Sunday lang ang binibigay sa pamilya tapos sasabihing hindi nararamdaman, parang ang feeling mo parang throw in the towel na lang, wala ng pag-asa; just serve out the rest of my term, just coast along. Pero 'pag pumupunta ako sa Valenzuela, then I get hope again dahil kayo ay nagbibigay sa akin ng pag-asa. At sana iyung pag-asa ay mamumudmod sa buong Pilipinas.

At iyung aking kadalasan ng pagpunta dito sa kinagugulat ko ang nagresulta tuloy ay ako pala sabi ni Bobbit, ang unang Pangulo na nakapunta sa Valenzuela bilang Pangulo. Balik-balik ako dito, dito sa entabladong ito mula pa noong 1992, kandidato akong Senador, kandidatong Vice Mayor si Bobbit Carlos — magkasama na kami noon. Tapos, nung nagkampanya ako — '95 ba 'yun o 98? — sumayaw pa ako dito sa entabladong ito. Tapos nga, noong anibersaryo noong ako ay Bise Presidente at ngayon bilang Presidente. My first time sa entabladong ito as President pero hindi my first time sa buong bayan ng Valenzuela.

Kaya hindi ba tamang-tama na pinagdiriwang ko ang bahagi ng Valentine's day ko dito kasi, all these years, all these months, napatunayan, nararamdaman ko ang pagmamahal ng Valenzuela sa akin at siguro nararamdaman din niyo ang pagmamahal ng Pangulo at pamahalaan ng Pilipinas sa lungsod ng Valenzuela.

Kaya muli mga kaibigan, salamat sa inyong pag-imbata muli. Happy 4th Anniversary. Happy Valentines. And may we have many more valentines together for the good of the people of Valenzuela and the people of the Philippines.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Remarks during the 4th Charter Anniversary of Valenzuela City. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412230643/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7613&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during an urban poor visit [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pagbisita sa mga maralitang taga-lungsod

[Ipinahayag sa Halik Alon Compound, Barangay Sto. Nino, Lungsod ng Parañaque, ika 18 ng Pebrero, 2002]

Itong pagpunta po natin dito, pagpulong po natin dito ay bahagi po ng pagdiriwang ng People Power 1 at People Power 2. Kasi po yung People Power 1 ay nagkaroon ng culmination nung February 25, 1986, yung People Power 2 naman ay nagsimula ng January 16, 2001. From January 16 po hanggang February 25 — 40 days po yon. Eh hindi ba sa ating kultura meron tayong novena, 9 days, meron din tayong kuwaresma 40 days. So parang ang panginoon siya naman ang pinanggalingan ng People Power eh at talagang sinadya niya na between January 16 and February 25 talagang 40 days.

Parang binibigyan niya tayo ng mensahe na yung dalawang pangyayari sa ating kasaysayan ay isa lang ang diwa at dapat pinagdiriwang sa pamamagitan ng dasal; at hindi lamang dasal kung hindi pagkakaisa. Kasi ‘pag nagkaroon ng kuwaresma o novena usually nagsasama-sama tayo. Alam n’yo yon dahil sa Parañaque, dito sa oy saka si father saka hindi dito sa, oo sa St. Andrews at saka doon sa Baclaran napakauso ng talagang kilalang-kilala natin ang nobena na mga nagdarasal tayong sabay-sabay.

Anong gusto ng Panginoon para sa atin? Ang gusto naman niya talaga ay tayo ay magtrabaho sa kinabubuti lalung-lalo na ng mga pinakamahirap na anak niya.

Ngayon ho ang ating pagdiriwang kasi nung darating na yung January 20 ‘yun nga usually January 20 — one year na ako naging pangulo — so gagawin yan dapat meron malaking celebration sa EDSA, sasabihin kay Mayor Marquez magdala ka nga ng mga tiga-Parañaque doon sa EDSA para makinig sa diskurso ni President Arroyo. Hindi ganoon ang aking ginawa. Sa halip na everybody, hundreds of thousands may mapagpupulong sa EDSA in one day dahil dinala ng mga Mayor doon, ang ginawa ay ginawang 40 days at ang pumupunta ay hindi kayo sa pamahalaan sa EDSA kundi ang pamahalaan ang pumupunta sa inyo.

At sa halip na ako magdidiskurso ng medya hora mas mabuti pang makinig sa inyo tapos tayo magkuwento-kuwentuhan ang paghanap ng mga solusyon. Tignan n’yo ang ating buong meeting ngayon 30 minutes lamang pero hindi ba nakahanap tayo ng mga solusyon sa mga suliranin na siguro lalo na yung lupa dekadang hinintay ninyo ang solusyon pero dahil ginawa nating pag-uusap nakahanap tayo ng solusyon sa tatlung minuto. Eh biro niyo makakahanap ba tayo ng solusyon. So mas mabuti ito, hindi ba, ito ang tunay na pagdiriwang ng People Power dahil kayo ang People Power, kayo ang pinanggagalingan ng People Power.

At ito ay itutuloy, nagsimula nga ho ito ng January 16 doon nga sa payatas nung gabing yon. At doon din tiga-payatas dumating yung solusyon na kung maraming claimants yung bayad doon sa nanalo so yung nanggaling. Kasi nakahanap siya ng solusyon nung sinabi niya yung solusyon na tinawagan ko si Nonong Cruz, doon mismo sa cellular, yung aking Presidential Legal Council at sinabi ko nonong people power at ito nga ang talagang yan ang aking isang leksyon na nakukuha dito sa ating paglilibot: marami kang matututunan mismo sa taong-bayan. Ang kaalaman ay hindi isang monopoliya ng mga mataas na pinag-aralan dahil maraming common sense ang taong-bayan mismo ‘di ba.

So yung pagkatapos ng February 21 kasi sinu-survey pa, sinusukat pa kung ano ‘yung mga na ang people power ay talagang nanggagaling sa sambayanan, sa taong-bayan.

Sa ating pagdiriwang ng people power. Itong January 20 kaya yun piyesta ninyo pero hindi na kami nakarating at sana nga sa darating na panahon ay tuluy-tuloy itong ating pagsisikap na sabay-sabay, sama-sama maghahanap ng solusyon sa mga problema ng taong-bayan.

Kaya muli maraming salamat at happy EDSA anniversary sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Remarks during an Urban Poor Visit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412230633/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7612&Itemid=38

Note verbale of Filipino Ambassador to Indonesian Foreign Minister

Note Verbale of Filipino Ambassador to Indonesian Foreign Minister

No. 147-01

The Embassy of the Republic of the Philippines presents its compliments to the Department of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Indonesia and further to its Note no. 110.01 of 08 March 2001 on the ongoing case between Indonesia and Malaysia in the International Court of Just: over Pulau Sipadan and Pulau Ligitan has the honor to inform the latter that the Government the Republic of the Philippines wishes to reassure the Government of the Republic of Indonesia that it does not have any territorial interest on Sipadan and Ligitan islands.

The Philippine Government's motion to file for a petition to intervene proceeds from the desire and obligation to safeguard its national interest, which may be affected by the proceedings and outcome of the case. Furthermore, the decision to intervene should not be interpreted as a sign that the Philippine Government wants to be a party to the case. The Embassy appeals to the Indonesian Government's support and understanding on this matter.

The Embassy of the Republic of the Philippines avails itself of this opportunity to renew to the Department of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Indonesia the assurances of its high consideration.

Jakarta, 05 April 2001

Source: The Philippine Claim to a Portion of North Borneo

Remarks of President Arroyo before the Philippines-Japan Economic Cooperation Committee (PHILJECC)

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
Before the Philippines-Japan Economic Cooperation Committee (PHILJECC)

[Delivered at the Hotel New Otani, Tokyo, Japan, September 13, 2001]

Distinguished participants, friends, ladies and gentlemen, good afternoon.

Let me begin by thanking the Japan-Philippines Economic Cooperation Committee and PHILJECC for jointly hosting this luncheon and thanking as well the leaders of the Japanese business community for sharing their valuable time for this forum.

I am honored that you have chosen to come even at a time when our meeting is being held under a large global cloud of fear and anxiety. The horrible terrorist attacks launched in the United States two days ago threaten not only Americans, but the very stability of the international community.

However, we must not yield to terror. Rather we must demonstrate our resolve by continuing our work unhindered by the understandable grief that all humanity bears at this time. This is the way to maintain the foundation of our civilization and also maintain the course of our economic development.

Japanese companies play a major role in the economic development, export promotion, and job generation of the Philippines. Many of your companies in the Philippines are processing goods for exports to foreign markets such as the United States, Japan and other neighboring countries.

However, allow me to take this opportunity to point out to you that it is not only the product export market that you should invest in, in the Philippines. Let me point out two additional areas for your doing business in the Philippines: One is the domestic market of the Philippines itself, and the other is made up of the changing demographic characteristics of Japan.

On the domestic market of the Philippines: The Philippines has a large domestic market of 75 million people whose income and purchasing power are growing. In spite of the global economic weakness, I am very proud that the Philippine GDP is growing at a rate of 3.3% while its GNP is growing at the rate of 3.4%. This growth rate comes from increase in consumption, construction, and remittances from overseas Filipinos, which all mean that there is a good market for your investments right in the Philippines.

On the demographic changes in Japan, Japan is the fastest aging society in Asia, while the Philippines has a young population. By the year 2025, more than ¼ of the Japanese will be above 65 years old and will need all kinds of services for older persons. On the other hand, by that year more than 90% of the Filipinos will be less than 65 years old and many of them will have the training to take care of older persons. This complementarity is in itself an investment opportunity that I hope the Japanese business community will be looking at starting today.

But even if our domestic market and our young population are attractive investment areas in themselves, we will make further efforts to improve our investment conditions for the export market.

We are determined to improve our competitiveness both in cost and quality of producing goods. Our starting point is our workforce who speak English and are IT literate.

Filipino workers are ranked number one among knowledge workers. They provide a rich minefield for collaboration in information and communications technology or ICT between Japan and the Philippines. I am very proud that 1 million Filipinos know how to do the Internet. The collaboration therefore could combine the Philippines' strong human base for software and content development with Japan's prowess in hardware development.

We are also determined to improve our competitiveness by providing a stable peace and order climate. We are exerting every effort to break up the kidnapping syndicates, neutralize terrorist groups and ensure the safety of businessmen as well as ordinary citizens.

The Philippine National Police has increased its police visibility by doubling the number of policemen in every beat. It has also increased the number of police investigators and intensified its investigations on police officers suspected to be supporting criminal syndicates.

The board of investments and the department of the interior have launched an investor hotline to ensure quick response to threat situations, in addition to the patrol 117 available to the entire community.

I have created a national anti-crime commission or N.A.C.C. to tighten coordination among law enforcement agencies. Under the N.A.C.C., it is not only the police but also the armed forces who worked out and help the police in fighting crime.

I have created an anti-kidnaping task force under this N.A.C.C.

And with the cooperation and support of the many volunteer anti-crime groups as well as the general public, there are now better prospects for improving the solution efficiency of kidnap for ransom. I have noticed statistics that people are now more predisposed to report crimes to the police compared to recent times.

Thus, so far this year, because of the support of the community as well as the improvements in our investigative capability the majority of the kidnap cases have been solved.

So far this year also, the crime rate is 10% lower than last year.

And the index crime rate, which is considered a better indicator of the crime situation, also reflects a 4% decrease. We are determined to improve our competitiveness also by minimizing labor disputes. The Department of Labor and the Department of Trade have formed quick reaction teams to pro-actively assist in settling labor-management disputes before they develop into confrontational situations. Because of this conciliation and mediation services of the DTI and the Department of Labor, more than 400 announced strikes did not actually take place because reconciliation was made by the intervention of the government. Recently, our arbitration court resolved a labor dispute in favor of Toyota Philippines management. We are likewise adopting innovative approaches to promote good relations within management and labor such as seminars on labor-relations and productivity enhancement for our workforce. The first seminar was conducted last August 22nd by the Department of Trade and the Department of Labor together with the Japanese chamber.

We are also determined to improve our competitiveness by maintaining stable rules of investment. The executive branch of government consistently interprets investment laws in favor of the investor. The courts of course are independent of the executive, just as they are here in Japan, but nonetheless whenever the solicitor general can get involved in a commercial litigation, he consistently takes the position of providing consistency of rules in favor of the investor.

We are also determined to improve our competitiveness by attending to infrastructure. And so here therefore infrastructure serves a double purpose:

First it improves competitiveness, and second in itself it is also an investment opportunity.

In attending to infrastructure, what we wanted to do for example is to bring down the cost post power, and we did this in the first five months of my administration because congress passed a power sector reform law reforming our power sector a law that was pending for nearly a decade. And I am very happy that in this delegation with me is the author and sponsor of that law that we structure our power sector after more but after almost a decade of seeking to make that reform and that is senator John Osmeña. In power and other infrastructure sectors, there are many investment opportunities under the build-operate-and-transfer scheme.

Our priorities include the following for build operate and transfer:

Telecommunications facilities for high-speed connectivity.

At low cost; roads to target tourist destinations; infrastructure for the modernization of agriculture; Light Rail Transit to reduce traffic in Metro Manila; and transport systems to decongest Manila North towards Subic-Clark and south towards Calabarzon and Batangas port.

To reduce traffic in Metro Manila for instance, we shall build 5 new mass Transit lines in order to give relief to four million passengers. These systems will add 119 kilometers of railway projects and I hope that of those kilometers will be built by Japanese companies.

Aside from mass transit, we shall also build four highspeed expressway projects across the Metro Manila area nearby provinces, as well as interchanges at major intersections of EDSA and C5. We have also programmed the short-term and medium-term improvement of the drainage system especially in floodprone areas and streets. Hopefully these reforms will improve the traffic situation for your convenience in doing business coz at the same time this provide investment opportunities for you to engage in.

We are also determined to improve our competitiveness by continuing to liberalize the airline industry, and further, we will develop Clark for cargo and passenger operations, construct new airports in the Visayas and Mindanao and modernize the country's major ports.

In the area of telecommunications, aside from promoting investments in physical infrastructure for high-speed connectivity at low cost, we are also establishing municipal telecenters. Government is also working out for the mobile phone providers to disperse cell sites to make their services available all over the country. The Philippines with its 7,000 islands certainly is a good investment opportunities for wireless or wired telecommunications infrastructure.

And to make your business more convenient and competitive we are determined to eradicate corruption and reduce red tape, and this effort is led by my Cabinet members for men and women of integrity and competence recruited on the basis of track record, good reputation, and dedication. My Cabinet members are a blend of youth and experience.

Their dynamic and state-of-the-art brand of technocracy is further strengthening the financial sector and simplifying and clarifying the system of incentives.

Under their leadership to increase transparency and reduce red tape, government agencies are implementing measures to cut in half the number of signatures required for the delivery of services such as licenses, permits, registration and franchises.

Our local government officials have likewise agreed to streamline and slash the red tape, in order to provide continuity between national and local governments in their efforts to be investor-friendly.

When I became President last January, I told the Filipino people and the world about winning the war against poverty within the decade, and with Congress open last July 1, I said that in order to succeed, our national agenda must revolve around four components:

- First, an economic philosophy of free enterprise appropriate to the 21st century;
- Second, a modernized agricultural sector founded on social equity;

- Third, a social bias toward the disadvantaged to balance our economic development plan; and
- Fourth, raising of the moral standards of government and society.

We call on the Japanese companies, especially those already in the Philippines, to be with us as the new government embarks on our journey into the new economy of the new century.

For many Japanese companies, you have been there for so long and The Philippines is a second home. Many of you were there since the time when my father was President of the Philippines since the time when the Imperial Majesties then at that time crowned prince and princess of Japan visited the Philippines as state guest of my father. You have been there since and we hope that you will continue to be there.

We want you to be successful. We want you to be globally competitive.

We will do what we need to do in order to make you successful and globally competitive because we want you to stay with us.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Remarks before the Philippines-Japan Economic Cooperation Committee (PHILJECC). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409212833/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8715&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Kapit-Bisig Laban sa Kahirapan (KALAHI) Muslim Community Day

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Kapit-Bisig Laban sa Kahirapan (KALAHI) Muslim Community Day

[Delivered at the Malacañang Mosque, Malacañang, October 5, 2001]

Maraming salamat Dinky.

Maraming salamat din Congressman Harry Angpin. Akala ko Congressman si Harry ng Chinatown, Congressman pala ng Chinatown at ng Muslim town.

Ang inyong distrito ang nagpapatunay na ang ating lipunang Pilipinas ay isang multi-ethnic society at dapat galangin natin lahat ng kultura sa ating bansa.

Salamat rin kay Cecille Alvarez, asawa ni Secretary Sonny Alvarez at iyong ibat-ibang mga Congressional spouses. Si Dr. Dayrit nandito, dalawa ang papel nya — bilang NCR Director ng Health at saka bilang asawa ni Secretary Manuel Dayrit sa Cabinet spouse din po sya.

At salamat kay Percy at lahat ng mga Commissioners, si Commissioner Alonto, salamat. Salamat din kay Ginoong Alonto ng NGO at lahat ng mga naririto.

At ako ay nasisiyahan dito sa ating pagkakataon na tayo ay magkasama sa isat-isa. Sabi ni Dinky, ako iyong Presidente galing sa Mindanao — siguro marami sa inyo, alam nyo iyon — dahil sa panig ng nanay ko, ako ay lumaki doon sa lupa ng aking lola sa Iligan City sa Timog. Pero meron din akong ikikwento tungkol sa panig ng tatay ko.

Kanina ikinukwento ni Commissioner Alonto si Raja Sulayman. Si Raja Sulayman ay may kamag-anak na si Lakandula. Si Lakandula ay ninuno ng aking tatay, Diosdado Macapagal. May lahing Muslim.

Dalawang panig ha: nanay at tatay. Nanay dahil nakatira ako doon, tatay medyo sa dugo. At talagang tayong lahat ay talagang kalahi.

At iyong itong ating pagkakasama dito, iniimbitahan ko ho kayo dito sa Mosque ng Malacañang at para itong araw na ito, itong Biyernes na ito, magkasama-sama tayo at sana tuluy-tuloy na magsasama-sama tayo sa kaunlaran ng mga Muslim hindi lamang sa Mindanao kundi na rin dito sa Maynila.

Iyong kanina kinukwento ko, iyong kaninang nakikinig ako doon sa mga hiling ninyo. Halimbawa iyong doon sa eskwelahan, iyong paghingi nyo na magkaroon sana ng isang Muslim school. Ang sabi nga ni Secretary Bacani, may mga batas na nagli-limit noon ano: hindi pwedeng magkaroon ng Muslim school na maging government school. Pero iyong eskwelahan kung saan napakarami iyong mga Muslim, iyon ang pwede nilang i-convert sa Muslim schools. Ano bang gusto niyong matuto doon? Iyong Arabic, sabi ko nga kay Dinky Soliman, humingi tayo ng tulog sa Saudi Arabian Embassy para magkaroon ng Arabic teacher doon sa inyong Muslim schools.

At dahil dapat ipagmalaki natin na ang ating bansa ay maraming kultura — hindi iyong Chinese kayo Filipino kami, hindi. Kasi Chinese or Muslim, tisoy, Tagalog, Cebuano, lahat noon Pilipino. And so we should have institutionalized accomodation of different ethnic divisions at dapat magkaroon tayo ng social justice para sa lahat.

Kaya salamat sa inyong pagdalo itong Biyernes na ito at sana magkaroon tayo ng kapayapaan at kaunlaran. Sana parati nating ginagalang ang ating konstitusyon at ginagalang natin ang ibat-ibang kultura na lahat iyon ay tinatawag na Filipino culture.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Remarks during the Kapit-Bisig Laban sa Kahirapan (KALAHI) Muslim Community Day. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409212728/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8753&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the 67th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO)

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 67th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO)

[Delivered at the PCSO Complex, E. Rodriguez Sr. Ave., Quezon City, October 26, 2001]

Una sa lahat, gusto kong I-congratulate ang PCSO for 67 years of public service to the poor and the indigent and the sick.

Siguro importanteng maalala natin ano yung mandate ng PCSO. Hindi lahat ng charity mandate ng PCSO. Ang number one mandate, Honey Girlie di ba, ay yung mga may sakit – health. Health ang pinaka-mandate ng PCSO. At dahil sinabi ko doon sa aking SONA na sa health ang gusto natin ay yung ma-enroll yung mas nakararaming urban poor sa Philhealth, at saka pangalawa, gusto natin na mahati yung presyo ng gamot na binibili ng karaniwang mahihirap — yon ang hinihingi natin sa PCSO na gawing priority ng kanilang projects.

Ngayon kung titingnan din natin ang mandate ng PCSO, doon sa batas ng CISFAP — yung Comprehensive and Integrated Shelter Financing Program — doon meron ding sinasabi ang batas na mag-contribute ang PCSO ng ... How much total? Okay ... For five years kaya dahil 10 percent of the charity fund from Lotto for five years. Kaya dahil doon merong pang utang ang PCSO ng 200 million pesos para sa housing. Kaya sabi ko kay Honey Girl, kung iimbitahin mo ako para mag-diskurso di na ako pupunta; pero kung iimbitahin mo ako dahil ibibigay mo yung utang ng PCSO sa housing pupunta ako.

Meron pang isang utang ang PCSO, ewan ko ba kung anong porsiyento ng net earnings ng Lotto operations ng PCSO ay dapat pumunta sa Philippine Crop Insurance Corporation. So sana yon din ang maitupad.

Kaya huwag nating kalilimutan: ang priority ay tingnan kung anong batas at saan nilalagay dapat yung kuwarta ng PCSO.

Ngayon narinig nating sangkot ang PCSO sa maraming eskandalo. Una sa lahat, yung pag-aaway-away ng mga Board at saka Officers. Kaya sabi ko kung sinong makikipagaway-away ay mas mabuti pang — well hindi ko na sasabihin yon — pero kailangan dapat nagkakaisa tayo.

At pangalawa, sa pag-uusap ko kay Honey Girl, kung anuman daw ang sumbong sa pagtatakbo ng PCSO ay handa raw siyang ilantad ang mga papeles ng PCSO. Halimbawa, kanina ay may nagtanong sa aking reporter: meron daw 250 million na binigay sa Ilocos Sur. So sabi ko ... Ano raw ang gagawin ko doon. Eh sabi ko, una sa lahat, titingnan ko kung totoo at sinabi ko na kay Honey Girl yon at sabi nga ni Honey Girl ibibigay niya ang yung papales kung saan pupunta lahat na mga Charity Projects ng PCSO — ibibigay sa Office of the President para magkaroon ng accounting — at saka sabi niya sa Ilocos Sur may four projects of ... Four towns ... So 30,000, so sa Oral Report ni Honey Girl na I'm sure ibibigay niya ang accounting ang lahat ng pinagdalhan ng charity ng PCSO ay mukhang 120,000 at hindi 250 million ang pupunta sa Ilocos Sur.

Anyway, ang pinabubuti rin natin is that, ang lesson dito is government officials should always be on their toes. In other words, people are always watching and it is important that when people watch and ask questions we are able to answer because we know that we are accountable. So yan ang pinakaimportanteng leksyon ng lahat ng mga kung anu-anong controversies na inaabutan ng PCSO dito sa mga araw na ito.

Kaya ako'y nagpapasalamat sa pagkakataon. And I would like to remind everyone that one of the four pillars of our government is that we want to improve moral standards in government and in society at PCSO ay inaasahan ko ay mangunguna doon.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2001). PGMA's Remarks during the 67th Anniversary Celebration of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409212618/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8747&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Awarding of Projects to Leyte Beneficiaries

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Awarding of Projects to Leyte Beneficiaries

[Delivered at the Leyte Park Convention B, Tacloban City, Leyte, May 10, 2002]

Thank you for your hospitality.

Matagal na si Governor Petilla ay nag-iimbita sa akin para dalhin iyung Cabinet meeting dito para magkaroon ng Cabinet meeting. Ang ginagawa natin itong araw na ito ay joint meeting ng Regional Development Council and the Regional Peace and Order Council. Dahil itong dalawang council na ito ay Cabinet level council. Kaya kasama ko dito ang ilang mga Cabinet members. Nandito si... Anak ng Region VIII, Gabby Claudio. Gabby is the Cabinet officer for regional development for Region VIII. Kaya siya ang pupuntahan ninyo whether you are congressman, governor or any other local government official; and thank you very much, Matin for your beautiful welcome remarks.

I would also like to greet the other governors who are here. I came from Samar now with Governor Mila Tan, so she is here; and I would like to greet also my phone pal, Governor Raul Daza; and the governor I have been visiting very frequently, Governor Rosette Lerias; the other members of my cabinet who are here, I would like to introduce them to you — ang ating DAR secretary, si Nani Braganza; yung ating secretary who provided for the rice dryer, the mechanical dryer and then the other materials for our farmers, Secretary Leony Montemayor of Agriculture.

Yung Philhealth na dini-distribute pa hanggang ngayon dahil ang dami-daming tumatanggap. Ano ba itong Philhealth na ito? Yan ay health insurance para pag magkasakit kayo, hindi na kayo ang maggagastos ng buong gastos, ang gobyerno ang makiki-parte sa inyong mga bill, yan. At iyan ay sa ilalim ng programa ng Department of Health, at nandito si Secretary Manolito Dayrit.

Yung Regional Peace and Order Council ang nagpi-preside noon pag wala yung pangulo ay si Secretary ng Interior and Local Government, si Joey Lina. Iyung shirt niya katerno nung aking pantalon, no. Katerno naman nung blouse ni Governor Petilla; tumutulong naman sa akin para makahanap ng one million jobs sa agrikultura, at isang malaking paraan ay para ma-distribute natin iyung chinese hybrid rice na umaabot sa 40,000 pesos per hectare ang kita ng mga magsasaka, si Secretary Cito Lorenzo.

At dahil maraming official development assistance ang pumupunta dito sa Region VIII, pero hindi ibig sabihin noon porket may foreign loan ay magagamit kaagad, maraming mga... Kung minsan hindi nagagamit. Kaya mayroon tayong... Si Presidential Adviser Marita Jimenez para makatulong na magamit ng husto iyung ating mga foreign assistance.

Dahil marami ang ating mga department na tumutulong para mag-modernize ang ating agriculture, dahil ito ay isa sa pangunahing programa ng ating pamahalaan, mayroon akong presidential adviser na siya ang tumutulong sa akin para ma-coordinate ang trabaho ng lahat ng department tungkol sa agricultural modernization, si Presidential Adviser Lito Sarmiento; kilala rin ninyo iyung anak ng Leyte na masyado na siyang big shot ngayon, si President ng PNOC-EDC, si Serge Apostol; batiin ko siyempre ang ating mga congressmen at congresswomen ng Region VIII na narito — nandito si... Iyung asawa nga ni Serge, si Egie Apostol; iyung congresswoman doon sa bandang baybay, si Congresswoman Cari; saan si Ed Nachura, nandiyan? Nandiyan ba si Ed Nachura? Ayun, nasa likod si Congressman Ed Nachura; iyung napanood natin sa telebisyon kahapon na nag-gigitar, regional champion pala sa classical guitar, si Congressman Libanan; at ito ay isang kaibigang matalik ng aking tatay. My father considered him one of his proteges, si Congressman Gerry Espina; si Congressman Ed Veloso; ay, eto dumating na si Sonny

Alvarez. Hinahanap ko kanina pa. Siyempre tumabi sa mga congressmen para mapasa siya sa Commission on Appointments.

So sa inyong lahat, mga kaibigan, hindi ako masyadong magtatagal sa aking pagdidiskurso, kasi pumunta ako dito para makinig kaysa para magsalita.

Kaya magkakaroon tayo ng meeting ng regional development council para pakinggan through the regional development council iyung mga priority hangarin ng Region VIII. At makinig din through the regional peace and order council ang mga problema at kung papaano natin gawing mas malakas ang kapayapaan sa Region VIII. Dito nagbigay tayo ng mga projects para sa magsasaka, para sa kalusugan itong health card, at iyung mga project ng Department of Social Welfare and Development para sa mga pinakamahihirap na bayan ng Leyte.

Pero gusto kong sabihin sa inyong lahat — hindi ba Gabby, hindi ba matin? — ang Region VIII talagang number one is coconut, right? Kaya ang talagang susi ng pag-aangat ng buhay ng mga mahihirap sa Region VIII ay iyung magagamit na natin iyung coconut levy sa madaling panahon. Kaya bukod kay Secretary Montemayor nandito rin si Danny Coronacion ng Philippine Coconut Authority para sa — ayan, si Danny nandoon, kasama ninyo — dahil kailangan na ibuo na natin. Danny, what? Lalabas next month? Hopefully raw in the month of June, puwede nang magsimula magamit iyung pondo ng coconut levy sa kapakanan ng mga magnyuniyog ng Region VIII. Kaya ang mga programa ay una sa lahat, magkakaroon ng micro-finance sa mga magnyuniyog para makatulong magkaroon kayo ng pangalawang hanapbuhay. Siguro itatanim o mga palalakiing mga hayop sa ilalim ng coconut trees. Pangalawang importante ay iaakyat yung inyong insurance kasi importanteng importante ang insurance sa mga magniniyog dahil nagpapalit-palit ang presyo ng niyog.

Pero narinig ko minsan... Meron akong radio program, may tumawag na mangniniyog mula raw dito sa Leyte. Sabi niya, salamat at umaakyat na yung presyo ng niyog. Salamat na lamang sa panginoon. Sabi niya ang problema na lamang iyung PPA. Kaya iyung ppa naman ay iyon naman ang ating hinahanap ng sagot dito ngayon.

Ah, nandito na rin si Congressman Erning Uy ng — kanina ko pa kasama, I'm sorry — ayun, si Congressman Uy ng Samar at si Governor Salazar ng Eastern Samar. Kaya... Well, iyung PPA, gusto kong ikuwento lamang sa inyo na ako ay nagpapasalamat. Kasi yung problema ng PPA, unang nagbigay sa akin ng pansin na namomobrelema ang karaniwang magsasaka sa PPA ay si Vic Domingo, iyung Presidential Assistant ko for Region VIII noon pang last year. Kaya last year, sinuspende natin sandali iyung PPA. Ngayon ay sinuspendi muli dahil iyung ating mga Congressmen at Senators ay gagawa ng batas para makahanap tayo ng mas matagalang solusyon sa problema ng PPA. Kaya ako ay nagpapasalamat dahil pag ako ay nakikinig sa mga taga-Region VIII ay nakakahanap ng solusyon sa problema ng ating bansa.

Muli mga kaibigan, salamat sa inyong napakaganda at napakainit — humid talaga ngayon — pero not only physically but also in your warmth. Salamat sa inyong magandang pagtanggap sa inyong lingkod at sa aking mga kasama, mula pa sa Cabinet, at sana magtagumpay ang ating State of the Region Consultation sa Region VIII.

Binabati ko hindi lamang iyung mga Governors at Congressmen na nandito sa entablado, binabati ko rin iyung mga mayors and all the other officials of Region VIII and all of the people and the various beneficiaries of our outreach programs for the government here in Region VIII.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Remarks during the Awarding of Projects to Leyte Beneficiaries. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412225538/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8286&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during a meeting with volunteer lawyers [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pagpupulong kasama ang mga boluntaryong abogado

[Ipinahayag sa Premier Guest House, Malacañang, ika 8 ng Agosto, 2002]

Mabilis na pagsagot doon sa inihain namin ni Nani at saka ni Rene Bañez na imbitasyon na iyong mga abugado, lalo na iyong kagaya ninyo, ay sana ay mag-volunteer para tumulong sa napakaraming kasong kailangang pasukan ngayon. Nagsimula itong panawagan sa ating mga volunteer lawyers noong napag-usapan iyong 300, 'di ba Nani? Iyong 300 cases ng, under declaration of at dahil 300 iyon ... Saka napakakonti lang ang abugado ng BIR, dalawa lang ang pwedeng mag-file sa isang beses. So, sabi ko papaano natin mapapabilis? So, hiningi ko kay Nani na mag-allocate siya ng 12 lawyers from the OJCC, pero 12 pa rin iyon, pero sabi ko pupunta naman tayo doon sa ... Humingi na rin tayo ng volunteers.

Ako ay nasiyahan, kami ni Nani ay nag-attend kami, pati si Rene Bañez, una si Rene dumating tapos si Nani, by the time I went there ang dami ding nag-volunteer. At talagang nasisiyahan kami dito sa inyong pagmamalasakit sa ating sinisikap na gawin para makobra natin ang tamang buwis at para na ring matigil na iyong mga katiwalian dito sa ating pagkukubra ng buwis maging iyong mga customs duties dahil ang sabi ni Nani, blue collar crime. Iyong tax evasion, white collar crime iyong dahil sa papeles ginagawa. Iyong smuggling ay blue collar crime dahil may mga kasama mga goons. Pero sa pareho doon dapat blue collar ang parusa, ibig sabihin noon preso.

Di nagsimula nga ito doon sa BIR pero dumating rin itong problema ng smuggling at ngayon ay masigasig na iyong ating paghuhuli. Halimbawa, ilang beses nang natakasan tayo ng barko pero may bagong seizure doon sa Northern Samar na hindi na natakasan dahil pinagsama-sama natin yung Maritime Command ng pulis at saka yung Coast Guard na tumutulong sa Customs. Pero gaya ng sabi ni Nani, isang dahilan kung bakit natatakasan tayo noong araw ay nabibigyan ng tro na mga huwes. Kaya pag ganoon ang kalaban talagang kailangan mahigpit ang ating mga abugado at matitino at magagaling kaya mahalaga ang inyong pagtulong.

So, nasama na tuloy sa pagka-volunteer ninyo hindi lamang iyong 300 cases and more, and counting ng under the declaration, kundi na rin pati yung mga smuggling cases. At kahapon, nagpunta ako sa dpwh, 41 cases, 41 individuals charged with corruption dahil yung repair, yung tinatawag na repair scam — 41 individuals kasama ng tatlong bureau director. Kaya ito ay in-assign ko rin sa OGCC para i-supervise niya.

Yung OGCC nga yun doon nagsimula yung pagkukuha rin ng mga volunteers. So kung meron din kayong makakatulong doon sa mga kaso doon sa 41 na erring employees ng DPWH kasama ang tatlong bureau director ay inaasahan ko rin na maga-assign si Nani ng mga kaso sa ting mga volunteers.

So tatlo na iyan: BIR, Customs at saka DPWH. Pinakamabibigat na mga ahensiya sa ating paglaban kontra sa katiwalian.

Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan na itong araw na ito pitumpu yung narito, but this less than one-half of the volunteers so far. Kaya yung mga volunteers natin or at least 150 so far at hindi makaksama dito yung U.P. dahil magkakaroon ako ng ibang meeting sa U.P. kaya ako'y nasisiyahan sa inyong pag-response at nasisiyahan din ako sa nakita ko kanina sa peryodiko na yung business sector ay talagang nasa likod nitong ating drive against criminality; at kayo hindi lamang sa pagpapahayag, kayo ay magbibigay din ng inyong dunong at oras. Kaya maraming salamat at alam ko sa pamamagitan ninyo ay makakatayo tayo ng matatag na republika ng Pilipinas.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Remarks during a Meeting with Volunteer Lawyers. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412224817/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8378&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during a visit to the Quezon Power Plant

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During a visit to the Quezon Power Plant

[Delivered in Brgy. Cagsiay 1, Mauban, Quezon, August 19, 2002]

I came here to see for myself the security preparations done by the military and police to protect our power plant here, and the outlying distribution lines. After being briefed by both the management of the plant and the military and the police, I am satisfied with these preparations. And I commend the management, our Armed Forces and law enforcers and the community for their sustained vigilance. We are doing this in view of fresh threats from the new people's army to attack our power facilities. This is a barefaced terrorist threat where the communists are once more showing their true colors. Let me repeat, there are communists and communists. The communists who do not have armed element — we recognize them, we debate with them, but we don't run after them. The communists with the armed component are the ones that are considered the enemies of the state because of their terroristic acts.

The CPP-NPA has engaged in terrorist acts against civilian targets such as extortion and arson, the destruction of public utilities and infrastructure, communication and power lines, and public transport facilities, and assassination of both political leaders and ordinary individuals. These are all part of the overall aim to overthrow the duly constituted government and the democratic system and establish a dictatorship in our country.

I am informed by General Tiangco, the Southern Luzon Commander, that pursuant to the heightened security patrols in this area, our troops encountered a band of NPAs in Pagbilao two days ago. These NPA were attempting to attack the Pagbilao power plant. And our troops were victorious. And I am glad to know therefore that our security plans are not static and are aimed to actively seek out terrorists across a wider swathe of operations.

Through this pro-active stance, we shall continue to prevent further NPA depredations. Those who sought to attack the Pagbilao power plant last Saturday were repelled and the military now is in hot pursuit against them. They fled to the Quezon reservation, the forest park in the mountains of Pagbilao. There was one fatality on their side, and also we recovered firearms. The attack on the Pagbilao plant which was repelled prompted me to look at the security preparations in other plants like the plants here in Mauban.

What struck me about last Saturday's encounter in Pagbilao is that it resulted from information provided by civilians in the area. We have a growing number of voluntary informers who were telling us where the enemies lie.

I know the people here harbor terrorism as much as we do. The people hate the disruption of the transport, communications and power facilities that disrupt the conduct of business and livelihood.

Here in Mauban, we also have an NPA threat. Cagsiay 1 which is where this barangay is, considered an area that is infiltrated by the NPA. Six kilometers away is Cagsiay 2, which is an area considered as influenced by the NPA, which means the NPA has a functioning organization.

That is why after the Pagbilao attack, two attempted attacks, Secretary Reyes and I decided to come here to make sure that this is secure. And I'm glad from our briefing that this is secure.

I am here to tell everybody that your government, the armed forces and the police are prepared to protect public safety and security at all times.

I am also here to encourage our communities to get together with the uniformed services, to work together in effective and responsive security plans that will preclude acts of terrorism.

To all our local officials and community leaders, thank you for your support and assistance.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Remarks during a Visit to the Quezon Power Plant. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412224546/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8365&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the meeting with Fil-Am veterans, SAKADAS and Fil-Am students

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the meeting with Fil-Am veterans, SAKADAS and Fil-Am students

[Delivered at the Filipino Community Center Waipahu, Hawaii, U.S.A., October 24, 2002]

Thank you very much.

Gusto kong batiin yung mga nagtayo at nagpapatakbo nitong napakagandang Philippine Community Center dito. Inimbata nila ako dahil ang aking longtime crime drive pero sabi ko sa unang panahon... Pagkakataon ay pupunta ako, well, ngayon narito naman ako dito ngayon, congratulations.

Gusto kong batiin kayong lahat. Unang-una, batiin ko 'yung mga Sakada, 'yung mga originals na Filipino ang marami sa inyo. Kasaysayan na ng hawaii at alam natin 'yung hirap na dinanas nung unang mga pumunta ritong Pilipino nagtrabaho doon sa mga sugar fields. 'Yung tatay nga ni Ben Cayetano ay isang pumunta rito para magtrabaho doon sa sugarcane fields. Noon hirap na hirap sila. Pero tingnan ninyo, isa sa kanilang anak ay naging gobernador ng State of Hawaii.

At sa ating mga beterano naman ay gusto ko lamang na i-report nga sa inyo na talagang kinukulit ko at kinulit ko 'yung mga officials, hindi lamang si President Bush pati na rin 'yung mga Department of Veterans Affairs at ang status ng... At pagkatapos nga noon ay nagkaroon ng House bill para mag-allocate ng 65 million dollars para sa Veterans health benefits dito sa Amerika para sa mga Pilipino lamang. Ito ay pumasa na sa House of Representatives. Ang sponsor nito sa senado ay ang Hawaiian State... Senator from Hawaii na si Senator Inouye. Kaya magdasal tayo na magtagumpay si sSenator Inouye pag ito ay pinapagtanggol na niya doon sa Senado.

In the meantime, si President Bush ay nagbibigay ng 500,000 dollars a year para sa health benefits ng mga beteranong nasa Pilipinas naman. At yung unang release ay lalabas before the end of this month of October.

Sa mga kabataan naman, kahit na kayo ay narito na sa inyong bagong tahanan, sa mga darating na panahon siguro kagaya nang unang mga sakadang dumating, kayo rin ay magiging bahagi pa rin ng ating bansa dahil ako ay nasisiyahan na just before I came here to Hawaii 'yung Senate at saka 'yung House of Representatives para meron akong madalang baon sa inyo ay pinasa on third reading 'yung Overseas Voters Bill. Sa madaling panahon mapipirmahan ko na kaagad para makaboto 'yung ating mga bata hindi lamang dito sa Hawaii kungdi pati na rin doon sa Pilipinas.

Kaya muli in the past, the present and the future of Philippine-Hawaii relations.

Aloha and mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2002). PGMA's Remarks during the Meeting with Fil-Am Veterans, SAKADAS and Fil-Am Students. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409210757/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=8409&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the State Dinner hosted by H. E. President George W. Bush and First Lady Laura Bush

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the State Dinner hosted by H. E. President George W. Bush and First Lady Laura Bush

[Delivered at the White House Washington D. C., U.S.A., May 19, 2003]

Thank you, President Bush and Mrs. Bush.

Thank you in behalf of the 80 million Filipinos for honoring our country with this State Visit.

The bonds between our two countries run deep. We've stood side-by-side at every crucial point in modern history — World War the second, the cold war, Korea, Vietnam, and now, the war against terrorism.

I visit you at a time of great change — change in the way economies work; change in the way wars are fought; change in the way countries organize or disintegrate. But in two things, there must be no change — in the way governments treat people, and in the manner by which friends stand by each other. In the first case, with care and justice; and in the second case, with courage and steadfastness. In a time of crisis, friends do not ask, why; they ask, how.

The Philippines and America are friends. To guide our friendship in the 21st century, our meeting today was essential, so that we can develop a strategic framework for this century based on mutual respect and mutual help. Our talks focused on stopping terrorism, fighting poverty, and undertaking economic reform on both sides. Meaning, offering more markets to each other, and less resistance to mutual trade and investment.

My fundamental concern in the Philippines is the need to lick mass poverty. Central to this concern is the task of building a strong republic. A republic able to keep crime and terrorism totally at bay; a republic free from vested and corrupt interests that subvert free markets; a strong republic empowered to execute good policy and provide essential services to all our people.

In this task, we value America as a partner. A partner in our common desire to create the kind of world in which we want both our countries to exist — a world of progress and ever-widening prosperity; a world of justice, freedom and peace. These are within the grasp of modern economies and modern technology, and men and women of firm resolve and goodwill.

And how do we define a man or a woman of firm resolve and goodwill? It was once thought difficult to take a firm stand against tyranny, and nearly impossible to cope with terrorism. Now, the world knows better especially after march 20th. Indeed, it's not easy but clearly it can be done, with fearless leadership and iron resolve, combined with a bold strategic vision and an unfailing sense of justice. I'm describing President Bush.

Only a strong and steadfast partnership, such as that between our two countries, can respond to the manifold threats and challenges that the world working towards freedom and prosperity must face. I hope ever more countries join this partnership. Two are better than one. Three are harder to break. Four and more, nothing can prevail against them.

On that note of hope for an ever-widening partnership of the good to complete the greater task of the coalition of the willing. I invite you all to join me in a toast for the continued success and good health of President and Mrs. Bush, and the relations between our two countries.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the State Dinner Hosted by H. E. Pres. George W. Bush and First Lady Laura Bush. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201201/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6292&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Reception for members of the Philippine Friendship Caucus

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Reception for members of the Philippine Friendship Caucus

[Delivered at the Capitol Bldg., Washington, D.C., U.S.A., May 20, 2003]

Thank you very much, Congressman Filner for your wonderful introduction and thank you for confirming what President Bush said yesterday that it has been one administration measure of his to have the Veterans Bill passed this year. So, congratulations to all the veterans, and thank you to the congressmen who...

I'd like, of course, to thank you all for being here today. And I am very very grateful that there exist a Philippine Caucus. This gives institutional expression to the abiding friendship between the Philippines and the United States, and it could impart the needed continuity to the bipartisan support that the Philippines should enjoy in Capitol Hill. I say, should enjoy, because as we've been shown when the chips are down they are there for you.

The Philippine Caucus shores up the strengthened bilateral alliance between our two countries what has been generated by this state visit and a great honor conferred thereby by the President of the United States. The Philippines is grateful to the congressmen who put together this Caucus. And let me say that my compatriots back home appreciate your efforts in behalf of the Philippines.

The growing Philippine-American communities — some of you are here — feels increasingly empowered by working with you. In particular, I thank you for supporting increased levels of security and economic assistance for the Philippines aiding our counter-terrorism campaign, supporting our Mindanao peace process and our anti-terrorism campaign with the recent emergency war time supplemental budget. Ambassador Del Rosario is it right that...? Is it correct that the 30-million dollar supplemental budget was the only item that named the Philippines...? The only add on named that specified the Philippines. And thank you very much for that.

I also thank you for protecting access of Philippine tuna to the American market. And now for your advocacy on the Philippine veterans issues that touches deeply your fellow Americans of Filipino descent. These are very important matters for millions of Filipinos and Filipino-Americans. Your understanding and your help are of great importance and value to them. May I ask you: help them, they've always been ready to help you.

The Philippines has always been there for the United States. Most recently, it has been an unhesitating ally of the U.S. in the war against terrorism. Much of the world hesitated, the Philippines stepped forward to stand by the United States and its decision to confront the strongest inspiration and encouragement of international terrorism represented by the tyrant in Iraq.

Those who have been hit and suffered greatly from its attacks cannot wait for terrorism to grow stronger and vicious before taking decisive action together with those who are not afraid to come to the same conclusion.

My White House meeting with president bush signals a new era in Philippine-U.S. relations based on a modern framework of strategic diplomatic and economic engagement. The relationship between the Philippines and the U.S. has come of age, the evidence is you — the members of Congress who make up this newly established Philippine friendship caucus. For the first time, the special relationship between our two countries has been given the institutional expression and continuing support it deserves because of you, congressmen of the Philippine caucus.

The war against terrorism is of central importance to the Philippines and abroad. At home, a just and lasting peace will free up government resources for the greater war on poverty.

Abroad, I must be concerned about the security of 8 million Filipinos who live and work in over a 140 countries around the world including over 1.5 million in the Middle East.

In the aftermath of the victory in Iraq, we must make sure that we win the peace as decisively as the war that was waged. We must work together... We must work together in a wider global coalition on two important fronts: one, is finishing the fight against terrorism; and two, is stamping out mass poverty because many of the poor are easily recruited by terrorists.

We must show that peace, progress and advocacy are the surest way to achieve those ends that terrorism so dishonestly promises.

The Philippines is working to extend perhaps its greatest asset, a highly skilled global workforce, to the reconstruction of Iraq. Building is what we do best. Behind the headlines about terrorist attacks is the reality of a country still going forward out of the Asian crisis and back to the vast potential for growth and prosperity of a nation committed to freedom and free markets, the same principles that guide United States democracy.

The Philippine caucus could not come at a better time to get that message across in the United States and throughout the world. I invite all members of the caucus to feel at home with the Philippine Embassy in Washington. I've with me as you know Ambassador Albert Del Rosario who's available to you and to your constituents who have an interest in the Philippines. For example, the embassy will process requests for Philippine campaigns for World War II. We do not want to forget anymore than you do that Americans and Filipinos fought the common foe in World War II.

In closing, let me invite each and everyone of you to visit the Philippines. Some of you had been there and wanted to visit the Philippines again. Some of you have not. Eye witness and personal experience give the best proof of what I've been saying. You have established a caucus to foster friendship with a country that after all is America's best friend. Come to our country and you will feel that you have come home. Thank you.

Before I give up the microphone, let me introduce the members of my delegation. From the Senate, Senate President Franklin Drilon; for one of your counterpart in the House of Representatives, Speaker Joe De Venecia; and by here, the beautiful lady is a Congresswoman from Bulacan; next to her... Ah, this is Congresswoman Silverio; next to her is the Congressman from Bataan who you already knew and your constituents caught, Congressman Roman; Congressman Abaya; Congressman of Bacolod City, Congressman Puentevella; our Secretary of Foreign Affairs Blas Ople.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the Reception for Members of the Philippine Friendship Caucus. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201041/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6278&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo at the State Arrival Ceremony

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the State Arrival Ceremony

[Delivered at the South Lawn, White House, Washington D.C., May 20, 2003]

President Bush, Mrs. Bush, Vice President Cheney, Mrs. Cheney, Secretary Powell, Mrs. Powell, Secretary Rumsfeld, General Myers, officials of the U.S. government, excellencies of the diplomatic corps, ladies and gentlemen. Thank you, President Bush, for inviting me to this state visit. It only confirms that relations between our two countries are deeper and warmer today than they have been in a very long time.

Today our two countries have a revitalized and maturing alliance, rooted in shared history, shared values, a common interest in global peace and prosperity, and a real commitment to combating terrorism and advancing freedom.

Our alliance abides strong as ever, even as the world today requires a new perspective on political and economic security in Asia Pacific. This new perspective must recognize that while Asia must take greater responsibility for its own political and economic security, it must also recognize that strong relations with the U.S. will contribute greatly to regional peace and prosperity, stability and security, especially from terrorism.

Thus we, your friends, must find a way to support continued and active engagement with the U.S. at a time when there are some forces in my region working against such a relationship. Although wisdom counsels commitment, in the face of terror the temptation to disengage is strong. We must fight that temptation, because the answer to fear is confrontation. Indeed, we must close ranks and stand firm against terrorist threats, however grave, however armed, and from whatever quarter.

To spare themselves, some countries might prefer an accommodation with terrorism. The Philippines has chosen to fight terrorism. We compensate for such modest means as we command with an unshakable resolve to defeat terrorism once and for all, and with faith in the justice of our cause and our friendship with the United States.

Our war on terrorism has made significant gains, but the threat is far from over. The war is not yet won. But it will be won, there can be no doubt. How long and at what cost are the only things in doubt. As the terrorist attack in Riyadh, which took both Filipino and American lives, shows, for the Philippines, the new perspective on economic and political security in Asia Pacific must take into account the over seven million of our men and women who, in seeking a better life abroad, contribute greatly to the development of economies around the world, not least that of the United States.

I am proud of these Filipino Americans. I am proud of the contributions that Filipinos and Filipino Americans make to the American economy and society. In a quiet, but equally substantive way, we can compare it to the contribution made by Philippine World War II veterans to the defense of our common freedom and security.

I also take pride in the robust economic and trade ties that bind the Philippines and the United States. The Philippines is pursuing long-needed economic reforms. The current and continuing reforms will strengthen the Philippine republic. They will make easier Philippine and American economic cooperation, and they will promote the cost of fighting world poverty.

I appreciate the help of President Bush in our work to alleviate poverty and other socio-economic ills from which terrorism draws its strength. Like the fear on which it feeds, terrorism can be contagious, and it will not be contained unless we agree on a comprehensive approach for defeating it in Southeast Asia.

And so, in looking forward to discussing that comprehensive approach, I look forward to my talks with President Bush and his officials in this administration. And I hope President Bush reciprocates this visit by accepting a state visit to the Philippines towards the end of this year. Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). Remarks by President Gloria Macapagal – Arroyo at the state arrival ceremony. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412201052/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6280&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) CEO Session

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) CEO Session

[Delivered at the Metropolitan Suite, Waldorf Astoria, New York City, U.S.A., May 21, 2003]

Thank you very much, Ambassador Romulo, my senior presidential adviser on international competitiveness.

Trade and Industry Secretary Mar Roxas; Ernie Bower, President of the U.S.-ASEAN Business Council; Alfred Madrid, President of the Philippine American Chamber of Commerce; Ramon Del Rosario, RP-U.S. Business Council; Julie Kelly Chan, Asia society; members of the business community; ladies and gentlemen:

Welcome to this BPO initiative. I'm not going to make a long speech because others will. Not very long I hope.

But I just want to stress that the Philippines is well-positioned for the business that you are in. We have a comparative advantage in customer contact centers, business process outsourcing, software development, animation, and data transcription and conversion.

Today, in fact, the Philippines is one of the leading outsourcing destinations for call center services. We have a specific curriculum in our education system for customer relations management. We have call center academies available for graduates who want to improve their English-speaking or rather American-speaking skills. We have a growing reputation for Filipino e-service providers for competency and reliability. The Philippines can therefore provide a cost-effective alternative because of the following advantages:

First, the quality of our human resources;

Second, we are very open. We are very open economy and our culture is very well adapted to western business practices;

And third, we have an advanced and reliable telecommunications infrastructure — Manny Pangilinan can attest to that — which can support end to end high speed transfer between the Philippines and the U.S. over fiber optic cables;

And fourth, of course, and I'm here to say that, this business has strong government support.

Therefore, I hope that at the end of the day, you will have concluded that you must keep the Philippines at the top of your mind when you make your decision to engage in business process outsourcing.

Thank you. And in advance, welcome to the Philippines.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the Business Process Outsourcing (BPO) CEO Session. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412200959/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6275&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during an informal interaction with the town people

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During an informal interaction with the town people

[Delivered at the Cagayan de Oro City Public Plaza, Cagayan de Oro City, Misamis Oriental, June 16, 2003]

Mayor Emano salamat sa inyong mainit na pagdawat sa akon. Ug sa akong biyahe nakuha na niya ang... Ng lahi na nabilin nga pondo, 9 million dollars, aron masugod na ang airport sa Laguindingan. Unya, sa akon miting didto sa restaurant kauban ang mga opisyaes sa Region X pirmahon ko ang Executive Order aron makasugod ang Roll-on/Roll-off ferry boat gikan sa Cagayan de Oro hangtod sa Batangas. Aron ang inyohang mga produkto gikan diri ug gikan sa tibuok Mindanao, gikan sa Bukidnon, gikan sa Davao mosakay sa usa ka truck, ang truck ang mosakay sa ferry boat. Dili na kinahanglan ang loading ug unloading nga mahal kaayo ang gastos makadiretso na sa Luzon kon asa nia ang 60 percent sa merkado sa atong nasud. Busa mamenos ang gastos sa transportasyon sa inyo nga produkto ug ang mga mang-uuma diri unta mahimo motaas ang ilahang income.

Distance learning alang sa mga nalisod sa pag-aral tungod kay layo ang eskwela o walay teacher o nalampas na sa edad sa pag-graduate ang aton education by television, ang distance learning inyo ma- enroll karon.

Gamay lang nga mga ehemplo ang ‘Mindanao Natin’ o ang Mindanao National Initiative aron ang kalinaw ug kauswagan gyud madayon diri sa Mindanao.

Daghang salamat kaninyong tanan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA’s Remarks during an Informal Interaction with the Town People. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412200625/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6465&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during her visit to Kabuntalan, Maguindanao

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During her visit to Kabuntalan, Maguindanao

[Delivered at the Makeshift hut, Marshland area, Kabuntalan, Maguindanao, August 14, 2003]

I came to Kabuntalan to signify that we must now refocus our energies on the fight against terrorism. I also came to Mindanao to thank our soldiers here for your loyalty to the flag and the constitution.

One enters the military profession knowing full well the dangers and sacrifices entailed, and I was surprised when a group of traitors withdrew their allegiance to the constitution at a time when their comrades in arms were in the thick of the fight against terrorism.

You, the soldiers here, I thank you, you were not with the Magdalo group and I know you will never be. Here, we can see our soldiers doing your job quietly and without flinching, and you were not noisily crying out your problems because you know we are trying our best to reform the armed forces and to bring the benefits of the command down to the combat soldier in the field.

I thank you for putting a dragnet in place for the recapture of Al-Ghozi and I hope that we have the full cooperation of the local government units and the communities — governor, vice governor, mayor, barangay captain. We also look forward to the cooperation of the MILF under its commitments to the peace process. I want you to continue the hunt for Al-Ghozi without let up as this is vital to the fight against transnational terrorism.

And to the gentlemen whom we awarded today for your achievement in capturing Edris, congratulations! And may you continue to have more successes until we get Al-Ghozi and until we win over terrorism in Mindanao and in the Philippines.

Congratulations! And thank you!

Oh, mayor, I have news for you, also vice governor and the barangay captain and the regional governor, a week ahead, but if I had come next week — I called it a week ahead because I wanted to check on the operations and, you know, and encourage you on — but if I had come next week, I would have come to inaugurate the Tabiran bridge in Kabuntalan, which will open next week and which will therefore connect Kabuntalan to Cotabato City. That is under the President's bridge program. And when this is completed next week, then Kabuntalan's isolation will be over. And I hope that peace and order will be the one to reign here rather than the kidnappers because Kabuntalan, sad to say, is known as the "kidnappers' haven." So many kidnapped victims were recovered here in Kabuntalan. And with the soldiers in the process of cleaning up the place, in the process of running after Al-Ghozi, and hopefully, with the support of the community and with that bridge, that will therefore make this easier to access rather than be an enclave where you can keep people you want to keep from the law. I hope that Kabuntalan will soon, after next week, become a more peaceful place.

Good luck! Ha, mayor.

Okay, thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during Her Visit to Kabuntalan, Maguindanao. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194711/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=6513&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during a media briefing on gasoline stations offering special pricing incentives to the public transport sector

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a media briefing on gasoline stations offering special pricing incentives to the public transport sector

[Delivered at the UNIOIL Baclaran Retail Station, Airport Road cor. Roxas Blvd., Parañaque City, September 8, 2003]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Vince Perez.

Undersecretary Art Valdez ng DOTC; Congressman Ed Zialcita ng Paranaque; nandito rin si Vice Mayor ng Paranaque, si Vice Mayor Jun Bernabe at ang mga namumuno ng mga transport group: ang pangulo ng FEDJODAP, si Zeny Maranan; ang pangulo ng IMBOA si Claire Dela Fuente; ang pangulo ng ALTODAP, si Boy Vargas; ang pangulo ng MJODA, si Lando Marquez; iba't-ibang mga kasapi ng transport group ng public utility; siyempre 'yung ating host company itong araw na ito, ang pangulo ng Unioil, President David Co; at 'yung pinaka-host natin dito sa partikular na gasolinahan na ito, Union Refill Station dealer Dennis Co; other gasoline company; ladies and gentlemen:

Gaya ng sabi ni Vince Perez, as of today, there are 43 gasoline stations, just like this one, offering special pricing incentives to the public transport sector. These are located, as Vince showed, along the strategic thoroughfares in Metro Manila. Kaya napakaimportante itong gasolinahan na ito. Kasama ng mahigit apatnapu pang ibang gasolinahan, sila ay nagbibigay ng espesyal na diskwento sa mga bus at jeepney upang hindi tumaas ang presyo ng pasahe para sa mahihirap. Salamat, mga gasolinahan, salamat mga bus at jeepney operators.

Ang programang ito ay tugon sa kasalukuyang pagtaas ng presyo ng langis at ng dolyar. Maliban dito ay talagang marami tayong sinisikap na gawin para maiwasan ang taas ng presyo ng pasahe. This special price incentive comes in the form of either outright price discount or discount coupon systems. Dito, 40 centavos ang diskwento. Dito sa ibat-ibang 40 plus gasoline stations iba-iba ang diskwento — from 20 to 50 centavos for public utility jeepneys. Ang mga hakbanging ito ay makakatulong sa pangangailangan ng drivers at maiwasan ang pagtaas ng pasahe at sa pangmalawakang epekto sa ating ekonomiya.

Gusto kong batiin 'yung ating mga new players dahil sa sila ay nanguna dito sa sistemang ito — Unioil, thank you; Seaoil, thank you; City Oil, thank you; USA 88, thank you. And of course, we also thank the big three established players for doing the same — thank you, Petron; thank you, Caltex; thank you, Shell. Salamat din sa Flying V dahil meron silang special assistance program para sa Piston at PCDO-ACTO members. Salamat din sa Total Pina Elf dahil nagbibigay sila ng diskwento sa bus operators sa ilang lugar sa Edsa pati na rin sa mga probinsya. Inaasahan ko na itong ating mga oil players ay papalawakin ang kanilang sakop sa programang ito para kasama 'yung public buses at saka mga tricycle na sila ang ginagamit ng ating karaniwang Pilipino.

Nakita na ninyo 'yung iba't-ibang lugar kung saan meron itong mga diskwento lalo na para sa jeep. Itong mga lokasyong ito ay makukuha ng diesel sa mas mababang halaga para sa mga kasapi ng samahang FEJODAP, PERCODA, PISTON, PCDO-ACTO, PASANG MASDA at iba pang PUJ.

The metro bus operators submitted to me several proposals — this is one of them. Another one is a proposal that the price of gasoline could be adjusted to subsidize the price of diesel since the latter is the poor man's fuel and any support to keep its price down will have an impact on the cost of living. I instructed Vince Perez to make a study of this proposal as we believe that all feasible means must be explored to alleviate the effect of oil price increases on the day-to-day lives of the most marginal sectors. The department of energy will come up with the government's position in due time based on social balance and fairness to all concerned.

Ito ang mga bagay na ating dapat asikasuhin, hindi ang pamumulitika.

Premature politics punishes people. Maagang pamumulitika nakakasama sa masa. Premature politics causes divisiveness, which feed perceptions of instability. Premature politics repels investments, attracts criminals, and distracts government from public service. The main victims are ordinary Filipinos. Ordinary Filipinos whose jobs are placed at risk. Ordinary Filipinos whose incomes are eroded. Ordinary Filipinos whose welfare gets to be neglected. I want to take care of ordinary Filipinos. I will not join in the mudslinging that others want to start this early. I have too much to do for our national security and economy which are the important factors serving our people's interests.

Sa inyong mga tumutulong sa akin asikasuhin itong importanteng trabaho, mabuhay kayong lahat!

Mabuhay ang nagmamalasakit sa mahihirap! Mabuhay ang mga nagpapatakbo ng bus at jeepney companies na umiiwas itaas ang pasahe! Mabuhay ang mga gasolinahang nagbibigay ng diskwento upang tumulong sa mga jeepney at sa ating mga bus!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during a Media Briefing on Gasoline Stations Offering Special Pricing Incentives to the Public Transport Sector. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194445/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7125&Itemid=38

Prayer of President Arroyo during the prayer meeting/rally for peace, unity and democracy

Prayer
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the prayer meeting/rally for peace, unity and democracy

[Delivered at the Quirino Grandstand, Rizal Park, Manila, September 12, 2003]

Mahal naming Panginoon, kami ay nagtitipon-tipon ngayon bilang patunay ng matibay na pananalig ng Pilipino sa Poong Maykapal. At sa matinding hangarin ng sambayanan na maghari ang kapayapaan, pagkakaisa at demokrasya sa aming bansa.

Nakakabahala na Panginoon ang mga kaganapan nitong mga nakaraang buwan na nagbabanta ng kaguluhan sa aming pamumuhay, pagkawasak ng aming demokratikong lipunan at paghina ng aming pambansang ekonomiya.

Panginoon, alam ninyo, the roots of the crisis are ambition, hatred and greed. Panginoon, sa tulong ninyo, we shall overcome these by unity, peace and democracy.

Lord, I have submerged my leadership in the profound yearnings of your people, for food on the table, a roof over their heads, and peace in their homes. Panginoon, palinawan ninyo ang mga ambisyoso. The few that are impatient for power must wait for the constitutional opportunities to vie for it.

Panginoon, sa proteksyon ninyo, we shall not give them an inch of the people's sovereignty that they intend to usurp by force. Panginoon, sa utos ninyo, I shall continue to spend my day in the uplift of the poor and underprivileged, and in caring for the dispossessed. Panginoon, sa grasya ninyo, I have no time for pleasing despots.

Panginoon, naniniwala kami na ang panalangin ay mabisang hakbang tungo sa kapayapaan at pagkakaisa ng sambayanan. Sa pamamagitan ng aming taimtim na panalangin, sana ay palakasin mo ang aming loob upang maharap namin ang maraming hamon sa aming pambansang katatagan.

Hinihiling ng pansakalukuyang panahon na kaming mga Pilipino ay magpamalas ng pagka-makabayan at manindigan para sa kapayapaan, pagkakaisa at demokrasya. Tulungan ninyo kaming maipakita na kami ay may kakayahang lampasan ang mga pagsubok na aming kinahaharap at magtulong-tulong para sa pambansang kapakanan. Bigyan ninyo kami ng pagkakataong magkaisa para mapanatili ang demokrasya sa aming bansa at para sa kinabukasan ng aming mga anak at mga susunod pang henerasyon.

Ang aming panalangin ay patunay na nangingibabaw pa rin ang pambansang interes sa nakararami sa amin. Higit sa lahat, patnubayan ninyo ang hanay ng kabataan na kapiling namin ngayon. Mahalaga na namumulat sila sa ganitong uri ng pagkilos upang maging matatag sa kanilang pagkatao ang matuwid na paglilingkod sa Diyos at bayan.

Panginoon, bilang pangulo, handa akong gawin ang lahat upang isulong ang katatagan at kaunlaran ng aming republika. Paminsan-minsan ay nakadarama rin ako ng pagod at pag-aalinlangan, pero ang iyong pagpapala, Panginoon, ang gumagabay sa akin upang maging matibay sa gitna ng unos at manatiling nakatutok sa makabubuti para sa aming bayan. Sa lahat ng aking pagkilos at mahalagang desisyon, bagama't ginagawa ko lagi ang abot ng aking makakaya, sumasangguni ako sa inyo, Panginoon, sa pamamagitan ng panalangin.

Mga kababayan, lahat ng ating gawin ay para sa kaluwalhatian sana ng ating Panginoon. Basbasan tayo ng ating Panginoon at tayo ay parating sumangga sa kanya.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Prayer during the Prayer Meeting/Rally for Peace, Unity and Democracy. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194419/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7123&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the flag raising ceremony at the PNP National Headquarters

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the flag raising ceremony at the PNP National Headquarters

[Delivered at the PNP Headquarters, Camp Crame, Quezon City, September 15, 2003]

Ladies and gentlemen:

Una sa lahat, salamat sa suportang ipinahayag n'yo sa pamamagitan ng manifestong binasa ni General Ebdane. Ang masasabi ko, ang pulis ng Pilipinas hindi lamang sa manifesto pinapakita ang katapatan sa ating watawat, sa ating Republika, at sa inyong Commander-in-Chief, napakita na ninyo ito sa inyong gawain, kaya maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Secondly, I congratulate you on this Memorandum of Agreement on Anti-Highway Robbery on Commodities. This just goes to show that the PNP is sensitive and responsive to the feedback coming from its citizens. Marami tayong hamon sa kapayapaan. Sabi nga noong ating basal, ang PNP ay dedikado sa labanan ang lahat ng klaseng kriminalidad. At talagang napakarami pa nating banta sa ating kapayapaan at katiwasayan na dapat ayusin. Sabi noong basal, we must maintain our strong republic. Ang sabi ko naman, wala pa nga tayo sa maintenance stage. We still have to build a strong republic. And we can only say that we have achieved a strong republic that can be maintained if the people feel that they are safe in their homes and in the streets.

Kaya sa kabila ng... Sa ibabaw ng highway robbery o hijacking, marami pa tayong ibang klaseng kailangan asikasuhin — mga krimen sa ordinaryong lansangan, mga krimen sa highway, mga krimen na napaka-high profile sa ating mga pahayagan.

Yung mga pag-hold up sa mga bangko. We must now train our sights on the linkages between the underworld and those holding political power. This is a bane to many nations, especially in the developing world, and a threat to democratic societies. The people must be aware of this threat and our people must not glorify rogue leaders masquerading as paragons of reform or good performance.

Sa taong bayan, gusto kong sabihin sa inyo, the PNP is now doing its best to pin down the masterminds of recent crimes to see if there are any politico underworld linkages at work. Sabihin ko naman sa PNP, we have to gather the evidence for this and avoid witch hunting.

Tungkol naman doon sa pagnanakaw doon sa Quezon City KTV. It's already bad for the police image that a high profile night spot is robbed. And it is worse that this place is being tagged as a hangout of police officials. The PNP must not only get to the bottom of this crime but discipline its ranks with regard to night life. Police officers frequenting night spots smack of protection and corruption. Police officers must serve as models not only for others in the organization but also the community they serve.

Ang pulis din ay inaasahan sa ating laban kontra sa terorismo lalong-lalo na't yung lider ng pinakamakapangyarihang bansa sa buong mundo na lider din sa laban sa terorismo ay malapit nang magbisita sa ating bansa.

Maximum security measures are set for President Bush's visit. Ito ay gusto kong ipahayag sa buong sambayanan. This is being handled jointly by Philippine and U.S. authorities. We're taking pro-active steps and beefing up intelligence gathering and surveillance. We will leave no stone unturned to ensure that his stay in our country will be safe, fruitful and rewarding.

Sa ating mga pulis, importanteng-importante ang organisasyon ng pulis para sa isang malakas na republika. Marami tayong kailangang gawin pero marami ding dapat ibati tungkol sa inyo. Halimbawa nga gaya nang sabi ko, yung inyong buong katapatan sa mga banta sa ating Republika at yung inyong tagumpay din sa ating laban kontra sa droga. Thirty million pesos pa lamang ang nagagastos ng PNP para sa laban kontra sa droga pero eight billion pesos na ang nahuli n'yong droga at ilang libo na ang nahuli n'yong mga pushers kasama yung mga malalaking isda ng Triad na noong araw ay hindi mahuli-huli kaya naman ngayon doble na ang presyo ng shabu sa palengke. Kaya congratulations sa ating mga pulis na naglalaban sa droga.

Kung ano ang kagalingan ninyo sa laban kontra sa droga, iyon din ang inaasahan natin sa laban kontra sa hijacking, sa laban kontra sa bank robbery at iba pang robbery. At kung nahuhuli n'yo iyung big fish na international syndicates sa shabu ay inaasahan kong mahuhuli din ninyo iyung mga big fish dito sa mga pagnanakaw o paghold up ng mga bangko kahit na sila ay mga makapangyarihang pulitiko.

Congratulations PNP! Continue the good work and improve on it some more.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the Flag Raising Ceremony at the PNP National Headquarters. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194352/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7115&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of Bayaning Tulong sa Bayaning Kawal Program

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching ceremony of Bayaning Tulong sa Bayaning Kawal Program

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, September 21, 2003]

Thank you very much, Secretary Romulo.

And of course, Atty. Antonio Meer, thank you for spearheading Bayaning Tulong sa Bayaning Kawal.

General Narciso Abaya, General Camiling, the other representatives of the major service commanders, members of the Cabinet— we have here Roy Golez, Mai Jimenez, Ed Ermita, Ging Deles, Dinky Soliman.

The other representatives of the various components of this coalition put together by Attorney Meer, may I just mention some of them — Mrs. Maria Elena Forbes, Atty. Jay Castro, Atty. Gina Heraldez, Atty. Boy Lazatin, Ishmael Benado, Karen Tañada. And earlier, Atty. Meer acknowledged Mayor Aro Mendoza. And I'd like to greet my father's dear friend, Joe Villegas.

Today is an important day in our country. Today we remember a day that must never happen again — the declaration of martial law in the Philippines.

The scars of the nightmare that followed for forty years after that date — September 21, 1972 — are still apparent in our national life. And I'm glad that, as enunciated by Atty. Meer, the silent majority is reawakening to the call of democracy, as it did in EDSA one and EDSA two.

Our people's relentless defense of democracy has not retreated an inch. And I thank you for that.

But the soldiers' loyalty and courage have been tested not only by these great events but soldiers everyday make the supreme sacrifice so that communities may thrive in peace and development.

Kailangan harapin natin paminsan-minsan itong mga epidemya ng tsismis at spekulasyon, ngunit ang katotohanan ay buo ang sandatahang lakas mula sa pinakamataas hanggang sa mga pinakailalim na kinatawan ng ating mga enlisted personnel na narito ngayon — mula sa mga batang opisyal hanggang sa mga retiradong heneral na kinakatawan ni General Ed Ermita at ni General Nes Isleta itong araw na ito.

Ang mga retiradong heneral, mga pangulo ng kanilang mga organisasyon, ang mga bata at nasa gitnang mga opisyal, maging sa mga mataas na opisyal ay nagbigay ng walang alinlangang suporta sa chain of command, nagpahayag ng suporta sa chain of command, at ako ay naniniwala sa kanila.

It is incumbent upon our people to give soldiers the faith, confidence, respect and support they need to perform their duty.

That's why I thank the coalition of the various foundations and civic organizations and historic clans who responded to the call of Atty. Meer. We have the Malvar families, the Rizal family, the Philippine Jaycees, the U.P. Alumni, the Sigma Rho, the ABS-CBN Foundation, the Ahon movement, the SM foundation among others. To you I say, yours is also an act of heroism in behalf of our republic.

Ang mga sundalo ang nag-aalaga sa seguridad ng ating bansa, nagpapanatili ng katahimikan sa kanayunan, at nagbabantay sa ating demokrasya.

Ganyan na lang kabigat ang kanilang responsibilidad kaya naman kailangang dugtungan natin ang kabayanihan nilang ibinibigay para sa ating bansa. As already presented by Admiral Mayuga long before the Oakwood caper, we had taken several steps to bring the AFP into the 21st century in terms of doctrine development, material and benefits, the men and women in uniform.

But just as important as these benefits is the moral support that can only spring from the sincerity of people like those in this hall today. And in behalf of the soldiers I thank you for that. Indeed, the pressure and stress that bear upon our soldiers does not only come from the nature of their job — as described by Ed Ermita, as described by Atty. Meer — sometimes this is aggravated by the feeling that their sacrifices are not appreciated.

It is in this light that I appreciate your noble gesture, which is even more meaningful because it is being extended from the descendants of the foremost soldiers and martyrs of our republic — Malvar, Bonifacio, Rizal.

Now that the Oakwood mutiny is behind us, it is time to refocus on pushing our country forward. We must now direct our people's energies away from too much poison politics and towards what else we must do to sustain peace and development, solidarity and progress.

Thank you once again for this project, and I appreciate that we are all joining together — government, citizens — to continue to show our soldiers that we respect them, and love them, and appreciate their work in defending our democratic way of life.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Speech during the Launching Ceremony of Bayaning Tulong sa Bayaning Kawal Program. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194309/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7108&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the distribution of checks for the KALAH! Program in Luuk, Sulu
[Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pamamahagi ng mga tseke para sa KALAH! Program ng Luuk, Sulu

[Ipinahayag sa Camp Andres Central Elem. School, Luuk, Sulu, ika 22 ng Setyembre, 2003]

Batang-bata ngunit respetadong Congressman, si Congressman Arbison at ang kanyang tatay na matagal ko hinahangaan, si Mayor Arbison. Kasama ko ngayon ang iba't-ibang mga Cabinet member — nandito si Secretary Dinky Soliman, kaya bahagi sa ating ipinabigay ngayon ay 'yung tulong para sa day care center; kasama rin natin si Secretary Ging Deles, siya ang Secretary ng National Anti-Poverty Commission at siya ang namamahala doon sa programang tinatawag nating KALAH! (Kabalikat Laban sa Kahirapan). At alam n'yo, kung tayo ay nilalabanan natin ang kalaban sa giyera kailangan nilalabanan din natin ang kahirapan at 'yan ang trabaho ni Ging Deles.

Narito rin ang Chief-of-Staff ng Armed Forces, si General Narciso Abaya at ang iba't-ibang mga heneral na kasama natin na sinisigurado ang kapayapaan at kaunlaran sa probinsya ng Sulu maging dito sa bayan ng Luuk. Uy! Dumating na pala. Ayun! Itong aking... Kung mayron kayong batang-batang congressman, meron din akong batang-batang Cabinet member, si Secretary Mike Defensor.

Alam ho n'yo, ako ay ini-schedule na bago ako pumunta sa United Nations dahil ang aking pakay doon ay makipag-usap kay Prime Minister Mahathir, makipag-usap sa mga Ambahador ng Islamic Conference ay talaga ho naka-schedule na pupunta ako dito sa sulu para sa ganun maka-report ako sakanila 'yung mga magandang nagagawa natin dito sa Sulu. Ngunit sinabi ko, pagpunta ko sa Sulu hindi pwedeng jolo lamang ang pupuntahan, kailangan pupuntahan ang Luuk. Matagal ko na kasing hinahangaan ang Luuk. Marami ang nagagawa ng Luuk sa kinabubuti hindi lamang ng bayan n'yo kung hindi ng probinsya at ng buong Pilipinas.

Naalala ko na noong... Isang una sa tagumpay ng aking laban kontra sa terorismo ay 'yung pagsagip kay Jeffrey Schilling. At saan naganap 'yung pagsagip kay Jeffrey Schilling? Wala iba kung hindi sa mababait na taong bayan ng bayan ng Luuk. Siya ay nasagip dahil kayo mga taga-Luuk ay nagbibigay ng suporta at kooperasyon sa pamahalaan. At naalala ko rin noong nabigyan ng Gantimpala Award si Mayor Arbison sa Armed Forces, naalala n'yo mayor? Dahil nga sa kanyang malaking tulong at tulong ng taong bayan ng Luuk sa ating mga sundalo sa paglaban sa mga terorista at pagsagip ng kanilang mga biktima. Pinaalala ni Mayor Arbison sa akin, hindi lamang tumutulong sa laban kontra sa terorista, tumutulong din sa ating pagpapamahala kasi binigyan n'yo ng 13-0 'yung aking mga kandidato noong 2001. Maraming salamat sa inyo.

At hindi lamang 'yon, 'yung pamamahala dito mismo sa Luuk. Napag-alaman ko kay Secretary Dinky Soliman na noong pinairal natin na dapat magkaroon ng gun ban, isa sa mga unang nakatupad ng gun ban sa sariling sikap ng bayan ay ang bayan ng Luuk. Kaya congratulations sa inyo.

Noong nagkaroon ng mga laban nga doon sa Abu Sayyaf at lahat. At sinabi natin na kung gusto natin masugpo ang kalaban, hindi lamang 'yung pwersa ng militar ang kailangan, kung hindi na rin 'yung pwersa ng laban sa kahirapan. Kaya doon sa mga lugar na 'yung mga 'yon kung saan dahil sa kahirapan nila ay sumasali sa Abu Sayyaf, sabi ang programa ng gobyerno ang magdadala ng kaunlaran para wala na silang dahilan na sumama sa mga Abu Sayyaf. Ngunit sabi ko, kung ano man ang programang ilalagay ninyo sa mga lugar na pinapaiwas natin sumali sila sa abu sayyaf, ilalagay dito sa Luuk dahil pinatunay na nila na nasusugpo nila 'yung mga Abu Sayyaf dito sa Luuk.

Kaya itong ating pagpunta rito, mga bagong mga tulong lamang 'yan — kuryente, tanim, day care at lahat... Mula pa noon, matagal na, dalawang taon na ang nakaraan, kung ano ang nilalagay sa ibang bayan, nilalagay sa bayan ng Luuk dahil sa pagmamahal ninyo sa ating pamahalaan at sa ating konstitusyon.

Kaya 'yon ang aking gustong ipahayag sa inyo. Ang Luuk hindi nakakataka na sa labas ng Jolo kayo na ang pinakamaunlad sa Sulu. Hindi nakakapagtaka dahil kayo ay tapat sa Konstitusyon, tumutulong sa pamahalaang nasyonal. Punong lungsod ninyo at ang kanyang anak ngayon na congressman ay magagaling magpatakbo ng bayan kaya swerte si Governor Parouk Hussin ng ARMM na meron siyang mga bayan kagaya ng luuk sa kanyang autonomiya, sa kanyang jurisdiction.

Kaya ako ay narito para personal na ipahayag sa inyo na ang dahilan kung bakit siguro nararamdaman n'yo ang ilang mga biyayang dumarating dito 'yon ay senyas ng pagpapasalamat at pagmamahal sa inyo ng inyong pambansang pamahalaan.

Maraming salamat muli sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the Distribution of Checks for the KALAHI Program in Luuk, Sulu. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412194259/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7106&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the opening ceremony of the exhibits at the WOW Northern Philippines Hilaga Village [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa seremonya ng pagbubukas ng mga tanghal sa WOW Northern Philippines Hilaga Village (dating Paskuhan Village)

[Ipinahayag sa Hilaga Village, Lungsod ng San Fernando, Pampanga, ika 11 ng Oktubre, 2003]

Maraming salamat, Dick. Wow Dick Gordon! Di ba!

Batiin ko muna caring Cabalen kung Capampangan lalo na que catang governor, Governor Lito Lapid. Que catang congresswoman, Congresswoman Zeny Ducot. Batiin ko rin si Congressman Bong Gordon at saka si City Mayor ng Olongapo, si Kate Gordon. At saka yung kinatawan din ng city of San Fernando, si Vice Mayor Tigel Lagman. Gusto ko ring batiin ang ating mga gobernador bukod kay Lito narito si Governor Ong ng Aurora at saka si Vice Governor Plamenco ng Bulacan. Caring que catang aliwang opisyal na Ging board members Ging mayors at saka yung mga Cabinet member kong kasama ngayon, nandyan si Mai Jimenez, si Dante Soriquez, si Didi Domingo, si Rene Diaz. Dagiti nga duma-duma nga mayors ken nga duma-duma opisyal na ti amianan, Cabalen kong Capampangan, mga taga-tagalog ng Balagtas ng Central Luzon, balagtasang tagalog. At siyempre mga tourism officials sa buong Pilipinas, WOW Department of Tourism!

Alam n'yo vice president pa ako ay talagang hinayag ko na yung magiging plataporma ko kung ako ay maging pangulo. At noon pa sinabi ko ang kinabukasan ng Pilipinas, the growth sectors of the future are the skills intensive service sectors gaya ng I.C.T. or I.T. at saka Tourism. Kaya noong ako ay naging pangulo para piliin sino ang hahawak ng I.C.T., sino ang hahawak ng tourism. Oo, gumawa yung search committee, nagbigay ng ilang-ilang mga pangalan, mostly mga technical people. Pero sabi ko para dito sa growth sectors of the future kailangan beyond just technical competence, kailangan super cheerleader. Kaya sa tourism kinuha ko si Dick Gordon kahit na hindi siya kasama sa Search Committee.

Kasi naalala ko nakikipag-usap ako sa ilang mga negosyante na gustong pumasok sa turismo o meron nang mga gawaing turismo. At pinag-uusapan namin sino ang magandang maging tourism secretary. Binibigay ko yung ilang mga nominee ng search committee. Sabi nila, alam mo, ang kukunin mo dapat yung tipong Dick Gordon. eh sabi ko, kung tipong Dick Gordon, eh si Dick Gordon na ang kukunin ko. Kaya yan, eto ang nangyari. Anong growth rate last year, 40 percent. Noong isang taon pagkatapos ng 9-11 humina ang turismo sa buong mundo pero ang pilipinas 40 percent ang growth rate ng tourism noong isang taon. Kaya talagang meron tayong masasabi sa ating turismo.

Ako ay nanggaling sa Bali. Dala ko ilang congressmen, dala ko ilang peryodista. Pinalibot ko lahat sila sa magagandang lugar ng bali habang ako ay nagkakaroon ng leaders meeting. Noong gabi nagkaroon kami ng coffee, late coffee. Tinanong ko, o ano, ano nagustuhan ninyo? Magandang-maganda ba? Sabi nila, maganda pero hindi naiwan ang likas na ganda ng Pilipinas. Kaya ang kailangan natin imprastraktura at saka promotion dahil likas nang ganda ay nariyan na.

Kaya noong ako'y naging pangulo sinabi ko, na yung secretary na hahawak ng turismo, secretary na hahawak ng I.C.T. magkakaroon ng ranggo ng super cabinet member para yung ibang mga official kagaya ng DPWH ay hindi gagawa ng kusang plano. Susunod lamang sila sa plano ng Department of Tourism at saka yung plano ng department of information technology. Kaya yan ang ating ginagawa. Dito sa North Luzon, itong paskuhan dati-dati ang tawag paskuhan village kasi ang Pampanga at San Fernando kilala sa christmas lanterns. Eto ay isang village para ipakita ang kagandahan at produkto ng Pampanga. Ngunit ginawa nating Hilaga Village para hindi lamang Pampanga aking probinsiya ang ina-advertise natin kung hindi lahat ng napakagandang probinsiya ng North Luzon, kaya Hilaga Village.

Kung ano yung ginawa ni Dick Gordon sa Intramuros, yan ang balak nating gawin dito sa Hilaga Village. Ang Intramuros, dalawa ang kanyang silbi: showcase ng Philippine history and culture and the tourism activities. And secondly, bilang sariling attraction. Eto rin, dalawa ang ating pakay: sariling attraction ang Hilaga Village at pangalawa, showcase ng history, culture and touristic beauties ng buong hilagang Pilipinas.

Yung turismo, yung turismo mismo sa intramuros kanina sinabi ni Dick, doon lamang sa Intramuros apat na libong trabaho ang nagawa. Dito sa Hilaga Village, sikapin din natin na ganun kadami ang magiging trabaho dito. Hindi pa bilang yung mga magagawang trabaho dahil naalok ang mga turista pumunta sa iba't-ibang mga probinsya natin. Kaya ito ang ating mga nasimulaan at bago natin nagawa itong tourism village na ito pinag-aralan muna, plinano, market study, engineering study. In other words, hindi biglaan ang mga achievements. Plano muna, learning curve. Itong bunga na ginawa natin ay bunga ng dalawang taong karanasan para pag-aralan ang turismo, lalo na sa kahirapang buhay ngayon ng mundo na ang ibang bansa nawawalaan ng turismo. Yan ang ating kailangan yung karanasan. At ang isa pang nakita ko, isang dahilan yung bali ay maraming turista, merong international airport diretso sa Bali. Kaya itong international airport natin sa Clark, yang Diosdado Macapagal International Airport, yan ang magiging susi rin ng turismo sa Central and Northern Luzon.

Actually, nandiyan na yung airport officially. Pero kailangan i-alok pumunta yung mga eroplano doon. Kaya pinapaganda ang radar, pinapaganda yung carousel para yung luggage hindi mainip yung mga turista. Lahat noon kailangan ng pag-aaral, karanasan. Hinahanda yon hindi bigla-biglaan.

At akala ko nga, sa birthday ng tatay ko — na wala naman ako dito dahil nandoon ako sa United Nations — dadating na yung unang international airline, yung Aseana. Pagbalik ko hindi pa dumating. Nalaman ko meron palang mga objection doon sa Civil Aeronautics Board para mag-landing sila sa Clark, may mga red tape pa. Tinawagan ko si Larry Mendoza, Larry, putulin mo na lahat yang red tape na yan para makapunta na yung international airlines dito sa ating Diosdado Macapagal International Airport.

Yan po ang mga bunga ng karanasan. Kasi sa ating bansa na bata pa lang ang ating republika ay hindi porke't sinabi mong maganda ang patakaran mangyayari na sa baba. Yan ang isang kailangan natututunan, natututunan na makakuha ng... Masasabi mong kooperasyon ng burokrasya.

At naalala ko si Dick, nahirapan din noong unang pasok sa dot pero tingnan mo ngayon lahat kayo WOW Philippines! Na nagkakaisa.

Pagkakaisa at karanasan, yon ang ating kailangan para sa ganun, sa pamamagitan ng turismo, buong pilipinas, buong hilagang Luzon ay makikinabang. At sabi nga ni Dick, tourism means jobs. Kaya magkaisa tayo. Gawin natin itong bagay na ito para sa ganun dadami ang trabaho, uunlad ang Pilipinas.

Congratulations! WOW tourism! WOW Hilaga Pilipinas!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the Opening Ceremony of the Exhibits at the WOW Northern Philippines Hilaga Village (Formerly Paskuhan Village). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412193330/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7387&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the distribution of Parcelized Land Titles to urban poor beneficiaries of Quezon City [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas

Sa pamamahagi ng mga Titulo ng Sinukat na Lupa sa mga maralitang taga-lungsod ng Lungsod ng Quezon sa pagdiriwang ng ika-64 na Taon ng Pagkakatatag ng Lungsod Quezon

[Ipinahayag sa Amoranto Stadium, Lungsod ng Quezon, ika 13 ng Oktubre, 2003]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat kay Secretary Mike Defensor na siya na nga dating konsehal, dating congressman ng Quezon City pero kinuha ko mulasa lahat ng maralitang taga-lungsod ng buong Pilipinas.

Batiin ko ang mga official ng Quezon City: mga..Councilor Francisco, Councilor Herrera; Councilor Susano na kasama ko pa kanina pa at saka yung dating konsehal na ngayon ay congresswoman na ng Quezon City, si Nanette Castelo-Daza. Kayong lahat, mga Belmonte, congratulations dahil Quezon City ay pinakamabisang magkubra ng buwis, pinakamayaman — 5.4 billion pesos ang kita ng Quezon City mula sa buwis na binabayad ng mga mamamayan — congratulations! Kaya tuloy ang dami-daming nagagawa na ng Quezon City.

Magandang-maganda ang pagkakaisa ng Quezon City at national government, hindi lang kay Mike Defensor at yung mga officials niya sa mga housing agencies, si Mai Jimenez din na siya ang nag-aalaga ng ating mga pinakastrategic na proyekto maging ang proyekto na nanggagaling sa tulong mula sa iba't-ibang bansa.

Isa na sa mga nagawa ni Sonny Belmonte hindi lamang yung ang ganda ng pagkubra ng buwis kundi na rin yung ang ganda ng pagbigay ng mga serbisyo sa ating mga mamamayan. Eh sa Quezon City, di ba Herbert, sabi ng statistics 51 percent ng taga-Quezon City ay maralita. Kaya inalagaan ni Sonny, ni Herbert, yung konseho, yung mga congressmen niya yung maralitang taga-lungsod ng Quezon City kaya tuloy yung matagal nang mga papeles na hindi naayos ay naayos. Kaya sabi ni Mike Defensor, kayo ay makakatiyak na sa inyong tinitirirang lupa. At ito ay isang magandang partnership ni Sonny at ng inyong lingkod dahil kung ganun o kung ano ang record ni Sonny sa Quezon City ganun din ang record ng inyong lingkod sa buong Pilipinas, pinakamalawak na pagmamahagi ng lupang tinitirikan, pinakamalawak na pagbenta ng murang pabahay sa ating maralitang lungsod sa Quezon City maging sa buong Pilipinas.

At yan ang nanggagaling sa karanasan. Ako vice president pa sa aking paglilibot sa maralitang taga-lungsod nakikita ko na na ang pangangailangan ay kasiguraduhan sa lupang tinitirikan at nagkikita nga kami ni Mike Defensor noon sa paglibot sa maralitang taga-lungsod. Kaya nung ako'y naging pangulo agad-agad hiningi ko si mike na ituloy yung kanyang trabaho sa Quezon City, hindi lamang sa quezon city kundi sa buong Pilipinas. At yung dalawang taon at kalahati nakaabot sa karanasang nararapat para maputol-putol lahat yang mga red tape na deka-dekada, henehenerasyon ay nabuo at yun ang nagiging sagabal para kayo ay mabili ang lupang tinitirahan ninyo.

Mahalaga ang karanasan dahil yung mga sikut-sikot sa mga papeles kailangan ang karanasan para putulin. Kaya sa karanasan ni Sonny Belmonte, sa karanasan ng inyong lingkod, sa karanasan ni Mike ay naayos natin itong mga problema ng inyong mga lupa. Kaya nagpapasalamat sa pagkakataon — nakita kong may nagwawagayway ng President GMA, maraming salamat po sa lupa — naway yung iba pa na naghihintay ay makikinabang sa sinimulan na nating gawing pagtratrabaho sa mga papeles dahil mahaba ang mga papeles. Kailangan ng karanasan para umabot, daanan sila lahat parang bulldozer. Yung bulldozer, hindi yung bulldozer sisira ng inyong mga tirahan — yung kinatatakutan n'yo — yung bulldozer ay yung bulldozer ng ating pagpuputol sa red tape. Yung ginawa ni Mai na one-stop-shop para sa isang lugar na lang kayo pupunta para kumpletuhin ang papeles ninyo at kayo ay masasabi na nating hoeowner at hindi squatter sa sariling bayan.

Kanina, nanggaling ako sa Novaliches kasama ni Councilor Susano dahil siya ang councilor ng Novaliches. Ano naman ang ginawa namin? Inobserbahan namin yung Meralco na nagbibigay ng refund ng electric bill na nakuha sa Supreme Court ruling. Kayo ba nakuha na ninyo ang refund sa inyong electric bill? ha? Hindi pa? aba, kung kayo ay... Ang inyo nga... Dapat pumunta kayo sa Meralco. I-check n'yo kung kailan, kung kailan ang inyong schedule dahil ongoing ngayon ang mga refund.

Pinapanood ko yung mga kumukuha ng refund kanina. May naka-refund ng apat na libo. May naka-refund ng anim na daan. Yung anim na daan lumabas ng Meralco, nandoon yung rolling store kung saan may kalahating presyong gamot at nandoon yung nfa store kung saan may murang bigas. Kaya puntahan na ninyo ang Meralco. Sabi nga nila sa apat na bilyong costumers sa meralco, 3.2 million ay nakakuha na ng refund. Kaya kayo baka bahagi sa 800,000. Ay! O tama, sa 800,000 na hindi pa pumupunta para kunin ang inyong refund. Kaya marami rin kayong mabibili sa refund na ibabalik sa inyo ng Meralco. Yon ang bahagi sa ginhawa ng mahihirap na sinisikap ng ating administrasyon.

Mula rito, bakit ako pupunta sa Mindanao? Dahil siguro narinig na ninyo yung magandang balita. Napatay na si Al-Ghozi. At pupunta ako doon para batiin yung mga gumawa nitong magaling na paghahanap sa kanya at nung inaaresto siya, nag-resist siya kaya nagkaroon ng encounter. At yung 67 tracker teams na naghanap sa kanya ibabalik ko dito sa metro manila para yung mga kidnapper, saka mga drug lord, mga squatting syndicate na nag-aabuso sa inyo sila naman ngayon ang sasagutin nitong mga tracker team na ito.

Kaya mga kaibigan, salamat na tayo'y nagkasama nitong dalawang taon at kalahati. Maganda ang rinesulta nitong ating pagmamahagi ng lupa sa mga dating squatter, ngayon hindi na squatter. Dapat talagang gawin na natin yung talagang batayang pagpapalit ng sistema para yang red tape na naranasan namin, yang mga bagay na yan ay mas iibayo ang pagpapatakbo ng ating pamahalaan. Sa inyong lahat, congratulations!

Sa Quezon City officials, maraming salamat at Happy 64th Anniversary sa Quezon City.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the Distribution of Parcelized Land Titles to Urban Poor Beneficiaries of Quezon City in Celebration of Quezon City's 64th Foundation Day. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412193320/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7386&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the presentation to the media of 2 high-ranking leaders captured in Butuan City

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the presentation to the media of 2 high-ranking leaders of communist terrorist movement NPA Front
Committee 88 captured in Brgy. Buhangin, Butuan City

[Delivered at the Philippine Army 4th Division Headquarters, Camp Evangelista Cagayan de Oro City, Misamis Oriental, October 25, 2003]

To the Armed Forces and officers of the police and also the civilian partners of our law enforcers and our peacekeepers, I would like to congratulate you for this very momentous and strategic victory that you have gained.

And I here about how you have been working in a holistic manner in order to defeat the insurgency. The counter-insurgency campaign of the Philippines is a holistic campaign. It has a left hand approach which as General Boac says includes fighting poverty, bringing the peace of government to the areas of recruitment to drain the ponds of recruitment of the insurgents in this region and in our country. The right hand approach is the strong arm of the law. And they have presented to us, and probably it could be said is a decimation of the insurgent movement here in this region.

I'm very happy to be able to come and visit you once again here in the 4th Division and congratulate you for the good work you're doing. You keep up the tradition that the 4th Division has been known for ever since I entered public service. And I just want to take this opportunity also to say how happy I am to see an old friend.

When I was vice president our soldiers rescued a child combatant from the insurgents. There was a very very big battle over her by supposed human rights groups. But she chose to stay with the department of social welfare and development. They took care of her like family. When she was eighteen, then she was like many other young people under adulthood then, she was allowed to move on outside of the center where she was being taken cared of. And I am very happy to see her here again, Delyn Dayun, now a grown up lady and about to finish the regular course for enlisting in the Armed Forces of the Philippines. She is the product of the left hand and the right hand working together and producing a good citizen of our country from the mountains of the insurgency.

This is what we need to do in our country. We need to have deep reforms so that there will be no cause for insurgency. And we need to have reconciliation so that those who want to embrace the law will again be allowed to do so.

And if I may take this opportunity once again to repeat a statement I made earlier in Tubod, in Lanao del Norte about reconciliation and reform. And this is about Chief Justice Davide. I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for the unprecedented reform program of the judiciary that was initiated by Chief Justice Davide. This reform program is unprecedented in its comprehensiveness and its far-ranging character. It is a bold and revolutionary reform effort that will bring our judicial system to the 21st century.

In the administration and in congress, we are proud to have contributed to this reform by passing an administration measure, the judicial reform law, that increases the pay of the judges. This is following the increase in pay of the soldiers, which follow the increase in pay of the policemen, which follow the increase in pay of the teachers.

And we hope that as our budget allows us, we will also be increasing the pay of other sectors of government that show an acute shortage of those who are working in those sectors.

The judicial reform of Chief Justice Davide — as I said to which we contributed by increasing the pay of the judges — is a vital effort that will strengthen our democracy and satisfy our people's demand for reliable and speedy justice.

I've always believed in the moral integrity and professionalism of Chief Justice Davide.

My fervent hope is that we shall be able to overcome the divisions and wounds that continue to divide us as exemplified by the impeachment case filed against him.

I will ensure and uphold both the integrity of the institutions of the Supreme Court and the House of Representatives.

We shall overcome this conflict. We shall overcome the conflict with the insurgents. We shall overcome the conflict with the secessionists. We shall overcome the conflict with the terrorists. We shall overcome the conflict with the Jemaah Islamiyah.

And I bring tonight also a reiteration of the guidance I gave yesterday to the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the Philippine National Police, the Jemaah Islamiyah is at the top of our priority list of public enemies.

And I would like the southern command to work on an order of battle and a campaign plan together with our allies in our neighboring countries, together with our allies in our security assistance partnerships so that we will be able to help and contribute to the effort of our region to rid our region and the world of terrorists. But at the same time, I welcome and congratulate the internalization by the 4th Division and the south command of the philosophy that if we will end terrorism, if we will end insurgency, it is a twin battle — a battle against the forces of evil and a battle against the people's poverty.

Congratulations!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the Presentation to the Media of 2 high-ranking leaders of Communist Terrorist Movement NPA Front Committee 88 captured in Brgy. Buhangin, Butuan City. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141330/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7376&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Opening Program of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents (PASS) National Conference or 2003 PASS Congress

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening Program of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents (PASS) National Conference or 2003 PASS Congress

[Delivered at the Coral Ballroom, Manila Pavilion, Manila, November 17, 2003]

The idea was for me to sit in and listen to what Secretary de Jesus is conveying to you regarding the road map and what will be done next year. And it's a good opportunity for me to observe your reactions because that way I can see what's the most important thing to you. And looking at your faces, listening to what you applauded and also listening to the leaders of the association, and I had found out that their most important problem right now is the MOOE.

So, I could hardly wait to get to my car so I can call up Secretary Emi Boncodin to find out what we can do about it. I had to find out from her the state of our budget deficit and then we will see, considering those constraints, probably what we can do perhaps somehow you can have your light and your water from the rest of the year.

For next year, you can see we have made efforts to make it less difficult for you to provide the good education to the children of the Philippines that they expect from us.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you because all of us in government are working under the severest budget constraints. And I would like to thank the education department, the teachers make up one-half of all our national government employees, therefore, the quality of our teachers reflects the quality of the entire government bureaucracy. Thank you for doing so well.

And I hope as we improve our economy it will also be much better for the teachers and for the students that you are teaching.

Congratulations and thank you very much.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2003). PGMA's Remarks during the Opening Program of the Philippine Association of School Superintendents (PASS) National Conference or 2003 PASS Congress. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140710/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=7449&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during a political rally in Calamba City, Laguna [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa politikal na pagkilos na ginanap sa Lungsod ng Calamba, Laguna

[Ipinahayag sa Calamba City Plaza, Laguna, ika 10 ng Pebrero, 2004]

Una sa lahat, nagpapasalamat ako sa mga taga-laguna sa napaka-init na pagtanggap ninyo sa akin, sa aking mga kaalyado buong araw, mula sa Cavinti, sa lahat ng kalsada sa ibat-ibang bayan, nandoon kayo sa mga kalsada, nandoon kayo sa mga bayan-bayan, kumakaway, nagbabati at nagpapakita ng inyong suporta.

Kanina Kris, doon sa napaka-makapal na crowd doon sa Sta. Rosa, kumakaway lahat, ang sabi, Gloria! Gloria! Gloria! Pero meron akong isang narinig, yan pala si Gloria, ang liit, liit pala well, binanggit ko pagdating ko sa Sta. Rosa yung sinabi niya. At totoo nga, ang liit-liit ko, yan ang dahilan kung bakit nauunawaan ko ang damdamin ng maliit na Pilipino.

Kaya lahat ng aking ginagawa sa aking maikling panguluhan ay para sa kapakanan ng maliliit na Pilipino. Ano ang hangarin ng maliliit na Pilipino — trabaho, presyo, hanapbuhay. Yan ang ating hinahanap.

Halimbawa po, bago ako naging pangulo, tatlong taon, ang nagawa lamang na trabaho, ang nalikhang trabaho sa Pilipinas ay one million lamang po. Kaya sabi ni Kris, parang nawawalaan ng pag-asa. Pero sa aking maikling pamunuan, panguluhan, ang trabahong nalikha natin ay mahigit tatlong milyong trabaho. At marami doon ay dito mismo sa Calamba, sa mga pabrika, sa mga industrial estate.

Kaya yang malakas na pagsimula nating pagbabago para sa maliliit na Pilipino, down payment lamang yan. At iyan ang nagpapakita sa ating karanasan at sana, kayo mga kababayan, mga taga-Laguna, pagbibigyan ninyo kami — ako, si Noli at mga senador — ng pagkakataon ng susunod na down payment para lalong lalaganap ang trabaho sa Laguna at saka sa Pilipinas.

Kaya po, huwag nyong kalilimutan vice president, Noli Kabayan De Castro. Mga senador na kasama ko. Merong apat na reelektionista: nandiyaan si Bobby Barbers, nandiyaan si Pong Biazon, nandiyaan si Bobby Jaworski, nandiyaan si John Osmeña. Meron pang dalawang balik senador: nandiyaan si Orly Mercado, nandiyaan si Miriam Santiago. At merong dalawang Cabinet member. Iyung isa ay ang galing sa Department of Tourism, si Dick Gordon; at iyung isa, yung nagdala ng maraming trabaho sa Calamba, sa mga industrial estate, si Mar Roxas. Meron tayong pinuno ng mga Muslim, si Parouk Hussin. Meron tayong galing sa local government, si Lito Lapid ng Pampanga. Si Bong Revilla ng Cavite. At meron tayong kinatawan ng kabataan, kababaihan, propesyonal, si compaÑera Pia Cayetano.

Kami ang inyong mga kasama, inyong mga kandidato sa koalisyon ng katapatan at karanasan para sa kinabukasan. Dahil kung gusto natin sigurado ang kinabukasan ng mga industriya dito sa Calamba, ang kinabukasan ng Pilipinas, walang magpapalit sa karanasan. At itong ating koalisyon, ang K4, karanasan ang inaalok sa inyong lahat.

Maraming salamat at inaasahan namin ang inyong suporta.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). PGMA's Remarks during a Political Rally in Calamba City, Laguna. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412090638/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5650&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Awarding and Distribution Ceremonies of Projects [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Seremonya ng Paggawad at Pamamahagi ng mga Proyekto

[Ipinahayag sa Aplayo Elementary School, Sta. Rosa, Laguna, ika 10 ng Pebrero, 2004]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat kay Mayor Leon Arcillas, ang Leon ng mga punongbayan.

Sabi ko nga kay mayor, mayor ang galing-galing mong mag-alok nang taumbayan na magsama-sama at makinig sa iyung mga kandidato. sabi niya, hindi lamang yon lahat niyan ay translated sa boto para sa inyo, para sa K4. sa inyong lahat, maraming salamat.

Batiin ko ang ibat-ibang mga opisyal ng Sta. Rosa, maging ng buong lalawigang Laguna sa pangunguna ni Governor Ningning Lazaro. At hindi siya kandidato ngunit siya ay nakatira sa Sta. Rosa kaya nandito si Senator Kiko Pangilinan. Hindi rin siya kandidato ngunit siya ay dating ama ng Laguna na hanggang ngayon ay minamahal pa rin, nandito rin si Secretary Joey Lina. Ito naman ay kandidato at ang daming dala-dalang investments sa bayan ng Sta. Rosa, si Senator Mar Roxas.

At ako naman po ay si Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo na tumatakbo bilang pangulo. Ay, dumating na, dumating na ang panauhing pandangal doon sa ating ginawa kanina, yung pagsumpa ng barangay Anti- Drug Abuse Committee dahil ang ama ng Anti-Drug Law sa Pilipinas, isa sa pinakamabisa sa buong mundo, nandito na si Senator Bobby Barbers. Bobby, nakakagulat, di ba? Nakakataba nang puso, yon bang sambayanan na pinulong ni Mayor Leon Arcillas para makinig sa ating lahat.

Kanina, kanina sa dami ng tao sa buong kalsada ng Sta. Rosa hanggang dito, ang daming kumakaway, ang daming humihyaw pero meron akong konting narinig, yan pala si Gloria, ang liit-liit pala. pero totoo po yon, maliit lamang ako kaya alam ko ang damdamin ng mga maliliit.

Kaya sa aking maikling panguluhan, nagsimula ako ng mga pagbabagong hangad ng mga maliliit tungkol sa pangkabuhayan, gaya ng trabaho, presyo, hanapbuhay, tahanan, kalusugan, edukasyon, kapayapaan. Di ba yon ang hangarin ng mga maliliit?

Tungkol sa trabaho: sa tatlong taon bago ako naging pangulo, isang milyong trabaho lamang ang nalikha. Kaya naman apat na milyong walang trabaho ang aking namana. Mismong Sta. Rosa noon naramdaman ang mga pabrikang nahirapan at nawalaan ng trabaho. Ngunit sa aking maikling panguluhan, nakalikha tayo ng higit tatlong milyong trabaho. At ang dami noon ay dito mismo sa Sta. Rosa, ang Detroit ng Pilipinas.

Naalala ko noon, nung bagong halal akong senador nung 1992, inimbita ako dito sa Sta. Rosa ng Rotary. Napakaliit na bayan pa noon pero ngayon 14 years later sa ilalim nang pamumuno ni Leon Arcillas, ang leon ng Sta. Rosa, yang mga investors sa mga kotse, yang Ford, Toyota, anu-ano pa ay dito gustong maglagay. At sa aking administrasyon, dahil si Mar Roxas ang aking katulong magdala ng investors, katakut-takot ang expansion ng industriya sa bayan ng Sta. Rosa.

Para maganda ang trabaho kailangan maraming namumuhunan. Para dumami ang namumuhunan kailangan ang kapayapaan. At isa sa kailangan natin ay sugpuin ang salot ng droga dahil galing doon nanggagaling ang 70 percent sa mga krimen na nagaganap. Kaya naman si Bobby Barbers sa Senado ay gumawa nitong batas, na noong araw kasi ang dali-dali makapiyansa kahit na ikaw ay druglord. Ngayon hindi na, mabagsik ang batas ng droga kaya ang dami na nating nakuhang druglord. Si Joey Lina, na hindi kandidato, ay chairman ng Dangerous Drugs Board. Ang daming shabu ang na-confiscate, ang daming pabrika ang na-raid, ang daming druglord ang napreso, pati yung number one druglord, si William Gan. At yon ay dahil sa mabagsik na batas na ginawa ni Bobby Barbers.

Kaya ngayong gabi ipinagdidiriwang natin dalawang importanteng bahagi para sa kapayapaan ng Sta. Rosa, para mas lalong dumami ang investments, dumami ang trabaho, mas lalong maging Detroit ng Pilipinas ang Sta. Rosa, yung ating mga motorsiklo para sa ating bantay-barangay, yung ating balak para ganun mawala ang krimen hindi lamang sa Sta. Rosa, maging halimbawa sana sa Laguna, buong Pilipinas. Mabuhay ang Sta. Rosa! Mabuhay ang Leon ng Sta. Rosa! Huwag nyong kalimutang iboto yung mga kandidato nya kagaya ni Gloria, Noli, Mar, Bobby at lahat ng ibang senador ng Koalisyon ng Katapatan at Karanasan para sa Kinabukasan. Dahil walang kapalit ang karanasan. Nakita natin yon sa karanasan ni Leon Arcillas.

Kaya magsama-sama tayo sa Mayo sa Koalisyon ng Katapatan at Karanasan sa Kinabukasan, K4 ang Sta Rosa.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2004). PGMA's Remarks during an Awarding and Distribution Ceremonies of Projects. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412090653/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5649&Itemid=38

Prayer/Remarks of President Arroyo during the prayer gathering of evangelical leaders led by the Philippine Council of Evangelical Churches

Prayer/Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the prayer gathering of evangelical leaders led by the Philippine Council of Evangelical Churches

[Delivered at the Ceremonial Hall, Malacañang, January 4, 2005]

Thank you very much, Bishop.

Una sa lahat gusto ko lang magpasalamat sa inyong suporta at inyong mga panalangin para sa akin.

And I would like to continue to ask you to pray that I will have the wisdom of Solomon to govern rightly. I need your prayers to be able to allow me to discern the perfect will of God for our country.

Kahapon, dineklara ko na Biyernes ay oras ng Araw ng Panalangin at Pagluluksa para sa mga biktima ng tsunamis.

And God is a God of perfect timing. He timed our prayer for today because today is the eve of my departure for Jakarta. Tomorrow, I depart for Jakarta so that we can work on a response, a global response to the disaster that has occurred in the Indian ocean.

Kasama sa gusto kong panalangin ay hindi lamang panalangin para sa Biyernes kasi panalangin ng pagluluksa doon sa mga nasawi at natamaan ng tsunami sa Indian Ocean. At itong araw na ito gusto ko namang gawing panalangin ng pagpasalamat dahil iniligtas ng Panginoon ang Pilipinas doon sa tsunami.

Nung ôyung ating apat na bagyo, 30 to 40,000 families lost their homes; 1,000 people lost their lives. But we know in the tsunamis in the Indian Ocean about a 150,000 families have already lost their lives compared to our 1,000.

Indonesia gave us a planeload of relief goods and now 100,000 Indonesians lost their lives. So, in our own way, we are assisting them with a medical mission.

Thailand sent us a warehouse load of relief goods and now about 2,000 or more Thailanders have lost their lives. And while they have enough doctors for their medical team, we are sending them a... we sent them a forensic team to be able to help them identify their dead more quickly.

‘Yung Sri Lanka, hindi pa organize yung kanilang receiving mechanism, pero pag-organize na sila magpapadala rin tayo ng ating medical team.

At bukas dahil kung mapag-usapan nila... Well, tomorrow and the next day — tomorrow is the ministerial meeting, the next day is the summit meeting — ay dahil kung magpapadala ang U.N. o ang U.S. ng kanilang sariling malalawak na missions they have to put together money and talent. Well, we don’t have much money but we have talent. We have medical talent. We have ordinary people who will do the driving and other things like that for the teams. So, we will contribute what God has given us, and that is our human resource.

Kaya gusto kong magpasalamat sa Panginoon na bagamat akala natin na napakasama ang nangyari sa atin, tatlumpung libong nawalan ng tahanan; isang libong nawalaan ng buhay, eh naligtas tayo doon sa mas malaking sakuna. At biro niyo kung nangyari ito pagkatapos ng tsunami, walang tutulong sa atin dahil lahat ay tumutulong sa iba.

Kaya ngayon, maraming tumulong sa atin. Doon sa ating pangyayari at ngayon aside from contributing our human resources and some modest monetary contributions, one way by which we can contribute to the victims of tsunamis is that we will now have to attend to our own rehabilitation without depending on the world to help us.

‘Yung mga nag-commit itutuloy nila ang commitment nila. Pero hindi na tayo dapat umasa sa dagdag na commitment, tayo na yon ang gagawa noon.

Kaya nagpapasalamat ako sa house of hope dahil 30 to 40,000 Filipinos are looking now for a house of hope. Nakita naman niyo napaka-modest yung bahay, 25,000 pesos worth...

So, this is a message of hope. And I pray that as we give our brethrens that hope that goes with the house of hope, I hope also and pray that there will be hope in the country. And I ask you to help me pray to the Lord that he will send away, banish the demon of skepticism that is stalking our country.

Muli, salamat sa Panginoon na tayo ay naligtas sa tsunami at manalangin tayo para lumawak ang ating pananampalataya.

Maraming salamat.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Prayer/Remarks During the Prayer Gathering of Evangelical Leaders led by the Philippine Council of Evangelical Churches. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412082524/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3066&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Barangay Consultative Assembly with barangay officials of the City of Manila [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa Barangay Consultative Assembly kasama ang mga opisyal ng barangay ng Lungsod ng Maynila

[Ipinahayag sa San Andres Sports Complex, Brgy. San Andres Bukid, Maynila, ika 6 ng Hulyo, 2005]

Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat kay Mayor Lito Atienza sa iyong parating suporta sa akin, Lito, maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat kay Madame Beng Atienza. Maraming salamat kay Congressman Miles Roces. maraming salamat kay Kim Atienza. Maraming salamat kay ating pangulong Caloy Castañeda. lahat ng mga barangay captains at barangay officials, nubenta porsiento ng lahat ng officials ng Metro Manila ay narito. Maraming salamat sa inyong malaking pagdalo.

Nagpapasalamat ako kay Lito, kay Beng, sa inyong lahat dahil mahal na mahal ako ni Lito at saka ni Beng, at minamahal ninyo yung mga minamahal ni Lito at ni Beng, kaya maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Bagamat marami tayong mga ingay-ingay sa pulitika, gusto kong ipasiguro sa inyo na hindi tayo tumitigil sa ating mga reporma. Reporma sa pagpaganda ng pamamahala, reporma para umangat ang buhay ng mga mahihirap. Bibigyan ko kayo ng scoop — dahil siyempre kayo mga kandidato, importante sa inyo ang COMELEC — gusto kong ipahayag sa inyo, iulat sa inyo na hiningi ko sa presiding justice ng Court of Appeals si Justice Brawner na siya ang magiging susunod na Commissioner sa COMELEC.

Ito naman ang pahayag na... kahapon, gusto kong ipaalam sa inyo na doon sa Land Bank at saka doon sa National Development Company may bagong six hundred million pesos para sa microfinance. marami sa inyo, hindi ba nagma-microfinance? Merong mga sampung conduit yung PCFC, ginagamit ba ninyo yung sampung conduit na yon? O kaya yung DSWD, yung social worker ni Lito, dahil may... yung DSWD ay pwedeng conduit, pwedeng dadaan sa DSWD yung DSWD ni Lito para yung DSWD doon kayo hihiram nung ipapahiram ng Land Bank at saka National Development Company sa kanila, six hundred million pesos. Siguro naman mararamdaman ng mahihirap yang malaking halagang yan kaya mag-ayos na kayo kung papano manghihiram sa pondong ito sa kinabubuti ng inyong mga pangkabuhayan.

Mga Manila youth, maraming salamat. Dati pang sumusuporta kayo sa akin. Salamat sa tuloy niyong suporta. Lahat ng ginagawa ko ay sa kinabubuti ng inyong kinabukasan.

Kaya salamat Lito sa pagkakataon. Salamat sa pulong na ito. Pwede ko bang asahan ang mga barangay ng Maynila.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Remarks during the Barangay Consultative Assembly with Barangay Officials of the City of Manila. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412080325/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5100&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Call by the Provincial and City Treasurers Association of the Philippines (PACTAP)

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Call by the Provincial and City Treasurers Association of the Philippines (PACTAP)

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 20, 2005]

Maraming salamat sa inyong paghahain ng pagsuporta sa aking liderato. Maraming salamat sa inyong pagpahayag ng inyong kagustuhang maging tunay na kagabay ng Department of Finance sa ating revenue generation.

Itong mga sinasabi ninyong pakikipag-ugnay sa BIR para mas maganda naman siguro ang tax mapping at malaman kung sino ang dapat nagbabayad ng mas malaking buwis. Ito sa katotohanan matagal na itong pinapanukala ni Congressman Gary Teves noon. At nung siya ay pangulo ng Land Bank humihingi rin ako sa kanilang payo tungkol sa kung papaano natin papaibayuhin yung ating pagkubra ng buwis. Kasi dapat yang mga taxes tapos na yan eh. Pero ang kailangan yung pag hitting new taxes tapos na yung Phase One. Kaya ngayon kailangan yung pagganda ng mga programa at maraming ideya si Secretary Gary Teves. Pati yung tatay niya, si Congressman Herminio Teves ay maraming ideya at malaking bahagi ng kaniyang ideya mga treasurers ay makikipag-ugnay sa BIR, kaya ngayon matutupad ni Secretary Gary Teves.

Kaya ako'y nasisiyahan na ito na nga yung sinabi ninyo at dahil pareho ang pag-iisip niyo ni Secretary Gary Teves ako ay malaki ang aking tiwala na magtatagumpay dito tayo sa effort na ito.

Yon namang... Gusto ko rin na magpasalamat kay Secretary Teves dahil nakumbinsi niya ako — pwede ko na bang i-anunsiyo? — na yung DBP at saka itong Land Bank ay magbibigay ng advance dividend. Pang buena mano sa ating tax collection. Dahil marami tayo kailangang paggastusan. Microfinance kailangan nating paggastusan, yung half-priced medicine. At kailangan natin pag-gastusan yung health insurance. Gusto kong ipahayag din na sabi ni Secretary Pinggoy Duque, dahil nung isang taon nakaabot tayo ng 85 percent coverage ng health insurance. In any country that's already universal health insurance. Ang nagbigay ng karamihan ng dibidendo nung isang taon, ng premium nung isang taon ay yung national government. Pero ang usapan, for the second year, papasok na yung mga local governments. Dahil liliit ang papel ng national government, lalaki ang papel ng local government.

Salamat naman sa maraming local governments ay nakapag-enroll tayo ng 2.5 but now ire-enroll. Pero last year, more than four million. So ngayon gusto kong ipahayag, binibigyan na ako ng clearance ni Secretary Duque na ipahayag, na yung mga nalalabing 2.5 dahil ang mga local governments sila ay hindi nakayanan yung kanilang premium ay pwede nating i-renew for another year bago binibigyan ang local government nang mas panahon to develop their capability to pay the premium.

So, makakaasa yung mga cardholders na kahit na nag... Yung mga na-expire last March na hindi nabayaran ng local government ay pwede na nilang ituloy muli. So ito ay renewal ng kanilang health insurance enrollment. So, balik tayo uli sa almost universal health insurance. At lahat ito ay dahil inaasahan natin itong magagandang pagkubra ng buwis na manggagaling sa kooperasyon ng treasurers at saka ng BIR.

Tapos nito gusto ko ring ipahayag na sabi ng GSIS na pwede sila magbigay... Meron silang pondo for additional dividend — about one billion. At sinabi ko kay Secretary Gary Teves itong one billion na ito ay gamitin natin para tulungan yung mga state universities and colleges na magtatanggap ng mga pre-need victims. Di ba yung mga nag... Merong pre-need holders pero may problema ang ating pre-need companies, so matutulungan natin sila basta hindi naman masyado mabigat sa national government dahil mga sa exclusive schools. Pero yung pumunta sila sa mga state universities and colleges, ang gagawin natin sa halip na nagbabayad sila ng malalaking tuition o pag babayaran natin yung tuition nila, susuportahan na lang natin yung SUCS sa kanilang operation expenses. Ang kapalit tatanggapin nila yung mga scholars ng mga pre-need victims.

So, inaayos natin ang mga problemang nararamdaman ng karaniwang taumbayan: ang problema ng edukasyon; problema ng scholarship; yung problema ng kalusugan, eto na ang Philhealth insurance; yung problema ng hanapbuhay, yung microfinance na salamat din kay Gary mula sa Land Bank siya 300 million ang dinagdag basically for Metro Manila but not exclusively. Kaya lang dahil kulang ang microfinance sa Metro Manila at yon ang irony eh mayron tayong microfinance sa Metro Manila. Pero yon talaga ang kailangan, ayuda for the poor at saka yung... So ito nga yung finance na ito so meron tayong microfinance.

Actually, magiging one billion yan kasi may 300 million from NDC, may one hundred million from INSF, meron pang additional 300 million from NDC ulit. Pero ang pinakamalinis na talaga yung Land Bank, yung Land Bank ni President Gary Teves noon. Kaya microfinance, health at saka yung scholarship ng pre-need holders. At saka yung isa pang asikasuhin natin naman yung half-priced medicine. Sa madaling panahon lalabas yung mga advertisements kung saan mabibili ng taumbayan yung half-priced medicine.

Lahat nito ay dahil sa mga fiscal reforms na nagawa natin nung isang taon. At dahil sa inaasahan nating improvement in revenue collection sa ilalim ng sistemang ipinahayag ngayon sa akin itong araw na ito.

Sa inyong lahat maraming salamat sa suporta sa aking liderato.

Maraming salamat sa suporta at pagmamahalan.

Thank you so much.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Remarks during the call by the Provincial and City Treasurers Association of the Philippines (PACTAP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412075245/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5091&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during an Official Dinner in Honor of H.E. Lee Hae Chan, Prime Minister of the Republic of Korea

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During an Official Dinner in Honor of H.E. Lee Hae Chan, Prime Minister of the Republic of Korea

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, August 5, 2005]

Vice President De Castro; other officials of the Philippine government; members of the Philippine-Korean business community; ladies and gentlemen.

The Filipino people deeply appreciate your visit. We value our relations with the Republic of Korea. Ambassador Yu Myung-hwan pointed out in his farewell call last Wednesday that economic relations between our two countries have never been better. Overall trade relations have improved. Foreign direct investments from Korea have increased significantly, particularly in energy — thanks to KEPCO — as well as in manufacturing and ship building and mining contributing to the job so badly needed by the Filipino people. KEPCO will have an investment in Cebu province — which you've visited as a tourist in 2001, excellency — of about 250 million dollars. It plans to expand its plant in Batangas, already one of the biggest at 1,000 megawatts, with another 600 million-dollar investment.

And we thank your government and your business community, Excellency, because of the important electrification that you have contributed to our various villages.

During my administration, we have lighted an unprecedented number of barangays or villages. We have about 4,000 more to go of the 45,000 villages all over the country. And I'm very grateful that your government and your people including your business community have offered an initial 500 new villages to be electrified, and perhaps eventually another 2,000.

In Subic, in north of Manila, Hanjin is establishing a ship component fabrication facility starting with 50 million dollars, to ramp up to 500 million dollars and eventually a ship building facility of 1 billion dollars.

We are grateful that you came as a tourist three years ago, Excellency. Korean tourists are number one in the Philippines. Of the 2.4 or so million tourists in our country last year, almost 400,000 were Koreans, and we expect that to be about half a million this year.

We are true friends and allies. We sent Philippine troops to Korea in the early 1950s in accordance with the resolution that my father was very honored to author when he was congressman. And now, we look forward to the peaceful solution of the situation in the Korean peninsula and the success of the six party talks.

Our country looks forward to the visit of President Roh (Roh Moo-hyun) in Manila this December. Truly, it's a very great honor for us that the president and the prime minister of the Republic of Korea both visit us in this year of our great friendship.

I'm sure our vice president and the other officials wish to join me in a toast to the relations between our two countries, to the good health of your president and to your good health as well.

Mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Remarks during an Official Dinner in Honor of H.E. Lee Hae Chan, Prime Minister of the Republic of Korea. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412063041/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5112&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the occasion in honor of Filipino World Champions in the Performing Arts, the Entertainment Industry and in Sports Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the occasion in honor of Filipino World Champions in the Performing Arts, the Entertainment Industry and in Sports

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, September 21, 2005]

Thank you.

Thank you. Thank you, Cerge.

Our three incoming justices of the Court of Appeals and all the others who are going to take their oaths today, members of the government, leaders of the entertainment industry, our world class champions, ladies and gentlemen:

Today , indeed, we celebrate the global triumph of the Filipino.

Well, I'm very proud of our incoming justices of the Court of Appeals. Very well chosen. Very difficult time choosing the best among the best. And I congratulate you for them.

You and I, congressmen and governor who are here today, thank you also for being here and for supporting us.

The global triumph of the Filipinos — Cerge, mentioned already — the President of the U.N. Security Council.

Then, there's Manny Pacquiao, Boom Boom Bautista and Brian Viloria. We congratulate them too. And we also have Dottie Ardina who won the 2005 U.S. Kids World Golf Championship.

And earlier, we had the presentation of the two Filipino films who garnered best awards in their category. And we congratulate them too.

We congratulate the makers of "Masagista" at the Locarno International Film Festival and "Ang Pagdadalaga ni Maximo Oliveros" at the Montreal International Film Festival.

We heard Jed Madela and Rizza Navales, and we know why they won best in the performing arts in what is considered as the Official Talent Olympics of the world held in Hollywood.

I congratulate Ida Henares for choosing these two singers who created a record in the eleven-year history of the competition — one country' sweeping all the awards. Congratulations!

These achievements mark the excellence and leadership of the Filipino in the world.

Now, we must seal our niche in sports, in entertainment. We're doing quite well in sports. But in entertainment, I think we still need a lot of help. And so, therefore, I am directing the MMDA and the Film Development Council to update the rules of the Metro Manila Film Festival to conform to international standards starting next year.

We have Congressman Singson here and Congressman Bateria together with Governor Chavit. We have two congressmen and Congressmen, I'd like to let you know that the industry is asking for exemption from amusement taxes, and these are for movies filmed in the Philippines whether Filipino or foreign, and also live performances of Filipino artists.

The long and short of it is let's work for the Philippines to be the center for entertainment in Asia.

We have our talents. We have our technical expertise in film and sound production. We have competitive pricing. Let's work together and congratulations! To the members of the entertainment industry and the members of the sports community for being so outstanding.

And of course to help govern so that the policy environment will be good for entertainment and for sports, we have to have the right officials.

Let me therefore take this opportunity to segue into our oath taking. I ask for these events to be done together so that we will have an audience who will listen to our young singers.

So, thank you very much for coming to Malacañang for this celebration. And I think we should celebrate just as well the difficult but finally I think the very good choices of our inductees today.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Remarks during the occasion in honor of Filipino World Champions in the Performing Arts, the Entertainment Industry and in Sports. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615092731/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5134&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during a Call by Philippine Boxing Champions: Manny Pacquiao, Brian Viloria and Rey ‘Boom Boom’ Bautista

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a Call by Philippine Boxing Champions: Manny Pacquiao, Brian Viloria and Rey ‘Boom Boom’ Bautista

[Delivered at the Kalayaan grounds, Malacañang, October 3, 2005]

Maraming salamat, Mayor Lito Atienza.

Mabuhay si Manny, Brian at Boom Boom!

Mabuhay! Ang atong kababayang Boholano, si Boom Boom Bautista, ang bagong WBO Asia-Pacific Bantamweight Champion. Boom Boom, siguradong layo ang imong adtoan tungod kay dise-nuebe ka pa lang kampiyon na. Congratulations!

Mabuhay! Si Brian Viloria na dugong Narvacan, Ilocos Sur, ang ating WBC Light Flyweight Champion. Congratulations!

Thank you, Brian for keeping faith in the Filipino flag.

Kadagiti kailian tayo nga ilokano, agpayso nga maipannakel tayo ni Brian. Congratulations!

Alam niyo nakilala ko si Brian nung state visit ko sa America. Nakaupo si Brian sa presidential table in the dinner given to me by President Bush. Doon ko siya nakilala dahil inimbata ni President Bush, hinanap niya lahat ng mga pinakasikat na Filipino-Americans at inimbata niya sa White House State Dinner, at doon niya inupo doon sa presidential table. At nakilala ko si Brian bilang “Hawaiian Punch” pero si Brian ay Hawaiian punch at Filipino punch din. Maraming salamat.

At siyempre, mabuhay muli ang matagal nang idolo natin, si Manny Pacquiao, WBC International Super Featherweight Champion. Congratulations muli, Manny!

Si Manny, 6 rounds lang; si Boom Boom, 3 rounds lang; si Brian, one round lang! Congratulations muli!

At kasabay ng kanilang tagumpay kamakailan lang, ang iba pang mga Pilipino — si Alex Pagulayan na U.S. Open Billiards Champion at si Precious Lara Quigaman, ang Miss International — kayong lima binigyan ninyo ng panibagong dahilan upang maging taas-noo ang Pilipino sa buong mundo. Dahil sa mga katulad ninyo tumingkad ang dangal ng bawat Filipino.

Kaya sa inyo, malaking karangalan ang binigay niyo sa ating bansa, malaking pagmamahal at pagpapasalamat ang pinapahayag sa inyo ng buong sambayanang Pilipino.

Mabuhay! Ang ating mga kampiyon sa boxing.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Remarks during a Call by Philippine Boxing Champions: Manny Pacquiao, Brian Vitoria and Rey 'Boom Boom' Bautista. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615092522/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5227&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Dinner Reception for the Participants of the 6th Asia-Pacific Mining Conference and Exhibition

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Dinner Reception for the Participants of the 6th Asia-Pacific Mining Conference and Exhibition

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, October 13, 2005]

Thank you very much, Secretary Defensor.

First of all, I'd like to congratulate all of you and to welcome all of you, and to thank you for choosing the Philippines for your meeting.

Secondly, I'd like to greet Philip Romualdez and congratulate him for his reelection as president of the ASEAN Federation of the Chamber of Mines. Congratulations, Philip!

I'd like to thank the members of the diplomatic corps who are here tonight, as well as our various government officials, and also the important leaders and movers and shakers of our business community.

I'm glad you're all here tonight because it shows that you all recognize that mining is the next wave of prosperity for the Philippines coming up after information technology which has been growing by leaps and bounds over the last four years. I hope that mining will also grow by leaps and bounds in the same percentage terms that our I.T. industry has been growing like double every year.

The debate on whether mining is a boon or a bane to a developing economy has long been resolved. Mining countries fare better than other countries in their respective regions, provided there is institutional stability and good economic management.

The challenge clearly lies in transforming our mineral endowments into economic assets that will help liberate our people from the bondage of persistent poverty.

I won't give another long speech — you've had speeches for the last four days — except to share with you that I hope we will have four to six billion dollars in mining investments before the end of my term. And I hope they will come from some of you gentlemen and ladies who are here tonight.

Two days ago, I signed executive order 469 creating the minerals development council whose responsibility shall be to advance the sustainable and responsible development of our mineral resources. And I hope that with this executive order, indeed, you will all find the Philippines a good place to do mining business in.

Let's all move forward in promoting the minerals industry towards growth and development — conscious and sensitive to environmental concerns, and pro-actively institutionalizing mechanisms to ensure the equitable sharing of benefits from our rich mineral resources.

Once again, to all of you, welcome! Mabuhay! Bon a'petit!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615092343/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5205&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Launching of the 1st Seafood Market Link

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Launching of the 1st Seafood Market Link

[Delivered at the Eagles' Hall, Officers Club, Airforce City, Clarkfield, Angeles City, Pampanga, October 21, 2005]

Dacal a salamat, Anna. Ampong mayap a oras king pamag-organize kaniting my First Seafood Market Link lalo na king 4th district ning Pampanga.

I'd like to greet Mrs. Gina De Venecia and the other national officials; Id like to greet the various mayors of the province of Pampanga; the various officials of the Philippine government; our Cabinet as well as the Department of Agriculture; I'd like to greet especially Mr. Ong and Director Ontangco. Ong and Ontangco, this is a good show.

Karing bisita, karing participants, the participants of the launching of the First Seafood Market Link, karing kaluguran kong kabalen keting ang Pampanga.

Bayu ing sabla, buri ku batian ampong pasalamatan ding menatag kaniting mumunang diling Seafood Market Link keti king rehiyon tres. Not only the first in Region IV, in district 4, but I think the first in Region III. Congratulations! Kekongan.

Iting okasyon a ini, metung yang angkop a pamagkataun ban makapanintun tamung paralan para mitaguyud ing kekayung agricultural commodities, lalu na deng tilapia, karing manyali king luwal na ning rehiyon. And Im very glad that Pampanga tilapia is making its way now into the major market. Congratulations! For the 25 buyers and the 60 producers who forged their agreements today. Congratulations to all of you!

Abala kayu king pamanintun solusyon karing problemang harapan yu, habang ding aliwa karing kekatamung kabalen king metro manila, ala lang patugut king pamanggulu a labis a maka-apekto king kalakalan king mabilug kapuluan. I would like to express my sympathies to the six policemen and women who were hurt in today's rally including one policewoman who is very seriously hurt and we will go and visit her tonight.

Metung ya iti karing mumunang rason bakit buri kung dinan karagdagang upaya ding kekatamung kanayunan ban mas maragul ing asaup da king pambansang kanawan. You are the source of food for the center of the Philippines. You should be the source of power rather than the center because there's more production happening here in the countryside.

Nung misundu la ding pamagbayu king kekatamung saligang batas and that is what we're pushing. At matagumpe tayang apatupad ing batas ning bayung buwis, thank you to Anna and to all the other congressman who have helped with our revenue measures. A mamie kekatamung karagdagan a pondo ban agamit karing programang pang-ekonomiya daratang ing mangasanting a pamagbayu, ali mu king kanayunan nune karing apat a suluk ning kekatamung balen. And as Anna was saying, one big problem is the lack of capital. I was just talking with Undersecretary Salacup and I confirmed that the instructions of Secretary Ding Panganiban that there should be in Quedancor a particular program for aquaculture.

Iyabe naman tala pa ding tutuki:

Ing patuluy a pamagtas ning hulaga ning peso at uling king patuluy a tiwala da ding negosyante dala ning matatag a kabilyang pinansiyal ning bansa.

Ing mitas ing koleksiyon tamu king buwis ampo ing pamagbawas ning korupsiyon, kay kanita pang-adwa tamo king asya king korupsiyon ngeni pang-apat mu. At kanita dating pang-adwa pin king asya at kanita... At ngeni ing kekatamung ranking king kabilugang mundo pang-atlumpulu't anam kanita pang-labing metung. So we are going down, down, down in the ranking of the most corrupt country in the world and in the region. And I thank you all for helping me with good governance.

Any pin, anyawaran ku kekayu na isundu yula ding programang panyulung a kalupa na niti. In fact, Anna was surprised why I accepted her invitation. Why not. First of all, we want to open 2 million hectares of land for agri-business and that includes aquaculture land. secondly, this is a way of making food cheaper for the whole population. In fact, I've been saying kanita kasi ing galunggong ing supposedly ordinary man's fish but we've been saying for many years now dapat ing tilapia. Uling ing galunggong imported ya. Ing tilapia we can grow right in our own backyard and in our plantation aquaculture. Kaya importante ini, and of course because I want to thank Anna and the other congressmen for their great support for me in congress so consistent. Dacal a salamat anna ampu aliwang congressmen.

Eyu paburen a siran nala ning marinat a pulitika ding kekayung mangasanting a a-umpisan.

Our stand from day one has been to halt the degeneration of Philippine politics and attend to the duty of alleviating the suffering of the Filipino people. And the most important thing they need is food, food, food. And tilapia should be the ordinary Filipino's fish. The ordinary Filipino's viand.

We reiterate our commitment to peace, order, security. We must minimize disturbances to our students and commuting public as we continue to lay down clear cut rules of engagement on handling mass actions, and the LGUs identifying freedom parks for this purpose. These are elements of a strong republic that we need in order for our economic take-off not to be sabotaged by a degenerated political system. As we work towards a stronger state, I thank the lord for the resiliency of the economy, the heroism and loyalty to service shown by the civil servants, like our D.A. and BFAR officials who have put together this particular market link together with the private sector. The assiduosity shown by the local government executives, thank you dacal a salamat karing local executive, Governor Ngening Aldo, and the heroic flooding of dollar remittances by overseas Filipinos to the country. Usually, we have 8 million dollars, 8 billion dollars in remittances from our overseas Filipinos. I think this year we will get 10 billion dollars, thanks to all of them many of whom are relatives of the people here in this room.

And so, I thank you all for being her lalo na karing kabalen kong kapampangan and of course the buyers from the big organizations of Metro Manila. To all of you, let's continue to bring food at affordable prices to the Filipino people. Let's continue to open up 2 million new hectares of land for agri-business including aquaculture.

Dacal a salamat at mabuhay tayong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Remarks during the Launching of the 1st Seafood Market Link. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615092312/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5200&Itemid=38

Inspirational Remarks President Arroyo during the Mass for the Members of the Philippine Contingent to the 23rd Southeast Asian Games the Country is hosting from November 27 to December 5, 2005

Inspirational Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Mass for the Members of the Philippine Contingent to the 23rd Southeast Asian Games the Country is hosting from November 27 to December 5, 2005

[Delivered at the Philsports Arena, ULTRA, Pasig City, November 4, 2005]

Thank you very much, father.

Congressman Cojuangco, Chairman Ramirez, Congressman Puentevella, mga atleta, mga opisyal, mga fans, magandang gabi sa inyong lahat at mabuhay ang atletang Pilipino!

Narito tayo dahil tayo ay atleta o kaya dahil ipinagmamalaki natin ang ating mga atletang makikipagkumpetensiya sa Southeast Asian games. And we are proud of our athletes the way we are proud of the fighting spirit of the Filipinos in the four corners of the world.

Pagkita-kita ng mga iba't-ibang atleta galing sa iba't-ibang bansa sa arena ng kumpetensiya, bawat pangkat nila ay magdadala ng kanilang bandila at kulay. Ngunit lahat sila ikakatawan ang isang masiglang bahagi ng mundo na nangangakong magiging lider ng pacific century.

Kabit-kabit tayo sa seryoso at tahimik na giyera kontra sa terorismo at kahirapan. Naalala ko noong ang aking kapatid si art, nag-compete sa Munic olympics noong 1972, yung mga tagumpay natin doon o tagumpay kahit na nila Mark Spitz ay ang nangyari doon ay nabura doon sa pangyayari dahil nagkaroon ng malaking attack ng terorismo at maraming namatay.

Kung ganun ng 1972, ilang beses na ganun kalaki ang banta dito sa ating mundo ngayon at sa ating bahagi ng mundo. Kaya magpasalamat tayo sa ating mga pulis, mga local government officials, lahat ng mga mamamayan na handang magtanggol sa ating mga atleta at ating mga bisita mula sa iba't-ibang bahagi ng ating rehiyon.

Sa rehiyong ito maraming mayamang bansa, maraming middle-class na bansa — kasama tayo doon — maraming mahihirap na bansa. Ngunit kahit na sa mga middle-class na bansa maraming mahihirap, kaya sa mga panahong ito tayo'y nagkakaisa sa sports para matuto tayong magkaisa laban sa terorismo at laban sa kahirapan. At kung mapatunayan natin ang pagkakaisa sa sports, tuloy-tuloy tayong magtatagumpay sa pamamagitan ng pagkakaisa, at tuloy-tuloy tayong magtatayo ng kinabukasan na may pinagsamahan na mga aspirasyon at sakripisyo.

Ang atleta hindi nagtatagumpay kung hindi nagsasakripisyo. Hindi porke't ikaw ay napanganak na masigla, magaling, skillfull ay magtatagumpay ka. Kailangan maghirap sa training, sa diet, sa self-discipline. At yung mga ganung bagay ay kailangan din natin upang magtagumpay kontra sa terorismo at kontra sa kahirapan.

Ang iba't-ibang mga gagampanan ng mga laro ay punong-puno ng sigla at ospitalidad. Yung mga local governments — ayun! Si Monico doon sa Bacolod – iba't-ibang bahagi ng Pilipinas, lahat sila ay handang-handa na tanggapin kayong mga atletang Pilipino at mga atletang nanggagaling sa iba't-ibang bahagi ng ating rehiyon. Magpasalamat tayo sa kanila sa kanilang paghahanda.

At siyempre pa dahil tayo ang host, binabati rin natin ang lahat ng mga bansa ng Southeast Asia sa kanilang suporta kagaya ng suporta ng ating mga local government units sa kanilang sigla, at kailangan magpasalamat tayo sa napakaraming volunteer na hindi na natin mapangalan mula sa lahat ng dako ng buhay who are ensuring that every event will proceed forward without any hitches. Hindi malaki ang budget na binigay ng gobyerno. Ang ating committee ay naghanap ng mga sponsors kasi ito ay isang sasabihin nating pagkakabalikat ng public sector, private sector, business community, mga atleta, mga volunteer. Ilan diyan ay nagtatrabaho halos full time. Tanungin magkano ang kanilang... Ang bayad sa kanila — wala. Por la patria, ginagawa para sa bansa. Ang sukli lamang nila ay ang ating pagpapasalamat at yung kagalingan ng paglaro at pagkumpitensya ng ating mga atleta.

Pagpunta ng ating mga atleta at atleta ng ibang bansa sa iba't-ibang lugar, Maynila at ibang lugar sa labas ng Maynila, hinihiling ko ang lahat ng Pilipino na buksan ang kanilang puso sa mga sumasalang mga teams.

At siyempre, higit sa lahat yung fighting spirit ng ating mga atleta ay dapat malarawan sa bawat pamilya at tahananang Pilipino, sa pakikibaka at mga sakripisyo to bear the burdens not only of winning a sports competition but the burdens of building and nurturing a strong nation.

Hayaan niyo akong mag-usap sandali ukol sa pagtayo ng malakas na bansa. While the best path to uplift the poor is through a strong economy, we must consider direct mitigating measures to ease the pain. Tinaas na ng mga wage board ang mga sweldo noon pang Mayo. Sa apat na taon na ako ay pangulo apat na beses tinaas ang mga sweldo. And now I ask labor and business to find a middle ground on a legislated minimum wage, with the participation of congress and the executive branch through the Department of Labor. A quadripartite dialogue is in order, and we must consider the full range of social, economic and political implications. Ito ay hiniling ko kay Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas kanina na siya ay tumawag nitong quadripartite meeting upang isigurado na ang ating mga manggagawa ay tuloy-tuloy na makikinabang sa kaunlaran at hindi mapinsala sa mga sakripisyong kinakailangang gawin nating lahat.

We need to maintain our economic gains while engaging full social cohesion and political stability. All are necessary to maintain economic confidence and the investments and jobs that go along with it. Let us have a strong nation tempered by compassion so that the less fortunate can weather tough times in the knowledge that the spirit of sacrifice is shared by all sectors across the nation.

Kayong mga atleta ay inspirasyon para sa lahat ng mga Filipino to excel, to triumph, to win in a world of challenge and opportunity. Nananalo ang mga atleta dahil sa disiplina, dahil sa teamwork, dahil sa fair play, rules of the game. At gamitin natin ang ating disiplina, gamitin natin ang ating teamwork.

Filipino athletes go for the gold now in the Philippines and in 2008 in Beijing!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2005). PGMA's Inspirational Remarks during the Mass for the Members of the Philippine Contingent to the 23rd Southeast Asian Games the Country is hosting from November 27 to December 5, 2005. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615092117/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=5406&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration and awarding of the Kawal Kalinga Housing Project:
“Pangkabuhayang Gawad sa Makabagong Army (PGMA)”

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inauguration and awarding of the Kawal Kalinga Housing Project: “Pangkabuhayang Gawad sa Makabagong Army (PGMA)”

[Delivered at the Fort Magsaysay Village, Sitio Pinaltakan, Brgy. Caballero, Palayan City, Nueva Ecija, March 13, 2006]

Salamat at gusto kong batiin lahat ng ating mga sundalo at mga opisyal ng civilian dito sa magandang proyekto, pati yung ating mga ngos, congratulations! Sa ating pagkakaisa dito sa pabahay para sa mga sundalo.

At ako ay nasisiyahan na meron tayong donations for 600 houses, noli, para dito yung inenumerate ni General Esperon. At meron din tayong 600 hectares para sa pagtanim ng jatropa para sa ating energy self-sufficiency at pati na rin para sa extra income ng mga pamilya ng ating mga sundalo.

Itong ginagawa natin dito ay ginagawa sa buong Pilipinas. At ito nga na hiniwalay natin ang ilang bahagi ng mga ektarya ng mga malalaking kampo. Pero ito... Ay, naku! Malaking-malaki pero kung ihahambing natin doon sa ating isang bonus, yung manila bank na binayaran yang kanyang utang sa central bank ng 1,200 hectares, na ang Central Bank naman — ito ay sa San Miguel, malapit sa Camp Tecson — na ang Central Bank naman ay dinonate sa national government bilang dibidendo, ito ay magiging pabahay ng lahat ng ating mga manggagawa sa pamahalaan: one-fourth sa military; one-fourth sa police; one-fourth sa teachers dahil sila ang nakararami sa ating mga empleyado; at one-fourth to the other government employees.

Ganito ang gagawin pareho nito at magkakasya doon, sabi ni Tony Meloto, ay mga 30,000 houses magkakasya doon para sa ating mga empleyado government, teachers, police at sundalo.

At nagpapasalamat nga ako sa lahat ng mga nagdo-donate ng mga materyales at tinuturuan na magbigay naman ng “sweat equity” yung mga beneficiaries. Doon nga sa Southern Leyte kung saan tayo ay tumutulong para mabuhay muli, magkaroon muli ng bagong buhay yung mga pamayanan doon. Nung makalawa lamang sinabi ni Secretary Espy Cabral na kailangan ng 1,800 houses. Eh si Tony Meloto na namumuno doon sa ibat-ibang mga ngo na nagbubuo ng mga donations ay sabi may 2,000 houses for donation na sa Southern Leyte. Kaya maraming salamat doon.

Nagpapasalamat ako sa lahat ng nagtutulungan sa Southern Leyte. Naalala ko nga habang tayo ay nagsasama-sama para asikasuhin ang kailangang kalinga ng mga biktima ng landslide ay yon yung ating mga destabilizer doon sila kumikilos para buwagin ang ating pamahalaan. Ni anino nila nakita natin para tumulong sa Southern Leyte.

Kaya ako ay nagpapasalamat sa lahat ng hindi nadala. Nagpapasalamat ako sa ating mga sundalo at pulis na hindi nadala. At eto nga nandito tayo para sa kinabukasang maganda kaysa sa magsu-surrender sa mga gustong magbuwag ng ating kinabukasan.

Narito na rin ako, yung aking ipapahayag sanang atas mamaya pag nagkaron kami ng meeting ng ating mga top brass ng armed forces ay siguro babasahin ko na ngayon. Ito ang aking anunsiyo at atas sa ating mga pwersa:

Ang katatagan ng piso at stock market sa gitna ng lubhang pamumolitika ay patuloy na senyas na sa kabilang nananatili ang ekonomiya sa pinakaharap ng ating mga inaasikaso kailangan isustento natin ang pagbuwag sa mga pailalim na pagsasabwatan hanggang ito ay buong nalinis at nabura na.

We are determined to clean out residual threats of destabilization with the heaviest arsenal of constitutional measures we can muster. Anuman ang sabihin o gawin ng ating mga kritiko upang pilipitin ang kahulugan, ang pagkalehitimo ng ating mga kilos. Tama na ang pagdurusang taumbayan at hindi na ako papayag mamuno sa tuloy-tuloy na destabilisasyong nagkukunwaring makabatas na kilos pulitika. One comprehensive, continuing sweep will deal with rightist coup plotters and left wing insurgents, and there will be no longer any ifs or buts about it.

The choice is either — to keep this nation up and about in its business or to allow it to wallow and fester under intensive care. Ginawa ko na ang desisyong tuluyang tanggalin na ang pilipinas sa sick bay. At aasikasuhin natin yung mga naghaharag sa malakas na kamay ng batas. Ang malakas na ekonomiyang pinapatakbo ng malakas na pamahalaan ay ating ticket sa higit na mabuting kinabukasan.

Kaya salamat sa lahat ng hindi nadadala sa mga nagsasabwat. Salamat ng mga nananatiling tumulong sa ating magagandang gawain para sa kinabukasan gaya nang ginagawa natin dito.

Salamat kay Vice President Noli de Castro, kay General Senga at buong militar sa inyong pagkakaisa sa ating mga layunin at sa katapatan sa ating bandila, sa ating konstitusyon, sa commander-in-chief.

Maraming salamat at congratulations sa inyong lahat!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the Inauguration and Awarding of the Kawal Kalinga Housing Project: "Pangkabuhayang Gawad sa Makabagong Army (PGMA). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214935/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2424&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the new call center facility of Sutherland Global Services

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inauguration of the new call center facility of Sutherland Global Services

[Delivered at the ExportBank Bldg., Pasong Tamo cor. Buendia Ave. Makati City, March 27, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Favila.

And the other Cabinet members and officials of the Philippine government, several of whom are here with us today; general de lima and the other officials of Sutherland; our young call center personnel for making Sutherland what it is today here in the Philippines. Congratulations! To all of you. and of course to their clients, congratulations! And for what they offer for the world for Sutherland.

I'm very happy to hear about your expansion. I'm very happy to hear that you are going to double your work force this year much much beyond what you anticipated you would do. I'm very happy indeed to let you know that the call center and the BPO industry in the Philippines, Mr. Chairman has been doubling every year. From less than 2,000 workers in 2001, we now have a 125,000 this year. And if we're doubling that means we ought to be leading at least around a hundred thousand more.

I'm happy to hear about your plans on the Sutherland University which is mono... What I would like to have — the finishing schools for call centers. And in fact, I have asked the chairman of the Technical Education Skills Development Authority that he should develop a scholarship program for the call center finishing schools to be able to benefit 100,000 young Filipinos. so that there'll be a continuing pool of the world-class Filipino personnel that you have found in our country.

Once again, congratulations! Thank you for giving us employment. And thank you for contributing to the billion-dollar industry that is the BPO industry in the Philippines.

Mabuhay! Thank you!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the inauguration of the new call center facility of Sutherland Global Services. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214356/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2416&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the 10th Year Anniversary of the Asian Spirit Airlines

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the 10th Year Anniversary of the Asian Spirit Airlines

[Delivered at the Harbour Garden, The Hotel Philippine Plaza, CCP Complex, Pasay City, March 31, 2006]

Just to wish Asian Spirit happy 10th anniversary and thank you for using your 10th anniversary to expand some more. Congratulations! On your first international flight to Palau.

And I would like to thank Asian Spirit also for being aggressive enough to go to those missionary routes by being conservative enough to invest only from your retained earnings. I think the bank should lend you more money because there's so much liquidity.

Congratulations! And good luck!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the 10th Year Anniversary of the Asian Spirit Airlines. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214327/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2413&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Thanksgiving Dinner in Honor of His Eminence Gaudencio Cardinal Rosales

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Thanksgiving Dinner in Honor of His Eminence Gaudencio Cardinal Rosales

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, April 1, 2006]

Archbishop Gaudencio Cardinal Rosales; Speaker De Venecia and other government officials; your Eminence Archbishop Ricardo Cardinal Vidal; your excellencies archbishops and bishops of the Philippine church; other friends in Jesus Christ.

Salamat sa Diyos para sa maluwalhati at maligayang parangal mula nang ika-24th ng Marso, may tatlong Cardinal na naman ang ating bansa. Nandoon sa Roma si Cardinal Sanchez at dito sa Pilipinas si Cardinal Vidal at ngayon si Cardinal Rosales. Congratulations to all of you!

This gathering is our way of sharing with his eminence the joy and pride of the entire Filipino catholic community. Cardinal Rosales, indeed, deserves the great honor bestowed upon him by Pope Benedict XVI for his outstanding and enlightened pastoral leadership. And we know that all through his priesthood, Cardinal Rosales has been ever so humble. We celebrate his holiness as recognition of Cardinal Rosales' virtues, as well as the most recognition of the Philippines as a beacon of Christianity in Asia and a great center of unparalleled catholic devotion in the world.

Nakakakilabot yung kuwento ni Cardinal kanina. Yung paulit-ulit na sinabi ni Santo Papa kay Cardinal Rosales na ang Pilipinas ay may malaking papel sa evangelization ng silangan. Lalo kailangan sa ganun ang ating pagkakapit-bisig para matupad natin itong mahalagang obligasyon.

Indeed, as our newly-ordained cardinal stepped off his plane the other night to ride in Manila, he reiterated his call on all Filipinos to unite. And like Cardinal Rosales, we, too in the government have made a call for unity many times.

Paumanhin po ninyong gamitin ko itong pagkakataon na ipahayag ang ninanais ng pamahalaang masigasig at malawakang pakikipag-tulungan sa mga gawain ng simbahang katoliko gaya ng magandang inisyatibo ng ating bagong Cardinal lalo na sa kanyang kahanga-hangang 'Pondong Pinoy', sa iba't-ibang programa ng simbahan para sa pag-angat ng mahihirap, paglakas ng pamilya, pagtanggol sa buhay at pagkakasundo sa buong kapuluan.

In the gospel of St. John, our Lord Jesus Christ asked St. Peter three times, "do you love me?" And three times our first pope said, "yes." And Jesus told Peter, "feed my sheep." We, in the government want to make this divine dictum the most urgent imperative in our cooperative endeavors with the church. We want to devote the dividends of our tax reforms to bring down hunger and poverty among our people.

Ngayon at merong pondo ang pamahalaan mula sa reporma sa buwis, gagastos tayo sa mga programang para sa pagkain, paggamot at paaral. At kung mamarapatin ninyo, mga minamahal na obispo at arsobispo, mga minamahal na Cardinal, makikipag-konsulta at makikipag-tulungan ang gabinete sa ating mga butihing Cardinal at obispo upang maituro ninyo sa amin kung sino at kung saan nangangailangan ng tulong.

I pray, the Lord will bless our cooperative efforts to keep his sheep. I pray, he will bless our efforts to bring unity to our social relations so we can all pull together to move this nation in the right direction.

Once again, in behalf of the Filipino people, the lay Filipino people, let me express once again our nation's deep gratitude and boundless joy at your incoming cardinal, beloved Archbishop Rosales, in our desire to strengthen our bonds in the government with our spiritual leaders to realize god's loving will for the Philippines.

Muli, mabuhay! Ang ating bagong Cardinal, His Eminence Gaudencio Cardinal Rosales. At maraming salamat sa inyo.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the Thanksgiving Dinner in Honor of His Eminence Gaudencio Cardinal Rosales. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214257/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2457&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during a Fiesta Picnic in Mapandan, Pangasinan on the eve of her 59th birthday and in celebration of the Town's Fiesta

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During a Fiesta Picnic in Mapandan, Pangasinan on the eve of her 59th birthday and in celebration of the Town's Fiesta

[Delivered at the Mapandan People's Park, Mapandan, Pangasinan, April 4, 2006]

Thank you. Maraming salamat.

Maraming salamat, Ferdie sa iyong napakagandang pagbati sa akin. And to you and to all the people of Mapandan, happy fiesta! Ed sikayon amin.

Gusto ko rin batiin ang ibat-ibang mga napakaimportanteng mga official na narito ngayon: ang first lady ng ating kongreso, si Ma'am Gina de Venecia; kasama ko ngayon siyempre ang namumuno ng ating probinsiya, si Governor Agbayani at saka si Vice Governor Lambino at ang dami-daming ibang mga mayor na narito ngayon sa buong lalawigan ng Pangasinan; ang ating congressman sa distrito, si Congressman Tulagan. at binalita ni Congressman Tulagan sa akin na not only did Mapandan give me 70 percent of the vote in the 2004 election, sa initiative 60 percent of the voters ang nagpirma ng people's initiative — pinakamataas sa Pangasinan. Congratulations!

At ako ay nasisiyahan na narito nga muli gaya nang sabi ni Ferdie, 1993 pa, about the same day as today, namiesta rin ako. You made me your adopted daughter and you've treated me like a daughter ever since kaya ako ay nagpapasalamat.

I remember nung 2004 namiesta rin ako rito, and I'm glad to see... Nuon nagbigay ako ng police car, ngayon hindi lang police car police station. and thanks also to General Lomibao, isa pang anak ng Pangasinan na siya ang namumuno sa ating police ngayon. And speaking of chief of police kasama ko rin yung dating chief of police na siya ngayon ay secretary ng Public Works at yan ay si General Ebdane. At siyempre binabati ko rin yung ama ng ama ng Mapandan at yung anak nung gumawa sa aking adopted daughter ng Mapandan, si General Calimlim na napakalaki ang tulong sa akin sa SBMA.

Ang dami nating dapat pasalamat na lalo na ang ganda-ganda na nitong inyong park, bago ito. Ginagawa pa ito nung nagpunta ako rito nung 2004, ngayon ang ganda-ganda. At ang daming balikbayan na pumunta ngayon dito sa fiestang ito. Ay! By the way, batiin ko rin isa pang importanteng taga-Pangasinan, ang namumuno ng ating immigration, si Al Fernandez. at saka ang member of the Board ng Land Bank, si Albert Balingit, tiga-Pangasinan din.

Dapat magpasalamat din tayo sa Panginoon because today Al Fernandez ends his one-month sick leave, magpasalamat tayo. nagkaron siya ng slight stroke, pinilit ko siya, "Al, kay gusto mo o hindi one month ka magleave." Pero time flies, nandito na siya uli reporting for duty. First day of work namiesta dito, nakipag-picnic sa Mapandan.

Ang dami talagang dapat pasalamat, nabanggit ko yung mga balikbayan. I think 200 balikbayans came today. Naalala ko nga nung nagbisita ako kay late Mayor Calimlim nung... Gabi yon, gabi yung fiesta at sabi nga niya maraming mga Mapandan ay balikbayan. At nung panahong yon pati si General Calimlim OFW. He was the Defense Attache in Washington. Ngayon, nagpapasalamat ako sa mga balikbayan ng Mapandan at through you, sa lahat ng mga OFW natin dahil you have sent record remittances to our country, 11 billion dollars. Kaya ang lakas-lakas ng ating piso dahil sa inyo.

And I would like to let you know na dahil sa liderato rin naman ni Speaker De Venecia at saka yung ating mga congressman gaya ni Congressman Tulagan, marami tayong mga taxes ngayon kaya mapopondohan natin yung Postal Bank with one billion pesos para maging Overseas Filipino Bank. So that you can send your remittances through the post offices of other countries through that Postal Bank to the post offices in the Philippines kaya bababa nang bababa ang cost of remittance ninyo. Kaya siguro kung mangyari yon ay lalong marami pa kayong mapapadala dito.

Alam niyo para magawa natin ito para makapag-negotiate sa ibat-ibang mga post office sa buong mundo kung nasaan marami ang Filipino at para mapondohan natin yung makinarya, yung mga computerization and lahat-lahat, at saka yung palakas ng bangko para you will feel safe in putting your deposit there to be sent to your families nadagdagan natin ng one billion pesos ang capitalization ng Postal Bank. Salamat sa ating mga economic reforms.

At dito rin ay dahil kayo ay maraming mga bata, malalaki ang mga pamilya, ang hinahanap ng mga pamilya ay kalusugan. And as part of our fiesta picnic merong 1,500 na PhilHealth cards that will be coming after holy week para sa mga mahihirap dito sa Mapandan.

So, thank you so much once again for your constant support to me since 1993 at sama-sama tayong ipaunlad natin ang ating minamahal na bansang Pilipinas.

Balbaleg ya salamat ed sikayon amin tan santos ya fiesta.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during a Fiesta Picnic in Mapandan, Pangasinan on the eve of her 59th Birthday and in celebration of the town's fiesta. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214247/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2453&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Thanksgiving Mass in celebration of her 59th birthday

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Thanksgiving Mass in celebration of her 59th birthday

[Delivered at the St. Augustine Parish Church, Brgy. San Nicolas 1st Lubao, Pampanga, April 5, 2006]

Dacal a salamat quing kekatang Masaleseng choir, congratulations!

Quing kekatang malugud Arsobispo Apo Ceto, dacal a salamat; quing kekatang bayung auxiliary bishop, Bishop Mallari; kekatang parish priest, Monsignor De Guzman; our visiting monsignor, Monsignor Cris, karing ali-aliwang mong quetiking pampanga who said mass this morning; Speaker De Venecia and Mrs. De Venecia and our distinguished guests to our hometown; Senator Lito Lapid and our other provincemates and townmates; karing cabaleng kong capampangan and all of those who came to join us today for my annual mass here in Lubao on my birthday. Thank you very much for your wonderful attendance and greetings.

Maraming nagtatanong sa akin kahapon pa at makalawa pa, ano ba ang aking birthday wish. Ang aking ninanais dito sa aking birthday itong taon ay sana magkaroon ng marami at magandang trabaho, edukasyon at kalusugan para sa ating mga kapatid na mamamayan.

Kanina nga sinimulan na nga ni Secretary Ace Durano ng Tourism yung kanyang tourism jobs fair dahil gusto nga natin ng maraming trabaho, isa sa pinanggagalingang trabaho ngayon, maraming trabaho kagaya ng call centers ay ang turismo. At kaninang umaga nung binati ako ni Ace sa aking cell phone, sa aking text, ang kanyang birthday gift sa akin ay so far 11.9 percent ang increase ng ating turismo sa ating bansa. At kung tutuloy yung trend na yon di halos tatlung milyong turista ang magbibisita sa ating bansa itong taon — pinakamalaki sa kasaysayan ng ating bansa.

Yung kalusugan naman, kanina tinawagan ko si Secretary Andaya at sinabi ko sa kanya na bilang pagdiriwang sana ng aking birthday mag-release pa siya ng panibagong 500 million pesos para sa philhealth. Ayan nandiyaan si Secretary Duque, yung kagaya kong kalahating capampangan at kalahating Pangasinan, para mas dumami ang mga mahihirap na merong PhilHealth insurance. At kakambal naman ng Philhealth yung ating half-priced medicines. Ayan si Secretary Chairman ng PITC, si Obet Pagdanganan. Kakagaling lang sa Pakistan para maghanap pa ng mga medisnang mababa ang presyo. At dito sa ating taon meron tayong mga 700 million pesos para maging puhunan ng ating half-priced medicine program. In fact, Obet tama nga ba yon na pwede kong anunsyuhin na mahigit 5,000 na ang ating mga botika na nagbebenta ng half-priced medicines.

Pag pinag-uusapan natin ang kalusugan kasama na rin ang kalusugan ng nanay, anak, pamilya, pamayanan. At siyempre tuwing ako ay nandito sa pampanga at nakikita ko si Apo Ceto ay naaalala ko yung kanyang isa pang importanteng papel sa ating simbahan sa ibabaw nang siya ay ating arsobispo ng Pampanga ay siya rin ang namumuno sa katawan ng simbahan na nag-aalaga ng ating mga patakaran tungkol sa pamilya at saka sa populasyon. And a few days ago in a cabinet meeting, Apo Ceto, I would like to let you know that I have instructed a release of another 30 million pesos for our natural family planning program.

Nakakaya natin itong mga release na ito dahil — salamat sa ating mga kongresista, ang daming nandito, sa pamumuno ni Speaker De Venecia — ay napasa yung mga importanteng buwis. Salamat na rin kay Senator Lapid na trinabaho rin yung mga importanteng buwis na ngayon nagpopondo sa mga pangangailangan ng ating taong-bayan.

And I take this opportunity to thank the speaker and the congressmen who are here today — you must have had very little sleep dahil kaninang madaling araw ang daming congressmen nagte-text sa akin ng happy birthday dahil gising pa sila. Dahil kapapasa pa lang nila yung budget for 2006 at saka yung Anti-Terrorism Bill, at ang dami-dami pang ibang batas. Nagtrabaho hanggang madaling araw. Nung kausap ko nga si Speaker kagabi, almost midnight, sabi nga ni Joe, in half an hour we will pass this bill; in one hour we'll pass this bill para sa birthday mo maraming batas na napasa ang House of Representatives. Thank you very much Speaker for that.

And siyempre ngayon at nagagawa natin itong mga importanteng reporma para sa ating ekonomiya ang susunod nang dapat gawin nating reporma ay para naman sa sistema ng pulitika para mas mabilis ang mga batas na mapasa at mas mabilis din matupad sa ating hinahangad na parliamentary system of government.

Gusto kong gamitin itong pagkakataon na magpasalamat sa ating mga Cabalen quetiking pangaduang distrito naning Pampanga uling quetiking pangaduang distrito naning Pampanga ing pangaduang peka maragul a porsiyento dening memalen registered voters aming boto quing inisyatibo para quing bayung constitution.

And so once again, to all of you, thank you for joining me in our annual pilgrimage to pray here in Lubao church during my birthday.

Dacal pong salamat quekonggan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the thanksgiving mass in celebration of her 59th birthday. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214225/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2450&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the distribution of PhilHealth cards for Caloocan and Quezon City beneficiaries [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas

Sa pamamahagi ng PhilHealth cards para sa mga benepisyaryo ng Lungsod ng Caloocan at Quezon sa okasyon ng kanyang ika-59 na kaarawan

[Ipinahayag sa Amoranto Stadium, Roces Ave., Lungsod ng Quezon, ika 5 ng Abril, 2006]

Maraming salamat, Secretary Duque sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin. Ikaw ang kasama ko ngayon dahil itong araw na ito ang ipinagdidiriwang natin ay kalusugan ng ating mamamayan.

Binabati ko ang ating mga opisyal na narito ngayon: ang Chairman ng MMDA, si Bayani Fernando; ang Punong Lungsod ng Quezon City at napakaraming official ng Lungsod ng Quezon na narito ngayon in full force; si Mayor Fernando ng Marikina dahil kasama dito sa ating pagdiriwang ngayon ibat-ibang mga bayan ng Metro Manila; ang mga official ng Caloocan na narito; sa inyong lahat — ay, nandito na ba. Uy, ngayon. Hindi ko nakita si Mayor Jun Bernabe na dumating habang ako ay nagsasalita — maraming salamat, Jun sa iyong pagsama-sama dito sa selebrasyon ng aking kaarawan.

Ako ay nasisiyahan na narito ngayon. Nanggaling ako sa Lubao, sa aking bayan, hometown kung saan taun-taon ako ay nagmimisa kapag aking kaarawan. At mula doon ako ay nasisiyahan na narito sa Quezon City dahil alam naman ninyo yung pribadong tahanan namin ng pamilya ay nandito naman sa Quezon City. At kaninang umaga nagsimula sa aming kapitbahay doon sa Hospicio De San Jose. Itong araw na ito ay binibigyan natin ng pansin ang kalusugan dahil iyan ay isa sa aking mga birthday wishes — trabaho, edukasyon at kalusugan para sa ating mga mamamayan.

Kanina nga sa Pampanga pumunta muna ako doon sa aming hospital sa Lubao, yung Escolastica Romero na pinangalan sa aking lola sa tuhod na isang komadrona para tignan kung ano ang kailangan doong ayusin dahil hindi matagal nang nangyari ay nagkaroon ng malaking baha at maraming nasira. Pagkatapos pumunta ako doon sa regional hospital, yung Jose B. Lingad sa San Fernando kung saan ini-naugurate ko yung inayos na building na ipinareho sa istilo ng lumang building.

Dito sa Metro Manila hindi kailangan ang pera ng national government para magtayo ng mga hospital or gumawa ng malaking repair gawa na ang yayaman ng ating mga local government units at sila naman ay nagbibigay ng malaking pansin sa kalusugan ng kanilang mamamayan.

Kaya ang gusto natin ay makinabang ang marami, magkaroon ng pagkakataon na pag nagkakasakit makapasok sa napakaraming magagandang at magagaling na ospital dito sa Metro Manila. Kaya yon ang dahilan kung bakit PhilHealth cards ang pinagbibigay natin itong araw na ito.

Ayon sa batas itong PhilHealth — yung mga nagtatrabaho kasama kayo sa medicare, kasama na kayo sa PhilHealth, kasama yung tinatangal sa sweldo ninyo ng SSS — yung mga walang trabaho, yung mga madla, yung mga mahihirap doon ayon sa batas ang local government ang nagbabayad ng premium ng mga mahihirap. At nagpapasalamat ako sa mga local government ng Metro Manila dahil talagang very generous sila sa pagbayad ng premium ng PhilHealth ng kanilang mga mahihirap na mamamayan. Salamat sa inyong lahat mga mayor dito.

Pero sa dami ng mga mahihirap tumutulong rin ang national government kaya kaninang umaga lamang tinawagan ko ang Secretary of the Budget, si Nonoy Andaya na dating congressman kasama ni Annie Susano at saka ni Nanette Daza pero ngayon ay Secretary of Budget, para maglabas ng 500 million pesos para makatulong rin magbayad ng PhilHealth Premium ng mahihirap natin sa buong Pilipinas.

Dito sa Quezon City sa pagkaintindi ko — tama ba ito, Sonny? — mahigit pitonglibong pamilya na ang miyembro ng PhilHealth. Ibig sabihin nuon mahigit tatlonglibong katao ang natutulungan ng PhilHealth.

At doon naman sa Caloocan City ay sa pagkaalam ko meron na tayong tatlong libong pamilyang miyembro. Ibig sabihin nuon may labinlimang libong kataong nakikinabang sa PhilHealth.

Ang kapartner naman ng PhilHealth ay yung mahigit limanglibong botika ng barangay sa buong Pilipinas, at ilan na ang naseremonya natin Sonny na nabubuksan, hindi ba dito sa Quezon City. Yung botika ng barangay na nagbebenta ng kalahating presyong gamot. Kaya ito ay importante rin para sa kalusugan. Nakakalabas tayo ng pondong ito katulong ng local government sa kalusugan dahil salamat sa ating mga congressmen, salamat Nanette at salamat annie sa inyong pagmamalasakit sa reporma sa ating buwis, kaya nakakaya natin itong mga release mula sa ating budget. In fact, si Annie at saka si Nnanette puyat na puyat yang dalawa gawa ng kagabi... Ay, kaninang umaga nga natapos ang kanilang session dahil pinasa nila yung budget natin para sa 2006. Maraming salamat sa inyo.

At hindi lamang yon pinasa rin nila yung anti-terror bill para maligtas ang Quezon City, Metro Manila, buong Pilipinas sa banta nitong mga teroristang nagsasagabal sa ating kapayapaan.

Ngayon natapos ang ating mga reporma sa ekonomiya patungo naman tayo sa reporma sa pulitika. At ako ay nagpapasalamat sa ating mga local government na masigasig na nag-advocate ng pagbago ng ating konstitusyon. Salamat sa mga mamamayan at community leader ng Quezon City, Caloocan at buong Metro Manila doon sa mga nagpirma sa inisyatibang dapat baguhin na ang ating konstitusyon. Kapag natupad ang bagong konstitusyon mas mabilis pang kikilos ang mga batas gawa ng magkakaisa na ang Kongreso at saka executive, at mas mabilis din ang pagtupad sa mga batas na ginagawa, at mas lalawak ang kapangyarihan ng ating mga local governments na karapat dapat naman.

Kaya ako ay nagpapasalamat sa inyong lahat. At kanina pinakita sa akin ni Sonny Belmonte yung — kasi April 5 ngayon. Seven months ago was September 5 — at pinakita niya sa akin sa magandang parchment paper yung napakagandang expression of support ng lahat ng leader ng Quezon City sa aking pamamahala at aking administrasyon.

Salamat sa inyong lahat at tuloy-tuloy tayong magkasama hindi lamang para sugpuin yung mga terorista kung hindi na rin para pigilin natin yung mga nagtatangkang madestabilize ang ating pamahalaan at ating lipunan.

Salamat sa sinabi ni Sonny kaninang malawak na suporta ng Quezon City para sa inyong lingkod. Salamat sa ibat-ibang mga leader ng Metro Manila na dumalaw itong araw na ito dito sa Amoranto sa pagdiriwang ng aking kaarawan at ang ating pagdiriwang na umangat at umunlad at sumulong ang kalusugan ng ating mga mamamayan sa Quezon City, Caloocan, buong Metro Manila.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat. Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the distribution of PhilHealth cards for Caloocan and Quezon City beneficiaries on the occasion of her 59th birthday. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214238/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2451&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Inauguration of the newly-renovated NEAP building and the soft launching of the Summer Training Programs of the Department of Education

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Inauguration of the newly-renovated National Educators' Academy of the Philippines (NEAP) building and the soft launching of the Summer Training Programs of the Department of Education

[Delivered at the Teachers' Camp, Baguio City, April 17, 2006]

Thank you very much.

Thank you, Secretary Afael and congratulations by the way to the son of Baguio for your very successful ongoing peace process with the MILF.

Secretary Hidalgo and all the officials of DepEd; Congressman Domogan, Mayor Yaranon, Governor Melchor and the other officials of the entire Cordillera who are here today; Secretary Mike Defensor, my Presidential Chief-of-Staff and Secretary Duque and Secretary Ebdane and other members of the Cabinet who are here today; ladies and gentlemen, fellow teachers.

I spent from 1972 up to 1997 in a career as a teacher and I always felt benefited by the various teacher training programs that I underwent. And so therefore we consider it a very essential part of education to continue to educate our teachers. I was going to announce today but I already saw it in a streamer, it said, "Thank you, President Arroyo for the 500 plus million for upgrading the skills of our teachers." Yes, we have 581 million pesos. Of course, thank you to Congressman Domogan and all of the congressmen not only for putting it in the budget but also for enabling the value-added tax that enables us now to make such big allocation for education.

And the important thing now, because our budget deficit is 7.7 billion below the ceiling for January to February, it's not only that we can allocate 581 million, we can release 500 million pesos right now. And if Fe Hidalgo's training program will use up all the 500 million for this summer, we can augment it after summer.

Especially, of course, as you all know because way back in 2001 in my State of the Nation Address, I already said that our purpose, one of our... The unique thrust of this administration's program is to strengthen math, science and english, so that our young people can survive and flourish in the world of the 21st century. I have asked Fe Hidalgo to make the training program for this summer especially emphatic with regard to math, science and english.

The enrichment seminars of course will be conducted all year round in colleges and universities because we encourage our teachers to continue with your education. But the bulk of the refresher courses will take place this summer and that's why Fe tells me that 37,000 teachers will be undergoing refresher courses this summer. And let's make sure Fe that we're concentrating on math, science and english.

So that's why we're launching this program today at Teachers' Camp because especially with this important center that we have renovated and are inaugurating today, this is the traditional summer school venue of our mentors — Teachers' Camp — and we would like it to be remembered that way. That's why I took the opportunity to inaugurate this renovation today so that I can also inspect the facilities of teachers' camp to make sure it's ready for the summertime seminars of our public school teachers. And I'm glad to see you all...

I'm glad to see you all starting your seminar today. But my instructions towards this enhancement of teacher training do not stop with the Department of Education nor even with the Department of Budget only. I have also instructed the state universities and colleges to offer a discount to teachers who want to enroll this summer for short courses or graduate studies provided it's in math, science or english. In fact, I called up CHED Chairman Puno today and I asked him to enforce this instruction this summer, and he said he will do that. So I'm asking Secretary Hidalgo to make sure that he does that and to make sure that they do offer these discounts for math, science and english.

Aside from that, I have also instructed the NBN — Channel 4 as we know it in Manila, I don't know what channel it's here in Baguio — in conjunction with the DepEd to televise the math, science and english courses so that more teachers can benefit via remote learning and not just the 37,000 teachers who will be training on campus this year. Each prototype class for each subject can be recorded or beamed live from U.P. — depends on how you want to find what technically efficient, recorded or beamed live — because U.P. is very close geographically to the studios of NBN. This way our teachers learn from the comforts of their own living room, if for some reason or other, they find it inconvenient to go to a classroom setting. And we already have a name for it. We will call this "Teleserye Para kay Ma'am." sorry, mga sirs.

Because what we want is that this will not only be educational but entertaining as well. And we've seen a lot of E-TV programs, haven't we? Not only educational but very entertaining and that's the kind of production I'd like DepEd and NBN to do. So, we have plenty of things to do but we have the money to do it at last. So let's use that money well and efficiently so that when our students go to school in June they will have teachers who will teach them very well in math, science and english, and they will be ready for the challenges of the 21st century.

Congratulations and good luck! To all our trainors.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the Inauguration of the newly-renovated National Educators' Academy of the Philippines (NEAP) building and the soft launching of the Summer Training Programs of the Department of Education. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214129/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2438&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Inauguration of the two newly-constructed building of the Baguio General Hospital and Medical Center

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Inauguration of the two newly-constructed building of the Baguio General Hospital and Medical Center

[Delivered at the Baguio General Hospital and Medical Center, Baguio City, April 17, 2006]

Well, let me take this opportunity to thank Senator Johnny Flavir for his wonderful legacy. Nakalagay... Babasahin ko ha,” This building, Baguio General Hospital Medical Center has been built for the delivery of quality health care services to the people of Baguio City, the Cordilleras and the rest of Northern Luzon. It was constructed under the direct supervision of the Department of Public Works and Highways’ Special Building Project Management Office through the initiative of Senator Juan Flavir.”

Manong Johnny, the people of Baguio and the Cordilleras are so lucky. Inaugurated this 17th day of April in the year of our Lord 2006 Baguio City, Philippines. Gloria Macagapal-Arroyo, President. Juan Flavir, Senator.

Congratulations! Congratulations sa ating lahat.

And can I take this opportunity to congratulate also the people of Benguet because Benguet is now declared malaria-free.

Thank you, Manong Johnny. Wonderful! Wonderful!

Salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA’s Remarks during the Inauguration of the two newly-constructed building of the Baguio General Hospital and Medical Center. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412214136/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2437&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the turnover ceremony of one of the six newly overhauled C-130 aircraft units

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the turnover ceremony of one of the six newly overhauled C-130 aircraft units

[Delivered at the Fixed Wing Hangar, 250th Presidential Airwing Villamor Airbase, Pasay City, April 28, 2006]

Thank you very much, Secretary Cruz.

Ambassador Kenney and our other friends from the United States, General Senga, General Reyes and the other officers and men and women of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, Mr. Rodriguez and the other members of the private sector and the business community who put together what we are looking at here today.

In behalf of the Filipino people, I wish to express my appreciation to the United States for what you have done to this aircraft.

I was asking Secretary Nonong Cruz what exactly have they done. I wanted to know the term, and the official term is progressive depot maintenance. As I asked him to explain what it entails, for us the layman it means overhauling and souping up. So thank you Ambassador Kenney for overhauling and souping up this lovely important aircraft for us.

And as you have said, this is yet another of the many symbols of the deep friendship and strategic partnership between the Philippines and America reflected in the generous economic and military assistance granted to the Philippines that is now positively impacting on the lives of our people not to mention our vibrant trade and investment ties. The payback of U.S. military assistance is lasting peace and sustainable economic growth.

We are proud of this aircraft has been repaired, overhauled and souped up. Thanks, courtesy of the United States, but in the Philippines and by Filipinos right in Clark. Congratulations, Peter!

This overhauled, souped up C-130 represents Filipino technological expertise as much as it represents a deep friendship between the Philippines and the United States. It demonstrates yet another dimension of our country on the verge of a take-off in sweeping economic, security and political reforms, building on the strengths of the great Filipino worker, including the great Filipino engineer and mechanic as well as the great Filipino soldier.

Our soldiers have shown their worth as defenders of democracy. They fight terrorists and insurgents fearlessly in the field. They deserve the best support the Philippine government can afford and the best support our allies can spare for us.

The Philippines indeed is a partner of the United States, and it supports the leadership of the United States in the fight against terror. This is an opportune time for us to reiterate that we shall not relent until every terrorist cell is captured, until our porous borders are fully secured, and until the spawning grounds of terrorist recruits are cleaned up by fighting poverty in those areas.

I would like to take this opportunity to commend once again our law enforcers for averting yet another terror plot by uncovering the would-be bombers of the forthcoming May 1 celebration. The foiled terrorist plot to bomb crowds commemorating Labor Day shows our steadfast vigilance which we assure our friends that we shall relentlessly be pursuing to protect the people from evil. Terrorist cells will not be allowed to creep into the metropolis, and we shall flush them out with the support of our friends from the U.S. through equipment such as this and other training. We shall flush out these terrorists from their lairs in the urban centers and in the far-flung jungles because now it will be quicker to take them there, to take our soldiers there.

The threat does not sleep and so must our alertness be constant and unrelenting. But even as we must not step back from our daily chores, communities must undertake extra precautions for the collective safety of their members working closely with our soldiers, our policemen, standing guard to keep the jobs and livelihood of the people unsullied against terror. We will never be cowed by the disciples of anarchy as we uphold constitutional order and the rule of law at all times.

The soldier, the Filipino soldier stands by the flag and the Filipino people. And what we are doing here today, the blessing of this overhauled, souped up C-130 represents the friendship between the Philippines and the United States in supporting the great Filipino soldier.

Congratulations! Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the turnover ceremony of one of the six newly overhauled C-130 aircraft units. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213926/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2430&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Job and Livelihood Fair for Persons with Disability

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Job and Livelihood Fair for Persons with Disability

[Delivered at the Occupational Safety and Health Center, North Ave., QC, May 27, 2006]

Hindi ako magdidiskurso ng mahaba, meron lang akong panawagan na gagawin. Pero una sa lahat, nandito na rin ako sa entablado, gusto kong batiin yung mga kasama natin sa pag-organize nitong jobs fair na ito para sa mga may kapansanan. Una kay Secretary Pat Sto Tomas ng DOLE. Thank you, Pat; si Secretary Cabral ng DSWD. Thank you, Espie; ang Director General ng Presidential Management Staff dahil siya ang nagsusubaybay sa mga job creation activities ng pamahalaan, si Arty Yap; ang Chairman ng TESDA, si Boboy Syjuco; at saka batiin ko rin ang ating host, yung Executive Director ng Occupational Safety and Health Center, si Executive Director Dulce Gust.

Salamat at narito kayo at salamat sa ating mga employer na naghahandog ng trabaho sa ating mga persons with disabilities. At congratulations! Doon sa mga maaga pa lamang, sa unang oras pa lamang tayo ng jobs fair nakahanap na kayo ng trabaho. Congratulations! Sa mga instant hire.

At gusto ko lang sabihin na nauunawaan ko at ng buong administrasyon ng inyong lingkod na yung dalawang pinaka-importanteng pinag-aabalahan ng taumbayan ay trabaho at saka presyo ng bilingin. At itong dalawang ito ang pinakabinibigyan natin ng pansin. Kaya itong trabahong jobs fair na ito ginawa natin specifically dahil noong pinagdiriwang natin yung week of the disabled ay sinabi natin na tutulungan natin ang mga disabled sa training, bibigyan ng scholarship — kaya may mga binigay na scholarship si Boboy kanina — at special na trabaho gawa namang marami namang trabaho na bagay na bagay pa rin sa mga persons with disabilities. Ang binigay ko ngang ideya noong araw nung hindi pa uso ang call center, yung mga telephone operator maging sa telephone company or sa mga kumpanya na may mga trunkline, maraming nakakapagbigay ng trabaho sa mga yung mga hindi makalakad or mga pilay kasi hindi naman kailangan maglakad-lakad para sa isang operator.

Eh ngayon yung mga operators natin eh high-tech na, in other words, yung mga call center agents na. Hindi lamang operator kung hindi very... Nagbebenta ng mga produkto or sumasagot sa mga complaints, nagbibigay ng instruction papano gumamit ng isang appliance. Eh malaki ang sweldo doon pero physically ganun din ang environment. Naka-upo kayo at meron kayong headphone pero ang ginagawa rin ninyo yung computer. Yon ang inyong parang resource base. Di kung pwede nung araw yung disabled sa telephone operator, di pwedeng-pwede rin as call center agents. So yan ang inisip natin dahil 100,000 ang job availability sa call center industry. Kaya sabi natin, ba't hindi natin isama yung mga persons with disabilities. Kaya nangyari ito.

At doon naman whether you are disabled or whether you are not disabled gusto ko rin ipahayag na yung DBM, nandoon sa peryodiko kanina, nag-approve na ng mga 5,000 items for teachers. Kaya whether you are disabled or not disabled kung kayo ay merong teacher's license dahil taun-taon nag-e-examine ang mga education graduates maging teacher, kung wala kayong trabaho, mag-apply na kayo sa DEPED.

Yon namang presyo, ako ay nagpapasalamat na ayon sa mga focus groups, naiintindihan naman ng nakararami na yung pagtataas ng presyo ang malaking pinanggagalingan ay yung presyo ng langis sa buong mundo. Kaya yon din ang ating kailangang hanapan ng pagkaginhawa sa abot ng ating kakayahan dahil yung presyo sa buong mundo hindi lahat ay nasa kamay natin.

And so, the reason why I asked for this platform is to make an appeal to the oil companies: in the interest and welfare of our people who are bearing the brunt of the global surge in prices, I'm appealing to all the oil companies to extend every possible assistance to the public transport sector which is a heavy user of diesel. Meanwhile, the government is doing all it can to ease the public burden, including my issuance of executive order no. 527 reducing tariff on crude and refined products, whose full implementation will soon be carried out.

Sana sa iba't-ibang mga ginagawa natin kagaya ng jobs fair ngayon at yung ating pagbaba ng tariff sa pag-import ng krudo, sana makatulong tayo magkaroon ng ginhawa doon sa mga naaabala sa trabaho at saka presyo ng bilingin.

Sa inyong lahat muli, good luck to all our applicants! At maraming salamat sa lahat ng ating mga employer.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the Job and Livelihood Fair for Persons with Disability. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213148/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2714&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Courtesy Call and Presentation to the Media of the Two Philippine Mt. Everest Expedition Teams

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Courtesy Call and Presentation to the Media of the Two Philippine Mt. Everest Expedition Teams

[Delivered at the Kalayaan Grounds, Malacañang, May 31, 2006]

Maraming salamat.

President Ramos, na isang malaking nagsuporta sa First Philippine Expedition to the Mount Everest. Yung ating mga ibat-ibang official, mga tagahanga na narito ngayon sa ating buong team na sumuporta sa ating mga bayani ng Mount Everest.

Sa ngalan ng buong sambayanang Pilipino, ibig kong batiin kayong lahat, lalung-lalo na si Leo, si Pastour at saka si Romi, sa inyong kongkista ng Mount Everest. Congratulations muli sa inyong lahat sa ngalan ng buong sambayanang Pilipino!

Sa ngalan din ng buong sambayang Pilipino ulitin ko ang sinasabi ng lahat na ang inyong nakamit ay nagpapakita na ang Pilipino ay kayang maakyat ang pinakamataas na tuktok ng mundo sa inyong pagpursige at fighting spirit. At kaya ng Pilipino ito napatunayan niyo maging sa pag-akyat ng mundo, sa kagalingan ng trabaho and standing proud for the nation.

Maraming salamat na ang simbolo ng inyong pagkongkista ng Mount Everest, yung bandilang tinanim niyo doon at saka yung mga banner ng mga dasal ay ibinigay niyo dito sa inyong lingkod at ilalagay natin ito sa museo ng Malacañang bilang tanda ng inyong malaking nagawa para sa ating bansa.

Let me say also in behalf of the Filipino people what they have been saying in the streets, everywhere, that you're an inspiration of courage and daring, hindi lamang para magtagumpay ang ating taumbayan sa sports and adventure kung hindi na rin sa lahat ng larangan ng pagtatayo ng bansa.

Maraming bundok ng hamon ang humaharap sa atin, but your achievement inspires us to believe that our nation can overcome the strongest and most ferocious winds of adversity to cross over to deliver the good life to our people.

Sabi nga ni Art Valdez, ang head ng expedition, itong ating mga bayani na umabot sa tuktok ay nagawa nila dahil sa teamwork, hindi lamang sa teamwork nilang dalawa, nilang tatlo kung hindi yung grupo doon sa base camp. Yung ating ibat-ibang mga kasapi ng dalawang expedition, kaya congratulations sa inyo. You share the honor of giving a great example of what teamwork can achieve.

Buena mano talaga ang pagbalik ng ating mga Mount Everest climbers para sa ating bansa, kasi ngayon habang nag-uusap tayo at nagpapahayag ng ating congratulations sa kanila, ang NEDA naman ay kasalukuyang nagbibigay ng kanilang quarterly press conference. At President Ramos, ating mga bayani ng Everest, bigyan ho niyo ako ng pagkakataon na gamitin naman ito panahon para iulat ang inuulat din ng NEDA na iulat ang paglago ng ating ekonomiya itong first quarter: 5.5 percent sa loob ng bansa; 5.8 percent kung isasama ang kita ng ating manggagawa sa ibayong dagat — 5.5 ang GDP, 5.8 ang GNP. At pansin natin ang paglaki ng mga pangunahing sektor gaya ng pabrika, konstruksiyon, export, at paggastos ng pamilyang Pilipino. Pinatutunayan ng mga ito na ang kumpiyansa ng negosyante at mamimili ay nananatili sa kabila ng mahihirap na hamon.

Kung yung ating mga climbers ay may hamon ng pagkulang ng oxygen, malalakas na hangin, napakalamig — sabi ni Art parang nasa freezer sila nung buong panahon — tayo rin ay maraming hamon itong first quarter nga yung pagtataas ng presyo ng langis, yung nagsimula yung mga bagong buwis at saka yung la niña, pero matatag pa rin ang ekonomiya.

Nagpapakita sa mga ganansya ng mga repormang pangkabuhayan natupad. At kasunod sa gumagandang nakamit sa kaban ng bayan, nakita natin ang panibagong kumpiyansa ng ating mga namumuhunan sa ating ekonomiya. Sa mas mabuting paglakad ng kaban ng bayan, ngayon mapopondohan ng pamahalaan ang pangunahing programa ng imprastruktura magkokonekta sa buong bansa na mabubuksan ang gawaing pangkabuhayan pati na rin mapopondohan ang mga masusing serbisyon batayan at panlipunan.

Gaya nang sabi ko, buena mano ang pagbalik ng ating mga bayani ng Mount Everest. Pagbalik nila lumabas itong mga magandang balita tungkol sa ating paglago ng ekonomiya. At lalong pinapakita, pinapatunay in a very graphic way ng ating mga bayani ng Everest na kaya nating malampasan ang hamon sa ating angking katatagan at determinasyon na marating ang tugatog ng tagumpay.

Muli mga bayani ng Everest, ipinagmamalaki kayo ng buong bansa at nawa'y kayo maging inspirasyon para magkaisa, magkaroon ng teamwork, at harapin ang lahat ng hamon para makaabot sa tuktok ng kabutihan ng kabuhayan ng ating bansa.

Congratulations! We are so proud of all of you.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the Courtesy Call and Presentation to the Media of the Two Philippine Mt. Everest Expedition Teams. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412213111/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2705&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Luncheon hosted by Temasek Holdings

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the Luncheon hosted by Temasek Holdings

[Delivered at the State Room, Shangri-la Hotel, Singapore, November 20, 2006]

Thank you. Thank you very much. Thank you.

Thank you very much for asking me to say a few words and thank you. And Madame Ho Ching, thank you for hosting this very delightful and I hope very fruitful luncheon.

Well, as you all know, I just came from the APEC meetings and I was saying to Madame Ho Ching that Premier Lee Hsien Loong had many words of wisdom for us. But I would like to say in general that that meeting was very hopeful. Anytime that the world leaders get together to discuss global and regional problems, it's a positive. And I think that APEC has been a good process for bringing into focus Asia which is such an important and dynamic player in the world today.

The Philippines hopes to become part of that dynamism, more than we have been in recent years. And that's the reason why I've come here to Singapore now because I think now we're ready to give you good news. I think because many of you have an interest in the Philippines, I think you will not disagree with me when I say that the Philippine economy has arrived and there's no looking back.

The days of huge deficits, stagnation and poor economic growth are gone. We had a very hard fought first phase of our economic reforms, and that was raising the revenues that we needed to invest in infrastructure and in human development. But that hard fought war has been won and the results are in.

Our deficit is under control and the country is on its way to a balance budget in 2008; the stock market is up; the peso is strong; investments are coming in; growth is robust; the poverty rate is down; the per capita income is up; new revenues can be invested in long overdue repairs in infrastructure, health care, education and job creation.

And because we are spending in new revenues... In fact, I said, we're spending our new revenues in infrastructure, I announced recently in my State of the Nation Address that we have now a one trillion-peso public investment program. This investment program will be funded — of course, the majority of it by our government revenues — but because we have a comprehensive and consistent program of investment in infrastructure, we also have room for private sector investors who want to take on some of the more lucrative aspects of the infrastructure program. We're talking here about railways, seaports, roads, airports, energy, and so on.

And so what we want to do therefore is to invite the business community of Singapore to look at these opportunities, first of all, in infrastructure. But noting the wide range of businesses under Temasek's portfolio, we would ask you to partner with us in developing major infrastructure projects to make our companies competitive, to lower electricity cost, to develop alternative sources of energy, to lower our dependence on imported fuel.

We also want to see the benefits of these competitiveness raising efforts to benefit retail services like in tourism, I.C.T., B.P.O. services, banking and telecommunications. And I hope that you will look at these opportunities because they will be good for our country. We need them for our investments and for our competitiveness, but they are also in themselves very important areas for investment.

I'd like to say something about our energy independence program because we are inviting investors in our energy independence program. Actually now, we are now around only about 30 percent dependent on imported oil. That's because we have been very aggressive in promoting alternative sources of energy like biofuel which has taken off. There's already a biofuel company that is listing in the stock exchange. And the same thing can be said of our solar energy, wind energy and geothermal energy. So we have a lot of these kinds of sources of energy and they are important in areas for investment as well.

We're also firmly committed to attracting investors in our mining industry. We are probably the 5th mining power in the world as far as natural resources are concerned. But in regard to their having been extracted or processed, we are somewhat the new kid in town because it was only recently that the Supreme Court ruled that 100 percent investment in... Foreign investment in mining is in accordance with our constitution. So this is a very big area for investments now. And we invite and we will approve mining projects that are ecologically responsible.

Then there is the business process outsourcing sector. Five years ago when I had just assumed the presidency, there were only 2,000 workers in the B.P.O. industry. Today, there are 200,000 workers. That's a one hundred-fold increase in that industry in the last five years. And there's much more room for that because there's so much of a demand for B.P.O. services, and we are making sure that we can still continue to grow fast by training more and more of our young people in the English skills and the competency base skills that are required by the B.P.O. industry.

We have been growing a hundred-fold in five years. It really means that we have already established ourselves in this industry. What we are doing now is to increase value-added. We are working on growing the value-added segment of this industry including accounting, legal, personnel and administrative services. And this year alone, this higher value B.P.O. is expected to grow by almost 40 percent. And this is really very exciting for our I.C.T. industry.

I really thought that I should come here to Singapore to ask the Singapore business community to invest more in the Philippines. We have already been experiencing big surges in foreign investment in our country. Peter, October, gave us a 30 percent increase in investments, and we are very happy about that. And we'd like to have more of course because we would like to catch up with the rest of this very dynamic region.

We're always striving to make our economy more competitive for both domestic and foreign investors. Recently, we had a National Competitiveness Summit. And we, together with the business sector, worked on and discussed how can we make our country more competitive as far as the business climate is concerned. And there were very, very concrete measures that were proposed by the business community. And we have formed a private sector-public sector task force to work on the resolutions made then. So Peter Favila heads it together with the member of the private sector. And it's a very, very small group so that they can work together and Bobby Romulo is also a member of that because he is my senior adviser on competitiveness. And part of the competitiveness move is to work on cutting red tape. Peter is also the head of our Anti-Red Tape Task Force. And we have drastically reduced the time associated with the bidding process, for instance, on government projects. But later on, Peter can tell you other things if you are interested in things that we have done to cut down on red tape. And with red tape comes corruption. We have also made progress against corruption. For instance, under Gary's administration and started by Lito Camacho when he was still Secretary of Finance, we've been cleaning up Customs and as a result we have increased revenue collections. Isn't it right, Gary? I've read in the papers that we are collecting more from the vat than we expected. So the increment of that would be a result of the clean up we've been doing in the Customs.

We clean up in at least two ways: one is by the technology that will reduce opportunities for corruption; and then the other one is running after tax cheats and smugglers. We take this issue very seriously.

So, I'm happy that the international market has responded. Since the reforms that I announced in the State of the Nation Address last July, and it is now November and the markets are still responding. So I think it means that the market sees that what we said in July we're actually carrying out.

So we remain confident that we will be able to meet our target this year of 5.5 percent growth. That is what the World Bank says we will achieve. The World Bank has been praising what we've been doing so as the I.M.F., so have our credit rating agencies. And that's why we felt that this time it is right for us to come and tell the good news to the Singaporean business community.

Now that we have done our reforms in revenue and we're well underway in our reforms and infrastructure, we can now work on the third phase which is truly to set our sights on becoming a first world country in 2020.

Of course, Singapore is very much a first world country, the first of the ASEAN countries to be in the first world. We have a lot to learn from Singapore and I'm very happy about our conversation with Madame Ho Ching earlier, not only because I now have an idea of what are the specific areas of investment that Temasek will be interested in, but because of the innovations and the decision-making process that Temasek goes through in doing its economic decisions something that we have a lot to learn about in our quest to become a first world nation by 2020.

So, I'd like to thank you again for this opportunity to be able to speak before the captains of the business community. Madame Ho Ching and Mr. Lim, thank you so much for this opportunity. And I hope, indeed, that we will enhance our partnership in the months and years to come.

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the Luncheon hosted by Temasek Holdings. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100409203332/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3031&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the send-off of Bicol Mercy Mission Caravan [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa paghahatid sa Bicol Mercy Mission Caravan

[Ipinahayag sa Central Business Park, Diosdado Macapagal Ave., Pasay City, ika 12 ng Disyembre, 2006]

Maraming salamat sa lahat nang tumulong sa nagpahandog ng 230 truckloads of relief goods and reconstruction equipment and personnel.

At saka merong gustong ipaabot si Secretary Nonoy Andaya na tayo ay susulat sa kongreso at senado dahil ginagawa pa nila yung budget para sa 2007. Kung naalala ninyo, kung naalala ng marami, nung si Bert Romulo at ako'y nasa senado pa ay... Noong nagkaroon ng Mount Pinatubo eruption at saka yung aftermath, yung mga lahar flow, ay nagkaroon ng 10 billion pesos para sa rehabilitation at — well, hindi lang rehabilitation — para sa response to Mt. Pinatubo. Kaya hihingi rin tayo ngayon sa kongreso at senado ng 10 billion pesos para sa Bicol. That is for the... Itong disaster response, relief and reconstruction and rehabilitation.

Okay. Well, it's supposed to be for the 2007 budget pero dapat 2007 paplanuhin na lahat para ma-obligate na lahat. Okay

Okay. Anything else?

Okay. Thank you, Glen. Congratulations! Sa nag-coordinate lahat itong effort na ito.

Thank you. Sabi nga ni Vice President Noli de Castro, initial lang yan dahil kahapon lang sila sumagot sa ating panawagan noong weekend. Pero papunta pa naman ito sa Bicol at umaasa tayo na habang papunta sa Bicol meron ding mga madadaan na tutulong rin. Kaya... At pagdating naman sa Bicol, yung mga natamaan na from Camarines Norte pati sa Quezon hindi ba, magbababa na rin ng mga relief at saka reconstruction personnel.

So, thank you at good luck!

And happy trip to all of you!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the Send-Off of Bicol Mercy Mission Caravan. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141829/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3055&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration ceremony of Ina Healing Center and Eucharistic celebration

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inauguration ceremony of Ina Healing Center and Eucharistic celebration

[Delivered at the DSWD Compound, Batasan Hills, Quezon City, December 16, 2006]

Joe and Gina, Tita Nene, the other members of the De Venecia and Vera Perez families, Espie Cabral and our other fellow workers in government, members of INA, lahat ng mga nandito na nagmamahal kay KC — happy birthday in heaven — yan ang ating sasabihin because the day that KC died was the day she was born in heaven.

Kanina yung ating first reading tungkol kay Elijah, Monsignor Laban, at sinabi that Elijah was brought to heaven in a chariot of fire. KC was brought to heaven in a chariot of fire. And KC is there with us and all the children of the INA are here with us because as Monsignor Laban reminds us, we, who believe in the communion of saints, believe that they never leave us.

Naalala ko noong minsang kami ni Gina magkasama at may typhoon signal tungkol sa Bicol, pinag-usapan ni Gina itong affair na ito. Tapos sabi niya, “Naku! Dadami na yung ating alaga,” yung mga inang mauulila ng anak doon sa Bicol pagdating ng typhoon. At yon na nga ang nangyari, pagdating ng typhoon lalo na yung Reming doon sa maipon sa Albay ay napakaraming inang naulila sa anak. At tamang-tama rin na nung December 1 nung ako ay naging Secretary of Defense at naging Chairman ng National Disaster Coordinating Council, ginawa natin si Gina bilang consultant ng NDCC.

Kaya ngayon maraming alaga si Gina not only as the leader of INA but also as our new consultant. And tamang-tama yung sinabi ni Monsignor Laban, he remembers now the many other INAs there in Bicol, and there are indeed so many of them. At nung pinag-uusapan natin yung mga outreach, yung magagawa ng mga ina na makikidalamhati kayo at makakatulong kayo sa kanilang healing dahil naramdaman din ninyo ito, siguro unang-unang outreach natin kahit na wala pang building ay mag-outreach ang INA kasama ng NDCC at DSWD doon mismo sa Guinobatan sa Albay.

And while the cameras are on me, I’d also like to take the opportunity to say that, “Yes, so much destruction and so much loss of life happened in Bicol these past few weeks, but there are also appeals from islands outside Bicol who were also devastated.” Kahapon magkasama kami ni Girlie sa Mindoro Occidental, yung kanyang probinsiya. Nandoon din ako, bago ako pumunta doon kasama ni Girlie, nanggaling din ako sa Marinduque. At itong mga lugar na ito bagamat hindi buhay ang pinag-uusapan hanapbuhay naman ang nawala doon sa Mindoro Occidental lalo na yung mga nasa baybay. Yung mga mangingisda na kunting-konti lang ang kita nila, yung konting kita nila ay nawala pa dahil sa bagyo.

At doon naman sa Marinduque lalo na dahil napakaliit na island province, ang kinukuhanan lang nila halos ng hanapbuhay ay yung kanilang niyugan. Halos lahat ng niyog ay nahulog na kaya wala silang naasahan sa mga darating na taon at umaasa at naghahanap pa sila kung ano’ng aasahan sa mga darating na linggo. And that is why they have asked me to make this appeal that those island provinces like Marinduque and Mindoro should also be the subject of humanitarian assistance from the Philippines and from all over the world. Talagang maraming kailangang gawin.

At siyempre hindi naman matatanggal, gaya nang sabi ni Monsignor Laban, ang... Yung scar, yung scar ng kalungkutan dahil nawala ang mahal na mahal na anak. Ngunit yon na nga ang ginawa ni KC when she went up in a chariot of fire, KC was really a fiery young lady and she did not want her mother or the other mothers here to be defeated by tragedy. She wants her whole message all these two years in many manifestations are always been — “Use your grief to make life better for other people.”

Gaya itong araw higit sa lahat nagpapasalamat tayo kay KC at nagpapasalamat sa lahat ng mga anak ng mga ina at sa ganun ay habang sila ay nandito sa kapaligiran natin kahit hindi natin sila nakikita makikita ninyo muli sila sa mga ibat-ibang ina na magiging bagong anak rin ninyo.

Maraming salamat. And once again, happy birthday in heaven to KC!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2006). PGMA's Remarks during the Inauguration Ceremony of Ina Healing Center and Eucharistic Celebration. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615141742/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=3051&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inaugural opening of Lateral-A Irrigation Canal of the Casecnan Multi-purpose Irrigation and Power Project (CMIPP) [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas

Sa pagbubukas at inagurasyon ng Lateral-A Irrigation Canal of the Casecnan Multi-purpose Irrigation and Power Project (CMIPP)

[Ipinahayag sa Brgy. Magtanggol, Science City of Muñoz, Nueva Ecija, ika 2 ng Enero, 2007]

Maraming salamat po.

Ating mga kaibigan ng Nueva Ecija, happy new year sa inyong lahat! Governor Tommy Joson, Congressman Violago, Vice Governor Joson, Mayor Alvarez, ibat-ibang mga punong-bayan ng Nueva Ecija, Presidential Assistant Rene Diaz, Secretary Arty Yap ng Agriculture, Administrator Art Lomibao ng Irrigation, si General Johnny Gomez ng Armed Forces of the Philippines, si General Rafanan ng PNP, lahat ng mga magsasaka at Irrigators Association na makikinabang dito sa binuksan nating patubig. Happy new year sa inyong lahat!

Ito ang first working day ng 2007 at ako'y nasisiyahan na itong umaga nag-inaugurate tayo ng dalawang napaka-importanteng super region projects natin. Kung naalala ninyo nung aking State of the Nation Address sinabi ko na ang North Luzon agri-business quadrangle ay mabubuo ng Region I, Region II, Cordillera at yung northern part ng Region III.

Kanina, nanggaling ako sa Nueva Vizcaya dahil binuksan na natin yung Baguio-Aritao road na nasarado nuong nagkaron ng lindol nung 1991. Ngayon pwede ng three-and-a-half hours na magbiyahe mula sa Baguio paabot sa Banaue rice terraces. Yan ang tinatawag nating Baguio-Aritao super region road dahil nag cro-cross sa Cordillera at Region II dahil lahat nito ay isang rehiyon lamang kung pag-uusapan natin ang ekonomiya.

Mabuti tayo ay nandito sa Muñoz eto naman ang sentro ng agrikultura sa buong norte. Lahat ng research na ginagawa para dumami ang produkto ng palay ay narito; para dumami ang produkto ng pangingisda ay narito; para dumami ang produkto ng gulay ay naririto; para dumami at lumaki yung mga baka at kalabaw ay naririto rin. Kaya eto ang sentro ng agricultural science ng North Luzon agri-business. At napaka meaningful na dito natin ginawa itong inauguration ng ating irrigation component ng Casecnan multi-purpose irrigation and power project.

Kung naalala ninyo, yung unang biyaya ng Casecnan ay kuryente. Ngayon ang biyaya ng Casecnan ay patubig. At itong araw na ito yung binuksan natin na gripo ay nagbukas ng sampung hektarya... Sa sampung libong hektarya sa Muñoz, sa Guimba at saka sa Talugtug. Uy! Congressman Violago, hindi ko nabanggit kanina ang mga constituent ni Congressman Violago ang makikinabang doon dahil ito ay distrito niya. At pagkatapos nito ang susunod naman na iko-construct na irrigation canal ay 16,000 hectares naman na Guimba — dahil umaabot sa Guimba ngayon — mula Guimba abot sa Victoria sa Tarlac.

Kaya ang buong irrigation project na ito ang sakop niya ay 26,000 hectares. Ang ininaugurate natin ngayon ay 10,000 hectares. Ngayon magsisimula naman ang construction ng susunod na 16,000 hectares. At hindi lamang yon, yon pang kalsada kasi ang ginawa natin sa tabi nito yung mga dike ay linagyan natin ng kalsada, road dike. So ilang kilometro ito ng farm-to-market road, Rene? Itong ginagawa natin ngayon ay 600 kilometers ng farm-to-market roads. Kaya ito ay ginagawa natin para naman ang probinsiya ng Nueva Ecija ay manatiling number one producer ng palay sa buong Pilipinas. Meron pa tayong nire-repair, ito mga construction ito. Itong 26,000 na ito ay bagong lupa na mai-irrigate. Sa ibabaw pa noon meron pa tayong repair and rehabilitation — 55,000 hectares yung mga nasiraang irrigation ay aayos natin muli. Kaya eto ang isang malaking super region project natin — yung irrigation component ng Casecnan dam.

Kaya sa inyong lahat, Merry Christmas at Happy New Year! Lalo na sa ating mga Irrigators Association ng Nueva Ecija.

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Remarks during the Inaugural Opening of Lateral-A Irrigation Canal of the Casecnan Multi-purpose Irrigation and Power Project (CMIPP). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412173819/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1858&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration of Pingkian Bridge

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the inauguration of Pingkian Bridge

[Delivered in Kayapa, Nueva Vizcaya, January 2, 2007]

Congressman Agbayani, Governor Cuaresma, Mayor Dupiano, Ken amin nga opisyaales iti probinsiya ti Nueva Vizcaya ken ili ti kayapa, Secretary Ebdane and all the other officials of the Philippine government.

My husband and I, ni Attorney Mike Arroyo ken siak, maragsak nga umay. Siyak, maragragasakanak nga umayak manen iti ili ti kayapa. Ta idi senadorak pay nagpiyestaak kadakayo kaduwa ni Commissioner Espino ti Commission on Indigenous Peoples ken idi haan ko malipatan, we drove, rabii idi, remember? Yes. Okay. We drove from... Well, ni papang ko, ni mamang ko, immayak idi met. But where did we drive from that night? From Manila? Yes, nag-drive ako, I pass through the Aritao-Kayapa road, very steep, very difficult in the middle of the night ngem itatta, napintasen ti kalsada tayo.

Idi kalman, I was telling everybody that I was going to come here today. Tapno ma-inaugurate tayo ti Pingkian bridge ti Baguio-Aritao road. Nagsaludsod dagidiay kaduwak nga... You mean, the Baguio-Aritao road is finally going to be completed? Ta kunada, thirty years in the making toy kalsada, agpayso? Thirty years in the making.

So maragsakanak nga idtoy administrasyon ko, iso ti nagaramid ti panagkongkreto ti Baguio-Aritao road. Ken the only portion that is missing now is the Ambuklao-Kayapa road nga malpas into no Oktubre 2006. Ammo ni Secretary Ebdane. Iso nga we will be able to say nga maysa dagiti legacy ko, kas presidente, iso garud dagiti super regions nga kalsada. Ta ti Region II ken Cordillera adda diay maysa nga super region laeng ti North Luzon agribusiness quadrangle ken importante nga adda kalsada nga agkonekta ti Nueva Vizcaya ken Cordillera ta kuna garud ni Secretary Ebdane, this is also known as the Bangbang-Baguio beans road. Ta dagiti Baguio beans ti agpayso naggapo ti Baguio. Iso garud nga we are connecting therefore Region II and Cordillera with a very beautiful road because its only part of one super region. Iso nga idtoy... Datoy Baguio-Aritao road itatta nga konkreton, maysa dagiti super region roads tayo.

So this is the one I was talking about in my State of the Nation Address. Remember, Congressman Agbayani? In my State of the Nation Address nga adda tayo nga super regions and we will connect it as one economy. Iso nga haan yo liplipatan nga malpas ti thirty years nakauray kayo, ti katapusan nga malpasen ti Baguio-Aritao road. And it's our great pleasure to come here to inaugurate the second to the last installment and hopefully, indeed, the progress of Nueva Vizcaya and region ii will become even greater and your products will go to the markets more easily.

Dios ti agngina kadakayo amin apo.

And then ti airport diay Bagabag, the team has already gone there to do the technical work, to do the technical survey. Iso nga agrugin manen ti Bagabag airport. Ni papang ko, iso ti nagaramid ti immuna nga Bagabag airport. Iso nagdakkell, nagdayaw para kanyak nga siyak ti ag-rehabilitate ti Bagabag airport ta no ti rice terraces ti Ifugao, all those who want to go and see it don't need to go by land from Baguio wenno from Manila, they can fly to Bagabag and then Bagabag will also enjoy the benefits of the Ifugao tourism.

So, hopefully all of these will redound to a social payback para dagiti um-umili ti Nueva Vzcaya tapno kaduwa kayo ti entero nga progreso ti entero nga Pilipinas.

Dios ti agngina kadakayo amin ken happy new year!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Remarks during the Inauguration of Pingkian Bridge. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412174018/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1855&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Joint Courtesy Call of the RP-U.S Philippine Defense Reform Executive Steering Committee

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Joint Courtesy Call of the RP-U.S. Philippine Defense Reform Executive Steering Committee

[Delivered at the Office of the Secretary of National Defense, DND Bldg. Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, January 18, 2007]

Ambassador Kenney and our friends from the United States, General Esperon, our undersecretaries of defense, Secretary Gonzales of the National Security Council and the other officials from the Philippine side, ladies and gentlemen:

Welcome! To this very important meeting of the Philippine-U.S. Defense Reform Executive Steering Committee. This meeting starts off with great news — the killing of the notorious Abu Sayyaf Leader Abu Solaiman. This strategic victory is proof of the success of the Philippine-U.S. partnership in the war against terror. We thank the United States for your leadership and support. And of course I commend the armed forces for another milestone in the campaign against terror. This caps with glory the signing of the ASEAN Convention on Counter-Terrorism. We are resolved to work with our strategic allies in the region and with the united states to tighten the dragnet and stop the movement of terrorists, their finances, and the deadly materiel across the seas and borders.

We mark every high point in the campaign against the Abu Sayyaf and the JI with greater resolve to move forward in strengthening domestic, regional and global security. The Philippines has a stake in a safer world where eight million Filipinos work and reside. We have a stake in an Asia-Pacific region that builds shared prosperity on stability and peace. The relentless pressure we have applied in the field from the 25th day of General Esperon's tenure as chief of staff is taking its toll. We will keep it up until all the terrorists and their clandestine cells are accounted for.

The government is determined to finish the job with a hand of steel against evil. We are determined to usher in a durable peace through economic development, interfaith dialogue and international cooperation. Once again, congratulations! To the armed forces and many thanks to our American allies.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Remarks during the Joint Courtesy Call of the RP-U.S. Philippine Defense Reform Executive Steering Committee. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412152650/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1798&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the bell ringing for the opening of the stock market

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the bell ringing for the opening of the stock market

[Delivered at the Philippine Stock Exchange (PSE) Trading Floor Ayala Ave., Makati City, May 22, 2007]

Thank you, Secretary Favila.

Thank you Justice Vitug, officials of PSE, employees, traders, brokers, ladies and gentlemen.

I came here this morning not to launch any IPO or new issue but to congratulate the Philippine Stock Exchange for all-time high index, congratulations to all of you! But let's also applaud our people whose sacrifices in reducing the budget deficit step the stage for the market leaps.

Mga kababayan, ipagdiwang natin ang pag-akyat ng stock market na umakit ng bilyun-bilyong dollar para sa paglakas ng ekonomiya at pagdami ng trabaho. Dahil sa pagdagsa ng dolyar sa merkado, lumalakas ang piso, napipigil ang lubhang pagtaas ng bilihin.

And we thank the investor community for acknowledging the nation's hard-won advances in fiscal consolidation, economic growth and political stability.

Philippine democracy has been renewed after a vigorous by-election. Now it's time to come together to forge a common path forward among all parties and all political leaders here at home. Even as the national election is still being canvassed, the outcome of the local elections strengthens our nation's collective resolve to create a modern, booming society through pro-growth, pro-poor and pro-modernization policies.

And in the months and years to come, or the weeks, months and years to come, I believe we can look forward to further run of the bulls to many more unheard-of heights.

Isulong natin ang reporma sa ekonomiya at katatagan ng pulitika, upang lumahok ang Pilipinas sa unang mundo ng mga maunlad na bansa sa loob ng dalawampung taon.

Mabuhay ang stock exchange!

Mabuhay ang sambayanang Pilipino!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Remarks during the Bell Ringing for the Opening of the Stock Market. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412150555/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2012&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha-Transnational Diversified Group (NYK-TDG) Maritime Academy

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inauguration of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha-Transnational Diversified Group (NYK-TDG)
Maritime Academy

[Delivered at the Carmeltown, Canlubang Calamba City, Laguna, July 6, 2007]

Thank you very much, Chairman Puno.

Other members of the Philippine government, Ambassador Yamazaki, other members of the diplomatic corps, Chairperson Sto. Tomas, President Miyahara, Chairman Delgado and other officials of NYK-TDG, Congressman Chipeco, City Mayor Chipeco, Secretary Brion, ladies and gentlemen.

[We all congratulate NYK lines and its partner in the Philippines, the transnational diversified group or the Delgado group — as it is easier for us to remember — headed by Robbie Delgado for setting up this world-class investment, this NYK-TDG maritime academy.

As pat said, last year, we did the groundbreaking event for this school, and now here it is. And two years ago, we handed to NYK line the presidential award of distinction for preferring Filipino seafarers for the past several years.

I also want to thank NYK President, Mr. Miyahara, for continuing to provide our seafarers with beneficial and ideal working conditions.

I understand that these young men are fresh recruits and they are on a “study now, pay later plan.” they will pay for their tuition when they are already employed with those very high salaries that they’re going to have. But even now they already have a very good allowance. This is already the start of your employment, young men.

This NYK-TDG Maritime Academy, indeed, as Mr. Miyahara said is a milestone. And for us, it is a bedrock, it will be a bedrock of our hopes for a better future.

The one million plus seafarers deployed in international ongoing vessels have among them 250,000 Filipinos. Twenty eight percent of the workforce in the international maritime industry.

Our seafarers are also a formidable source of foreign exchange earnings — 800 dollars entry point once you graduate; 300 dollars allowance even today. This adds more spark to our economy that is slowly making waves in the world.

The strong peso, inspiring rating outlook upgrades, improving budget deficit figures, the bullish stock market, the stable interest rate, the soaring tourism, the increased investment inflows including the very large investment in this academy which will have a payback period of a very long 20 years. All these are strong drivers of an economy getting more bullish by the day.

People know things are getting better. I hope our 120 young men here in front of us feel that things are getting better for you. People are optimistic and hopeful. Yet we must not abuse the optimism of the hardworking Filipino. They want to see the rising economy lift their boat, too.

So private and public sector alike, we are all challenged to focus on the people’s agenda.

Let's all sail together on a path of economic growth, political stability and social justice.

Let's work together to ensure that our economic turnaround continues, that prices remain stable, and that we invest in the people through spending for vital human and physical infrastructure projects like the expressway coming here, and more education and training like the academy that we are inaugurating today.

Once again, congratulations! To NYK and TDG. And thank you for helping us realize the leadership of these bright, competent and promising Filipino officers — the future captains of the maritime world.

Thank you for helping them acquire an enviable niche in the seven seas.

And to you, future officers, Mabuhay!

Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Remarks during the Inauguration of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha-Transnational Diversified Group (NYK-TDG) Maritime Academy. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412145912/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2061&Itemid=38

Opening and Closing Remarks of President Arroyo during a Heroes' Welcome for Manny Pacquiao

Opening and Closing Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During a Heroes' Welcome for Manny Pacquiao

[Delivered with Question and Answer at the Kalayaan Grounds, October 11, 2007]

OPENING STATEMENT

Nagdiriwang ang sambayanang Pilipino sa muling pagkapanalo sa boksing ng ating Pambansang Kamao. Sa pagkapanalo ni Manny Laban kay Barrera ng Mexico, muling pinatunayan ni Manny Pacquiao na ang husay at tibay ng loob ng Pilipino ay naihananay sa pinakamagaling sa buong daigdig—world class Filipino, si Manny Pacquiao at tayong lahat.

Kaya bilang pasalamat sa kanyang pagbibigay-dangal sa lahing Pilipino, interviewin natin nang sandali ang ating people's boxing champ ng buong mundo, ang kampeon na nasa puso nating lahat, si Manny Pacquiao.

Manny yung binabanggit pati nung mga komentarista yung sign of the cross mo tapos nun nagluluhod ka pagkatapos pero gano katagal na yung kostumbre mong ganun?

M. PACQUIAO: Yun po bawat laban ko ginagawa ko po yun para hindi ako madisgrasya o maknockout o mabugbog sa kalaban para manalo ako sana bigyan ako ng lakas ng katawan at manalo ako sa fight.

Relihiyoso ka na ba bago ka pumasok ng boksing?

M. PACQUIAO: Opo, kasi nung bata po ako naging sakristan po ako dun sa amin.

Ah ganun o bagong detalye sa buhay ni Manny Pacquiao na nalaman natin ngayon. O ngayon nananlo ka na naman muli, magpapahinga ka na muna ngayon, I suppose...

M. PACQUIAO: Magpapahinga po ng konti.

Okay, so kailan ang sunod na laban mo?

M. PACQUIAO: Hinahanapan pa po marami pong naka line up at nag plano pa kami kung sino ang susunod na makakalaban kasi yung mga susunod namang makakalaban ko may mga laban sila this coming November.

Ah okay yung mga anak mo gusto mo ba maging ano din sila boksingero sila?

M. PACQUIAO: Ah yung mga ... Actually po kung ako lang ayaw ko maging boksingero yung mga anak ko kasi mahirap po talaga maging boxer. Ang gusto ko makapagtapos sila sa pag-aaral.

Yung araw ng laban mo lumabas sa the headlines "AFP, puts down their guns for Manny Pacquiao fight." Kasi nga walang naglalaban. Yung panahon ng laban mo at hindi lang yun yung crime rate ay bumababa sabi nila. So napakaganda ang sinabi mo rin na lalaban ka kahit araw araw kung ganun ang epekto sa taumbayan.

CLOSING REMARKS

Kaya maraming salamat doon at may gusto ka bang sabihin sa ating mga kababayan.

M. PACQUIAO: Unang-una po, nagpapasalamat ako sa mahal na Panginoon sa binigay niyang lakas ng katawan sa akin at nanalo ako nung nakaraang sabado. At marami pa rin pong salamat sa walang pagsuporta niyo po mula noon hanggang ngayon. At sa laha po ng mga fans ko na talagang nagdasal alam niyo po ang dasal niyo ay napakaimportante at napakahalaga para sa tagumpay ng ating bayan, para sa tagumpay, karangalan ng bansa at masaya po ako sa tuwing ako po ay lamalaban nagkakaisa po kayong lahat. Masayang-masaya po ako nun at kung kinakailangan po na araw araw akong lalaban para sa pagkakaisa ng sambayanang Pilipino kasi ayaw ko pong magulo ang ating bansa, gusto ko po nagkaisa tayong lahat, nagkakaintindihan.

Okay, maraming salamat Manny sa inspirasyon na ibinibigay mo sa ating mga kababayan. At nananalangin tayong lahat di ba na laging tagumpay si Manny. At n away ipagpatulong ang iyong nagiging maka-Diyos, maka-Pilipino, makapagkakaisa at syempre maka-sports. So, talagang ipinagkakapuri ka ng bansang Pilipinas!

Maraming salamat at Manny, tanggapin mo pwede ba yung cake tanda ng pasasalamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). PGMA's Opening and Closing Remarks with Question and Answer during a Heroes' Welcome for Manny Pacquiao. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615140259/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2235&Itemid=38

Pardon granting executive clemency to Joseph Ejercito Estrada, October 25, 2007

MALACAÑAN PALACE
MANILA

By the President of the Philippines

PARDON

WHEREAS this Administration has a policy of releasing inmates who have reached the age of seventy (70),

WHEREAS, Joseph Ejercito Estrada has been under detention for six and a half years,

WHEREAS, Joseph Ejercito Estrada has publicly committed to no longer seek any elective position or office,

IN VIEW HEREOF and pursuant to the authority conferred upon me by the Constitution, I hereby grant executive clemency to JOSEPH EJERCITO ESTRADA, convicted by the Sandiganbayan of Plunder and imposed a penalty of Reclusion Perpetua, He is hereby restored, to his civil and political rights.

The forfeitures imposed by the Sandiganbayan remain in force and in full, including all writs and processes issued by the Sandiganbayan in pursuance hereof, except for the bank account(s) he owned before his tenure as President.

Upon acceptance of this pardon by JOSEPH EJERCITO ESTRADA, this pardon shall take effect.

Given under my hand at the City of Manila, this 25th Day of October, in the year of Our Lord, two thousand and seven.

(Sgd.) GLORIA MACAPAGAL-ARROYO

By the President:

(Sgd.) IGNACIO R. BUNYE
Acting Executive Secretary

*Source: Malacañang Records Office

Remarks of President Arroyo during her visit to Madrid City Hall [Spanish and English]

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During her visit to Madrid City Hall

[Delivered at the Plaza de la Villa, Madrid, Spain, December 3, 2007]

Señor alcalde de Madrid Don Alberto Luis Gallardon, distingos miembros del municipal, señors y señores, members of the Philippine delegation.

Es un placer para mi estar con ustedes otra vez. Gracias por este bonito llave a la ciudad de Madrid otra vez. Y muchas gracias Señor Alcalde por este recibimiento especial que dispensa a los miembros de la delegacion Filipina.

Apreciamos su iniciativo sobre la tribuna España-Filipinas y quisieramos dar gracias tambien por la ayuda viene de usted cuando tuvimos porblemas por los tifones.

Desde nuestra llegada ayer aqui en Madrid, la delegacion y yo, hemos recibido tanto carino y tantas sonrisas de los Madrilenos. No es de extranarse que tantos Filipinos han hecho Madrid su segundo hogar. Ayer, por la tarde y por la noche, hemos visto con los Filipinos y me mandaron decir a usted que son muy alegres aqui en Madrid. Tampoco es de extrenarse que los dos capitales, Madrid y Manila, son ciudades hermandadas por que compartimos mucho en el encanto y la nostalgia. Mi visita recuerda la profundidad y la extension de la historia y de la cultura que comparten los Filipinos yu Españoles.

En el siglo 19, Madrid atrajo a los grandes pensadores y talentos Filipinos del tiempo. Aqui en el ambiente liberal de la capital Española, nuestros jovenes patriotas se reunieron para trabajar para el bien de su tierra maternal mismo aqui en el sede de madre España. Entre ellos fue Jose Rizal que mas tarde iba a ser el heroe nacional. Fue en Madrid donde Rizal comenzo su novela "Noli Me Tangere" que dio la inspiracion a la revolucion Filipina. Fue aqui tambien en Madrid que nuestros grandes artistas Juan Luna y Felix Resureccion Hidalgo llevaron el prestigio a los Filipinos cuando fueron desconocidos durante la celebracion de la expocision nacional de bellas artes en esta ciudad. Como resultado, el Senado Español encargo a Luna la obra maestra titulada, "La Batalla de Lepanto" que hoy dia lo vimos adornando el sagrado pasillo del Senado Español junto con las obras maestras de los grandes artistas de este pais.

La ciudad de Madrid tambien alberga unos sitios historicos relacionados con el movimiento reformista encabezado por algunos mas brillantes patriotas. He mencionado ya a Jose Rizal y los otros. El mas notable de estos es la replica exacta del Monumento de Rizal en el Parque de Luneta en Manila que ahora se ha levantado con orgullo en La Avenida de Filipinas en el barrio de la Moncloa. Gracias al pleno apoyo de la ciudad de Madrid.

Senor alcalde, como Filipina, tengo el mas profundo afecto por el maravilloso patrimonio de su ilustre ciudad. Todos me dicen que usted es un bien alcalde. Bajo su habil liderazgo se ha puesto perfectamente el equilibrio, la tradicional y el contemporaneo en Madrid. Esta union del pasado y del presente y del futuro hace que Madrid sea un verdadero lugar especial en los coraciones de sus ciudadanos y sus turistas tambien de los Filipinos que viven aqui en Madrid. Y para mi delegacion, cuando volvemos a Manila llevaremos con nosotros su amabilidad, y tengo la confianza de que la buena voluntad que existe entre Filipinos y Españoles vivera para siempre en nuestros corazones.

Gracias por su recibimiento.

* * *

(ENGLISH TRANSLATION)

Mr. Alberto Luis Gallardon, Mayor of Madrid, distinguished members of the municipal, ladies and gentlemen, members of the Philippine delegation.

It's a pleasure for me to be here again. Thank you for this beautiful key to the city of Madrid. And thank you very much, Mr. Mayor for this special welcome showered to the members of the Philippine delegation.

We appreciate your initiative over the Spain-Philippine forum and we would like to thank you for your help during the times of calamities.

From the time of our arrival yesterday in Madrid, the delegation and I, we received much love and a lot of smiles from the people of Madrid. It is not a wonder that a lot of Filipinos have made Madrid its second home. Yesterday afternoon and yesterday evening, we have met with the Filipino community and they wanted me to tell you how happy they are living here in Madrid. Also, it is undeniable that the two capital cities, Madrid and Manila, are sister cities which share a lot of charm and nostalgia. My visit reminds me of the deepness of historical and cultural connection shared by Filipinos and Spanish people.

In the 19th century, Madrid attracted great thinkers and talented Filipinos of that time. Here in this liberal environment of the Spanish capital, our young patriots met to work for the welfare of the motherland, right here in the heart of mother Spain. Among others, Jose Rizal, who would later be the national hero. It was here in Madrid where Rizal started his novel "Noli Me Tangere" which was the inspiration of the Philippine revolution. It was also here in Madrid that our great artists, Juan Luna and Felix Resureccion Hidalgo brought honor to the Filipinos when they were still unknowns during the celebration of the national fine arts exposition. As a result, the Spanish senate took care of the masterpiece of Juan Luna, "La Batalla de Lepanto", which today, we saw it adorning the august halls of the Spanish Senate alongside with the masterpieces of great artists of this country.

The city of Madrid also houses several historic sites related to the reform movement headed by the most brilliant patriots. I have already mentioned Rizal, among others. The most notable is the exact replica of the Rizal Monument in Luneta Park in Manila which is now proudly standing in the Avenida de Filipinas in the district of Moncloa. Thanks for the full support of the city of Madrid.

Mr. Mayor, as a Filipina, I have the deepest affection for the wonderful heritage of your illustrious city. Everybody tells me that you are a good mayor. Under your skilled leadership, you have put a perfect balance between the traditional the contemporary in Madrid. This union of the past, the present and of the future makes Madrid a special place in the hearts of its people and of its visitors. Also, in the hearts of the Filipinos who live here in Madrid. When we go back to Manila, we will be bringing with us your kindness. And I am very confident that this goodwill which exists between the Filipinos and the Spanish people will last in our hearts forever.

Thank you for your warm welcome.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's remarks during her visit to Madrid City Hall. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135753/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2341&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Opening Ceremony of the 3rd Tribuna España-Filipinas [Spanish and English]

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the Opening Ceremony of the 3rd Tribuna España-Filipinas

[Delivered at the Casa Asia, Palacio del Patio de Miraflores, December 4, 2007]

Muchas gracias. El Ministro Moratinos. Otros oficiales del gobierno Español. Secretary Romulo and the other members of the delegation. Senor Sanz, el director de Casa Asia, Señor Cobo, Vice-Presidente de Madrid, amigos de Filipinas y del pueblo Filipinos, Ambassador Bernardo, señoras y señores, buenos días.

Ruego que acepten mi mas sincero agradecimiento por esta invitación para inaugurar esta tercera edición de la tribuna España-Filipinas. Agradezco a Casa Asia, al Ministro de Asuntos exteriores y cooperacion, al Ayuntamiento de Madrid, a la Embajada de Filipinas en Madrid y todas las entidades que hicieron posible esta ocasion que coincide con mi visita de estado a España.

Tengo confianza en mi nación y en el resultado de mi viaje en España.

He venido a España para rendir homenaje a la calurosa amistad y hermandad entre nuestras dos naciones. He venido a España tambien para reafirmar nuestros profundos vinculos histórico-culturales y la importancia de nuestro pasado común; un rico pasado que nos permite mirar hacia un futuro dinamico.

He venido a España tambien para avanzar la política extranjera de Filipinas a través de consultas de alto nivel, el mismo su majestad, el Rey Juan Carlos con nuestros aliados en España. Nuestra seguridad nacional está muy importante en el corazón de nuestro desarrollo como una nación y seguir forjando estrechas alianzas con España fortalece nuestra seguridad interna. Porque España es un país que siempre suporta a mi gobierno y en el ultimo problema que tuvimos, era España y EU que mandaron su apoyo a nuestro gobierno.

He rogado que su majestad el Rey de España acepte mi mas profundo agradecimiento por la reitaración del apoyo del gobierno Español al gobierno legitimo de Filipinas que representa el orden constitucional. Ciertamente, reunimos en una ocasion propia. Este año marca el sexagesimo aniversario del establecimiento de las relaciones diplomaticas entre España y Filipinas. Asimismo celebramos el quinto centenario del nacimiento de andres de urdaneta, una importante personalidad histo?rica de profundo significado para nuestros dos países y para el mundo.

Queridos amigos de Filipinas.

Estas fechas de anniversaries son testimonios a los calurosos y cordiales vinculos que unirán a nuestros pueblos para siempre.

Aprovechando nuestras afinades en el idioma, en la fe y en la cultura, podemos anticipar oportunidades cada vez mas extensas para la acción conjunta entre nuestros gobiernos y directamente entre nuestros pueblos.

Otra pilar de nuestra seguridad nacional es nuestra seguridad economica – para generar inversiones extranjeras, inversiones Españolas, crear empleos y extender la oportunidad economica a cada provincia de nuestra gran nacion. Con este fin, trato de convencer a los empresarios y empresarias a que inviertan en nuestro país.

Nuestros aliados Españoles son parte de nuestra historia y parte de nuestro futuro, y debemos comunicarles los grandes avances que hemos conseguido en Filipinas. Nuestros trabajadores imigrantes son nuestros embajadores en

España además de nuestro Embajador Bernardo y son parte de mi agenda en esta visita. Me da mucho orgullo su contribución a nuestra imagen en España y me gustó mucho mi encuentro con nuestros trabajadores tan aplicados en este viaje el último domingo.

El proceso tribuna, iniciado en noviembre de dos mil cinco, es una importante inversión en el desarrollo progresivo de los vínculos bilaterales entre España y Filipinas. La primera tribuna, celebrada aquí en Madrid, inició un nuevo diálogo que intensificó nuestra interacción y nuestro interés mutuo. El intercambio de opiniones entre los representantes del gobierno, el sector privado, el mundo académico y la sociedad civil de ambos países nos da una riqueza de opiniones e ideas para los nuevos programas cooperativos. Este gran esfuerzo elevará nuestras relaciones a nuevos niveles más altos.

Al irse delante, la tercera tribuna celebrará una reunión especial sobre la intensificación de los intercambios comerciales económicos entre España y Filipinas. Contamos con nuestros respectivos líderes empresariales para tomar la iniciativa de llevar a cabo la plena potencialidad de nuestra cooperación económica.

No faltan las áreas en que podemos aprovechar colaboraciones comerciales. Algunos de los sectores en los que podríamos asociarnos son la agricultura, la energía limpia y el turismo.

Asimismo, permítame alabar a la tribuna por su agenda de cooperación sobre la recuperación del valioso patrimonio Español en Filipinas. Intramuros, por ejemplo, podría ser un foco de este esfuerzo. Intramuros es el símbolo de la vieja Manila Española, pero ha sufrido los estragos de la guerra y de la naturaleza. Con un plano comprensivo para la restauración, podríamos trabajar juntos para devolver a Intramuros todo su glorioso pasado. Tal proyecto sería un verdadero monumento a la duradera amistad entre Españoles y Filipinos.

Más aún, deseamos sinceramente fomentar la enseñanza del idioma Español en Filipinas. Un número creciente de jóvenes en Filipinas aprende de nueva la hermosa lengua Española. Muchos estudiantes ahora están matriculados en las clases de Español en el Instituto Cervantes en Manila. Mucho más estudiantes asisten a los cursos de Español en Universidades Filipinas.

He mandado ahora un orden memorando dirigiendo nuestro departamento de educación, nuestra comisión de educación superior y nuestra autoridad de educación técnica y desarrollo de habilidades a promover la enseñanza del Español en nuestras escuelas e instituciones de educación en el país. Esperamos trabajar estrechamente con el gobierno Español en este esfuerzo de promover la enseñanza del idioma Español en Filipinas.

Me alegro que Filipinas siga siendo un país prioritario para España. Nuestros antepasados tuvieron un vínculo singular que ha profundizado nuestra historia y enriquecido nuestra cultura. Hoy, vamos a asegurar que, siendo los descendientes de los grandes hombres y mujeres del pasado, emplearemos nuestra herencia valiosa para la misma manera construir modo el futuro.

Confío que en los próximos años la tribuna seguirá jugando un papel importante y decisivo en la promoción de las actividades y proyectos que contribuyen a fortalecer más nuestros vínculos amistosos. Acepten mis mejores votos para el éxito de la tercera tribuna y espero darles una cálida bienvenida en Filipinas el próximo año para la cuarta tribuna España-Filipinas.

Muchas gracias y mabuhay!

* * *

(ENGLISH TRANSLATION)

Thank you very much, Minister Moratinos, government officials of Spain, Secretary Romulo and the other members of the delegation, Mr. Sanz, Director of Casa Asia, Mr. Cobo, Vice-president of Madrid, friends of the Philippines and the Filipino people, Ambassador Bernardo, ladies and gentlemen, good morning.

Please accept my sincerest thanks for this invitation to inaugurate the third edition of Spain-Philippines forum. I would also like to thank Casa Asia, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and cooperation, the City Hall of Madrid, the Embassy of the Philippines in Madrid and to all entities which made this occasion coincide with my state visit in Spain.

I have faith in my country and I am confident that my visit here in Spain will have a good result.

I have come to Spain to pay homage to the warm friendship and the sisterhood between our two nations. I have come to Spain also to reaffirm our deep historical-cultural links and the importance of our common past; a rich past that permits us to look towards a dynamic future.

I have come to Spain to strengthen the foreign policy of the Philippines through high level coordination with our allies in Spain. Our national security is in the heart of our development as a nation and continues to widen our alliance with Spain, making our internal security stronger. Because Spain always supports my government and in the last problem that we had, Spain and the US were the first to send their support to our government.

I have asked your majesty, the King of Spain to accept my deepest thanks for the continued support of the Spanish government to the legitimate government of the Philippines that represents the constitution.

Certainly, as we gather in this occasion, this year marks the 16th anniversary of the establishment of the Diplomatic Relationship between Spain and the Philippines. Also, we celebrate the 500th year of the birth of Andres de Urdaneta, an important historical personality with profound significance to our two countries and to the whole world.

My dear friends,

These significant dates are testimonies of the warm and cordial links that will unite our people forever.

We take advantage of our affinity in the language, in faith, in culture, and we can anticipate opportunities that are once more extensive to do our part along with our governments and directly among our people.

Another pillar of our national security is our national economic security. To generate foreign investments, create employment and extend economic opportunity to every province of our great nation. With this, I will try to convince businessmen and women to invest in our country.

Our Spanish allies are part of our history and part of our future, and we should relay to them the great advancements that we achieved in the Philippines. Our immigrant workers are our ambassadors in Spain and are part of my agenda in this visit. I am very proud for their contribution to our image in Spain and I am very pleased in my meeting with our workers in this trip.

The forum, founded in November 2005, is an important investment in the progressive development of the bilateral links between Spain and the Philippines, the first forum, held here in Madrid, initiated a new dialogue that intensified our interaction and our mutual interest. The exchange of opinions among the representatives of the government, the private sector, the academic world and the civil society from both countries gave us a myriad of opinions and ideas for our new programs of cooperation. This big effort will elevate our relation to a higher new level.

Moving on, the third forum will celebrate a special meeting to intensify trade and commerce between Spain and the Philippines. We are counting on our respective business leaders to take the initiative to bring our economic cooperation to its full potential.

We should not miss the areas in which we can take advantage of commercial cooperation especially in agricultural, clean energy and tourism sectors.

Please permit me to praise the forum for its cooperation agenda to restore the valuable Spanish heritage in the Philippines. Intramuros, for example, could be a focus of this effort. Intramuros is the symbol of the old Spanish Manila, but had suffered from the wrath of war and natural calamities. With a comprehensive plan for the restoration, we could work together to bring Intramuros back to its glory past. Such project would be a true manifestation of the lasting friendship between the Spanish and the Filipino people.

Moreover, we sincerely wish to encourage the teaching of the Spanish language in the Philippines. An increasing number of young people in the Philippines are learning this beautiful Spanish language. Today, a lot of students are taking up Spanish classes at the Insituto Cervantes in Manila. Much more students have enrolled in Spanish classes at the University of the Philippines.

I have ordered a memorandum directing our department of education, our commission of higher education and our technical education authority and skills development to promote the teaching of Spanish in our schools and educational institutions in the country. We hope to work hard with the Spanish government in this effort to promote the Spanish language in the Philippines.

I am happy that the Philippines continue being a priority country for Spain. Our ancestors had a unique link that has deepened our history and has enriched our culture. Today, we are going to ensure that, being the descendants of the great men and women of the past, we will employ our valuable heritage in the same manner that we build our future.

I am confident that in the next years the forum will continue playing an important and decisive role in promoting various activities and projects that contribute in strengthening our friendship. Please accept my best vows for the success of the third edition of the forum and I hope to give you a warm welcome to the Philippines next year for the fourth edition of Spain-Philippines forum in the Philippines.

Thank you very much and mabuhay!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2007). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Remarks During the Opening Ceremony of the 3rd Tribuna España-Filipinas. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615135743/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=2340&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the Send-Off Ceremony of the Philippine Humanitarian Mission and Aid for Myanmar [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa seremonya ng paghahatid ng Philippine Humanitarian Mission and Aid for Myanmar

[Ipinahayag sa Kalayaan Lounge, 250th Presidential Airlift Wing, Villamor Airbase, Lungsod ng Pasay, ika 26 ng Mayo, 2008]

Thank you very much Secretary Romulo.

Other officials, Honorable Charge d'affairs of the Embassy of Myanmar, ladies and gentlemen.

Labis-labis ang ating pagkabahala sa kahabag-habag na krisis sa Myanmar na dala ng malakas na cyclone.

The Philippines knows by heart the tragedy that such calamities bring. We also know how the kindness of the international community and private individuals can positively assist and uplift the spirit of the people in the affected area.

Bilang kalapit-bahay sa ASEAN, tungkulin natin sa ngayon ang tunay na pangangailangan ng mga taong-bayan ng Myanmar. Hangarin natin maging bahagi sa saklolo, tulong at ginhawa para sa mga taga Myanmar sa mga araw na darating.

Nagagalak ako na tinanggap ng gobyerno ng Myanmar na makarating sa kanilang mga nagdurusang mamamayan ang tulong.

Nagpapadala tayo ng batikang grupo ng mga doktor at medical personnel kabilang ang nars mula sa Kagawaran ng Kalusugan, kasama ang mga bagay na kailangan ng mga nasalanta, na galing naman sa Department of Social Welfare and Development. Aided by our Air Force pilots, they depart in a few minutes to Yangon, on board this C-30 aircraft to deliver our assistance and extend our medical expertise. Patuloy tayong makikipag-ugnay sa ating mga kalapit-bansa tungkol sa tulong na kailangang ipadala sa Myanmar ng bawat isa sa atin.

Bahagi ang ginagawa nating ito ng pagiging komunidad ng mga bansa na ibig nating maitatag sa ASEAN — the community of ASEAN nations. Walang dudang kailangan ang pagkakaisa ng mga bayan sa Asya. Hangad natin ang masigla at matipunong ASEAN.

Sa diwa ng kapatiran sa ASEAN, dalangin natin na maka-ahon ang Myanmar sa kalamidad na dinaranas nila.

Congratulations to all of our Humanitarian Mission! Good luck! Maraming salamat. Thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). PGMA's Remarks during the Send-Off Ceremony of the Philippine Humanitarian Mission and Aid for Myanmar. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412124613/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1386&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the distribution of cash grant to beneficiaries of the “Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program”

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the distribution of cash grant to beneficiaries of the “Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program” during a school visit to a Madrasah school

[Delivered at the Datu Halun Laboratory Elementary School (DHLES), Brgy. Tubig Mampalam, Bongao, Tawi-Tawi, May 29, 2008]

Assalam Alaikum! Tawi-Tawi, Bongao. Good noon to all of you. (applause)

I would like to explain what this project is all about. It is a pro-poor project where 3,000 families, the poorest families of Bongao — not the whole Tawi-Tawi yet — for the 3,000 poorest families of Bongao will receive a monthly allowance from the national government in return for certain conditions. One of the conditions is you have to make sure your children go to school. If your children stop going to school, you stop getting your allowance also, okay?

So, we will be spreading this to the other towns of Tawi-Tawi when the survey has been done to identify the poorest families of the province.

So, in the meantime, to our 3,000 families in Bongao who will be receiving this allowance starting this month, Congratulations to all of you! And please send your children to school. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo’s Remarks during the distribution of cash grant to beneficiaries of the “Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program” during a school visit to a Madrasah school. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121548/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1370&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the launching ceremony of the Electricity Subsidy for Low-Consumption Households' Project "Katas ng VAT: Pantawid Kuryente"

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the launching ceremony of the electricity zSubsidy for Low-Consumption Households' Project "Katas ng VAT: Pantawid Kuryente"

[Delivered at the Aguinaldo State Dining Room, Malacañang, June 3, 2008]

Good morning everyone. Before we start the Cabinet meeting, we'd like to have make an announcement.

We have made tough and politically unpopular decisions to raise revenues and crack-down on tax cheats so that we could invest in our physical infrastructure and in our people.

Dahil sa malaking koleksiyon ng value-added tax sa langis at kuryente na mahigit walumpung porsiyento nanggagaling sa maykaya, may magagastos tayong bilyun-bilyong piso para sa mga programa at proyektong pangmasa.

Kung hindi natin nareporma ang buwis, lalo na ang pagkolekta ng value-added tax sa langis at kuryente na kinokonsumo lalo na ng maykaya, hindi sana natin nadagdagan ng mahigit na 100 billion pesos ang pondo para sa mga serbisyong pangmasa at imprastrakturang pangkaunlaran mula 2006. At hindi sana lumakas ang piso at napigil ang lubhang pagtaas ng presyo ng langis. Kung 55 pesos kada dolyar pa ang palitan gaya noon, mas mahal sana nang limang piso o higit pa ang gasolina at diesel. Ito ang katas ng VAT.

Ngayon, may bagong biyaya mula sa VAT na ilulunsad natin ngayon. Mula sa value-added tax sa mga produktong petrolyo ng mga pamilyang maykaya ang pinakamalaking kumokonsumo, sila ang nagbabayad ng VAT, halos nakapaglaan tayo ng two billion pesos para sa 'Pantawid Kuryente' gamit ang VAT na kinokolekta sa produktong petrolyo na kinokolekta sa gasolina, diesel at iba pang produktong petrolyo na mahigit walumpung porsiyento ay nanggagaling sa maykaya, direktong tulong sa mga mahihirap na mag-anak. Gaya nang sabi ko katas ng VAT para sa masa.

Hangad nating una mabigyang benepisyo ang mga apat na milyong pamilya na kumokonsumo ng hindi hihigit sa 100 kilowatt-hour o walongdaang piso buwan-buwan. Magsisimula tayo sa Metro Manila.

The high price of gasoline and everyday commodities hits our poor the hardest. While the high price of oil is a global issue outside the control of the government, we have nevertheless taken and will continue to take actions to reduce the pain on our people of these high prices.

Several months ago, we cut tariffs. Now, we will be providing targeted cash payments to the poorest of our poor to help them cope with their electric bills. So, Espie?

Okay, thank you. Thank you very much, thank you.

We thank the media for joining us. We'll proceed now to our Cabinet meeting. We ask Dodie Limcaoco to lead the opening prayer.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Remarks during the launching ceremony of the Electricity Subsidy for Low-Consumption Households' Project "Katas ng VAT: Pantawid Kuryente". Retrieved

from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121535/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1577&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during a visit to Amherst Laboratories

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During a visit to Amherst Laboratories

[Delivered at Amherst Laboratories, Biñan, Laguna, June 6, 2008]

Let me make a... I'd like to thank everyone and everybody else here at Amherst for their very warm welcome.

And I'd like to explain... (audio cut)... and the hospitality of Governor Lazaro, Congressman Fernandez, Congresswoman Arago. And we have Mayor Alonte, thank you for being here representing Congress; Peter Favila and Pingkoy Duque are here together with us.

I'd like to begin by thanking, of course, the UNILAB Group of Companies because you have helped so much not only in what you produce but you've helped us in infrastructure. For instance, in the SLEX you built a very important interchange and save the government a lot of money.

A strong infrastructure network is the backbone of a modern nation, that's why this year we're spending 200 billion pesos in infrastructure. This is part of our Medium-Term Public Investment Program to invest not only in physical infrastructure but also in social infrastructure. This includes billions of pesos in education, in healthcare — like the Philhealth cards that we distributed earlier in Sta. Cruz, also like our contribution to the Laguna Provincial Hospital upgrading — also training, and along with billions of new bridges, roads and ports to upgrade the competitiveness of the Philippines.

All these is in line with what we did earlier in the hospital currently being upgraded in Laguna Provincial Hospital. The signing of the “Universally Accessible Cheaper and Quality Medicine Act of 2008,” that was what we signed earlier today.

In my State of the Nation Address in 2001, I said, bababa din ang presyo ng gamot. Hahatiin natin ang presyo ng gamot na madalas bilhin ng madla. And not very long after that, Ritemed belonging to UNILAB Group, invited me to inaugurate their Ritemed half-priced medicine. So you were a pioneer after I made my call and I'd like to thank you very much for that. (applause)

Of course, it was an uphill battle save for some very, very supportive members of the business community like the UNILAB Group at that time and up to this minute, but hopefully no longer beyond the date of effectivity of the law that we just signed, the following are the industry facts:

Ninety plus percent of all medicines are now off patent, yet 90 percent of all medicines sold are still branded and more expensive than generics. Explanation it is said the multinational cartel with 70 percent market share controls the marketing channels. Thus, the typical consumer is unaware that doctors can and if asked by the patient will prescribe cheaper generics or cheaper brands that are available in the market and at the same quality. Since in the region the high quality of Philippine manufactured pharmaceuticals such as those manufactured by Amherst is acknowledged.

PITC was making headway in its program through temporary parallel imports and the government's Botika ng Barangay and Botika ng Bayan outlet. Now we have RA 9502 to institutionalize our efforts. With RA 9502 to reduce the cost of medicine, and that is a success story in the making.

Before we signed the bill into law, we inspected the upgrading of the Laguna Provincial Hospital. Then, we signed the Cheaper Medicines Bill into law. Then, we distributed Philhealth cards, a continuing activity of the government.

And now we're here to let you know that we haven't forgotten that at the very beginning of the struggle Amherst was there already producing half-priced medicines.

Maraming salamat sa inyo. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Remarks during a visit to Amherst Laboratories. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412121446/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1567&Itemid=38

Memorandum of Agreement – Ancestral Domain, Bangsamoro Juridical Entity, August 5, 2008

Signed on August 5, 2008, in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, by representatives of the Philippine government and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front. It was deemed unconstitutional by the Supreme Court on October 14, 2008.

Remarks of President Arroyo during the 57th birthday celebration of Representative Rodolfo Antonino (4th District, Nueva Ecija) and the Renaming of the Cabiao Bridge to Gaudencio E. Antonino Bridge [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas

Sa ika-57 na selebrasyon ng kaarawan ni Rep. Rodolfo Antonino (4th District, Nueva Ecija) at pagpapalit ng pangalan ng Cabiao Bridge na maging Gaudencio E. Antonino Bridge

[Ipinahayag sa Open Area, Brgy. Langla, Jaen, Nueva Ecija, ika 12 ng Setyembre, 2008]

Maraming salamat Congressman Rody sa iyong pagpakilala sa akin at happy, happy birthday, Cong Rody! (Applause)

Ang saya-saya nitong ating okasyon na ito, ano, ang daming sayawan, kantahan, andaming panauhin mga kasama ko sa pamahalaang nasyonal. Nandito rin sina Vice Governor Joson at iba't-ibang mga mayor na narito, mga taga Maynila, siyempre mga taga distrito. At ako ay nasisiyahan na tayo'y magkasama sa okasyon ng birthday ni Cong Rody. Kanina pa kami magkasama doon sa Cabiao at doon naman sa Cabiao ay nagkaroon tayo ng blessing at pagpangalan sa Cabiao bridge sa ngalan ni Senator Gaudencio Antonino. (Applause)

Itong tulay na ito, ang kuwento ni Rody, ay apat na administrasyong nakatiwangwang. 1990 sinimulaan noong si Rody ay umupo at ako ay pangulo, 30 percent pa lang nakumpleto mula nung 1990. Pero natapos na natin yung additional 70 percent, natapos nung isang taon, November, at ngayon ay nagkaroon ng blessing sa okasyon ng birthday ni Rody at pinangalan sa kanyang ama na minamahal ng Nueva Ecija. (Applause)

Ang tatay ni Rody at ang aking tatay ay nagkasama sa pulitika. Unang takbo ni Senador Gaudencio para senador ay kasama siya sa line up ni Diosdado Macapagal. Nung siya ay tumakbo bilang reelection, hindi na pangulo ang aking tatay, at ilang araw lamang bago... no, one day before elections ay nagkaaksidente at namatay pero humalili sa kanya si Tita Magnolia, at nanalong number three senator. (Applause)

Senator Gaudencio Antonino was not an ordinary politician. He was a statesman. He waged a campaign against increasing Congressional allowances.

At kinatutuwa ko naman na ngayon for the second generation magkaalyado muli ang Antonino at Macapagal. (Applause) Kaya lalong makabuluhan itong ating pagsasama-sama sa pagdiriwang ng birthday ni Congressman Rody. Hindi lang dahil sa wakas nabuksan na natin yung tulay na laging kulang ng pondo mula 1990 hanggang nakatapos sa ating administrasyon. At ito ay natapos natin sa ating administrasyon, una sa lahat dahil nagkaroon na tayo ng pondo mula rin naman sa mga reporma ng buwis na sila Congressman Rody rin, pinaglaban nila kasama ng ibang mga congressmen na narito ngayon. And we want to welcome Congresswoman Minia Roman of Bataan (applause) and Congressman Go of Sultan Kudarat. (Applause) At hindi lang yun dahil natapos ito dahil sa walang pagod na pagpa-follow up ni Congressman Rody. Kaya naman (Applause) karapat-dapat na ang tulay na yan ay tatawagin nating Antonino Bridge.

Nawa'y yang tulay na yan at yung ibang proyekto na dinistribute natin kanina mula... karamihan noon mula sa PDAF ni Congressman Rody ay sana maging paalaala hindi lamang sa magandang pamana ni Senador Gaudencio Antonino sa bansa at sa probinsiya ng Nueva Ecija kundi na rin para ipaalaala sa taongbayan tungkol sa mga mahihirap na desisyon na kinailangang gawin natin para magbigay daan sa umangat ang kita ng bayan para naman makaraos ang ating bansa lalo na sa mga kasalukuyang mahihirap na panahon. At papano tayo nakakaraos? Dahil sa tagumpay ng kita ng bayan na nagbibigay daan para higit na pamumuhunan sa imprastraktura gaya ng tulay na itinayo natin sa wakas pagkatapos ng ilang dekada.

At yung ating puhunan sa taong-bayan gaya nang pinamudmod kanina sa training, sa livelihood, sa health services, sa peace and order, at napakaimportante yung mga serbisyong yun sa mga panahon ng paghihirap.

Ang pagsipa ng pandaigdigang presyo ay talagang nagkaroon ng hindi kanais-nais na epekto sa Pilipinas sa pamamagitan ng tumaas ang presyo ng pagkain, langis, bigas, kaya tumaas ang inflation rate at malalim ang nararamdaman ng ating mahihirap.

Kaya salamat muli kay Rody at sa iba't-ibang mga congressmen dahil nagkaroon tayo ng foresight para magplano para sa mga araw na ganito, yun nga yung mahihirap na desisyon gaya ng tax reform pero rin yung magiginhawang desisyon gaya ng tax exemption na ginawa ng Kongreso basta ang kita ninyo ay 200,000 a year or below income tax exempt na kayo. Salamat sa ating mga congressmen. (Applause)

Yung inangat ang buwis, lalo na sa Value Added Tax, ito ay nagbigay sa atin ng pondo para mamuhunan sa imprastraktura para magbigay ng ginhawa sa pinakamahihirap sa pamamagitan ng mga programa na nakakabigay sa atin ng ginhawa sa pagtaas ng presyo ng enerhiya at pagkain.

Itong presyo ng enerhiya at pagkain talagang natatamaan ang taong-bayan, pero ang ating foresight ay pinapayagan na palawakin pa natin itong programa para ang ating bansa ay makakaraos sa mahirap na panahon hanggang mag turnaround ang pandaigdigang ekonomiya. Yung mataas ang presyo ng enerhiya, mataas na presyo ng pagkain nagsasama-sama yun dahil yung fertilizer ay oil-based, at mahal ang fertilizer nagiging mahal ang pagkain.

Nueva Ecija number one rice producer sa buong bansa pero nagkakaroon ng kamahalan dahil mahal ang fertilizer. (Applause) Kaya sa araw sa kaarawan ni Rody, sa ibabaw ng mga regalong ibinigay ni Rody kanina sa mga taga-distrto ay dadagdagan natin. (Applause) Para sa isang libong magsasaka sa distrto ni Rody ay magbibigay tayo ng 1,000-peso subsidy bawa't isa sa kanila para sa fertilizer. (Applause) Sana yang isang libong magsasaka na magsasaka sa more or less 1,000 hectares kung magiging mas mura ang fertilizer nila dahil sa ating subsidy siguro naman mas lalaki ang kita at sa ganun mas magkakaroon din ng ginhawa ang ating mga mamimili ng bigas.

Kaya yun ang ating dagdag regalo para sa mga magsasaka sa distrto ni Rody sa araw ng kanyang happy, happy birthday! (Applause) At salamat sa iyong katang 'Walang iwanan'.

Maraming salamat. Happy birthday, Rody! (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2008). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's Remarks during the 57th birthday celebration of Representative Rodolfo Antonino (4th District, Nueva Ecija) and the Renaming of the Cabiao Bridge to Gaudencio E. Antonino Bridge. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412115228/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=1686&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the State Banquet in Honor of HRH Sultan Haji Hassanal Bolkiah of the Sultanate of Brunei Darussalam

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the State Banquet in Honor of HRH Sultan Haji Hassanal Bolkiah of the Sultanate of Brunei Darussalam

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, January 30, 2009]

Your Majesty, the Sultan of Brunei Darussalam, Her Majesty, Her Royal Highness, Excellencies, Highnesses, distinguished guests:

It is our honor and pleasure to have His Majesty the Sultan of Brunei once again on a state visit to the Philippines. And we also welcome Her Majesty and Her Royal Highness on their first visit to our country. We are honored that His Majesty's first state visit on this year of the National Silver Jubilee of Brunei Darussalam is to the Philippines. His Majesty is a good friend for peace of the Philippines and a good brother for ASEAN.

Brunei has shown unwavering commitment to our efforts to realize lasting peace, stability and progress in Mindanao. The Brunei contingent to the international monitoring team has been with us since 2004. They continue to carry out their mission admirably including civic work to help our brothers and sisters in Mindanao. His Majesty has been providing scholarships for Pilipino Madrasa teachers and school administrators. This is important for us so that orthodox moderate Islam will be the norm in our Madrasas rather than the twisted radical Islam which breeds religious conflict. This year, we are looking forward to the completion of the grand mosque in Cotabato City donated by His Majesty.

In Brunei, His Majesty has been a benevolent and gracious host to some 22,000 Filipinos and their dependents. And this morning, he agreed to commute death sentence of a Filipino named Edgar Puson. Thank you very much, Your Majesty!

His Majesty and I will see each other again in Thailand later this month at the ASEAN Summit. We will be joining other leaders of the region to discuss national, regional and global issues that are of importance in these critical times—part of the solution to the current global economic crisis lies in expanded regional cooperation. In that regard, we have been working with ASEAN, and with ASEAN's dialogue partners China, Japan, Republic of Korea to enhance cooperation and coordination in our region. This includes efforts on financial surveillance and economic monitoring and to address credit tightening.

Among the efforts is a short term funding arrangement proposed by the Philippines that would help countries with liquidity challenges. And we are very grateful for His Majesty for this enthusiastic support of our proposal. In this global economic crisis, we are not only talking macroeconomics. There are people's lives at stake. In looking for a solution, the first thing we must do is to make sure that we don't inflict more damage or neglect the hardships of those most hurt by the global downturn. We thank Brunei for helping the poor in Mindanao through the lean global times with its role in seeking peace, which is a prerequisite for progress and by making the Brunei market more accessible thru development of Halal trade and transport linkages.

The Brunei market will help the Mindanao component of our administration's economic stimulus program. In this program, we have allocated funds for such priority areas as job creation and poverty reduction, agri-business and rural development, infrastructure spending, micro-economic reform, hunger mitigation and social development.

We are able to fund them because we took our economic medicine years ago thru fundamental economic reform that included raising taxes. In the spirit of gratitude for Brunei's commitment to our peace process and encouragement to our economic aspirations, we welcome His Majesty's proposal for cooperation and agriculture especially rice production.

We wish His Majesty, Her Majesty, Her Royal Highness, all the best and all the success in the future. We wish Brunei Darussalam continued prosperity and progress in the next 25 years and beyond. Happy silver jubilee of your independent state and mabuhay!

Thank you. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's remarks during the State Banquet in Honor of HRH Sultan Haji Hassanal Bolkiah of the Sultanate of Brunei Darussalam. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412105642/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=19422&Itemid=38

OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

ATIONAL GOVERNMENT PORTAL – EDITED AT THE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PHILIPPINES UNDER COMMONWEALTH ACT NO. 638

Remarks of President Arroyo during an informal interaction with former NPA rebels of Pampanga, Bataan and Zambales after the distribution of Certificates of Livelihood Assistance Awards (CLAWs)

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During an informal interaction with former NPA rebels of Pampanga, Bataan and Zambales after the distribution of Certificates of Livelihood Assistance Awards (CLAWs)

[Delivered at the Enrique Bacani covered court area, Natividad Elementary School, Brgy. Natividad, Guagua, Pampanga, March 4, 2009]

Thank you, thank you, thank you.

At gusto ko lang sabihin sa lahat muna, salamat pasibayu king pamimisanmetung tamu ngening aldo at samalat karing migbalik king lub ning kekatang lipunan.

Kailangan natin ang kapayapaan upang umunlad at magkaroon ng tuloy na progreso ang ating bansa.

Peace is an essential ingredient for progress and development. Today, we embrace our rebel brothers in the fold of unity and reconciliation. We will work together in ensuring that your gesture today will not be in vain.

Kung para sa bansa ay nilalaan ninyo ang inyong buhay at sarili, ngayon magtulong-tulong tayo para isulong ang kapakanan ng inyong pamilya at kinabukasan ng sambayanan. (Applause)

You do not need to sacrifice your lives for the future of your families and the nation. The sacrifice of hard work and persistence is what we, together, will undertake – tayo lahat.

Our economy has continuously grown in the last eight years — 36 quarters of positive growth never been achieved in past decades. We have accomplished infrastructure projects that in the past, were just dreams and aspirations by us Kapampangans and the people of Central Luzon, gaya ng constituents ni Congressman Alvarado at yung mga taga-Bataan, na kasama natin ngayon: the expansion and improvement of the North Luzon Expressway, the SCTEX, the Clark-Subic highway.

Mga daan at highways na dati ay pangarap lang natin ay ngayon atin nang dinadaan. (Applause)

But we can do more. The return of our brothers, who are here with us today, and the peace we endeavor for the entire nation are pillars we need to build in making a prosperous nation.

Ang pakikiisa ng ating mga kapatid na nandito sa araw na ito at ang kapayapaan na ating minimithi ang pundasyon ng bayan sa tuluyang pagkakaisa at kaunlaran.

Muli sa ating mga balik-loob, welcome back!

Sa ating mga Heneral at mga sundalo, maraming salamat.

Sa ating mga local officials, ay kayo na ang bahala sa ating mga nagbabalik.

Maraming salamat, dakal a salamat kekongan. (Applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's remarks during an informal interaction with former NPA rebels of Pampanga, Bataan and Zambales after the distribution of Certificates of Livelihood Assistance Awards (CLAWs). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412104358/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=21774&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the 2009 Palarong Pambansa Opening Program [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa 2009 Panimulang Programa ng Palarong Pambansa

[Ipinahayag sa Leyte Sports Development Center, Tacloban City, Leyte, April 28, 2009]

Maraming salamat Secretary Lapus at congratulations sa iyo at sa lahat ng mga opisyal ng DepEd (drum rolls) — thank you, thank you — sa lahat ng opisyal ng DepEd; sa mga opisyal ng Leyte; ating mga estudyante na nanggaling sa iba't-ibang lugar ng Pilipinas kasama nang kanilang coach, kasama nang kanilang mga opisyal; Vice President Noli de Castro at lahat ng mga national government officials na narito.

Maupay na aga ha iyo tanan. (applause) At congratulations sa probinsya ng Leyte sa pinakamalaking event sa Leyte sa nakaraang 25 years. (applause) Ang Palarong Pambansa ay programang preyoridad kaya narito tayo lahat ngayon, kaya narito ang pangulo at bise pangulo na karaniwang for security reasons hindi nagkakasama sa isang event. (applause) At ito ay para ipakita kung gaano kahalaga ang sports sa ating bansa.

Gaya nang sabi ng mga nagdasal ang sports... sports developed our youth hindi lamang sa kalusugan kundi na rin sa karakter, yung displina, yung kompiyansa sa sarili, yung pag-iisip kung sila'y tatalunin kailangan utakan mo ang kalaban mo at higit sa lahat ang teamwork. These are qualities that we need as a nation. At itong mga kalidad na ito ay din develop natin sa ating mga estudyante na mag-eensayo sa sports. Ito ay bahagi din ng isang komprehensibong programa na tutulong para magkaroon ang ating bansa ng mga katangian na pwedeng humarap sa mga immediate challenges sa ating bansa na nanggagaling sa krisis ng buong mundo kundi na rin ang ating saligang pag-unlad ng bansa na ikabubuti naman para sa ating kabataan ngayon.

Ang ating mga pinupuhunan sa imprastraktura gaya ng mga kalsada, airport at pantalan na dinaanan ninyo mga estudyante para pumunta rito pati na rin ang ating puhunan sa human capital kasama ang edukasyon, ang kalusugan kasama ang sports doon, ito ay sumusuporta sa programa ng ating bansa.

Working together as one nation and people, I am confident that we will not only survive but prosper in this time of global crisis. (applause)

Nawa'y itong Palarong Pambansa 2009 ay ipaiiral ang teamwork ng ating mga estudyante para na rin ipairal ang ating pagsama-sama bilang isang taongbayan. In this spirit, I NOW DECLARE THE 2009 PALARONG PAMBANSA OPEN. (applause)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the 2009 Palarong Pambansa Opening Program. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412103938/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=24881&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the awarding ceremonies of the Country's Outstanding Policemen in Service (COPS)

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the awarding ceremonies of the Country's Outstanding Policemen in Service (COPS)

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, July 7, 2009]

Thank you very much Chito.

Vice President de Castro and other Cabinet members, Justice Corona and other members of the Board of Judges, Ambassador Desjardins of Canada, the members and officers of the Metrobank Foundation and Mr. Bongat and Mr. Garcia representing the other sponsors, our awardees. First of all, Congratulations!

I don't usually make a speech during this event because I want our Most Outstanding Cop to be the ones to make the speech. And I will not make one today. I just want to make an announcement, and I think it's very good that we do it here today especially considering the opening remarks of President Chito Sobrepeña about the challenges of peace and order today, which is not only in the Philippines but in the whole world. In fact, I have attended many conferences about the global economic crisis and many of them have said that with an economic crisis often comes a major challenge in peace and order.

In times of uncertainty it's important that our citizens feel safe and secure in their homes, in the neighborhoods, in their communities.

That is why I am taking this opportunity, as our valedictorian said about cops on the street. I am instructing General Versoza, the head of our PNP, to make sure that as you prepare, General, your budget proposal — and we have members of Congress here with us today whom I'm sure will support it — funds for putting 10,000 more cops on the street to increase public service.

And I hope our 10,000 new cops that will be funded by this budget will be able to find in our Ten Outstanding Policemen and Women models that they can emulate.

Once again, congratulations! and thank you.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the awarding ceremonies of the Country's Outstanding Policemen in Service (COPS). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412101204/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25551&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during an inspection visit of the proposed hospital for the Dr. Eva Macaraeg Macapagal National Center for Geriatric Health [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa pag-inspeksiyon ng panukalang ospital ng Dr. Eva Macaraeg Macapagal National Center for Geriatric Health

[Ipinahayag sa Tahanan ng Masa, Malacañang complex, Manila, ika 8 ng Hulyo, 2009]

Thank you

Maraming salamat Pingkoy sa iyong pagpaliwanag.

At maraming salamat din Congressman Benny Abante sa ideya na ibinigay mo sa akin at advance Happy Birthday para sa July 15. (applause) Gusto ko sana July 15 natin gagawin ito pero nandoon ako sa Egypt on that day dahil sa Summit ng Non-Aligned Movement kaya ginawa na natin ito bago ng birthday ni Benny.

At gusto kong gamitin ang pagkakataon na magpasalamat sa lahat ng tumulong sa ating administrasyon dahil itong nakaraang walong taon ay nakapaghandog tayo ng serbisyo ng para sa kalusugan sa milyun-milyong mga mamamayan na hindi maka-abot sa mga ganitong serbisyo noong araw. Halimbawa, kaka-report lang ni Secretary Pingkoy Duque na 85 percent na ng ating mamamayan ay nakasakop na sa health insurance. (applause) Di ba kayo meron na kayo? Okay.

At saka bukod sa bagong hospital na sisimulain natin ngayon ay meron tayong tatlumput apat na ibang hospital na pinag-ibayo, major hospital na pinagibayo ng DOH. Ngunit para sa akin mas importante pa yung higit na isang daang maliliit na hospital at higit dalawang daang klinika sa probinsya na pinag-ibayo rin para sa ganun magkakaroon sila ng tinatawag na secondary care services gaya nang yung pwede kang manganak doon at pwede kang magkaroon ng simpleng operasyon doon kasi noong araw wala yuon. Yun ang isang makakapagpa-abot ng serbsiyo na dati wala noong araw.

At isa pang importante, nahati natin ang presyo ng gamot na madalas bilhin ng madla gaya nang hiniling ko nung aking SONA noong 2001 pa kaya para doon maraming, maraming salamat din kay Congressman Benny Abante (applause) at yung ibang ating mga kinatawan na nagpasa ng Cheaper Medicine Bill.

Kay para sa ating mga lolo at lola, congratulations dito sa regalo ni Benny sa kanyang birthday, at (applause) doon naman sa mga Office of the President at TELOF na nakatira dito or nag-oopisina dito meron naman tayong ibang paglilipatan. Yung halimbawa si Relie Fajardo na aking... — ayan nandoon si Ching Vargas ikaw ang mag-a-allocate sa kanila — at saka si Mona Valisno etong ating mga Presidential Assistants ay pwede naman doon sa Mabini at saka sa Arlegui o yun sa Gamma Building, yung Arlegui yung pinaglipatan nung buong OPS dahil lumipat sila sa Borloday ay maraming lugar pa doon. At yung dating bahay ni Dr. Basilio Valdez na sana ito nga ang gagawing ospital na sabi na huwag naman daw gibain dahil national treasure na yun halos ay yun nung araw Malacañang Clinic yun pero lumipat na ang Malacañang Clinic sa PSG Hospital, maliban sa dialysis, kaya meron ding lugar doon bukod sa lugar na binigay natin sa mga barangay captain dito na walang Barangay Hall dahil wala nang lugar, wala nang lupa, kaya merong paglilipatan.

Kaya ang importante yung dating tinayo bilang ospital ay gamitin natin muli bilang ospital, (applause) at yun na nga ang ospital para sa ating mga lolo at lola na inaalagaan ni Congressman Benny Abante.

Maraming salamat.

Congratulations at Happy Birthday muli, Benny!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during an inspection visit of the proposed hospital for the Dr. Eva Macaraeg Macapagal National Center for Geriatric Health. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412101117/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25574&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the closing program of the Pampanga Barangay Summit

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the closing program of the Pampanga Barangay Summit

[Delivered at the Bren Guiao Convention Center, Brgy. Lourdes, City of San Fernando, Pampanga, July 20, 2009]

Maraming salamat Secretary Puno sa iyong pagpakilala sa atin.

King kekatang Presidente naning ABC king probinsya y Board member Joel Simpauco (applause) at karing ali-aliwang opisyaales ning ABC ning Pampanga; king kekatang host congressman, Congressman Dong Gonzales (applause) y Congresswoman Anna York Bondoc (applause) ampo y congressman ning BUTIL y Congressman Guanlao (applause) y Dennis ampo karing ali-aliwang mayors keti king kekatang probinsya at siyempre karing kekatang opisyaales ning barangay keti pung king Pampanga.

Dakal a salamat keng imbitasyon yu kanaku. Matula ku miyabe tangan. Maulaga ya iting summit uling paintulutan na la ding barangay ning kekatamung probinsiya a makipag-ugnayan karing officials ning kekatamung gubyrno, makanyan mu naman karing kekayung mayors among opisyaales ning probinsiya, ban kanita, apasanting yu pa ing pamagserbisyu yu karing kekatang memalen.

Balu ye karing milabas a labing aduang bulan metung yang banwa para karing history books. Financial meltdown in the West linadlad king kabilugang yatu. Financial systems in the West mesira la agyang karing conservative financial systems keti king East were shaken to their foundations. Karing mararagul a lagyu king international finance, they fell into disrepute, they vanished overnight. Unbelievable and unprecedented amounts of money have been thrown at the problem. King kabilugan yatu tens of millions have lost their jobs; billions across the globe have been hurt, at karing nakalulu always hurt harder than the rich, oneng no one has been spared.

Keti king kekatamung bansa, mas masalese tamukumpara karing keraklan da ring aliwang bansa. Oneng apektado naman tamu. Ing kekatang economic growth meging mas mabaga, but as long as I have the people of Pampanga behind me, I don't have to be popular to do my work to be president. (applause) Because I became president not to be popular but to protect and to preserve our country and our people lalu na ngeni, lalu na from the full brunt of the global recession.

At uli ning suporta yu kanaku we were able to position ourselves to do that. Ding kekatamung reporma makasakit la oneng ing memie kakatamung atlumpu't atlung quarters alang patad a panyulung; at manibat king milukluk kung antimong presidente, our economy has more than doubled its size. Kanitang 2001 ing kekatamung ekonomiya 76 billion dollars ing produksyun na, ngeni 186 billion dollars. (applause) The poverty rate was brought down. Ing GNP it rose kanita aniang 2001 third world tamu, 967 dollars ing kekatang capita income, ngeni 2,000 dollars middle-class natamu. (applause) At mekasuporta tamu deng 7 million entrepreneurs at ating entrepreneurs kayabe keti kekatang probinsya Pampanga. We reversed our balance of payments deficit inyang linukluk ku atin tang deficit ngeni atin tang surplus atin tang more or less about 40 billion dollars as part of our reserves.

Makananu kasi we increased taxes in good times. Salamat karing kekatang Congresspersons alayupa kanita y Dong Gonzales atsu ne y Anna York Bondoc when he did the very difficult reforms. (applause) We raised taxes in good times and now we can increase spending in bad global times. Deng kakatamung reporma megdalang panakitan a pemuhunan king kekatamung bansa, bayung pera para karing dalan, ikit yu naman ing kekatang Subic-Clark-Tarlac Expressway, ikit yu naman karing ali-aliwang barangay roads, karing barangay yu ding farm-to-market roads, karing tete, karing pantalan at bayung investments king serbisyung pangkalusugan, edukasyon among social services, ikit yu naman karing bayung eskwela tamu.

And ing masanting keti ikayu, the local governments are enjoying this year the biggest increase in internal revenue, 40 billion pesos (applause) for all the local governments. Sana ramdam yu king barangay yu ing meging mas maragul ing IRA yu king barangay. Makananu milyari ita? Kasi king batas atin atlung banuang lag para king computation ning share yu. Iniang 2006 megumpisa tamu meging mas maragul ing taxes tamu, king value added tax 100 billion pesos a year. Kaya three years later ing computation kayabe naku, kayabe na ning local governments, 40 percent of 40 billion pesos kayabe karing barangay.

Kaya aduan ku kekayu ngeni — let us provide stimulus to the economy, and what we're doing atin kung dagdag a pondo, atin kung priorities yu king national government among the things we're doing, extending welfare support to our people, expanding their spending power.

Yapin ing talagang gagawan tamu ngeni. Ing gubyerno, national government, gagawa yang targeted stimulus programs ampong magpalatag a masikan a safety net ban saupan ding peka-kalulu tamung memalen a lubhang magdusa king pamanghina na ning ekonomiya ning yatu. bat karing karagdagang penakitan tamu menibat karing kekatamung reporma, ginawa tamung Economic Resiliency Program, a memie mabilisang kapanintunan ampong oportunidad karing talapagobrang milako king obra ampong ding aliwa pang sektor antimo ding kayanakan a kailangan maging produktibo. Ing tutu na niti, keti king Pampanga ya milunsad ing national Youth Service Corps, a mamie karing kayanakang edad disiotso anggang beinte kwatro tsansang makasaup king panyulung na ning bansa kabang manakitan la. Sana ikit yuna kaniting programa king karing barangay yu.

Tatabi ta la ding peka-mabayat a epekto na ning kasalukuyang pamanghina ning ekonomiya ning yatu, kabang tatalakad ta ya in metung a bansang buri tamu para karing kekatamu ampong para karing anak tamu. Patuloy tamung gawan iti. King panig ku naman, bibie ku ngan ing agyu ku. At balu ku a mag-obra kayung masalese ban makabenepisyu ing bansa ustung mibawi ya ing yatu. (applause) Kanakung kabalen na Barangay officials, manalig ku kekayu. Uling palagi yung bibie kanaku ing kekayung todung suporta, dakal a salamat king suporta yu.

Kaya minsan pa, manalig ku king kekatamung pamisanmetung ampong kasipagan y ban patuloy yeng gawan ing Pampanga bilang maragul a contributor king panyulung na ning Pilipinas. (applause) Ing Pampanga dapat ipagmaragul tamu, milyari ing Pinatubo kekatamu, oneng agyang milyari ing Pinatubo kekatamu, itamu pa kayabe karing top 10 provinces ning kekatang bansa (applause) kaya itamu ing gubyerno nasyonal ampo ding gubyerno lokal kayabe da ring taga barangay palagi tamung masasaupan masalese.

Kaya dakal a salamat king lagi yung suporta at keti naman ing suportaning kekatang gobyerno para kekayu.

Dakal pong salamat kekongan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's speech during the closing program of the Pampanga Barangay Summit. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615090630/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=25718&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the new building of the Cagayan State University (CSU)

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inauguration of the new building of the Cagayan State University (CSU)

[Delivered at the Tuguegarao campus, Cagayan State University, August 28, 2009]

Dios agngina unay, Apo Pari Rannie, agyamanak ti introduction yo kanyak. Ken congratulations ta sika ti maysa dagiti brightest legal minds in our country today.

Apo Governor Antonio ken amin nga opisyaes ti probinsiya ti Cagayan; Apo Congressman Manny Mamba; Apo Mayor Ting ken amin nga opisyaes ti syudad ti Tuguegarao; Apo Perez ken amin nga opisyaes, maestras, maestros ken estudyante ti Cagayan State University; (applause) Apo Bishop Villena; Apo Secretary Bebot Bello ken amin kaduwa ko gapo Malacañang, dagiti kakailyan, naimbag nga aldaw yo amin ken agyamanak ti napudot nga pag-welcome yo kanyak.

Napudot konak not only because you have been so kind in your welcome ngem diay lugan itattay, nagsarita kami ni Governor, Congressman ken City Mayor nga ti Cagayan iso ti kinapudutan nga probinsiya ti intero nga pagilyan. Apay? Kunada, because Cagayan is between two very high mountain ranges and so the mountain ranges keep the cooling wind away from this valley. Ngem uray napudot, napintas unay, very fertile ti Great Cagayan River Valley.

Dagiti maysa aldaw, napanak diay Mindanao, diay Mindanao River Basin. Ken kunada, we must be proud of the Mindanao River Basin because it is the second greatest river basin in the country. And I said, “Yes, next only to the Cagayan River Basin.”

Iso nga napintas nga siyak, nga ti center of excellence ti Cagayan State University, iso ngarud diay Fisheries, diay Marine Science ken sapay kuma, diay Agri-Business. Ta importante ta no anya ti inted ni Apo Dios kadatayo, of natural resources, we should develop them with our human resources, our talent and our capital.

Kuna ngarud ni President Perez nga haan agpayso nga kurang ti suporta ti national government dagidiay State Universities and Colleges. There is a study of the Task Force on Education that says that in fact although State Universities and Colleges charged less than Private Universities and Colleges, the actual cost per student is higher in the State Universities and Colleges. That is why your low fees mean that it is the government paying for the rest of the expenses.

Iso nga haan laeng ti no anya ti ited ni Dios kadakayo, of the natural resources of the Great Cagayan River Valley but also no anya ti ited ti national government kadakayo, sapay kuma that our students, our outstanding students as evidence by all the topnotchers you have produced, that the students will use all of these bounties — natural and financial — for the good of the Great Cagayan River Valley and the Great Republic of the Philippines.

Dios agngina kadakayo amin ken congratulations!

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo’s speech during the inauguration of the new building of the Cagayan State University (CSU). Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412100212/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=26196&Itemid=38

Meeting of President Arroyo with NIC Commissioner Eduardo Malinis and Justice Secretary Agnes Devanadera

Meeting
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
With NIC Commissioner Eduardo Malinis and Justice Secretary Agnes Devanadera

[Held in Malacañang, October 11, 2009]

President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo ordered an immediate processing of insurance claims of victims of typhoons “Ondoy and Pepeng” with corresponding legal assistance from the Department of Justice.

In a meeting in Malacañang with National Insurance Commission (NIC) Chairman Eduardo Malinis and Justice Secretary Agnes Devanadera, the president asked for quick payment of all insurance claims of victims of typhoons.

The President also directed Justice Sec. Devanadera to create a taskforce that will assist the victims in whatever legal problems they might encounter in the processing of the claims.

Malinis had stated in a press briefing that NIC had already talked to insurance companies last week and they gave assurances that they will cooperate with the government for the speedy settlement of claims. An estimate of about P11 billion worth of property claims are expected from the victims of typhoons “Ondoy and Pepeng” and another P1 billion from motor vehicles.

Sec. Devanadera, on the other hand, said that they will increase the number of National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) agents deployed in the National Capital Region and Northern Luzon to monitor the prices of commodities and apprehend violators.

The DOJ will also see to it that those caught violating the price ceiling of goods set by the Department of Trade and Industry will be punished to the full extent of the law.(MDF)

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). Meeting with NIC Commissioner Eduardo Malinis and Justice Sec. Agnes Devanadera. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615134140/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=26446&Itemid=38

Obligatory Prayer of President Arroyo

Obligatory Prayer of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines

[Delivered on October 21, 2009]

ORATIO IMPERATA

Almighty Father, we raise our hearts to You in gratitude for the wonders of creation of which we are part, for Your Divine Providence in sustaining our needs, and for Your Wisdom that guides the course of the universe.

As we face typhoons, floods, volcanic and other calamities we trustingly seek Your help, aware that You are the Master of Creation.

We acknowledge that as an entire humanity we have not been good stewards of Nature. We have confused Your command to subdue the earth.

The environment is made to suffer our wrongdoing, and now we reap the harvest of abuse and indifference.

Global warming is upon us. Natural calamities occur in increasing numbers and intensity.

We turn to You, our loving Father, and beg forgiveness for our sins.

We humbly beg that we be spared from the dire consequences of calamities.

We beseech You to inspire us all to grow into responsible stewards of Your creation, and generous neighbors to those in need.

Amen.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). Oratio Imperata. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615134040/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=26594&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the awarding of the 2009 ‘Go Negosyo’ Most Inspiring Bataeno Entrepreneurs and Microentrepreneurs [Filipino]

Pangungusap
ng
Kagalang-galang Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
Pangulo ng Pilipinas
Sa paggagawad ng parangal sa 2009 ‘Go Negosyo’ Most Inspiring Bataeno Entrepreneurs and Microentrepreneurs

[Ipinahayag sa Bataan People’s Center, Balanga City, Bataan, ika 6 ng Nobyembre, 2009]

Maraming salamat.

Thank you very much, Joey Concepcion for your very kind introduction. Magandang tanghali sa inyong lahat. Maupo na kayo, tanghali na, hindi ho ako magtatagal.

Una sa lahat, gusto kong batiin ang ating mga opisyal dito sa Bataan: si Governor Tet Garcia; si Congressman Abet Garcia; ang nagwagi lately sa PCCI ng Most Outstanding Business-Friendly City sa ating bansa, si Mayor Joet Garcia; yung iba’t-ibang mga mayor na narito; si Vice Governor Apeng Roman na isang entrepreneur din doon sa aking bayan ng Lubao pati sa Amerika; ang aking kasamahan sa DTI, si Merly Cruz; ang ating mga nagwagi na mga Outstanding Micro- Entrepreneurs and Small Entrepreneurs who became big, congratulations sa inyo; ang Bataan Chamber na nagco-sponsor nitong inyong gawain at ako ay nasisiyahan na makita ang Bataan Chamber na napakalaki na ngayon, kasi noong ako ay nasa DTI, noong yung puwesto ko yung puwesto ni Merly Cruz, at nung ang boss ko ay si Secretary Joe Concepcion — ay! Mrs. Garcia, good... — yung tatay ni Joey Concepcion, doon sa Cindy’s sa Balanga, sinimulaan namin yung Bataan Chamber of Commerce and Industry kaya ako’y nasisiyahan na narito ngayon.

At ang ganda-ganda ng mga negosyo nung mga nagwagi ng premyo, congratulations sa inyong lahat! At dahil tuwing Biyernes ay Climate Change Day, I cannot help but add na sana magkaroon tayo ng mga negosyante at entrepreneur lalo na yung mga nagsisimulang maliliit na sinusubaybayan ng Go Negosyo ng mga iba’t-ibang mga maliliit na negosyo na puwedeng lumaki pagkatapos na nagsasagip sa ating kalikasan kontra sa climate change.

Isa na dito halimbawa, ayaw natin yung nagtotroso, so dapat meron tayong mga negosyo na panghalip sa pagtotroso, sa pagkakaintindi ko, isa sa mga dahilan kung bakit merong mga small-scale logging or even medium-scale logging ay ginagamit para sa charcoal, yuong basura ay puwedeng gawing charcoal. Ang puhunan mga P200 to P500,000 lamang. At may teknolohiya ang DOST at DENR para makatulong dito. Sana yung Go Negosyo ay katulong natin, kabalikat natin para nga magkaroon tayo ng mga maliliit na negosyo sa organic or charcoal from waste, charcoal briquetting machine.

Pagkatapos isa pa ang puwedeng mangyari, kailangan natin ng maraming housing ngayon dahil kailangan ilipat yung mga nakatira sa mga mapanganib na lugar na laging binabaha na ngayon dahil sa climate change. Meron ding puwedeng panggalingan ng basura, yung recyclable plastic, yung plastic — ano bang pangalan doon? — yung makina, yung recycled plastic ay puwedeng gawing construction materials, puwedeng gawing — tawag doon — yung mga imbes na hollow blocks, yung mga plastic blocks para sa pavement, para sa dingding at yun ay half a million pesos lamang ang puhunan. At ang kabutihan nito ay makakatulong ito sa mabawasan natin ang basura dahil basura rin ang isang malaking pinanggagalingan ng ating baha. At yun ding isang importante ay dapat ay yung ating mga daanan ng tubig, dinadaluyan ng tubig ay very clear. Kanina noong papunta kami rito, meron akong nakitang senyas doon sa isang restaurant, tabi ng ilog, na “alagaan natin ang ating ilog, huwag magtapon ng basura,” ang ganda-ganda nung ganong klaseng paalala.

At yung water lily, masamang-masama yun para sa ating water waste pero puwedeng gawing handicraft ang waterlily. Kaya itong mga ganitong klaseng negosyo, makakaiwas sa climate change, makakaiwas sa baha, makakatulong sa mga napipinsala ng baha. Kaya sana sa mga darating na panahon, ang magwawagi ng mga gantimpala ay kasama yung mga pumasok sa ganitong klaseng maliliit na negosyo.

Muli, sa ating mga outstanding negosyante ng Bataan, whether small, big or micro, congratulations muli sa inyong lahat!

Maraming salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's remarks during the awarding of the 2009 'Go Negosyo' Most Inspiring Bataeno Entrepreneurs and Microentrepreneurs. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100615133915/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=26764&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the formal turnover ceremony of the Worldwide Interoperability for Microwave Access (WiMax) Internet Connection under the Smart Schools Program

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the formal turnover ceremony of the Worldwide Interoperability for Microwave Access (WiMax)
Internet Connection under the Smart Schools Program

[Delivered at the Paguiruan High School, Brgy. Paguiruan, Floridablanca, Pampanga, November 11, 2009]

Dakal a salamat Jing. Ing kekatang Kapampangan a Secretary of Education.

At siyempre ali yaku ing guest of honor yu ngening aldo, ing kekatang guest of honor ing chairman ning Smart ampo ning PLDT, Chairman Manny Pangilinan. Kapampangan ya naman taga Apalit. At siyempre salamat kang Mayor Guerrero keng masanting a sinabi na nandin. And we would also like to welcome the chairman of the National Telecommunications Commission Liel Cordova, at ing representative na keti king Region III atyu keti y Director Sichon, at ing mayor ning Masantol y Mayor Tito Flores and our neighbor from Bataan the colleague of Manny Pangilinan in Smart, si Ginong Doy Vera.

Muna pu pasalamatan taya y Manny Pangilinan, ene akalingwan ing probinsiya na, laging sasaup kekatamu. At ngeni ing saup na ngening aldo, iti na pin ing Internet connection, ing WiMax connection keti pu king Paguiruan at ampo king San Basilio king Sta. Rita, maraming, maraming salamat, Manny. Dakal a salamat kekayu.

Dakal a salamat Smart, king Smart Schools program kalupa ning sinabi nang Manny Pangilinan there are now 270 schools under the Smart Schools programs all over the country. And this is a God-send contribution and aspiration, kalupa ning sinabi ng Secretary Jesli Lapuz nandin, to provide computer connectivity in every high school.

Lagi kung ulit-ulitan, buri tamu ing ICT, ing Technology ya ing maging pundasyon ning kekatang progreso. Inya pang 2001 sa aking unang State of the Nation Address, sinabi ko na ito, dapat teknolohiya ang basehan ng ating kaunlaran. At sinabi ko pa noon ang magiging bagong mga industriya na magdadala sa atin ng kaunlaran sa mga darating na mga panahon ay iyong Skills Intensive Service Sectors gaya ng ICT at ng tourism. At sa ICT ang unang-unang kailangan, the first step to achieve this, is to build up telecommunications infrastructure, and all from the market for internet calls, connectivity is a must. Kaya pin ing kekatang programa kesa dakal a computer king balang eskwela, importante at de agyang ditak mu keng computers konektadu la keng internet. And I hope that in times when there is no internet café, I hope that the internet facilities in the public high schools can also serve as a community tele center aside from being a computer lab.

We also thank Manny for many things that he has done to promote ICT. Kanita anyang earthquake king Taiwan, atin tang interruption king kekatang internet services, pero si Manny ing PLDT, yung Smart, yung iba conglomerate hindi ko na alam which company, ay gumawa sila ng gateway, telecommunications gateway mula sa La Union para anuman mangyari sa ibang lugar, ibang bansa, magkaroon ng tsunami, magkaroon ng earthquake, magkaroon ng bagyo, tuluy-tuloy pa rin ang ating communications sa labas ng bansa sa pamamagitan ng internet at international telecommunications.

At y Manny ay Kapampangan dakal pin ing asaup na kekatamu, ngeni ena kailangan maggamit pa king helicopter, nung bisa tang maranun miras king Pampanga, uling kasanting na ning NLEX ampong SCTEX. Ing NLEX gobyerno ya oneng ing NLEX ing mikibandi ninu iya alang aliwa nung y Manny Pangilinan. Ketu balu ku ding kayanakan ing magbenepisyo king WiMax, midinan inspirasyon king gawa nang Manny, kaya Manny thank you so much. Dakal a salamat Manny Pangilinan, maraming salamat Smart at talagang hindi kayo makalilimutan ng ating susunod na henerasyon.

Maraming salamat, dakal a salamat kekongan, at mayap a oras kekongan.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2009). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the formal turnover ceremony of the Worldwide Interoperability for Microwave Access (WiMax) Internet Connection under the Smart Schools Program. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100412092419/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=26806&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the Ifugao State University

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the inauguration of the Ifugao State University

[Delivered at the Ifugao State University Gymnasium, Brgy. Nayon, Lamut, Ifugao, January 6, 2010]

Dios ti agngina unay.

Apo Vice Governor Dinamling ken ti intero nga Provincial Board. Dios ti agngina unay, agyamanak ti resolution nga siyak ket maysa nga anak ti Ifugao.

Apo Congressman Chungalao; Apo Governor Baguilat; amin nga opisyaales ti Ifugao; Chairman Angeles and the other officials of CHED; President Ngohayon ken amin nga administrasyon, faculty ken estudyante ti baro nga Ifugao State University. Congratulations kada kayo amin!

Agyamanak nga akas maysa nga anak ti Ifugao, kaduwak ti panang-convert ti Ifugao State College iti maysa nga university. Maysa kadagiti naaramid tayo, kakaduwa tayo, tano matuloy ti progreso ti probinsiya ti Ifugao.

Siguro maysa nga rason apay siyak ket maysa nga anak ti Ifugao tatta, ta kanayon agbisita ak ti Ifugao, almost every year — agbisita ak ti Ifugao, agbisita ak ti Rice Terraces. Siyak ket maysa nga tourist guide dagiti naduma-duma nga VIPs ta kayat da nga makita dagiti Rice Terraces tayo. And in fact, last May, last Holy Week, umayak kuma but as you all very well know, my advance party, my senior staff had a fatal accident ken agyamanak dagiti opisyaales ken dagiti umili ti Ifugao nga nakatulong tano marecover the cadavers early enough to be able to have a decent burial for my beloved senior staff. Dios ti agngina kadakayo amin manen.

Idi Mayo, idi Holy Week, kayat ko koma nga umay haan laeng tano makita dagidiay Rice Terraces manen kadua dagidiay balikbayan koma nga bisitak, no di ket kayat ko met nga ma-inspect ti Halsema Highway ta iso ti maysa nga paboritok nga proyekto ti intero nga pagilyan. And I'm very happy, iso ket maysa nga para kanyak maysa nga paboritok nga kalsada nga infrastructure project ta ti papang ko, ni Presidente Diosdado Macapagal, iso ti immuna nga nagaramid ti Halsema Highway idi Presidente na. Ken itatta, kayat ko nga it will be repaired, upgraded, rehabilitated and reach all the way to the Rice Terraces. Meaning, all the way up to Ifugao. Siyempre sabali nga kalsada para makaasideg diay Rice Terraces. Ngem uray haanak nakaumay idi Holy Week ta instead of coming here, napan kami diay Manila to bury our... to pay respects to the dead for the wake, para kanyak, agyamanak ken maragsakanak nga maamuwan that the Ifugao portion of the Halsema Highway has been completed, and I'm very happy and I congratulate you all for that.

Iso laeng ti maysa ngem importante nga maysa dagiti sab-sabali nga proyekto tayo, iso ngarud para dagiti umili ti Ifugao. And I'm very happy that the tourists are appreciating our beautiful Rice Terraces and I have been told that they find it much more convenient now to come to visit ta napipintasen dagidiay kalsada.

Ken siyempre importante no nasiyaat dagidiay kalsada, nasiyaat met haan laeng ti physical infrastructure no di ket met ti human infrastructure. Ken iso ket importante ti edukasyon. Idtoy Cordillera idi pay, napintasen ti tradisyon ti edukasyon ti intero nga Cordillera. And ti namnamak nga idtoy baro nga university tayo, iso ti mangitulong tano matuloy ti tradisyon of excellent education in the Cordilleras and the province of Ifugao.

Dios ti agngina ken congratulations met kada kayo amin.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the inauguration of the Ifugao State University. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100410090049/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27233&Itemid=38

Activities of President Arroyo at the Vin d' Honneur

Activities of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines At the Vin d' Honneur

[Held at the Rizal Hall, Malacañan Palace, January 20, 2010]

President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo received the members of the Diplomatic Corps as the annual New Year's Vin d' Honneur was celebrated at the Rizal Hall in Malacanang Palace this afternoon.

The President started her statement with a silent prayer dedicated for the late Press Secretary Cerge Remonde. She also offered her sympathies to the people devastated by the Haiti earthquake.

Her administration's achievements were the highlight of President Arroyo's speech. The President began with the economic resilience of the country through the height of global recession. She said that the country achieved the lowest average inflation and reached the highest average GDP growth and average annual job creation despite the economic crisis.

Furthermore, President Arroyo said that her government concentrated on providing jobs and investment on human and physical infrastructure. Thus, her nine years of governance reached the highest average annual job creation. She also mentioned that health care services were improved, electricity and potable water were supplied to unreachable areas of the country, more schools were built for the Filipino youth and internal transportation system was constructed. She continued with the accomplishments of her administration with the evident increase in tourism and BPO industry.

Towards the end of her speech, President Arroyo expressed the importance of education to the Filipino youth thus boosted education investments. The President called for the youth to help in creating a safer and lesser violent Philippines.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). Vin d' Honneur. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100410085932/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27320&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the eulogy and conferment (posthumous) of the Order of Lakandula, Rank of Bayani on the late Press Secretary Cerge Remonde

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the eulogy and conferment (posthumous) of the Order of Lakandula, Rank of Bayani on the late Press
Secretary Cerge Remonde

[Delivered at the Heroes Hall, Malacañang, January 21, 2010]

It is my very sad honor to welcome to Malacañan Palace for the last time our dear friend and colleague, the late Secretary Cerge Remonde, who passed away last Tuesday as the peak of his second career — the first career in journalism and the second career in public service. He reached the peak of journalism; he reached the peak of public service as a Cabinet member. And so he deserved it all.

Cerge gave fully of himself for the sake of our country both in government for the last nine years and in media since he was 18 years old. I remember Cerge interviewing me frequently over the phone in Cebuano when I was still a new senator. That exposure helped me because it made many people in the Visayas and Mindanao realize that I spoke Cebuano and that culminated in my landslides in 1995 and 1998 and in 2004 in the Visayan speaking provinces of Visayas and Mindanao.

Also when I was a senator, not in politics but in our governance work. When we would discuss in caucus proposed measures that involve media Cerge was always quoted, was always consulted, was considered a leader among stakeholders whose opinion we should always take into account.

I learned early then to take Cerge's opinion into account and that was carried on not only in my work as senator but in my work as president with Cerge beside me. So, I looked at him that way in his various capacities in our government. He came in as Press undersecretary, then head of Channel 13, then head of Channel 9, then head of all government media, then head of PMS, and finally press secretary.

He was a very sensitive person. When he would be hurt, he would let me know about it, and we'd always make up. But he was also a person of very wise counsel. His questions even in Cabinet meetings, in discussions and debates, were questions that a journalist would ask. He always brought the journalist perspective into our discussions. And that made us the better for the decisions that we made.

We've been talking about Cerge for days now and, indeed, I could see how loved he was. But I had a glimpse of that already when he was leaving the PMS to become press secretary, the PMS Senior staff were telling me how sad they were to see him go. And he himself was feeling so fulfilled in PMS that he hesitated to become press secretary but then as we said in the beginning he had given his life for his country and it was also for his country and for me that he decided to accept to be press secretary.

Now, he is here with us for the last time in Malacañang. We mourn the loss of this faithful and talented mediaman and public servant. Many of you here, I am sure, remember him for his charm. He always had a great sense of humor. His wit and his solicitude for individuals as well as for his ideals. His love for people as well as his principles.

Cerge, we will miss you. But as you have Señor Sto. Niño beside you, and as Marit said last night, Sto. Niño and Sinulog have played such important parts in the milestones in Cerge's life. We pray that you are now singing "Pit Señor" in heaven.

Goodbye, Cerge. Rest in Peace.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the eulogy and conferment (posthumous) of the Order of Lakandula, Rank of Bayani on the late Press Secretary Cerge Remonde. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100407235336/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27350&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration of the Alphaland Southgate Tower and Mall

Remarks of Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo President of the Philippines During the inauguration of the Alphaland Southgate Tower and Mall

[Delivered at Chino Roces Ave. (Pasong Tamo Ext.) cor. EDSA, Makati City, January 21, 2010]

Thank you, thank you.

Thank you very much Mr. President, whom we used to call Baby Oreta when we were teenagers.

Bobby and the Alphaland and Ashmore team, Alphaland Corporation and the partner Ashmore Investment Limited, for seeing the potential of a decrepit shell of a building in a prime site. Thank you for doing together Alphaland and Ashmore. Thank you to Bobby. Thank you to Eric. Thank you to Mario. Thank you to Mr. Dawes and the rest of the Ashmore team. Thank you and congratulations because today's inauguration of Alphaland Southgate Tower and Mall is a testament to the bold vision of your management matched with the strong will to produce results. And thank you to Ashmore, for being part of the Billion- Dollar Club of the Philippines.

You are putting into the country so far more than a billion dollars, in fact, three billion in investments not including the enumeration that Bobby made during his remarks, is a testament to your foresight and your strong will to increase wealth in the world.

But I'm also proud to say that what you have done is a testimony on how the level of economic activity in this country has improved, as highlighted by the expansion of various Philippine conglomerates like Ayala Corporation, whose development we see all around us; San Miguel Corporation, we have Ramon Ang here; the Gokongwei companies, and I'm glad that JG Summit is one of your forthcoming partners; Jollibee Foods; SM of Henry Sy who will be your neighbor when you have your development in Alphaland Bay City; and now Ashmore.

But even as the top 1,000 corporations to the Philippines have increased their income from 100 billion pesos in year 2000 to 700 billion last year. Prosperity is not by no means limited to the top because more mediumsize businesses have also flourished, and the rate of houses being built in our administration surpasses that of other administrations.

Two million have graduated from extreme poverty. The size of the middleclass has also increased considerably. This increases the demand and the production for consumer goods and other items, and I hope that this increase in the middle-class augurs well for the Alphaland Mall because they will be your tenants.

Alphaland is showing other investors how commitment should be matched by action; how vision can be transformed into tangible and fruitful projects.

Yes, thank you for making this symbol of uselessness become a symbol of hope. Together, let us all work in common purpose to get back on the path of sustainable growth, not only for the Philippines but to our world partner for the whole world.

So, thank you, Alphaland and Ashmore for helping us show the way. And congratulations once again!

Salamat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the inauguration of the Alphaland Southgate Tower and Mall. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100410085823/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27363&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the inauguration of Sagñay-Tiwi Road and inspection of the parish operated Botika ng Barangay

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the inauguration of Sagñay-Tiwi Road and inspection of the parish operated Botika ng Barangay

[Delivered in Sagñay, Camarines Sur, May 31, 2010]

Thank you.

Maraming salamat Secretary Cabral sa iyong pagpakilala. Umupo na kayo lahat.

Maraming salamat din Congressman Fuentebella at lahat ng mga opisyal ng Partido at Sagñay sa inyong mainit na pagtanggap sa aming grupo, si Secretary Cabral at saka si Secretary Vic Domingo ng DPWH.

Gaya nang sabi ni Congressman Fuentebella para sa akin parang tinuturing ko ang aking sarili bilang bahagi ng nakalikha ng Partido. Gawa nang ginawa ni Congressman Fuentebella ang batas sa House ng Partido Development Authority ako po ang author ng Partido Development Authority sa Senado po kaya po ako ang partner.

At nung nga ako ay naging pangulo at yung potensyal ng PDA. Naalala ko ang kalsadang ito na ininaugurate natin ngayon yan ay merong pautang sana nung hindi pa ako nakaupo kaya lang ang problema yung mga nakaraan pag utang akala nila hindi na kailangan ilagay sa budget pero kailangan pa rin. Kasi ang prinsipyo ng budget doon kung halimbawa one trillion ang budget eh ang pera natin ay P700 billion lamang, P300 billion ay pautang pero kailangan nasa budget pa rin. Kaya dahil ako ay ekonomista nung ako'y umupo bilang pangulo, alam ko yun, na kahit na utang hindi yun over and above the budget kailangan bahagi ng budget, kailangan isama sa budget. Kaya sinama natin ito itong Sagñay-Tiwi Road doon sa budget kaya meron kayong kalsada ngayon.

At isang importanteng dahilan din kung bakit importante itong kalsadang ito ay bahagi doon sa tinatawag kong programa ng Super Regions. Yung Super Regions po ay kasi meron tayong 16 regions sa ating bansa pero kung tutuusin mo meron tayong mga limang Super Region na may sariling likas na katangian para yun ang magiging pangagalingan ng kaunlaran. At ang Bicol ay sinasama natin sa Central Philippines Super Region dahil ang kinabukasan ninyo ay ang turismo. Ang gaganda ng inyong mga baybay meron kayong Atulayan dito eh nung araw pa nung anak ko ay estudyante sa Ateneo de Naga pinupuntahan na nila yun. So ibig sabihin wala pang advertisement dinadayo na lalo na kung ituloy sana yung tinatawag nating Super Region para sa ganun yang Atulayan ay maging sanhi ng kaunlaran ng Sagñay at ibang bahagi ng Southern Partido District. Kaya importante itong kalsada, itong kalsadang ay patungo doon sa Atulayan.

Ngayon po importante rin na kung meron tayong economic activity gaya ng turismo kailangan din naman merong mga serbisyo para sa pinakamahirap. At itong serbisyo na ginawa ng ating pamahalaan ay yung para sa kalusugan yung murang gamot. Nung hinahanda ko ang pagbisita ko dito nalaman ko na wala na pala kayong Botika ng Barangay dito pero meron dati tinayo ng Parish Pastoral Council pero ang nangyari ay nagkakulang ng pondo at dahil una hindi nakakuha ng lisensya sa Department of Health. Bakit hindi nakakuha ng lisensya sa Department of Health? Dahil kailangan para magkaroon ng parmasya dapat may pharmacist, eh wala palang pharmacist so hindi nabigyan ng lisensya. Kaya ngayon ang sabi ko eh kung wala sila ng Botika ng Barangay o Bayan na nagbebenta ng murang gamot maglagay tayo at nalaman nga yung mga problemang yun.

Kaya itong araw na ito pupuhunan natin muli ng panibago — di ba, Espie itong Botika ng Barangay? — at bibigyan ng pharmacist. Pero ang pharmacist ay hindi lamang para dito kasi siyempre naman hindi rin makakaya bayaran yung pharmacist baka malugi na naman kayo muli Father kaya ang pharmacist ay magpepwesto sa probinsya bayad ng national government pero nakaupo sa probinsya sa kapitolyo para lumibot sa mga bayan na walang pharmacist para magko-comply sa requirement na may pharmacist kayo.

So, yun sa ekonomiya yung kalsada. Sa pagkalinga yung parmasyang murang gamot.

Kanina sinabi ni Congressman Fuentebella, congratulations sa ating DPWH sa pamumuno ng inyong district engineer. Nagpasalamat na tayo sa namumuno, magpasalamat naman tayo doon sa mga nagtrabaho sa kanilang kamay. Magpasalamat tayo sa manggagawa tawagin natin isa sa kanila, si Salvador Gacer bilang magpasalamat sa kanya at magkaroon ng ating kwento kung papano ang imprastraktura, ang pagtayo ng imprastraktura ay nakakatulong sa pagbigay ng trabaho. Ano, kamusta ka?

PGMA interacts with Salvador Gacer.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the inauguration of Sagñay-Tiwi Road and inspection of the parish operated Botika ng Barangay. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609075943/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=28005&Itemid=38

Remarks of President Arroyo during the ceremonial pledge of the New Career Executive Service Officers and presentation of the Career Executive Service Digest

Remarks
of
Her Excellency Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo
President of the Philippines
During the ceremonial pledge of the New Career Executive Service Officers and presentation of the Career Executive Service Digest

[Delivered at the Rizal Hall, Malacañang, April 5, 2010]

Good afternoon, everyone.

(Attendees singing “Happy Birthday” to the President who is celebrating her 63rd Birthday)

Thank you, thank you.

Thank you very much for your birthday greetings.

As I told the... first of all, congratulations for the launching of your digest and as I told the members of your Board, while I was launching the digest, well, I thank you for your birthday greetings. This is my only birthday event aside from the mass, my birthday mass in Lubao.

I had many invitations especially to inaugurate flagship infrastructure projects but I felt that we have been already highlighting many projects related to physical capital and on my birthday, I want to highlight that we have not only develop physical capital, we have develop human capital especially in our civil service.

Today, we are congratulating the CESOs that I appointed between November and March 10. But I want to take this opportunity to congratulate the CESOs not only that I appointed between November last year and March 10 this year but also those that I appointed from the beginning of my administration. I want to congratulate all our CESOs that we appointed in government for your unprecedented rise during our administration.

Ric Saludo, the predecessor of Pingkoy Duque is not here now, but he sent me some statistics. He said before 2001, one-third of CESO positions went to CESOs, but during our administration now CESOs occupy the majority of CESO positions. So, that's a very big increase, not only that many CESOs have been appointed as Cabinet members and heads of agencies. For instance, we had the late Emy Boncodin as Secretary of DBM; we have Secretary Pat Sto. Tomas, Secretary of DOLE and now chairman of the DBP. We have Secretary Nitoy Roque, who rose from the ranks starting as a Labor Attache, Deputy of OWWA in my administration, OWWA Head, and now Secretary of Labor. We have Celia Yangco of DSWD. He's not here because he is not at my beck and call being independent of the national government; we have the Central Bank Governor Say Tetangco. And looking here on the front row, we have Horace Ramos of DENR; (applause) we have Vic Domingo of DPWH although his CESO was in the DTI. And then we have Anne Lontoc who just took her oath as CESO, one of those who became CESO over the past five months and now she is the Secretary of Transportation.

We have heads of agencies, for instance, Jeremy Barns, the new Head of the National Museum, is a CESO. So, Mona, our new Secretary of Education, is also a CESO. And we have Nina Alabastro, our Secretary of Science and Technology is also a CESO. We have Mai Jimenez who is our representative in the Asian Development Bank, she's also a CESO.

So, from the Cabinet, all the way down to undersecretaries to heads of agencies everywhere, I have tried to make it really a policy that which is prescriptive because many presidents have really not followed it, but as long as there is a CESO who is applying for a given position, that CESO always has the priority. That's why now majority of the positions have come from CESOs.

So, I'm very glad to have this birthday, and I want to thank all of you for spending my birthday with me. I want to say, thank you but in return, Mabuhay ang ating mga CESO sa gobyerno!

Maraming salamat sa inyong lahat.

Source: www.op.gov.ph

Macapagal-Arroyo, G. (2010). President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's remarks during the ceremonial pledge of the New Career Executive Service Officers and presentation of the Career Executive Service Digest. Retrieved from https://web.archive.org/web/20100609080210/http://www.op.gov.ph/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=27782&Itemid=38

